Consideration and Debate

A. INTRODUCTORY; INITIATING CONSIDERATION AND DEBATE

§ 1. In General

The principles of consideration and debate are the cornerstone on which the orderly proceedings of the House of Representatives are based. The rules and the body of precedent governing consideration and debate not only protect the right of individual Members to freely express themselves but also serve to expedite the business of the House and its committees.

Many of the rules of the House relating to consideration and debate are unique to that body; the House has refined and modified its rules over the years so as to accommodate the needs and responsibilities of 435 Members. And many of the same principles laid down on the subject by Thomas Jefferson in 1801 still govern consideration and debate in the House.⁽¹⁾

This chapter takes up the subject of consideration and debate in its broadest sense, including the general rules and principles as well as those specific procedures governing particular questions and motions.

This chapter excludes precedents on questions and motions which are exhaustively treated elsewhere. For example, the secondary motions, such as the motion for the previous question and to lay on the table, and the special motions, such as to discharge a committee and to suspend the rules, occupy other portions of this work. The general and most important principles concerning debate on those questions are summarized herein, but the complete body of precedents on those questions may be found in their relevant chapters and sections.⁽²⁾

2. For discussion of secondary motions (postpone, lay on table, previous question, refer, recommit, reconsider), see Ch. 23, supra. For the motion to suspend the rules, see Ch. 21, supra; for the motion to discharge a committee, see Ch. 18, supra.

Note: This chapter discusses significant precedents and changes in House procedures in Congresses as

Who May or May Not Participate in Debate

§ 1.1 The Speaker has on numerous occasions taken the floor and participated in debate.

§ 1.3 A Member-elect, asked to stand aside when the oath was administered to other Members, was, by unanimous consent, permitted to participate in debate on a resolution relating to his right to be sworn.

On Jan. 10, 1967,⁽¹²⁾ at the convening of the 90th Congress, the right to be sworn of Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York, was challenged. During debate on House Resolution 1, relating to the right of Mr. Powell to be sworn, Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, asked unanimous consent that Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, be permitted to yield time for debate to Mr. Powell, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Powell had not taken the oath of office. There was no objection.

Mr. Powell made the following remarks:

My beloved colleagues with whom I have served for 24 years: I know this is an agonizing moment for all of you. I know if you could vote on a secret ballot, your vote would be different from what you have proclaimed publicly, because you know I have been here 24 years, and he who is without sin should cast the first stone. There is no one here who does not have a skeleton in his closet. I know, and I know them by name. . . .

Gentlemen, my conscience is clean. My case is in God's hands. All I hope is that you have a good sleep tonight.⁽¹³⁾

§ 1.4 Certain contestees (sitting Members of the House) in an election contest were present on the floor during the consideration of the resolution dismissing the contest; and while they did not participate in debate, they did insert their remarks in the Record in explanation of their position.

On Sept. 17, 1965,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House agreed to House Resolution 585, with an amendment, dismissing an election contest against the delegation of Representatives-elect from Mississippi. During debate on the resolution, the contestees, who had been seated by the House, were present on the floor but did not actually participate in the debate. They did however insert in the Record remarks in explanation of their position:

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I am sure that it is not necessary to point out here that this is not a very pleasant situation in which your Mississippi delegation finds itself today. While we do not entertain the slightest doubt about the ultimate outcome, we find little comfort in the knowledge that this alleged contest has serious political implications on a national basis. At the same time, we must be realistic enough to recognize the facts of political life. We must take cognizance of the conflict of the political philosophy of ourselves and the handful here in the House leading the fight as well as those behind them. We must also take into consideration the tremendous pressure that has been brought upon the membership of this House by outside influences. . . .

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: I wish to say we all are deeply indebted to those of our friends who were helpful in handling of this matter before the committee and in voting to dismiss the pending challenge. In that connection, I would like at this point to show for the permanent record that none of the so-called contestants were candidates in the 1964 elections. In fact, three of them were candidates in the Democratic primary which, under section 3129 of the Mississippi Code, would bind them to support the nominee of the primary and would make them ineligible to be candidates in the general election in November.⁽¹⁵⁾

§ 1.5 Members of the Senate have the privilege of the House floor, but they do not have the privilege of being recognized to address the House.

On Oct. 11, 1943,⁽¹⁶⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, declined to recognize Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, for the unanimous-consent consideration of a resolution inviting Senators returned from the warfront to address the House while in session. The Speaker stated that the resolution introduced by Mr. Rankin (H. Res. 319) would be referred to the proper committee (Committee on Rules).

Mr. Rankin inquired of the Speaker whether the House did not have the right to invite Senators to address the House. The Speaker responded:

The election contest was unique in that the seats of all the Members-elect from Mississippi were being contested on the ground of denial of voting rights within the state. The contestants had been allowed the privilege of the floor but not of participation in debate during the consideration of the resolution. See clause 1, Rule XXXII for floor privileges of contestants in election cases.

Members of the Senate have the privilege of the floor, but they do not have the privilege of addressing the House of Representatives.⁽¹⁷⁾

§ 1.6 Former Members of the House, while having the privilege of the floor under the rules, may not manifest approbation or disapproval of what is said on the floor.

On Dec. 20, 1932,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, made the point of order that a former Member of the House presently on the floor had no right to applaud the remarks of the Speaker. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, sustained the point of order:

The gentleman has properly raised a question of order. The Chair is advised by the Parliamentarian that although the gentleman referred to is entitled to the privilege of the floor it is a violation of the rules for him to indulge in approbation or disapproval of what may be said upon the floor.

tarian state a rule of the Senate, the Speaker Pro Tempore suggested that the Chair was conversant with the views of the Parliamentarian and would answer the inquiry.

On May 24, 1950,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, rose to a question of privilege of the House, based on remarks reflecting upon a Senator and delivered in House debate and printed in the Record. During discussion of the rule of comity between the Houses, Speaker Pro Tempore John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [DANIEL A.] REED of New York: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. REED of New York: Mr. Speaker, it might clarify matters a little if our Parliamentarian would state what the Senate rule is.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is sure the gentleman does not want to put the Parliamentarian in the embarrassing position of making such a statement. The Chair is very conversant with the views of our able and outstanding Parliamentarian. The Chair, recognizing his great knowledge, ability, and logic, has been following the suggestions and advice of our Parliamentarian very carefully.

Debate in Informal Session

§ 1.8 The chairman of a select committee and a member thereof asked Members to remain in the Chamber after adjournment so that such committee could present some facts unwise to present publicly.

On Jan. 19 and 20, 1943,⁽²⁰⁾ members of a select committee requested that Members remain in the Chamber after adjournment in order to discuss matters related to the war effort which should not be publicly discussed:

MR. [CARL] HINSHAW [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 30 seconds.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection?

There was no objection.

MR. HINSHAW: Mr. Speaker, I am taking this time at the suggestion of the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Nichols) to remind the Members of the House that following the adjournment of the House today the members of the Select Committee to Investigate Air Accidents would like to present to them some facts we feel it is unwise to present publicly. Therefore, if Members will do us the honor of remaining quite a little while after the session, we will be pleased, and I think they will hear some things in which they will be greatly interested themselves.

1. Howard W. Smith (Va.).

MR. [RICHARD M.] KLEBERG [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 minute.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection?

There was no objection.

MR. KLEBERG: Mr. Speaker, I take this time for the purpose of reminding gentlemen that tomorrow, immediately after the business on the Speaker's desk is disposed of, the committee appointed by the Congress under H.R. 125 will meet during an informal recess with the membership of the House, in executive session, to give you some facts which perforce, because of wartime emergencies, could not be put into our final report. There are many vital matters that the committee does not desire to withhold from the membership of the House, and we are taking the House not only into our full confidence, but we assure Members that we have some things to tell them which we feel they must know, and we hope there will be a good attendance.⁽²⁾

But see §11.14, infra, where the Speaker indicated he would not recognize for a unanimous-consent request that an off-the-record meeting of Members, to discuss the war situation, be held in the House Chamber, the meeting having previously been scheduled for the auditorium of the Library of Congress. Under clause 3 of Rule I, the Speaker controls the Hall of the House after adjournment and would in all cases need to give permission for a closed discussion in the Chamber.

Notes of Reporters of Debates

§ 1.10 Inquiries concerning the parliamentary situation on the floor are properly directed to the Chair, and it is not in order for a Member to request that the notes of the official reporters be read to ascertain what motions have been put by the Chair.

On May 22, 1968,⁽⁶⁾ the House had agreed to a conference report on S. 5, the Consumer Credit Protection Act, without debate. Disagreement arose as to whether the question on the report had been put, and Speaker John W.

6. 114 CONG. REC. 14402-04, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded to an inquiry as to whether a Member could demand that the notes of the reporters be read.

MR. [WRIGHT] PATMAN [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to vacate the proceedings by which the House adopted the conference report on the bill (S. 5) to assist in the promotion of economic stabilization by requiring the disclosure of finance charges in connection with extension of credit.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

MR. [WILLIAM L.] HUNGATE [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, all Members were notified this measure would be before the House today as the first order of business. This legislation has been before this body for 8 years. Objection should have been made before the vote was taken.

Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard. . . .

MR. GERALD R. FORD [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, so that the record is crystal clear, I request that the notes of the reporter be reread to the Members.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that has never been done before so far as the knowledge of the Chair is concerned.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: Mr. Speaker, I am not sure that a circumstance like this has ever happened before, either. Inasmuch as it is important to know whether the gentleman from Texas moved—or just what transpired—I think it would be very helpful to all of us if we could have the reporter's notes reread at this time. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will suggest that the Members can carry on their colloquy but the position of the Chair is clear—the gentleman from Texas called up the conference report and had asked that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read and after the Clerk had proceeded to read the statement, the gentleman from Texas asked unanimous consent that the further reading of the statement of the managers on the part of the House be dispensed with and that it be placed in the Record.

The gentleman from Texas was standing and the Chair rose and said—"The question is on agreeing to the conference report." The Chair did it deliberately—and the report was agreed to. The Chair acted most deliberately.

§ 1.11 Demonstrations and applause are not a part of the proceedings of the House, and the Speaker has directed the reporters of debates to refrain from inserting in the Record indications of applause during normal House proceedings.

On Mar. 6, 1945,⁽⁷⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, discussed his rulings that applause and other manifestations of audience approval are not a part of the Record:

MR. [JOHN E.] RANKIN [of Mississippi]: Now, Mr. Speaker, if the rule is going to be applied to one, it should be applied to all. When we make these 1-minute speeches, I submit we ought to have 1 minute apiece, no more and no less.

Now, there is another question I have been thinking I would raise. I propound another parliamentary inquiry at this time. Some time ago the Official Reporters of Debates ceased to take down the demonstrations that are made in the course of debate, the only parliamentary body in the world that prints a Record in which that has been done, that I have been able to find. I occasionally get the Record of the British House of Parliament. I read it and in these trying times there is applause, cheers, their cries of "hear, hear," laughter, and other demonstrations that are made. You get the Record of the United States Senate and, as a rule, they do not have probably so many there to applaud, but when there is applause or a demonstration, it is placed in the Record. Our demonstrations have been cut out of our Record and I think it is a serious mistake because now a man can make a speech and extend his remarks and you have no indication as to where his speech left off and where his extension of remarks begins. I know it has been contended by a few Members in the House that the extension of those demonstrations in the Record have been abused. But that was done very seldom, and where the Member did abuse that privilege by inserting laughter or applause he has been subjected to the most drastic criticism and ridicule and, as a rule, has never attempted it again.

I submit that from this time on I, for one, am going to insist that whatever demonstrations are made on the floor of the House during debate be reported by the Official Reporters of Debates as it was for more than 140 years. Then if a Member desires to strike it out, and has permission to revise and extend his remarks, he may do so.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not intend to be facetious, but the Chair would like to give the House his reaction to the expressions "Hear! Hear!" and "Applause" in the Record. When I came here 32 years ago on Sunday last, a gentleman had been elected by a split in the Republican Party in a particular State, and he had come here with Democratic and Progressive votes. He made a speech in the House. Whether it went into the permanent Record I do not know, but I know it went into the temporary Record. It closed in this fashion: "Loud and prolonged applause among Democrats and Progressives, followed by much handshaking."

In times past there appeared in the Record the word "Applause" where a Member spoke. In another place there was "Loud applause." In another place there was "Loud and prolonged applause." In another place there was "Loud and prolonged applause, the Members rising." If I had made a speech and had received "applause," and some Member had followed me immediately and had received "loud and prolonged applause, the Members rising," my opponent in the next primary might have called attention to how insignificant I was because I only received "applause" and the other Member had received "loud and prolonged applause, the Members rising."

The Chair has held that demonstrations in the House are not a part of the Record, and shall continue to hold that until the rules of the House are changed.⁽⁸⁾

Duty of Chair in the Senate

§ 1.12 The Vice President made a statement in the Senate relating to the duties of the Chair in enforcing the rules of debate.

On Feb. 28, 1949,⁽⁹⁾ Vice President Alben W. Barkley delivered a statement on the rules of debate in the Senate as they relate to holding the floor and as to the restriction against yielding. He concluded his remarks with a statement on the duties of the Chair:

The question as to the function of the Chair in enforcing the rules of the Senate without a point of order being made by another Senator is one to which the present occupant of the Chair has given considerable consideration. The present occupant of the Chair feels it is his duty and his function in part to facilitate the prompt transaction of the Senate's business. The Chair recognizes that frequently one Senator may dislike to make a point of order against another Senator

8. For prior practice, see 78 CONG. REC. 8043, 73d Cong. 2d Sess., May 3, 1934 (reporters of debates permitted to insert words "laughter and applause" and "applause" when such manifestation actually occurred on the floor of the House).

9. 95 CONG. REC. 1584-86, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

who has the floor, even though he may be violating the rule or may be yielding for a general running debate, or for other purposes, because of personal relationships or other reasons. The Chair feels he is obligated to the Senate insofar as he can in observance of the rules and in protection of the Members of the Senate in the enjoyment of their rights, to observe and enforce the rules wherever he feels they are being violated.

The Chair feels certain the Members of the Senate will cooperate in the matter of keeping order in the Senate and in observing the rules. The Chair wishes in no instance to have it understood that any ruling he makes is directed to any particular Senator who at the moment may be occupying the floor or any Senator who may be seeking to interrupt another Senator who occupies the floor. For that reason the Chair has felt it his duty to make this preliminary statement in order that it may apply to all Senators, and not to any particular Senator.

Parliamentarian's Note: Whether the Speaker or the Chairman in the Committee of the Whole enforces on his own initiative a rule of debate depends on the nature of the rule or practice in question.

Initiating Consideration of Senate Bill

§ 1.13 A Senate bill cannot be taken from the Speaker's table for consideration in the House by motion, unless similar to a House bill previously reported and on the House Calendar under Rule XXIV clause 2.

The situation described above developed on July 31, 1975,⁽¹⁰⁾ in the House when Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, responded to several parliamentary inquiries:

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RHODES: Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that the other body has passed this legislation and that it will soon be messaged over to the House. My inquiry is whether or not there is any way under the parliamentary procedures of the House that the bill can be brought up for immediate consideration upon its receipt in the House.

THE SPEAKER: It can be brought up only by a unanimous-consent request.

MR. RHODES: Mr. Speaker, in that event, I ask unanimous consent that when the bill is brought to the House that it be immediately considered by the House.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

MR. [TOBY] MOFFETT [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

MR. RHODES: Mr. Speaker, is a motion in order for the immediate consideration of the bill by the House?

THE SPEAKER: It is not.

10. 121 CONG. REC. 26252, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. RHODES: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Rules may have until 10 o'clock tomorrow to file a resolution and report.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

MR. [JOHN] BRADEMÁS [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

Consideration by Unanimous Consent of Joint Resolution Concerning Precedents

§ 1.14 By unanimous consent, the House considered and passed a joint resolution reported from the Committee on House Administration, providing for the printing and distribution of the Precedents of the House, compiled by Lewis Deschler, former Parliamentarian of the House.

On Sept. 30, 1976,⁽¹¹⁾ the House agreed to a unanimous-consent request to consider House Joint Resolution 1107 (providing for printing and distribution of Deschler's Precedents of the House of Representatives), as follows:

MR. [JOHN] BRADEMÁS [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent [for the] consideration of the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 1107) to provide for the printing and distribution of the Precedents of the House of Representatives compiled and prepared by Lewis Deschler, as amended, and ask for its immediate consideration.

11. 122 CONG. REC. 34220, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

H.J. RES. 1107

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That (a) there shall be printed and bound as a public document two thousand sets of the Precedents of the House of Representatives compiled and prepared by Lewis Deschler (hereinafter in this joint resolution referred to as the "Precedents"). . . .

With the following committee amendment:

The committee amendment was agreed to.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

On July 13, 1978,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House during consideration of House Resolution 1267 (impeaching Andrew Young, United States ambassador to the United Nations):

MR. [LAWRENCE P.] McDONALD [of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of the privileges of the House, and I send to the desk a privileged resolution (H. Res. 1267), and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

Resolved, That Andrew Young, United States Ambassador to the United Nations, be impeached.

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I move to lay the resolution on the table.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁴⁾ The question is on the motion to table offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright). The motion to table is a privileged motion.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. McDONALD: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the Private Calendar Bill—Unanimous-consent Request Not in Order After Consideration Permitted

§ 1.16 During the consideration of a bill on the Private Calendar, it is too late to ask unanimous consent that the bill be passed over without prejudice after consideration has been permitted and committee amendments to the bill adopted.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Dec. 18, 1979:⁽¹⁵⁾

The Clerk called the bill (H.R. 2148) for the relief of Col. (Dr.) Paul A. Kelly.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 2148

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Colonel (doctor) Paul A. Kelly. . . .

15. 125 CONG. REC. 36758, 36759, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

With the following committee amendment:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Sheila M. Jackson, SSN 529-76-6000, of Lehi, Utah, the sum of $30,000. . . .

An amendment was offered:

Amendment offered by Mr. Sensenbrenner to the committee amendment: On page 3 after line 4 add the following new section:

Sec. 2. No amount in excess of 15 per centum of the sum appropriated by the first section of this Act shall be paid to or received by any agent or attorney in consideration for services rendered in connection with the claims described in the first section. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁶⁾ The Chair will ask the gentleman from Wisconsin, Is this amendment to the committee amendment?

MR. [F. JAMES] SENSENBRENNER [Jr., of Wisconsin]: Yes, and it has been approved by the committee, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Sensenbrenner) to the committee amendment.

The amendment to the committee amendment was agreed to.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the committee amendment, as amended.

The committee amendment, as amended, was agreed to.

16. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) desire to address the amendment?

MR. [TOM] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Not the amendment, Mr. Speaker, but the bill itself.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman object to the bill?

MR. HARKIN: I will ask unanimous consent that the bill be passed over without prejudice, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman's request comes too late.

MR. HARKIN: Then, Mr. Speaker, I would oppose the amendment.

THE SPEAKER: The amendment has been agreed to. The committee amendment as amended, has also been agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

§ 2. Factors Bearing on Consideration; Points of Order Against Consideration; Special Rules and Unanimous-consent Agreements

The term "consideration" as used herein means the process by which the House deliberates, while in session, on a proposition on which action is to be taken or refused by the House.⁽¹⁷⁾ The pur-

17. The scope of the term "consideration" as herein discussed is narrower than pose of this discussion is to summarize the general principles of consideration of any matter before the House or Committee of the Whole as well as the ways in which consideration may be prevented or postponed. The reader is advised to consult relevant chapters of this work for specific rules governing the consideration of particular resolutions, bills, motions, or other questions.

How a matter is considered depends on the way it is brought to the floor, on the nature and precedence of the proposal, and on agreements reached by the membership and leadership on the method of consideration. Generally, questions are not considered on the floor unless reported or discharged from House committees.⁽¹⁸⁾ Certain time periods are a condition precedent to consideration in the House after the committee has reported the matter in the term “debate” as used in this chapter. “Debate” refers to all discussion on the floor of the House, whether or not related to a proposal for action.

- 18. Matters not reported from committee may be considered by unanimous-consent request, suspension of the rules (see Ch. 21, supra), by discharge procedures (see Ch. 18, supra), and by a resolution from the Committee on Rules (see § 2.28, infra).

question.⁽¹⁹⁾ And the House may reject a proposal to consider a matter by a final or temporary decision against consideration.⁽²⁰⁾

The first and most important element affecting how a matter is to be considered is the mandate of the standing rules and House precedents as they apply to any specific bill, resolution, or motion, or the mandate of statutory provisions⁽¹⁾ that may affect consideration of particular matters. Consideration of a measure may not be in order if certain rules have been ignored or violated as the bill progressed through the committee process and was reported to the House, and points of order against consideration may be sustained based on such violations.⁽²⁾

Another major factor affecting consideration is whether a special rule from the Committee on Rules

19. See Rule XI clause 2(l)(6), House Rules and Manual § 715 (1995) for layover requirements of committee reports, and Rule XXVIII clause 2(a), § 912a, for layover requirements of conference reports. For committee consideration and reporting, see Ch. 17, supra.

20. For the question of consideration as a method of refusing consideration, see § 5, infra.

1. See, for example, proceedings as affected by provisions of the Budget Act, discussed in §§ 2.35 et seq., infra.

2. See §§ 2.6, 2.7, 2.8, 2.15, 2.16, infra.

has been adopted which governs the procedures for consideration of the matter.⁽³⁾ The following factors also bear heavily on consideration: whether the proposal has been referred to the House or Union Calendar;⁽⁴⁾ whether the proposal is called up from the Private or Discharge Calendar or called up under suspension of the rules or on the District of Columbia day;⁽⁵⁾ whether the proposal is privileged under a standing rule, by statute, or under the Constitution of the United States;⁽⁶⁾

3. Where a special rule adopted by the House prescribes the order of consideration of amendments to a bill in Committee of the Whole, the House (but not Committee of the Whole) may by unanimous consent alter the order of consideration. See 133 CONG. REC. 11829, 100th Cong. 1st Sess., May 8, 1987 (request of Mr. Aspin).

See forms, infra, for examples of special rules making consideration in order and providing the method of consideration. For the consideration of the special rule itself, see §§2.22–2.24, infra.

4. See Ch. 19, supra, for consideration in the Committee of the Whole (normally Union Calendar bills) and Ch. 24, supra, for consideration of bills and resolutions.
5. See Ch. 22, supra, for calendars. For the procedure under suspension of the rules, see Ch. 21, supra.
6. See Ch. 21, supra, for privileged motions and questions. Some matters whether the proposal is considered by unanimous-consent agreement or under the general rules of the House; and whether such a unanimous-consent agreement includes a waiver of points of order against consideration.⁽⁷⁾ As an example, where a unanimous-consent agreement has provided for consideration of a bill, the bill may nevertheless be subject to certain points of order directed against its consideration, unless the unanimous-consent agreement has specifically provided that “all points of order against consideration of the bill” be waived. Such provision will preclude points of order even directed against consideration of the bill.⁽⁸⁾

Finally, it should be noted that, in addition to the points of order discussed in this section and the “question of consideration” discussed elsewhere,⁽⁹⁾ the motions made in order by Rule XVI, clause 4,⁽¹⁰⁾ can be utilized to stop or are privileged by statute, such as the disapproval of reorganization plans submitted by the President (see §3.6, infra).

7. Unanimous-consent requests for the consideration of a proposal in a certain way take forms too numerous to mention herein. For examples, see §§3.3–3.5, 4.3, 4.4, infra.
8. See §2.6, infra.
9. See §5, infra.
10. See House Rules and Manual §782 (1995).

delay consideration. A motion in the House to lay a proposition on the table cuts off debate and, if ordered, acts as a final adverse disposition of the matter before the House.⁽¹¹⁾ The motions to postpone and to refer may also be applied in the House to prevent immediate consideration; such motions are, however, debatable within narrow limits.⁽¹²⁾

Consideration of Matter Not Privileged as Requiring Special Rule or Unanimous Consent

§ 2.1 The Speaker indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that he lacked authority to permit consideration in the House, other than on a day when motions to suspend the rules were in order, of a matter which was not privileged under the rules, in the absence of action by the committee with legislative jurisdiction and by the Committee on Rules.

The Speaker,⁽¹⁾ in proceedings on Feb. 16, 1977,⁽²⁾ indicated that he could not on his own initiative effectuate House consideration of a resolution disapproving the President's recommendation for salary increases for certain government officials (including Members of Congress), there being no mechanism under the rules or under applicable law⁽³⁾ permitting privileged consideration of such resolutions.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: . . . Mr. Speaker, I should like to personally appeal to the Speaker, since he is in the chair—a gentleman for whom I have the greatest respect—if he in any way could use the considerable powers at his command as the leader of the majority party and as the Speaker of our House, this one Member is asking him to do so in order to bring this legislation to the floor for a vote.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is sure that the gentleman from Maryland, being one of the most erudite students of the laws and the rules of this House, knows that there is no way that the Speaker of the House personally can bring this legislation to the floor. If there is, would the gentleman make the Chair aware of it? . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I should be glad to draft a resolution this afternoon and send it to the Speaker's office for introduction, directing the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service to be discharged immediately from further consideration of whichever appropriate disapproval resolution the Speaker chooses. Such a resolution could be called up for action in the House under a special rule, which I am sure the Speaker could direct the Committee on Rules to adopt this afternoon. . . .

[I recall] an occasion just a few years ago when the energy legislation was being considered and within the space of one evening we voted three or four times on special resolutions of this nature that were rushed through the Committee on Rules, brought to the floor of the House, brought up under a suspension procedure, I believe, and then voted upon, when the bills the resolutions made in order were not even on the floor in printed form.

THE SPEAKER: Those matters were brought up under suspension, and motions to suspend the rules are not in order during the balance of the week.

Parliamentarian's Note: The President's salary increase recommendations were scheduled to become effective on Feb. 20, 1977, in the absence of adoption by either House of a resolution disapproving all or a part of those recommendations. Since the law provided no procedure for consideration of such resolutions in the absence of a report from the Committee on Rules of a special resolution permitting consideration, and since motions to suspend the rules were no longer in order that week, the Speaker had no authority save recognition for a unanimous-consent request. Pub. L. 95-19, subsequently enacted on Apr. 12, 1977, now requires separate recorded votes within 60 calendar days on each of the President's recommendations in each House.

§ 2.2 Where there is no procedure under the rules permitting privileged consideration of a resolution, and where motions to suspend the rules are not in order, the resolution may be considered only by unanimous consent.

During the proceedings in the House on Feb. 17, 1977,⁽⁴⁾ the following occurred:

MR. [BERKLEY] BEDELL [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate reconsideration of the resolution (H. Res. 115) disapproving the recommendations of the President with respect to the rates of pay of Federal officials transmitted to the Congress for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, which was introduced by the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Grassley).

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 115

Resolved, That the House of Representatives, in accordance with section 225(i) of the Federal Salary Act of 1967 (81 Stat. 643; Public Law 90-206), hereby disapproves all of the recommendations of the President of the United States within the purview of subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), (D), and (E) of section 225(f) of the Federal Salary Act of 1967, transmitted by the President to the Congress in the budget for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

MR. [JAMES A.] BURKE of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard. . . .

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I move that when the House adjourns today it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

4. 123 CONG. REC. 4579-81, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

5. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion.

The question was taken and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman demand the yeas and nays or object to the vote?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

THE SPEAKER: May the Chair announce so the Members may understand, this is a question on adjourning to Monday next. If the House fails to adjourn to Monday we will meet tomorrow at 11 a.m. In the event there is no quorum tomorrow the House will meet on Saturday at 11 a.m. I just want the Members to understand the procedure and what may happen.

The gentleman from Maryland has asked for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 109, nays 224, not voting 18, as follows: . . .

So the motion was rejected. . . .

MR. [SAMUEL L.] DEVINE [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I make this parliamentary inquiry as a result of the vote not to adjourn over until Monday and the announcement that the House would reconvene at 11 o'clock tomorrow. Are there any circumstances that the Chair could perceive under which the pay raise legislation would be considered by the House tomorrow?

THE SPEAKER: The only possibility would be if unanimous consent were asked, and the Chair would recognize a gentleman or gentlewoman for that purpose, and if there were not an objection, then there would be a vote. That would be the only possibility. The Chair has been informed that there will be objections.

Consideration of Bills by Unanimous Consent To Be Cleared With Leadership

§ 2.3 The Speaker on occasion has reiterated his policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions by unanimous consent only when assured that the majority- and minority-elected floor leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection.

Several Members having pro- pounded unanimous-consent requests to permit consideration of various legislative measures by a day certain under an “open rule” procedure, the Speaker on Jan. 25, 1984,⁽⁶⁾ reiterated the Chair’s policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions only when assured that the majority and minority floor and committee and subcommittee leaderships have no objection. This policy was intended in part to prevent the practice whereby one side might force the other to go on record as objecting to propositions regarding which they have only procedural or technical objections rather than substantive opposition.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that an open rule permitting consideration of House Joint Resolution 100, the voluntary school prayer constitutional amendment, be called up for immediate consideration within the next 10 legislative days.

MR. [BILL] ALEXANDER [of Arkansas]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: ⁽⁷⁾ Objection is heard.

The Chair will read the following statement:

As indicated on page 476 of the House Rules and Manual, the Chair has established a policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions by unanimous consent only when assured that the majority and minority floor leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection. Consistent with that policy, and with the Chair's inherent power of recognition under clause 2, rule XIV, the Chair, and any occupant of the Chair appointed as Speaker pro tempore pursuant to clause 7, rule I, will decline recognition for unanimous-consent requests for consideration of bills and resolutions without assurances that the request has been cleared by that leadership. This denial of recognition by the Chair will not reflect, necessarily, any personal opposition on the part of the Chair to orderly consideration of the matter in question, but will reflect the determination upon the part of the Chair that orderly procedures will be followed, that is, procedures involving consultation and agreement between floor and committee leadership on both sides of the aisle. . . .

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, do I understand now that the unanimous-consent procedure cannot be used by anyone to bring legislation to the floor unless that has been specifically cleared by both the majority and the minority leadership; is that correct?

THE SPEAKER: That has been the custom and it will continue to be the custom. . . .

MR. WALKER: I just want to clarify then that the entire matter then of utilizing unanimous-consent requests for any kind of legislative business, such as bringing up legislation, will be denied to all parties.

THE SPEAKER: Unless the Chair has assurances that proper clearance has taken place. . . .

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: . . . The Speaker mentioned fairness on both sides and both sides be knowledgeable. . . . [C]ould the Chair describe how fairness to both sides and how both sides might be knowledgeable might proceed? . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair intends to go through the legitimate leadership of the gentleman's side of the aisle, and the elected leadership on the other side of the aisle.

MR. GINGRICH: So in the future the legitimate leadership on our side of the aisle might legitimately expect to be informed?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair considers the legitimate leadership as the leadership that was elected, not caucuses within the party.

§ 2.4 Pursuant to the Speaker's previously announced policy, the Chair declined to recognize a Member to request unanimous consent for the consideration of an unreported measure, where the request had not been cleared with the minority leadership.

On June 6, 1984,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MRS. [KATIE] HALL of Indiana: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service be discharged from further consideration of House joint resolution (H.J. Res. 247) to designate April 24, 1984, as National Day of Remembrance of Man's Inhumanity to Man, and ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment at the desk.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ The Chair understands that this has not been cleared by the leadership on the minority side. Since the Speaker has made the statement that those types of requests would not be entertained, under such circumstances the Chair does not recognize the gentlewoman.

Parliamentarian's Note: Beginning in 1981, the Speaker enunciated a policy for the consideration by unanimous consent of bills not reported from committees.⁽¹⁰⁾ The Speaker declines to recognize for such requests without assurances that the matter to be called up has been "cleared" by the Majority and Minority Leaders and the chairman and ranking minority member of the appropriate committees.⁽¹¹⁾

—Reported Bill

§ 2.5 Under an extension of guidelines announced by the Speaker on the opening day of the Congress, the Chair will decline to recognize for a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a (reported) bill unless assured of clearances from both majority and minority floor and committee leaderships (guidelines heretofore applicable to consideration of unreported measures).

On July 23, 1993,⁽¹²⁾ the Chair discussed the role of the leadership in determining whether requests for the consideration of bills would be allowed.

MR. [STEVE] GUNDERSON [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is this: Is it possible to ask unanimous consent to bring H.R. 2667 for its immediate consideration?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ The leadership on both sides of the aisle has to agree to allow that unanimous-consent request.

MR. GUNDERSON: . . . Is it possible to bring an appropriation bill to the floor for consideration without a rule?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Yes, if it is privileged and it has been reported and available for 3 days and is called up by the committee.

MR. GUNDERSON: Can the 3-day rule be waived?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: By unanimous consent, yes.

MR. GUNDERSON: Mr. Speaker, is it possible to move that H.R. 2667 be brought up for immediate consideration? . . .

Any member of the committee, Mr. Speaker, could make that motion?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The chairman or a member authorized by the committee. . . .

MR. GUNDERSON: Mr. Speaker, I have one further parliamentary inquiry.

Is it possible to ask unanimous consent at any time during the day to bring up an appropriation bill for its immediate consideration?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The chairman or his designee could bring the bill up.

MR. GUNDERSON: . . . If, for example, I were to move or ask unanimous consent to do that and the Chair did not recognize me, would it be possible at that point to literally appeal the ruling of the Chair for another Member to bring it up?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous agreement between the leaderships of the Democrat and Republican side, only the chairman of the committee would be recognized to bring up the bill after agreement of both leaderships by a unanimous-consent request. Another Member would not be recognized for that reason, and the denial of recognition to make a unanimous-consent request is not appealable.

MR. GUNDERSON: . . . The chairman of the Appropriations Committee can bring up H.R. 2667 for immediate consideration at any time?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Prior to the 3-day availability, he could bring it up by unanimous consent, but as the gentleman knows, these things are traditionally handled with the concurrence of both leaderships and very carefully orchestrated before unanimous consent is requested in order to be sure that it is adhered to.

§ 2.6 Where unanimous consent has been given for the immediate consideration of a bill, a point of order may nevertheless subsequently be sustained based on the absence of a quorum in the committee when the bill was reported, and in such case the bill is recommitted.

13. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

On Oct. 11, 1968,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings took place:

MR. [THADDEUS J.] DULSKI [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 1507) to include firefighters within the provisions of section 8336(c) of title 5, United States Code, relating to the retirement of Government employees engaged in certain hazardous occupations. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. John M. Ashbrook, of Ohio, at this point made a point of order based in part on the absence of a quorum when the bill was passed by the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. The Speaker indicated that the proper time to make the point of order would be after unanimous consent was given (and before actual consideration began). After the point of order was subsequently made, the Speaker addressed the chairman of the committee as follows, and made his ruling:

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would like to ask the gentleman from New York if a quorum was present in his committee when the bill was reported?

MR. DULSKI: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Ohio is correct. There was no quorum present.

14. 114 CONG. REC. 30751, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

15. John W. McCormack (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: Under those circumstances, the Chair sustains the point of order and the bill is recommitted to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

Parliamentarian's Note: A unanimous-consent request that explicitly waives all points of order against consideration of the bill would preclude objections to consideration of the bill such as those raised by Mr. Ashbrook. In one instance,⁽¹⁶⁾ in fact, the Chair ruled that, where the House granted unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill and specified that "all points of order against the said bill" be considered as waived, such waiver precluded various points of order based on objections to consideration of the bill. To ensure the broadest scope of such waiver, it is advisable that the waiver apply to "all points of order against the bill and its consideration." In the Oct. 11, 1968, precedent above, the unanimous-consent request for immediate consideration did not include waivers of points of order, but merely would have permitted privileged consideration immediately under the five-minute rule of a bill which was on the Union Calendar and would otherwise require consideration in Committee of the Whole.

Suspension of Rules—Effect on Points of Order

§ 2.7 A motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill suspends all rules in conflict with the motion and points of order against consideration on the grounds that the bill was reported from committee without a quorum, or that the committee report is unavailable, will not lie against a bill brought up under suspension.

On Sept. 16, 1968,⁽¹⁷⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled that a motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill suspended all rules in conflict with the motion, and that a point of order against consideration because no committee report was available would not lie:

MR. [DURWARD G.] HALL [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against consideration of S. 3133.

THE SPEAKER: On what ground?

MR. HALL: Mr. Speaker, on the ground that there is no report available for consideration of the Members, nor is there one available after diligent search.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state the pending motion is to suspend the rules, and, accordingly, that being so, the Chair overrules the point of order.

Speaker McCormack later held on the same day⁽¹⁸⁾ that a motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill suspended the rule requiring a quorum of a committee present when a bill is reported and precluded a point of order against consideration based on that defect:

THE SPEAKER: Is a second demanded?

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, at the proper time I ask to be recognized to make a point of order against consideration of this bill.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that if the gentleman proposed to make a point of order, this is the time to make it.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against the consideration of the bill (H.R. 19136) on the ground that it violates rule XI, clause 26(e), in that it was reported from the committee without a quorum being present.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the motion to suspend the rules suspends all rules, including the rule mentioned by the gentleman from Iowa.

§ 2.8 A point of order that a bill was reported from committee in the absence of a quorum is properly raised in the House when the bill is called up for consideration,

17. 114 CONG. REC. 26965, 26966, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

18. Id. at p. 27030.

but the point of order does not lie when the bill is called up under suspension of the rules.

On Oct. 7, 1968,⁽¹⁹⁾ during special-order speeches, Mr. Durward G. Hall, of Missouri, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to points of order proposed to be made against the consideration of bills to be called up that day under suspension of the rules. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded that the proper time to raise a point of order that a quorum of the committee was not present when the bills were reported, was when the bills were called up for consideration.

MR. HALL: . . . Mr. Speaker, I submit that the bills S. 1507, S. 1190, H.R. 17954, and H.R. 7406 all were improperly reported. Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is this: At what point in the proceedings would it be in order to raise the question against these bills as being in violation of rule XI, clause 26(e) inasmuch as they are scheduled to be considered under suspension of the rules, which would obviously suspend the rule I have cited?

Mr. Speaker, I ask the guidance of the Chair in lodging my point of order against these listed bills so that my objection may be fairly considered, and so that my right to object will be protected. Mr. Speaker, I intend to do so only because orderly procedure must be based on compliance with the rules of the House which we have adopted.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that any point of order would have to be made when the bill is called up. . . .

MR. HALL: Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry. Would it not be in order, prior to the House going into the Consent Calendar or suspension of the rules, to lodge the point of order against the bills at this time?

THE SPEAKER: The point of order could be directed against such consideration when the bills are called up under the general rules of the House. The rules we are operating under today as far as these bills are concerned, concerns suspension of the rules, and that motion will suspend all rules.⁽²⁰⁾

Unanimous Consent To Consider Measure While Another Pending

§ 2.9 The House may by unanimous consent consider a legislative proposition while another is pending.

On Oct. 14, 1978,⁽¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

20. See also 72 CONG. REC. 10593-96, 71st Cong. 2d Sess., June 12, 1930, where it was held that the proper time to raise a point of order of non-compliance with the Ramseyer rule was when the motion was made to go into the Committee of the Whole to consider a bill under the provisions of an open rule already adopted and not waiving points of order against the bill.
1. 124 CONG. REC. 38287, 38318, 38319, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [FERNAND J.] ST GERMAIN [of Rhode Island]: Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 1439) providing for concurring in the Senate amendments to the bill (H.R. 14279) with amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. RES. 1439

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution the bill (H.R. 14279) to extend the authority for the flexible regulation of interest rates on deposits and accounts in depository institutions, with the Senate amendments thereto, is taken from the Speaker's table to the end (1) that the House concur, and it does hereby, in the Senate amendment to the title with an amendment as follows: . . .

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I object, and on that I demand tellers. . . .

So a second was ordered.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. St Germain) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot) will be recognized for 20 minutes. . . .

MS. [ELIZABETH] HOLTZMAN [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I send to the desk a concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 755) directing the Secretary of the Senate to make a correction in the enrollment of the Senate bill (S. 1487) to eliminate racketeering in the sale and distribution of cigarettes, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution as follows:

H. CON. RES. 755

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That in the enrollment of the bill (S. 1487) to eliminate racketeering in the sale and distribution of cigarettes, and for other purposes, the Secretary of the Senate shall make the following correction. . . .

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, can we have another matter called up with one matter pending?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman from California that it has to be called up by unanimous consent, which was the request.

Consideration of Bill on Following Day or Any Day Thereafter

§ 2.10 The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request propounded by the Minority Leader providing for the consideration of a bill in the House on the following day or any day thereafter.

2. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

The following unanimous-consent request was agreed to in the House on Sept. 28, 1982:⁽³⁾

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order on Wednesday, September 29, 1982, or any day thereafter to consider in the House the bill, H.R. 6838.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁴⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: On Sept. 29, 1982,⁽⁵⁾ the Speaker recognized the Minority Leader to call up the reported bill in the House for consideration under the hour rule, and subsequently recognized the Minority Leader in opposition to a motion to recommit with instructions offered by the ranking minority member of the reporting committee.

particularly the point of order based on the three-day lay-over requirement, and has provided for its consideration in the House, with not to exceed two hours of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Nov. 16, 1981:⁽⁶⁾

MR. [JOHN J.] MOAKLEY [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 271 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 271

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider, clause 2(l)(6) of rule XI to the contrary notwithstanding, the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 357) making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1982, and for other purposes, in the House. Debate on said joint resolution shall continue not to exceed two hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the joint resolution to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit. . . .

6. 127 CONG. REC. 27613, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. MOAKLEY: Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 271 is the rule providing for consideration of House Joint Resolution 357 which makes further continuing appropriations for fiscal year 1982. . . .

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 271 is a simple rule. It waives clause 2(l)(6) of rule XI which would otherwise force this continuing resolution to layover for 3 days, excluding Saturday and Sunday. The committee has granted this waiver because it feels that the Appropriations Committee report and the resolution are straightforward and easily comprehended.

Unanimous Consent To Consider Private Senate Bill With Nongermane Amendment

§ 2.12 By unanimous consent, the House agreed to consider a private Senate bill reported from the Committee on the Judiciary with a nongermane amendment in the nature of a substitute converting it into a public bill.

On Oct. 14, 1978,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of S. 2247 in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [PETER W.] RODINO [Jr., of New Jersey]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the Senate bill (S. 2247) for the relief of Eugenia Cortes, as reported from the Committee on the Judiciary. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill as follows:

S. 2247

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, in the administration of the Immigration and Nationality Act, Eugenia Cortes shall be held and considered to be within the purview of the first proviso to section 312(1) of that Act and may be naturalized upon compliance with all of the other requirements of title III of that Act. . . .

MR. RODINO: Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Rodino: Strike all after the enacting clause and insert: That the first proviso contained in paragraph 1 of section 312 of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by striking out "or to any person who on the effective date of this act is over 50 years of age". . . .

The amendment was agreed to.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read a third time, and passed.

Parliamentarian's Note: The bill would ordinarily have been referred to the Private Calendar when reported, but was viewed as a public bill in essence since reported with an amendment in the nature of a substitute of a public character.

Points of Order Against Consideration When Special Rule for Consideration Has Been Adopted

§ 2.13 The Speaker overruled a point of order against the consideration of a bill based on its alleged inconsistency with existing law, the House having adopted a resolution making in order the consideration of the bill.

On Mar. 27, 1958,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Wayne N. Aspinall, of Colorado, moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of H.R. 8290, authorizing the construction of a national monument. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, objected to the consideration of the bill on the ground that it contradicted previous legislation passed in the 83d Congress:

Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against the consideration of the proposed legislation, H.R. 8290, on the grounds that it does not conform to, and is in fact violative of, Public Law 742, of the 83d Congress, volume 68, part I, United States Statutes. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I submit that it is abundantly clear that the legislation proposed for consideration at this time, H.R. 8290, does not conform to and is in violation of Public Law 742 of the

8. 104 CONG. REC. 5631, 85th Cong. 2d Sess.

83d Congress, for the reason that Public Law 742 provides and makes mandatory that plans must be approved—there must be a meeting of the minds—of the legally constituted agencies and commissions and thereafter, and only thereafter, shall these plans be submitted to Congress for legislative authorization.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, overruled the point of order:

The Chair is ready to rule.

The occupant of the chair has been here a long time. He has never had the conception that one Congress could tie the hands of a later Congress and the Chair does not believe so in this case. If that doctrine were followed, then it would mean the Congress could pass a law saying, "This law shall not be touched for a number of years." Another Congress comes in and has a different idea. The Chair thinks each Congress should have the opportunity to work its will. . . . Furthermore, the House has already adopted a special rule for the consideration of this bill.

§ 2.14 A resolution to consider a special and therefore nonprivileged appropriation measure having been agreed to, a point of order against consideration does not lie.

On Aug. 21, 1951,⁽⁹⁾ the House agreed to House Resolution 397, providing for the consideration of House Joint Resolution 320,

9. 97 CONG. REC. 10481, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

amending an act making temporary appropriations. Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, then moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the joint resolution. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, made a point of order against consideration, which was overruled by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas:

MR. RANKIN: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against consideration of the joint resolution on the ground that the authorization has expired, and that there is no authorization for this appropriation.

THE SPEAKER: The resolution just adopted makes in order the consideration of the joint resolution, and, therefore, the point of order does not lie.

The Chair overrules the point of order.

Parliamentarian's Note: General appropriation bills are privileged for consideration, under Rule XI, clause 4(a), and only such bills are subject to points of order for carrying unauthorized appropriations, under Rule XXI, clause 2. Such points of order must be made in Committee of the Whole when the offending paragraph is read, and not against consideration of the entire bill. "Special" appropriation bills are not privileged and require special rules, but no points of order lie under clause 2 of Rule XXI in the Committee of the Whole or against consideration.

§ 2.15 Where the House adopts a resolution providing for "the immediate consideration of a bill" then pending before a House committee, a point of order against consideration on the ground that the Ramseyer rule has not been complied with does not lie, since that rule pertains only to bills reported by a committee and not to bills brought before the House by other means.

On Aug. 19, 1964,⁽¹⁰⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 845, providing for the consideration of H.R. 11926, limiting the jurisdiction of federal courts in apportionment cases. The bill, which had been referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, had not been reported from that committee.

Following the adoption of the resolution, Mr. James G. O'Hara, of Michigan, made a point of order against consideration of the bill on the ground that no report had been made with a "comparative print" required by House rules showing changes made by the bill in existing law. Speaker John W.

10. 110 CONG. REC. 20221, 20222, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

McCormack, of Massachusetts, overruled the point of order on the grounds that the rule applies only to bills reported out of committee:

MR. O'HARA of Michigan: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against the consideration of the bill H.R. 11926.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. O'HARA of Michigan: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against the consideration of H.R. 11926 on the ground that the bill has not been properly reported in that it purports to amend title 28 of the United States Code, that is, the act of June 25, 1948, chapter 646, but it fails to show in its report or in an accompanying document a comparative print of that part of the bill making and amending the statute or part thereof proposed to be amended as required by part 3, rule XIII, of the House of Representatives.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is prepared to rule.

Rule XIII, clause 3, provides, "whenever a committee reports a bill or a joint resolution repealing or amending any statute or part thereof it shall include in its report or in an accompanying document the text of the statute or part thereof which is proposed to be repealed;" It will be noted that the rule only applies when a committee reports a bill. In this case the Committee on the Judiciary did not file a report on H.R. 11926. Therefore, that rule does not apply to the present situation.

In addition, the resolution before the House provides for the House immediately to resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of this particular bill.

The Chair overrules the point of order.

§ 2.16 A point of order that a bill was reported from committee in the absence of a quorum is in order pending a vote on the motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill, where the bill is being considered pursuant to a Committee on Rules resolution which does not waive that point of order.

On Oct. 11, 1968,⁽¹¹⁾ after the House had adopted House Resolution 1256, providing for the consideration in the Committee of the Whole of S. 2511, Mr. William R. Poage, of Texas, moved that the House resolve itself into Committee to consider the bill. Mr. Paul Findley, of Illinois, made a point of order against consideration of the bill on the grounds that the Committee on Agriculture had acted without a quorum when it had reported out the bill. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, sustained the point of order.

Resolution Directing Chairman To Request Special Rule Held Not Privileged

§ 2.17 A resolution directing the chairman of the Select Committee on Committees to request the Committee on Rules to report to the House a special rule providing for the consideration of the resolution reported by the select committee, and directing the Committee on Rules to immediately consider such request, was held not to present a question of the privileges of the House under Rule IX as affecting the “integrity of the proceedings of the House,” although it was alleged that the chairman of the select committee had neglected to take all necessary steps to bring the measure to a vote as required by Rule XI clause 2(l)(1)(A).

On June 27, 1974,⁽¹²⁾ it was demonstrated that a Member may not, by raising a question of the privileges of the House under Rule IX, attach privilege to a question not otherwise in order under the rules of the House.

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois:
Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H.

12. 120 CONG. REC. 21596-98, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

Res. 1203) involving a question of privileges of the House, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 1203

Whereas on January 31, 1973, the House of Representatives voted to establish a ten-member, bipartisan Select Committee on Committees charged with conducting a “thorough and complete study of rules X and XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives; and

Whereas the select committee was further “authorized and directed to report to the House . . .

Whereas on March 21, 1974, the select committee reported House Resolution 988 in conformance with its mandate; and

Whereas the chairman of the select committee has failed to seek a rule making House Resolution 988 in order for consideration by the House; and

Whereas, clause 27(d)(1) [now clause 2(l)(1)(A)] of House Rule XI states, “It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House any measure approved by his committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote;” . . .

Resolved, That the chairman of the select committee be directed to forthwith seek a rule making in order for consideration by the House, House Resolution 988; and be it further

Resolved, That the House Committee on Rules be directed to give immediate consideration to such request. . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the resolution offered by the gentleman from Illinois does not raise the question of privilege. . . .

MR. ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, I desire to be heard on the point of order. My question of privilege arises under rule IX which provides that, and I quote:

Questions of privilege shall be, first, those affecting the rights of the House collectively, its safety, dignity and the integrity of its proceedings. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I rest my question of privilege on that clause which declares those questions privileged which relate to the integrity of the proceedings of the House. It is my contention that there has been a deliberate attempt to delay House consideration of House Resolution 988, the so-called Bolling-Martin Committee Reform Amendments of 1974, and that this intentional delay not only interferes with and flouts the integrity of the proceedings of this body, but is in clear violation of clause 27(d)(1) of rule XI of the Rules of the House.

Under that rule, and I quote:

It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House any measure approved by his committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote. . . .

THE SPEAKER: ⁽¹³⁾ The Chair is ready to rule.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Anderson) has submitted a resolution which he asserts involves a question of the privileges of the House under rule IX. Following the preamble of the resolution, the resolution provides that:

Resolved, That the chairman of the Select Committee be directed to forthwith seek a rule making in order for consideration by the House, House Resolution 988, and be it further

Resolved, That the House Committee on Rules be directed to give immediate consideration to such request.

As indicated in "Hinds' Precedents," volume III, section 2678, Speakers are authorized to make a preliminary determination as to those questions presented which may involve privileges. As reaffirmed by Speaker McCormack on October 8, 1968 (Record p. 30214 to 30216) when a Member asserts that he rises to a question of the privileges of the House, the Speaker may hear the question and then, if the matter is not one admissible as a question of privilege of the House he can refuse recognition.

The Chair has listened to the arguments concerning the privileged status of this resolution and has examined the precedents of the House in this regard. It will be noted that the gentleman from Illinois has relied heavily on section 2609, volume III of "Hinds' Precedents," in which it was held by Speaker Reed that a report having been ordered to be made by a select committee but not being made within a reasonable time, a resolution directing the report to be made raised a question of the privileges of the House.

That case is distinguishable from the present instance in that in this instance the chairman has made the report and the resolution is pending on the calendar of the House and it does not become privileged until the House has adopted a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules providing for the consideration of House Resolution

13. Carl Albert (Okla.).

988. The Chair does not feel that a question of privilege of the House under rule IX should be used as a mechanism for giving privilege to a motion which would not otherwise be in order under the Rules of the House, in this case, namely, a motion to direct the Committee on Rules to take a certain action.

The Chair now would refer to Hinds' Precedents, volume III, section 2610, wherein Speaker Crisp ruled that a charge that a committee had been inactive in regard to a subject committed to it did not constitute a question of privilege of the House. . . .

The rules did not provide at the time of Speaker Reed's ruling, as is now the case in clause 27(d)(2) of Rule XI, for a mandatory filing of the reports within 7 calendar days after the measure has been ordered reported upon signed request by a committee majority.

In the instant case, however, the Select Committee on Committees has filed its report and the Chair is not aware that the chairman of the Select Committee on Committees has in any sense violated the rule cited by the gentleman from Illinois. For these reasons, the Chair holds that the gentleman's resolution does not present a question of the privileges of the House under [rule] IX and the resolution may not be considered.

The Chair sustains the point of order.

Other Business May Be Precluded by Special Rule

§ 2.18 A resolution providing that on a certain day the Speaker shall recognize a Member to call up a bill for consideration may by its provisions preclude the consideration of other business on that day.

On May 12, 1936,⁽¹⁴⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, construed the effect of House Resolution 123, adopted on the preceding day and making in order on May 12, the consideration of a bill not reported from the Committee on Agriculture:

The resolution stated:⁽¹⁵⁾

HOUSE RESOLUTION 123

Resolved, That upon the day succeeding the adoption of this resolution, a special order be, and is hereby, created by the House of Representatives, for the consideration of H.R. 2066, a public bill which has remained in the Committee on Agriculture for 30 or more days, without action. That such special order be, and is hereby, created, notwithstanding any further action on said bill by the Committee on Agriculture, or any rule of the House. That on said day the Speaker shall recognize the Representative at Large from North Dakota, William Lemke, to call up H.R. 2066, a bill to liquidate and refinance existing agricultural indebtedness at a reduced rate of interest, by establishing an efficient credit system, through the use of the Farm Credit Administration, the Federal Reserve banking system, and creating a Board of Agriculture to supervise the same, as a special order of business, and to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of said H.R. 2066. After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed 6 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the Member of the House requesting the rule for the consideration of said H.R. 2066 and the Member of the House who is opposed to the said H.R. 2066, to be designated by the Speaker, the bill shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule. At the conclusion of the reading of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, and the amendments thereto, to final passage, without intervening motion, except one motion to recommit. The special order shall be a continuing order until the bill is finally disposed of.

15. Id. at pp. 7026, 7027.

The proceedings on May 12 were as follows:

THE SPEAKER: The Chair may say that under the rule nothing is in order this morning except the consideration of the bill which was provided for by rule yesterday. However, with the unanimous consent of the House, the Chair will recognize Members to correct the Record. The Chair does not believe that, technically speaking, anything is in order this morning except the consideration of the bill just mentioned. . . .

Under the express provisions of the rule there is nothing in order this morning except a motion by the gentleman from North Dakota to go into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill. The Chair is not responsible for the rule, but it is up to the Chair to construe it.⁽¹⁶⁾

Question of Consideration Determined by House

§ 2.19 The question as to whether the House will consider a resolution making in order the consideration of a bill is a matter for the House to decide and not the Chair.

On May 13, 1953,⁽¹⁷⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, ruled that a point of order against a resolution providing for the consideration of a bill, on the ground that the bill sought to amend a nonexistent act, was a matter for the House to determine:

MR. [MICHAEL A.] FEIGHAN [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against the consideration of this rule [H. Res. 233] because it attempts to make in order the consideration of the bill H.R. 5134, which is a bill to amend a nonexistent act. [The "Submerged Lands Act".]

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the point of order that has been raised by the gentleman from Ohio is not one within the jurisdiction of the Chair, but is a question for the House to decide, whether it wants to consider such legislation.

The Chair overrules the point of order.

Parliamentarian's Note: Also, dilatory motions including the question of consideration, may not be raised against a privileged report from the Committee on Rules.

Two-thirds Vote To Consider Special Rule on Same Day Reported

§ 2.20 A resolution from the Committee on Rules may be considered on the same day as reported if the question of consideration is supported by two-thirds of the Members present and voting, a quorum being present.

On Nov. 14, 1975,⁽¹⁸⁾ a resolution from the Committee on Rules was reported, providing that upon the adoption of the resolution it would be in order to take a Senate bill from the Speaker's table and consider it in the House. Following the adoption of the resolution making the consideration of the Senate bill in order, the Member calling up the Senate bill was recognized for one hour:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri], from the Committee on Rules, reported the following privileged resolution (H. Res. 866, Rept. No. 94-666), which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

H. RES. 866

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to take from the Speaker's table the bill S. 2667, to extend the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973, and to consider said bill in the House.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 866 and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁹⁾ The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 866?

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is certain that a quorum is present. The Chair will count.

Two hundred and forty-one Members are present, a quorum.

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, I demand a division.

18. 121 CONG. REC. 36638, 36641, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

19. Carl Albert (Okla.).

On a division (demanded by Mr. Rousselot) there were—yeas 171, noes 14.

So (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof), the House agreed to consider House Resolution 866.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. Staggers).

MR. [HARLEY O.] STAGGERS [of West Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 866, I call up the Senate bill (S. 2667) and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The Clerk read the Senate bill as follows:

A BILL TO EXTEND THE EMERGENCY PETROLEUM ALLOCATION ACT OF 1973

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 4(g)(1) of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 is amended by striking out each date specified therein and inserting in lieu thereof in each case "December 15, 1975". . . .

MR. STAGGERS: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the Senate bill.

The previous question was ordered.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

§ 2.21 The House, by a two-thirds vote, agreed to consider a privileged resolution reported from the Committee on Rules on the same day reported.

On Oct. 17, 1974,⁽²⁰⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, recognized John Young, of Texas, to call up House Resolution 1456. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. YOUNG of Texas, from the Committee on Rules, reported the following privileged resolution (H. Res. 1456, Rept. No. 93-1470) which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed:

H. RES. 1456

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the House shall consider the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 1167) making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1975, and for other purposes. After general debate, which shall be confined to the joint resolution and shall continue not to exceed one hour, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the joint resolution to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

MR. YOUNG of Texas: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules I call up House Resolution 1456 and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 1456?

20. 120 CONG. REC. 36020, 36021, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, does not consideration of this rule require unanimous consent?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Iowa that it requires a two-thirds vote to consider the resolution. The Chair was about to put the question. . . .

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I am a little curious as to how this resolution got out of the Committee on Appropriations, since I understand the committee did not meet. How did it get before the Committee on Rules?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that a request was made that the Committee on Rules consider a rule on the introduced version.

MR. HAYS: But how did it get before the Committee on Rules?

THE SPEAKER: Because House Resolution 1456 was reported by the Committee on Rules, and the Committee on Rules has authority to report as privileged a resolution discharging another committee from a measure referred to that committee. . . .

THE SPEAKER: . . . Shall the House consider the resolution?

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. HAYS: I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present, and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 210, nays 14, not voting 210, as follows: . . .

So (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the House agreed to consider House Resolution 1456. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Young), is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. YOUNG of Texas: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: Pursuant to Rule XI clause 4(a), the Committee on Rules may report as privileged a resolution on the "order of business" which has the effect of discharging another committee from consideration of a measure referred to it.

§ 2.22 Under the rules of the House, objection to consideration of a report from the Committee on Rules on the same day reported will not lie where such consideration has been agreed to by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the Members voting.

On Dec. 21, 1963,⁽¹⁾ Mr. Ray J. Madden, of Indiana, called up by the direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 598, providing for the consideration of a conference report. Mr. Madden asked for the immediate consideration of the resolution, and Mr. Frank T. Bow, of Ohio, objected to such consideration on the grounds "that under rule XI, section 22, of the rules of the House this rule is not laid over before the House for 24 hours."

1. 109 CONG. REC. 25408, 88th Cong. 1st Sess.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, indicated that objection to consideration of the resolution would not lie:

The Chair will state that clause 22 of Rule XI provides, in substance, that the House may consider a resolution on the same day reported, if by a two-thirds vote.

The Speaker put the question on the immediate consideration of the resolution to the House, which agreed thereto.

On May 26, 1964, Speaker McCormack ruled that where immediate consideration was asked for the consideration of a Committee on Rules resolution (H. Res. 736) on the same day reported, a vote on consideration was immediately in order:⁽²⁾

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GROSS: Does this require unanimous consent?

THE SPEAKER: It requires a two-thirds vote.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, is there any way to ascertain the reason for this request?

THE SPEAKER: If the House decides to consider it, then the debate will be under the 1-hour rule on the resolution.

MR. GROSS: Is there no way of ascertaining what is being done here, Mr. Speaker? Is there no time available?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state at this point that it is a matter of consideration. If consideration is granted, which requires a two-thirds vote, then the resolution will be considered under the 1-hour rule.

The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 736?

§ 2.23 When a resolution from the Committee on Rules is called up the same day it is reported, no debate thereon is in order until the House agrees to consider the resolution.

On May 26, 1964,⁽³⁾ Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, called up a resolution from the Committee on Rules reported on the same day and asked for its immediate consideration. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled that the pending question was the consideration of the resolution, such consideration to be determined by a two-thirds vote, and that no debate was in order until the House agreed to consider the resolution, at which time one hour's debate would be had on the resolution itself.

§ 2.24 Where the Committee on Rules reports a resolution making a bill a special order of business, a two-thirds vote is required to consider the resolution on the same day reported.⁽⁴⁾

4. See for example 113 CONG. REC. 31904–06, 90th Cong. 1st Sess., Nov. 9, 1967; 110 CONG. REC. 11951, 88th Cong. 2d Sess., May 26, 1964; 108 CONG. REC. 16759, 87th Cong. 2d Sess., Aug. 16, 1962; 90 CONG. REC. 8999, 9000, 78th Cong. 2d Sess., Dec. 7, 1944.

Rule XI clause 4(b), House Rules and Manual §729a (1995) provides as follows: "It shall always be in order to call up for consideration a report from the Committee on Rules on a rule, joint rule, or the order of business (except it shall not be called up for consideration on the same day it is presented to the House, unless so determined by a vote of not less than two-thirds of the Members voting, but this provision shall not apply during the last three days of the session)."

A resolution reported from the Committee on Rules may suspend the requirements of a two-thirds vote to consider Committee on Rules reports on the same day reported. See,

—Report From Committee on Rules Filed Before House Convenes May Be Considered

§ 2.25 Pursuant to Rule XI clause 4(b), a privileged report from the Committee on Rules may be considered on the same legislative day as reported only by a two-thirds vote, but a report filed by that committee, pursuant to unanimous-consent permission, at any time prior to convening of the House on the next legislative day may be called up for immediate consideration on that new legislative day, and a two-thirds vote is not then required.

On July 31, 1975,⁽⁵⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, responded to several parliamentary inquiries relating to the situation described above:

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker . . . it is my understanding the other body will probably vote on this matter by 9:30 or 9:40. . . . If that is the situation, we can expect the matter to be messaged over here sometime soon after 10:00, and it would be my hope at that time the matter would be given attention immediately by the Rules Committee. . . . Mr. Speaker, if I may address a parliamentary inquiry, is my understanding correct that if the House recesses subject to the call of the Chair, that bills can be received from the other body, and the matter referred to the Rules Committee without calling the House back into session? . . .

THE SPEAKER: If [the bill] comes over it can be referred to the Committee on International Relations or held at the table but not referred to the Committee on Rules. . . .

MR. RHODES: Mr. Speaker, could not the Rules Committee meet immediately and report a resolution, taking the matter from the Speaker's table, bypassing the Committee on International Affairs and reporting the matter directly. Is it not possible?

THE SPEAKER: That is a possible procedure. . . .

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONER [Jr., of Louisiana]: . . . Mr. Speaker, is it not correct to say that if a unanimous-consent request to allow the Committee on Rules until midnight to file a report on the Turkish aid issue now being debated by the other body, was granted, that the House could then adjourn and at the same time work its will because then, if the Committee on Rules files a report, it could be considered then under the rules of the House, and if they did not file a report, the issue would be moot?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that that is an accurate statement of the situation, as the Chair understands it. . . .

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, there have been some remarks made that the House would be denied its will and there would be no way to consider the matter in the event the other body agreed to some legislation tonight. Am I correct in the proposition that if a bill is passed by the other body tonight, there is a procedure under the rules whereby the matter could be considered tomorrow? . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state this. The regular rule is that a report from the Rules Committee has to go over 1 day or it takes a two-thirds vote for consideration on the day reported. The other way is that a unanimous-consent request can be made, and if the Committee on Rules can file it by 10 o'clock tomorrow, and the House adjourns tonight, then it will take a majority vote for consideration tomorrow after the House meets, just as it always does on a subsequent legislative day.

—Point of Order That Report Not Printed Does Not Lie

§ 2.26 Under Rule XI clause 4(b), it is in order to call up a privileged report from the Committee on Rules relating to the order of business on the same day reported if consideration is granted by a two-thirds vote, and a point of order that the report has not been printed does not lie.

On Feb. 2, 1977,⁽⁶⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

⁶ 123 CONG. REC. 3344, 3349, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. [James J.] Delaney [of New York], from the Committee on Rules, reported the following privileged resolution (H. Res. 231, Rept. No. 95-6), which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed: . . .

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 231 and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁷⁾ The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 231? . . .

MR. [W. HENSEN] MOORE [of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the resolution has not been printed.

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, this is merely to consider taking up the rule.

MR. MOORE: Mr. Speaker, I would like to make the point of order that I believe under this rule we are waiving all points of order; is that not correct?

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield further, that matter will be taken up at the proper time. This is merely for consideration, at this particular time, of House Resolution 231.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the point of order of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Moore) is not well taken and is therefore overruled.

There is no requirement that this resolution be printed before it can be called up, although the Chair ordered the resolution printed when it was filed and referred to the House Calendar.

The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 231?

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the House agreed to consider House Resolution 231.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from New York (Mr. Delaney) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. MOORE: Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was refused.

So the resolution was agreed to.

Special Rule Reported Where House Refused To Consider Bill Called Up Under Motion Procedure

§ 2.27 Refusal of the House to consider a bill called up under a motion procedure would not prevent the reporting of a resolution by the Committee on Rules making the bill a special order of business.

On May 4, 1960,⁽⁸⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry prior to the call of committees under the Calendar Wednesday procedure:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: In the event that the motion to consider the bill should not prevail in the House, would it still be possible if a rule were reported by the Rules Committee for the bill to be brought before the House at a later date under a rule?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would think the House could adopt any rule reported by the Committee on Rules.

Special Rule for Consideration of Unreported Bills

§ 2.28 The Committee on Rules has reported and the House has adopted resolutions making in order the immediate consideration of bills which had not been reported by the committee to which referred.

On Aug. 19, 1964,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee on Rules reported a resolution, which was adopted by the House with an amendment, providing for immediate consideration of a bill pending before the Committee on the Judiciary but not yet reported:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 11926) to limit jurisdiction of Federal courts in reapportionment cases. After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed two hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary, the bill shall be read for amendment under the five-minute rule. At the conclusion of the consideration of the bill for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Clerk will report the committee amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendments: Lines 1 and 2, page 1, strike the words "it shall be in order to move that," and line 2, page 1, after the word "House" insert "shall immediately".

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the committee amendments are agreed to.

There was no objection.

On June 24, 1965,⁽¹¹⁾ the Committee on Rules reported and the House adopted House Resolution 433, making in order the immediate consideration of a joint reso-

Resolved, That, upon the adoption of this resolution, the House shall immediately resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the House joint resolution (H.J. Res. 541) to extend the Area Re-development Act for a period of two months. After general debate, which shall be confined to the resolution and shall continue not to exceed one hour, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Banking and Currency, the resolution shall be read for amendment under the five-minute rule. At the conclusion of the consideration of the resolution for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the resolution to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Committee on Banking and Currency was in agreement on consideration of the joint resolution (although it had not been reported) and had requested the special rule from the Committee on Rules.⁽¹²⁾

Special Rule for Consideration of Resolution on Confirmation of Vice President

§ 2.29 A resolution was reported from the Committee on Rules, providing for consideration in the Committee of the Whole of a resolution reported from the Committee on the Judiciary, on confirmation of the nomination of the Vice President, waiving points of order against consideration of the resolution for not having been reported for three calendar days and providing that the previous question be ordered in the House upon completion of general debate in the Committee of the Whole.

The following resolution was reported on Dec. 19, 1974:⁽¹³⁾

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move, clause 28(d)(4) of rule XI to the contrary notwithstanding, that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the resolution (H. After general debate, which shall be confined to the resolution and shall continue not to exceed six hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary, and Representative Robert W. Kastenmeier, of Wisconsin, the Committee shall rise and report the resolution to the House, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution to final adoption or rejection.

Measure Called Up Without Motion, Under Special Rule

§ 2.30 Where the House adopts a special rule providing for the immediate consideration of a measure in the House, the Speaker directs the Clerk to report the measure without its being called up by motion.

On Oct. 17, 1974,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following resolution was agreed to, for purposes of providing for immediate consideration of a joint resolution making continuing appropriations for fiscal 1975:

H. RES. 1456

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the House shall consider the joint resolution (H.J.

Res. 1167) making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1975, and for other purposes. After general debate, which shall be confined to the joint resolution and shall continue not to exceed one hour, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the joint resolution to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit. . . .

MR. [JOHN] YOUNG of Texas: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁵⁾ The Clerk will read the joint resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.J. RES. 1167

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That (a) clause (c) of section 102 of the joint resolution of June 30, 1974 (Public Law 93-324), is hereby amended by striking out "September 30, 1974". . . .

Order of Consideration of Amendments Under Special Rule

§ 2.31 Where a special rule does not specify the order in which two amendments in the nature of a substitute, allowed by the rule, are to be considered, the Chair determines the order through his power of recognition.

15. Carl Albert (Okla.).

For an illustration of a special rule not specifying the order in which amendments in the nature of a substitute are to be considered, and the subsequent action of the Chair in exercising his power of recognition, see the proceedings of July 17, 1974,⁽¹⁶⁾ relating to a resolution⁽¹⁷⁾ providing for consideration of H.R. 11500, the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1230 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 1230

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 11500) to provide for the regulation of surface coal mining operations in the United States, to authorize the Secretary of Interior to make grants to States to encourage the State regulation of surface mining, and for other purposes. After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed four hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, the bill shall be read for amendment under the five-minute rule. It shall be in order to consider the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs now printed in the bill as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the five-minute rule, said substitute shall be read for amendment by titles instead of by sections, and all points of order against title IV and against section 701(a) of said substitute for failure to comply with the provisions of clause 4, rule XXI are hereby waived. It shall be in order to consider without the intervention of any point of order the text of the bill H.R. 12898 if offered as an amendment in the nature of a substitute for said amendment recommended by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs for the bill H.R. 11500. It shall also be in order to consider without the intervention of any point of order the text of the bill H.R. 11500 if offered as an amendment in the nature of a substitute for said amendment recommended by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs for the bill H.R. 11500. At the conclusion of the consideration of the bill H.R. 11500 for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or to the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions. After the passage of H.R. 11500, the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs shall be discharged from the further consideration of the bill S. 425, and it shall then be in order in the House to move to strike out all after the enacting clause of the said Senate bill and insert in lieu thereof the provisions contained in H.R. 11500 as passed by the House.

17. H. Res. 1230.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁸⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour.

Recognition for Committee Amendments to First Title—Bill Open to Amendment at Any Point

§ 2.32 Where a bill consisting of several titles was considered as read and open to amendment at any point under a special “modified closed rule” permitting germane amendments only to certain portions of titles but permitting committee amendments to any portion of the bill, the Chair first recognized a Member to offer committee amendments to title I and then recognized other Members to offer amendments to that title.

On Aug. 7, 1974,⁽¹⁹⁾ during consideration of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1974 (H.R. 16090) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Richard Bolling, 18. Carl Albert (Okla.).

19. 120 CONG. REC. 27258, 27259, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

of Missouri, made the following statement:

THE CHAIRMAN: No amendments, including any amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill, are in order to the bill except the following:

In title 1: Germane amendments to subsection 101(a) proposing solely to change the money amounts contained in said subsection, providing they have been printed in the Congressional Record at least 1 calendar day before being offered; and the text of the amendment to be offered on page 13, following line 4, inserted in the Congressional Record of August 5, 1974, by Mr. Butler.

In title 2: Germane amendments to the provisions contained on page 33, line 17, through page 35, line 11, providing they have been printed in the Record at least 1 calendar day before being offered; and the amendment printed on page E5246 in the Record of August 2, 1974.

In title 4: Germane amendments which have been printed in the Record at least 1 calendar day before they are offered, except that sections 401, 402, 407, 409 and 410 shall not be subject to amendment; and the text of the amendment printed on page H7597 in the Congressional Record of August 2, 1974.

Amendments are in order to any portion of the bill if offered by direction of the Committee on House Administration, but said amendments shall not be subject to amendment.

Are there any Committee on House Administration amendments to title I?

MR. [FRANK] THOMPSON [Jr.] of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer three committee amendments to title I of the bill and I ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the committee amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendments: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Thompson).

The committee amendments were agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there further committee amendments to title I?

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to title I.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. du Pont: Page 2, line 16, strike "$5,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$2,500".

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, as required by the rule adopted by the House today, my amendment was published at pages E5306 and E5307 of yesterday's Record.

Amendment, Made in Order by Special Rule, Offered From Floor

§ 2.33 Pursuant to a special rule providing for the consideration of the text of a bill as an amendment in the nature of a substitute, to be read by titles as an original bill immediately after the reading of the enacting clause of the bill to which offered, the Chair recognized a Member to offer the amendment in the nature of a substitute from the floor before it could be considered under the rule.

On Sept. 19, 1974,⁽²⁰⁾ Chairman Thomas M. Rees, of California, recognized James T. Broyhill, of North Carolina, who then offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute:

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: When the Committee rose on Tuesday, September 17, 1974, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, immediately after the reading of the enacting clause, it shall be in order to consider the text of the bill H.R. 16327 as an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill, and said substitute shall be read for amendment by title.

The Clerk will read the enacting clause.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. . . .

MR. BROYHILL of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, under the rule, I offer the following amendment in the nature of a substitute, which is to the text of the bill (H.R. 7917).

20. 120 CONG. REC. 31727, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Broyhill of North Carolina: That this Act may be cited as the "Consumer Product Warranties-Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act".

TITLE I—CONSUMER PRODUCT
WARRANTIES

DEFINITION

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Broyhill was a minority member of the committee and had introduced the bill made in order by the rule. The Chair recognized him when the chairman of the then Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce did not immediately seek recognition.

Equal Privilege of Motions To Resolve Into Committee of Whole Pursuant to Separate Special Rules

§ 2.34 Motions that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole for initial or further consideration of separate bills pursuant to separate special rules adopted by the House are of equal privilege, and the Speaker may exercise his discretionary power of recognition as to which bill shall be next eligible for consideration.

On Sept. 22, 1982,⁽¹⁾ where the Committee of the Whole had risen following completion of general debate but prior to reading of a bill for amendment under the five-minute rule, the Speaker Pro Tempore indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that he would exercise his power of recognition to permit consideration of another bill, rather than return to that bill under the five-minute rule.

MR. [WALTER B.] JONES of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman wish to make a motion at this point?

MR. JONES of North Carolina: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I make a motion that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Bennett) having assumed the chair, Mr. Simon, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5543) to establish an ocean and coastal resources management and development fund and to require the Secretary of Commerce to provide to coastal States national ocean and resources management and development block grants from sums in the fund, had come to no resolution thereon.

MR. JONES of North Carolina: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

1. 128 CONG. REC. 24690, 24691, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

Was not the bill supposed to have been read while we were sitting in the Committee of the Whole, read for amendments? . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ The Committee has risen now, and the Chair does not know of any way of automatically going back at this point to do that. If the Committee of the Whole had proceeded to consider the bill for amendment, it would have conflicted with a determination made by the leadership as to the legislative schedule, so the House should not resume consideration of the bill anyway at this point. In other words, the leadership had indicated that we would have general debate only today. . . .

MR. JONES of North Carolina: Mr. Speaker, another parliamentary inquiry, or statement. I was assured by the leadership that if there were no amendments, we would conclude the bill. I do not anticipate any amendments. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Committee of the Whole has risen. There is nothing in a parliamentary way the House could do to reserve consideration except to consider a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the further consideration of the bill.

MR. JONES of North Carolina: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. Would I have the privilege as the Chairman of this committee to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee once again?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: . . . Somebody has sent for the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman), who will make a motion of equal privilege to arrive, and he is undoubtedly on his way. The Chair would be glad to respond to any further conversation that the gentleman would want to have on this subject which would be in order, until the gentleman arrives. . . .

The Chair is following the wishes of the leadership and, therefore, would not recognize any Member for the purpose of moving that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for further consideration of the bill at this time. . . .

The gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman) has now arrived, and he is recognized.

MR. [HENRY A.] WAXMAN [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 6173) to amend the Public Health Service Act.

Special Rule for Consideration of Budget Resolution

§ 2.35 A resolution reported from the Committee on Rules provided for consideration at any time in Committee of the Whole of the concurrent resolution containing not only targets for aggregates and functional categories for the ensuing fiscal year and revisions of the second budget resolution for the present fiscal year (as contemplated by then section 3(a)(4) of the Congressional Budget Act), but also containing binding reconciliation instructions for two future fiscal years (thereby destroying any privilege under section 305(a)); incorporated procedures applicable to consideration of privileged budget resolutions; made in order specified amendments, to be considered in a certain order and all to be in order even if previous amendments to the same portion of the resolution had been adopted; and made in order amendments to achieve mathematical consistency pursuant to section 305(a) of the Budget Act; and provided that if more than one amendment in the nature of a substitute were adopted, only the last would be reported to the House.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Apr. 30, 1981:⁽³⁾

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 134 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 134

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 115) revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for the fiscal year 1981 and setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for the fiscal years 1982, 1983, and 1984, and the first reading of the resolution shall be dispensed with. The provisions of subsection 305(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 and rule XXIII, clause 8,⁽⁴⁾ of the Rules of the House of Representatives shall apply during the consideration of the concurrent resolution in the House and in the Committee of the Whole: Provided, however, That no amendment to the resolution shall be in order except the following amendments, which shall be considered only in the following order if offered, which shall all be in order even if previous amendments to the same portion of the concurrent resolution have been adopted, and which shall not be subject to amendment except pro forma amendments for the purpose of debate: (1) an amendment printed in the Congressional Record of April 29, 1981, by, and if offered by, Representative Hefner of North Carolina . . . (3) the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the Congressional Record of April 29, 1981, by, and if offered by, Representative Obey of Wisconsin; and (4) the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the Congress-sional Record of April 29, 1981, by, and if offered by, Representative Latta of Ohio. It shall also be in order to consider the amendment or amendments provided for in section 305(a)(6) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 necessary to achieve mathematical consistency. If more than one of the amendments in the nature of a substitute made in order by this resolution have been adopted, only the last such amendment which has been adopted shall be considered as having been finally adopted and reported back to the House.

3. 127 CONG. REC. 7993, 8003, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour.⁽⁶⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: The right of the Budget Committee to file privileged reports and to call them up (under clause 4(a), Rule XI and section 305(a)(1) of the Budget Act) extends only to concurrent resolutions on the budget as defined in section 3 subsection (4) and section 301(a) of that Act. The inclusion of reconciliation instructions directing changes in entitlements and in spending for ensuing fiscal years was considered to have destroyed the privilege of the concurrent resolution in the above instance because going beyond the scope of the concurrent resolution as prescribed by the Budget Act. The current section 301 of the Budget Act has enlarged the scope of the concurrent resolution on the budget.

Point of Order Under Budget Act

§ 2.36 It is not in order to consider an amendment, including an amendment recommended in a conference report, which provides new entitlement authority to become effective before the first day of the fiscal year beginning in the calendar year in which the bill was reported, under section 401(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act (Public Law 93-344).

During consideration of H.R. 10339 (Farmer-to-Consumer Direct Marketing Act of 1976) in the House on Sept. 23, 1976,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOSEPH P.] VIGORITO [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 10339) to encourage the direct marketing of agricultural commodities from farmers to consumers. . . .

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order. . . .

Section 401(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act (Public Law 93-344) provides as follows:

7. 122 CONG. REC. 32099, 32100, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

(b) Legislation Providing Entitlement Authority.—

(1) It shall not be in order in either the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any bill or resolution which provides new spending authority described in subsection (c)(2)(C) (or any amendment which provides such new spending authority) which is to become effective before the first day of the fiscal year which begins during the calendar year in which such bill or resolution is reported.

The text of the conference agreement as set forth in the amendment adding a new section 8 is as follows:

EMERGENCY HAY PROGRAM

Sec. 8. In carrying out any emergency hay program for farmers or ranchers in any area of the United States under section 305 of the Disaster Relief Act of 1974 because of an emergency or major disaster in such area, the President shall direct the Secretary of Agriculture to pay 80 percent of the cost of transporting hay (not to exceed $50 per ton) from areas in which hay is in plentiful supply to the area in which such farmers or ranchers are located. The provisions of this section shall expire on October 1, 1977.

It is clear from a literal reading of this proposed language that certain livestock owners will be entitled to a hay subsidy immediately upon enactment of this bill. . . .

In any event it is a new spending authority effective before October 1, 1976, which marks the beginning of fiscal year 1977 but occurs in the calendar year in which the conference report is being called up in the House. . . .

MR. VIGORITO: Mr. Speaker, my understanding is that if this program is an entitlement program under section 401 of the Budget Act, the funding could not be given an authorization in this bill until the beginning of the next fiscal year, or, in this case, October 1, 1976. If that is the case, I would think that we could develop legislative intent here in that none of the funding would begin in this bill until fiscal year 1977. As a practical matter, the bill will probably not have cleared the President prior to that time, anyway, and consequently we will not be delaying the impact of the bill for any substantial length of time. We have less than a week before October 1 comes about. . . .

THE SPEAKER: ⁽⁸⁾ The Chair is having difficulty with the argument made by the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania, because, as the Chair understands it, theoretically and legally it would be possible to begin the payments before October 1, 1976, which would be in violation of the Budget . . . Control Act, as the entitlement to those payments might vest prior to October 1. . . .

The Chair thinks that under the present circumstances he should insist that the gentleman consider another procedure, because he thinks it can be worked out. Therefore, the Chair must sustain the point of order. . . .

The conference report is no longer before the House. The gentleman can dispose of the Senate amendments under another procedure.

Parliamentarian's Note: When a conference report is ruled out on a point of order, the Chair directs the Clerk to report the Senate amendments remaining in disagreement for disposition by motion. The above conference report having been ruled out on a point of order, the House subsequently adopted a privileged motion to recede and concur with an amendment which postponed the effectiveness of the entitlement until after the commencement of the fiscal year beginning in the calendar year in which the bill had been reported.

§ 2.37 Section 303(a) of the Congressional Budget Act prohibits the consideration in either House of any bill or amendment thereto (including a conference report) containing “new spending (entitlement) authority” which becomes effective during a fiscal year prior to the adoption of the first concurrent resolution on the budget for that fiscal year; and a conference report containing new spending “entitlement” authorities to become effective in fiscal years 1978–1980 in amounts increased over fiscal year 1977 was ruled out on a point of order under that section, since the first concurrent resolutions on the budget for those future fiscal years had not yet been adopted and the increased entitlements could not be considered merely continuations of entitlement authority which became effective in the fiscal year (1977) for which a concurrent resolution had been adopted.

The definition of new spending “entitlement” authority contained in section 401(c)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act (and incorporated by reference into the prohibition in section 303(a) against consideration of future year entitlement bills and amendments) includes revenue sharing spending authority in the form of entitlements, as the exception from the definition of new spending authority accorded to revenue sharing programs in section 401(d)(2) does not apply to new “entitlement” authority for future fiscal years but only to entitlements immediately vesting as defined in section 401(c)(2)(C). A ruling by the Speaker to such effect was made on Sept. 30, 1976:⁽⁹⁾

MR. [JACK] BROOKS [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 13367) to extend and amend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers be read in lieu of the report.

9. 122 CONG. REC. 34074–76, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

A portion of the conference report was as follows:

SEC. 5. EXTENSION OF PROGRAM AND FUNDING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 105 (relating to funding for revenue sharing) is amended. . . .

(3) by inserting immediately after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

“(c) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR ENTITLEMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Trust Fund to pay the entitlements hereinafter provided—

“(A) for the period beginning January 1, 1977, and ending September 30, 1977, $4,987,500,000; and

“(B) for each of the fiscal years beginning October 1 of 1977, 1978, and 1979, $6,850,000,000.

“(2) NONCONTIGUOUS STATES ADJUSTMENT AMOUNTS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Trust Fund to pay the entitlements hereinafter provided—

“(A) for the period beginning January 1, 1977, and ending September 30, 1977, $3,585,000; and

“(B) for each of the fiscal years beginning on October 1 of 1977, 1978, and 1979, $4,923,759.”; and

(4) by inserting “; AUTHORIZATIONS FOR ENTITLEMENTS” in the heading of such section immediately after “APPROPRIATIONS”. . . .

MR. [BROCK] ADAMS [of Washington]: Mr. Speaker, I raise a point of order against the conference agreement on H.R. 13367, to extend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972. The conference agreement contains a provision, not included in the House bill, which provides new spending authority for fiscal years 1978 and 1979 over the amounts provided for fiscal year 1977. This new entitlement increment for succeeding fiscal years violates section 303(a) of the Congressional Budget Act which provides in part:

It shall not be in order in either the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any bill or resolution (or amendment thereto) which provides— . . . new spending authority described in section 401 (c)(2)(C) to become effective during a fiscal year . . . until the first concurrent resolution on the budget for such year has been agreed to pursuant to section 301.

By increasing the fiscal year 1978 entitlement by $200 million over the amounts for fiscal year 1977, H.R. 13367 does provide new spending authority to become effective for a fiscal year for which a budget resolution has not been adopted. It would thereby allow that new spending increment to escape the scrutiny of the fiscal year 1978 budget process. While section 303 provides an exception for new budget authority and revenue changes for a succeeding fiscal year, entitlement programs were expressly omitted from the exception by the House-Senate conference on the Congressional Budget Act.

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the point of order.

The applicable provision of the Budget Act in this matter concerns section 303(d)(1). This provision provides an exception for any bills on the full fiscal year for which the current resolution applies. The $200 million increase contained in the conference report begins in fiscal year 1978, the next fiscal year beyond 1977, the year for which our present budget resolution applies.

The $200 million increase, since it begins in fiscal year 1978, technically conforms with the Budget Act and deserves to be retained in the conference report. I might say to the membership that in making this point of order, this was brought up in the conference and we purposely did not provide for any increase in fiscal year 1977. We purposely skipped the first three-quarters. We agreed upon a term of 3¾ years for the Revenue Sharing Act to be in effect, but we skipped the first three-quarter year and applied a $200 million increment for the first fiscal year thereafter, namely, 1978, and for each of the 3 years subsequent thereto; or a total of $600 million. So, we purposely skipped this fiscal year 1977 so that we would not violate the budget resolution. . . .

MR. ADAMS: Mr. Speaker, in response to the comments made by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Horton), the provision that he refers to regards new budget authority, not entitlement programs where there is a reference over to the Committee on Appropriations and it is controlled in that fashion. This committee in its wisdom and the vote of the House was that this should be an entitlement program, and the violation is to the budget statute and process. We have applied this to all other committees of the House, that entitlement programs for the fiscal year, where we are changing the entitlement—and we have had this come up before—must be considered in the budget resolution for the fiscal year involved. This committee wishes for fiscal year 1978 to bring forth something for fiscal year 1978 that can be done in the budget cycle of that year. But it is out of order to bring it up and try to put it into the process at this point. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I refer to Public Law 93-344 of the 93d Congress which was enacted July 12, 1974, and I refer to page 22 of that legislation, section 401(d)(2). Section 401(d) is entitled "Exceptions." Subsection (d)(2), under "Exceptions," says as follows:

Subsections (a) and (b) shall not apply to new spending authority which is an amendment to or extension of the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, or a continuation of the program of fiscal assistance to State and local governments provided by that Act,—meaning the Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972—"to the extent so provided in the bill or resolution providing such authority.

Mr. Speaker, it seems to me clearly designed in that legislation that the Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 was meant to contain an exception from the entitlement procedure, a procedure which was in fact used in that legislation of 1972, the first Revenue Sharing Act, and I see no other way to read it except that we would provide an exception to sections 401 (a) and (b) in accordance with the legislation that the Congress previously passed.

The act provides—and this is what the conference provided for—an entitlement, and the entitlement is in fact both an authorization and an appropriation. It provided for the funds for that purpose into the future. For the first year it did not result in any breaking of the Budget Resolution passed by this House in accordance with the Committee on the Budget.

So, Mr. Speaker, I see no way by which the extension of the Revenue Sharing Act could be prohibited, because this exemption which was provided is in the law. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair is ready to rule.

The gentleman from Washington (Mr. Adams) makes a point of order against the conference report on the bill H.R. 13367 on the ground that section 5(a) of the conference report provides new spending authority and entitlement increment for fiscal years 1978 and 1979 over the amounts provided for in fiscal year 1977, in violation of section 303(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. Horton) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) rebut this argument by contending that a mere incremental increase in an entitlement for subsequent fiscal years is not new spending authority as prescribed in section 401(c)(2)(C) to become effective during the subsequent fiscal years, but rather, a continuation of the spending authority for fiscal year 1977, which is permitted under section 303(a).

The Chair has examined the conference report, and section 5(a) is structured so as to provide separate authorization for entitlement payments for each of the fiscal years 1977, 1978, and 1979, with a higher authorization for 1978 and 1979 than for 1977.

In the opinion of the Chair, such a separate increase in entitlement authorizations is new spending authority to become effective during those subsequent fiscal years, which may not be included in a bill or an amendment prior to the adoption of the first concurrent resolution for fiscal years 1978 and 1979, which does not come within the exception contained in section 303(b) for new budget authority, and which does not come within the section 401(d) revenue-sharing exception—applicable only to . . . spending authority as defined in subsections (a) and (b) of section 401(c)—cited by the gentleman from Ohio.

The Chair therefore sustains the point of order against the conference report.

Special Rule Waiving Provisions of Budget Act

§ 2.38 By special rule, the House can waive the various provisions of the Budget Act which would otherwise prohibit consideration of an authorization bill, conference report, or appropriation bill.

For an example of a special rule waiving points of order against a bill authorizing new budget authority, see H. Res. 355, considered on Nov. 4, 1983.⁽¹¹⁾

MR. [GILLIS W.] LONG of Louisiana: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 355 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 355

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 1(b) of rule XXIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 4196) to stabilize a temporary imbalance in the supply and demand for dairy products. . . . All points of order against the consideration of the bill for failure to comply with the provisions of section 402(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) are hereby waived, and all points of order against the bill for failure to comply with the provisions of clause 5, rule XXI are hereby waived. . . .

On July 31, 1981,⁽¹²⁾ a special rule, H. Res. 203 provided for a waiver of points of order against consideration of a conference report on the budget.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 203 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 203

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 4331) to amend the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981 to restore minimum benefits under the Social Security Act. . . . After the disposition of H.R. 4331, it shall be in order to consider, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, the conference report on the bill (H.R. 3982) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 301 of the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1982, said conference report shall be considered as having been read and shall be debatable for not to exceed two hours, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Budget, and all points of order against said conference report are hereby waived.

The proceedings of Feb. 9, 1982,⁽¹³⁾ also related to the waiver of points of order under the Budget Act. The special rule agreed to on that day waived points of order against initial consideration of two special appropriation bills containing new budget authority and outlays in excess of the ceiling in the second concurrent resolution in the budget for the current fiscal year, and waived the same points of order against consideration of conference reports thereon if not in excess of total budget authority and outlays contained in the joint resolutions as initially reported to the House by the Committee on Appropriations.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 355 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 355

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider, section 311(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) to the contrary notwithstanding, the following joint resolutions: H.J. Res. 389, making an urgent supplemental appropriation for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982, for the Department of Agriculture, and H.J. Res. 391, making an urgent supplemental appropriation for the Department of Labor for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982. It shall be in order to consider, section 311(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to the contrary notwithstanding, a conference report on either of said joint resolutions if the report does not provide budget authority in excess of that provided by the joint resolution as reported to the House by the Committee on Appropriations and if the report would not cause budget outlays to exceed the budget outlays which would be caused by the joint resolution as reported to the House by the Committee on Appropriations.⁽¹⁴⁾

13. 128 CONG. REC. 1263, 1264, 1270, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. BOLLING: . . . Section 311(a) of the Budget Act prohibits the consideration of any bill, resolution, amendment or conference report providing additional new budget or spending authority that would result in the breach of the ceiling of total new budget authority or total budget outlays set forth in the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget for the current fiscal year.

Yesterday, the Committee on the Budget, as required by section 311(b) of the Budget Act, certified to the Speaker the current level of spending. These current level estimates indicate that there is some $4.4 billion in budget authority under the ceiling set forth in Senate Concurrent Resolution 50, the second budget resolution agreed to by the House on December 10, 1981. Outlays are some $42.8 billion in excess of the ceiling already. Consequently, the urgent supplemental appropriation bills for the Commodity Credit Corporation and the employment services portion of the unemployment compensation bill would breach the ceilings set forth in the second budget resolution. Without the waivers, the appropriation bills would be subject to a point of order and the House could be prevented from considering these critical matters.

The rule waives section 311(a) of the Budget Act against the initial consideration of the two joint resolutions by the House. It would further provide for a waiver of the same section of the Budget Act against consideration of any conference report on either of the resolutions provided that the conference report figures do not exceed the budget authority of or outlays resulting from the joint resolutions as they were reported from the House Committee on Appropriations. In other words, to expedite consideration of these matters, the Rules Committee proposes to grant waivers to the conference reports in advance, but only so long as the figures in the bills are not increased beyond the levels as reported from committee.⁽¹⁶⁾

16. Parliamentarian's Note: Although points of order under the Budget Act are waived, points of order under the

§ 2.39 By unanimous consent, the House agreed to consider (prior to the stage of disagreement) a motion in the House to concur in a Senate amendment to a special appropriation bill without intervening motion and to waive all points of order against consideration of the Senate amendment, which contained new budget authority in excess of the ceiling established by the second concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal 1982, in violation of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act.

On Feb. 10, 1982,⁽¹⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it shall be in order today or any day thereafter, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, to consider a motion in the House to take from the Speaker's table the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 389) making an urgent supplemental appropriation for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982, with the Senate amendment thereto, and to concur in said Senate amendment, and that the previous question standing rules of the House may be available unless they are also specifically waived.

17. 128 CONG. REC. 1462, 1463, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

shall be considered as ordered on said motion to final adoption without intervening motion. . . .

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the unanimous-consent request just granted, I move to take from the Speaker's table the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 389) making an urgent supplemental appropriation for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982, for the Department of Agriculture, with a Senate amendment thereto and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Senate amendment: Page 1, after line 12, insert:

Sec. 2. (a) The following sum is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982, namely: . . .

For an additional amount for "Low Income Energy Assistance", $123,000,000.

(b) None of the funds appropriated under this joint resolution shall be used, obligated, or expended for the purposes of section 2604(f), 2605(k), 2607(b)(1), or 2607(b)(2) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁸⁾ The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) is recognized for 1 hour.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Senate amendment contained the text of a separate House-passed urgent supplemental appropriation (H.J. Res. 392) against which points of order under section 311 of the Budget Act had been separately waived during initial consideration in the House.

Amendment Striking Out Rescission as Causing New Authority To Exceed Limit

§ 2.40 Section 311(a) of the Budget Act precluding any amendment “providing additional new budget authority” which would cause the appropriate level of total new budget authority or budget outlays to be exceeded has been interpreted to prohibit consideration of an amendment striking out a rescission of existing budget authority where its effect is to increase the net total new budget authority in the bill (an amount calculated by offsetting rescissions in the bill against new appropriations).

Where an appropriation bill already contained new budget outlays in excess of the total level permitted by the applicable second concurrent resolution on the budget for that fiscal year, but was permitted to be considered by a waiver of section 311(a) of the Budget Act, an amendment striking out a proposed rescission of existing budget authority, which had the effect of causing the net total new budget authority in the bill to be increased, was ruled out in violation of section 311(a), as further exceeding the total outlay ceiling in the second budget resolution. The proceedings of May 12, 1981,⁽¹⁹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3512, supplemental and continuing appropriations, rescissions, and deferrals for fiscal 1981, were as follows:

The Clerk read as follows:

PAYMENTS IN LIEU OF TAXES

(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under this head in the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1981 (Public Law 96-514) and previous Interior Department Appropriations Acts $108,000,000 are rescinded.

MR. [MANUEL] LUJAN [Jr., of New Mexico]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Lujan: Page 57 strike out line 7 through line 12.

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I insist on my point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. YATES: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment.

I make a point of order against the gentleman's amendment because it provides additional budget authority and budget outlays in excess of the budget authority and budget outlay totals agreed to in the latest concurrent budget resolution and is in violation of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act (Public Law 93-344).

19. 127 CONG. REC. 9314, 9315, 97th Cong. 1st Sess. For discussion of the Congressional Budget Act, see Ch. 13, §21, supra.

The gentleman's amendment proposes to delete language (to reduce an amount) in the bill which has the effect of providing budget authority and budget outlays in excess of the current budget ceilings for fiscal year 1981. Section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act states that it shall not be in order to consider any amendment providing additional budget authority or spending authority the adoption of which would cause the appropriate level of total budget authority of total budget outlays set forth in the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget to be exceeded.

As we all know, on March 18, 1981, Mr. Jones, chairman of the House Budget Committee, placed in the Congressional Record the reestimates of budget authority and budget outlays required of him by the Congressional Budget Act which indicate that the fiscal year 1981 budget authority ceiling has been exceeded by $19.6 billion and the budget outlay ceiling has been exceeded by $27.6 billion. The House has recently passed a measure adjusting those ceilings upward but that measure must still be worked out in conference with the Senate.

With these reestimates in place and in the absence of a new resolution having been agreed to raising these ceilings, there is no room left to provide any additional budget authority or outlays. In fact, these budget levels are currently in deficit by billions of dollars.

The gentleman's amendment therefore exceeds the current budget ceilings and is in violation of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act. It is out of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman from New Mexico care to respond to the point of order?

MR. LUJAN: I would like to address the point of order; I certainly would, Mr. Chairman.

What the gentleman says is absolutely correct, but I think we are forgetting one fact here. The previous amendment that just passed reduced that budget amount by $376 million. Certainly, $108 million would fit very nicely under that figure of $376 million.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is prepared to rule. The amendment offered by the gentleman from New Mexico proposes to strike a rescission of funds contained in the bill.

The amendment, by striking the amount of the rescission in the bill, has the effect of increasing the net amount of new budget authority contained in the bill as a whole, and also has the obvious effect of increasing total outlay levels further above the ceiling currently in place for fiscal year 1981, contained in House Concurrent Resolution 448 of the 96th Congress. As indicated in the letter from the Budget Committee to the Speaker inserted in the Record of March 18, 1981, the outlay ceiling for fiscal year 1981 as of that date had already been exceeded by $27 billion: Thus, despite adoption of the prior amendment, the amendment falls within the prohibition stated in section 311 of the Budget Act, as indicated in a ruling by the Presiding Officer in the other body on June 27, 1980, wherein an attempt was made to reduce a rescission in last year's supplemental appropriation bill.

The Chair, therefore, sustains the point of order raised by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Yates).

Parliamentarian's Note: Amendments which propose to strike out rescissions of existing budget authority arguably do not technically provide additional new budget authority (since the original appropriation was presumably accrued as new budget authority); but because they were calculated to offset new budget authority in the bill under consideration in determining the total amount of new budget authority and outlays, it was considered advisable to interpret them as covered by section 311(a).

Motion To Postpone Consideration

§ 2.41 A motion to postpone consideration of a measure being considered in the House is in order after the measure is under consideration but before the manager has been recognized to control debate thereon (the measure being "under debate" within the meaning of clause 4, Rule XVI, and the Member in charge not being taken from the floor).

On May 30, 1980,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 554 (supplemental Federal Trade Commission appropriation for fiscal year 1980) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the rule adopted a few moments ago, I call up the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 554) making an appropriation for the Federal Trade Commission for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1980, for consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

H.J. RES. 554

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sum is appropriated . . . for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1980. . . .

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Ashbrook moves to postpone further consideration of House Joint Resolution 554 until June 10, 1980.

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, I move that the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashbrook) be laid on the table.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The question is on the motion to table.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it. . . .

[T]he motion to table the motion to postpone consideration was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: Under clause 4, Rule XVI, all the motions except the motion to amend may be made in the House after consideration of a measure has begun and before the Member in charge has control of the floor. An amendment may not be offered until the Member in charge yields the floor for that purpose or the previous question is voted down.

Disapproval Resolutions Under Statute—Motion To Postpone Motion To Resolve Into Committee of Whole

§ 2.42 Although a motion that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole is not ordinarily subject to the motion to postpone indefinitely,⁽²⁾ the motion may be offered pursuant to the provisions of a statute, enacted under the rulemaking power of the House, which allows such a motion in the consideration of a resolution disapproving a certain executive action.

On Aug. 18, 1982,⁽³⁾ the House adopted a motion to postpone indefinitely a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a resolution, reported adversely by the Committee on Ways and Means, disapproving extension of presidential authority to waive freedom of emigration requirements affecting re. Romania, pursuant to section 152(d) of the Trade Act of 1974,⁽⁴⁾ thereby approving extension of presidential authority.

MR. [SAM M.] GIBBONS [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for immediate consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 521), disapproving extension of Presidential authority to waive freedom of emigration requirements with respect to the Socialist Republic of Romania.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that consideration of House Resolution 521 be postponed indefinitely.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Frenzel).

The motion was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE SPEAKER: The matter is postponed.

to postpone indefinitely a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a resolution, reported adversely by the Committee on Ways and Means, disapproving a presidential determination denying import relief to the United States honey industry, pursuant to section 152(d)(1) and (d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974:

MR. [CHARLES A.] VANIK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 80, to disapprove the determination of the President denying import relief under the Trade Act of 1974 to the U.S. honey industry.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move to postpone indefinitely the motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 80.

MR. VANIK: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute before we proceed.

THE SPEAKER: ⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

MR. VANIK: Mr. Speaker, on February 9 the Subcommittee on Trade ordered that House Concurrent Resolution 80 be reported unfavorably to the full committee. House Concurrent Resolution 80 provides for congressional disapproval of the determination by the President not to provide import relief to the U.S. honey industry under section 203 of the Trade Act of 1974. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Steiger).

The motion was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Parliamentarian's Note: Section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act, like a number of other statutes providing privileged procedures for consideration of legislative disapproval measures, states: "Motions to postpone, made in the House of Representatives with respect to the consideration of a resolution, and motions to proceed to the consideration of other business, shall be decided without debate." Since resolutions of disapproval under the Trade Act, as well as most other disapproval resolutions, require consideration in Committee of the Whole, it is clear that the subsection requires the motion to postpone to be applicable to the motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole.

§ 2.43 Although the motion to postpone is not ordinarily applicable to a motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole, the motion to resolve into the Committee may be postponed indefinitely where a statute⁽⁸⁾ enacted under the rulemaking power of the House of Representatives accords privilege to the motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of matters specified in the statute and allows a motion to postpone in the House with respect to such consideration.

On Aug. 3, 1977,⁽⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [CHARLES A.] VANIK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Resolution 653, to disapprove the recommendation of the President to extend the authority in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 with respect to the Socialist Republic of Romania for an additional 12 months.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

8. Trade Act of 1974, section 152(d)(1) and (d)(3), Pub. L. 93-618.
9. 123 CONG. REC. 26528, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

H. RES. 653

Resolved, That the House of Representatives does not approve the extension of the authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 recommended by the President to the Congress on June 3, 1977, with respect to the Socialist Republic of Romania.

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steiger moves, pursuant to section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974, to postpone indefinitely the motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Resolution 653.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Steiger).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Ashbrook) there were—ayes 149, noes 33. . . .

So the preferential motion was agreed to.

—Three-day Layover Requirement Not Applicable to Consideration of Disapproval Resolution

§ 2.44 A motion to resolve into Committee of the Whole for consideration of a concurrent resolution disapproving an agency action is highly privileged and may be of-

10. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

ferred before the third day on which a report thereon is available, since, under an exception now contained in Rule XI, the requirement of clause 2(l)(6) of that rule that committee reports be available to Members for three days is not applicable to a measure disapproving a decision by a government agency.

On May 26, 1982,⁽¹¹⁾ a motion was made, pursuant to section 21(b) of the Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act,⁽¹²⁾ for consideration of a concurrent resolution disapproving a rule promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the provisions of section 21(b) of Public Law 96-252, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 60) disapproving the Federal Trade Commission trade regulation rule relating to the sale of used motor vehicles; and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I move that general debate on the Senate concurrent resolution be limited to not to exceed 2 hours, 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Florio) and 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Lee). . . .

MR. [BENJAMIN S.] ROSENTHAL [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against consideration of this concurrent resolution on the ground that it violates subsection 6 of section 715, which in essence requires a 3-day layover of the matter under consideration. The rule says:

Nor shall it be in order to consider any measure or matter reported by any committee unless copies of such report and reported measure have been available to the Members for at least three calendar days.

There is no report available, Mr. Speaker, to the members of the committee or the Members of the House in this matter under consideration, and therefore it would be in violation of the rules to consider it. I am very much aware, Mr. Speaker, that there is an additional paragraph under the rule which says: "The subparagraph shall not apply to two exceptions."

In other words, there are two exceptions under which the 3-day layover and requirement that a report is necessary can be waived. . . .

The second section, subsection (b) says:

Any decision, determination or action by a government agency which would become or continue to be effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress.

Now, I am assuming, Mr. Speaker, that the proponents of the resolution under consideration would suggest that the waiver provision of section (b) would apply to the matter under consideration, and they would suggest that the Federal Trade Commission is a Government agency in the common parlance of what is a Government agency. . . . The point that I make in support of my point of order is that in the House rules the definition of a Government agency has traditionally been that of an executive branch agency, not a quasi-judicial commission, such as the Federal Trade Commission. . . .

11. 128 CONG. REC. 12027, 12028, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

12. 15 U.S.C. 57a-1(b)

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹³⁾ The Chair is ready to rule.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. Rosenthal), makes the point of order against the consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 60 on the ground that the report accompanying that resolution has not been available for 3 days as required by clause 2(l)(6), rule XI. The report from the Committee on Energy and Commerce was filed yesterday and will be available to members during the debate, but was not available for 3 days.

Section 21(b)(3)A of the Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act of 1980 provided that:

When a committee has reported a concurrent resolution, it shall be in order at any time thereafter (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) to move to proceed to the consideration of the concurrent resolution. The motion shall be highly privileged in the House of Representatives and shall not be debatable.

Now the Chair has consistently endeavored to interpret such provisions of law in conjunction with clause 2(l)(6) of rule XI, both of which are readopted as rules of the 97th Congress at the beginning of this Congress, so as to require that Members have 3 days to read accompanying reports unless the exception contained in clause 2(l)(6), rule XI, becomes applicable. In this case, the Chair believes that the exception contained in that rule is applicable, and the Chair will read the exception in relevant part:

This subparagraph shall not apply to . . . (B) any decision, determination or action by a Government agency which would become or continue to be, effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress. For the purposes of the preceding sentence, a Government agency includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or the Government of the District of Columbia.

15 U.S.C. 41 establishes the Federal Trade Commission as a "commission." In the opinion of the Chair, the Federal Trade Commission is an instrumentality of the U.S. Government. The President's budget on page 1-v45 lists the Federal Trade Commission as an independent agency. It is agreed that the proposed FTC regulation in question becomes effective at midnight tonight, the expiration of the 90 calendar day period pursuant to sec. 21(a)(2) of the act, unless disapproved by adoption of a concurrent resolution of disapproval.

The report accompanying the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970 which first incorporated the 3-day rule describes the intention of the exception to the rule to apply to "legislative veto procedures".

Thus the Chair rules that the exception from the 3-day rule is applicable in the instant case and the availability of the report on Senate Concurrent Resolution 60 is not a prerequisite for the consideration of the concurrent resolution. The Chair overrules the point of order.

§ 3. Consideration in the Committee of the Whole

All bills on the Union Calendar must be considered in the Committee of the Whole unless otherwise provided for by the House.⁽¹⁴⁾

Consideration of business in the Committee of the Whole is initiated when the House agrees to resolve into the Committee for the purpose of such consideration pursuant to a resolution,⁽¹⁵⁾ by unanimous-consent agreement,⁽¹⁶⁾ by motion,⁽¹⁷⁾ or by declaration of the Speaker pursuant to Rule XXIII.

Rule XXIII, clause (1)(b) provides:⁽¹⁸⁾

14. For examples of Union Calendar bills considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole by unanimous consent, see §4, infra. For the requirement of considering certain bills in the Committee of the Whole, see Ch. 19, supra. For the duration of debate in the Committee, see §§ 74 et seq., infra.

15. See § 3.2, infra.

16. See §§ 3.3, 3.4, infra.

17. See §§ 3.10, 3.12–3.15, infra.

18. House Rules and Manual §862 (1995). This authority was first provided in rules adopted for the 98th Congress. H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1983.

After the House has adopted a special order of business resolution reported by the Committee on Rules providing for the consideration of a measure in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, the Speaker may at any time within his discretion, when no question is pending before the House, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of that measure without intervening motion, unless the resolution in question provides otherwise.

The motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole is not subject to the question of consideration, the motion itself being a test of the will of the House on the matter.⁽¹⁹⁾

The rejection by the House of the motion to resolve into the Committee for the consideration of a particular matter does not preclude the making of the same motion at a later time.⁽²⁰⁾

Where a special rule adopted by the House prescribes the order of consideration of amendments to a bill in Committee of the Whole, the House⁽¹⁾ (but not the Committee of the Whole) may by unanimous consent alter the order of consideration.

Special Rule Providing for House Calendar Resolution in the Committee of the Whole

§ 3.1 The Committee on Rules reported a resolution to the House providing for the consideration of a House resolution, also reported from the Committee on Rules, in the Committee of the Whole.

On Apr. 3, 1968,⁽²⁾ the Committee on Rules offered the following resolution:

H. RES. 1119

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 1099)

2. 114 CONG. REC. 8776, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

amending H. Res. 418, Ninetieth Congress, to continue the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct as a permanent standing committee of the House of Representatives, and for other purposes. After general debate, which shall be confined to the resolution and continue not to exceed two hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, the resolution shall be read for amendment under the five-minute rule. At the conclusion of the consideration of the resolution for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the resolution to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution and amendments thereto.

—Immediate Consideration

§ 3.2 Upon the adoption of a resolution providing for the immediate consideration of a bill in the Committee of the Whole, the House resolves itself into the Committee without a motion being made from the floor.

On Aug. 17, 1972,⁽³⁾ Mr. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi,

3. 118 CONG. REC. 28829, 92d Cong. 2d Sess. See also Rule XXIII, clause (b), discussed in the introduction to this section, supra, concerning the Speaker's discretion in declaring the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole after the House has adopted a special rule.

called up at the direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 1090, providing as follows:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution, clause 27(d)(4) of rule XI to the contrary notwithstanding, the House shall immediately resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 13915) to further the achievement of equal educational opportunities, and all points of order against said bill are hereby waived. . . .

The bill provided for had not yet been reported from the Committee on Education and Labor when the resolution was offered.

The House adopted the resolution, and Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, immediately directed the House to resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole, without the motion to resolve being made.

Unanimous-consent Request To Resolve Into Committee

§ 3.3 The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a Senate concurrent resolution on the House Calendar.

On June 22, 1965,⁽⁴⁾ the House agreed to the following unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a Senate concurrent resolution on the House Calendar:

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 36 expressing the sense of the Congress with respect to the 20th anniversary of the United Nations during International Cooperation Year, and for other purposes, and that general debate thereon be limited to 1 hour, one-half hour to be controlled by myself and one-half hour to be controlled by the gentlewoman from Ohio [Mrs. Bolton].

The House agreed to the request.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Senate concurrent resolution was thus amendable under the five-minute rule.

—Unanimous Consent To Consider Bill in Committee Under General Rules of the House

§ 3.4 The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request to consider a Union Calendar bill in Committee of the Whole “under the general rules of the House” and to limit general debate in the Committee of the Whole to one hour.

On Sept. 7, 1959,⁽⁵⁾ the House agreed to the following request by Mr. Armistead I. Selden, Jr., of Alabama, to consider a Union Calendar bill in the Committee of the Whole under the rules of the House:

MR. SELDEN: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it may be in order to consider under the general rules of the House the bill (H.R. 9069) to provide standards for the issuance of passports, and for other purposes; that general debate continue for not to exceed 1 hour, one-half to be controlled by myself and one-half controlled by the ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Parliamentarian's Note: Without the adoption of the request as stated, a unanimous-consent request for the immediate consideration of a bill on the Union Calendar normally would result in its consideration under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, without general debate and under a procedure permitting all motions available in the House. The term "under general rules of the House" implies consideration in Committee of the Whole for a Union Calendar bill.⁽⁶⁾

Objection to Unanimous-consent Request Followed by Motion To Resolve Into Committee

§ 3.5 Objection having been made to a unanimous-consent request to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for consideration on District of Columbia Day of a bill reported from the District of Columbia Committee and referred to the Union Calendar, a motion to resolve into Committee was offered as privileged and was rejected.

On Aug. 11, 1964,⁽⁷⁾ (a District of Columbia Monday) Mr. John V. Dowdy, of Texas, called up H.R. 9774, terminating the District of Columbia Plaza Urban Renewal Project. The bill had been on the Union Calendar. Mr. Dowdy asked unanimous consent that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill and asked unanimous consent that debate on the bill be limited to one hour. Objection was made to the request and the House then rejected a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of the bill.

Motion To Resolve Into Committee—Consideration of Disapproval Resolution

§ 3.6 The motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a resolution, favorably reported from the Committee on Government Operations, disapproving a reorganization plan (under the Reorganization Act of 1949), was highly privileged and could be moved by any Member.

On July 19, 1961,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Dante B. Fascell, of Florida, made the following privileged motion:

Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 328) disapproving Reorganization Plan No. 5 transmitted to the Congress by the President on May 24, 1961; and pending that motion, I ask unanimous consent that debate on the resolution may continue not to exceed 5 hours, the time to be equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Hoffman] and myself.

When Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, objected, Mr. Fascell moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the resolution. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, then answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, under title 2, section 204 of the public law [Pub. L. No. 81-109], paragraph (b) provides that such a motion may be made only by a person favoring the resolution. Is the gentleman from Florida in favor of the resolution, or does he disfavor the resolution?

THE SPEAKER: Under the rules, the gentleman does not have to qualify in that respect on this particular motion.

The House agreed to the motion to resolve into the Committee.

On June 8, 1961,⁽⁹⁾ Mr. Gross submitted the “highly privileged motion” that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of House Resolution 303 disapproving a reorganization plan; the resolution had been favorably reported from the Committee on Government Operations.

The motion was rejected, but Speaker Pro Tempore Oren Harris, of Arkansas, stated that such rejection would not preclude later consideration of the resolution.

Parliamentarian’s Note: Under the 1949 statute, a Member moving to discharge the Government

^{9.} Id. at pp. 9775-77.

Operations Committee was required to qualify as favoring the disapproval resolution, but once that committee had reported either favorably or adversely, any Member could call up the resolution, which was then on the Union Calendar, by moving to go into Committee of the Whole.

§ 3.7 A motion to resolve into Committee of the Whole for consideration of a concurrent resolution disapproving an agency action is highly privileged and may be offered before the third day on which a report thereon is available, since, under an exception now contained in Rule XI, the requirement of clause 2(l)(6) of that rule that committee reports be available to Members for three days is not applicable to a measure disapproving a decision by a government agency.

On May 26, 1982,⁽¹⁰⁾ a motion was made, pursuant to section 21(b) of the Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act,⁽¹¹⁾ for consideration of a concurrent resolution disapproving a rule promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the provisions of section 21(b) of Public Law 96-252, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 60) disapproving the Federal Trade Commission trade regulation rule relating to the sale of used motor vehicles; and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I move that general debate on the Senate concurrent resolution be limited to not to exceed 2 hours, 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Florio) and 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Lee). . . .

MR. [BENJAMIN S.] ROSENTHAL [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against consideration of this concurrent resolution on the ground that it violates subsection 6 of section 715, which in essence requires a 3-day layover of the matter under consideration. The rule says:

Nor shall it be in order to consider any measure or matter reported by any committee unless copies of such report and reported measure have been available to the Members for at least three calendar days.

There is no report available, Mr. Speaker, to the members of the committee or the Members of the House in this matter under consideration, and therefore it would be in violation of the rules to consider it. I am very much aware, Mr. Speaker, that there is an additional paragraph under the rule which says: "The subparagraph shall not apply to two exceptions."

10. 128 CONG. REC. 12027, 12028, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

11. 15 U.S.C. 57a-1(b)

In other words, there are two exceptions under which the 3-day layover and requirement that a report is necessary can be waived. . . .

The second section, subsection (b) says:

Any decision, determination or action by a government agency which would become or continue to be effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress.

Now, I am assuming, Mr. Speaker, that the proponents of the resolution under consideration would suggest that the waiver provision of section (b) would apply to the matter under consideration, and they would suggest that the Federal Trade Commission is a Government agency in the common parlance of what is a Government agency. . . . The point that I make in support of my point of order is that in the House rules the definition of a Government agency has traditionally been that of an executive branch agency, not a quasi-judicial commission, such as the Federal Trade Commission. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair is ready to rule.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. Rosenthal), makes the point of order against the consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 60 on the ground that the report accompanying that resolution has not been available for 3 days as required by clause 2(l)(6), rule XI. The report from the Committee on Energy and Commerce was filed yesterday and will be available to members during the debate, but was not available for 3 days.

Section 21(b)(3)A of the Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act of 1980 provided that:

When a committee has reported a concurrent resolution, it shall be in order at any time thereafter (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) to move to proceed to the consideration of the concurrent resolution. The motion shall be highly privileged in the House of Representatives and shall not be debatable.

Now the Chair has consistently endeavored to interpret such provisions of law in conjunction with clause 2(l)(6) of rule XI, both of which are readopted as rules of the 97th Congress at the beginning of this Congress, so as to require that Members have 3 days to read accompanying reports unless the exception contained in clause 2(l)(6), rule XI, becomes applicable. In this case, the Chair believes that the exception contained in that rule is applicable, and the Chair will read the exception in relevant part:

This subparagraph shall not apply to . . . (B) any decision, determination or action by a Government agency which would become or continue to be, effective unless disapproved or otherwise invalidated by one or both Houses of Congress. For the purposes of the preceding sentence, a Government agency includes any department, agency, establishment, wholly owned Government corporation, or instrumentality of the Federal Government or the Government of the District of Columbia.

15 U.S.C. 41 establishes the Federal Trade Commission as a "commission." In the opinion of the Chair, the Federal Trade Commission is an instrumentality of the U.S. Government. The President's budget on page 1-v45 lists the Federal Trade Commission as an independent agency. It is agreed that the proposed FTC regulation in question becomes effective at midnight tonight, the expiration of the 90 calendar day period pursuant to sec. 21(a)(2) of the act, unless disapproved by adoption of a concurrent resolution of disapproval.

12. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The report accompanying the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970 which first incorporated the 3-day rule describes the intention of the exception to the rule to apply to "legislative veto procedures".

Thus the Chair rules that the exception from the 3-day rule is applicable in the instant case and the availability of the report on Senate Concurrent Resolution 60 is not a prerequisite for the consideration of the concurrent resolution. The Chair overrules the point of order.

—Motion That Committee of the Whole Be Discharged and Bill Laid on Table Not in Order

§ 3.8 To a motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a bill, a motion that the Committee be discharged and that the bill be laid on the table is not preferential and is not in order.

On Apr. 2, 1938,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. John J. Cochran, of Missouri, moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a bill. Mr. John J. O'Connor, of New York, then made the following motion:

13. 83 CONG. REC. 4621, 75th Cong. 3d Sess.

Mr. O'Connor of New York moves that the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union be discharged from further consideration of the bill S. 3331 and that said bill be laid on the table.

Mr. Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina, made the point of order that the motion was dilatory, and Mr. O'Connor asserted that under the rules of the House the motion was preferential, both as to discharge and as to laying on the table.

Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled as follows:

The gentleman from New York [Mr. O'Connor] offers what he states is a preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union be discharged from consideration of the bill S. 3331, and said bill be laid on the table.

The Chair is of the opinion that under the rules of the House a motion of this sort is not a preferential motion, and therefore not in order. The matter now pending is a simple motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, and under the precedents a motion to discharge the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union from the further consideration of a bill is not a privileged motion.

The Chair sustains the point of order.

Parliamentarian's Note: The motion to go into Committee of the Whole is not debatable and therefore not subject to the motion to lay on the table (see 6 Cannon's Precedents §726).

Equal Privilege of Motions To Resolve Into Committee Pursuant to Separate Special Rules

§ 3.9 Motions that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole for initial or further consideration of separate bills pursuant to separate special rules adopted by the House are of equal privilege, and the Speaker may exercise his discretionary power of recognition as to which bill shall be next eligible for consideration.

On Sept. 22, 1982,⁽¹⁴⁾ where the Committee of the Whole had risen following completion of general debate but prior to reading of a bill for amendment under the five-minute rule, the Speaker Pro Tempore indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that he would exercise his power of recognition to permit consideration of another bill, rather than return to that bill under the five-minute rule.

14. 128 CONG. REC. 24690, 24691, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [WALTER B.] JONES of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman wish to make a motion at this point?

MR. JONES of North Carolina: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I make a motion that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Bennett) having assumed the chair, Mr. Simon, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5543) to establish an ocean and coastal resources management and development fund and to require the Secretary of Commerce to provide to coastal States national ocean and resources management and development block grants from sums in the fund, had come to no resolution thereon.

MR. JONES of North Carolina: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Was not the bill supposed to have been read while we were sitting in the Committee of the Whole, read for amendments? . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ The Committee has risen now, and the Chair does not know of any way of automatically going back at this point to do that. If the Committee of the 15. Charles E. Bennett (Fla.).

Whole had proceeded to consider the bill for amendment, it would have conflicted with a determination made by the leadership as to the legislative schedule, so the House should not resume consideration of the bill anyway at this point. In other words, the leadership had indicated that we would have general debate only today. . . .

MR. JONES of North Carolina: Mr. Speaker, another parliamentary inquiry, or statement. I was assured by the leadership that if there were no amendments, we would conclude the bill. I do not anticipate any amendments. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Committee of the Whole has risen. There is nothing in a parliamentary way the House could do to reserve consideration except to consider a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the further consideration of the bill.

MR. JONES of North Carolina: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. Would I have the privilege as the Chairman of this committee to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee once again?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: . . . Somebody has sent for the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman), who will make a motion of equal privilege . . . and he is undoubtedly on his way. The Chair would be glad to respond to any further conversation that the gentleman would want to have on this subject which would be in order, until the gentleman arrives. . . .

The Chair is following the wishes of the leadership and, therefore, would not recognize any Member for the purpose of moving that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for further consideration of the bill at this time. . . .

The gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman) has now arrived, and he is recognized.

MR. [HENRY A.] WAXMAN [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 6173) to amend the Public Health Service Act.

Question of Consideration Inapplicable to Motion To Resolve

§ 3.10 The question of consideration cannot be raised against the motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a proposition.

It is well established that the question of consideration may not be raised against a motion to resolve into Committee of the Whole. This principle is discussed in more detail in §§ 5.5, 5.6, infra.

Motion To Postpone—When Applicable to Motion To Resolve

§ 3.11 Although the motion to postpone is not ordinarily applicable to a motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole, the motion to resolve into the Committee may be subject to such a motion where a statute⁽¹⁶⁾ enacted under the rulemaking power of the House of Representatives accords privilege to the motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of matters specified in the statute and allows a motion to postpone in the House with respect to such consideration.

On Aug. 3, 1977,⁽¹⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [CHARLES A.] VANIK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Resolution 653, to disapprove the recommendation of the President to extend the authority in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 with respect to the Socialist Republic of Romania for an additional 12 months.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 653

tension of the authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 recommended by the President to the Congress on June 3, 1977, with respect to the Socialist Republic of Romania.

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steiger moves, pursuant to section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974, to postpone indefinitely the motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Resolution 653.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Steiger).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Ashbrook) there were—ayes 149, noes 33. . . .

So the preferential motion was agreed to.

Similarly, on Mar. 10, 1977,⁽¹⁹⁾ the House had adopted a motion to postpone indefinitely a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a resolution, reported adversely by the Committee on Ways and Means, disapproving a presidential determination denying import relief to the United States honey industry, pursuant to section 152(d)(1) and (d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974:

MR. [CHARLES A.] VANIK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section

152(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 80, to disapprove the determination of the President denying import relief under the Trade Act of 1974 to the U.S. honey industry.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move to postpone indefinitely the motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 80.

MR. VANIK: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute before we proceed.

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

MR. VANIK: Mr. Speaker, on February 9 the Subcommittee on Trade ordered that House Concurrent Resolution 80 be reported unfavorably to the full committee. House Concurrent Resolution 80 provides for congressional disapproval of the determination by the President not to provide import relief to the U.S. honey industry under section 203 of the Trade Act of 1974. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Steiger).

The motion was agreed to.

20. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

On Aug. 18, 1982,⁽¹⁾ the House adopted a motion to postpone indefinitely a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a resolution, reported adversely by the Committee on Ways and Means, disapproving extension of presidential authority to waive freedom of emigration requirements affecting re. Romania, pursuant to section 152(d) of the Trade Act of 1974,⁽²⁾ thereby approving extension of presidential authority.

MR. [SAM M.] GIBBONS [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for immediate consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 521), disapproving extension of Presidential authority to waive freedom of emigration requirements with respect to the Socialist Republic of Romania.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act of 1974, I move that consideration of House Resolution 521 be postponed indefinitely.

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Frenzel).

1. 128 CONG. REC. 21934, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.
2. Public Law 93-618, 88 Stat. 1980.
3. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The motion was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE SPEAKER: The matter is postponed.

Parliamentarian's Note: Section 152(d)(3) of the Trade Act, like a number of other statutes providing privileged procedures for consideration of legislative disapproval measures, states: "Motions to postpone, made in the House of Representatives with respect to the consideration of a resolution, and motions to proceed to the consideration of other business, shall be decided without debate." Since resolutions of disapproval under the Trade Act, as well as most other disapproval resolutions, require consideration in Committee of the Whole, it is clear that the subsection requires the motion to postpone to be applicable to the motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole.

Effect of Rejecting Motion To Resolve

§ 3.12 Where the House has agreed that consideration of a bill takes precedence over other legislation, other legislation of lesser privilege may be considered by rejecting the motion that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole.

On May 9, 1950,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, made the following point of order:

Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the House is not proceeding in the regular order because under section 205a of the Reorganization Act, which is Public Law 109 of the Eighty-first Congress, first session, any Member of the House is privileged, and this is a highly privileged motion, to make the motion that the House proceed to the consideration of House Resolution 516.

The gentleman from Michigan being on his feet to present this highly privileged motion, the regular order is that he be recognized for that purpose that the motion be entertained and the question put before the House, and my motion is that the House proceed to the consideration of House Resolution 516.

Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, was recognized to speak on the point of order:

Mr. Speaker, on April 5, 1950, as shown at page 4835 of the daily Record of that day, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon] asked and received unanimous consent that the appropriation bill should have the right-of-way over other privileged business under the rules until disposition, with the exception of conference reports. Therefore, I believe the regular order would be to proceed with the further consideration of H.R. 7786.

4. 96 CONG. REC. 6720-24, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that the Record would speak for itself.

Speaker Pro Tempore John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled as follows:

The gentleman from Michigan makes a point of order, the substance of which is that the motion he desires to make or that someone else should make in relation to the consideration of a disapproving resolution of one of the reorganization plans takes precedence over the appropriation bill insofar as recognition by the Chair is concerned. The gentleman from Michigan raises a very serious question and the Chair feels at this particular time that it is well that he did so.

The question involved is not a constitutional question but one relating to the rules of the House and to the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1949 which has been alluded to by the gentleman from Michigan and other Members when addressing the Chair on this point of order. The Chair calls attention to the language of paragraph (b) of section 201 of title II of the Reorganization Act of 1949 which reads as follows: "with full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change such rules so far as relating to procedure in such House at any time in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of such House."

It is very plain from that language that the intent of Congress was to recognize the reservation to each House of certain inherent powers which are necessary for either House to function to meet a particular situation or to carry out its will.

On April 5, the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon], chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, submitted a unanimous-consent request to the House, which was granted, which has the force of a rule, and which relates to the rules of the House governing the consideration of the omnibus appropriation bill while it is before the House and, of course, incidentally affecting other legislation. The consent request submitted by the gentleman from Missouri was "that the general appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1951 have right-of-way over all other privileged business under the rules until disposition, with the exception of conference reports."

That request was granted by unanimous consent. On the next day the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon], in correcting and interpreting the consent request granted on April 5, submitted a further unanimous-consent request.

The daily Record shows, on page 4976, April 6, that the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon] said:

Mr. Speaker, on page 4835 of the daily Record of yesterday, the first column carrying the special order made by the House last night reads that the general appropriation bill shall be a special order privileged above all other business of the House under the rule until disposition. The order made was until final disposition. I ask unanimous consent that the Record and Journal be corrected to conform with the proceedings on the floor of the House yesterday.

The Record further shows that the Speaker put the request and there was no objection. . . .

The Chair will state that the House always has a constitutional right and power to refuse to go into the Committee of the Whole on any motion made by any Member, so that the House is capable of carrying out its will, whatever may be the will of the majority of the House.

Continuing, the Chair will state that in the opinion of the present occupant, in view of the unanimous-consent request made by the gentleman from Missouri and granted by the House, if any member of the Appropriations Committee moves that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union to consider the appropriation bill, that motion has preference over any other preferential motion. It is a matter that the House decides when the motion is made as to what it wants to do and it has an opportunity when that motion is made to carry out its will.

§ 3.13 The rejection of a motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a resolution disapproving a reorganization plan does not preclude a subsequent motion to the same effect.

On June 8, 1961,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, indicated his intention to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole to consider a resolution disapproving a reorganization plan. Before the motion was made and rejected by the House, Speaker Pro Tempore Oren Harris, of Arkansas, answered parliamentary inquiries on the effect of a rejection of the motion:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: If the pending motion is voted down, would it still be in order at a subsequent date to call up a motion rejecting plan No. 2 for another vote? I ask that because I am opposed to plan No. 2. The committee has reported adversely in respect to plan No. 2. I am going to vote against that plan and in support of the resolution of the committee. But under my responsibility as the minority leader and under my agreement with the majority leader, I do not see how I could vote today unless, under the situation as it exists, that vote today would be conclusive as to plan No. 2. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: In the opinion of the Chair, under the Reorganization Act, it could be called up at a subsequent date.

MR. HALLECK: In other words, the action that would be taken today would not be final?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

Automatic Resolution Into Committee on Calendar Wednesday

§ 3.14 The question of consideration being decided in the affirmative, when raised against a bill on the Union

Calendar called up under the Calendar Wednesday rule, the House automatically resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole.

On May 4, 1960,⁽⁶⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, responded as follows to parliamentary inquiries on the Calendar Wednesday call of committees:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: In the event that the motion to consider the bill should not prevail in the House, would it still be possible if a rule were reported by the Rules Committee for the bill to be brought before the House at a later date under a rule?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would think the House could adopt any rule reported by the Committee on Rules.

The Chair will state to the gentleman from Indiana and to the House that when we reach the point of approving the Journal, the Chair will then order a call of the committees; and when the Committee on Banking and Currency is recognized and the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. Spence] presents his bill, when the title of the bill is read the House automatically resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole.

MR. HALLECK: But is a motion necessary to consider the bill?

THE SPEAKER: The question of consideration can always be raised.

MR. HALLECK: And on that, of course, it would be possible to have a record vote in the House.

THE SPEAKER: In the opinion of the Chair, that would be correct.

MR. [JAMES C.] DAVIS of Georgia: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: The Chair has just stated—I believe I understood it this way—that when the bill is called up by the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency and the title is read the House automatically resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER: That is the rule.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: But the motion raising the question must come before the title of the bill is read.

THE SPEAKER: After the title is read.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: Sir?

THE SPEAKER: After the title is read.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: There would still be time enough for it before the House automatically goes into the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER: That is correct.

Following the parliamentary inquiries, the call of committees began and the question of consideration was raised against a bill called up by the Committee on Banking and Currency (S. 722, the Area Development Act). The question of consideration was decided in the affirmative, and the Speaker directed the House to automatically resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill.⁽⁷⁾

Consideration by Motion To Discharge

§ 3.15 The House may resolve into the Committee of the Whole to consider a bill brought before the House by adoption of a motion to discharge the committee to which the bill had been referred.

On Apr. 26, 1948,⁽⁸⁾ the following procedure was used for consideration in the Committee of the Whole of a bill brought before the House by a motion to discharge a committee:

MR. [L. MENDEL] RIVERS [of South Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the motion to discharge the Committee on Agriculture from the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2245) to repeal the tax on oleomargarine.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ Did the gentleman sign the petition?

MR. RIVERS: I did, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman qualifies.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from South Carolina is entitled to 10 minutes.

MR. [CLIFFORD R.] HOPE [of Kansas]: Mr. Speaker, I ask to be recognized in opposition to the motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Hope] is recognized for 10 minutes.

8. 94 CONG. REC. 4835, 4840-42, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

9. Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (Mass.).

MR. RIVERS: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RIVERS: The proponents of the motion have 10 minutes and the opponents have 10 minutes, and the proponents have the right to close the debate?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman has stated the situation accurately. He has the right to close debate. . . .

All time has expired.

The question is, Shall the Committee on Agriculture be discharged from further consideration of the bill H.R. 2245?

MR. HOPE: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 235, nays 121, answered “present” 2, not voting 72. . . .

MR. RIVERS: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 2245) to repeal the tax on oleomargarine; and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate be limited to 3 hours, the time to be equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Hope] and myself.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from South Carolina.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill H.R. 2245.

§ 4. Consideration in the House as in the Committee of the Whole

Consideration in the House as in the Committee of the Whole involves a procedure under which propositions are considered for debate and amendment under the five-minute rule, normally without general debate but with all the motions utilized in the House available as provided in clause 4 of Rule XVI. Under this procedure, the House does not resolve into the Committee nor does a Chairman preside, the Speaker instead continuing to preside.

The normal method for initiating consideration in the House as in the Committee of the Whole is by unanimous consent. A motion that a Union Calendar bill be considered under that procedure is not in order.⁽¹⁰⁾ An order or request for this procedure means that the bill or resolution will be considered as having been read for amendment and will be open for amendment and debate under the five-minute rule.⁽¹¹⁾

10. See § 4.11, infra. Generally, see Ch. 19, supra.

11. See Jefferson's Manual, House Rules and Manual § 424 (1995). For the

Where a bill is or would be on the Union Calendar, and it is called up by unanimous consent for "immediate consideration" (as opposed to "immediate consideration in the House"), the unanimous-consent request carries by implication the requirement that if the request is agreed to the bill will be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.⁽¹²⁾

On occasion, a resolution from the Committee on Rules has provided for the consideration of a proposition in the House as in Committee of the Whole.⁽¹³⁾

Special Rules Providing for Consideration

§ 4.1 Special rules may provide for the consideration of designated bills in the House as in Committee of the Whole; thus, a resolution was re-procedure under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, see § 70, infra.

12. See §§ 4.5–4.8, 4.12, infra. Alternatively, a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a Union Calendar bill may specify that the bill be considered "under the general rules of the House," that is, in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union (see §§ 3.4, 3.5, supra), or that it be considered in the House.

13. See §§ 4.1, 4.2, infra.

ported from the Committee on Rules, providing for consideration in the House as in Committee of the Whole of a nonprivileged resolution also reported from that committee establishing a Select Committee on Assassinations.

On Feb. 2, 1977,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 230 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 230

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the resolution (H. Res. 222), creating a Select Committee on Assassinations, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁵⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Speaker, this is a slightly unusual rule, but it has been used a number of times before. It in effect provides, when it is adopted . . . that the House will go into the House as in the Committee of the Whole to consider the matter contained in House Resolution 222, which would reconsti-tute the Select Committee on Assassinations for a limited period. . . .

The reason we chose this procedure, rather than providing for an open rule or dealing with a closed rule, is to try to be fair to Members who want to offer amendments in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. We proceed without general debate under the 5-minute rule. The Speaker continues to preside. He does the recognizing. The Members are recognized on either side for 5 minutes, pro forma, on all questions of amendments. Pro forma amendments are in order.

But this is the important difference: the manager of House Resolution 222—and I will be that manager—has control of the previous question. . . .

So the resolution was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: House Resolution 222 was not privileged since it included provisions funding the select committee, matters not within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Rules.

§ 4.2 Special rules adopted by the House providing for the consideration of designated bills in the House as in Committee of the Whole have also provided for general debate.

On June 5, 1936,⁽¹⁶⁾ the House agreed to the following resolution (H. Res. 528), authorizing a list of enumerated bills to be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order for the Committee on the Judiciary to call up for consideration, without the intervention of any point of order, the following bills:

S. 3389. An act to provide for the appointment of two additional judges for the southern district of New York.

S. 2075. An act to provide for the appointment of additional district judges for the eastern and western districts of Missouri.

S. 2137. An act to provide for the appointment of one additional district judge for the eastern, northern, and western districts of Oklahoma.

S. 2456. An act to provide for the appointment of an additional district judge for the northern and southern districts of West Virginia.

H.R. 11072. A bill authorizing the appointment of an additional district judge for the eastern district of Pennsylvania.

H.R. 3043. A bill to provide for the appointment of an additional district judge for the northern district of Georgia.

Each such bill when called up shall be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. After general debate on each such bill, which shall continue not to exceed 20 minutes, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary, the bill shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule.

On Jan. 6, 1937,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 44, providing for the consideration in the House as in the Committee of the Whole of a joint resolution:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution the House as in the

17. 81 CONG. REC. 90, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union shall consider the joint resolution, Senate Joint Resolution 3; that there shall be not to exceed 1 hour of general debate to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, whereupon the joint resolution shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule.

Unanimous-consent Procedure—Measures on Union Calendar

§ 4.3 The House considered a resolution—continuing certain appropriations—in the House as in the Committee of the Whole pursuant to a unanimous-consent request to that effect agreed to on a prior day.

On Sept. 28, 1966,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House considered House Joint Resolution 1308, continuing appropriations through October 1966, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. Consideration of the joint resolution had been made in order by a unanimous-consent agreement on Sept. 22, 1966.⁽¹⁹⁾ agreed to, the bill may be called up pursuant to the agreement and then by unanimous consent be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

On Apr. 1, 1969,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. L. Mendel Rivers, of South Carolina, made a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a bill:

Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the unanimous-consent agreement of March 27, 1969, I call up for immediate consideration the bill (H.R. 9328) [special pay for naval officers qualified for nuclear submarine duty] and ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

On Mar. 27, Mr. Rivers had asked unanimous consent that it be in order to consider "under the general rules of the House" (in this case, in Committee of the Whole since it was a Union Calendar bill) on Tuesday or Wednesday of the following week the bill H.R. 9328.⁽¹⁾

§ 4.5 Where unanimous consent is granted for the consideration of a bill on the Union Calendar, the bill is frequently considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

§ 4.6 Where a joint resolution requiring consideration in the Committee of the Whole is called up by unanimous consent, it may be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

On Sept. 26, 1968,⁽³⁾ Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of House Joint Resolution 1461, making continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1969. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that if the request was agreed to, the joint resolution could be amended.

There was no objection to Mr. Mahon's request, and he then asked unanimous consent that the joint resolution be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. The request was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: As indicated in § 4.7, infra, the second request was not necessary, since by implication a unanimous-consent request for immediate consideration of a Union Calendar bill means consideration in the House as in Committee, rather than “in the House” (under the hour rule) or “under general rules of the House” (in Committee of the Whole).

§ 4.7 Where a Member asks “unanimous consent for the immediate consideration” of a bill pending on the Union Calendar, the request is construed to carry with it the additional stipulation that if consent is granted, the bill will be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

On Apr. 6, 1966,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill H.R. 14224, the Social Security Act Amendments of 1966, then pending on the Union Calendar. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [JOHN W.] BYRNES of Wisconsin: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

4. 112 CONG. REC. 7749, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. BYRNES of Wisconsin: Mr. Speaker, I make this parliamentary inquiry only that the Members might understand what the opportunities might be for discussion. I make the parliamentary inquiry to the effect that if the request of the gentleman from Arkansas is agreed to that the bill can be considered under unanimous-consent request—do I state it correctly that there will be the opportunity for striking out the last word and having an opportunity to speak?

THE SPEAKER: The bill is to be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, and motions to strike out the last word will be in order.

MR. BYRNES of Wisconsin: Will the gentleman make the request that the bill be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the unanimous-consent request will automatically carry that privilege.

§ 4.8 Where the House, during the call of the Consent Calendar, grants unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of a bill on the Union Calendar or of an identical Senate bill, the bill is considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

5. 116 CONG. REC. 26981, 26982, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

Massachusetts, indicated in response to parliamentary inquiries that a bill on the Union Calendar, or an identical Senate bill, would be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole should unanimous consent be granted for consideration.

§ 4.9 The House agreed by unanimous consent to consider in the House as in the Committee of the Whole a privileged rescission bill when called up by the Committee on Appropriations.

On Feb. 17, 1977,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, made the following unanimous-consent request in the House:

MR. MAHON: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the bill H.R. 3347 is called up, that it be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

6. 123 CONG. REC. 4576, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

Under Public Law 93-344, section 1017(c)(2), debate on a rescission bill in Committee of the Whole cannot exceed two hours, and the purpose of the above request was to permit immediate consideration under the five-minute rule without general debate.

7. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

§ 4.10 Where a resolution has been adopted making the consideration of a bill in order, and the bill is then called up and considered by unanimous consent, rather than pursuant to the rule, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, the Journal indicates the discharge of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union.

On June 28, 1966,⁽⁸⁾ the House adopted a special rule (H. Res. 895) for the consideration in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union of a calendared bill (H.R. 5256) changing the method of computing the retirement pay of members of the armed forces. Then Mr. F. Edward Hébert, of Louisiana, asked unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, and there was no objection. The Journal entry on that day stated:⁽⁹⁾

On motion by Mr. Hébert, by unanimous consent, the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union was discharged from further consideration of the bill (H.R. 5256) to amend title 10, United States Code, to change the method of computing retired pay of certain enlisted members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, or Marine Corps.

When said bill was considered and read twice.

After debate,

The following amendment, recommended by the Committee on Armed Services, was agreed to: . . .

The bill, as amended, was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read a third time by title, and passed.

—Motion Not in Order

§ 4.11 A motion that a Union Calendar bill be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole is not in order (unanimous consent being required).

On July 12, 1939,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, called up H.R. 985, on the Union Calendar, and asked unanimous consent that it be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Sam Hobbs, of Alabama, objected to the consideration of the bill and Mr. May then attempted to make a motion for consideration in the House as in the Committee of the Whole:

Then I move, Mr. Speaker, that the bill be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled:

10. 84 CONG. REC. 8945, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Chair is of the opinion that could not be permitted under the rules of the House. The gentleman may submit a unanimous-consent request, but not a motion.

Mr. Hobbs objected to Mr. May's request, and the Speaker directed the House to resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill.⁽¹¹⁾

District of Columbia Bills on Union Calendar

§ 4.12 District of Columbia bills called up on District Monday, if on the Union Calendar, may be considered by unanimous consent in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

On Aug. 11, 1964,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. John V. Dowdy, of Texas, called up

11. Procedure in the House as in the Committee of the Whole is by unanimous consent only, as the order of business gives no place for a motion that business be considered in that manner. 4 Hinds' Precedents §4923 [cited at Jefferson's Manual, House Rules and Manual §424 (1995)]. Provision is made in the rules for the consideration of Private Calendar bills under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. See Rule XXIV clause 6, House Rules and Manual §893 (1995).

12. 110 CONG. REC. 18949, 18950, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

H.R. 9774, terminating the District of Columbia Plaza Renewal Project, on District Monday. The bill had been on the Union Calendar, and Mr. Dowdy requested unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. The House agreed to the request.⁽¹³⁾

Private Calendar Bills

§ 4.13 Omnibus private bills are considered under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, and the Chair does not recognize for extensions of time.

On Mar. 17, 1936,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House as in the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment omnibus private bills under the five-minute rule. Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, refused to recognize a Member for an extension of time:

The time of the gentleman from Minnesota has expired.

MR. [THEODORE] CHRISTIANSON [of Minnesota]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 5 additional minutes.

THE SPEAKER: On the previous section of this bill the Chair put a unanimous-consent request for an extension of time. The attention of the Chair has since been called to a ruling by the author of the present Private Calendar rule, who was presiding at the last session on this calendar. This rule was proposed for the purpose of expediting business. Upon reflection, the Chair does not think he should recognize Members for the purpose of requesting an extension of time.⁽¹⁵⁾

§ 5. Question of Consideration

Rule XVI clause 3 provides a method by which the House may protect itself against business that it does not wish to consider:

When any motion or proposition is made, the question, Will the House now consider it? shall not be put unless demanded by a Member.⁽¹⁶⁾

The question of consideration is raised before debate on the motion or proposition, and since it is not itself debatable, has the effect if not agreed to of preventing all debate on the measure proposed to be considered in the House.⁽¹⁷⁾

15. See § 70, infra, for additional ruling on the five-minute rule as applied to private bills.

16. House Rules and Manual § 778 (1995). See also §§ 779–781 for raising the question, for the questions subject to the question of consideration, and for the relation of the question to points of order.

17. See § 5.4, infra, for the nondebatability of the question and §§ 5.1–5.3, infra, for raising the question.

The refusal to consider does not amount to the rejection of a bill or prevent its being brought before the House again,⁽¹⁸⁾ and an affirmative vote does not prevent the question of consideration from being raised on a subsequent day when the bill is again called up as unfinished business.⁽¹⁹⁾ It has once been held that a question of privilege which the House has refused to consider may be brought up again on the same day.⁽²⁰⁾ The question of consideration is not debatable,⁽¹⁾ and thus not subject to the motion to lay on the table.⁽²⁾ It is not in order to reconsider the vote whereby the House refuses to consider a bill,⁽³⁾ although it is in order to reconsider an affirmative vote on the question of consideration.⁽⁴⁾

The question of consideration cannot be raised against certain motions relating to the order of business.⁽⁵⁾ For example, the motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole is equivalent to the question of consideration and is therefore not subject to that question.⁽⁶⁾

The question of consideration should be distinguished from points of order against consideration, which may be based on various requirements of House rules and are ruled on by the Chair. A point of order against the eligibility for consideration of a bill which, if sustained, might prevent consideration, should be made and decided before the question of consideration is put,⁽⁷⁾ but if the point relates merely to the manner of considering, it should be passed on afterwards.⁽⁸⁾ In general, after the House has decided to consider, a point of order raised in order to prevent consideration, in whole or part, comes too late.⁽⁹⁾ On a conference report, however, the question of consideration may be demanded before points of order are raised against the substance of the report.⁽¹⁰⁾

Statutes may prescribe specific uses for the question of consider-

For example, the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995⁽¹¹⁾ added a new part B to title IV of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974⁽¹²⁾ imposing several requirements on committees with respect to “federal mandates.”⁽¹³⁾ The provisions establish points of order to enforce those requirements,⁽¹⁴⁾ and preclude the consideration of a rule or order waiving such points of order in the House.⁽¹⁵⁾ The statute prescribes that such points of order be disposed of by putting the question of consideration with respect to the proposition against which they are lodged.⁽¹⁶⁾

When Question of Consideration May Be Raised

§ 5.1 The question of consideration may not be raised against a resolution until the resolution is fully reported.

On Dec. 13, 1932,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, arose to a question of “constitutional privilege” and offered a resolution to impeach President Hoover for high crimes and misdemeanors.

Mr. William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, interrupted the reading of the resolution to state a parliamentary inquiry which was answered by Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas:

MR. STAFFORD: Is it in order to raise the question of consideration at this time?

THE SPEAKER: Not until the resolution is read.

The Clerk concluded the reading of the resolution.

The House agreed to a motion to lay the resolution on the table.

On June 1, 1934,⁽¹⁹⁾ a report was called up from the Committee on Rules. Mr. Carl E. Mapes, of Michigan, interrupted the reading of the accompanying resolution to make the point of order that a two-thirds vote was required for the consideration of the resolution on the same day reported. Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, sustained a point of order that the question of consideration could not be raised until the resolution was read in full:

18. 76 CONG. REC. 399-402, 72d Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [WILLIAM B.] BANKHEAD [of Alabama]: Mr. Speaker, I raise the point of order that the reading of the resolution should be concluded before any point of order can be made against it.

THE SPEAKER: The point of order of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Bankhead] is sustained. The Clerk will conclude the reading of the resolution.

§ 5.2 Resolutions of inquiry are subject to the question of consideration, but it is too late to raise such question after the motion to table has been made.

On Feb. 7, 1939,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Sol Bloom, of New York, presented a privileged report from the Committee on Foreign Affairs adversely reporting a resolution of inquiry (H. Res. 78) directed to the Secretary of State. Following the reading of the report, Mr. Bloom moved that the resolution be laid on the table. Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, then arose to a question of consideration, and Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that the question came too late, the motion to table having been made.

20. 84 CONG. REC. 1181, 1182, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 5.3 During the Calendar Wednesday call of committees the question of consideration on a bill called up by a committee is properly raised after the Clerk reads the title of the bill and before the House resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole.

On Apr. 14, 1937,⁽¹⁾ the question of consideration against a bill called up by a committee under the Calendar Wednesday procedure was raised as follows:

MR. [CLARENCE F.] LEA [of California] (when the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce was called): Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, I call up the bill (H.R. 1668) to amend paragraph (1) of section 4 of the Interstate Commerce Act, as amended February 28, 1920 (U.S.C., title 49, sec. 4).

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

MR. [ALFRED L.] BULWINKLE [of North Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, I raise the question of consideration.

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁾ The gentleman from North Carolina raises the question of consideration of the bill. The question is, Will the House consider the bill H.R. 1668. . . .

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 278, nays 97, answered “present” 1, not voting 54, as follows: . . .

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

THE SPEAKER: The House automatically resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill.

On May 4, 1960,⁽³⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, responded as follows to parliamentary inquiries on the proper raising of the question of consideration against a bill called up under the Calendar Wednesday procedure:

The Chair will state to the gentleman from Indiana and to the House that when we reach the point of approving the Journal, the Chair will then order a call of the committees; and when the Committee on Banking and Currency is recognized and the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. Spence] presents his bill, when the title of the bill is read the House automatically resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole. . . .

MR. [JAMES C.] DAVIS of Georgia: The Chair has just stated—I believe I understood it this way—that when the bill is called up by the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency and the title is read the House automatically resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole.

3. 106 CONG. REC. 9417, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER: That is the rule.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: But the motion raising the question must come before the title of the bill is read.

THE SPEAKER: After the title is read.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: Sir?

THE SPEAKER: After the title is read.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: There would still be time enough for it before the House automatically goes into the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER: That is correct.

Debate

§ 5.4 The question of consideration is not debatable.

On June 1, 1934,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, moved for the immediate consideration of House Resolution 410, reported by the Committee on Rules on the same day reported and making in order during the remainder of the session motions to suspend the rules and waiving certain other rules during the remainder of the session.

When the yeas and nays were ordered on the question of consideration of the resolution, Mr. Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan, made a point of order against the roll call:

I make the point of order that this roll call is not in order, because there has not been a chance to even explain the resolution under consideration.

4. 78 CONG. REC. 10239, 10240, 73d Cong. 2d Sess.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, ruled:

The Chair will state that the question of consideration is not debatable.

Parliamentarian's Note: This precedent involved the automatic question of consideration on Rules Committee resolutions called up the same day reported, under clause 4(b) of Rule XI. The question of consideration if offered on other matters is likewise not debatable (see 8 Cannon's Precedents §2447).

Matters Subject to Question of Consideration—Motions Relating to Order of Business

§ 5.5 The question of consideration cannot be raised against certain motions relating to the order of business.

It is well established that the question of consideration may not be raised against a motion to resolve into Committee of the Whole.⁽⁵⁾ Moreover, it has been held that the question of consideration is not in order against a motion to discharge a committee, the Chair citing as a general principle that the question of consideration may not be raised on a motion relating to the order of business.⁽⁶⁾

5. See § 5.6, infra.

6. See 5 Hinds' Precedents § 4977.

The question of consideration is also not in order against a motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the House has passed a bill.⁽⁷⁾

—Motion To Resolve Into Committee of the Whole as Sufficient Expression of Will of House

§ 5.6 The question of consideration may not be raised against a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole since the House expresses its will concerning consideration by voting on the motion.

On May 21, 1958,⁽⁸⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that the question of consideration could not be raised against the motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a bill, the motion to resolve being itself a test of the will of the House on consideration:

MR. [HOWARD W.] SMITH of Virginia:
May I submit a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker?

7. See 5 Hinds' Precedents § 4972.

8. 104 CONG. REC. 9216, 9217, 85th Cong. 2d Sess. See also 5 Hinds' Precedents §§ 51 and 4973–4976; 8 Cannon's Precedents § 2442.

As to the effect of adoption of a special rule on points of order, see §§ 2.13–2.16, supra.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman may.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: Under what circumstances can the question of consideration be raised?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair tried to say a moment ago that it cannot be raised against the motion to go into the Committee of the Whole, because that is tantamount to consideration, and the House will have an opportunity to vote on that motion.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: In other words, if we demand a vote on that question, then that will be tantamount to raising the question of consideration?

THE SPEAKER: That is correct.

Parliamentarian's Note: It should be noted that a point of order that a bill was reported from committee in the absence of a quorum is in order pending a vote on the motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill, where the bill is being considered pursuant to a Committee on Rules resolution which does not waive that point of order.⁽⁹⁾ A motion to suspend the rules, however, suspends all rules in conflict with the motion and precludes the point of order that a bill was reported from committee in the absence of a quorum.⁽¹⁰⁾

Consideration of Resolution From Rules Committee on Same Day Reported

§ 5.7 A resolution from the Committee on Rules may be

9. See § 2.16, supra.

10. See §§ 2.7, 2.8, supra.

considered on the same day as reported if the question of consideration is supported by two-thirds of the Members present and voting, a quorum being present.

On Nov. 14, 1975,⁽¹¹⁾ a resolution from the Committee on Rules was reported, providing that upon the adoption of the resolution it would be in order to take a Senate bill from the Speaker's table and consider it in the House. Following the adoption of the resolution making the consideration of the Senate bill in order, the Member calling up the Senate bill was recognized for one hour:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri], from the Committee on Rules, reported the following privileged resolution (H. Res. 866, Rept. No. 94-666), which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

H. RES. 866

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to take from the Speaker's table the bill S. 2667, to extend the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973, and to consider said bill in the House.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 866 and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The Clerk will report the resolution.

11. 121 CONG. REC. 36638, 36641, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Carl Albert (Okla.).

The Clerk read the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 866?

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is certain that a quorum is present. The Chair will count.

Two hundred and forty-one Members are present, a quorum.

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, I demand a division.

On a division (demanded by Mr. Roussetot) there were—yeas 171, noes 14.

So (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof), the House agreed to consider House Resolution 866.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. Staggers).

MR. [HARLEY O.] STAGGERS [of West Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 866, I call up the Senate bill (S. 2667) and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The Clerk read the Senate bill as follows:

A BILL TO EXTEND THE EMERGENCY PETROLEUM ALLOCATION ACT OF 1973

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 4(g)(1) of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 is amended by striking out each date specified therein and inserting in lieu thereof in each case "December 15, 1975". . . .

MR. STAGGERS: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the Senate bill.

The previous question was ordered.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

§ 5.8 Under Rule XI clause 4(b), it is in order to call up a privileged report from the Committee on Rules relating to the order of business on the same day reported if consideration is granted by a two-thirds vote, and a point of order that the report has not been printed does not lie.

On Feb. 2, 1977,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

Mr. [James J.] Delaney [of New York], from the Committee on Rules, reported the following privileged resolution (H. Res. 231, Rept. No. 95-6), which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed: . . .

13. 123 CONG. REC. 3344, 3349, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 231 and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 231? . . .

MR. [W. HENSEN] MOORE [of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the resolution has not been printed.

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, this is merely to consider taking up the rule.

MR. MOORE: Mr. Speaker, I would like to make the point of order that I believe under this rule we are waiving all points of order; is that not correct?

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield further, that matter will be taken up at the proper time. This is merely for consideration, at this particular time, of House Resolution 231.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the point of order of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Moore) is not well taken and is therefore overruled.

There is no requirement that this resolution be printed before it can be called up, although the Chair ordered the resolution printed when it was filed and referred to the House Calendar.

The question is, Will the House now consider House Resolution 231?

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the House agreed to consider House Resolution 231.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from New York (Mr. Delaney) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. DELANEY: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. MOORE: Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was refused.

So the resolution was agreed to.

House Automatically Resolves Into Committee of the Whole After Vote To Consider Bill on Calendar Wednesday

§ 5.9 The question of consideration being decided in the affirmative, when raised against a bill on the Union Calendar called up under the Calendar Wednesday rule, the House automatically resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole.

On May 4, 1960,⁽¹⁵⁾ the question of consideration was raised against a bill called up by

15. 106 CONG. REC. 9417, 9418, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

14. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

the Committee on Banking and Currency under the Calendar Wednesday procedure. The bill had been on the Union Calendar. When the House voted to consider the bill, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, directed the House to automatically resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill.⁽¹⁶⁾

Second Question of Consideration on Same Bill on Calendar Wednesday

§ 5.10 A second question of consideration was voted on the same day on the same bill on Calendar Wednesday (after the Committee of the Whole rose and the House refused to adjourn).

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽¹⁷⁾ the question of consideration was raised against H.R. 4453, the Federal Fair Employment Practice Act, called up under the Calendar Wednesday rule by the Committee on Education and Labor. When the question was decided in the affirmative, the House automatically resolved into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill.

After intervening debate, the Committee voted to rise without having agreed to the bill. Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, moved that the House adjourn, which was defeated by the yeas and nays. The Committee on Education and Labor again called up the bill and Mr. Smith raised the question of consideration against the bill. The House affirmatively decided the second question of consideration and the House resolved again into the Committee of the Whole.

Motion To Adjourn Not in Order After Vote To Consider Bill on Calendar Wednesday

§ 5.11 A motion to adjourn is not in order after the House has voted to consider a proposition brought up under the Calendar Wednesday rule and before the House has resolved into Committee of the Whole.

On Apr. 14, 1937,⁽¹⁸⁾ the Clerk called the roll of committees for reporting propositions under the Calendar Wednesday rule. At the direction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Mr. Clarence F. Lea, of California, called up H.R. 1668, to amend the Interstate Commerce Act. Mr. Alfred L. lina, raised the question of consideration, and the House by the yeas and nays voted to consider the bill.

Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, directed the House to automatically resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, moved that the House adjourn, and the Speaker ruled "The Chair cannot entertain that motion at this time."

Question of Consideration Raised Against Conference Report Before Points of Order

§ 5.12 The question of consideration may be raised against a conference report before the Chair entertains points of order against the report.

On Sept. 28, 1976,⁽¹⁹⁾ a demand for the question of consideration resulting in the ordering of consideration of a conference report, points of order were next entertained, as indicated below:

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁰⁾ The unfinished business is the further consideration of the conference report on the Senate bill S. 521, which the Clerk will report by title.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

20. Carl Albert (Okla.).

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I demand the question of consideration.

THE SPEAKER: The question is, Will the House now consider the conference report on the Senate bill S. 521.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

MR. FISH: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. . . .

So consideration of the conference report was ordered. . . .

MR. FISH: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. FISH: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is as to whether my reserved points of order are in order at this time?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that they are.

MR. FISH: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against the conference report on grounds that it has been reported in violation of rule XXVIII, clause 6, which requires that conference meetings be open to the public except when ordered closed by rollcall vote in open session. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is prepared to rule.

The gentleman from New York has made a point of order directed against conference procedure alleging a violation of clause 6, rule XXVIII.

The gentleman's point of order is that the form of the conference report does not conform to his understanding as to which motion was agreed to by the House conferees. The gentleman contends that there was [presumably a subsequent] meeting of the conferees which was closed and unannounced.

The chief manager of the conference report has reported that in a meeting of the conferees which was open to the public, pursuant to the provisions of clause 6, rule XXVIII, a proper motion was made to agree to an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the House amendment to the Senate bill, and the signatures of a majority of the conferees of both Houses reflecting this agreement appear on the conference report.

The Chair does not feel that a violation of conference rules has been shown, and the Chair overrules the point of order.

Parliamentarian's Note: The issue as to which comes first on a conference report, the question of consideration or a point of order, is discussed in 8 Cannon's Precedents §2439, wherein Speaker Clark ruled that the question of consideration should be put first on the grounds that it was useless to argue points of order if the House wasn't going to consider the report. Conflicting precedents which stand for the proposition that points of order should be decided before the question of consideration is raised involved circumstances in which the point of order was directed not to the substance of the report or proposition but to the issue whether the matter was privileged to come up for consideration in the first instance.

In 5 Hinds' Precedents §4950, the issue was whether a bill called up under the morning hour call of committees was eligible as a bill properly on the House Calendar, and in 5 Hinds' Precedents §4951, the issue was whether a resolution could be presented as a question of privilege. But since a conference report is privileged for consideration under Rule XXVIII, the threshold question is not presented and the question of consideration should come before points of order against the substance of the report.

§ 6. Questions Not Subject to Debate

The relevant standing rule and the precedents relating to each motion or question must be consulted in order to determine whether debate thereon is allowable.⁽¹⁾ Thus, the motion to go into Committee of the Whole is not de-

The list is not exclusive; see, for example, Rule I clause 1, House Rules and Manual §621 (1995) (1971 amendment to the rule providing for a nondebatable motion that the Journal be read in full).

batable (and therefore not subject to the motion to lay on the table).⁽²⁾ Nor is a motion to go into secret session debatable.⁽³⁾

Unless otherwise provided by a standing rule or by order of the House, a question brought before the House is debated under the hour rule.⁽⁴⁾ The motions for the previous question⁽⁵⁾ and to lay on the table⁽⁶⁾ are not debatable. The previous question closes debate and brings the House to an immediate vote on the pending proposition unless ordered on a proposition on which there has been no debate, in which event 40 minutes of debate are permitted.⁽⁷⁾ The motion to lay on the table also precludes further debate and, if agreed to, provides a final adverse disposition of the matter to which applied.

Rule XXV⁽⁸⁾ provides that all questions of the priority of business shall be decided by a majority without debate. In applying the rule, the Speaker has stated that the language precludes debate on motions to go into Committee of the Whole, on questions of consideration, and on appeals from the Chair's decisions on priority of business.⁽⁹⁾

While the question of consideration is not debatable,⁽¹⁰⁾ a motion to postpone further consideration of a privileged resolution (to censure a Member) is debatable for one hour controlled by the Member offering the motion.⁽¹¹⁾ Under Rule XVI, clause 4, the motion to postpone indefinitely is normally debatable; but where such a motion is offered pursuant to provisions of a statute, enacted under the rulemaking power of the House and Senate, such as statutes relating to consideration of resolutions disapproving certain executive actions, the motion by the terms of the statute may not be debatable.⁽¹²⁾ play charts or exhibits by permission of the Committee, but if objection is made, the question is put, without debate, as to whether such Member should be permitted to use displays.⁽¹³⁾

Of course, agreements to limit debate may affect the question of what matters may be debated.⁽¹⁴⁾ For example, when the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on the bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain, even a preferential motion⁽¹⁵⁾ (such as a motion to strike the enacting clause) is not debatable if offered after the expiration of time for debate.

With respect to a motion to recommit with instructions after the previous question has been ordered on the passage of a bill or joint resolution, it is in order to debate the motion for ten minutes before the vote is taken thereon, except that on demand of the floor manager for the majority it is in order to debate such motion for one hour. Right of Member-elect To Be Sworn § 6.1 No debate is in order on the right of a challenged Member-elect to be sworn in, pending the swearing-in of the remaining Members-elect.

On Jan. 5, 1937, before the swearing-in en masse of Members-elect at the convening of the 75th Congress, Member-elect John J. O'Connor, of New York, arose to challenge the right of Member-elect Arthur B. Jenks, of New Hampshire, to be sworn in.⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr.

Resignation of Committee Chairman

§ 6.2 In response to parliamentary inquiries, the Speaker indicated that the question of whether a member should be relieved from committee service was debatable only within narrow limits and that the Chair would take the initiative in enforcing that restriction.

On June 16, 1975,⁽¹⁸⁾ after the Speaker⁽¹⁹⁾ laid before the House a letter of resignation from the chairman of the Select Committee on Intelligence, the following proceedings occurred:

The Speaker laid before the House the [resignation of Mr. Lucien N. Nedzi, of Michigan] from the House Select Committee on Intelligence. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is, shall the resignation be accepted?

MR. [JAMES G.] O'HARA [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, before proceeding, I wonder if I could address to the Chair a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman may state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. O'HARA: Mr. Speaker, I have looked at the precedents and I am somewhat uncertain as to the proper scope of the debate on such a question. I would hope that the Chair could enlighten this gentleman and the House.

THE SPEAKER: . . . The Chair will state that rule XIV, clause 1, requires that a Member confine himself to the question under debate in the House, avoiding personalities. On January 29, 1855, as cited in section 4510 of volume 4, Hinds' Precedents, Speaker Boyd held that the request of a Member that he be excused from committee service was debatable only within very narrow limits.

The Chair trusts that debate on the pending question will be confined within the spirit of that ruling and the Chair will further state that he will strictly enforce the rule as to the relevancy of debate. . . .

MR. [GARRY] BROWN of Michigan: . . . Does the Speaker [intend] to question the germaneness when in his mind it appears to be nongermane?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has so stated, and the Chair so intends.

Question of Consideration

§ 6.3 The question of consideration is not debatable.

On June 1, 1934,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, called up on the same day reported House Resolution 410, from the Committee on Rules, making in order during the remainder of the session motions to suspend the rules and suspending the requirement of a two-thirds vote to consider reports from the Committee on Rules when called up on the same day reported.

Mr. Bankhead called for the consideration of the resolution and before the question of consideration could be voted upon, Mr. Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan, made a point of order against ordering the yeas and nays on the question, "because there has not been a chance to even explain the resolution under consideration."

Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, ruled that "the question of consideration is not debatable."⁽¹⁾

Rereference of Bill to Committee

§ 6.4 A motion to correct the reference of a public bill is not debatable.

On Apr. 2, 1935,⁽²⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, asked unanimous consent that H.R. 6547, authorizing the appointment of a commissioner for the United States Court of China, originally referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, be rereferred to the Committee on the Judiciary. Mr. Sam D. McReynolds, of Tennessee, objected to the request and Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, stated that a motion for rereferral was in order since Mr. Celler was authorized by the Committee on the Judiciary to move for rereferral.

Speaker Byrns advised Mr. McReynolds that the motion was not debatable. The House then voted against the motion of rereferral.

On Jan. 10, 1941,⁽³⁾ Mr. Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, offered a privileged motion to rerefer H.R. 1776, to promote the defense of the United States, originally referred to the Committee on For-ign Affairs, to the Committee on Military Affairs. Mr. John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to the reasons why Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, had referred the bill to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. The Speaker suggested that a unanimous-consent request might be granted for him to explain his reasons, but Mr. Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, stated as follows:

If the Speaker pursues that course, then in effect he has opened this matter up to debate, and the Speaker himself has made a speech against the motion. That can be done by unanimous consent, but it does seem to me we should do these things according to the rules. If we are going to have debate, let us have debate; if we are not, let us not have one side only.

After further debate, Mr. Albert J. Engel, of Michigan, asked unanimous consent that the subject be debated for 20 minutes. The Speaker responded that he would "accept no time from the House on any conditions," and put the motion on the question of rereference, which was rejected by the House.⁽⁴⁾ on motion of a committee prohibits debate, a Member may proceed by unanimous consent for one minute before he makes such a motion.

On Apr. 21, 1942,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Samuel Dickstein, of New York, was granted unanimous consent to address the House for one minute following the reading of the Journal. At the conclusion of his address, he moved that the bill H.R. 6915 be rereferred from the Committee on the Judiciary to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, made a point of order against the motion on the ground that Mr. Dickstein could only ask for rereference by unanimous consent. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, overruled the point of order and read Rule XXVII clause 4, providing for a motion to correct reference of bills, to be determined without debate.

Mr. Sam Hobbs, of Alabama, made a further point of order that Mr. Dickstein's motion was not in order since "there was debate by the distinguished gentleman from New York for 1 minute immediately preceding the submission of the motion, where as the opposition is denied that right by the rule."

5. 88 CONG. REC. 3571, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

Speaker Rayburn overruled the point of order:

The Chair did not know what the gentleman from New York was going to talk about. The Chair cannot look into the mind of a Member when he asks unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and see what he intends to talk about.

After Discharge of Rules Committee Resolution

§ 6.6 Under the former practice, where the Committee on Rules was discharged from further consideration of a resolution providing a special order of business, the vote occurred immediately on the adoption of the resolution without debate; Rule XXVII, clause 3, has since been amended to permit debate on a resolution discharged from the Committee on Rules.

On June 11, 1945,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, called up a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from further consideration of House Resolution 139, providing for the consideration of H.R. 7, making unlawful the requirement for the payment of a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in a primary or other election for federal officers.

After 20 minutes' debate on the motion, the House agreed to the motion and Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, immediately put the question on the resolution, after ruling that a motion to lay the resolution on the table was not in order.

Parliamentarian's Note: After the ruling cited above, the House did not proceed to the consideration of H.R. 7 until the following day, since House Resolution 139 provided for consideration of said bill on "the day succeeding the adoption of this resolution."

Rule XXVII, clause 3, was amended by H. Res. 5, 102d Cong. 1st Sess., Jan. 3, 1991, to permit debate on a resolution discharged from the Committee on Rules.⁽⁷⁾

7. For the earlier version of the rule, see Rule XXVII, clause 4, House Rules and Manual §908 (1988): "If the motion (motion to discharge committee from bill or resolution) prevails to discharge the Committee on Rules from any resolution pending before the committee, the House shall immediately vote on the adoption of said resolution, the Speaker not entertaining any dilatory or other intervening motion except one motion to adjourn" The present rule states: "If the motion prevails . . . the House shall immediately consider such resolution" Rule XXVII, clause 3, House Rules and Manual §908 (1995).

Discharge of Privileged Resolution of Inquiry

§ 6.7 When a committee to which has been referred a privileged resolution of inquiry has not reported that resolution within fourteen (formerly seven) legislative days, a motion to discharge that committee from further consideration of that resolution is privileged and not debatable.

On Sept. 29, 1975,⁽⁸⁾ the principle described above was demonstrated in the House as follows:

MR. [JAMES M.] COLLINS of Texas: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged motion to discharge the Committee on Education and Labor from consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 718).

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read the motion as follows:

Mr. Collins of Texas moves to discharge the Committee on Education and Labor from consideration of House Resolution 718.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the resolution.

8. 121 CONG. REC. 30748, 94th Cong. 1st Sess. Note: At the time of the proceedings below, the rules required resolutions of inquiry to be reported within seven days. The rule now requires reporting within fourteen days. See Rule XXII, cl. 5, House Rules and Manual § 855 (1995).

9. Carl Albert (Okla.).

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 718

Resolved, That the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, to the extent not incompatible with the public interest, is directed to furnish to the House of Representatives, not later than sixty days following the adoption of this resolution, any documents containing a list of the public school systems in the United States which, during the period beginning on August 1, 1975, and ending on June 30, 1976, will be receiving Federal funds and will be engaging in the busing of schoolchildren to achieve racial balance, and any documents respecting the rules and regulations of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare with respect to the use of any Federal funds administered by the Department for the busing of schoolchildren to achieve racial balance.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the privileged motion to discharge.

The motion was agreed to.

Debate on Resolution of Inquiry

§ 6.8 A resolution of inquiry is debatable for one hour, controlled by the Member calling it up.

During consideration of a privileged resolution (H. Res. 745, in the matter of Billy Carter) in the House on Sept. 10, 1980,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Peter W. Rodino, Jr., of New Jersey, manager of the resolution, made a statement concerning procedure for debate, as follows:

10. 126 CONG. REC. 24948, 24949, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. RODINO: Mr. Speaker, I call up a privileged resolution (H. Res. 745) of inquiry in the matter of Billy Carter, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 745

Resolved, That the President, to the extent possible, is directed to furnish to the House of Representatives, not later than seven days following the adoption of this resolution, full and complete information on the following:

(1) any record and date of all conversations and actions of the President with Billy Carter relating to the latter's role as an official or unofficial agent of the Government of Libya. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Rodino), the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary.

MR. RODINO: Mr. Speaker, it is my intention to yield to Members whom I have already designated, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. McClory), the ranking minority member on the Committee on the Judiciary, for 15 minutes, for purposes of debate only; the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield), the ranking minority member on the Committee on Foreign Affairs, for 10 minutes, for purposes of debate only; the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki), the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, for 2 minutes; and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland), chairman of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, for 2 minutes.

Motion To Lay on the Table

§ 6.9 A motion to lay on the table is a preferential motion and is not debatable.

On June 16, 1947,⁽¹¹⁾ certain words used in debate characterizing a committee report as containing "lies and half-truths" were demanded to be taken down. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, ruled that the words used were unparliamentary and Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, moved to strike the entire statement from the Record. On that motion he asked for recognition.

Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, moved to lay the motion to strike words on the table. Mr. Rankin objected that he had already been recognized. Speaker Martin ruled that the motion to table was "preferential and not debatable." The House rejected the motion to table.

On Feb. 20, 1952,⁽¹²⁾ the Committee on Foreign Affairs adversely reported a resolution of inquiry. Mr. James P. Richards, of South Carolina, moved that the resolution of inquiry be laid on the table. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled in response to a parliamentary inquiry that no debate could be had on the motion:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Mr. Speaker, this is a matter of very considerable importance. Does the making of this motion at this time preclude all debate, or may we expect that the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs will yield time to those who may want to discuss this matter?

THE SPEAKER: The motion to lay on the table is not debatable. The gentleman from South Carolina cannot yield time after he has made a motion to lay on the table.

MR. HALLECK: Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Mr. Speaker, if the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs could see fit not to make such a motion at this time, then would this resolution as well as the report be debatable?

THE SPEAKER: The resolution would be debatable and the time of 1 hour would be under the control of the gentleman from South Carolina.

The question is on the motion of the gentleman from South Carolina.⁽¹³⁾

MR. [DELBERT L.] LATTA [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ Has the gentleman's amendment been printed in the Record?

MR. LATTA: Yes, Mr. Chairman, it has been printed in the Record.

The motion was agreed to.

Point of Order

§ 6.11 Debate on a point of order is within the discretion of the Chair.

On Apr. 13, 1951,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Carl Vinson, of Georgia, made a point of order that an amendment offered by Mr. Antoni N. Sadlak, of Connecticut, to a pending bill was not in order since not germane to the bill. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, inquired of Mr. Sadlak whether he desired to be heard on the point of order. Mr. Sadlak inquired "how much time will be allotted to me for that purpose?" The Chair responded that the time allotted "was in the discretion of the Chair."⁽¹⁷⁾

16. 97 CONG. REC. 3909, 3910, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Points of order on which the Chair has announced his readiness to rule are not debatable, such debate being at all times within the discretion of the Chair. See § 6.36, infra; 5 Hinds' Precedents §§ 6919, 6920.

Point of Order of No Quorum

§ 6.12 A point of order that a quorum is not present is not debatable.

On Apr. 15, 1940,⁽¹⁸⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that since a point of order of no quorum is not debatable, remarks made after the point of order should not be included in the Congressional Record.

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a little while ago the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. Rankin] made a point of order that no quorum was present, and thereafter he said:

You are not going to raid the veterans of the World War and pass these other pension bills and run over the House that way. I make the point of order there is no quorum present.

Now, the gentleman was not recognized for that purpose; and then thereafter the gentleman from Mississippi further stated:

And there will be a quorum and a vote on every other bill from now on today.

The gentleman was not recognized for that purpose, and that should not be in the Record. I make the point of order that the language should not be contained in the Record.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from New York makes the point of order that certain remarks made in the House should not be included in the Record. The Chair is prepared to rule.

18. 86 CONG. REC. 4517, 76th Cong. 3d Sess.

Under the rules of the House, remarks should only be included in the Record that are made in order. After a point of order is made, which is not debatable, any further remarks should not be included in the Record. Therefore the Chair rules that any remarks that may have been made after the point of order that a quorum was not present was made should not be included in the Record.

On Apr. 24, 1956,⁽¹⁹⁾ while Mr. Carl Vinson, of Georgia, had the floor and was speaking under a special order, Mr. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi, made the point of order that a quorum was not present. Mr. Sidney R. Yates, of Illinois, sought recognition to be heard on the point of order and Speaker Rayburn ruled that the point of order that a quorum was not present was not debatable. The Speaker declined to hold that the point of order was dilatory.

Following Announcement of No Quorum

§ 6.13 The Chair refuses to recognize Members after the absence of a quorum has been announced and no debate is in order until a quorum has been established.

19. 102 CONG. REC. 6891, 84th Cong. 2d Sess.

On June 8, 1960,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, made the point of order that a quorum was not present. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, counted the Members and announced that a quorum was not present. Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, moved a call of the House and it was so ordered. Mr. Hoffman then attempted to deliver some remarks. The Speaker ruled:

The Chair cannot recognize the gentleman because a point of order of no quorum has been made, and the Chair announced that there was no quorum.

Motion To Dispense With Proceedings Under a Call

§ 6.14 A motion to dispense with further proceedings under a call of the House is not debatable.

On Aug. 27, 1962,⁽¹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, directed the Clerk to read the Journal of the last day's proceedings. Mr. John Bell Williams, of Mississippi, made the point of order that a quorum was not present and a call of the House was ordered. The reading of the Journal was interrupted by three quorum calls and two record votes on dispensing with further proceedings under the quorum calls.⁽²⁾ When the motion to dispense with further proceedings under the call was first made by Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, Mr. Williams moved to lay that motion on the table. The Speaker ruled:

The motion to dispense with further proceedings under the call is not debatable and not subject to amendment, and, therefore, the motion to lay on the table is not in order.

On Dec. 18, 1970,⁽³⁾ Speaker McCormack ruled that a motion to dispense with further proceedings under a call of the House was not debatable:

The motion to dispense with further proceedings under the call is not debatable and is not amendable. The Chair rules that the motion of the gentleman from Missouri is not in order. [Mr. Hall had moved to table the motion.]

2. Parliamentarian's Note: The quorum calls, record votes on motions to dispense with further proceedings under the call, and demand that the Journal be read in full interrupted the reading of the Journal and delayed the Speaker's recognition of a Member to move to suspend the rules and pass Senate Joint Resolution 29, proposing a constitutional amendment to abolish use of the poll tax as a qualification for voting in elections of federal officials.

Questions as to Disorderly Words

§ 6.15 The question whether words taken down violate the rules is for the Speaker to decide and is not debatable.

On Jan. 15, 1948,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, referred in debate to a statement by Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, as "damnable." Mr. Rankin demanded that the words be taken down. After the words were read to the House, Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, inquired of Mr. Rankin whether the word "damnable" was the word objected to. Mr. Rankin responded and Mr. Celler interjected the inquiry "Mr. Speaker, may I be heard?"

The Speaker ruled "That is not debatable. The Chair will pass on the question."

On Mar. 9, 1948,⁽⁵⁾ after Mr. Rankin had demanded that certain words used in debate be taken down and Speaker Martin had ruled them not a breach of order, the following exchange occurred:

MR. RANKIN: Mr. Speaker, I would like to be heard.

4. 94 CONG. REC. 205, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.
5. Id. at p. 2408.

THE SPEAKER: It is a matter for the Chair to determine.

MR. RANKIN: I understand; but I would like to be heard on the matter. We have a right to be heard.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has held that the words are not unparliamentary. The gentleman from New York [Mr. Celler] is merely expressing his own opinion. The gentleman from New York will proceed.

§ 6.16 Words objected to in debate may be withdrawn by unanimous consent, but no debate is in order pending such a request.

During consideration of the foreign aid authorization bill (H.R. 12514) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 2, 1978,⁽⁶⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [JOHN J.] CAVANAUGH [of Nebraska]: . . . I am highly offended and irritated by much of the language presented here by Mr. Bauman and by our colleague from Minnesota concerning the administration support.

[Mr. Cavanaugh further characterized Mr. Bauman's language as "outrageous," the characterization in question.]

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the language of the gentleman from Nebraska if he cannot conduct himself civilly in debate. . . . I demand his words be taken down. . . .

MR. CAVANAUGH: Mr. Chairman, insofar as the characterization that I used regarding the gentleman's language could in any way be construed to impugn the gentleman's character, I would ask unanimous consent to withdraw it. It was an attempt to simply convey my feelings of the inappropriateness of the language that the gentleman had used in putting forth his argument.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. BAUMAN: Is not the only request the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. Cavanaugh) can make, under the rules of the House, a unanimous-consent request to withdraw his remarks, and not to make a speech?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) is correct.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Nebraska?

There was no objection.

—Motion To Permit Offending Member To Proceed

§ 6.17 After words taken down in debate have been reported to the House and ruled out of order by the Speaker, a privileged motion that the Member whose words were ruled out of order be permitted to proceed in order may be made and is debatable.

In the proceedings of Oct. 8, 1991, the Chair indicated that the motion to permit a Member to proceed in order is debatable under the hour rule, and that debate is limited to the question of whether to permit the Member to proceed in order. The proceedings of that date are discussed in §52.13, infra.

Consent for Reading Papers

§ 6.18 Under a former rule, when objection was made to the reading of a paper, it should be determined without debate by a vote of the House.⁽⁸⁾

Motion To Close Debate Under Five-minute Rule

§ 6.19 A motion to close debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is not debatable.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽⁹⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that a motion to close debate Rule XXX, House Rules and Manual §915 (1991) provided that the vote on permission to read should be taken without debate.

under the five-minute rule is non-debatable:

MR. [ADAM C.] POWELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this title and all amendments thereto close now. . . .

MRS. [EDITH S.] GREEN of Oregon: Mr. Chairman . . . I rise in opposition to this motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from New York [Mr. Powell] withdraw his motion?

MR. POWELL: I do not, Mr. Chairman.

MR. [ROBERT P.] GRIFFIN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GRIFFIN: Mr. Chairman, I understand the chairman of the full committee to move that debate on title II be cut off at this time. Was that the motion by the gentleman from New York?

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion, as the Chair understood it, was that all debate on section 202 of title II close.

The question is on the motion of the gentleman from New York.

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman—

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Mississippi rise?

MR. COLMER: Mr. Chairman, do I understand the ruling of the Chair to be that a motion to close debate is not debatable?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.⁽¹⁰⁾

§ 6.20 A motion to fix the closing of debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is not debatable.

On Mar. 30, 1950,⁽¹¹⁾ Chairman Oren Harris, of Arkansas, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [JOHN] KEE [of West Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on title I and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes.

MR. [COMPTON I.] WHITE of Idaho: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WHITE: I would like to know if this motion is debatable.

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion is not debatable.

Similarly, Chairman Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, ruled on Jan. 19, 1944,⁽¹²⁾ that a motion that

For the basis of the ruling, see Rule XXIII clause 6, House Rules and Manual §874 (1995): "The committee may, by the vote of a majority of the members present, at any time after the five minutes' debate has begun upon proposed amendments to any section or paragraph of a bill, close all debate upon such section or paragraph or, at its election, upon the pending amendments only (which motion shall be decided without debate)."

12. 90 CONG. REC. 418, 78th Cong. 2d Sess.

"all debate on section 2 and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes" was not debatable.

§ 6.21 The motion to close debate is not subject to debate.

An illustration of the principle described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole on June 5, 1975,⁽¹³⁾ as follows:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the committee amendment and all amendments thereto conclude at 5:15 o'clock.

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ The motion is not debatable.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan.

The motion was agreed to.

Amendments Offered After Expiration of Debate Time

§ 6.22 Although Members may offer amendments to a title of a bill after a time limitation for debate thereon has expired, such amendments may not be debated.

On May 21, 1959,⁽¹⁵⁾ the House had agreed to close debate on a title of the bill and amendments thereto at a certain time (3:35 p.m.). Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, stated in response to parliamentary inquiries that following the expiration of the time Members could offer amendments to the title but could not debate such amendments:

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Is it not a fact that an amendment may be offered after debate has concluded? Any one has a right to offer an amendment even after debate has concluded.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Member may offer an amendment after time for debate has expired; and the amendment may be reported and voted on, but it may not be debated.

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Suppose a Member has an amendment which might or might not be offered depending on the action taken on the pending amendment and he had informed the Chair of the situation, could not his time be allotted to him after the pending amendment is disposed of?

THE CHAIRMAN: If debate goes beyond 3:35, then, of course, he could not be recognized for debate.

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XXIII, clause 6,⁽¹⁶⁾ as amended in 16. See House Rules and Manual §874 (1995). For further discussion of the rule, see §79, infra. See also §6.25, infra.

1971, permits 10 minutes' debate on an amendment which has been printed in the Congressional Record in accordance with provisions of the rule.

§ 6.23 Where time for debate on an amendment and amendments thereto has expired, the Chair may still recognize Members to offer amendments, but not for further debate.

On Feb. 10, 1964,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole voted to close debate on a title of a pending bill and on all amendments thereto. Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, subsequently responded to a parliamentary inquiry on the effect thereof as follows:

MR. [RICHARD H.] POFF [of Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, in light of the limitation on time may I inquire what amendments will be voted upon when the time expires? I have two amendments at the desk which I may or may not offer, depending upon developments. I would like to be advised whether I will be recognized to offer the amendments and if so when that time will occur.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Virginia that up to 1 o'clock the Chair will undertake to recognize such Members as he can. After 1 o'clock the Chair will recognize those Members desiring to offer amendments and the question on each amendment will be put immediately without debate.⁽¹⁸⁾

§ 6.24 Where all time expires for debate on a paragraph of a bill and on amendments thereto, further amendments may be offered but are not debatable.

On June 29, 1959,⁽¹⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request to limit debate on the pending paragraph and amendments thereto. In response to parliamentary inquiries, Chairman Paul J. Kilday, of Texas, stated that when all time had expired pursuant to that agreement, further amendments could be offered but not debated:

MR. [JOEL T.] BROYHILL [of Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, when could I offer this other amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: To this paragraph?

MR. BROYHILL: Yes.

THE CHAIRMAN: After the disposition of the pending amendment. The Chair would point out that under the arrangement made, the gentleman might find himself in the position of not being permitted to debate the other amendment.

§ 6.25 While a perfecting amendment may be offered pending a motion to strike out a title, it is not debatable, except by unanimous consent, if offered after expiration of all debate time under a limitation unless printed in the Record.

On July 29, 1983,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of H.R. 2957 (International Monetary Fund authorization) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM N.] PATMAN [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ Is the amendment printed in the Record?

MR. PATMAN: Yes, it is.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Patman: Strike line 13 on page 18 and all that follows through line 8 on page 28. . . .

PERFECTING AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GONZALEZ

MR. [HENRY B.] GONZALEZ [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I have a perfecting amendment to title III at the desk which I offer.

The Clerk read as follows:

Perfecting amendment offered by Mr. Gonzalez: On line 18, page 19, strike out "5,310.8 million Special Drawing Right" and insert in lieu thereof "1,750 million Special Drawing Rights". . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would inquire of the gentleman from Texas whether this perfecting amendment has been printed in the Record.

MR. GONZALEZ: No, Mr. Chairman, it has not been printed in the Record.

MR. [FERNAND J.] ST GERMAIN [of Rhode Island]: I have a point of order, Mr. Chairman. I think that the amendment is not in order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would state that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez) is a perfecting amendment to title III. As such, it takes precedence over a motion to strike. It is in order. . . .

MR. [ED] BETHUNE [of Arkansas]: Mr. Chairman, is it not the case that when a Member offers a perfecting amendment to an amendment such as is the case before us now, he should be recognized for 5 minutes to explain his amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the rules do not provide for any debate after a limitation of time on any amendment which has not been previously printed in the Record. . . .

MR. GONZALEZ: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent, without pressing a disputation upon an interpretation of the rules, for an opportunity not to exceed 5 minutes to explain this perfecting amendment to the pending amendment, as well as on title III, which was printed in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas? . . .

MR. [STEPHEN L.] NEAL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

Motion To Strike Enacting Clause After Closure of Debate

§ 6.26 A motion having been adopted in the Committee of the Whole to close debate on a bill, a preferential motion that the Committee rise and report back to the House a recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken is not debatable.

On June 11, 1959,⁽²⁾ Mr. Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, moved and the Committee of the Whole agreed to close all debate on the pending bill and on all amendments thereto. Chairman Joseph L. Evins, of Tennessee, then ruled that a preferential motion on the bill was not debatable since debate had been closed:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must inform the gentleman from Michigan that the motion is not debatable.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Is this a Senate bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: This is a House bill.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: This is a Senate bill and the Chair holds that it is not debatable at this time?

2. 105 CONG. REC. 10560, 10561, 86th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the bill has been ordered closed.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: This is not on the bill. This is on a motion to strike out the enacting clause on the ground that the first amendment has been denied to the minority here, the right of free speech in debate, and this being the greatest deliberative body in the world and the accusation having been made the other day that the minority was intimidated, or the majority was being intimidated.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan is a very beloved and very distinguished and very able parliamentarian, but the majority have ruled and ordered that all debate is concluded at this time.

§ 6.27 A preferential motion to strike the enacting clause is not debatable after all time for debate on the bill and amendments thereto has expired.

On July 9, 1965,⁽³⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering the Voting Rights Act of 1965, H.R. 6400, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that a motion that the Committee rise with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken was not debatable, all time having expired on the bill and amendments thereto:

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired.

MR. GERALD R. FORD [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I was on the list, but the time has expired. I have a preferential motion [to strike the enacting clause].

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate is concluded even with a preferential motion. The agreement was that all debate would conclude at 7:20 p.m. The hour is now 7:20 p.m. There is no further time.

The question is on the committee amendment, as amended.

—After Closure of Debate on Amendments Only

§ 6.28 The preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken has been held not to be debatable when all time for debate has expired; however, where debate has been closed on all amendments to a bill, but not on the bill itself, a Member offering the preferential motion to report to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken is entitled to five minutes to debate that motion.

On Aug. 8, 1966,⁽⁴⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 14765, the Civil Rights Act of 1966, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that where all time had expired on the title being considered, a motion that the Committee rise and report back the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken was not debatable:

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman has expired. All time has expired.

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion [that the Committee rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken].

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on this title has been concluded, and that would include the preferential motion insofar as this title is concerned. The preferential motion will not obtain the gentleman time.

A different situation was presented on May 20, 1975,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6674 (the military procurement authorization), when time for debate on amendments, but not on the bill itself, had expired:

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto, and on further amendments to the bill, end in 20 minutes.

5. 121 CONG. REC. 15458, 15465, 15466, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois.

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman has expired. All time has expired.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, I only offer this motion in order to obtain time since I was not able to receive any time from the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) who offered what he claimed to be the Bauman amendment. I have read his amendment very carefully. It is not the same amendment which I offered to the National Science Foundation authorization bill because this new amendment covers subcontracts and contracts. . . .

MR. [THOMAS R.] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the preferential motion. . . .

If the offices of other Members are like mine, whenever they get one of these letters they begin to wonder, and people begin to ask the Members, just what it is we do to take care of these situations. If we pass this routine authorization bill for the Defense Department for $32 billion in the usual manner, we will have to answer to our constituents if we choose to be honest about it.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, I demand regular order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman speaks on the preferential motion.

The Chair would like to make the observation that any portion of the bill is open to debate.

Motion That Committee of the Whole Rise

§ 6.29 The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise is not debatable.

On Apr. 23, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ the proposition described above was demonstrated as follows:

MR. [STEWART B.] MCKINNEY [of Connecticut]: Mr. Chairman, I have serious feelings for the lives that have been involved in the past and are involved in the present. I move that the Committee do now rise, and for that purpose I demand a recorded vote.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The gentleman from Connecticut has made a preferential motion that the Committee do now rise.

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I oppose the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: I say to the gentleman from Pennsylvania that the motion is not debatable.

§ 6.30 A motion to rise in the Committee of the Whole is not debatable.

On Apr. 8, 1964,⁽⁹⁾ Chairman Phillip M. Landrum, of Georgia, advised Mr. Ben F. Jensen, of Iowa, who had moved that the Committee of the Whole rise, that the motion was not debatable:

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. Jensen].

MR. JENSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise out of further respect for one of the greatest Americans, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. Jensen].

MR. JENSEN: Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers. It is disgraceful to have this sort of thing going on while General MacArthur is lying here in the Capitol.

THE CHAIRMAN: The chair will inform the gentleman that a vote on his motion is being taken. He is not recognized to make a speech.

Motion To Limit Debate

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: . . . It is my intention at this time to seek a time limit on the debate if I can obtain the permission of the House.

Mr. Chairman, I move that the debate on the bill and all amendments thereto be concluded at 11:30.

MR. [PAUL S.] SARBANES [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ This motion is not a debatable question.

§ 6.32 A motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole is not subject to debate.

On May 18, 1977,⁽¹³⁾ during debate in the Committee of the Whole on the Federal Employees' Political Activities Act of 1977 (H.R. 10), Mr. William Clay, of Missouri, made the following motion:

MR. CLAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 9 o'clock.

MR. [DANIEL R.] GLICKMAN [of Kansas]: Mr. Chairman, under this type of motion is it true that no Member of the body is allowed to speak for or against the motion?

I would like to speak against the motion. Is that possible?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the motion is not debatable.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Clay).

§ 6.33 A motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole is not subject to debate.

During consideration of the foreign aid authorization bill (H.R. 12514) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 1, 1978,⁽¹⁵⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendments and all amendments thereto conclude at 4:30. . . .

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, is the motion now before the House debatable?

§ 6.34 Pursuant to section 21(b) of the Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act, a motion to limit debate on a concurrent resolution disapproving a Federal Trade Commission regulation in Committee of the Whole is privileged and is not debatable.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on May 26, 1982,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of a motion that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole to consider Senate Concurrent Resolution 60 (disapproving Federal Trade Commission regulations regarding the sale of used motor vehicles):

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the provisions of section 21(b) of Public Law 96-252, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 60) disapproving the Federal Trade Commission trade regulation rule relating to the sale of used motor vehicles; and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I move that general debate on the Senate concurrent resolution be limited to not to exceed 2 hours, 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Florio) and 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Lee). . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁸⁾ The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) made the motion that the debate be limited to 2 hours. . . .

The Chair will state that the motion to limit debate is not debatable.

MR. [TOBY] MOFFETT [of Connecticut]: I cannot yield, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: The motion is pending.

Parliamentarian's Note: A motion to resolve into Committee of the Whole for consideration of a concurrent resolution disapproving an agency action is highly privileged and may be offered before the third day on which a report thereon is available since, under an exception contained in Rule XI, the requirement of clause 2(l)(6) of that rule that committee reports be available to Members for three days is not applicable to a measure disapproving a decision by a government agency.⁽¹⁹⁾

Motion for Previous Question

§ 6.35 The motion for the previous question is not debatable.

ferred the resolution, moved the previous question. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, offered a substitute and answered that he had a "right to be heard." Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, held that the previous question was not debatable.

On Sept. 13, 1965,⁽¹⁾ Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, moved that the Journal be approved as read and moved the previous question on the motion. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, declared:

The Chair will state that the motion on the previous question is not debatable. The question is on ordering the previous question on the motion to approve the Journal.⁽²⁾

Points of Order and Inquiries After Demand for Previous Question

§ 6.36 Although incidental questions of order arising after a demand for the previous question are not debatable, the Chair may in his discretion permit a Member to address a point of order or may entertain a parliamentary inquiry.

On Mar. 27, 1926,⁽³⁾ Mr. John McDuffie, of Alabama, offered a motion to instruct conferees and the previous question was moved thereon. Mr. McDuffie then propounded a parliamentary inquiry and Speaker Pro Tempore Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, entertained the inquiry. Several points of order and inquiries intervened and the Speaker Pro Tempore allowed debate thereon. When Mr. Cassius C. Dowell, of Iowa, made the point of order that a parliamentary inquiry was not in order pending a vote on ordering the previous question, the Speaker Pro Tempore overruled the point of order.

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XVII clause 3, House Rules and Manual (1995) provides that incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

The rule does not however deprive the Chair of his discretionary power, under the precedents, over debate on a point of order or a parliamentary inquiry.⁽⁴⁾

40 Minutes Debate After Previous Question Ordered; Motion To Approve Journal

§ 6.37 Where the previous question is ordered on a debatable motion without debate, a Member may demand the right to debate; and the 40 minutes permitted under the rule is divided between the person demanding the time and some Member who represents the opposing view of the question.

On Sept. 13, 1965,⁽⁵⁾ the previous question was ordered, without debate, on the motion to approve the Journal, as read. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Durward G. Hall, of Missouri, that pursuant to Rule XXVII, clause 2,⁽⁶⁾ any Member could de-

6. Rule XXVII, clause 2, House Rules and Manual §907 (1995) provides that "whenever the previous question has been ordered on any proposition on which there has been no

mand the right to debate the motion since it was debatable and since the previous question had been ordered without debate. The Speaker recognized Mr. Hall for 20 minutes and then recognized a Member in opposition, Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, for 20 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: Although, as indicated above, the motion to approve the Journal as read is debatable, Rule I, clause 1⁽⁷⁾ provides for a nondebatable motion that the Journal be read, where the Speaker's approval of the Journal has not been agreed to.

Motion That Journal Be Read

§ 6.38 Under a former practice, a privileged motion, pursuant to Rule I, clause 1, that the Journal be read, could be made pending the Speaker's announcement of his approval of the Journal and prior to approval of the Journal by the House, and was not debatable; the present rule provides that it is in order to offer one motion that the Journal be read only if the Speaker's approval of the Journal is not agreed to, such motion to be determined without debate.⁽⁸⁾

On Apr. 23, 1975,⁽⁹⁾ after Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, announced his approval of the Journal, a Member moved that the Journal be read. The proceedings were as follows:

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Is there objection to dispensing with the reading of the Journal?

MR. JOHN L. BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I move, pursuant to the rules of the House, that the Journal be read.

THE SPEAKER: The question is, shall the Journal be read?

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. JOHN L. BURTON: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: Evidently a quorum is not present.

8. See the present Rule I, clause 1, House Rules and Manual §621 (1995).
9. 121 CONG. REC. 11482, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 16, nays 386, not voting 30. . . .

So the motion was rejected.

Parliamentarian's Note: If the Speaker's approval of the Journal is rejected, a motion to amend takes precedence of a motion to approve⁽¹⁰⁾ and a Member offering an amendment is recognized under the hour rule.⁽¹¹⁾

Motion To Recommit

§ 6.39 A simple motion to recommit may not be described by its proponent after the previous question has been ordered, since such description would amount to debate which is not then in order.

On July 2, 1958,⁽¹²⁾ the previous question was ordered on the final passage of H.R. 13192, making appropriations for mutual security and other related purposes. Mr. John Taber, of New York, offered a motion to recommit and Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that no debate was in order on the motion, the previous question having been ordered.

Parliamentarian's Note: The motion to recommit offered by Mr. Taber was a motion to recommit with instructions, but the Speaker ruled that the motion could not be described since the rules in effect in the 85th Congress and the precedents of the House prohibited any debate on any motion to recommit offered after the previous question had been ordered. In the 92d Congress, Rule XVI clause 4 was amended to allow 10 minutes' debate on a motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution with instructions offered after the ordering of the previous question.⁽¹³⁾

§ 6.40 The 10 minutes of debate on a motion to recommit with instructions applies only to bills and joint resolutions and is not in order on a motion to recommit a concurrent resolution with instructions.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BAUMAN: Am I not permitted time to discuss the motion?

instructions, the previous question having been ordered, is not debatable, clause 4 of Rule XVI only permitting 10 minutes of debate on a motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution with instructions.

On Oct. 13, 1978,⁽¹⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [JOHN J.] FLYNT [Jr., of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 1416) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 1416

Resolved, That Representative Edward R. Roybal be censured and that the House of Representatives adopt the Report of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct dated October 6, 1978, In the matter of Representative Edward R. Roybal. . . .

MR. FLYNT: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

MR. BOB WILSON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is the gentleman opposed to the resolution?

MR. BOB WILSON: I am.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

18. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Mr. Bob Wilson moves to recommit the resolution, House Resolution 1416, to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct with instructions to report the same back forthwith with the following amendment. Strike all after the resolving clause and insert:

That Edward R. Roybal be and he is hereby reprimanded.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

MR. [BRUCE F.] CAPUTO [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CAPUTO: Is time allowed for debate?

THE SPEAKER: The motion is not debatable.

The question is on the motion to recommit with instructions.

§ 6.42 Where the previous question has been ordered on a resolution prior to adoption of the rules, the motion to commit (with or without instructions) is not debatable, but is itself subject to the motion for the previous question to cut off amendment.

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 5) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 5

Resolved, That the Rules of the House of Representatives of the Ninety-sixth Congress, including all applicable provisions of law which constituted the Rules of the House at the end of the Ninety-sixth Congress, be, and they are hereby, adopted as the Rules of the House of Representatives of the Ninety-seventh Congress, with the following amendments included therein as part thereof, to wit:

(1) In Rule I, clause 4 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "The Speaker is authorized to sign enrolled bills whether or not the House is in session." . . .

MR. WRIGHT: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁰⁾ The question is on ordering the previous question.

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 216, nays 179, not voting 25, as follows: . . .

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to commit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Michel moves to commit the resolution (H. Res. 5) to a select committee to be appointed by the Speaker and to be composed of nine members, not more than five of whom shall be from the same political party, with instructions to report the same back to the House within 7 calendar days with the following amendment:

On page 10, after line 8, add the following:

(19) In rule X, clause 6(a) is amended by adding the following new subparagraph:

"(3) The membership of each committee and of each subcommittee, task force or subunit thereof, shall reflect the ratio of majority to minority party members of the House at the beginning of this Congress. . . .

MR. MICHEL (during the reading): Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the motion be considered as read and printed in the Record.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I will not object except to ask the distinguished Republican leader to explain the motion. . . .

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, as indicated, this motion is not a debatable motion. Most of my colleagues have been conversant with motions to recommit. This is a motion to commit to a select committee of nine members, five of whom would be Members of the majority party, to accomplish several goals.

Let me briefly—while I am no better reader than the reading clerk—outline for my colleagues what these things are. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to commit.

21. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

1. Bill Alexander (Ark.).

20. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion to commit. . . .

So the motion to commit was rejected.

Motion To Refer Resolution Offered as Question of Privileges of House

§ 6.43 When a resolution is offered as a question of privilege and is debatable under the hour rule, a motion to refer is in order before debate begins and is debatable for one hour under the control of the offeror of the motion.

On Mar. 4, 1985,⁽²⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 97 (to seat Richard D. McIntyre as a Member from Indiana) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege.

Mr. Speaker, I send to the desk a privileged resolution (H. Res. 97) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 97

Whereas a certificate of election to the House of Representatives always carries with it the presumption that the State election procedures have been timely, regular, and fairly implemented; and . . .

2. 131 CONG. REC. 4277, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

Whereas the presumption of the validity and regularity of the certificate of election held by Richard D. McIntyre has not been overcome by any substantial evidence or claim of irregularity: Now, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker is hereby authorized and directed to administer the oath of office to the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Richard D. McIntyre.

Resolved, That the question of the final right of Mr. McIntyre to a seat in the 99th Congress is referred to the Committee on House Administration.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾ The gentleman states a valid question of privilege.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Alexander).

MR. [WILLIAM V.] ALEXANDER [of Arkansas]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the resolution be referred to the Committee on House Administration.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is recognized.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, for what period of time am I recognized?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is entitled to 1 hour under that motion, during which time the gentleman from Arkansas controls the time.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, does the minority wish time on the motion?

MR. MICHEL: Yes.

3. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, I would yield 30 minutes for purposes of debate only, to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

§ 6.44 The motion to refer a resolution offered as a question of the privileges of the House, which is in order pending the demand for the previous question or after the previous question is ordered, is not subject to debate; and a Member offering the motion need not qualify as stating his opposition to the resolution since it has not been reported from committee but has been offered as an original proposition on the floor of the House.

On Apr. 28, 1983,⁽⁴⁾ the House had under consideration a resolution,⁽⁵⁾ presented as a question of the privileges of the House, of refusal to comply with a subpoena duces tecum issued by a U.S. District Court served on the Clerk for the production of records in his custody (documents of a select committee from a prior Congress).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ The gentleman from Washington (Mr. Foley) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

6. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington: . . . Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

MR. [F. JAMES] SENSENBRENNER [Jr., of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to refer.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Sensenbrenner moves to refer the resolution to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to refer.

There was no objection.

[The motion to refer was rejected.]

Amendments to Title of Bill After Bill Is Passed

§ 6.45 Amendments to the title of a bill are not in order until after passage of the bill, and are then voted upon without debate, under Rule XIX.

The principle described above was demonstrated on Dec. 2, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of the Intergovernmental Emergency Assistance Act (H.R. 10481) in the Committee of the Whole:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. J. William Stanton).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Bauman) there were—ayes 71, nays 31.

7. 121 CONG. REC. 38193, 38194, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.
8. James G. O'Hara (Mich.).

So the amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

MR. J. WILLIAM STANTON [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a technical amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Ohio that inasmuch as the amendment in the nature of a substitute has been agreed to, no further amendments are in order at this time. The amendment sent to the desk by the gentleman from Ohio would be in order in the House after the committee has risen. . . .

Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. O'Hara, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 10481) to authorize emergency guarantees of obligations of States and political subdivisions thereof; to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to provide that income from certain obligations guaranteed by the United States shall be subject to taxation; to amend the Bankruptcy Act; and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 865, he reported the bill back to the House with an amendment adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER: ⁽⁹⁾ Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 213, nays 203, answered “present” 2, not voting 16, as follows: . . .

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MR. J. WILLIAM STANTON: Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment to the title.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. J. William Stanton to the title: Amend the title so as to read: “A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to provide seasonal financing for the City of New York.”

The title amendment was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

§ 6.46 Committee amendments to the title of a bill are automatically reported by the Clerk after passage of the bill, but an amendment to a committee amendment to the title may be offered from the floor and is voted on without debate under Rule XIX.

On Sept. 23, 1977,⁽¹⁰⁾ the House having under consideration the Age Discrimination In Employment Act Amendments (H.R. 5383), the following proceedings occurred:

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ The Clerk will report the title amendment to the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

Title amendment: Amend the title so as to read: "A bill to amend the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 to provide that Federal employees who are 40 years of age or older shall be protected by the provisions of section 15 of such Act, and for other purposes."

MR. [AUGUSTUS F.] HAWKINS [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment to the title amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hawkins to the title amendment: Page 7, strike out the matter following line 5 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

Amend the title so as to read as follows: "A bill to amend the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 to extend the age group of employees who are protected by the provisions of such Act, and for other purposes."

11. Richard Nolan (Minn.).

The amendment to the title amendment was agreed to.

The title amendment, as amended, was agreed to.

§ 6.47 Amendments to the title of a bill are presented after the bill is passed and are not debatable.

On Dec. 11, 1947,⁽¹²⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, ruled that an amendment to the title of a bill (or other measure), properly offered after the bill is passed, is not debatable:

MR. [CHARLES J.] KERSTEN of Wisconsin: Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment to change the title of the bill, which I understand is proper.

THE SPEAKER: That will come after the passage of the bill.

MR. KERSTEN: I should like to inform the membership that this is an important amendment and I should like to speak on it.

THE SPEAKER: It is not debatable.⁽¹³⁾

Motion To Reconsider

§ 6.48 The motion to reconsider is not debatable unless

12. 93 CONG. REC. 11307, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

13. See also 76 CONG. REC. 867, 72d Cong. 2d Sess., Dec. 21, 1932; 75 CONG. REC. 12097, 72d Cong. 1st Sess., June 6, 1932.

Rule XIX House Rules and Manual §822 (1995) furnishes the basis for the Speaker's ruling: "Amendments to the title of a bill or resolution shall not be in order until after its passage, and shall be decided without debate."

the question proposed to be reconsidered is debatable.

On Sept. 13, 1965,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House adopted, without debate, House Resolution 506, which was pending in the Committee on Rules and was called up under the “21-day rule” in effect in the 89th Congress; the resolution made in order the consideration of H.R. 10065, the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1965. Mr. William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, who had voted in the affirmative on the adoption of the resolution, moved to reconsider the vote whereby the resolution was adopted.

In response to parliamentary inquiries, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that the motion to reconsider, under the circumstances, would be debatable:

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. [MELVIN R.] LAIRD [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, on the resolution just passed no one was allowed to debate that resolution on behalf of the minority or the majority. If this motion to table, offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. Albert] is defeated, then there will be time to debate the resolution just passed.

The question of reconsideration is debatable, and it can be debated on the merits of the legislation which has not been debated by the House.

14. 111 CONG. REC. 23608, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER: What part of the gentleman's statement does he make as a parliamentary inquiry?

MR. LAIRD: Mr. Speaker, if the motion to table is defeated, the motion to reconsider will give us an opportunity to debate the question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: Under the present circumstances, the motion to reconsider would be debatable.

MR. LAIRD: I thank the Speaker.

MR. MCCULLOCH: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. MCCULLOCH: Mr. Speaker, what time would be allowed to debate the question and how would it be divided?

THE SPEAKER: It will be under the 1-hour rule and the gentleman from Ohio would be entitled to the control of the entire hour.⁽¹⁵⁾

§ 6.49 A motion to reconsider is not debatable where the question proposed to be reconsidered was not debatable; and where the previous question had been ordered on a debatable motion before the vote on adoption, the motion to reconsider the motion is not debatable.

On May 29, 1980,⁽¹⁶⁾ proceedings occurred pertaining to 15. For debate on the motion to reconsider, see House Rules and Manual § 819 (1995).

House Resolution 660, in the matter of Representative Charles H. Wilson. A motion was made to reconsider a motion to postpone that had been defeated.

MR. [ALLEN E.] ERTEL [of Pennsylvania]: . . . Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote to postpone. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, does a motion to reconsider admit of debate?

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ There is no debate on this reconsideration motion, since the previous question was ordered on the motion to postpone.

Parliamentarian's Note: The above precedent represents the modern practice. An earlier precedent⁽¹⁸⁾ had considered the previous question to be "exhausted by the vote on the motion on which it is ordered, and consequently a motion to reconsider the vote on the main question is debatable." Under current rulings, the motion to reconsider is not debatable unless the previous question is also reconsidered.⁽¹⁹⁾

After Adoption of Motion To Reconsider

a motion to reconsider a vote on a question on which the previous question has been ordered, the question to be reconsidered is neither debatable nor amendable (unless the vote on the previous question is separately reconsidered).

The following proceedings occurred in the House on July 2, 1980,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of H.R. 7452 (supplemental appropriations and rescission bill for fiscal year 1980):

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long) has been divided at the request of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman).

The question is, Will the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 95? . . .

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 198, nays 196, not voting 39, as follows: . . .

So the House receded from its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 95. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is, will the House concur in Senate amendment No. 95 with an amendment? . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

20. 126 CONG. REC. 18348, 18349, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

1. Paul Simon (Ill.).

Mr. Whitten moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 118 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed by said amendment, insert: . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) for the warning that he gave to this House a few minutes ago regarding the Long amendment on foreign aid. . . .

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, could there be a reconsideration of the vote on which the Long amendment passed?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Such a motion would be in order at the proper time.

MRS. [MARGARET M.] HECKLER [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote by which—and I voted on the prevailing side—the vote on the Long amendment.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That motion is not in order to be voted on at this time, since another motion is pending. . . .

MRS. HECKLER: I would like to know, then, what time such a motion would be in order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: When there is no other motion pending before the House, that motion would be in order. . . .

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, I ask that the amendment be withdrawn.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Mississippi withdraws his motion. . . .

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Then is it my understanding that a motion to reconsider the past amendment is in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: There is no motion pending.

MRS. HECKLER: Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion to concur with the amendment of Mr. Long was passed by the House. I think great confusion surrounded that amendment and the position of the House, and I was one Member who was misled by it. I would like to move reconsideration, and I voted on the prevailing side.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentlewoman from Massachusetts voted on the prevailing side.

The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mrs. Heckler moves to reconsider the vote by which the motion to concur with an amendment by Mr. Long of Maryland was passed by the House.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

I will ask, is the motion to reconsider debatable?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the previous question had been ordered on the entire motion to recede and concur with an amendment, and so the motion is not debatable. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Could the Chair describe on what motion the next vote will come.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: We are about to vote on the motion of the gentlewoman from Massachusetts (Mrs. Heckler) on the motion to reconsider.

MR. BAUMAN: To reconsider what, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: To reconsider the motion to concur with an amendment to Senate amendment 95 offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long).

MR. BAUMAN: If that motion prevails, what will be the situation as far as the Long amendment?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The House will vote immediately on the Long motion.

MR. BAUMAN: Will that amendment be debatable at that time?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It will not. The previous question has been ordered.

MR. BAUMAN: So the vote would occur first on reconsideration then on the Long amendment?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is correct. . . .

MR. [MIKE] McCORMACK [of Washington]: In the event that this motion prevails, will it be in order to amend the Long amendment to reduce the amount of money equivalent?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It would not be. The House would then vote on the Long amendment.

MR. McCORMACK: A further parliamentary inquiry.

Would it then be in order to submit a substitute for the Long amendment reducing it by the amount necessary to pass the revenue-sharing measure?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: If the Long motion is defeated, the Senate amendment is still before the House for disposition by motion.

MR. McCORMACK: I thank the Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion to reconsider offered by the gentlewoman from Massachusetts (Mrs. Heckler).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 243, nays 124, answered “present” 1, not voting 65, as follows: . . .

Parliamentarian's Note: Under the earlier practice, when a vote taken under operation of the previous question was reconsidered, the main question stood divested of the previous question, and could be debated and amended without reconsideration of the motion for the previous question.⁽²⁾ Under the modern practice, however, the question being reconsidered should not be debatable nor amendable unless the House votes separately to reconsider the vote whereby the previous question was ordered. Thus, if the reason for reconsideration is merely to permit the House to vote again immediately without further debate, the modern practice would permit this, but if further debate or amendment were desired, the House would first have to reconsider the ordering of the previous question. (As indicated in the above proceedings, rejection, upon reconsideration, of a motion to concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment would permit the offering of another debatable motion to dispose of the Senate amendment.)

2. See 5 Cannon's Precedents §§ 5491, 5492, 5700.

§ 6.51 The House having voted to reconsider a motion on which the previous question had been ordered when first voted upon, no debate on the motion is in order except by unanimous consent.

During consideration of House Resolution 660 (in the matter of Representative Charles H. Wilson) in the House on May 29, 1980,⁽³⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ALLEN E.] ERTEL [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I was in the House when the previous speaker . . . evidently brought in material which was not in the record before the committee, which in my judgment means there has been surprise to the defense in this case in the fact that the gentleman brought up evidence, which is a document from the State of California. . . .

I would ask the Chair, is there any procedure where I can make a motion, so that we can handle this in a fair and expeditious manner and give him the opportunity to respond to that and to get the evidence from California? . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ The only motion available that the Chair would know of, unless the gentleman from Florida would yield, would be the motion for reconsideration, if the gentleman voted on the prevailing side of the motion of the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot). That was a motion to postpone to a day certain, which was defeated.

MR. ERTEL: . . . Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote to postpone. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, does a motion to reconsider admit of debate?

THE SPEAKER: There is no debate on this reconsideration motion, since the previous question was ordered on the motion to postpone. . . .

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Ertel moves that the House reconsider the vote on the motion to postpone to a day certain. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by Mr. Ertel to reconsider the vote on the motion offered by Mr. Rousselot to postpone consideration. . . .

So the motion to reconsider the vote on the motion to postpone was agreed to. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot) to postpone to June 10.

MR. [WYCHE] FOWLER [Jr., of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask unanimous consent from this body for 10 minutes, to be equally divided between the opposition and the majority party, to debate the motion now before us by the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot). . . .

3. 126 CONG. REC. 12663-65, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

4. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the 10 minutes' debate?

The Chair hears none.

The gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot) is recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Fowler) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: The above precedent represents the modern practice. Earlier precedents⁽⁵⁾ supported the view that "when a vote taken under the operation of the previous question is reconsidered, the main question stands divested of the previous question, and may be debated and amended without reconsideration of the motion for the previous question." In current practice, separate reconsideration of the motion for the previous question would be required for debate and amendment.

Motion or Resolution To Adjourn

§ 6.52 A concurrent resolution providing for adjournment of Congress to a day certain is not debatable, but the Speaker may in his discretion permit some discussion where no point of order is raised.

On Aug. 28, 1967,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, called up

5. See 5 Hinds' Precedents §§ 5491, 5492.

6. 113 CONG. REC. 24201, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

House Concurrent Resolution 497, providing for an adjournment to a day certain of the two Houses of Congress. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled that the resolution was not debatable, but permitted Mr. Albert to yield to another Member for a brief statement:

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I move to strike the last word.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that this is not a debatable resolution.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. ALBERT: I yield to the gentleman from Iowa for the purpose of making a brief statement.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the distinguished majority leader why the adjournment resolution was not made effective as of the first of this week, and why the recess was not planned to take in this week as well as next week?

MR. ALBERT: We have discussed this matter with the leadership on both sides, and it was determined it would be impractical to do so. . . .

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

§ 6.53 A privileged concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment of the House for more than three days to a day certain is not subject to debate, except by unanimous consent.

On Aug. 16, 1978,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 696) and ask for its immediate consideration and pending that, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for 1 minute.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

MR. WRIGHT: Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this concurrent resolution is to permit adjournment for our August district work period. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the concurrent resolution.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution as follows:

H. CON. RES. 696

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the House adjourns on Thursday, August 17, 1978, it stands adjourned until 12 o'clock meridian on Wednesday, September 6, 1978.

§ 6.54 A concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment of more than three days for the House and Senate is not debatable, but the Chair may in his discretion recognize for debate under a reservation of the right to object (to adoption of the resolution).

On Aug. 27, 1980,⁽⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House during consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 118:

The Speaker laid before the House the privileged Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 118) providing for a recess of the Senate from August 27 to September 3, 1980, and an adjournment of the House from August 28 to September 3, 1980.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate concurrent resolution.

The Clerk read the Senate concurrent resolution, as follows:

S. CON. RES. 118

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That when the Senate completes its business on Wednesday, August 27, 1980, it stand in recess until 10 o'clock a.m. on Wednesday, September 3, 1980, and that when the House completes its business on Thursday, August 28, 1980, it stand adjourned until 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, September 3, 1980.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ Without objection, the Senate concurrent resolution is concurred in.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, are we permitted to debate this matter?

THE SPEAKER: No, it is not debatable.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I wondered whether any Member intended to explain the necessity for the recess, in view of the fact there has been some objection quite obviously from the minority about recessing at all because of the announced lameduck session. . . .

10. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that this is a long-announced recess, since the beginning of the year, and Members from both sides of the aisle expect to be home, of course, and in their district through Labor Day. . . .

The leadership, I am sure, was in agreement with this earlier in the year when the schedule for the year was printed.

The question comes on adoption of the Senate concurrent resolution. Without objection—

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I would further reserve the right to object, unless the Chair wants to put the question.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would like to put the question unless the gentleman desires to say something further. Does the gentleman reserve the right to object to adopting the concurrent resolution by unanimous consent?

MR. BAUMAN: I reserve the right to object, Mr. Speaker.

I am only saying, Mr. Speaker, that the legislative schedule has been changed before. We have been told that we will recess on October 4, as opposed to staying and completing our work, and then we will come back into further session after the election. If that kind of a major change can be made, it seems to me there is still time for us to consider the possibility of staying in session, as has been suggested by the minority leader, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Rhodes).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will put the question, and the Members, if they desire to vote on it, may vote as they see fit.

MR. BAUMAN: I thank the Chair and I urge a vote against the recess so that we can stay here and finish our business and avoid a lameduck session.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the Senate concurrent resolution.

—Sine Die Adjournment

§ 6.55 While a concurrent resolution providing for sine die adjournment is not debatable, a Member may, by unanimous consent, be permitted to proceed for one minute during its consideration.

On Dec. 20, 1974,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, recognized the Majority Leader, Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., of Massachusetts, to offer a privileged concurrent resolution:

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 697) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 697

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the two Houses adjourn on Friday, December 20, 1974, they shall stand adjourned sine die or until 12:00 noon on the second day after their respective Members are notified to reassemble in accordance with Section 2 of this resolution, whichever event first occurs.

11. 120 CONG. REC. 41815, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

Sec. 2. The Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate or the President pro tempore of the Senate shall notify the Members of the House and the Senate, respectively, to reassemble whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it, or whenever the majority leader of the Senate and the majority leader of the House, acting jointly, or the minority leader of the Senate and the minority [leader] of the House, acting jointly, file a written request with the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House that the Congress reassemble for the consideration of legislation.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the concurrent resolution.

The question was taken and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were refused.

(Mr. Ashbrook asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

§ 6.56 A concurrent resolution providing for adjournment sine die is not debatable except by unanimous consent.

On occasion, unanimous consent has been given for debate on a concurrent resolution providing for adjournment sine die. Thus, on

Oct. 11, 1984,⁽¹²⁾ debate was allowed on House Concurrent Resolution 377:

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 377), and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 377

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That the two Houses of Congress shall adjourn on Thursday, October 11, 1984, and that when they adjourn on said day, they stand adjourned sine die.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ Without objection, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright) is recognized.

There was no objection.

MR. WRIGHT: Mr. Speaker, the resolution is quite clear.

§ 6.57 A concurrent resolution providing for a sine die adjournment is not subject to debate.

On July 30, 1954,⁽¹⁴⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that House Concurrent Resolution 266, providing for the adjournment sine die of the Congress on July 31, 1945, was not debatable.⁽¹⁵⁾

§ 6.58 Although a concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment sine die is not debatable, debate has been permitted where no point of order was raised and where the legislative situation warranted some discussion of the resolution.

On Oct. 14, 1968,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, called up Senate Concurrent Resolution 83, providing for an adjournment sine die of the Congress on Oct. 11, 1968. Mr. Albert moved to amend the resolution by striking out the date and inserting "October 14, 1968" and then yielded five minutes' debate, without objection, to Mr. James G. O'Hara, of Michigan. Mr. O'Hara, who had previously expressed his intention to prevent the adjournment of Congress until the Senate took action on a legislative proposal permitting network TV debates among the major Presidential candidates, announced he would no longer persist in his efforts due to the likelihood of a failure of a quorum in the Senate. Mr. Albert resumed the floor to express support for Mr. O'Hara's statement and then moved the previous question on the amendment to the adjournment resolution.

Parliamentarian's Note: Debate may be conducted on the subject of adjournment resolutions by unanimous consent under the "one-minute" rule prior to offering of the resolution.

Return of Bill to Senate

§ 6.59 A request of the Senate for the return of a bill or resolution is privileged, and the Chair immediately puts the question on the request without debate, but debate may proceed thereon under a reservation of the right to object to agreeing to the request by unanimous consent when put in that form by the Chair.

On Aug. 3, 1977,⁽¹⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

The Speaker pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the Senate:

17. 123 CONG. REC. 26538, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

Ordered, That the Secretary be directed to request the House of Representatives to return to the Senate the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 317) entitled "Concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment of the House from August 5 until September 7, 1977 and an adjournment of the Senate from August 6 until September 7, 1977."

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ Without objection, the request is agreed to.

MR. [ABRAHAM] KAZEN [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to object.

I want to know what that last resolution was. . . .

Mr. Speaker, what is the effect? Who is going to explain it or did the Chair just lay it out? . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. KAZEN: I yield to the distinguished Speaker.

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, may I say with regard to the concurrent resolution, as I understand, we have received a message from the Senate regarding the concurrent resolution. As the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) knows, we passed a concurrent resolution saying that we would conclude business on Friday night, and the request of the Senate is now to return the concurrent resolution. . . .

MR. KAZEN: Mr. Speaker, I would inquire whether the Senate concurred in the concurrent resolution?

MR. O'NEILL: The Senate did and then there was a motion to reconsider within the proper time in the Senate.

The Senate had sent the papers over before the reconsideration had been moved. In view of the fact that the reconsideration has been moved, the House has always proceeded in this fashion, and on that basis we will send the concurrent resolution back.

MR. KAZEN: Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts, and withdraw my reservation of objection.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection the request is agreed to.

There was no objection.

§ 6.60 Where privileged resolutions of the Senate requesting the return of a bill are laid before the House, a motion requesting compliance with such return is not debatable.

On June 28, 1932,⁽¹⁹⁾ the following privileged order messaged from the Senate was laid before the House:

Ordered, That the House of Representatives be requested to return to the Senate the bill (H.R. 11267) entitled "An act making appropriations for the legislative branch of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, and for other purposes", together with all accompanying papers.

Mr. Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, moved that the request of the Senate be complied with, and on that motion he moved the previous question, which was ordered by the House.

In response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. John J. Cochran, of Missouri, Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, ruled that the motion to comply with the Senate request was not debatable.

Nondebatable Questions in Senate—Motion To Lay Appeal on the Table

§ 6.61 In the Senate a motion to lay an appeal on the table is not debatable.

On Aug. 2, 1948,⁽²⁰⁾ President Pro Tempore Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, ruled that a motion to lay on the table a pending appeal from a decision of the Chair was not debatable:

MR. [KENNETH S.] WHERRY [of Nebraska]: Mr. President, I propound the following inquiry: If a motion is made to lay the appeal on the table, is that motion subject to debate?

THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE: No motion to table is ever subject to debate.

MR. WHERRY: Certainly.

If the motion to table the appeal is agreed to, then, of course, the result is to sustain the present occupant of the chair in his decision.

THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE: That is correct.⁽¹⁾

—Motion Requesting House To Return Engrossed Bill

§ 6.62 A motion in the Senate requesting the House to return an engrossed bill is not debatable.

On Aug. 26, 1963,⁽²⁾ Senator Michael J. Mansfield, of Montana, entered a motion in the Senate to reconsider the votes by which S. 1914 and S. 1942 were passed. He also entered a motion that the House of Representatives be requested to return the papers (the engrossed bills) on those bills to the Senate. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, President Pro Tempore Carl Hayden, of Arizona, stated that the motion for return was not debatable.

—Concurrent Resolution Providing for Adjournment to Day Certain

§ 6.63 A concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment to a day certain is not debatable in the Senate.

On Aug. 7, 1948,⁽³⁾ Senator Kenneth S. Wherry, of Nebraska, called up Senate Concurrent Resolution 63, providing for an adjournment to a day certain. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Presiding Officer stated that the resolution was not debatable.

Senate Procedure, 421-24, S. Doc. No. 93-21, 93d Cong. (1974).

—Concurrent Resolution Providing for Three-week Adjournment of House

§ 6.64 A resolution providing for a three-week adjournment of the House is not debatable in the Senate, nor is an appeal from the Vice President's decision to that effect debatable.

On Aug. 24, 1949,⁽⁴⁾ House Concurrent Resolution 129 was laid before the Senate. The resolution provided for a three-week adjournment of the House. In response to parliamentary inquiries, Vice President Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, stated that the resolution was not debatable except by unanimous consent, and that such a unanimous-consent request would not be debatable. He also stated that an appeal from the Chair's decision on that point would not be debatable. The Senate adopted the resolution (and rejected an amendment thereto).

Debate Not in Order in Senate in Absence of Quorum

§ 6.65 No debate is in order in the Senate in the absence of a quorum.

On July 28, 1962,⁽⁵⁾ the Senate met at 10 o'clock a.m., after having recessed the prior evening without a quorum. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas, stated that no business could be transacted without a quorum present. Following a roll call disclosing the lack of a quorum, a motion was agreed to directing the Sergeant at Arms to request the attendance of absent Senators.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, of Minnesota, attempted to debate a proposed motion to invoke the rule of arrest, and the Vice President advised him that no debate was in order.

§ 7. Opening and Closing Debate; Right To Close

Rule XIV clause 3 of the House rules provides:

The Member reporting the measure under consideration from a committee may open and close, where general debate has been had thereon; and if it shall extend beyond one day, he shall be entitled to one hour to close, notwithstanding he may have used an hour in opening.⁽⁶⁾

5. 108 CONG. REC. 14952, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

The opening and closing of debate on any proposition depends on the procedure under which the proposition was brought to the floor and who was recognized to move or offer the proposition. For example, a Member bringing a matter before the House, and recognized for that purpose, is entitled to control one hour of debate under the rules of the House, and to close debate on his proposition.⁽⁷⁾ Generally, the proponent of a bill (the Member who calls it up) or the mover of a motion have the right to open and close debate thereon.⁽⁸⁾

6. House Rules and Manual §759 (1995). See also Rule XIV clause 6, House Rules and Manual §762 (1995) (mover, proposer, or introducer entitled to speak in reply to pending matter).

In some instances, one-third of the debate time on a proposition may be allotted to a Member opposed to the proposition if the majority and minority party Members who would ordinarily divide the time are both supporters of the proposition. The right to close debate where the time has been divided three ways is discussed in §26, infra.

7. See §68, infra, for the hour rule in House debate. See also, e.g., §§8 et seq., infra, discussing recognition, and §§24 et seq., infra, discussing control and distribution of time.
8. See §7.1, infra. The right to close twenty-minute debate on a motion to

Where the Committee of the Whole considers a bill or resolution pursuant to a resolution from the Committee on Rules, the manager designated in the resolution opens and closes general debate.⁽⁹⁾ In one instance pursuant to a special rule reported from the Committee on Rules providing for immediate consideration of an unreported measure in Committee of the Whole and dividing control of general debate between a Member supporting and a Member opposing the measure, the Chair recognized the opponent (the chairman of the discharged committee) to close general debate, reasoning that the proponent had no responsibility as “manager” of the bill.⁽¹⁰⁾ The better practice is to permit the proponent of the bill, rather than the chairman of the discharged committee, to close debate. It would seem proper that the proponent of the measure be permitted to close general debate, and not an opponent, since the House by discharging the com-discharge a committee is reserved to the proponents of the motion. See 7 Cannon’s Precedents §1010a.

9. See §7.2, infra. The proponent of the question, the first Member named in the Committee on Rules resolution, opens and closes debate (see §7.3, infra).
10. See 128 CONG. REC. 27202, 97th Cong. 2d Sess., Oct. 1, 1982.

mittee has agreed to permit consideration of the measure, even though the proponent has no “management” responsibility to make any motions.

The proponent of a proposition may cut off debate, even before the expiration of allotted time, by moving the previous question in the House⁽¹¹⁾ and in the House as in the Committee of the Whole,⁽¹²⁾ or by moving that the Committee rise or to limit five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole.⁽¹³⁾

Resolutions from the Committee on Rules providing for the consideration of a bill in the Committee of the Whole commonly provide that when the Committee rises the previous question shall be ordered, thereby precluding further debate in the House.⁽¹⁴⁾

11. See §7.8, infra. See, generally, §72, infra, discussing the closing of debate in the House.

12. See §7.6, infra.

13. See §7.12, infra. See, generally, §78, infra, for discussion of closing or limiting debate in Committee of the Whole.

Under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole (or in the House as in the Committee of the Whole), recognition for debate is within the discretion of the Chair. A Member recognized to offer an amendment controls five minutes of debate thereon, and then another Member in opposition thereto is recognized.

14. See §7.9, infra.

Where the pending text includes a provision recommended by a committee of sequential referral, a member of that committee is entitled to close debate against an amendment thereto.⁽¹⁵⁾

By recommending an amendment in the nature of a substitute, a reporting committee implicitly opposes a further amendment that could have been included therein, such that a committee representative who controls time in opposition may close debate thereon.⁽¹⁶⁾

Under certain circumstances, however, the proponent of the amendment may close debate, as where he represents the reporting committee position;⁽¹⁷⁾ where no committee representative opposes the amendment;⁽¹⁸⁾ where no representative from the reporting committee opposes an amendment to a multi-jurisdictional bill;⁽¹⁹⁾ or where an unreported measure is being considered and there is no “manager” under the terms of a special rule.⁽²⁰⁾

Member, committee chairman, or ranking committee member is recognized to open general debate in the Committee of the Whole.

On Apr. 26, 1955,⁽⁵⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 214 for the consideration of a bill in the Committee of the Whole:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 5645) to authorize the Atomic Energy Commission to construct a modern office building in or near the District of Columbia to serve as its principal office, and all points of order against said bill are hereby waived. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to recognition to open and control debate, since the chairman and ranking minority member so designated were absent. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated as follows:

The Chair thinks the Chair has a rather wide range of latitude here. The Chair could hold and some future Speaker might hold that since the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee are not here there could be no general debate because there was nobody here to control it, but the present occupant of the chair is not going to rule in such a restricted way.

Manager of Bill May Close General Debate

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DICKINSON: Just for clarification purposes, if I might, Mr. Chairman, am I correct in my belief that the proponents will have the closing debate on this matter?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Dickinson) that the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Aspin) will close debate.

MR. DICKINSON: He is controlling the time and if he has yielded part of that time to me, he would still determine who would close the debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

Proponents of Bill Close Debate

§ 7.5 The proponents of a bill before the House have the right to close debate thereon and opponents have no right to be recognized immediately prior to the Member closing debate.

Tempore Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that the proponents of a bill in the House had the right to close debate:

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Speaker, we have two speakers on our side in opposition to this important measure. I am informed there are two speakers on the other side. I recognize, of course, that the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs has the right to close the debate, but I insist on the right of the minority that the opposition should be given the next to the last speech on this important measure.

My inquiry is, if I have not correctly stated the situation?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state in response to the parliamentary inquiry that under the rules of the House the gentleman from New York [Mr. Bloom], chairman of the committee in charge of the bill, is entitled to close the debate. With reference to recognition of Members prior to close of debate, of course, that is under the control of the gentleman in charge of the time.

MR. [EARL C.] MICHENER [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHENER: With all due respect to the Speaker pro tempore, may I call his attention to the fact that if his ruling is construed literally it will permit the chairman of the committee controlling the time—

MR. [SOL] BLOOM [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I shall yield to the gentleman from New York, and will put on a speaker, then he can put on a speaker.

MR. MICHENER: May I finish my parliamentary inquiry?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is entitled to complete his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. MICHENER: Reverting to my question before I was interrupted by the gentleman from New York: If the chairman of the committee controlling the time is permitted to close the debate and is not limited to one speaker in closing the debate, would it not be possible for such a chairman to open the debate, for instance, and then compel the opposition to use all of its time before the proponent used any more time?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. MICHENER: That right to close debate means one speech. If it meant two, it might mean three, and if it meant three it might mean four. It might be within the power of the proponents of any bill to compel the other side to put on all their speakers, then wind up with only the speeches of the proponents. Such a precedent should not be set. Am I correct?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct in the statement that the proponents of the bill have the right to close debate. That has been the holding of the Chair and it is in line with an unbroken line of precedents of the House. The Chair has no way of knowing how many different Members the gentlemen in charge of the time on the two sides may desire to yield time to. The Chair holds that the proponents of the bill are entitled to close debate.⁽¹²⁾

Previous Question as Closing Debate

§ 7.6 Debate in the House as in the Committee of the Whole may be closed by ordering the previous question.

On July 28, 1969,⁽¹³⁾ a bill (H.R. 9553) amending the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act was being considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. John Dowdy, of Texas, moved the previous question on the bill and Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered parliamentary inquiries on the effect of ordering the previous question:

MR. [PHILLIP] BURTON of California: Mr. Speaker, is the motion before us to close debate or will there be a vote subsequent to the pending motion so that those of us who want a rollcall on this matter can obtain a rollcall vote.

THE SPEAKER: The pending question is on ordering the previous question.

MR. BURTON of California: This is to close debate and not on the passage of the matter? Will this be our last opportunity to receive a rollcall on this matter?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the question on the passage of the bill will come later, if the previous question is ordered.

The question is on ordering the previous question.

Member Controlling Debate May Move Previous Question

§ 7.7 The Member controlling debate on a proposition in the House may move the previous question and cut off further debate.

On Mar. 11, 1941,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 131 under the terms of a unanimous-consent request providing two hours of debate and dividing control of debate between Mr. Sol Bloom, of New York, and Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York. Mr. Bloom moved the previous question prior to the expiration of the two hours' time. Mr. Martin J. Kennedy, of New York, then objected on the ground that the unanimous-consent agreement was not being complied with in that the previous question had been demanded prematurely. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that the previous question could be moved at any time in the discretion of the Members controlling debate on the resolution.

the House may close debate by moving the previous question.

On Jan. 4, 1965,⁽¹⁵⁾ at the convening of the 89th Congress and before the adoption of rules, Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, offered a resolution and after some debate moved the previous question to close debate:

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 2) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. RES. 2

Resolved, That the Speaker is hereby authorized and directed to administer the oath of office to the gentleman from New York, Mr. Richard L. Ottinger.

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, again this is a resolution involving a Member whose certificate of election in due form is on file in the Office of the Clerk. I ask for the adoption of the resolution.

MR. [JAMES C.] CLEVELAND [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

MR. ALBERT: I yield for a parliamentary inquiry.

MR. CLEVELAND: If this resolution is adopted, will it be impossible for me to offer my own resolution pertaining to the same subject matter, either as an amendment or a substitute?

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁶⁾ If the resolution is agreed to, it will not be in order for the gentleman to offer a substitute resolution or an amendment, particularly if the previous question is ordered.

MR. CLEVELAND: Is it now in order, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: Not unless the gentleman from Oklahoma yields to the gentleman for that purpose.

MR. CLEVELAND: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. ALBERT: The gentleman from Oklahoma does not yield for that purpose.

MR. CLEVELAND: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. Will there be any opportunity to discuss the merits of this case prior to a vote on the resolution offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Oklahoma has control over the time. Not unless the gentleman from Oklahoma yields for that purpose.

MR. CLEVELAND: Will the gentleman from Oklahoma yield for that purpose?

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, I yield for a question and a very brief statement. I do not yield for a speech.

MR. CLEVELAND: May I inquire if the gentleman will yield so that I may ask for unanimous consent that certain remarks of mine pertaining to this matter be incorporated in the Record?

MR. ALBERT: No. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

MR. [THOMAS G.] ABERNETHY [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman from Oklahoma yield to the gentleman from Mississippi for the purpose of submitting a parliamentary inquiry?

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

Previous Question Considered as Ordered

§ 7.9 When the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole reports a bill to the House pursuant to a resolution providing that the previous question shall be considered as ordered, further debate or amendments in the House are thereby precluded.

On Aug. 31, 1960,⁽¹⁷⁾ there being no amendments offered to S. 2917 under consideration in the Committee of the Whole, the Committee rose and the bill was reported back to the House. Pursuant to the resolution under which the bill was being considered, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the previous question was ordered. In response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. H. Carl Andersen, of Minnesota, the Speaker stated that the previous question having been ordered by the resolution, no further debate or amendments were in order.

Previous Question Vacated

§ 7.10 The House by unanimous consent vacated the ordering of the previous question in order to permit further debate.

On Aug. 26, 1960,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House was considering Senate amendments to H.R. 12619, making appropriations for the mutual security program. Mr. Silvio O. Conte, of Massachusetts, arose to discuss a Senate amendment, but Mr. Otto E. Passman, of Louisiana, moved the previous question, and Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, advised Mr. Conte that no further debate was in order. The House then agreed to a unanimous-consent request by Mr. Passman that “the action of the House by which the previous question was ordered be vacated.” Mr. Passman then yielded two minutes of debate to Mr. Conte.

Motion To Table as Closing Debate

§ 7.11 In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Speaker indicated that adoption of the nondebatable motion to lay a resolution on the table would result in the final adverse disposition of the resolution (and close further debate).

18. 106 CONG. REC. 17869, 17870, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Dec. 14, 1970,⁽¹⁹⁾ the previous question was demanded on House Resolution 1306, asserting the privileges of the House in printing and publishing a report of the Committee on Internal Security. Mr. Louis Stokes, of Ohio, then offered the preferential motion to lay on the table. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [ALBERT W.] WATSON [of South Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, if the motion to table prevails, there can be no further consideration at all of this matter. Is that not correct? Does it not apply the clincher?

THE SPEAKER: If the motion to table is agreed to, then the resolution is tabled.

MR. WATSON: Then that ends it.

Parliamentarian's Note: The motion to lay on the table takes precedence over the previous question and may be used to close all debate and adversely dispose of a proposition.⁽²⁰⁾

Motion To Rise as Interrupting Five-minute Debate

§ 7.12 The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise is not debatable and may have the effect of interrupting debate until the Committee meets again.

On June 16, 1948,⁽¹⁾ Mr. George W. Andrews, of Alabama, was handling the consideration of H.R. 6401 in the Committee of the Whole under the five-minute rule. He moved that the Committee rise, and Chairman Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, ruled that the motion, which was within Mr. Andrews' discretion to offer, would, if adopted, effectively terminate further debate at that time, although Members scheduled to be recognized would be recognized when the Committee meets again.

Motion To Suspend Rules

§ 7.13 The Member recognized to offer a motion to suspend the rules has the right to close debate thereon.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Sept. 21, 1981,⁽²⁾ during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 183 (expressing the sense of Congress that the national rugby team of South Africa should not play in the United States):

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, I have only one remaining speaker.

1. 94 CONG. REC. 8521, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.
2. 127 CONG. REC. 21420, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾ The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) has 1 minute remaining, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) has 2 minutes remaining.

The gentleman from Wisconsin has declared that he has only one remaining speaker to close debate.

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I desire to reserve that one until debate has concluded.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Wisconsin has the right to close debate.

MR. BROOMFIELD: Mr. Speaker, in view of that, I yield back the balance of my time.

MR. ZABLOCKI: Mr. Speaker, I yield the remaining 2 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Bedell).

§ 7.14 While the Member who (under a former rule) demanded a second on a motion to suspend the rules was recognized for 20 minutes of debate, it was still customary for the Speaker to recognize the Member making the motion to conclude the debate.

On Dec. 30, 1970,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, moved to suspend the rules and pass S. 4268, to amend the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. H. R. Gross, of

3. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).
4. 116 CONG. REC. 44170, 44176, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

Iowa, to demand a second and thereby to gain recognition for the 20 minutes of debate in opposition to the motion. At the conclusion of Mr. Gross' remarks, the Speaker recognized Mr. Patman to conclude the debate.

Parliamentarian's Note: Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from the rule in the 102d Congress. (See H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991, 102d Cong. 1st Sess.)

§ 7.15 While the manager of a motion to suspend the rules has the right to close debate thereon, the Chair attempts to evenly alternate recognition between the majority and minority in order that a comparable amount of time remains for closing speakers on both sides.

On Oct. 2, 1984,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of the balanced budget bill (H.R. 6300) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JUDD] GREGG [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

I have 9 minutes remaining. The chairman of the Committee on the

5. 130 CONG. REC. 28517, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

Budget has 13 more minutes remaining. After I yield this next point, I will have 7 minutes remaining.

I would request the Chair, in fairness, to proceed with the other side until the time is in more balance as we get closer to the closing of debate.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ The Chair would announce that the Chair is not trying to have this debate conducted in an unfair manner. The Chair will allow the gentleman from Oklahoma to have the chance to yield to a speaker to close debate and, therefore, the Chair will try to keep the division of time as near even as possible, given the consideration that the gentleman from Oklahoma have the opportunity to end the debate.

House Conferee in Opposition to Motion To Reject Portion of Conference Report

§ 7.16 The House conferee who has been recognized for 20 minutes in opposition to a motion to reject a non-germane portion of a conference report is entitled to close debate on the motion to reject.

On Jan. 29, 1976,⁽⁷⁾ the House had under consideration the conference report on H.R. 5247, the Local Public Works Capital Development and Investment Act of 1975. Mr. James C. Wright, Jr., of

6. Richard A. Gephardt (Mo.).

7. 122 CONG. REC. 1582, 1584, 1594, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

Texas, was the chairman of the conference committee that had brought the bill to the floor. Mr. Jack Brooks, of Texas, made the point of order that title II of the conference report constituted a nongermane Senate amendment to the bill in violation of Rule XXVIII clause 4. The Chair sustained the point of order, whereupon Mr. Brooks offered the motion that the House reject title II. Time for debate on the motion was divided as prescribed in the rule, the Chair stating in response to a parliamentary inquiry that the “division of time is between those in favor and those opposed to the motion.” Mr. Wright, in opposition to the motion, made the following inquiry:

MR. WRIGHT: Mr. Speaker, I have one other speaker, the majority leader. I do not know what the courtesy is, or the appropriate protocol, in a matter of this kind.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair will rule that the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Wright] may close debate.

Proponent of Motion To Instruct Conferees

§ 7.17 The proponent of a motion to instruct conferees has the right to close debate thereon.

8. Carl Albert (Okla.).

On July 28, 1994,⁽⁹⁾ the Speaker Pro Tempore addressed the issue of the right to close debate on a motion to instruct conferees.

MR. [JULIAN C.] DIXON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 4619) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of said District for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1995, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate. . . .

There was no objection. . . .

MR. [JAMES T.] WALSH [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct conferees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Walsh of New York moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill H.R. 4619, be instructed to insist on the House position on amendment numbered 16, reducing the D.C. budget by $150 million.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The gentleman from New York (Mr. Walsh) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from California (Mr. Dixon) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Walsh).

MR. WALSH: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, do we have the right to close debate?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The proponents of the motion will have the right to close the debate.

Debate on Amendments—Manager of Bill May Close

§ 7.18 The manager of a bill in Committee of the Whole, or another Member, who is controlling time in opposition to an amendment, and not the proponent of an amendment, has the right to close debate on the amendment, whether debate is proceeding under the five-minute rule or under a special procedure whereby debate has been limited and equally divided between the proponent of the amendment and a Member opposed thereto (the Chair indicating further that he could not anticipate who would obtain recognition to control the time in opposition to every amendment).

On Apr. 4, 1984,⁽¹¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the first budget resolution for fiscal year 1985 and revising the budget resolution for fiscal year 1984 (H. Con. Res. 280):

MR. [WILLIAM E.] DANNEMEYER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Dannemeyer: Strike everything after the resolving clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(a) The following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1983, October 1, 1984, October 1, 1985 and October 1, 1986:

(1) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Pursuant to House Resolution 476, the amendment is considered as having been read.

The gentleman from California (Mr. Dannemeyer) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and a Member opposed will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Dannemeyer). . . .

MR. [JAMES R.] JONES of Oklahoma: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Dannemeyer amendment, and I yield myself such time as I may consume. . . .

MR. DANNEMEYER: Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time. Do I have the privilege of closing, since it is my budget alternative?

12. John Joseph Moakley (Mass.).

THE CHAIRMAN: No, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones) has the privilege of closing debate. . . .

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, does that mean we are going to operate from here on with the idea that on all budgets that the opposition to them are going to have the right to close?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, these are amendments made in order by the Rules Committee. As under the 5-minute rule, the opponents have the right to close debate.

MR. WALKER: Further parliamentary inquiry. So I understand then, that on all the budget presentations that will be out here, that the opposition to those budgets will have the opportunity to close debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. . . .

MR. DANNEMEYER: Mr. Chairman, are we operating under the 5-minute rule right now?

THE CHAIRMAN: We are operating under a special procedure, but it is under the principle of the 5-minute rule. . . .

MR. DANNEMEYER: Under that procedure, I, as the proponent of this measure, with the burden of going forward, am not entitled to close? Is that what is being disclosed?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. As the gentleman may remember, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) was opposed to the last amendment and he closed debate. . . .

MR. WALKER: Then I understand that under the process, because the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones) will be opposing most of the amendments that come out here other than the committee amendment, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones), the committee chairman, is going to be virtually given the chance to close all debate on all amendments out here?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is not aware of who is going to rise in opposition to all the amendments. Those who rise in opposition to the amendments will be the persons who will be entitled to close the debates. . . .

MR. WALKER: On the minority side, if we are in opposition to some of the budgets that are going to come out, and the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones) is in opposition to the budgets that come out, which side will be given the opportunity to close at that point?

THE CHAIRMAN: It all depends upon who is controlling the time, like all the other amendments. The rule specifically states that it is a person opposed who is controlling the time. . . .

MR. WALKER: When the minority side has a half hour of time, as I assume we will have on some of these amendments, then we will get a chance to close the debate, rather than the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones)?

THE CHAIRMAN: If the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones) offers an amendment, then the minority has the right to close the debate.

§ 7.19 The manager of a bill in the Committee of the Whole, and not the proponent of the pending amendment, is entitled to close debate on an amendment on which debate (by unanimous consent) has been equally divided and controlled.

On July 9, 1965,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 6400, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, under the terms of a unanimous-consent agreement providing two hours' debate on an amendment, to be divided and controlled by the chairman, Emanuel Celler, of New York, and the ranking minority member, William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, of the Committee on the Judiciary, which had reported the bill. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that Mr. Celler, as manager of the bill, and not Mr. McCulloch, the proponent of the pending amendment, had the right to close debate on the amendment:

MR. CELLER: Mr. Chairman, may I ask how much time remains on this side?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York has 4 minutes remaining and the gentleman from Ohio 1 minute.

MR. CELLER: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from Ohio yield the 1 minute he has remaining so that we can close debate on this side?

MR. McCULLOCH: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. McCULLOCH: Mr. Chairman, since the debate at this time is on the substitute amendment, pursuant to the rule, would not the privilege of closing debate come to this side of the aisle?

THE CHAIRMAN: The closing of debate, the Chair will inform the gentleman from Ohio, would be in the hands of the manager of the bill.

§ 7.20 The right to recognition to close debate under a limitation of debate on an amendment in Committee of the Whole belongs to the manager of the bill and not to the proponent of the amendment.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on July 21, 1982,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6030 (the military procurement authorization for fiscal year 1983):

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, may I ask, how many minutes do we have remaining?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ The gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) has 7 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Dicks) has 9½ minutes remaining.

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Chairman, I suggest that the gentleman from Washington consume his time because the Committee wants to reserve the final 7 minutes for a windup, as is the proper procedure.

14. 128 CONG. REC. 17363, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

15. Les AuCoin (Oreg.).

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Dicks) wish to use or yield additional time?

MR. [NORMAN D.] DICKS [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, is it not the proper procedure that the Member who offers the amendment gets the last portion of time to close debate?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman that the usual and customary procedure, and the procedure we are following, is for the Committee to have the prerogative and the right to close.

§ 7.21 The manager from the committee reporting a bill has the right to close debate on an amendment under the five-minute rule, and not the sponsor of the amendment.

On July 29, 1982,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6030 (military procurement authorization for fiscal year 1983) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding the conclusion of debate, as follows:

MR. [EDWARD J.] MARKEY [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARKEY: Mr. Chairman, is it not my right as the maker of the amendment to make the concluding statement on the pending amendment?

16. 128 CONG. REC. 18582, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

17. Les AuCoin (Oreg.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Committee has the right to close.

§ 7.22 The member of the committee managing a bill, and not the proponent of a pending amendment, has the right to close the debate thereon.

The following exchange occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Sept. 16, 1982,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 562 (urgent supplemental appropriation for the Department of Labor for fiscal year 1982):

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, we only have one speaker on this side who will close debate. The balance of the time will be yielded to the majority leader.

MRS. [LYNN] MARTIN of Illinois: May I ask a question of the Chair? As the sponsor of the amendment, I reserved time so that I could close the debate on this side of the aisle. Certainly if it is the wish of the majority leader to close, I wish to do what is appropriate, however, and I bow to the wishes of the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ The Committee has the right to close, and so the gentlewoman will proceed.

§ 7.23 The manager of a bill has the right to close debate on an amendment and amendments thereto in Committee of the Whole under a time limitation, although he may also be the proponent of a pending amendment to the amendment.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 16, 1983,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear freeze resolution):

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendment and amendment thereto end at 9:15 p.m.⁽¹⁾

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki). . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the motion just agreed to, debate has been limited to 9:15. The Chair will exercise discretion and apportion the remaining time.

The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) for 3 minutes, and the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) for 3 minutes. Each of those gentlemen may apportion their 3 minutes as they wish. . . .

The Chair will inquire, does the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) wish to exercise his right to allot time?

MR. ZABLOCKI: The gentleman from Wisconsin reserves his time. I reserve the balance of my time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Wisconsin has the right to terminate debate.

20. 129 CONG. REC. 5792, 5793, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

1. Mr. Zablocki was the manager of the bill and the proponent of the amendment to the amendment.
2. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

§ 7.24 Where a special rule equally divides debate on an amendment between the proponent and an opponent, and the manager of the bill (the chairman of the committee reporting the bill) has been recognized to control debate in opposition, he has the right to close debate on the amendment.

On Oct. 24, 1985,⁽³⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3500 (Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985) in the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The gentleman from Pennsylvania has requested to utilize the balance of his time in closing, which under the precedents he would have the right to do.

MR. [DELBERT L.] LATTA [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have the right under the procedures of the House, since it is my amendment, to close the debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman that the manager of the bill, under the precedents, has that right, and the Chair so rules.

—Representative of Committee Position

§ 7.25 The manager of the bill or other representative of the committee position and not the proponent of the amendment has the right to close debate on an amendment on which debate has been limited and allocated in the Committee of the Whole.

On May 2, 1988,⁽⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during debate on the Department of Defense authorization for fiscal year 1989 (H.R. 4264):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ . . . It is now in order to consider the amendments relating to Central America printed in section 1 of the House Report 100-590, by, and if offered by, the following Members or their designees, which shall be considered in the following order only:

(A) By Representative Foley, which is not subject to amendment except for an amendment offered by Representative Hunter;

(B) By Representative Lowry of Washington; and

(C) By Representative Markey.

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Foley: At the end of title IX of division A (page 163, after line 6), insert the following new section: . . .

MR. [MIKE] LOWRY of Washington: Mr. Chairman, pursuant to the rule, I offer an amendment.

5. 134 CONG. REC. 9633, 9637, 9638, 100th Cong. 2d Sess.
6. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Lowry of Washington: Page 167, strike out lines 6 and 7.

Page 170, line 20, insert “, minus $3,050,000” before “as follows”. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁷⁾ Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Lowry) will be recognized for 5 minutes and a Member opposed will be recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. [G. V.] MONTGOMERY [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Montgomery) will be recognized for 5 minutes. . . .

The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Montgomery) has 2 minutes remaining and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Lowry) has 30 seconds remaining.

MR. MONTGOMERY: Mr. Chairman, is it not appropriate that a member of the committee, and I being a representative of the committee, would have the opportunity to close debate?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

§ 7.26 The minority manager of a bill representing the committee position on an amendment has the right to close debate in lieu of the proponent of the amendment.

On May 5, 1988,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of the Department of

7. Thomas J. Downey (N.Y.).
8. 134 CONG. REC. 9962, 100th Cong. 2d Sess.

Defense authorization for fiscal 1989 (H.R. 4264) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [NICHOLAS] MAVROULES [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, pursuant to the rule, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Mavroules: Page 19, after line 11, insert the following new section: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Under the rule, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Mavroules) will be recognized for 5 minutes and a member in opposition will be recognized for 5 minutes. . . .

Does the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Dickinson) desire to speak in opposition?

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding I have the right to close.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman upholding the committee position?

MR. DICKINSON: I am opposing the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts which would, I assume, make me in the position of upholding it.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The question of who has the right to close would depend on who is espousing the cause of the committee.

MR. DICKINSON: I would assume that the Chair would rule the same on this issue as it did the last time I asked the question and that would mean I have the right to close.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The manager of the bill always has the right to close. In this case, since the gentleman is upholding the committee position, he would be entitled to close.

MR. DICKINSON: I am in the same position as the chairman was on the last amendment. I am opposing the amendment to the committee bill.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will assume the gentleman is representing the committee position. He is recognized for 5 minutes.

—Position of Sequential Committee That Reported Text Being Amended

§ 7.27 Where the Member controlling time in opposition to an amendment on which debate is limited represents the position of the sequential committee that reported the original text being amended, that Member qualifies as the manager of the pending portion of the bill and is entitled to close debate on the amendment, even over the proponent of the amendment representing the primary committee whose reported version had been replaced in the original text by the sequential committee's version.

9. Kenneth J. Gray (Ill.).

On June 15, 1989,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration H.R. 1278, the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989. The pending text had been reported as a Judiciary Committee amendment on sequential referral and by special rule was made original text. Thus, members of the Judiciary Committee defending the pending text, rather than members of the Banking Committee seeking by amendments to return to the pre-sequential text, were managers entitled to close controlled debate at this point.

MR. [DOUG] BARNARD [Jr., of Georgia] [of the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Barnard:

Page 655, before line 21, insert the following new section (and redesignate subsequent sections and amend the table of contents accordingly):

SEC. 965. CRIMINAL DIVISION FRAUD
SECTION REGIONAL OFFICES. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Barnard)

10. 135 CONG. REC. 12080, 12081, 12084, 12085, 12087, 101st Cong. 1st Sess.

11. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery (Miss.).

will be recognized for 20 minutes in support of his amendment, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier [of the Committee on the Judiciary] will be recognized for 20 minutes in opposition to the amendment. . . .

Subsequently the Chair stated:

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Barnard) has 4 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier) has 9 minutes remaining.

The Chair will rule that because this section of the bill did come from the Judiciary Committee that the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier) in effect is managing this part of the legislation, so the gentleman from Wisconsin will be allowed to close debate. . . .

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Barnard).

The amendment was agreed to.

MR. [FRANK] ANNUNZIO [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Annunzio: Page 637, strike out line 22 and all that follows through page 638, line 9, and insert in lieu thereof the following (and redesignate the subsequent paragraph accordingly):

(b) Amount of Penalty.—

(1) Generally.—The amount of the civil penalty shall not exceed $1,000,000. . . .

MR. ANNUNZIO: . . . The Subcommittee on Financial Institutions, which I Chair, did everything in its power to ensure that such crooks got their due—we imposed long prison terms and large penalties for taking advantage of the American taxpayer. The Full Banking Committee, by a 49-to-2 vote, strongly endorsed these provisions. However, the Judiciary Committee has decided to lessen some of these penalties. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio) has 7 minutes remaining and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Hughes) [from the Committee on the Judiciary] has 13 minutes remaining.

The Chair will inform the two managers of the time that under a ruling of the Chair, because this section was handled by the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from New Jersey will have the privilege of closing the debate.

—Member Controlling Time in Opposition

§ 7.28 Where debate time has been limited on an amendment and all amendments thereto and equally divided between proponents and opponents, the manager of the bill if he controls time in opposition to the amendments has the right to close debate.

During consideration of the Legal Services Corporation Act Amendments of 1981 (H.R. 3480) in the Committee of the Whole on June 18, 1981,⁽¹²⁾ an amendment was offered to the bill, as follows:

12. 127 CONG. REC. 12969, 12970, 12976, 12977, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [ABRAHAM] KAZEN [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Kazen: Page 12, strike out lines 10 through 16 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

“(11) to provide legal assistance for or on behalf of any alien who has not been lawfully admitted for permanent residence in the United States unless the residence of the alien in the United States is authorized by the Attorney General; or . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ Under the prior agreement, by unanimous consent, the Chair allocates 15 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Rodino) in opposition to this amendment. . . .

The Chair will advise that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) has 2 minutes remaining. . . .

The gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Rodino) has 1 minute remaining.

The gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Rodino) has the right to conclude debate.

§ 7.29 The Member controlling the time in opposition to an amendment, and not the proponent thereof, is entitled to close debate on the amendment in the Committee of the Whole, under a special rule allocating control of time.

During consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 280 (the first budget resolution for fiscal year 1985 and revising the budget resolution for 1984) in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 5, 1984,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [JULIAN C.] DIXON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute, designated No. 4, consisting of the text of House Concurrent Resolution 281.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Dixon: Strike out all after the resolving clause and insert in lieu thereof the following: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Pursuant to House Resolution 476, the amendment is considered as having been read.

The gentleman from California (Mr. Dixon) will be recognized for 1 hour and a Member opposed will be recognized for 1 hour.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Dixon) for 1 hour. . . .

MR. DIXON: Mr. Chairman, I inquire of the Chair as to what time is left on both sides.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from California (Mr. Dixon) has 14 minutes remaining; the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Fiedler) has 21 minutes remaining.

MR. DIXON: Mr. Chairman, I believe I am entitled to close. I do not know if the other side intends to use all of their time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is incorrect. The opposition is entitled to close.

§ 7.30 The minority manager of a bill recognized to control the time on behalf of the committee in opposition to an amendment (where debate has been limited and divided) has the right to close the debate on the amendment.

On June 29, 1984,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3678 (Water Resources, Conservation, Development, and Infrastructure Improvement and Rehabilitation Act of 1983) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Sam B. Hall, of Texas, responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding closing debate. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [BOB] EDGAR [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield, I would suggest that we could probably do it in 30 minutes equally divided, 15 minutes for the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Hopkins) and 15 minutes for the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Snyder) by dividing up the time I think we could probably cover the speakers who wish to speak.

MR. [ROBERT A.] ROE [of New Jersey]: I would have no objection to that.

16. 130 CONG. REC. 20250, 20253, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the debate conclude at 5:30 and the time be equally divided between Mr. Snyder and Mr. Hopkins.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

MR. [LARRY J.] HOPKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. HOPKINS: Mr. Chairman, since it is my amendment, would it be improper for me to close out the debate on this issue?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Snyder), closes on behalf of the committee.

§ 7.31 Where debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole has been limited, and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, the opponent of an amendment has the right to close debate if he represents the committee managing the bill.

During consideration of H.R. 1460 (expressing United States opposition to the system of apartheid in South Africa) in the Committee of the Whole on June 5, 1985,⁽¹⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ Under the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr.

18. E de la Garza (Tex.).

Dellums) will be recognized for 30 minutes and a Member opposed to the amendment will be recognized for 30 minutes.

Is the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Siljander) opposed to the amendment?

MR. [MARK] SILJANDER [of Michigan]: I am, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Siljander) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums). . . .

MR. [RONALD V.] DELLUMS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, is it customary that the offeror of the amendment close the debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman that the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Siljander) is in fact representing the committee which opposes the gentleman's amendment, so, therefore, he would have a procedural right to close debate on the amendment.

§ 7.32 Where debate has been limited on an amendment in Committee of the Whole and control allocated between a proponent and an opponent who represents the committee majority reporting the bill, the Member controlling the time in opposition has the right to close debate.

On July 10, 1985,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1555 (International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985) in the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, if I may pose a parliamentary inquiry. I thought I had the right to close the debate on this side; is that not right?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The Chair will state that the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Wolpe) has the right to close debate.

MR. BROOMFIELD: It is our amendment, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: It may be the gentleman's amendment, but the committee that is managing the bill has the right to close debate.

—Member of Committee

§ 7.33 A member of the committee in charge of a bill is entitled to close debate on an amendment under consideration in the Committee of the Whole.

On May 22, 1956,⁽³⁾ Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, ruled that a member of the Committee on Appropriations, which reported and was in charge of the pending bill, H.R. 11319, was entitled to close debate on a pending amendment:

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the unanimous-consent agreement, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Cole) [to open debate].

3. 102 CONG. REC. 8741, 84th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [W. STERLING] COLE: Mr. Chairman, I understood that I was to have 5 minutes to close the debate on this amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair was not of that understanding. It is the understanding of the Chair that the gentleman from New York (Mr. Taber) would have 5 minutes to close the debate.

MR. COLE: The request was that the gentleman from New York will close the debate. I also qualify under that characterization, being in support of the amendment; and, under the rules of the House, it is my understanding that I would be recognized to close the debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from New York that a member of the committee is entitled to close the debate if he so desires.

Does the gentleman from New York (Mr. Taber) desire to be recognized to close the debate?

MR. [JOHN] TABER: I desire to close.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Cole).

§ 7.34 A member of the committee reporting a bill who supports the committee position and has been recognized to control the time in opposition to an amendment has the right to close the debate thereon.

Defense authorization for fiscal 1987 (H.R. 4428) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Pro Tempore Marty Russo, of Illinois, responded to a parliamentary inquiry, as indicated below:

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Under the rule, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Savage) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and a Member in opposition will be recognized for 20 minutes.

The Chair will recognize the distinguished gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Dickinson) for 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Savage). . . .

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DICKINSON: Mr. Chairman, does not the gentleman have the right to close, as the proponent?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that under the rules, a member of the committee supporting the committee's position has the right to close. The gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Dickinson) has the right to close.

§ 7.35 The chairman of the committee managing the bill representing the committee position has the right to close debate on an amendment in the Committee of the Whole.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on May 5, 1988,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1989 (H.R. 4264):

5. 134 CONG. REC. 9961, 100th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I have the right to close debate, it is my understanding, since this is my amendment and it is not against the committee position.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Aspin) has the right to close debate on behalf of the committee.

MR. DICKINSON: He is not representing the committee position, Mr. Chairman.

MR. [LES] ASPIN [of Wisconsin]: On this amendment, the gentleman from Wisconsin is representing the committee position, which is to be against the Dickinson amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Aspin), chairman of the committee, does have the right to close debate.

—Member of Committee Offering Amendment Representing Committee Position

§ 7.36 Under Rule XIV, clause 6, a member of the committee reporting a bill offering an amendment thereto which represents the committee position, and not another member of the committee recognized in opposition thereto, is entitled to close debate thereon.

During consideration of the Department of Defense authorization

6. Kenneth J. Gray (Ill.).

for fiscal year 1987 (H.R. 4428) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 14, 1986,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [G. V.] MONTGOMERY [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁸⁾ The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Montgomery: At the end of title V of division A (page 103, after line 6), add the following new section: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Under the rule, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Montgomery) will be recognized for 5 minutes, and a Member of the Committee opposed to the amendment will be recognized for 5 minutes.

MRS. [PATRICIA] SCHROEDER [of Colorado]: Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentlewoman from Colorado (Mrs. Schroeder) will be recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Montgomery).

MR. MONTGOMERY: Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes, and I would like to reserve the last minute of the debate for my closing argument.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Mississippi that under the procedure adopted by the Committee, a Member of the committee who is in opposition to the amendment has been recognized to close the debate. . . .

MR. MONTGOMERY: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MONTGOMERY: Mr. Chairman, the Member that is opposing this amendment is not reflecting the committee's position. That is not the will of the committee. I am on the committee myself, and I think it is my amendment and I have the right to close the debate. This is not the committee's position at all.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will inform the gentleman from Mississippi that the Member who is entitled to close the debate would be a member of the committee who supports the committee's position. Is the gentleman in support of the committee's position?

MR. MONTGOMERY: Yes, Mr. Chairman; I support the committee position. I am for the amendment, so, therefore, I think I have the right to close debate.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: If there is no committee position on the amendment, then the gentleman is entitled to close debate.

MR. MONTGOMERY: . . . Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes and 30 seconds, and I reserve the balance of my time.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Montgomery) is recognized for 2½ minutes.

—Proponent of Amendment Where There Is No Manager

§ 7.37 Where an unreported joint resolution was being considered under a special “modified closed” rule in Committee of the Whole permitting no general debate and the consideration of only two amendments in the nature of a substitute with debate thereon divided between a proponent and an opponent, the proponents of the amendments were permitted to open and close debate pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XIV, since there was no “manager” of the joint resolution.

8. Marty Russo (Ill.).

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 24, 1985,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 247 (to promote United States assistance in Central America):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ No amendments are in order except the following amendments, which shall be considered as having been read, shall be considered only in the following order, and shall not be subject to amendment: First, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the Congressional Record of April 22, 1985, by, and if offered by, Representative Hamilton of Indiana; and said amendment shall be debatable for not to exceed 2 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by

9. 131 CONG. REC. 9206, 9228, 9230-32, 9253, 9255, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.
10. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

Representative Hamilton and a member opposed thereto; and second, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the Congressional Record of April 22, 1985, by, and if offered by, Representative Michel or his designee, and said amendment shall be debatable for not to exceed 2 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by Representative Michel or his designee and a Member opposed thereto.

For what purpose does the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Hamilton) rise?

MR. [LEE H.] HAMILTON [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, pursuant to the rules, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Hamilton: Strike out all after the resolving clause and insert in lieu thereof the following: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) has 6 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Hamilton) has 6 minutes remaining.

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: . . . I yield my remaining time to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Lott). . . .

MR. HAMILTON: Mr. Chairman, I yield the remaining time, 6 minutes, to the chairman of the Subcommittee on Central America and Latin America, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Barnes). . . .

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, pursuant to the rule, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute. . . .

Pursuant to House Resolution 136, the amendment is considered as having been read.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) will be recognized for 1 hour, and a Member opposed will be recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Chairman, I should like to designate the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) to make the allocation of time on our side of the aisle.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) is designated to control the time for the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel). . . .

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) has 7 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Barnes) has 6¼ minutes remaining.

MR. [MICHAEL D.] BARNES [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, we have three very brief speakers. . . .

MR. BROOMFIELD: Mr. Chairman, I would like at this time now to yield the balance of our time to the minority leader, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) has expired. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

Parliamentarian's Note: Ordinarily in Committee of the Whole under the five-minute rule, notwithstanding clause 6 of Rule XIV which permits the proponent of a proposition to close debate, the manager of the bill under the precedents is given the right to close debate on an amendment and clause 6 applies only to debate in the House. But in the above instance, there was no manager of the bill under the special rule.

—No Committee Position in Opposition to Amendment

§ 7.38 Where no representative from the reporting committee opposes an amendment to a multi-jurisdictional bill, the proponent of the amendment may close debate.

On Mar. 9, 1995,⁽¹¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration H.R. 956, the Common Sense Legal Standards Reform Act of 1995. A parliamentary inquiry arose concerning the right to close debate on an amendment:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair will inform the committee that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Oxley) is entitled to close debate.

MR. [MELVIN L.] WATT of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

11. 141 CONG. REC. p. ____, 104th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. David Dreier (Calif.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his inquiry.

MR. WATT of North Carolina: My inquiry has to do with why the gentleman on that side has the right to close debate. We are defending the committee position on this side this time.

THE CHAIRMAN: If the Chair might respond to the inquiry, the gentleman from Ohio is the author of the amendment and there is no official committee position that is being represented here by opposition to the amendment. So the gentleman from Ohio is entitled to close debate on the amendment.

—Proponent of Amendment Where Manager Does Not Oppose Amendment

§ 7.39 While the member of the managing committee controlling debate in opposition to an amendment and substitute therefor, if opposed by the committee, has the right to close debate thereon, the proponent of an amendment (consistent with clause 6, Rule XIV) has the right to close debate if the committee manager does not oppose the amendment or substitute.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 15, 1986,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1987 (H.R. 4428):

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ The gentleman from Vermont (Mr. Jeffords) has 4 minutes remaining, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Dickinson) has 5 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from California (Mr. Hawkins) has 10½ minutes remaining. . . .

Because there is no committee position on this amendment, under the rules of the House, the proponent of the amendment has the right to close debate.

So, on this amendment, the gentleman from California (Mr. Hawkins), will have the right to close debate.

When we get to the Dickinson substitute, again, there is no committee position, and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Dickinson), would have the right to close debate.

So, in fairness to both sides, the gentleman from California (Mr. Hawkins) will have the right to close on this amendment, and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Dickinson) will have the right to close on his amendment.

§ 7.40 While ordinarily the manager of a bill and not the proponent of an amendment has the right to close debate on an amendment on which debate time has been limited and allocated under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, the proponent of an amendment may close, pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XIV, where the manager of the bill or his designee is not controlling time in opposition.

14. Marty Russo (Ill.).

On June 12, 1985, the Committee of the Whole had under consideration H.R. 2577, supplemental appropriations for fiscal 1986, pursuant to a “modified closed” rule which limited and divided debate on a specified amendment and two amendments thereto. Mr. Joseph M. McDade, of Pennsylvania, offered an amendment⁽¹⁵⁾ under the rule, to which Mr. Edward P. Boland, of Massachusetts, rose in opposition.⁽¹⁶⁾ Subsequently, in response to Mr. McDade’s inquiry, the Chair⁽¹⁷⁾ indicated that Mr. McDade would be allowed to close debate.⁽¹⁸⁾

Mr. Boland could not be identified as the “manager” of the bill in this context since he had been the proponent of an unsuccessful amendment⁽¹⁹⁾ to the McDade amendment under the rule, and had not been designated by the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, Mr. Jamie L. Whitten, of Mississippi, as the manager of the bill during debate on the McDade amendment, but was merely an opponent of the amendment. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2577) making supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1985, and for other purposes. . . .

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . Pursuant to House Resolution 186 and today’s unanimous-consent agreement, no amendments are in order except the following amendments which shall be considered in the following order only, shall be considered as having been read, shall not be subject to amendment except as specified, and shall be in order even if amending a portion of the bill already passed in the reading of the bill for amendment:

First. The amendment printed in the Congressional Record of June 5, 1985, by Representative Michel, if offered by Representative Michel or Representative McDade, which shall be debatable for 2 hours and 20 minutes, to be equally divided and controlled by the proponent and a Member opposed thereto, and after 2 hours of debate shall be subject to the following two amendments:

Second. The amendment printed in the Congressional Record of June 5, 1985, by, and if offered by, Representative Boland, which shall be debatable for 1 hour, to be equally divided and controlled by Representative Boland and a Member opposed thereto; . . .

MR. MCDADE: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. . . .

Amendment offered by Mr. McDade: Page 44, after line 23, insert the following:

For an additional amount for humanitarian assistance . . . to the Nicaraguan democratic resistance, $27,000,000. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) rise?

MR. BOLAND: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. MCDADE: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. MCDADE: Mr. Chairman, I believe that I have the right to close debate. May I say to the Chair that it is my amendment, and I believe as author of the amendment, I have the right to close debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the present circumstances, the Chair agrees with the gentleman that he should be allowed to close.

§ 7.41 Normally the manager of the bill, and not the proponent of an amendment under the five-minute rule, has the right to close debate on the amendment; but where a special rule adopted by the House permits the manager of the bill or his designee to offer an amendment consisting of the text of another bill reported from the reporting committee, and that amendment is not opposed by the manager, the proponent has the right to close debate.

On Aug. 5, 1986,⁽²⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 4428 (Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1987):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ . . . Pursuant to the rule, the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Armed Services . . . is considered by titles as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the 5-minute rule.

Before the consideration of any other amendments, it shall be in order to consider the amendments designated in section 2 of House Resolution 523. . . .

First, an amendment inserting a new Division D in the committee substitute, as modified, containing the text of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Armed Services now printed in H.R. 4370 if offered by the chairman of the Committee on Armed Services or his designee. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM] NICHOLS [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I have been designated by the chairman of the Committee on Armed Services to offer an amendment made in order under the rule.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Nichols: Page 353, after line 10, insert the following new division (and redesignate division D as division E):

DIVISION D—DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE REORGANIZATION. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Pursuant to House Resolution 523, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Nichols) will be recognized for 1 hour, and a Member opposed will be recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the legislation.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will then recognize the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) for 1 hour. . . .

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I would request that 30 minutes of my time be yielded to the ranking minority member of my subcommittee, the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Hopkins). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair wishes to state that the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Hopkins) has 4 minutes remaining; the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Nichols) has 6½ minutes remaining; and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Nichols) is entitled to close the debate. The gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) has 36½ minutes remaining.

—Unanimous Consent To Vary Regular Order

§ 7.42 By unanimous consent the Committee of the Whole may vary the regular order of recognition to close debate on an amendment; thus, although the manager of a bill has the right to close controlled debate on an amendment thereto, the Committee of the Whole has by unanimous consent varied that practice.

During consideration of the Defense Savings Act of 1988 (H.R. 4481) in the Committee of the Whole on July 12, 1988,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: I think that the rule provides a division of time of all those standing and who want to speak. But if it would be proper, Mr. Chairman, I would so move that limitation of time would be within 30 minutes of the present time, the time to be divided equally by the proponents and opponents and that the gentleman from Texas, the author of the amendment, be allowed to close debate.

MR. [DENNIS M.] HERTEL [of Michigan]: . . . I have no problem with the gentleman closing debate. I just do not know if it is proper to put it in a motion. I have no objection to him being the last person to speak. . . .

2. 134 CONG. REC. 17767, 100th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The gentleman . . . has made a motion. He has moved. But the gentleman should make a unanimous-consent request to allocate time.

MR. DICKINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close within 30 minutes, that the 30 minutes be divided half and half between the proponents and the opponents and that the gentleman from Texas be allowed to close.

MR. [G. V.] MONTGOMERY [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I agree with the gentleman's first part with respect to 30 minutes but over the years the House procedure is I believe, and I will have the Chair correct me if I am wrong, that when an amendment is offered and the chairman of the committee objects to that amendment, that he has the right to close debate. Is that proper?

THE CHAIRMAN: Normally when the Committee of the Whole divides the time on an amendment the person handling the bill, the chairman, has the right to end the debate. That is normal.

There has been a unanimous-consent request to alter that, which can be done, to permit the gentleman from Texas to close the debate.

MR. MONTGOMERY: Mr. Chairman, I will not object. I withdraw my reservation of objection. The chairman has no problem with it.

THE CHAIRMAN: Then without objection the unanimous-consent request is granted. All time on the amendment of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Arme) and all amendments thereto will expire 30 minutes from now; that under the unanimous-consent request the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Hertel) will be recognized to control time for 15 minutes as an opponent of the amendment and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Arme) will be recognized for 15 minutes as the proponent of the amendment.

§ 8. In General; Seeking Recognition

In order to address the House or speak in relation to any matter, or to make a motion or objection, a Member must first secure recognition from the Speaker in the House or from the Chairman in the Committee of the Whole. Rule XIV clause 1 provides the proper method of seeking recognition:

When any Member desires to speak or deliver any matter to the House, he shall rise and respectfully address himself to "Mr. Speaker," and, on being recognized, may address the House from any place on the floor or from the Clerk's desk, and shall confine himself to the question under debate, avoiding personality.⁽⁴⁾

4. House Rules and Manual §749 (1995). For parliamentary law on seeking recognition, see Jefferson's Manual, House Rules and Manual § 354 (1995). Proper forms of address are discussed in § 42, infra.

3. Harold L. Volkmer (Mo.).

As indicated by the rule, a recognized Member may be taken off the floor by a point of order that he is indulging in disorderly or irrelevant language.⁽⁵⁾

A Member may not be interrupted without his consent or taken off his feet for ordinary motions.⁽⁶⁾ A Member seeking to interrupt another must secure recognition from the Chair, and the remarks of a Member who has not gained recognition may be stricken from the Record.⁽⁷⁾

Rule XIV clause 2 provides:

When two or more Members rise at once, the Speaker shall name the Member who is first to speak. . . .⁽⁸⁾

Under the rule, the Speaker or the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole has the power and discretion to determine who will be recognized, and for what purpose.⁽⁹⁾ To determine a Member's

6. See § 32, infra, for control of debate and interruptions of a Member with the floor.
7. See §§ 8.2, 8.3, 8.10, infra.
8. House Rules and Manual § 753 (1995). This rule modified the parliamentary practice that the Member who first rises has the right to be recognized [see Jefferson's Manual, House Rules and Manual § 393 (1995)].

claim to the floor, the Chair may ask for what purpose a Member rises, and recognition is granted only for the specific purpose indicated.⁽¹⁰⁾

The Chair's power of recognition is not unlimited, and recognition or refusal thereof may be dictated by House rule or by established practice and precedent.⁽¹¹⁾

Recognition is governed in specific instances and in specific parliamentary situations by principles and rules too extensive to be completely covered in this chapter. The reader is advised to consult those portions of this work dealing with the order of business, with motions, and with the relative privilege of motions and questions.

Except at the convening of the Congress, a Member-elect (such as one elected to fill a vacancy) may not be recognized until he has been administered the oath.

Member Must Seek Recognition To Obtain Floor

§ 8.1 No Member has the floor until the Chair has recognized him for the purpose of proceeding.

For example, on Mar. 16, 1934,⁽¹²⁾ Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, ruled that until a Member seeking to make an announcement or to proceed in debate had been recognized by the Chair for that purpose, the Member could not proceed:

MR. [WILLIAM P.] CONNERY [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Rhode Island, Mr. Condon, and the gentleman from New York, Mr. Mead, are unavoidably absent. If they were here, they would vote "aye."

MR. [BERTRAND H.] SNELL [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SNELL: Is there any provision in the rules for such an announcement as has just been made by the gentleman from Massachusetts?

THE SPEAKER: There is no provision in the rules for an announcement of that character.

MR. SNELL: I make the point of order that the gentleman is out of order. If the rules are going to be invoked, let us abide by all of them.

THE SPEAKER: The point of order is sustained.

MR. CONNERY: Mr. Speaker, the Chair just ruled that all remarks uttered on the floor of the House must go in the Record; therefore my announcement must go in the Record.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair cannot recognize the gentleman for that purpose under the rules.

MR. [CARL E.] MAPES [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a Member has no right to make a speech until he is recognized by the Chair.

THE SPEAKER: The point of order is sustained.

§ 8.2 The Speaker has repeatedly ruled that under the rules and procedures of the House a Member who wishes to interrupt another who has the floor must first obtain recognition from the Chair.

On June 7, 1961,⁽¹³⁾ while Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, had the floor, he yielded to Mr. Albert Thomas, of Texas, who thereafter attempted to interrupt Mr. Hoffman and to yield to a third Member. Mr. Hoffman made a point of order:

13. 107 CONG. REC. 9681, 87th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order. It has become customary here—and I only make this because having served under Speaker Byrns, a man of great ability and dignity who said there was a rule in effect—that Members had to address the Chair or the Speaker before making a request that the Member speaking could yield to anyone. Is that right?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ That is the rule and practice of the House and Committee.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Pardon me, then. I had not noticed that the practice was being observed.

Similarly, on July 16, 1935,⁽¹⁵⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ruled as follows on a point of order:

The point of order has already been made, and the Chair is about to make a ruling. . . .

The rules of the House provide that Members of the House shall observe proper decorum in debate. This is the only way in which matters may be discussed in a sound, sensible, sane manner, and a proper conclusion arrived at. Those Members particularly who have been here for years, it seems to the Chair, should be doubly careful to strictly conform to the rule.

14. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

15. 79 CONG. REC. 11256, 74th Cong. 1st Sess.

The rules provide that when a Member rises to interrupt another he shall address the Chair and do it respectfully and secure the consent of the Member who is talking.

The Speaker then cited Rule XIV clause 1, governing the subject of address.⁽¹⁶⁾

The Speaker has ruled on numerous other occasions that it is not in order in debate for a Member to interrupt another who has the floor without first addressing the Chair and obtaining consent of the Member who has the floor.⁽¹⁷⁾

18. See, for example, 91 CONG. REC. 10032, 79th Cong. 1st Sess., Oct. 24,

On Apr. 14, 1936,⁽¹⁹⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ruled in response to a point of order that remarks made by a Member without having secured recognition from the Chair are properly deleted from the Congressional Record:

MR. [THOMAS L.] BLANTON [of Texas]: I make the point of order that when a Member is speaking on the floor, as the gentleman from New York was yesterday, and someone attempts to interrupt him and he states he refuses to yield, and he does not yield, no Member then has the right to make remarks and to put them in the Record without being recognized by the Chair or getting permission of the House.

I think the gentleman from New York would have been well within his rights if he had taken a pencil and wiped out the remarks himself, because the gentleman from Washington 1945 (making point of order); 81 CONG. REC. 3588, 75th Cong. 1st Sess., Apr. 19, 1937 (interjecting remarks into another's speech); and 79 CONG. REC. 11256, 74th Cong. 1st Sess., July 16, 1935 (interrogating Member having the floor).

See Rule XIV clause 1, House Rules and Manual §749 (1995): "When any Member desires to speak or deliver any matter to the House, he shall rise and respectfully address himself to 'Mr. Speaker,' and, on being recognized, may address the House from any place on the floor or from the Clerk's desk. . . ."

19. 80 CONG. REC. 5478, 74th Cong. 2d Sess.

did not have any right to make a remark in the Record unless he got permission of the House or permission of the Chair. Mr. Speaker, I make that point of order. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair may say to the gentleman that no Member of the House has the right to have his remarks inserted in the Record unless he has obtained the consent of the House or the Chair or the gentleman addressing the House.

The present occupant of the chair was not presiding at the time, but the Chair understands from the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Zioncheck) that when he asked the gentleman from New York (Mr. Boylan) for permission to interrupt him the gentleman from New York declined to yield. Thereupon the gavel fell, and the gentleman's remarks were made after the gavel had fallen and without recognition from the Chair or the permission of the gentleman from New York.

MR. [MARION A.] ZIONCHECK: That is right. I admit I was wrong.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair, under such circumstances, holds that the remarks were not proper for the Record.

On Apr. 19, 1937,⁽²⁰⁾ Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Edward W. Curley, of New York, that the Speaker could order stricken, from the notes of the reporters of debates, the remarks of a Member who had not been recognized and to whom the Member having the floor had declined to yield:

THE SPEAKER: This is a rather important inquiry that the gentleman from New York (Mr. Curley) has submitted. It has not been raised, so far as the Chair recalls, during the present session of Congress. In order that the rights of Members may be protected, and that the Members may know what the rules and precedents are with respect to this proposition, the Chair will read from section 3466, volume 8, of Cannon's Precedents of the House of Representatives, the following statement:

20. 81 CONG. REC. 3588, 3589, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Speaker may order stricken from the notes of the reporters remarks made by Members who have not been recognized and to whom the Member having the floor has declined to yield.

Before interpreting this statement it is the recollection of the Chair, who was sitting in the Chamber at the time, that when the gentleman from New York now occupying the floor addressed the Chair and asked the gentleman from New York (Mr. Wadsworth) to yield, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Wadsworth) declined to yield to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Curley).

On August 4, 1911, Mr. Charles N. Fowler, of New Jersey, rising to a parliamentary inquiry, asked if remarks made by a Member who had not received recognition from the Chair and to whom the Member having the floor had declined to yield, were properly incorporated in the Record.

The Speaker, Mr. Champ Clark, replied:

The rule has been that if the gentleman from Illinois, for instance, is addressing the House, and some other Member asks leave to interrupt him, and the gentleman from Illinois declines to be interrupted, and the other Member persists in talking, the Speaker has the right to strike out what the interrupting Member said after he had been notified that interruptions were not desired. . . .

In this particular instance the Speaker did not authorize the reporter to strike out the interjection of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Curley) now occupying the floor, because the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole was at that time presiding.

The Chair may say that in conformity with this precedent, and what the Chair conceives to be sound procedure, the rule should be reiterated that when a Member is occupying the floor and a Member after addressing the Chair and asking the Member then occupying the floor if he will yield for a question or for an interruption, and the gentleman then speaking declines to yield, it is not proper for a Member nevertheless to interject into the Record some remark which he desires to make. . . .

MR. [CASSIUS C.] DOWELL [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DOWELL: When a Member has the floor and declines to yield, and no one is recognized to propound a parliamentary inquiry or direct an inquiry to the gentleman having the floor, and the other Member, not being recognized by the Chair, makes some statement, has not the Member who has the floor the right to leave those injected remarks out of the Record?

THE SPEAKER: Under the decision referred to by the Chair, undoubtedly the Member interrupted would have the right to strike those remarks from the Record.

How To Seek Recognition§ 8.4 A Member must be on his feet and must address the Chair at the appropriate time in order to be recognized.

On Dec. 17, 1974,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of the Rice Act of 1975⁽²⁾ in the House, the principle stated above was demonstrated as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the passage of the bill.

MR. [BILL] ALEXANDER [of Arkansas]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. I was on my feet, and I would ask at what point is a demand for a separate vote on the amendment in order.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the question was put on that, and the action has been taken and has been announced.

MR. ALEXANDER: I was on my feet, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Arkansas did not address the Chair.

1. 120 CONG. REC. 40509, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.
2. H.R. 15263.
3. Carl Albert (Okla.).

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, I sought a record vote on the amendment that was adopted in the committee, and the Speaker did not announce a separate vote procedure on the committee amendment.

THE SPEAKER: The Speaker followed the proper procedure. He definitely remembers saying:

The question is on the adoption of the amendment. As many as are in favor, vote aye; those opposed, vote no. The ayes have it. The amendment is agreed to.

That was announced by the Chair, and the Chair then proceeded to put the questions on engrossment and third reading and on final passage, before the gentleman sought recognition.

The Chair acknowledges Members by recognition. However, if he is bound by everybody standing up all over the room, he is bound 100 times.

The question is on the passage of the bill.

§ 8.5 Pursuant to clause 1 of Rule XIV, a Member desiring to speak must rise and address the Chair, and may not remain seated on the committee table while engaging in debate.

priations for fiscal 1977 (H.R. 14234) when the following exchange occurred:

MR. [BARRY] GOLDWATER [Jr., of California]: Madam Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

(Mr. Goldwater asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. GOLDWATER: Madam Chairman, it amuses me that the gentleman from Virginia would seek the supersonic Concorde as the issue on which to wage his campaign against airport noise.

MR. [HERBERT E.] HARRIS [II, of Virginia]: Madam Chairman, I make the point of order the gentleman is not standing.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman from California may proceed, if he should desire to rise as required by the rules.

§ 8.6 A Member must be on his feet and must address the Chair at the appropriate time in order to be recognized.

On Aug. 4, 1978,⁽⁶⁾ during consideration of the foreign aid appropriation bill for fiscal 1979 (H.R. 12931) in the Committee of the Whole, it was demonstrated that, in recognizing Members under the five-minute rule, the Chair attempts to give preference to members of the committee reporting the bill; but the Chair may recognize another where a committee member is standing but not actively seeking recognition by addressing the Chair:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE II—FOREIGN MILITARY CREDIT SALES

FOREIGN MILITARY CREDIT SALES

For expenses not otherwise provided for, necessary to enable the President to carry out the provisions of sections 23 and 24 of the Arms Export Control Act, $648,000,000. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there amendments to title II?

For what purpose does the gentleman from Iowa rise?

MR. [THOMAS R.] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin).

MR. [CLARENCE E.] MILLER of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I am a member of the committee.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin).

MR. MILLER of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet at the time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will tell the gentleman that he might have been on his feet, but the Chair was not aware that he addressed the Chair. . . .

7. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

Let the Chair make this announcement for the last time during the consideration of this bill. On yesterday twice the Chair admonished the members of this Committee that if they had amendments pending, it was their duty to be standing and to address the Chair seeking recognition. Otherwise the Chair would have no way of knowing that they had an amendment to offer. The Chair is for the third and last time admonishing the Committee that those who have amendments not only be on their feet but seek recognition. On this particular occasion the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Miller) did not seek the Chair's attention, and the Chair did recognize the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin), who did seek the Chair's attention.

Rule on Recognition as Barring Badges Carrying Messages

§ 8.7 Clause 1 of Rule XIV, requiring Members desiring to "speak or deliver any matter to the House" to rise and address the Speaker to be recognized, proscribes, in effect, the wearing of badges by Members to communicate messages; thus, the Speaker, exercising his authority to preserve order and decorum, has advised Members that the wearing of badges is inappropriate under the rules of the House.

The following statement was made by the Speaker⁽⁸⁾ during proceedings on Apr. 15, 1986:⁽⁹⁾

All Members wearing yellow badges should be advised that they are inappropriate under the rules of the House.

The badges in question urged support of military assistance to the Nicaraguan Contras. In recent years, some Members and staff have worn various badges on the floor to convey political messages to their colleagues and to the TV audience. Under the definition of decorum and debate in clause 1 of Rule XIV, a Member must first seek recognition and then speak his message, or use exhibits as provided in Rule XXX subject to approval of the House if objection is made.

Point of Order That Member Has Not Properly Sought Recognition

§ 8.8 A point of order that a Member has not properly sought recognition under the five-minute rule comes too late after that Member has been recognized and has begun debate.

tation Act (S. 3521) in the Committee of the Whole on Sept. 30, 1976,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ . . . Pursuant to the rule, the Clerk will now read the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, now printed in the reported bill as an original bill for the purpose of amendment.

It shall also be in order to consider an amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs if offered as an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SHORT TITLE

Section 1. This Act may be cited as the "Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act of 1976."

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. MELCHER

MR. [JOHN] MELCHER [of Montana]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Melcher:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

SHORT TITLE

Section 1. This Act may be cited as the "Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act of 1976". . . .

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Dingell to the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Melcher: Page 1 of the amendment, strike out line 6 and all that follows down through line 9 on page 35 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

Sec. 2. The Congress finds and declares that—

(1) a natural gas supply shortage exists in the contiguous States of the United States. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Interior Committee substitute, and in support of the Dingell amendment which was offered to it.

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. SEIBERLING: Mr. Chairman, my point of order is that the gentleman from Ohio in the well said that he rose in opposition to the Interior Committee substitute, but the pending amendment is not the Interior Committee substitute but the substitute offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell), which completely wipes out the Interior Committee substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Ohio has been recognized. The point of order comes too late.

Recognition for a Specific Purpose

§ 8.9 Where the Chair recognizes a Member for a specific purpose, the Member has the right to the floor only for that purpose.

On Jan. 26, 1944,⁽¹²⁾ Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the Minority Leader, asked unanimous consent to proceed for one minute. When Mr. Martin attempted to ask the unanimous-consent consideration of a bill, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, held that he had not been recognized for that purpose:

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 minute.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will not recognize any other Member at this time for that purpose but will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the generosity of the Chair.

I take this minute, Mr. Speaker, because I want to make a unanimous-consent request and I think it should be explained.

I agree with the President that there is immediate need for action on the soldiers' vote bill. A good many of us have been hoping we could have action for the last month. To show our sincerity in having action not next week but right now, I ask unanimous consent that the House immediately take up the bill which is on the Union Calendar known as S. 1285, the soldiers' voting bill.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Massachusetts was not recognized for that purpose.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky.

On July 28, 1965,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was reading H.R. 77 for amendment. Chairman Leo W. O'Brien, of New York, recognized William H. Ayres, of Ohio, the majority member of the committee reporting the bill, to debate a pro forma amendment to strike out the last word. Mr. Ayres then offered a substantive amendment during his remarks. The Chairman ruled:

The Chair has not recognized the gentleman for that purpose.

Does any other Member offer an amendment at this time?

Parliamentarian's Note: Several majority members of the committee were seeking recognition for amendments.⁽¹⁴⁾

§ 8.10 Members are not entitled to the floor until recognized by the Chair for debate even though they may have called up a matter for consideration in the House.

On Feb. 28, 1931,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Thomas A. Jenkins, of Ohio, moved to suspend the rules and pass House Joint Resolution 500, restricting for two years immigration into the United States, and Speaker Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, recognized Mr. Jenkins for that purpose. Mr. John J. O'Connor, of New York, objected that he had the floor, on a resolution from the Committee on Rules, which had been called up and read but not debated, making in order the consideration of the same measure, House Joint Resolution 500. Mr. O'Connor stated that he had yielded 30 minutes' debate to another Member on the resolution prior to the motion to suspend the rules.

Speaker Longworth ruled that neither Mr. O'Connor nor the mittee of the Whole rise, which are highly privileged and may be made, if in order at the time, by a Member securing recognition for any purpose, except that a Member recognized for purposes of general debate in the Committee of the Whole may not move that the Committee rise, where general debate is governed by the terms of a special rule.

15. 74 CONG. REC. 6575-77, 71st Cong. 3d Sess.

Member to whom he had yielded time were entitled to the floor since the Chair had recognized Mr. Jenkins for the motion to suspend the rules but had not recognized Mr. O'Connor for debate on the resolution.

Parliamentarian's Note: Although under the precedents a motion to suspend the rules is in order even while another matter is pending, it is the better practice to first require the withdrawal of the pending matter in order that two proposals not be pending simultaneously.

§ 8.11 A motion is not pending until the Chair has recognized a Member, who then offers the motion.

On Oct. 27, 1983,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 4139 (Department of the Treasury and Postal Service appropriations, fiscal 1984) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [BRUCE A.] MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, my point of order is that this amendment constitutes a limitation on an appropriation and cannot be considered by the House prior to the consideration of a motion by the Committee to rise.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The Chair must indicate to the gentleman that no such preferential motion has yet been made.

16. 129 CONG. REC. 29630, 29631, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Philip R. Sharp (Ind.).

The gentleman is correct that a motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted takes precedence over an amendment proposing a limitation.

MR. MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, then I move that the committee do now rise.

MR. [EDWARD R.] ROYBAL [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ROYBAL: Mr. Chairman, where does the committee stand at this moment with regard to the motion that has been made to rise?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must indicate that he had actually recognized the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Morrison) on a point of order, and in the process the gentleman concluded his remarks by attempting to offer a simple motion to rise.

It would be more appropriate if a motion to rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as have been adopted, pursuant to clause 2(d), rule XXI were offered instead.

Does the gentleman have such a motion?

MR. ROYBAL: Mr. Chairman, first of all, the gentleman must withdraw his motion; is that not correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Morrison) has not yet been recognized for the purpose of making a motion, to begin with. That is what the Chair is trying to indicate.

MR. ROYBAL: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with sundry amendments.

—Chair May Inquire as to Purpose

§ 8.12 Where two or more Members rise seeking recognition the Speaker may inquire into their purpose and determine from their reply which Member he will recognize.

On Apr. 26, 1933,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following parliamentary situation and ruling by Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, occurred:

Mr. Snell and Mr. Rayburn rose.

MR. [BERTRAND H.] SNELL [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, at the appropriate time I desire to be recognized against the motion to recommit. This is the unfinished business before the House.

MR. [SAM] RAYBURN [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

MR. SNELL: Mr. Speaker, I am on my feet demanding recognition. The previous question has not been ordered.

MR. [JOHN J.] O'CONNOR [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I certainly shall object to the establishment of any precedent of debating motions to recommit.

MR. SNELL: This is not a precedent. Motion to close debate by ordering the previous question has not been made. This is the unfinished business before the House.

MR. RAYBURN: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question. I think I have the right to make this motion.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on ordering the previous question on the motion to recommit.

18. 77 CONG. REC. 2413, 73d Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [ROBERT F.] RICH [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RICH: Mr. Speaker, is it proper procedure, when one Member has obtained recognition, for another Member to be recognized? The gentleman from New York [Mr. Snell] had the floor and was recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognized the gentleman from New York [only] to ascertain for what purpose he rose.⁽¹⁹⁾

§ 8.13 The fact that the Speaker or Chairman asks a Member “for what purpose does the gentleman rise” does not confer recognition on the Member.

On Apr. 13, 1946,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Dewey Short, of Missouri, sought recognition from Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, after the engrossment and third reading of the pending bill had been ordered. The Speaker inquired of Mr. Short “for what purpose does the gentleman from Missouri rise?” and Mr. Short stated that he was offering a motion to recommit the bill.

The Speaker recognized Mr. Edward E. Cox, of Georgia, to demand the reading of the engrossed copy of the bill. Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, made the point of order that Mr. Short had been recognized to offer a motion to recommit. The Speaker stated:

The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Short] was not recognized. The Chair asked the gentleman for what purpose he rose, and then recognized the gentleman from Georgia.

On June 26, 1951,⁽¹⁾ Chairman Albert A. Gore, of Tennessee, ruled in the Committee of the Whole that his inquiry as to the purpose for recognition did not confer recognition:

Mr. Celler rose.

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from New York rise?

MR. [HAROLD D.] COOLEY [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I move—

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, was I not recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair inquired for what purpose the gentleman rose; that does not entail recognition.

On Apr. 22, 1980,⁽²⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 521 (making additional funds available by transfer for the Selective Service System), the following exchange occurred in the Committee of the Whole:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The Clerk will report the committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendment: On page 2, line 5, strike "$4,709,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$13,295,000". . . .

MR. [ROBERT] DUNCAN of Oregon: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Duncan of Oregon to the committee amendment: On page 5, line 2:

Strike "$13,295,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$21,000,000."

(Mr. Duncan of Oregon asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez) rise?

MR. [HENRY B.] GONZALEZ [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Duncan) to the committee amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that that would be in the third degree, and that amendment to the Duncan amendment is not proper.

For what purpose does the gentleman from Maryland rise?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I have a substitute to the committee amendment at the desk.

MR. GONZALEZ: Mr. Chairman, may I then be recognized to speak against the amendment?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, I believe the Chairman has already recognized the gentleman from Maryland.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has not really recognized the gentleman from Maryland. The Chair is determining whether he could recognize the gentleman from Texas.

MR. BAUMAN: The gentleman from Maryland thought the Chairman said, "For what purpose does the gentleman from Maryland rise?" and then the gentleman from Maryland said, "I have a substitute to the committee amendment at the desk." Perhaps I just misheard all of that.

THE CHAIRMAN: No. The gentleman heard correctly. It does not mean that the Chair has recognized the gentleman for the purpose of offering an amendment. . . .

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez).

Seeking Recognition To Offer Amendment

only be standing but must also actively seek recognition by addressing the Chair at the appropriate time.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 26, 1983,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense appropriations for fiscal year 1984 (H.R. 4185):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows: . . .

For construction, procurement, production, modification, and modernization of aircraft, equipment including ordnance . . . and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants . . . $9,994,245,000. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Nichols) seek recognition?

MR. [WILLIAM] NICHOLS [of Alabama]: Yes; I do, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment relating to page 20, line 9, of the bill.

The Clerk proceeded to read the page and line numbers of the amendment.

MR. [JOSEPH P.] ADDABBO [of New York] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I raise a point of order against the amendment. We have already passed that section.

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet at the time.

4. 129 CONG. REC. 29430, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
5. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman was on his feet but did not know that he was seeking recognition.

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I was at the microphone. I was standing. I was prepared to offer my amendment had the Chairman recognized me.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will have to make the observation that the gentleman from Alabama was not seeking active recognition. The Chair recognized the gentleman was on his feet but did not notice that he was seeking recognition by any vocal expression. . . .

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to offer my amendment at this point.

[Objection was heard.]

§ 8.16 A Member desiring to offer an amendment under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole must seek recognition from the Chair, and a Member recognized under the five-minute rule may not yield to another Member to offer an amendment.

On Sept. 8, 1976,⁽⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1976 (H.R. 10498) when the following exchange occurred:

MR. [PAUL G.] ROGERS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

6. 122 CONG. REC. 29243, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [ELLIOTT] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. ROGERS: I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

MR. LEVITAS: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment that I would like to offer at this point.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ The Chair will advise the gentleman from Georgia that the gentleman will have to seek recognition on his own time and in due order.

MR. LEVITAS: I thank the Chairman.

MR. ROGERS: I yield back the balance of my time.

§ 8.17 Where numerous amendments which might be offered to a bill had been left with the Reading Clerk, the Chair requested all Members seeking to offer amendments not only to stand but to address the Chair seeking recognition at the appropriate time.

During consideration of the foreign assistance appropriation bill (H.R. 12931) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 3, 1978,⁽⁸⁾ Chairman Abraham Kazen, Jr., of Texas, made the following statement:

THE CHAIRMAN: Let the Chair make this request. There are approximately 70 amendments on the desk. This bill will be read paragraph by paragraph. The Chair requests those Members who have amendments not only to be standing, but to address the Chair at the proper time. . . . The Chair has no way of knowing whether or not these amendments will all be presented, so the Chair will request that all Members who have amendments be standing and seek recognition at the proper time.

7. J. Edward Roush (Ind.).

8. 124 CONG. REC. 24227, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 8.18 As the reading of appropriation bills for amendment is "scientifically" done by heading and appropriation amount in each paragraph, a Member desiring to amend a paragraph must stand and seek recognition when that paragraph is read, but is not too late if the Clerk has not concluded the reading of the heading of the subsequent paragraph.

During consideration of the foreign aid appropriations for 1979 (H.R. 12931) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 3, 1978,⁽⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

The Clerk read as follows:

MILITARY ASSISTANCE

vehicles for replacement only for use outside of the United States, $64,500,000: Provided, That none of the funds contained in this paragraph shall be available for the purchase of new automotive vehicles outside of the United States.

MR. [LEO J.] RYAN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Ryan: Page 9, line 13, strike out "$64,500,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$59,500,000". . . .

MR. [DAVID R.] OBEY [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. OBEY: I make a point of order that the gentleman's amendment comes too late. The Clerk had already read through the next section of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk had begun to read the next section, but he had not completed reading that section. The Chair did observe the gentleman from California (Mr. Ryan) on his feet, and the Chair would hold that he was timely recognized.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Ryan).

been adopted, and the fact that he may have been standing at that time is not sufficient to confer recognition.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 357 (further continuing appropriations) in the House on Nov. 22, 1981,⁽¹¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 37. . . .

MR. [VIC] FAZIO [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Fazio moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 37.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Fazio). All those in favor say "aye," opposed "no."

The ayes have it. The motion is agreed to.

The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk. I have a motion. I was standing, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: To what amendment does the gentleman have a motion?

MR. CONTE: Senate amendment No. 37.

11. 127 CONG. REC. 28751, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the House has already disposed of that amendment.

MR. CONTE: I was standing here seeking recognition, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, what was the decision?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman may have been standing, but he was not seeking recognition, in the opinion of the Chair.

MR. CONTE: What was the outcome of that, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: Senate amendment No. 37 was disagreed to.

MR. CONTE: And I was standing with a motion, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognized that there were three or four others standing, and the gentleman was in a conversation with one of his colleagues, and was not asking for recognition.

Seeking Recognition To Demand Recorded Vote

§ 8.20 A Member seeking to demand a recorded vote must actively request recognition from the Chair, and the fact that the Member was merely standing at the time a vote is announced is not sufficient to secure recognition.

On July 9, 1981,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3519 (Department of Defense authorization) in the Committee of the Whole, it was demonstrated that it is too late to demand a recorded vote on an amendment after the Chair has announced the result of a voice vote thereon, where the Member making the demand is not on his feet seeking recognition at the time the result is announced. The proceedings were as follows:

13. 127 CONG. REC. 15202, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. Hansen).

As many as are in favor will say "aye"; as many as are opposed will say "no."

The ayes have it, and the amendment is agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Are there further amendments to title II?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Price).

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Madam Chairman, I demand the yeas and nays on the Hansen amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman that his request for a recorded vote comes too late.

MR. PRICE: The Chairman was on his feet and waiting for the commotion to die down.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair wishes to advise the gentleman from Illinois that he may be able to demand a separate vote in the House at a later time but his request comes too late at this time. . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Madam Chairman, the House was not in order at the time that the 14. Marilyn Lloyd Bouquard (Tenn.).

Chair put the vote on the Hansen amendment. Is it in order for a vote to be taken when the chairman of the committee in charge of the bill does not even know that a vote is being taken?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair put the question to the committee, looked to the committee, and then announced the result of the vote.

MR. STRATTON: But there had been no final announcement of the vote on the Simon amendment before the vote on the Hansen amendment was taken.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair wishes to advise the gentleman that the Chair did announce the vote on the Simon amendment and then on the Hansen amendment and that no Member was standing at the time seeking recognition when the voice vote was announced on the Hansen amendment. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: Madam Chairman, I was on my feet. I was deferring to the chairman, who would normally make such a request. I did not make the request.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman that no one was seeking recognition at the time. Merely standing is not enough.

—Motion To Recommit

§ 8.21 While a Member desiring to offer a motion to recommit must normally be on his feet seeking recognition when the Speaker states the question to be on passage of the bill, it is not too late to seek recognition where another minority Member has qualified as opposed to the bill but where his motion has not been read by the Clerk.

On Apr. 24, 1979,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of the State Department authorization bill in the House, it was demonstrated that until a Member desiring to offer a motion to recommit has had his motion read by the Clerk, he is not entitled to the floor so as to prevent another Member from seeking recognition to offer another recommittal motion. The proceedings were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁶⁾ The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the passage of the bill.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is aware that the gentleman is standing and the Chair intends to recognize the gentleman. . . .

Is there any member of the committee that desires to make a motion to recommit on the minority side? . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

15. 125 CONG. REC. 8360, 8361, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

16. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will—

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I was recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair under the precedents of the House, will recognize the gentleman from Michigan to make a motion if he qualifies. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, had not the Speaker said to the gentleman from Maryland, "Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?"

And the gentleman from Maryland was thus recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair appreciates that the gentleman is opposed to the bill; but under the precedents of the House, the Clerk has not reported the motion. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: I make a point of order against recognizing the gentleman from Michigan or anyone else, because he did not rise in a timely fashion to make the motion. Once the Chair recognizes a Member, the precedents will support the fact that he has the right to offer the motion.

THE SPEAKER: On the point of order, the gentleman's motion has not been read yet; so the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Michigan, a senior member of the committee, who is standing. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. BROOMFIELD: Yes, I am, Mr. Speaker. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Broomfield moves to recommit the bill, H.R. 3363, to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman makes a point of order that the gentleman is not in order in making the motion, since another Member had already been recognized. The Chair has already conferred that recognition and had inquired whether or not the gentleman from Maryland was opposed.

THE SPEAKER: In the opinion of the Chair, until the motion has been read, the gentleman has not been recognized for that purpose.

MR. BAUMAN: Well, the gentleman did not yield to anyone else to offer a motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman had not been recognized for that purpose and consequently—the Chair asked the gentleman if he was in opposition. The gentleman replied. The gentleman was not then recognized for that purpose. That is the statement and the opinion of the Chair. The Chair did not recognize the gentleman by directing the Clerk to report the motion. The Chair is trying to follow the precedents of the House.

Now, the Chair has ruled on the gentleman's point of order and the gentleman from Michigan is entitled to 5 minutes. The Chair so recognizes the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield).

Minority Leader Recognized in Opposition to Motion To Recommit

§ 8.22 The Speaker recognized the Minority Leader to call up a reported bill in the House, pursuant to unanimous consent previously obtained by the Minority Leader permitting its consideration under the hour rule, and subsequently recognized the Minority Leader in opposition to a motion to recommit with instructions offered by the ranking minority member of the reporting committee.

The following proceedings took place in the House on Sept. 29, 1982,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of the Export Administration Act Amendments (H.R. 6838):

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, under the special order granted on Tuesday, September 28, 1982, I call up the bill (H.R. 6838) to amend the Export Administration Act of 1979 to terminate certain export controls imposed on December 30, 1981, and June 22, 1982, and ask for its immediate consideration. . . .

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 6838

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 6 of the Export Administration Act of 1979 (50 U.S.C. App. 2405) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(1) Termination of Certain Controls.—Those export controls imposed under this section on December 30, 1981, and June 22, 1982, on goods or technology shall not be effective on or after the date of the enactment of this subsection.”.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁸⁾ Under the agreement, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. BROOMFIELD: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the motion to recommit. . . .

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of the motion to recommit. . . .

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

after the Chair has inquired as to the purpose of another Member rising and an amendment has been tendered.

On July 21, 1983,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of H.R. 2969 (Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1994) the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole:

The amendment was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Gore) rise?

MR. [ALBERT A.] GORE [Jr., of Tennessee]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

MR. [RAYMOND J.] MCGRATH [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present, and I demand a recorded vote on the last amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman's request comes too late on the last amendment.

MR. MCGRATH: Mr. Chairman, I was standing.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman was not seeking recognition for that specific purpose.

MR. MCGRATH: I was on my feet, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the Gore amendment. The Chair did not see the gentleman on his feet and the gentleman was not actively seeking recognition when the Chair put the question on the amendment.

§ 8.24 A Member must be on his feet seeking recognition to demand a recorded vote when the Chair announces the result of a voice vote on an amendment to an amendment, and the demand comes too late when the Chair has then put the question on an amendment to the substitute.

On Sept. 6, 1979,⁽²⁾ during consideration of the foreign assistance appropriations for fiscal year 1980 (H.R. 4473) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Miller of Ohio: On page 23, after line 12, insert the following section:

Sec. 527. Of the total budget authority provided in this Act, for payments not required by law, 5 per centum shall be withheld from obligation and expenditure: . . .

MR. [DAVID R.] OBEY [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment as a substitute for the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Obey as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Miller of Ohio: On page 23, after line 12, insert the following:

"Sec. 527. Of the total budget authority provided in this Act, except for payments required for law two percentum shall be withheld from obligation and expenditure: . . .

MR. [CLARENCE E.] MILLER of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered as a substitute for the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Miller of Ohio to the amendment offered by Mr. Obey as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Miller of Ohio: In line 2, in lieu of "two per centum" insert "five per centum". . . .

MR. [MATTHEW F.] MCHUGH [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. McHugh to the amendment offered by Mr. Miller of Ohio:

Strike out "five" appearing in the first sentence and insert in lieu thereof "two". . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: ⁽³⁾ The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. McHugh) to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Miller).

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question now is on the Miller amendment to the Obey substitute. For what purpose does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Miller) rise?

MR. MILLER of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman that his request comes too late. The Chair held back as long as he could on the announcement, and the gentleman was not on his feet before the Chair put the question on the next amendment.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Miller) to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey) as a substitute for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Miller).

Seeking Recognition To Ask for Yeas and Nays

§ 8.25 Where the Chair has put a question to a voice vote, announced the result and by unanimous consent laid the motion to reconsider on the table, it is then too late to ask for the yeas on that question where the Member was not seeking recognition at the time the question was put.

On Oct. 13, 1978,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 1434 (providing for consideration of several conference reports) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

H.R. 1434

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, it shall be in order in the House to consider en bloc the conference reports on

3. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

4. 124 CONG. REC. 36966, 36975, 36976, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

the bills H.R. 4018, H.R. 5146, H.R. 5037, H.R. 5289 (and H.R. 5263 if first adopted by the Senate), and all points of order against said conference reports are hereby waived. After debate in the House on said conference reports, which shall continue not to exceed four hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Ad Hoc Committee on Energy, the first hour of which shall be confined solely to the conference report on the bill H.R. 5289, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on said conference reports to one vote on their final adoption, and the vote on said conference reports shall not be subject to a demand for a division of the question or to a motion to reconsider. . . .

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: . . . Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ The question is on ordering the previous question.

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 207, nays 206. . . .

So the previous question was ordered.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, has the question on the passage of the rule been put?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the Chair has put the question and announced that the yeas had it and the resolution was agreed to and that the motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The gentleman from Maryland must be fully aware of what took place.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Maryland was listening for the question and failed to hear it.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the Chair waited and nobody asked for a vote on the rule.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Maryland was on his feet and did not hear the question being put. I wish to ask for the yeas and nays.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman was given ample time to ask for a vote on the rule. The Chair has been nothing but patient.

The House appreciates the seriousness of the pending motions and would appreciate having the Members take their seats.

Members Seeking Allocation of Time Under Limitation

§ 8.26 Members seeking an allocation of time under a limitation of debate in Committee of the Whole should stand when the limitation is agreed to, and not after a Member recognized before the limitation was agreed to has concluded his remarks.

5. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

On Aug. 1, 1978,⁽⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration the foreign aid authorization bill (H.R. 12514) when the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendments and all amendments thereto conclude at 4:30. . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Yatron) is recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair will allocate the time to the standing Members after the gentleman from Pennsylvania concludes.

MR. [BENJAMIN S.] ROSENTHAL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ROSENTHAL: Mr. Chairman, when is it appropriate for Members requesting time to stand? Now, or at the conclusion of the gentleman's remarks?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Members will stand now.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Yatron) has the floor and may proceed.

On Apr. 28, 1976,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 611, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1977:

MR. [ROBERT L.] LEGGETT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to proceed for 3 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland is not standing to make the objection.

§ 8.28 A Member must stand and address the Chair to object to a unanimous-consent request.

During consideration of the Nuclear Fuel Assistance Act (H.R. 8401) in the Committee of the Whole on July 30, 1976,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following occurred:

MR. [ABRAHAM] KAZEN [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to yield my time to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Waggonner).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

MR. [RICHARD L.] OTTINGER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the objection is not in order since the gentleman from New York was not standing at the time he made the objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) to yield his time to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Waggonner)?

There was no objection.

§ 8.29 A Member must stand when objecting to a unanimous-consent request.

On Oct. 13, 1978,⁽¹²⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of S. 2727 (the Amateur Sports Act of 1978):

MR. [HAROLD L.] VOLKMER [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to be allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

MR. [JAMES F.] LLOYD of California: Mr. Chairman, I object. . . .

11. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

12. 124 CONG. REC. 37071, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

13. John H. Krebs (Calif.).

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, under the rules of the House, I understand that a Member must stand in order to object.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from California (Mr. Lloyd) did stand at the time.

§ 8.30 In order to object to a unanimous-consent request, a Member must rise and be identified.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Oct. 2, 1984,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6300, the balanced budget bill:

MR. [GUY V.] MOLINARI [of New York]: I would like to ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Weber) be permitted to proceed in order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York? . . .

[Objection was heard, but the Member making the objection was not identified.]

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, who is the objector? Can we identify the objector, please?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair states that objection was heard.

MR. WALKER: The Record would have to reflect the objection. Who objected, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair placed the request and objection was heard.

14. 130 CONG. REC. 28522, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

15. Richard A. Gephardt (Mo.).

MR. MOLINARI: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. . . .

Mr. Speaker, we have others in this room besides Members of the House. It is conceivable that somebody who is not a Member of this House could have uttered those statements and I think we are entitled to know who it is, if anybody is a sitting Member of this body that has raised an objection.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct. Is there objection?

MR. [LEON E.] PANETTA [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. [ANTHONY L.] COELHO [of California]: I object.

§ 8.31 While a Member must be on his feet to object to a unanimous-consent request, the Chair may, in his discretion, entertain a parliamentary inquiry to permit an explanation of a unanimous-consent order to which no Member objected in timely fashion.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 19, 1985,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1872 (Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1986):

MR. [LES] ASPIN [of Wisconsin]: . . . I would propose that we limit time on these two amendments until 5:30, with the time to be divided equally between the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Porter) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Fascell), who would have half of the time, and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Skelton) and the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. Byron), who would have half of the time, and that if additional amendments are offered after that, we have an equal division of time after the amendments are offered, and that there be 10 minutes on that side for the amendment and 10 minutes in opposition to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

MR. [JOHN EDWARD] PORTER [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I might suggest to the chairman of the committee that we simply make it an hour on each side rather than try to divide it up in any other way.

MR. ASPIN: In other words, an hour on each side.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The unanimous-consent request, then, is that there be 1 hour of debate on each side of the two pending amendments, followed by 20 minutes, equally divided, on any other amendment offered to the Porter amendment or to a substitute therefor.

MR. ASPIN: On the pending amendments, Mr. Chairman, with the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Porter) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Fascell) controlling 1 hour and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Skelton) and the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. Byron) controlling 1 hour. At that point we will proceed to vote on those amendments. If at that point other amendments are offered, Members will have 10 minutes on that side to debate those amendments at the time.

16. 131 CONG. REC. 16367, 16368, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

1. Richard J. Durbin (Ill.).

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman proposing that there be 10 minutes allowed for each side for each other amendment to the Porter amendment or to a substitute amendment therefor?

MR. ASPIN: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

Hearing none, it is so ordered.

MR. [THOMAS F.] HARTNETT [of South Carolina]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman—

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman was not on his feet seeking recognition when the Chair asked for any objection to the request.

MR. HARTNETT: There are only two microphones, Mr. Chairman, and we cannot have them all. I was on my feet—

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Even if the gentleman was not at the microphone, if he had been standing on his feet at that time, the Chair would have recognized him, the Chair will say to the gentleman from South Carolina. The Chair was looking in his direction and saw the gentleman sitting in his chair. . . .

MR. HARTNETT: Mr. Chairman, if I might make a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding that when a gentleman or gentlewoman wishes to be recognized, they must rise from their seat. I was in my seat, and I was rising to be heard.

I do not think you have to be standing at all times in order to be recognized. I was in my seat, I asked to be recognized, and I rose to a point of recognition. . . .

MR. ASPIN: Mr. Chairman, could I ask the Chair to ask the gentleman from South Carolina if he would tell us what his concern is with the unanimous-consent request?

MR. HARTNETT: I did not understand it, Mr. Chairman. That is what I wanted to ask.

MR. ASPIN: Mr. Chairman, if I could, I would like to try to answer the gentleman's question.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: For the purpose of clarification of what the unanimous-consent agreement was, the Chair will then ask the gentleman from Wisconsin to restate what his request was. . . .

Just for the clarification of the members of the Committee, the unanimous-consent request was already agreed to. The gentleman from Wisconsin was clarifying the unanimous-consent request for the benefit of the gentleman from South Carolina.

Member Permitted by Unanimous Consent To Take Seat After Yielding for Debate

§ 8.32 A Member recognized to offer an amendment (to a substitute) under the five-minute rule was permitted, by unanimous consent, to take his seat while yielding to another Member for purposes of debate.

On July 28, 1983,⁽²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 2760 (prohibition on covert assistance to Nicaragua) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [EDWARD P.] BOLAND [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered as a substitute for the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Boland to the amendment offered by Mr. Mica as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Young of Florida: . . .

MR. BOLAND: . . . Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Solarz).

MR. [STEPHEN J.] SOLARZ [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding once more.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) may sit while I engage in my remarks.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. [E. THOMAS] COLEMAN of Missouri: Mr. Chairman . . . does the gentleman have the time or does the chairman have the time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) has the time.

MR. BOLAND: Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman yield?

MR. COLEMAN of Missouri: I yield.

MR. BOLAND: My understanding is that the gentleman from New York (Mr. Solarz) asked unanimous consent that I be permitted to sit and there was no objection to it. So I yielded the time to the gentleman from New York so he could continue.

Member-elect Permitted by Unanimous Consent To Debate

§ 8.33 During debate on a privileged resolution disposing of the question of the right of a Member-elect to be sworn, the Member-elect may participate in the debate only by unanimous consent.

On Jan. 3, 1985,⁽⁴⁾ during the organization of the House, the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ According to the precedents, the Chair will swear in all Members of the House at this time.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright).

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, upon my responsibility as a Member-elect of the 99th Congress, I object to the oath being administered to the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. McIntyre, and I base this upon facts and statements which I consider to be reliable. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I have a privileged resolution at the Clerk's desk, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

2. 129 CONG. REC. 21413, 21414, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

3. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

4. 131 CONG. REC. 380-82, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

5. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 1

Resolved, That the question of the right of Frank McCloskey or Richard McIntyre to a seat in the Ninety-ninth Congress from the Eighth Congressional District of Indiana shall be referred to the Committee on House Administration, when elected, and neither Frank McCloskey nor Richard McIntyre shall be sworn until the Committee on House Administration reports upon and the House decides such question. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright), under the precedents, is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. WRIGHT: Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I shall yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Frenzel), and pending that, I yield myself such time as I may consume. . . .

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. McIntyre.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman does not have the right to participate in debate unless the House agrees. If there is an objection from the House, the gentleman may not speak.⁽⁶⁾

Without objection, the gentleman is entitled to 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

MR. [RICHARD] MCINTYRE [of Indiana]: Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

In Seeking Recognition on Point of Personal Privilege, Member Must Inform Chair of the Basis for His Question Before the Chair Will Bestow Recognition

§ 8.34 A Member was recognized for one hour on a question of personal privilege based on violation of his rights as a Member, arising from unauthorized printed alterations in his statements made during subcommittee hearings in the prior Congress.

On June 28, 1983,⁽⁷⁾ Mr. Judd Gregg, of New Hampshire, rose to a question of personal privilege, as follows:

MR. GREGG: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁸⁾ The gentleman will state the question.

MR. GREGG: Mr. Speaker, on July 21 and July 22, of last year, I participated as a member of the Science and Technology Committee in joint hearings before that committee. The printed hearing record of those hearings was not received until April 27, of this year. Upon review of that official record, I discovered that several statements which I had made during the course of those hearings were materially altered in such a way as to reflect upon my integrity and conduct during those hearings.

While the falsification of a House document is clearly a matter involving the integrity of the proceedings of this body, the alterations of my remarks, without my permission, affects my rights as an individual Member in my representative capacity. I therefore rise to a question of privilege in order to clarify the record on this matter.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman states an appropriate point of personal privilege, and the gentleman is therefore recognized for 1 hour.

Parliamentarian's Note: Questions of personal privilege under Rule IX normally involve cases where a Member's reputation has been damaged, particularly in press accounts; but Rule IX describes as the second category of privileged questions, the "rights, reputation, and conduct of Members, individually."

§ 9.1 The power of recognition rests with the Speaker and is subject to his discretion.

On Apr. 8, 1964,⁽¹³⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 665, providing for taking a House bill with Senate amendments from the Speaker's table and concurring in the amendments. Before consideration of the resolution had been completed, the Speaker declared a recess pursuant to previously granted authority. When the recess expired, the Speaker announced that the unfinished business was the reading of another bill which had just been engrossed.

Mr. Oliver P. Bolton, of Ohio, raised a parliamentary inquiry whether the business properly before the House as uncompleted business was the resolution being considered before the recess. Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, then withdrew the resolution in question. Mr. Bolton objected to the recognition of Mr. Bolling for that purpose, stating that recognition of Mr. Bolling was out of order while Mr. Bolton's inquiry went unanswered.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded that the withdrawal of the resolution terminated the inquiry (becoming merely hypothetical). Mr. Bolton objected that the inquiry was made before the resolution was withdrawn and the Speaker stated: "The Chair will state that the Chair has the power of recognition."

§ 9.2 Although members of the committee reporting a bill under consideration usually have preference of recognition, the power of recognition remains in the discretion of the Chair.

On July 19, 1967,⁽¹⁴⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Joseph L. Evins, of Tennessee, recognized Mr. Edmond Edmondson, of Oklahoma, for a parliamentary inquiry and then recognized him to offer an amendment to the pending amendment. Mr. William C. Cramer, of Florida, made the point of order that William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, the Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, which had reported the bill, had been on his feet seeking recognition to offer an amendment at the time and that members of the committee reporting the bill had the prior right to be recognized. The Chairman overruled the point of order and stated:

The Chair is trying to be fair and trying to recognize Members on both sides. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. McCulloch).

The Chairman recognized Mr. McCulloch for a unanimous-consent request and then recognized Mr. Edmondson for debate on his amendment.

§ 9.3 Rule XXV, which provides that “questions as to the priority of business shall be deecided by a majority without debate,” merely precludes debate on motions to go into Committee of the Whole, on questions of consideration, and on appeals from the Chair’s decisions on priority of business, and should not be utilized to permit a motion directing the Speaker to recognize Members in a certain order or to otherwise establish an order of business; thus, the Speaker has declined to recognize a Member who sought to compel recognition of Members for scheduled special orders.

On July 31, 1975,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Speaker⁽¹⁶⁾ declined to recognize a Member who sought to make a motion under Rule XXV to compel recognition of Members for scheduled “special orders”:

MR. PHILLIP BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order that a quorum is not present. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order. . . .

ceeded to the closing business of the day, granting requests for absences and special orders, that it is no longer in order to make a point of order that a quorum is not present?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has not started to recognize Members for special orders yet. All the business on the Chair's desk has been completed. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the rules preclude a quorum at this point because personal requests have already been read from the desk. A leave of absence was granted to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Teague).

Under the new rules, Mr. Speaker, a quorum does not lie after this point of business in the day.

THE SPEAKER: If the Chair understands the gentleman's point of order, it relates to the fact, which is a new rule, not the rule we used to follow. The rule is that once a special order has started, the Member who has the special order and is speaking cannot be taken off his feet by a point of order of no quorum. However, there is nothing in the rules of which the Chair is aware that requires the Chair to begin to call a special order at any particular time.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I move under rule XXV that the House proceed to recognize the Members previously ordered to have special orders today, and on that I ask for a rollcall vote.

MR. [MICHAEL T.] BLOUIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, on that, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 137, nays 202, not voting 95, as follows: . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, under rule XXV, I again renew my motion that the Chair proceed to the recognition of other Members who have previously been granted special orders for today.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Danielson).

MR. [GEORGE E.] DANIELSON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, there is a motion pending.

Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 142, nays 205, not voting 87, as follows:

Points of Order Against Chair's Exercise of Discretion

§ 9.4 A Member designated in a resolution (discharged from the Committee on Rules) to call up a bill having died, the Speaker overruled a point of order against his recognition of another Member, in favor of the bill, to call it up.

On Oct. 12, 1942,⁽¹⁷⁾ the following resolution creating a special order of business was called up in the House following adoption of a successful motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from its further consideration:

Resolved, That upon the day succeeding the adoption of this resolution, a special order be, and is hereby, created by the House of Representatives, for the consideration of H.R. 1024, a public bill which has remained in the Committee on the Judiciary for 30 or more days without action. That such special order be, and is hereby, created, notwithstanding any further action on said bill by the Committee on the Judiciary, or any rule of the House. That on said day the Speaker shall recognize the Representative from California, Lee E. Geyer, to call up H.R. 1024, a bill to amend an act to prevent pernicious political activities, as a special order of business, and to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of said H.R. 1024. After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed 4 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the Member of the House requesting the rule for the consideration of said H.R. 1024 and the Member of the House who is opposed to the said H.R. 1024, to be designated by the Speaker, the bill shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule. At the conclusion of the reading of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, and the amendments thereto, to final passage, without intervening motion, except one motion to recommit. The special order shall be a continuing order until the bill is finally disposed of.

Mr. Samuel F. Hobbs, of Alabama, made a point of order against consideration of the resolution, on the grounds that the Member named in the resolution, Mr. Geyer, had died and that therefore the resolution should not be in order for consideration by the House. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled as follows:

A matter not exactly on all fours with this, but similar to it, was ruled on a few weeks ago. On that occasion both the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee were absent. A point of order was made against consideration of the bill because of that fact.

In ruling on the point of order at that time the Chair made the following statement:

“The Chair thinks the Chair has rather a wide range of latitude here. The Chair could hold, and some future

17. 88 CONG. REC. 8080, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

Speaker might hold, that, since the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee are not here, there could be no general debate because there was nobody here to control it; but the present occupant of the Chair is not going to rule in such a restricted way.

“The Chair is going to recognize the next ranking majority member and the next ranking minority member when the House goes into the Committee of the Whole.”

We have here even a stronger case than that. The absence of a living Member may be his or her fault; the absence of a dead signer of this petition is not his fault.

There is a rule followed by the chancery courts which might well be followed here. It is that equity never allows a trust to fail for want of a trustee. Applying that rule to the instant case, the Chair holds that the consideration of this legislation will not be permitted to fail for want of a manager. After all, an act of God ought not, in all good conscience, deprive this House of the right to consider legislation; especially so, since this House has by its vote on the motion to discharge expressed its intent.

The Chair will recognize some Member other than Mr. Geyer to call up the bill on tomorrow; for, if the Chair were to hold that only Mr. Geyer could have called up this motion, Mr. Geyer being absent not through any act of his own but through an act of God, the Chair would be making such a restricted ruling that now and in the future it might prevent the House of Representatives from working its will.

The Chair overrules the point of order made by the gentleman from Alabama.

On the following day, Oct. 13, 1942,⁽¹⁸⁾ the Speaker recognized Mr. Joseph A. Gavagan, of New York, to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole pursuant to House Resolution 110; the Speaker reiterated his ruling of the previous day when Mr. Hobbs made a point of order against the motion.

Parliamentarian's Note: Speaker Rayburn had ruled, on July 23, 1942,⁽¹⁹⁾ that where a resolution creating a special order of business provided for general debate in Committee of the Whole to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of a committee, and both were absent, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole could recognize the next ranking majority and minority members of the committee to control the debate in Committee of the Whole. The authority to control the general debate may also be delegated by the chairman and ranking minority member to the chairman and ranking minority member of the subcommittee with jurisdiction over the measure (see Ch. 21, supra).

Appeals From Decision on Recognition

§ 9.5 An appeal from the decision of the Speaker on a question of recognition does not lie.

On June 2, 1930,⁽²⁰⁾ Speaker Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, ruled that the motion to postpone consideration of a vetoed bill was not an essential motion whose defeat required recognition to pass to a Member leading the opposition to the motion. Mr. Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, and Mr. John N. Garner, of Texas, objected to the ruling, and Mr. Garner attempted to appeal from the Chair's ruling.

Mr. Carl R. Chindblom, of Illinois, made the point of order that an appeal did not lie on a matter of recognition. The Speaker responded:

This is a matter purely of recognition. The Chair wants to be absolutely fair. If he thought that there was any possible unfairness in recognizing the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Knutson), he would be the last one to recognize him. . . .

The question is whether this was an essential motion dealing with the merits of the question. The Chair does not think so, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota.

20. 72 CONG. REC. 9913, 9914, 71st Cong. 2d Sess.

See Rule XIV clause 2, and comments thereto, House Rules and Manual §753 (1995). The rule provides that the Speaker shall decide on recognition, and since 1881 the Chair has declined to entertain appeals from decisions on recognition.

§ 9.6 A decision of the Chair on a matter of recognition is not subject to appeal or to a point of order.

On July 2, 1980,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of the Rail Act of 1980 (H.R. 7235) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ROBERT C.] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered as a substitute for the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The Clerk will report the amendment to the substitute amendment.

MR. [EDWARD R.] MADIGAN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order. . . .

I understand that the procedure is that the members of the subcommittee would be recognized for amendments first. . . .

I further understand that the gentlewoman from Maryland, a member of the subcommittee, was on her feet seeking recognition for the purpose of offering an amendment, as well as the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Broyhill). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will respond to the gentleman by saying to him that the normal procedure is to recognize members of the full committee by seniority, alternating from side to side, which the Chair has been doing. The gentleman was recognized under that procedure, and the Chair's

1. 126 CONG. REC. 18292, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

2. Les AuCoin (Oreg.).

recognition is not in any event subject to challenge.

Therefore, the gentleman is recognized, and any point of order that the gentleman from Illinois would make on that point would not be sustained.

§ 9.7 A decision of the Chair on the exercise of his discretionary power of recognition (in this case, for a unanimous-consent request) is not subject to appeal.

On July 23, 1993,⁽³⁾ the Chair discussed the appealability of the Chair's refusal to recognize for a unanimous-consent request for consideration of a reported bill.

MR. [STEVE] GUNDERSON [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is this: Is it possible to ask unanimous consent to bring H.R. 2667 for its immediate consideration?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁴⁾ The leadership on both sides of the aisle has to agree to allow that unanimous-consent request. . . .

MR. GUNDERSON: Mr. Speaker, I have [a] parliamentary inquiry.

Is it possible to ask unanimous consent at any time during the day to bring up an appropriation bill for its immediate consideration?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The chairman or his designee could bring the bill up.

MR. GUNDERSON: . . . If, for example, I were to move or ask unanimous consent to do that and the Chair did not recognize me, would it be possible at that point to literally appeal the ruling of the Chair for another Member to bring it up?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous agreement between the leaderships of the Democrat and Republican side, only the chairman of the committee would be recognized to bring up the bill after agreement of both leaderships by a unanimous-consent request. Another Member would not be recognized for that reason, and the denial of recognition to make a unanimous-consent request is not appealable.

Parliamentarian's Note: The precedents distinguish between discretionary exercises of recognition, the conferral or denial of which is not appealable, and "exercises of interpretive authority," in which the Chair bases his decision on a rule of order. Of course, the distinction blurs in some cases. Thus, even where a decision of the Chair is couched in terms of a denial or conferral of recognition, a decision may be appealable where it is based on an explicit or implicit interpretation of the rules and precedents, or where it is in fact a decision on a question of order. For further discussion of this issue, see Deschler-Brown, Procedure in the U.S. House of Representatives, Ch. 31 § 8.

4. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

Decision on Recognition Cannot Give Rise to Question of Privilege

§ 9.8 It is not in order to raise as a question of the privileges of the House a proposition to amend or interpret the rules of the House or to impinge on the Chair's power of recognition; thus, where the Speaker Pro Tempore had announced that he would not entertain requests to address the House for one minute prior to legislative business, a resolution directing that the Speaker exercise his prerogative and reinstitute the custom of allowing one-minute speeches at the beginning of the session was held not to raise a question of the privileges of the House.

On July 25, 1980,⁽⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ . . . As the Chair announced yesterday, requests to address the House for 1 minute will be entertained at the conclusion of the legislative business today, rather than at the beginning. . . .

The Chair believes there is genuine value in the 1-minute rule in the exercise of free expression For all its value, however, the Chair does not believe that the 1-minute rule must necessarily precede, nor be permitted to postpone, the business of the House. . . .

MR. [E. G.] SHUSTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of privilege.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his privilege.

MR. SHUSTER: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

Whereas the custom of allowing one-minute speeches is a long-standing tradition of the House. . . .

Whereas the ability of the Minority to be heard rests to a large degree on the one-minute speeches. . . .

Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Speaker exercise his prerogative and reinstitute the custom of allowing one-minute speeches at the beginning of the session.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair must declare that a question of the privileges of the House under rule IX cannot impinge upon the Speaker's right of recognition. The gentleman's proposal is not, under rule IX, a privileged resolution, and the Chair will so rule. The Chair does not entertain the resolution at this time.

Parliamentarian's Note: As further examples of the above principle, Members may not, under the guise of raising a question of the privileges of the House, give directions to the Speaker infringing on his discretionary power of recognition, by requiring that he give priority in recognition to any Member seeking to call up a matter highly privileged pursuant to a statutory provision, over a member from the Committee on Rules seeking to call up a privileged report from that committee;⁽⁷⁾ or by requiring that he state the question on overriding a veto before recognizing for a motion to refer (thereby overruling prior decisions of the Chair to change the order of precedence of motions).⁽⁸⁾

Recognition for General Debate

§ 9.9 Where the time for, and apportionment of, general debate in the Committee of the Whole has not been fixed by the House, the Chair has discretion as to whom he will recognize under the hour rule.

On July 27, 1937,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate on a bill, where the House had not fixed the time of debate or how it should be apportioned. Chairman Wright Patman, of Texas, recognized Mr. John Taber, of New York, for one hour of debate. Mr. Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, was refused recognition by the Chair, who stated "the question of recognition is one to be determined by the Chair."

The Chairman then answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [EARL C.] MICHENER [of Michigan]: Under the rules of the House, when we go into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, as we have in this instance, without fixing the time for debate, am I correct in saying that anyone recognized by the Chair is recognized for an hour, and has the Chair the discretion of recognizing certain individuals and then permitting those individuals to yield their time to other individuals, to the exclusion of other Members who are seeking recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: That has been the practice.

§ 9.10 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole recognized five Members successively for a total of one hour's debate, where such debate had not been fixed by the House.⁽¹⁰⁾

Announcement of Policies Concerning Recognition

§ 9.11 Recognition is a matter within the discretion of the Chair, and the Chair may refuse to curtail his discretion by announcing in advance whom he will recognize if a certain parliamentary situation develops.

On Mar. 1, 1967,⁽¹¹⁾ Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, stated a lengthy parliamentary inquiry on the procedures for consideration of House Resolution 278, relating to the right of Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York, to be sworn in. Part of the inquiry referred to control of debate and recognition for debate and motions if a hypothetical parliamentary situation arose. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded as follows to the inquiry on recognition:

The question of recognition is one that the Chair will pass upon if that time [situation hypothesized by Mr. Waggoner] should arise.

On Oct. 8, 1969,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. John D. Dingell, of Michigan, inquired of Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, whether, if the previous question were voted down on the pending appropriation bill, he would be recognized to offer an amendment. The Speaker responded:

The Chair is not going to give a preliminary opinion as to whom the Chair might recognize.

12. 115 CONG. REC. 29219, 29220, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 9.12 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole does not anticipate the order in which amendments may be offered nor does he declare in advance the order of recognition, but where he knows a Member desires recognition to offer an amendment, he may indicate that he will protect the Member's rights.

On Sept. 8, 1966,⁽¹³⁾ Chairman Edward P. Boland, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry as to the order of recognition for offering amendments under the five-minute rule:

MR. [ROBERT G.] STEPHENS [Jr., of Georgia]: It is my understanding that the procedures will be for the Minish amendment to be considered and after the Minish amendment is disposed of then I will offer a substitute and it is my understanding I will be recognized immediately after the amendment for the purpose of submitting that substitute. Is that the correct parliamentary situation?

THE CHAIRMAN: Recognition, of course, is within the discretion of the Chair, but the Chair will protect the gentleman's rights.

§ 9.13 The Speaker on occasion has announced his policy concerning recognition for certain purposes, including the times during the legislative day when recognition for such purposes would be granted.

13. 112 CONG. REC. 22020, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

Formerly, Rule XI prohibited committees from sitting at any time when the House was in session; the rule was narrowed to proscribe sittings during the five-minute rule by the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970.⁽¹⁴⁾ Subsequently, certain committees were exempted from this rule (including the Committees on Appropriations, the Budget, and Rules, the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on House Administration). A provision that special leave to sit be granted if ten Members did not object was added to the rule in the 95th Congress.⁽¹⁵⁾ In the 103d Congress the prohibition against sitting during proceedings under the five-minute rule was stricken altogether⁽¹⁶⁾ but was reinstated in modified form in the 104th.

At the time the rule was in effect, the Speaker⁽¹⁷⁾ stated:

The Chair announces that he will recognize Members to make requests for committees to sit during the five-minute rule only at certain times during the legislative day. While the precedents indicate that such requests when pending are not votes requiring the presence of a quorum, the Chair wishes to avoid the need for a call of the House pending such requests but at the same time to assure predictability as to when he will accord recognition. Therefore, the Speaker intends to set up the following guidelines: . . .

The Speaker's guidelines for recognition for requests for committees to sit during the five-minute rule pursuant to clause 2(i), Rule XI, requiring 10 objections to preclude permission following announcement of the legislative schedule, were intended to afford predictability as to when recognition would be granted, to avoid discretionary calls of the House pending such requests, to distinguish between hearing and meeting requests, and to permit meeting requests only on days when legislative votes are scheduled but not after the completion of legislative business.

§ 9.14 Pursuant to the Speaker's policy announced in the

17. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

98th Congress in regard to recognition for requests that committees and subcommittees be permitted to sit during the five-minute rule, the Speaker Pro Tempore indicated on a day when no rollcall votes were scheduled, that such a request (except as to hearings) should be withheld until the next day, when Members had been advised there could be rollcall votes.

The following exchange occurred in the House on May 23, 1983:⁽¹⁸⁾

MR. [NORMAN Y.] MINETA [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation and the Committee on Public Works and Transportation have permission to sit during the 5-minute rule in the House on Wednesday, May 25, 1983.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ The Chair will advise the gentleman that under the Speaker's statement he will have to make that request tomorrow.

Recognition To Offer Amendments

§ 9.15 Recognition among Members seeking the floor in the Committee of the Whole

18. 129 CONG. REC. 13365, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

19. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

for the purpose of offering amendments is within the discretion of the Chair.

On Dec. 15, 1937,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Gerald J. Boileau, of Wisconsin, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to whether perfecting amendments had priority over substitute amendments:

MR. BOILEAU: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, and I do so to propound a parliamentary inquiry as to the order in which amendments are to be offered. The amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New Jersey is now pending. Would not perfecting amendments have priority of consideration over a substitute amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ The Chair has no knowledge of what amendments may be offered; but ordinarily a perfecting amendment has precedence over a motion to substitute insofar as voting is concerned. If the unanimous-consent request is granted, it is the understanding of the Chair that amendments will be offered section by section.

MR. BOILEAU: Nevertheless, it is the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New Jersey that would be before the House.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is before the Committee now.

MR. BOILEAU: Would not perfecting amendments have priority over an amendment to substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: So far as voting is concerned, yes.

20. 82 CONG. REC. 1590, 75th Cong. 2d Sess.

1. John W. McCormack (Mass.).

MR. BOILEAU: I appreciate that fact, but may I propound a further parliamentary inquiry, whether or not a Member rising in his place and seeking recognition would not have a prior right to recognition for the purpose of offering a perfecting amendment to the amendment now pending?

THE CHAIRMAN: It does not necessarily follow that such Member would have a prior right. Recognition is in the discretion of the Chair.

MR. BOILEAU: I recognize it does not necessarily follow, but I am trying to have the matter clarified. Therefore I ask the Chair whether or not a Member who qualifies as offering a perfecting amendment does not have prior right of recognition in offering such amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . [T]he Chair does not feel he should estop himself of his own discretion in the matter of recognitions.

MR. BOILEAU: Does the Chair then rule that is within the discretion of the Chair rather than a right of the Member?

THE CHAIRMAN: In answer to the gentleman's inquiry, the Chair is of the opinion it is within the province of the Chair whom the Chair will recognize, having in mind the general rules of the House.

On June 29, 1939,⁽²⁾ Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, indicated that where a Member had been recognized to offer an amendment but not for debate thereon, the Chair could in his discretion refuse to recognize members of the committee reporting the bill to offer amendments if they had not been on their feet seeking recognition:

2. 84 CONG. REC. 8311, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [HAROLD] KNUTSON [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the Clerk's desk which I would like to offer at this time.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Knutson: Strike out all of section 1 and insert the following—

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York] (interrupting the reading of the amendment): Mr. Chairman, would it be in order for the committee members to be recognized first to offer amendments?

MR. KNUTSON: I have already been recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: If there is any member of the committee seeking recognition, he is entitled to recognition.

MR. FISH: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be recognized.

MR. KNUTSON: I already have the floor, and have been recognized.

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Knutson] has already been recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: Recognition is in the discretion of the Chair, and the Chair will recognize members of the committee first. Does the acting chairman of the committee seek recognition?

MR. [SOL] BLOOM [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask whether the committee amendments to section 1 have been agreed to?

THE CHAIRMAN: The only one the Chair knows about is the one appearing in the print of the bill, and that has been agreed to.

MR. BLOOM: In line 16, there is a committee amendment.

MR. KNUTSON: Mr. Chairman, I was recognized by the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair feels that inasmuch as members of the committee were not on their feet and the gentleman from Minnesota had been recognized, the gentleman is entitled to recognition.

§ 9.16 While recognition of Members to offer amendments is within the Chair's discretion and cannot be challenged on a point of order, the Chair under the precedents alternates recognition between majority and minority members of the committee reporting the bill.

During consideration of the Outer Continental Shelf Act (H.R. 6218) in the Committee of the Whole on June 11, 1976,⁽³⁾ the following occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy).

The amendment was agreed to.

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Murphy of New York; On page 59, lines

3. 122 CONG. REC. 17764, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.
4. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

12 to 20, strike paragraphs 5(a), (6), (7), and (8) and renumber subsequent paragraphs accordingly.

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. FISH: Mr. Chairman, the minority has amendments to offer, including a substitute amendment to title II. It is my understanding that the minority would have its turn at the same time as the majority in considering the amendments.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fish) that that would not come under the category of a point of order; but the Chair would further advise the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fish) that since the gentleman has raised the point, the Chair will alternate from side to side.

§ 9.17 The order of recognition to offer amendments is within the discretion of the Chair, who may either base his initial recognition on committee seniority or upon the preferential voting status of the amendments sought to be offered; thus, where both a pending amendment and a substitute therefor are open to perfecting amendments, the Chair has the discretion of first recognizing either the senior committee member, or a junior committee member whose amendment would be first voted upon, where both amendments could ultimately be pending at the same time.

The following proceedings occurred during consideration of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1979 in the Committee of the Whole on May 15, 1979:⁽⁵⁾

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) rise?

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is this to the Udall substitute?

MR. SEIBERLING: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk to the Udall-Anderson bill, which is actually a series of technical amendments which I will ask unanimous consent to offer en bloc. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Since there is no other amendment pending to the Udall substitute, the amendment of the gentleman from Ohio may be offered. . . .

MR. [JOHN B.] BREAUX [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, assuming there is an amendment to be offered to the so-called Breaux-Dingell merchant marine version, that would take precedence over an amendment to the so-called Udall-Anderson interior bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has the option either to recognize the senior Member first or to first recognize that Member seeking to offer the amendment which will be preferential and first voted upon.

MR. [THOMAS J.] HUCKABY [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, I have amendments at the desk for the Breaux-Dingell bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendments.⁽⁷⁾

MR. [DON H.] CLAUSEN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. Chairman, what is the parliamentary situation? Is there an amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) or the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Huckaby)?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) sought recognition to amend the Udall substitute, but the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Huckaby) has an amendment to the Merchant Marine and Fisheries amendment in the nature of a substitute, and he will be recognized. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) later for the purposes of offering his amendment. . . .

MR. HUCKABY: Mr. Chairman, I offer amendments to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendments.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Huckaby's amendments to the original amendment were subse-

7. Mr. Seiberling was senior to Mr. Huckaby on the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, but Mr. Huckaby's amendment was to be voted on first and he represented the majority position on the committee.

6. Paul Simon (Ill.).

quently agreed to.⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Seiberling then indicated that he had amendments to the substitute, and Mr. Huckaby that he had further amendments to the original amendment. As noted above, the Chair would have discretion to recognize either Member; but the Chair indicated that in either case, the question would not be put on amendments to the substitute until all amendments to the original amendment had been disposed of.

§ 9.18 While alternation of recognition between the majority and minority Members controlling debate in the House, or continued recognition of that Member having the most time remaining, are two customary factors governing recognition by the Chair, neither factor is binding on the Chair, who may exercise discretion in conferring recognition where control has been equally divided, and may entertain a motion for the previous question by the manager of the measure if neither side seeks to yield further time.

On June 23, 1983,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore Jim Moody, of Wisconsin, responded to several parliamentary inquiries regarding procedures for recognition. The proceedings in the House during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 91 (revising the fiscal 1983 congressional budget and setting forth the fiscal 1984 budget) were as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The time of the gentleman has expired.

Does the gentlewoman seek recognition?

MRS. [LYNN] MARTIN of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, could the Chair inform us how much time each side of the aisle has remaining?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Oklahoma has 35 minutes left and the gentleman from Ohio has 21½ minutes left.

MRS. MARTIN of Illinois: Then we will allow the other side of the aisle to catch up.

MR. [JAMES R.] JONES of Oklahoma: Does the gentlewoman want to yield back her time?

MRS. MARTIN of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, I am reserving the balance of my time.

MR. JONES of Oklahoma: Our side just spoke. If the gentlewoman does not want to use her time and have her side go forward, the gentlewoman can reserve her time and we can reserve ours and we can dispense with the rest of the debate.

MRS. MARTIN of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, may I ask the outstanding chairman, the gentleman from Oklahoma, will he then yield that time to us?

Well, we will reserve our time for now and await the gentleman's decision.

MR. JONES of Oklahoma: Mr. Speaker, I would like to state a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JONES of Oklahoma: Mr. Speaker, if we reserve our time, is the previous question then in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Will the gentleman restate the question?

MR. JONES of Oklahoma: The gentleman has reserved her time. If we reserve our time, is the previous question then in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: If neither side yields time, the Chair will entertain a motion for the previous question from the manager of the motion.

MR. [E. G.] SHUSTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SHUSTER: Mr. Speaker, if not the rules of the House, is it not the tradition of the House that the side with the most time remaining takes the floor?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is one variable. Alternating from side to side is another tradition of the House.

—Committee Amendments

§ 9.19 Where a bill consisting of several titles was considered as read and open to amendment at any point under a special “modified closed rule” permitting germane amendments only to certain portions of titles but permitting committee amendments to any portion of the bill, the Chair first recognized a Member to offer committee amendments to title I and then recognized other Members to offer amendments to that title.

On Aug. 7, 1974,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1974 (H.R. 16090) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, made the following statement:

THE CHAIRMAN: No amendments, including any amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill, are in order to the bill except the following:

In title 1: Germane amendments to subsection 101(a) proposing solely to change the money amounts contained in said subsection, providing they have been printed in the Congressional Record at least 1 calendar day before being offered; and the text of the amendment to be offered on page 13, following line 4, inserted in the Congressional Record of August 5, 1974, by Mr. Butler.

In title 2: Germane amendments to the provisions contained on page 33, line 17, through page 35, line 11, providing they have been printed in the Record at least 1 calendar day before being offered; and the amendment printed on page E5246 in the Record of August 2, 1974.

In title 4: Germane amendments which have been printed in the Record

10. 120 CONG. REC. 27258, 27259, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

at least 1 calendar day before they are offered, except that sections 401, 402, 407, 409 and 410 shall not be subject to amendment; and the text of the amendment printed on page H7597 in the Congressional Record of August 2, 1974.

Amendments are in order to any portion of the bill if offered by direction of the Committee on House Administration, but said amendments shall not be subject to amendment.

Are there any Committee on House Administration amendments to title I?

MR. [FRANK] THOMPSON [Jr.] of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer three committee amendments to title I of the bill and I ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the committee amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendments: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Thompson).

The committee amendments were agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there further committee amendments to title I?

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to title I.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. du Pont: Page 2, line 16, strike "$5,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$2,500".

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, as required by the rule adopted by the House today, my amendment was published at pages E5306 and E5307 of yesterday's Record.

Yielding for Amendments

§ 9.20 A Member recognized under the five-minute rule may not yield to another Member to offer an amendment (thereby depriving the Chair of his power of recognition), but he may by unanimous consent yield the balance of his time to another Member who may thereafter offer an amendment.

The proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 30, 1975,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8603, the Postal Reorganization Act Amendments of 1975:

(Mr. Cohen asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. [WILLIAM S.] COHEN [of Maine]: I yield to the gentleman from Delaware.

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair will state that the gentleman from Maine

11. 121 CONG. REC. 34442, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Walter Flowers (Ala.).

cannot yield for the purpose of the gentleman from Delaware offering an amendment.

MR. COHEN: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. du Pont).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maine?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Delaware is recognized for 2 minutes.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. DU PONT

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read the amendment as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. du Pont: Page 32, immediately after line 26, add the following new section:

Sec. 16. (a) Chapter 6 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section: . . .

Effect of Special Rules

§ 9.21 Where a special rule providing for the consideration of a measure provides for the apportionment of time “between those favoring and those opposing” the measure, it is within the discretion of the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole as to those Members he will recognize to control the time.

On Dec. 18, 1929,⁽¹³⁾ Speaker Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the procedure of recognition in the Committee of the Whole:

¹³. 72 CONG. REC. 907, 908, 71st Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [GEORGE] HUDDLESTON [of Alabama]: Mr. Speaker, the rule under which we are to consider the resolution provides that the time in general debate shall be equally divided and controlled by those favoring and those opposing the resolution. I think it would be informative to the House to know just how that division is to be made.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would think that that would be in the discretion of the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole.

MR. HUDDLESTON: Then the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, the Speaker thinks, has discretion to recognize any Member who may gain his attention, and that Member having gained the floor would be entitled to an hour?

THE SPEAKER: Not necessarily.

MR. HUDDLESTON: To what time would he be entitled?

MR. [J. CHARLES] LINTHICUM [of Maryland]: The resolution provides that.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would think that the Member being recognized in favor of the proposition would be entitled to control half the time and the Member announcing himself opposed to the proposition would be entitled to control half of the time.

MR. HUDDLESTON: The Speaker thinks that that would be the interpretation even though it gave the Member so recognized an hour and a half, when, under the rules of the House, a Member is entitled only to one hour?

THE SPEAKER: The resolution provides that the time for general debate shall be equally divided and controlled by those favoring and opposing the resolution.

MR. HUDDLESTON: It does not provide that it shall be apportioned to any particular Member.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would think that the Member announcing his opposition to the resolution would be entitled to control an hour and a half.

§ 9.22 Where a special rule permits both the offering of specified perfecting amendments in a certain order and pro forma amendments, the Chair has discretion to recognize Members to offer pro forma amendments to debate the underlying text between consideration of perfecting amendments.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on May 26, 1982,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 345 (the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1983):

MR. [HENRY A.] WAXMAN [of California]: At the appropriate time after we have completed this amendment, I will seek to strike the last word to make other comments that may be of interest to Members.

MR. [EDWARD R.] MADIGAN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. MADIGAN: Is the procedure that has just been suggested by the gentleman from California one that would be in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will entertain pro forma amendments between amendments.

MR. MADIGAN: Further pursuing my parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman, how would the gentleman from California be able to be recognized to speak in behalf of something that he says he is not going to offer?

THE CHAIRMAN: Between amendments, no amendment is pending. That is why a pro forma amendment presumably to one of the substitutes will be allowed. It provides an opportunity for discussion between amendments.

§ 9.23 Where a special rule adopted by the House makes in order a designated amendment to a bill in Committee of the Whole but gives no special priority or precedence to such an amendment, the Chair is not required to extend prior recognition to offer that amendment but may rely on other principles of recognition such as alternation between majority and minority parties and priority of perfecting amendments over motions to strike.

14. 128 CONG. REC. 12141, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

15. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

On June 21, 1979,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 111, the Panama Canal Act of 1979, the Chair, after recognizing the manager of the bill to offer a pro forma amendment under the five-minute rule, recognized the ranking minority member to offer a perfecting amendment, prior to recognizing another majority member seeking recognition on behalf of another committee with jurisdiction over a portion of the bill to move to strike that portion, where the motion to strike was made in order but given no preferential status in the special rule governing consideration of the bill. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise at this time with so many Members in the well and on the floor to ask as many Members as possible to try to stay on the floor throughout the next hour and 50 minutes. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Bauman: Page 187, strike out line 19 and all that follows through line 20 on page 189 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

CHAPTER 2—IMMIGRATION

Sec. 1611. Special Immigrants.—
(a) Section 101(a)(27) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)), relating to the definition of special immigrants, is amended—

MS. [ELIZABETH] HOLTZMAN [of New York] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I want to raise a point of order. . . .

Mr. Chairman, at the time that the last amendment was voted on, I was on my feet seeking to offer an amendment on behalf of the Committee on the Judiciary with respect to striking in its entirety section 1611 of the bill. The right to offer that amendment is granted under the rule, in fact on page 3 of House Resolution 274. I want to ask the Chair whether I am entitled to be recognized or was entitled to be recognized to make first a motion, which was a motion to strike the entire section before amendments were made to the text of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ Unless an amendment having priority of consideration under the rule is offered, it is the Chair's practice to alternate recognition of members of the several committees that are listed in the rule, taking amendments from the majority and minority side in general turn, while giving priority of recognition to those committees that are mentioned in the rule.

The gentlewoman from New York (Ms. Holtzman) is a member of such a committee, but following the adoption of the last amendment the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy), the chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, sought recognition to strike the last word. Accordingly, the Chair then recognized the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) to offer a floor amendment, which is a perfecting amendment to section 1611 of the bill.

16. 125 CONG. REC. 15999, 16000, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

The rule mentions that it shall be in order to consider an amendment as recommended by the Committee on the Judiciary, to strike out section 1611, if offered, but the rule does not give any special priority to the Committee on the Judiciary to offer such amendments, over perfecting amendments to that section.

MS. HOLTZMAN: Mr. Chairman, may I be heard further? The gentleman said that he was going to recognize members of the committees that had a right to offer amendments under the rule alternately. I would suggest to the Chair that no member of the Committee on the Judiciary has been recognized thus far in the debate with respect to offering such an amendment and, therefore, the Chair's principle, as I understood he stated it, was not being observed in connection with recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would observe that the Chair is attempting to be fair in recognizing Members alternately when they are members of committees with priority and that the rule permits but does not give the Committee on the Judiciary special priority of recognition over other floor amendments, which under the precedents would take priority over a motion to strike.

Second, the Chair would like to advise the gentlewoman from New York that recognition is discretionary with the Chair and is not subject to a point of order. Does the gentlewoman have any further comment to make on the point of order?

The Chair overrules the point of order and recognizes the gentleman in the well.

Parliamentarian's Note: The amendment offered by Mr. Bauman struck out section 1611 of the bill and inserted a new section, whereas the amendment made in order under the rule on behalf of the Committee on the Judiciary was an amendment to strike that section; thus adoption of the Bauman amendment precluded the offering of the Judiciary Committee amendment. It would have made little difference if Ms. Holtzman was recognized first, since the Bauman amendment could have been offered as a perfecting amendment while the Holtzman motion to strike was pending and if the Bauman amendment was adopted the motion to strike would have necessarily fallen and would not have been voted on.

If the Holtzman amendment, and the amendments to be offered on behalf of the Committees on Foreign Affairs and Post Office and Civil Service, had been committee amendments formally recommended in reports on H.R. 111, they would have been automatically considered by the Committee of the Whole, but only the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries had formally reported H.R. 111.

Effect of Limitation on Five-minute Debate; Allocation of Time

§ 9.24 Priority of recognition under a limitation of time for debate under the five-minute rule is in the complete discretion of the Chair, who may disregard committee seniority and consider amendment sponsorship.

On June 26, 1979,⁽¹⁸⁾ it was demonstrated that where the Committee of the Whole has agreed to a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule on a section of a bill and all amendments thereto, distribution of the time under the limitation is within the discretion of the Chair. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto cease at 6:40 p.m. . . .

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 209, noes 183, answered “present” 1, not voting 41, as follows: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ The Chair will attempt to explain the situation.

18. 125 CONG. REC. 16677, 16678, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

Under consideration was H.R. 3930, the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979.

19. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

The Committee has just voted to end all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto at 6:40. The Chair in a moment is going to ask those Members wishing to speak between now and then to stand. The Chair will advise Members that he will attempt, once that list is determined, to recognize first those Members on the list with amendments which are not protected by having been printed in the Record. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, did I understand the Chair correctly that Members who are protected by having their amendments printed in the Record will not be recognized until the time has run so that those Members will only have 5 minutes to present their amendments, but that other Members will be recognized first for the amendments which are not printed in the Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: Those Members who are recognized prior to the expiration of time have approximately 20 seconds to present their amendments. Those Members whose amendments are printed in the Record will have a guaranteed 5 minutes after time has expired. . . .

The Chair will now recognize those Members who wish to offer amendments which have not been printed in the Record.

The Chair will advise Members he will recognize listed Members in opposition to the amendments also for 20 seconds. . . .

MR. [RICHARD] KELLY [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, is it not regular order that the Members of the Committee with amendments be given preference and recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman once the limitation of time has been agreed to and time divided, that priority of recognition is within the complete discretion of the Chair.

§ 9.25 Where the Committee of the Whole has agreed to a limitation on debate, distribution of the remaining time is largely within the discretion of the Chair.

On June 19, 1975,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of the Energy Conservation and Conversion Act of 1975 (H.R. 6860) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, exercised his discretion as to recognition for debate, as indicated below:

MR. [AL] ULLMAN [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the bill and all amendments cease in 2 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, the Chairman has the right at this time to recognize one Member on each side. The Chair will do that. All debate on the bill is limited to 2 minutes. The Chair would be unable to recognize 40 or 50 Members for 1 second or 2 seconds.

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steiger of Wisconsin moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. . . .

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Why, on a motion which the gentleman from Wisconsin made, is he not allowed 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to state to the gentleman from California that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto is limited to two minutes. . . .

MR. ROUSSELOT: But he has 5 minutes on a preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has been fixed on the bill, and all amendments thereto, and the time was 2 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Phillip Burton) for 1 minute in opposition to the preferential motion.

§ 9.26 A limitation of debate on a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; and decisions regarding the division of the remaining time and the order of recognition of those Members desiring to speak are largely within the discretion of the Chair, who may defer recognition of listed Members whose amendments have been printed in the Record and who are therefore guaranteed five minutes notwithstanding the limitation.

20. 121 CONG. REC. 19785-87, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 4, 1975,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of the Voting Rights Act Extension (H.R. 6219):

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto terminate at 6:45 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California.

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: With the permission of the Committee, the Chair will briefly state the situation.

There are a number of Members who do not have amendments that were placed in the Record, and the Chair feels that he must try to protect them somewhat, so he proposes to go to a number of Members on the list so they will at least get some time. The time allotted will be less than a minute.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. de la Garza).

§ 9.27 A limitation of debate on amendments in the Committee of the Whole to a time certain in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; and decisions regarding the division of the remaining time and the order of recognition are largely within the discretion of the Chair.

As an example of the Chair's exercise of discretion, on June 14,

1. 121 CONG. REC. 16899, 16901, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.
2. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

1977,⁽³⁾ where the Committee of the Whole had limited debate under the five-minute rule to a time certain, and an equal division of the remaining time among all the Members seeking recognition would have severely restricted each Member in his presentation, the Chair allocated the time equally between two Members on opposing sides of the question, to be yielded by them.

MR. [TOM] BEVILL [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on these amendments and all amendments thereto, cease at 4 o'clock and 45 minutes p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill).

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has before him a list of more than 25 Members to occupy the next 10 minutes. It has been suggested that it would be possible for the Chair to recognize the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) to allocate those 10 minutes.

Accordingly, the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill) for 5 minutes.

MR. JOHN T. MYERS [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

3. 123 CONG. REC. 18826, 18833, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.
4. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JOHN T. MYERS: How did the Chair make that decision?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has the authority to allocate time under a limitation, and it is obvious to the Chair that this is the most rational way to handle the 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

§ 9.28 A limitation to a time certain on debate on an amendment in Committee of the Whole in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; recognition is in the discretion of the Chair under such limitation and the Chair may recognize under the limitation a Member who has already spoken on the amendment.

On Aug. 4, 1977,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of the National Energy Act (H.R. 8444) in the Committee of the Whole, a motion was made to limit debate on a pending amendment and the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [THOMAS L.] ASHLEY [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I move that debate on this amendment conclude at 2 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashley).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Ashbrook) there were—ayes 37, noes 20.

5. 123 CONG. REC. 27006, 27007, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ . . . The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Howard).

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order. . . .

Under the rules of the House, are not Members who have already spoken to wait until all other Members are recognized until they speak again on a pending amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: No one was up at the time the Chair rapped the gavel, and the gentleman from New Jersey was standing at the time the Chair recognized him. We will be going back and forth, but of course, the limitation abrogates the 5-minute rule.

§ 9.29 Parliamentarian's Note: When a relatively short period of time for debate under the five-minute rule has been fixed in the Committee of the Whole, the Chairman in his discretion may take note of all those Members seeking recognition and divide the remaining time among them, though each may have less than five minutes to speak. But where the Committee of the Whole fixes debate at a longer period, such as an hour and a half, the Chair may decline to apportion the time among those Members on their feet.

6. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole limited debate on a pending amendment and amendments thereto to one hour and a half.

Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, responded as follows to parliamentary inquiries:

MR. [JACOB K.] JAVITS [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JAVITS: Mr. Chairman, is the Chair disposed to divide the time in view of the fact that it has been limited, and to announce the Members who will be recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: In view of the fact that one hour and a half remains for debate, and since it was impossible for the Chair to determine the number of Members who were on their feet, I believe it is advisable to follow the strict rule.

§ 9.30 Where the Committee of the Whole has agreed that debate under the five-minute rule close at a certain time on an amendment and all amendments thereto, the Chair attempts to divide the time equally among the Members desiring recognition; but where part of the fixed time is consumed by voting, it may not be possible for the

7. 96 CONG. REC. 2240, 81st Cong. 2d Sess. See also § 22, infra.

Chair to reach each Member on his list before the time expires, and no point of order lies against the inability of the Chair to recognize each Member on the list.

On June 27, 1977,⁽⁸⁾ the situation described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [ROBERT W.] KASTENMEIER [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all other amendments to the bill close at 5:40 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Ashbrook) there were—ayes 46, noes 20. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier) to close debate.

MR. KASTENMEIER: Mr. Chairman, this is, of course, the Legal Services Liquidation Act of 1977, as proposed by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashbrook). It must be rejected. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired.

MR. [ROBERT] MCCLORY [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, the Chair has not recognized me yet. The Chair read my name, but the Chair has not recognized me yet.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman from Illinois that we have run out of time.

8. 123 CONG. REC. 20916, 20918, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

9. Bill D. Burlison (Mo.).

MR. MCCLORY: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. MCCLORY: Mr. Chairman, when there is a time limitation and Members are standing, it is my understanding that the Chair must divide the time equally among the Members standing.

Mr. Chairman, I was standing and my name was read.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that according to the motion, which limited all debate to 5:40 p.m., we are bound by the clock. Time consumed by voting has required the Chair to reallocate time. Therefore, the Chair overrules the point of order.

§ 9.31 Where debate has been limited to a time certain on an amendment and all amendments thereto, the Chairman may utilize his discretion in allocating debate time and continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule; but he may choose at a later time to divide any remaining debate time among those Members standing and reserve some time for the committee to conclude debate.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Nov. 2, 1983,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense appropriations for fiscal year 1984 (H.R. 4185):

MR. [JOSEPH P.] ADDABBO [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close at 2 o'clock. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Addabbo) . . . ?

There was no objection.

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Under the unanimous-consent agreement, does that mean only those who were standing at the time the agreement was entered into may enter into the debate?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will continue to allow time under the 5-minute rule.⁽¹²⁾

With about 30 minutes remaining under the limitation, the Chair⁽¹³⁾ stated:⁽¹⁴⁾

The Chair recognizes that there are more Members rising that wish to participate in the debate than time will permit.

The Chair has the discretion of dividing the time among Members who wish to participate in the debate, and the Chair would also make a request that those who have already entered into the debate not seek further time.

11. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).
12. Approximately 90 minutes of time for debate remained at this point.
13. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).
14. 129 CONG. REC. 30512, 98th Cong. 1st Sess., Nov. 2, 1983.

Those Members who wish to participate in the debate will please rise.

The Chair will reserve 2 minutes for the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Edwards) to conclude the debate.

Members standing will be recognized for 1½ minutes each.

—Reallocation of Time

§ 9.32 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on an amendment to a time certain and the time allocated by the Chair among those initially desiring to speak is not totally consumed, the Chair may either reallocate the remaining time among other Members in his discretion or may proceed again under the five-minute rule.

On Aug. 4, 1977,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration the National Energy Act (H.R. 8444) and had agreed to limit debate on an amendment when the following proceedings occurred:

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

The parliamentary inquiry is, Mr. Chairman, did the House not limit itself to debate until 2 o'clock?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ The gentleman is correct.

15. 123 CONG. REC. 27021, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

16. Edward P. Boland (Mass.).

MR. GARY A. MYERS: Under that limitation, I would like to ask unanimous consent to speak on the unclaimed time of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Whalen).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Pennsylvania may claim his own time. . . .

Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania desire to strike the requisite number of words and be recognized?

MR. GARY A. MYERS: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

MR. KAZEN: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. KAZEN: Supposing there are 20 of us who want to do the same thing.

THE CHAIRMAN: If there are 20 who want to do the same thing, and they can all do it before 2 o'clock, they will all be recognized, or if feasible, the Chair could divide the remaining time among other Members seeking recognition who were not included in the original limitation.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Gary A. Myers) has now been recognized.

Denial of Recognition for Unanimous-consent Request; Consideration of Bill

§ 9.33 The Chair may, by declining recognition to a Member to make a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a measure, refuse to permit the request to be entertained, and thus register his personal objection as a Member of the House.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Jan. 23, 1984:⁽¹⁷⁾

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: . . . Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that an open rule permitting consideration of House Joint Resolution 100, the voluntary school prayer constitutional amendment, be called up for immediate consideration within the next 10 legislative days.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ The Chair cannot and will not entertain that request.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have made a unanimous-consent request. That is a perfectly proper request by any Member of this body, and it is either objected to or is not objected to. I do not understand the procedure that the Chair is using by not entertaining the unanimous-consent request.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will inform the gentleman that the Chair can object by declining recognition.

§ 9.34 The Chair himself may object to a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of legislation, by denying recognition for the request, and it is the policy of the Chair to refuse recognition for requests to consider legislation not approved by the leadership.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Nov. 15, 1983:⁽¹⁹⁾

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution introduced by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fish) specifying a rule for consideration of House Joint Resolution 1 be made in order for consideration by the House on Wednesday or any day thereafter.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ The Chair cannot entertain that motion without consultation with the leadership. The Chair will not recognize the gentleman for that purpose.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is that this is a unanimous-consent request and it is entirely in order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has the same right to object as any Member, and I do so object.

§ 9.35 The Chair may refuse to entertain unanimous-consent requests for the consideration of legislation that does not have the approval of the leadership.

On Nov. 16, 1983,⁽¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that House Resolution 373 be made in order for consideration in the House on Thursday or any day thereafter.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair cannot recognize for that purpose.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, it is a unanimous-consent request.

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: I object, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair cannot recognize for that purpose. There is objection nevertheless.

MR. WALKER: Let it be noted here this evening that the objection to considering the resolution by which we would consider ERA under the rules of the House and with an amendment and in open debate was objected to from the Democratic side of the aisle. Let that be noted.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state there is precedent for denying the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman dating back to May of 1982 and yesterday and furthermore there was objection heard.

§ 9.36 The Speaker's authority to decline to recognize individual Members to request unanimous consent for the consideration of bills and resolutions derives from clause 2 of Rule XIV, on the Speaker's general power of recognition, and from the precedents developed under that rule.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Jan. 26, 1984:⁽²⁾

MR. [WILLIAM E.] DANNEMEYER [of California]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. . . .

Mr. Speaker, this is the first time I have heard that we have had some addition to the customs or procedures or even the rules of the House, which seems to say that before I as a Member can ask unanimous-consent requests that I must obtain the approval of the leadership of the majority to pose that request.

My parliamentary inquiry is this, Mr. Speaker. Where in the rules does it say that? What is the specific provision in the rules that authorizes the Speaker to make that kind of a rule for this House? . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ Clause 2 of rule XIV.⁽⁴⁾

MR. DANNEMEYER: Is it the position of the Speaker that section 2 of rule XIV authorizes what has come to become a gag rule here?

THE SPEAKER: No. The Chair believes that it has been the custom of this body through the years to give the power to the Speaker of the House that the House be run in an efficient manner and that the business of the House should be done in an orderly fashion and that obstruction should be avoided.

§ 9.37 Pursuant to the Speaker's announced policy in the 98th Congress on recognition for unanimous-consent requests for the initial consideration of bills and resolutions, the Chair will decline recognition for such unanimous-consent requests without assurances that the majority and minority leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection thereto.

On Oct. 2, 1984,⁽⁵⁾ the Chair having declined recognition for a unanimous-consent request that a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution be brought to the floor for immediate consideration, discussion took place relating to the Speaker's power of recognition⁽⁶⁾ and, specifically, to the effect of announced guidelines governing recognition for requests for the initial consideration of bills.

MR. [THOMAS F.] HARTNETT [of South Carolina]: . . . If you are sincere, Mr. Chairman, if your colleagues over there who now say let us have a balanced budget really mean what they say, when you know the American people are not going to be fooled by this move. Let us have companion legislation, the balanced budget amendment.

The Speaker is here. Let us bring by unanimous consent the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution to the floor of the House right now and let us vote on both of these bills if you mean what you say. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent, to recall or discharge from the committee the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution so that we can bring it to the floor of the House with House Joint Resolution 243.

I ask unanimous consent that it be brought before the House right now.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁷⁾ . . . Under the rules and precedents, the motion is not to be entertained.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman did not make a motion, it is my understanding. The gentleman asked unanimous-consent request. Is the Speaker ruling that unanimous-consent requests are not in order? We have already had one previous unanimous-consent request that was granted during the course of debate. How would this one not be in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under the Speaker's announcement of guidelines for unanimous-consent requests to consider legislative business, this request is not recognized. . . .

7. Richard A. Gephardt (Mo.).

MS. [BOBBI] FIEDLER [of California]: Mr. Speaker, before you had dialog with the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Hartnett) regarding his parliamentary inquiry as it related to the balanced budget amendment and his right to ask for a unanimous-consent request in relationship to it. . . .

I would like to ask of the Chair if the Chair will make the inquiry as to whether the Democratic side leadership will also ask to support his right under unanimous consent to bring the balanced budget amendment, attach it to the existing bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has not been advised that there is an intention to change the guidelines that were announced earlier in the year for the purpose that they were issued. . . .

MS. FIEDLER: Will the Chair inquire as to whether or not the leadership on the Democratic side is willing to change the existing rules? I realize that the Chair has indicated twice now that he has not been informed that they have changed, but I am making a request that he ask the leadership if they will make that change.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair states that this is not a proper parliamentary inquiry. The Chair has not been advised that there is a change in the policy that was issued the first week of the session. . . .

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, we are still trying to sift our way through the Chair's previous ruling with regard to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina.

Can the requirement that the Chair cites, can that requirement be waived by unanimous consent?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question has to do with whether or not recognition will be granted for that purpose, and the Chair's ruling is based on guidelines that were issued on January 25, 1984, and the Chair would read from the statement that was made at that time by the Speaker.

The Speaker said:

As indicated on page 476 of the House Rules and Manual, the Chair has established a policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions by unanimous consent only when assured that the majority and minority leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection.

Consistent with that policy, and with the Chair's inherent power of recognition under clause 2, rule XIV, the Chair and any occupant of the chair appointed as Speaker pro tempore, pursuant to clause 7, rule I, will decline recognition for unanimous-consent requests for consideration of bills and resolutions without assurances that the request has been cleared by that leadership.

This denial of recognition by the Chair will not reflect necessarily any personal opposition on the part of the Chair to orderly consideration of the matter in question, but will reflect the determination upon the part of the Chair that orderly procedures will be followed, that is, procedures involving consultation and agreement between floor and committee leadership on both sides of the aisle.

It is that guideline that the Chair is following in this instance. . . .

MR. WALKER: The guidelines that the Chair has cited, what I am inquiring is, can those guidelines be set aside by unanimous consent?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It is the Chair's power of recognition that is involved, and that is the question that is being decided in conformance with the guidelines, not other questions.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: If the House so deems that we could set aside those guidelines by unanimous consent, is that a proper request? That is the question of this gentleman.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will again state that what is involved directly or indirectly, is a question of recognition, and not other or further questions, and it is that question that is being decided in conformance with the guidelines.

Demand for Yeas and Nays; Recognition During Division Vote

§ 9.38 The Chair declined to recognize a Member to demand the yeas and nays when the Chair was counting on a division vote.

On June 10, 1937,⁽⁸⁾ Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, declined to recognize a Member while counting on a division vote:

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion to recommit offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Jenkins].

8. 81 CONG. REC. 5574, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [THOMAS A.] JENKINS of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I demand a division.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Ohio demands a division. All those in favor of the motion will rise and stand until counted.

MR. JENKINS of Ohio (interrupting the count): Mr. Speaker, I ask for the yeas and nays.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman's request is not in order while the House is dividing.

MR. [CARL E.] MAPES [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair thinks it has discretion to conclude the count on a division before entertaining another request.

MR. MAPES: I never knew the Chair to make such a ruling before.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair now makes it.

MR. MAPES: As a lawyer said in addressing the court, "If Your Honor says so, that is the law."

The House divided; and there were—ayes 33, noes 176.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair thinks it proper to state to the gentleman from Michigan that he meant no disrespect to the gentleman, and the Chair feels the gentleman was not deprived of any parliamentary privilege.

MR. JENKINS of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were refused.

So the motion to recommit was rejected.

Demand for Tellers; Due Diligence

§ 9.39 A demand for tellers on a question in the House is entertained by the Chair after a division vote, a quorum count and announcement by the Chair of the result of the division vote, if a Member was on his feet seeking recognition at the proper time.

On June 5, 1940,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that where a recorded vote was refused on a bill, a division vote was had, a point of no quorum was made, a quorum was counted, and the Speaker announced that the bill had passed, a Member could be recognized to demand a teller vote, where he had been on his feet seeking recognition for that purpose.

Demand for Division Vote

§ 9.40 Where a Member was on his feet seeking recognition to demand a division vote on an amendment, the Chair recognized him although the Chair had announced that the ayes had it on a voice vote.

On Feb. 2, 1948,⁽¹⁰⁾ Chairman Charles B. Hoeven, of Iowa, recognized Mr. John D. Dingell, of

9. 86 CONG. REC. 7626, 76th Cong. 3d Sess.

10. 94 CONG. REC. 922, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

Michigan, to demand a division vote on the pending amendment, although the Chair had announced that the ayes had it on a voice vote, where Mr. Dingell had shown due diligence:

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I ask for a division.

MR. [HAROLD] KNUTSON [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, the request comes too late.

MR. DINGELL: No; it does not come too late. Let the Chair rule on that.

THE CHAIRMAN: Was the gentleman on his feet when he made the request?

MR. [SAM] RAYBURN [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, we have always been very liberal in the House about the matter of votes or whether Members were on their feet. We have always been very liberal in the matter of allowing division votes. As far as I am concerned I do not care anything about it.

THE CHAIRMAN: If there is any doubt in the minds of the membership the Chair will resolve the doubt in favor of the gentleman from Michigan.

The question was taken; and there were—ayes 202, noes 37.

So the committee amendment was agreed to.

Recognition for Call of House

§ 9.41 While a point of no quorum is not in order during debate in the House when the Speaker has not put a pending question, he may, in his discretion under Rule XV clause 6, recognize any Member to move a call of the House.

On Mar. 30, 1977,⁽¹¹⁾ a resolution (H. Res. 445) providing for the consideration in the House as in the Committee of the Whole of another resolution (H. Res. 433, providing for the continuation of the Select Committee on Assassinations) was called up for immediate consideration following which a point of no quorum was made. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 445 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 445

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the resolution (H. Res. 433) to provide for the continuation of the Select Committee on Assassinations, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. [J. J.] PICKLE [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present. I move a call of the House.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman's point of order is not in order at this particular time.

MR. PICKLE: Mr. Speaker, I renew my point of order that a quorum is not present.

11. 123 CONG. REC. 9554, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) to move a call of the House.

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XI clause 4(b) prohibits dilatory motions during the consideration of a privileged report from the Committee on Rules, but presumably that clause applies only when the report is being considered under the hour rule in the House, and not when the report is considered under the provisions of a special rule allowing debate and amendments. Although no clear precedents exist as to the applicability of "dilatory" motions (e.g., to refer, to recommit, or to lay on the table) to a report of the Committee on Rules being considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, the better practice is to view such motions as being in order if properly offered.

Motion That Sergeant at Arms Maintain Presence of Quorum

§ 9.42 During a filibuster by roll calls in the House the Speaker, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, indicated his reluctance to entertain a motion that the Sergeant at Arms take action to keep a quorum present in the Chamber for the remainder of the day.

On Aug. 1, 1946,⁽¹³⁾ the House was considering a report from the Committee on Un-American Activities on contempt proceedings against George Morford. Repeated roll calls were made to prevent consideration thereof. Mr. W. Sterling Cole, of New York, raised a parliamentary inquiry whether it was in order to make a motion that the Sergeant at Arms take whatever action was necessary to keep a quorum present in the House Chamber for the remainder of the day, any House rules to the contrary notwithstanding.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated:

The Chair would rather not recognize the gentleman for such motion at this time.

Mr. Cole then asked when such a motion would be in order, and the Speaker responded:

Well, the Chair would like to be the judge of that. Not now.

Dilatory Tactics

§ 9.43 The Speaker announced that he would not hold a motion to be dilatory unless it was "obvious to everybody" that dilatory tactics were being used and that a filibuster was being conducted.

13. 92 CONG. REC. 10639, 10640, 79th Cong. 2d Sess.

On July 25, 1949,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 276, making in order the consideration of H.R. 3199, the Federal Anti-Poll Tax Act. A series of roll calls was demanded to prevent adoption thereof. After the previous question had been ordered on the resolution, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, entertained a motion by Mr. Robert L. F. Sikes, of Florida, that the House adjourn. The Speaker then made the following statement:

The Chair desires to make a statement. Since the present Speaker has occupied the chair he has yet to hold a motion to be dilatory, and will not until it becomes obvious to everybody that dilatory tactics are being indulged in and that a filibuster is being conducted.

§ 9.44 The Speaker declined to recognize a point of no quorum immediately after a vote by yeas and nays which disclosed that 362 Members were present.

On July 25, 1949,⁽¹⁵⁾ a series of roll calls delayed adoption of House Resolution 276, making in order the consideration of H.R. 3199, the Federal Anti-Poll Tax Act. A motion to adjourn was made and entertained by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, and the yeas and nays were had on the motion, resulting in 110 yeas and 252 nays.

14. 95 CONG. REC. 10096, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

15. 95 CONG. REC. 10096, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Tom Pickett, of Texas, immediately made the point of order that a quorum was not present. The Speaker declined to entertain the point of no quorum and stated:

The roll call just disclosed that there were 362 Members present, quite a substantial quorum.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Speaker's declination to entertain the point of no quorum came shortly after he had made the statement that he had yet to hold a motion to be dilatory, and would not so hold until it was obvious to everybody that dilatory tactics were being indulged in and that a filibuster was being conducted.

§ 9.45 The Speaker, on a Calendar Wednesday, recognized the chairman of a committee to call up a bill in spite of repeated motions to adjourn, thereby inferentially holding such motions dilatory.

On Feb. 15, 1950,⁽¹⁶⁾ which was a Calendar Wednesday, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, directed the Clerk to call the roll of committees and recognized the Chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia to call up a bill, ignoring repeated motions to adjourn.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will call the committees.

The Clerk called the Committee on the District of Columbia.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not yield to the gentleman for a parliamentary inquiry at this time.

MR. [HOWARD W.] SMITH of Virginia: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk has called the Committee on the District of Columbia. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan].

MR. SMITH of Virginia: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn. That motion is always in order.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has recognized the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan].

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan] has been recognized.

MR. COLMER: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan] has been recognized.

Demand for Reading of Engrossed Copy of Bill (Under Former Rule); Due Diligence

§ 9.46 A Member who was on his feet and who had shown due diligence was recognized to demand the reading of the engrossed copy of a bill even though the bill had been ordered engrossed and read a third time.

On Apr. 13, 1946,⁽¹⁷⁾ H.R. 6064, extension of the Selective Training and Service Act, was ordered engrossed and read a third time. Mr. Edward E. Cox, of Georgia, then sought recognition to demand the reading of an engrossed copy of the bill. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. Cox for that purpose, stating that he had been on his feet seeking recognition at the proper time (when the question was put on the engrossment and third reading).

Parliamentarian's Note: A Member may no longer demand the reading of an engrossed bill.

Debate on Points of Order

§ 9.47 Debate on points of order against an amendment is within the discretion of the Chair and does not come out of debate time on the merits of the amendment under the five-minute rule; thus, the proponent of an amendment against which a point of order has been reserved does not reserve a portion of his time under the five-minute rule to oppose any points of order if made, as separate debate time is permitted on points of order at the discretion of the Chair.

During consideration of H.R. 7014, the Energy Conservation and Oil Policy Act of 1975, on Aug. 1, 1975,⁽¹⁸⁾ the proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ Are there further amendments to title III?

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Brown of Ohio: Strike out Title III, as amended, and reinsert all except for Section 301, as amended.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment.

MR. [BOB] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I also reserve a point of order.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, the thrust of this amendment is to strike from the bill the provisions of the Staggers pricing amendment, section 301, by revising title III to strike the whole title and to reinsert all in the title, except section 301.

18. 121 CONG. REC. 26945, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

19. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

Mr. Chairman, may I speak on the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has been recognized for 5 minutes, so the gentleman may proceed.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, may I reserve 2 minutes of my time to speak on the points of order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will recognize the gentleman to speak on the points of order at the appropriate time.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I have not yet made the point of order. I reserved it.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Ohio to speak on the gentleman's amendment for 5 minutes. Then the gentlemen who reserved the points of order may press them or they may not.

Reservation of Point of Order

§ 9.48 Reservation of a point of order against an amendment is within the discretion of the Chair, who may permit debate to be had by the proponent on the merits of his amendment before hearing arguments on the point of order.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on May 12, 1981,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3512 (supplemental and continuing appropriations, rescissions and deferrals for fiscal year 1981):

For expenses necessary to carry out the provisions of sections 151 through 166 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-163), $3,883,408,000, to become available for obligation October 1, 1981, and to remain available until expended.

MR. [JAMES R.] JONES of Oklahoma: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Jones of Oklahoma: Page 63, line 19, strike out "$3,883,408,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$883,408,000".

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment. . . .

MR. [TIMOTHY E.] WIRTH [of Colorado]: I ask unanimous consent the gentleman have 3 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Wirth)?

MR. [JOSEPH M.] MCDADE [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MCDADE: Is there not a point of order pending?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: As soon as the time of the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones) has expired, the point of order will be disposed of.

MR. MCDADE: Mr. Chairman, there is a point of order pending which the Chair has yet to rule upon. I have a substitute which I would like to offer to this matter. My understanding of the precedents is that when a point of order is pending, there cannot be discussions on matters other than the point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The point of order has only been reserved and debate on the merits of the amendment has begun. It will be disposed of momentarily as soon as the time of the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Jones) has expired.

Debate Under Reservation of Objection

§ 9.49 Recognition for a reservation of objection to a unanimous-consent request is within the discretion of the Speaker and sometimes he refuses to permit debate under such a reservation and immediately puts the question on the request.

On Dec. 3, 1969,⁽¹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mrs. Edith S. Green, of Oregon, to make a unanimous-consent request for the granting of a special order to address the House. Mr. Roman C. Pucinski, of Illinois, attempted to reserve the right to object and to debate the matter, but the Speaker immediately put the question on the request:

The Chair will state that it will not recognize anyone else at this moment.

1. 115 CONG. REC. 36748, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

Either the gentlewoman receives permission, or she does not.

Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

Recognition for Hypothetical Questions

§ 9.50 The Chair does not recognize Members for hypothetical questions.

On Sept. 14, 1944,⁽²⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to why a report on the amounts of money requested by military establishments, sent to the Committee on Appropriations, had been concealed from Members of Congress. Speaker Pro Tempore Orville Zimmerman, of Missouri, responded that he had no knowledge of any such report and was not in a position to answer the inquiry.

Mr. Hoffman then stated his inquiry in the form of a "hypothetical question." The Speaker Pro Tempore stated:

The Chair does not entertain a hypothetical question.

On Mar. 1, 1967,⁽³⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 278, relating to the right to be

2. 90 CONG. REC. 7772, 78th Cong. 2d Sess.

3. 113 CONG. REC. 4997, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

sworn of challenged Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York. Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, stated a lengthy parliamentary inquiry on the procedure for recognition should the previous question be voted down on the resolution. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, declined to answer that part of the parliamentary inquiry that involved a hypothetical parliamentary situation:

THE SPEAKER: . . . Both the chairman and the ranking minority member of the select committee control the allocation of time. The question of recognition is one that the Chair will pass upon if that time should arise.

On the other questions of the gentleman from Louisiana the Chair will determine them as they arise in accordance with the rules of the House and the precedents.

Motion To Discharge Bill

§ 9.51 The Speaker may recognize any Member who has signed a discharge petition to move to discharge the bill in question.

On Oct. 12, 1942,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Joseph A. Gavagan, of New York, who had signed a petition to discharge a bill from committee, moved the discharge of the bill and was recognized by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, for 10 minutes on the motion. Mr. Sam Hobbs, of Alabama, made a point of order against the motion on the ground that Mr. Gavagan did not have the authority to call it up.

4. 88 CONG. REC. 8066, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Speaker declared:

The rule states that the Chair may recognize any Member who signed the petition to make the motion just made by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Gavagan], whom the Chair has recognized for that purpose.

Suspension of Rules

§ 9.52 Recognition for a motion to suspend the rules is entirely within the discretion of the Speaker.

On Mar. 16, 1964,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Chet Holifield, of California, moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill S. 2448, to amend the Atomic Energy Act. He moved to pass that bill instead of H.R. 9711, which was on the suspension list and which dealt with the same subject matter. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded to a parliamentary inquiry as indicated below:

MR. [JOHN P.] SAYLOR [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

5. 110 CONG. REC. 5291, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. SAYLOR: Mr. Speaker, the House Calendar lists a bill to come up under suspension and it is a House bill. Does it not require unanimous consent to suspend the rules and take up a Senate bill?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Pennsylvania, under the rules of the House, the Speaker may recognize a Member on a motion to suspend the rules.⁽⁶⁾

§ 9.53 Pursuant to Rule XXVII clause 1, the Speaker may in his discretion decline to recognize a Member to move to suspend the rules.

On Mar. 5, 1974,⁽⁷⁾ the proceedings described above were as follows:

REQUEST TO SUSPEND RULES
AND CONSIDER HOUSE RESOLUTION 807

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended and the House proceed to the consideration of the resolution, House Resolution 807, disapproving pay increases.

6. See also 80 CONG. REC. 2239, 2240, 74th Cong. 2d Sess., Feb. 17, 1936.

The Committee on Rules has reported and the House has adopted resolutions authorizing the Speaker to recognize Members for motions to suspend the rules on days other than regular suspension days. See, for example, H. Res. 422, 107 CONG. REC. 16562, 16563, 87th Cong. 1st Sess., Aug. 21, 1961.

7. 120 CONG. REC. 5316, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair will state that the gentleman from Iowa has not consulted the Chair and the Chair is not going to recognize the gentleman from Iowa for that purpose.

The Chair would like to state further that the request of the gentleman from Iowa violates the "Gross" rule whereby he has requested that notification of suspensions be given 24 hours in advance.

MR. GROSS: What kind of a rule is that?

THE SPEAKER: The Gross rule.

Privileged Questions

§ 9.54 The Speaker announced his intention to recognize a Member to call up resolutions disapproving certain Presidential reorganization plans before recognizing another Member to call up a conference report, pending the arrival from the Senate of the original papers accompanying the conference report.

On Sept. 28, 1970,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, made the following announcement:

The Chair has been informed and understands that the original papers on the next conference report have not been messaged over to the House as yet. They will be here shortly.

8. Carl Albert (Okla.).

9. 116 CONG. REC. 33870, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

The Chair will recognize the gentleman from California (Mr. Holifield) in connection with the first reorganization plan [H. Res. 1209], and if the papers arrive between consideration of the first and second reorganization plans, the Chair will recognize the gentleman from West Virginia [on the conference report] at that time.

§9.55 In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Speaker stated that where matters of equal privilege are pending, the order of their consideration is subject to the Speaker's recognition.

On Sept. 22, 1966,⁽¹⁰⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry as follows:

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

Under the rules of the House, as I understand them, this rule, House Resolution 1007, to bring up the so-called House Un-American Activities Committee bill, is a privileged matter, and if it is not programed, then the gentleman handling the rule or any member of the Rules Committee, may call it up as a privileged matter. Is my understanding correct about that?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman's understanding is correct. Of course, the question of recognition is with the Chair, where there are two similar preferential matters, but the gentleman's understanding is correct that after 7 legislative days a member of the Rules Committee could call it up.

If it were a question of recognition, if the same preferential status existed at the same time, recognition rests with the Chair.

§9.56 When more than one Member seeks recognition to call up privileged business it is within the discretion of the Speaker as to whom he shall recognize.

On Aug. 27, 1962, which was District of Columbia Monday,⁽¹¹⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, moved to suspend the rules and pass Senate Joint Resolution 29, proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Mr. Thomas G. Abernethy, of Mississippi, made a point of order against recognition of Mr. Celler on the ground that he (Mr. Abernethy) wanted to offer a District of Columbia bill and that pursuant to Rule XXIV clause 8 of the House rules, District of Columbia business was privileged. He alleged that the Speaker was permitted only to recognize for District of Columbia business.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled as follows:

Several days ago on August 14 unanimous consent was obtained to transfer

10. 112 CONG. REC. 23691, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

11. 108 CONG. REC. 17654, 17655, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

the consideration of business under suspension of the rules on Monday last until today. That does not prohibit the consideration of a privileged motion, and a motion to suspend the rules today is a privileged motion. The matter is within the discretion of the Chair as to the matter of recognition.

§ 9.57 The Speaker declined to recognize a Member to call up a resolution calling on the Office of Price Administration to furnish certain information, the resolution not being privileged.

On July 17, 1946,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. Albert Thomas, of Texas, offered a "privileged" resolution calling on the Office of Price Administration to furnish certain information. In response to an inquiry by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, Mr. Thomas stated that a similar resolution was pending before the Committee on Banking and Currency.

The Speaker refused to recognize Mr. Thomas to call up the resolution for consideration:

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk may read the resolution, if there is no objection, but it is not a privileged resolution and the Chair will not recognize for its consideration at this time because it is not privileged.

If the gentleman desires, and if there is no objection, the Clerk may read the resolution.

12. 92 CONG. REC. 9246, 79th Cong. 2d Sess. For the privilege of resolutions of inquiry, see Ch. 15, §2, supra.

Parliamentarian's Note: The resolution was not privileged as it was directed to the OPA and not to the head of a department.

§ 9.58 When a Member asserts that he rises to a question of the privileges of the House, the Speaker may hear the question and may then refuse recognition if the resolution is not admissible as a question of privilege under Rule IX.

On June 27, 1974,⁽¹³⁾ it was demonstrated that a Member may not, by raising a question of the privileges of the House under Rule IX, attach privilege to a question not otherwise in order under the rules of the House.

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 1203) involving a question of privileges of the House, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 1203

Whereas on January 31, 1973, the House of Representatives voted to establish a ten-member, bipartisan Select Committee on Committees charged with conducting a "thorough and complete study of rules X and XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives; and

Whereas the select committee was further "authorized and directed to report to the House . . .

13. 120 CONG. REC. 21596-98, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

Whereas on March 21, 1974, the select committee reported House Resolution 988 in conformance with its mandate; and

Whereas the chairman of the select committee has failed to seek a rule making House Resolution 988 in order for consideration by the House; and

Whereas, clause 27(d)(1) of House Rule XI states, "It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House any measure approved by his committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote;" . . .

Resolved, That the chairman of the select committee be directed to forthwith seek a rule making in order for consideration by the House, House Resolution 988; and be it further

Resolved, That the House Committee on Rules be directed to give immediate consideration to such request. . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the resolution offered by the gentleman from Illinois does not raise the question of privilege. . . .

MR. ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, I desire to be heard on the point of order. My question of privilege arises under rule IX which provides that, and I quote:

Questions of privilege shall be, first, those affecting the rights of the House collectively, its safety, dignity and the integrity of its proceedings. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I rest my question of privilege on that clause which declares those questions privileged which relate to the integrity of the proceedings of the House. It is my contention that there has been a deliberate attempt to delay House consideration of House Resolution 988, the so-called Bolling-Martin Committee Reform Amendments of 1974, and that this intentional delay not only interferes with and flouts the integrity of the proceedings of this body, but is in clear violation of clause 27(d)(1) of rule XI of the Rules of the House.

Under that rule, and I quote:

It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House any measure approved by his committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Chair is ready to rule.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Anderson) has submitted a resolution which he asserts involves a question of the privileges of the House under rule IX. Following the preamble of the resolution, the resolution provides that:

Resolved, That the chairman of the Select Committee be directed to forthwith seek a rule making in order for consideration by the House, House Resolution 988, and be it further

Resolved, That the House Committee on Rules be directed to give immediate consideration to such request.

As indicated in "Hinds' Precedents," volume III, section 2678, Speakers are authorized to make a preliminary determination as to those questions presented which may involve privileges. As reaffirmed by Speaker McCormack on October 8, 1968 (Record p. 30214 to 30216) when a Member asserts that he rises to a question of the privileges of the House, the Speaker may hear the question and then, if the matter is not one admissible as a question of privilege of the House he can refuse recognition.

14. Carl Albert (Okla.).

The Chair has listened to the arguments concerning the privileged status of this resolution and has examined the precedents of the House in this regard. It will be noted that the gentleman from Illinois has relied heavily on section 2609, volume III of "Hinds' Precedents," in which it was held by Speaker Reed that a report having been ordered to be made by a select committee but not being made within a reasonable time, a resolution directing the report to be made raised a question of the privileges of the House.

That case is distinguishable from the present instance in that in this instance the chairman has made the report and the resolution is pending on the calendar of the House and it does not become privileged until the House has adopted a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules providing for the consideration of House Resolution 988. The Chair does not feel that a question of privilege of the House under rule IX should be used as a mechanism for giving privilege to a motion which would not otherwise be in order under the Rules of the House, in this case, namely, a motion to direct the Committee on Rules to take a certain action.

The Chair now would refer to Hinds' Precedents, volume III, section 2610, wherein Speaker Crisp ruled that a charge that a committee had been inactive in regard to a subject committed to it did not constitute a question of privilege of the House. . . .

The rules did not provide at the time of Speaker Reed's ruling, as is now the case in clause 27(d)(2) of Rule XI, for a mandatory filing of the reports within 7 calendar days after the measure has been ordered reported upon signed request by a committee majority.

In the instant case, however, the Select Committee on Committees has filed its report and the Chair is not aware that the chairman of the Select Committee on Committees has in any sense violated the rule cited by the gentleman from Illinois. For these reasons, the Chair holds that the gentleman's resolution does not present a question of the privileges of the House under [rule] IX and the resolution may not be considered.

One-minute Speeches

§ 9.59 Recognition for one-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Speaker, and he sometimes withholds such recognition in the hopes of expediting the business of the House.

On June 17, 1970,⁽¹⁵⁾ after the disposition of a voting rights bill, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized a Member for a unanimous-consent request to address the House for one minute. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, stated, under a reservation of objection to the request, that the Speaker had announced at the beginning of the day that he was not recognizing for one-minute speeches, in order to expedite the legislative business of the House. Mr. Gross suggested that the refusal to so recognize was motivated by a desire to prevent debate on the bill to be considered.

15. 116 CONG. REC. 20245, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

The Speaker responded:

The Chair will state to the gentleman from Iowa that earlier in the day the Chair did make the statement that the Chair would not entertain unanimous-consent requests for 1-minute speeches to be delivered until later on in the day.

I am sure that the gentleman from Iowa clearly understood that statement on the part of the Speaker. At that particular time the Chair stated that the Chair would recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests to extend their remarks in the Record or unanimous-consent requests to speak for 1 minute with the understanding that they would not take their time but would yield back their time.

I think the Chair clearly indicated that the Chair would recognize Members for that purpose at a later time during the day. As far as the Chair is concerned the custom of the 1-minute speech procedure is adhered to as much as possible because the Chair thinks it is a very healthy custom.

The Chair had the intent, after the disposition of the voting rights bill, to recognize Members for 1-minute speeches or further unanimous-consent requests if they desired to do so.⁽¹⁶⁾

16. See also 114 CONG. REC. 22633, 22634, 90th Cong. 2d Sess., July 22,

§ 9.60 Recognition for one-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Speaker; and when the House has a heavy legislative schedule, he sometimes refuses to recognize Members for that purpose until the completion of legislative business.

On July 24, 1980,⁽¹⁷⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, made an announcement regarding one-minute speeches, as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair desires to announce that in view of the need to complete the legislative schedule, which has been long delayed, the Chair will recognize Members at this time only for unanimous-consent requests to revise and extend their remarks and not for 1-minute speeches.

Members will be recognized for 1-minute speeches at the conclusion of the legislative business today.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

1968, for a colloquy between the Speaker and minority Members on the importance of the "one-minute" speech and recognition by the Speaker for that purpose.

For a discussion of the use of the "one-minute" speech in the practice of the House, see § 73, infra.

17. 126 CONG. REC. 19386, 19387, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, it has, of course, been traditional in the House to allow 1-minute speeches at the discretion of the Chair, as the Chair has just indicated.

Is this denial of 1-minute speeches to be the policy for the remainder of the session, or is it just for today?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair cannot and would not attempt to set a policy for the remainder of the session. For the remainder of this week, today and tomorrow, the Chair desires to complete the legislative program that is scheduled for this week and to allow Members to leave at 3 o'clock tomorrow.

Subsequently, a Member took the floor for a special-order speech to criticize the decision of the Speaker Pro Tempore to refuse to recognize for one-minute speeches prior to legislative business on that day:⁽¹⁸⁾

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) is recognized for 60 minutes.

(Mr. Bauman asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I take this time to observe with sorrow the events that occurred earlier today. I did not wish to explore them at length during the 1-minute speech which I was finally permitted, but I do think they deserve some comment. I will try to confine myself to the 1-hour the House permits me under special order.

I happen to believe that the conduct of the President's brother, Billy Carter, has raised valid questions that need to be answered. . . .

So I would just suggest that we all re-examine our position and only put aside the traditions of the House and the free speech of Members if it is absolutely necessary for good reason.

§ 9.61 A point of order against the manner in which the Chair is conducting the proceedings of the House may interrupt the reading of an enrolled bill (by title) by the Clerk; but in this instance, the Chair's refusal to recognize for unanimous-consent requests to address the House before legislative business was held not to be subject to a point of order, since such question of recognition is within the discretion of the Chair, who may refuse to entertain such requests at all.

The proceedings of the House on July 25, 1980,⁽¹⁹⁾ wherein a point of order was overruled, were as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ . . . As the Chair announced yesterday, requests to address the House for 1 minute will be entertained at the conclusion of the legislative business today, rather than at the beginning. . . .

The Chair believes there is genuine value in the 1-minute rule in the exercise of free expression For all its value, however, the Chair does not believe that the 1-minute rule must necessarily precede, nor be permitted to postpone, the business of the House.

Subsequently, a resolution was offered relating to structural deficiencies in the West Front of the Capitol, and a motion to table the resolution was agreed to. Thereupon the following point of order was raised:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair lays before the House the following enrolled bill.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order at this point. . . .

The Clerk proceeded to read the enrolled bill.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will suspend.

A Member is seeking recognition to make a point of order. . . . [T]he Chair will ask the gentleman to state his point of order.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, prior to the privileged or nonprivileged motions just offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the Chair unilaterally issued a ruling regarding the 1-minute speeches and stated in essence, if I recall, that these speeches would not be permitted today or during his tenure as Speaker pro tempore because of the press of legislative business in the remainder of the session. . . .

I make a point of order against the ruling of the Chair. I make a point of order that the Chair cannot in fact deny the 1-minute speeches on the ground which he stated, and as authority for that, I cite chapter 21, section 7 of Deschler's, wherein there are several instances, including those referring to July 22, 1968; June 17, 1970; and October 19, 1966, where the Chair declined to recognize Members for 1-minute speeches because of the press of business, a heavy legislative schedule, which is Deschler's phrase, and proceeding to unfinished business.

Mr. Speaker, my point of order is that the traditions of the House, as evidenced in these precedents, indicate the Chair has the discretion to deny 1-minute speeches on those grounds, but that the ruling of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright), the Speaker pro tempore, has, in fact, allowed an arbitrary ground to be used at a time when there is no press of heavy legislative business manifested by the fact that the Speaker and others have announced that we will adjourn today at 3 o'clock when we can easily stay here and deal with any pressing legislative business if that exists.

Further my point of order is that the Speaker has departed from past traditions and, therefore, has exceeded his discretion in regard to 1-minutes as supported by the traditions of the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order, unless other Members insist on being heard. The Chair is prepared to rule.

The gentleman's point of order in the first place comes too late. But the Chair is prepared to state that in any event it is not a sustainable point of order.

The gentleman from Maryland is aware, because he is a scholar of the rules of the House, and he is aware of the great thrust of the very section to which he made reference, paragraph 7 of chapter 21 of Deschler's Procedure.

The Chair would simply recite one or two of the precedents therein reported. Recognition for 1-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Speaker, and his evaluation of the time consumed is a matter for the Chair and is not subject to challenge or question by parliamentary inquiry.

Parliamentarian's Note: In the above instance, the Chair entertained an appeal from his ruling that no point of order lay against his refusal to entertain unanimous-consent requests to address the House before legislative business, even though such a point of order, addressed to a question of recognition, is not ordinarily subject to appeal.⁽¹⁾ The appeal was laid on the table.⁽²⁾

§ 9.62 Recognition is within the discretion of the Chair, who may deny a Member recognition to speak under the "one-minute rule" in order to uphold order and decorum in the House as required under clause 2 of Rule I; thus, the Speaker inquired of a Member in the well seeking recognition, as to his purpose in utilizing an object for demonstration in debate, and then denied that Member recognition pursuant to his authority under clause 2 of Rule XIV, when he determined that the object might subject the House to ridicule.

1. See 2 Hinds' Precedents §§ 1425-1428; 6 Cannon's Precedents § 292; and 8 Cannon's Precedents §§ 2429, 2646, 2762.

On Aug. 27, 1980,⁽³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ The Chair would ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Shuster) what he intends to do with the doll. The Chair is not going to allow the Congress to be held up to ridicule and will object to any such exhibit being used in debate.

MR. [E. G.] SHUSTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, if I may respond, I simply want to introduce this duck as a symbol of the lameduck session that I want to speak to.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is of the opinion the Member would be holding the House up to ridicule and would ask the gentleman to make the speech without utilizing the apparatus or the doll or anything of that nature.

MR. SHUSTER: Mr. Speaker, this is certainly not the intention.

THE SPEAKER: That is the way the Chair feels about it and the Chair so rules.

3. 126 CONG. REC. 23456, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.
4. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

(Mr. Shuster asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Parliamentarian's Note: The original transcript shows that the Speaker first inquired as to Mr. Shuster's purpose and then denied him recognition, and that Mr. Shuster was then recognized for one minute. Thus, the Speaker was exercising his power of recognition, and was not unilaterally preventing the use of a demonstration during debate, which would be a matter to be determined by a vote of the House, under Rule XXX.

Special-order Speeches

§ 9.63 The Speaker is not required to recognize Members for scheduled "special order" speeches immediately upon completion of legislative business but may continue to recognize other Members for unanimous-consent requests and permissible motions.

On July 31, 1975,⁽⁵⁾ the proposition stated above was demonstrated in the House as follows:

MR. JOHN L. BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

5. 121 CONG. REC. 26243-47, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ The motion is not in order since we just had a vote on a similar motion and there has been no intervening business or debate. . . .

The Chair will take unanimous-consent requests.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recess subject to the call of the Chair.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state to the gentleman that is not a privileged motion. The Chair cannot entertain that motion at this time.

MR. [WILLIAM L.] ARMSTRONG [of Colorado]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is will the Chair state what is the pending business before the House?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state there is no pending business. . . .

MR. ARMSTRONG: Mr. Speaker, under a previous order of the House I have been granted a special order for 60 minutes. I ask to be recognized at this time for that purpose.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Colorado does not have the first special order.

MR. [BARBER B.] CONABLE [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I believe I have the first special order, and I ask to be recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is not going to recognize any special order at this time, and the Chair has that authority. . . .

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONER [Jr., of Louisiana]: . . . Mr. Speaker, is it not correct to say that if a unanimous-consent request to allow the Committee on Rules until midnight to file a report on the Turkish aid issue now being debated by the other body, was granted, that the House could then adjourn and at the same time work its will because then, if the Committee on Rules files a report, it could be considered then under the rules of the House, and if they did not file a report, the issue would be moot?

6. Carl Albert (Okla.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that that is an accurate statement of the situation, as the Chair understands it. . . .

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, there have been some remarks made that the House would be denied its will and there would be no way to consider the matter in the event the other body agreed to some legislation tonight. Am I correct in the proposition that if a bill is passed by the other body tonight, there is a procedure under the rules whereby the matter could be considered tomorrow? . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state this. The regular rule is that a report from the Rules Committee has to go over 1 day or it takes a two-thirds vote for consideration on the day reported. The other way is that a unanimous-consent request can be made, and if the Committee on Rules can file it by 10 o'clock tomorrow, and the House adjourns tonight, then it will take a majority vote for consideration tomorrow after the House meets, just as it always does on a subsequent legislative day.

§ 9.64 The Speaker may not be compelled by a motion under Rule XXV to recognize Members for scheduled "special orders" immediately upon completion of scheduled legislative business, but rather may continue to exercise his power of recognition under Rule XIV clause 2 to recognize other Members for unanimous-consent requests and permissible motions; thus, the Speaker has declined to recognize a Member who sought to invoke Rule XXV to interfere with the Speaker's power of recognition.

Rule XXV, which provides that "questions as to the priority of business shall be decided by a majority without debate," merely precludes debate on motions to go into Committee of the Whole, on questions of consideration, and on appeals from the Chair's decisions on priority of business, and should not be utilized to permit a motion directing the Speaker to recognize Members in a certain order or to otherwise establish an order of business. Thus, for example, on July 31, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ the Speaker⁽⁸⁾ refused to recognize a Member who sought to make a motion to direct recognition of Members for special orders.

MR. PHILLIP BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order that a quorum is not present.

7. 121 CONG. REC. 26249, 26251, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

8. Carl Albert (Okla.).

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make the point of order to this effect: Under the new rules of the House, is it not true that once the House has proceeded to the closing business of the day, granting requests for absences and special orders, that it is no longer in order to make a point of order that a quorum is not present?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has not started to recognize Members for special orders yet. All the business on the Chair's desk has been completed. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the rules preclude a quorum at this point because personal requests have already been read from the desk. A leave of absence was granted to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Teague).

Under the new rules, Mr. Speaker, a quorum does not lie after this point of business in the day.

THE SPEAKER: If the Chair understands the gentleman's point of order, it relates to the fact, which is a new rule, not the rule we used to follow. The rule is that once a special order has started, the Member who has the special order and is speaking cannot be taken off his feet by a point of order of no quorum. However, there is nothing in the rules of which the Chair is aware that requires the Chair to begin to call a special order at any particular time.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I move under rule XXV that the House proceed to recognize the Members previously ordered to have special orders today, and on that I ask for a rollcall vote.

MR. [MICHAEL T.] BLOUIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, on that, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 137, nays 202, not voting 95, as follows: . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, under rule XXV, I again renew my motion that the Chair proceed to the recognition of other Members who have previously been granted special orders for today.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Danielson).

MR. [GEORGE E.] DANIELSON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, there is a motion pending.

Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 142, nays 205, not voting 87, as follows: . . .

§ 9.65 Once special orders have begun, it is customary not to resume legislative business, however this custom is not binding on the House and the Speaker has the authority to recognize for further business; thus, on occasion the Speaker has announced that he would begin to call the special orders, which action would not prejudice calling up of further legislative business later that day.

On Aug. 1, 1975,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, made the following statement:

THE SPEAKER: . . . The normal procedure, as the Members know, special orders are called when the legislative business has ended. We have not called special orders yet.

We have at least three bills, to my knowledge, that may come over here from the Senate.

The Chair would like to take the special orders and reserve the authority to call up these bills at a later time. . . .

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

THE SPEAKER: Without prejudice to calling up other legislative business which might come over to the House

9. 121 CONG. REC. 26952-54, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

from the Senate, the Chair will call the special orders at this time.

Recognition for Legislative Business After Special-order Speeches

§ 9.66 The Speaker announced, after a point of order had been sustained against the consideration of further scheduled legislative business for the day (necessitating consideration of a resolution by the Committee on Rules and by the House), that he had the prerogative and intention to recognize Members for consideration of further legislative business after special-order speeches had been conducted in order to complete the schedule for the day, notwithstanding the customary, but non-binding, practice that legislative business is not conducted once special-order speeches have begun.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Mar. 22, 1983:⁽¹⁰⁾

10. 129 CONG. REC. 6501, 6503, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

POINT OF ORDER AGAINST CONSIDERATION OF HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 91, FIRST CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET—FISCAL YEAR 1984

MR. [TOM] LOEFFLER [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I have a point of order against consideration of this budget resolution.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. LOEFFLER: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order against the consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 91, which is the House concurrent budget resolution for fiscal year 1984, on the grounds that its consideration would violate the provisions of clause 2(l)(6) of rule XI of the rules of the House [prohibiting the consideration of any measure or matter in the House reported by any committee (except the Committee on Rules) unless copies of the report and reported measure have been available to Members for at least three days]. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair believes that while House Resolution 144 was intended to permit immediate consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 91, the provisions of clause 2(l)(6), rule XI do technically—under the second sentence of that clause—separately require a 3-day availability of the Budget Committee's report. That part of the rule was not separately waived, and although the 10-day rule was waived effectively, the Chair will sustain the point of order and advise that under that rule the Rules Committee may immediately report out and call up a special order waiving the 3-day rule.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair's understanding now is that the Rules Committee will meet and will report back somewhere around the time of 8:30. The Chair will go to Special Orders at this particular time and we could ask for a recess subject to the call of the Chair and the reporting of the Rules Committee.

Following a parliamentary inquiry that interceded at this point, the Speaker made the following announcement:

THE SPEAKER: The Chair announces, it is the intention and the prerogative of the Speaker after special orders to call up business, in case there is anybody lingering out there that thinks the Speaker does not have that power.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I had understood that it is not formalized by the rules, but there is an informal arrangement that had been agreed to early in the Congress that we would not take up business after special orders had been started.

Is that now going to be canceled at the discretion of the Chair, is that my understanding of what the Speaker is saying?

THE SPEAKER: I am sure as the gentleman appreciates, it is the special duty of the Speaker to see that the program of the day is put through. When the occasion arises when there is an exception, the Speaker would act in the best interests of the majority of the House and not just an individual or two in the eyes of the Speaker, and consequently it would be understood by the precedents that that is the way the Speaker would act and the Speaker would recognize for consideration of legislation.

11. Charles E. Bennett (Fla.).

12. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Motion To Recommit

§ 9.67 The Chair will generally recognize a minority Member (who is opposed to the measure) to offer a motion to recommit, but is not required to recognize any particular minority Member where no minority committee member seeks recognition.

On Feb. 3, 1944,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering S. 1285, providing voting for members of the armed services. A discussion about recognition for a motion to recommit ensued, and Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, took the floor to explain the Chair's position:

MR. [JOSEPH W.] MARTIN [Jr.], of Massachusetts: I might say to the gentleman from Missouri there has been a good deal of discussion about this motion to recommit. We have had one contest which was wrongly interpreted in which we fought to preserve the integrity of the rules of the House and to protect a right that has always belonged to the minority. . . .

I am perfectly willing for the Chairman to recognize the gentleman from California [Mr. Anderson] to make that motion, and he is, I know, opposed to the bill. . . .

MR. [JOHN J.] COCHRAN [of Missouri]: Unless he is opposed to the bill he is not qualified.

MR. [JOHN Z.] ANDERSON of California: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. COCHRAN: I yield to the gentleman from California.

MR. ANDERSON of California: I will say to the gentleman from Missouri that I have a motion to recommit which will request the Committee on Election of President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress to report back the bill forthwith with the Worley bill in it. I trust that I will be recognized. . . .

MR. RAYBURN: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. COCHRAN: I yield to the distinguished Speaker of the House.

MR. RAYBURN: I trust that this colloquy will not take away from the Speaker what has always been his prerogative, to recognize any member of the minority to offer a motion to recommit when no member of the committee offers a motion.

MR. COCHRAN: In my opinion no Member on the minority side who is a member of the committee can stand up, in view of the fact that they all signed the report, and say he is opposed to the bill. Therefore some person outside of the committee will have to do it.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. COCHRAN: I yield.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: There will be no minority member of the committee, in my opinion, who can stand up and say he is opposed to the bill, but I would like to address a word or two to my beloved friend, the Speaker. I realize it rests with the Speaker to recognize the Member to make the motion to recommit. The clear intent of the rule, however, in my opinion, is to give that weapon of recommitment to the minority and not to any minority of the minority.

MR. RAYBURN: I just wanted to make it entirely clear that I always recognize somebody in the minority if they qualify, but I could not allow anybody to commit me to recognize any particular member of the minority.

Motion To Adjourn

§ 9.68 Where the two Houses have adopted a concurrent resolution permitting an adjournment of the House to a day certain in excess of three days upon motion made by the Majority Leader or a Member designated by him, the Speaker may recognize the Member so designated to move to adjourn pursuant to the concurrent resolution, over another Member whose motion to adjourn if agreed to would only permit the House to adjourn overnight.

On Aug. 4, 1983,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

14. 129 CONG. REC. 23244, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

MR. [HANK] BROWN of Colorado: Mr. Speaker, I have a privileged motion. I move the House adjourn.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

MR. [HENRY B.] GONZALEZ [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution 153, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Recognition for Debate Under Reservation of Right To Object to Adoption of Adjournment Resolution

§ 9.69 A concurrent resolution providing for an adjournment of more than three days for the House and Senate is not debatable, but the Chair may in his discretion recognize for debate under a reservation of the right to object (to adoption of the resolution).

On Aug. 27, 1980,⁽¹⁶⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House during consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 118:

The Speaker laid before the House the privileged Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 118) providing for a recess of the Senate from August 27 to September 3, 1980, and an adjournment of the House from August 28 to September 3, 1980.

16. 126 CONG. REC. 23459, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate concurrent resolution.

The Clerk read the Senate concurrent resolution, as follows:

S. CON. RES. 118

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That when the Senate completes its business on Wednesday, August 27, 1980, it stand in recess until 10 o'clock a.m. on Wednesday, September 3, 1980, and that when the House completes its business on Thursday, August 28, 1980, it stand adjourned until 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, September 3, 1980.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ Without objection, the Senate concurrent resolution is concurred in.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, are we permitted to debate this matter?

THE SPEAKER: No, it is not debatable.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I wondered whether any Member intended to explain the necessity for the recess, in view of the fact there has been some objection quite obviously from the minority about recessing at all because of the announced lameduck session. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that this is a long-announced recess, since the beginning of the year, and Members from both sides of the aisle expect to be home, of course, and in their district through Labor Day. . . .

The leadership, I am sure, was in agreement with this earlier in the year when the schedule for the year was printed.

The question comes on adoption of the Senate concurrent resolution. Without objection—

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I would further reserve the right to object, unless the Chair wants to put the question.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would like to put the question unless the gentleman desires to say something further. Does the gentleman reserve the right to object to adopting the concurrent resolution by unanimous consent?

MR. BAUMAN: I reserve the right to object, Mr. Speaker.

I am only saying, Mr. Speaker, that the legislative schedule has been changed before. We have been told that we will recess on October 4, as opposed to staying and completing our work, and then we will come back into further session after the election. If that kind of a major change can be made, it seems to me there is still time for us to consider the possibility of staying in session, as has been suggested by the minority leader, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Rhodes).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will put the question, and the Members, if they desire to vote on it, may vote as they see fit.

MR. BAUMAN: I thank the Chair and I urge a vote against the recess so that we can stay here and finish our business and avoid a lameduck session.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the Senate concurrent resolution.

§ 10. Recognition for Unanimous-consent Requests; One-minute and Special-order Speeches

The Speaker or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole has discretion whether or not to entertain unanimous-consent requests. Requests are not entertained which are prohibited by rule,⁽¹⁸⁾ which unduly delay legislative business,⁽¹⁹⁾ or which affect legislation and the order of business without the consent of the leadership and of relevant committees.⁽²⁰⁾

The Chair has entertained a unanimous-consent request which limits the Chair's power of recognition,⁽¹⁾ but either the Speaker or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may make his own objection to any unanimous-consent request by refusing to entertain it.⁽²⁾

Recognition for one-minute speeches (by unanimous consent) and the order of such recognition⁽³⁾ are entirely within the discretion of the Speaker; and when the House has a heavy legislative schedule, the Speaker may refuse to recognize Members for that purpose until the completion of legislative business.⁽⁴⁾ It is not in order to raise as a question of the privileges of the House a resolution directing the Speaker to recognize for such speeches, since a question of privilege cannot amend or interpret the rules of the House.⁽⁵⁾

Since the 98th Congress, the Speaker has announced a policy for recognition for one-minute and special-order speeches as follows: (1) alternation of recognition between majority and minority Members; (2) recognition first for special-order speeches of five minutes or less, alternating between majority and minority Members, in the order in which requests were granted; and (3) final recognition for special-order speeches of between five minutes and one hour, alternating between majority and minority Members, in the order in which requests were granted.⁽⁶⁾ In the 101st Congress, the Chair continued the practice of alternating recognition, but began a practice of recognizing Members in an order as suggested by their party leadership, for one-minute speeches, before others seeking such recognition in the well. While the Chair's calculation of time consumed under one-minute speeches is not subject to challenge, the Chair endeavors to recognize majority and then minority Members by allocating time in a non-partisan manner.⁽⁷⁾ Prior to legislative business, the Speaker will traditionally recognize a Member only once by unanimous consent for a one-minute speech, and will not entertain a second request.⁽⁸⁾

When Members are addressing the House during "one-minute speeches," the Chair declines to entertain unanimous-consent requests for extensions of that time; Members who continue beyond the expiration of that time as announced by the Chair are not engaging in proper debate.

Since Feb. 23, 1994, the Speaker's announced policies for recognition for special-order speeches have been as follows:⁽⁹⁾ (1) recognition does not extend beyond midnight; (2) recognition is granted first for speeches of five minutes or less;⁽¹⁰⁾ (3) recognition for longer speeches is limited (except on Tuesdays) to four hours equally divided between the majority and minority; (4) the first hour for each party is reserved to its respective Leader or his designees; (5) time within each party is allotted in accordance with a list submitted to the Chair by the respective Leader; (6) the first recognition within a category alternates between the parties from day to day, regardless of when requests were granted; (7) Members may not enter requests for five-minute special orders earlier than one week in advance; and (8) the respective Leaders may establish additional guidelines for entering requests.

Beginning in the second session of the 103d Congress, the House by unanimous consent agreed (without prejudice to the Speaker's ultimate power of recognition) to convene 90 minutes early on Mondays and Tuesdays for morning-hour debate.⁽¹¹⁾ On May 12, 1995,⁽¹²⁾ the House extended and modified this order, changing morning-hour debates on Tuesdays after May 14 of each year in the following manner: (1) the

8. See § 10.61, infra.

9. See § 10.64, infra.

12. 141 CONG. REC. p. ____, 104th Cong. 1st Sess.

House convenes one hour early (rather than 90 minutes); (2) time for debate is limited to 25 minutes for each party; and (3) in no event is morning-hour debate to continue beyond 10 minutes before the House is to convene.

Also in the 103d Congress,⁽¹³⁾ the House agreed by unanimous consent to conduct, at a time designated by the Speaker, “Oxford-style” debates: structured debate on a mutually agreeable topic announced by the Speaker with four participants from each party in a format announced by the Speaker.

Members may obtain permission to address the House by requests made by the acting Majority and Minority Leaders at the end of the day through their respective Cloak Rooms, or by individual requests agreed to on the floor for that day or for a future day. For the request to be entertained, it should seek “permission to address the House at the conclusion of legislative business, consistent with the Speaker’s announced policy of recognition.”⁽¹⁴⁾

While the House customarily does not consider legislation after the Speaker has begun to recognize Members for “special-order speeches,” there is no House rule prohibiting consideration of legislative business at any time the House is in session; thus, for example, the Speaker has recognized a Member between “special-order speeches” to request consideration of a House concurrent resolution by unanimous consent.⁽¹⁵⁾

Time taken during points of order raised during a special-order speech does not come out of the time of the Member speaking, and so a Member is not deprived of his allotted time.

Agreement That Member Be Allowed To Speak at Certain Time as Not Infringing on Chair's Power

§ 10.1 An agreement by the Committee of the Whole to a unanimous-consent request that a Member be allowed to speak at a certain time is not necessarily an infringement of the Chair's power of recognition, but the Chairman may, just as any other Member, interpose an objection to such a request.

On Dec. 9, 1947,⁽¹⁶⁾ Chairman Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, presiding in the Committee of the Whole, made the following statement on a proposed unanimous-consent request to allow a certain Member to speak at a certain time:

As the Chair understands the rule, the presiding officer in the Committee is in a dual capacity. First, he is selected to be the presiding officer during the consideration of the bill. But by accepting such appointment he does not lose his right to vote and object as any other Member. That is, his district is not deprived of its rights by virtue of the Chairman selection. That being true, the Chair not making any objection, I cannot see how the rights of the Chair are infringed upon if the Committee, by unanimous consent, wants to provide that a certain individual may speak at a certain hour during the Committee consideration. If the Chair is agreeable and all Members are agreeable.

One Request Pending at a Time

§ 10.2 Only one unanimous-consent request may be pending at one time; thus, while there is pending in Committee of the Whole a unanimous-consent request that a Member be allowed additional time under the five-minute rule, the Chair will dispose of that request before recognizing another Member to ask unanimous consent to limit debate on the pending amendment.

On May 10, 1977,⁽¹⁷⁾ the proceedings described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole as follows:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ The time of the gentleman from Oregon has again expired.

MR. [MARK W.] HANNAFORD [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Oregon be allowed to proceed for an additional 2 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

17. 123 CONG. REC. 14111, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

18. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

MR. [GARRY] BROWN of Michigan: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I wonder if we could get an understanding with the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashley) on a time limit.

MR. [THOMAS L.] ASHLEY [of Ohio]: . . . Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and amendments thereto conclude at 10 minutes to 4.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that originally there is also a unanimous-consent request that the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. AuCoin) be granted an additional 2 minutes.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Obtaining Recognition To Reserve Right To Object

§ 10.3 In order to obtain recognition to reserve the right to object to a unanimous-consent request, a Member must be on his feet seeking recognition for that purpose when the Chair inquires whether there is an objection to the request; but a Member who was seeking recognition at the proper time may be recognized by the Chair even if the Chair has already stated he heard no objection.

On June 23, 1977,⁽¹⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole having under consideration the foreign assistance and related agencies appropriation bill for 1978 (H.R. 7797), the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 5 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There being no objection—

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I reserve the right to object. I wonder if we could try and get a limitation on debate. I wonder if the gentleman could cut that down to a couple of minutes.

MR. MURPHY of New York: I think that if my colleague would bear with me, 5 minutes is a small amount of time to address ourselves to a vital area of interest in the Americas

MR. LONG of Maryland: Further reserving the right to object, at the conclusion of the gentleman's testimony I would like—

MR. [RONALD V.] DELLUMS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. [MARIO] BIAGGI [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BIAGGI: The time for objecting has passed. If the Chair will read back, he has stated no objections were heard.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will indicate to the gentleman from New York that the gentleman from Maryland was on his feet seeking to reserve the right to object.

1. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

Member Must Stand When Objecting

§ 10.4 A Member must stand when objecting to a unanimous-consent request.

On Oct. 13, 1978,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of S. 2727 (the Amateur Sports Act of 1978):

MR. [HAROLD L.] VOLKMER [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to be allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

MR. [JAMES F.] LLOYD of California: Mr. Chairman, I object. . . .

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, under the rules of the House, I understand that a Member must stand in order to object.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from California (Mr. Lloyd) did stand at the time.

the right to object to a unanimous-consent request, any other Member may object to the request.

The proceedings of June 23, 1977,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 7797, appropriations for agencies relating to foreign assistance, are discussed in § 10.3, supra.

Chair May Decline To Recognize for Unanimous-consent Request

§ 10.6 The Chair may decline to recognize a Member for the purpose of submitting a unanimous-consent request, thereby interposing his own objection.

On Dec. 15, 1937,⁽⁵⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering S. 2475, a wages and hours bill, Mr. Schuyler Otis Bland, of Virginia, asked unanimous consent that any substitute offered and adopted be open to amendment as if it were the original bill. Chairman John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded that he had already requested another Member to temporarily withhold such a request,

4. 123 CONG. REC. 20583, 20584, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.
5. 82 CONG. REC. 1517, 75th Cong. 2d Sess.

and declined to recognize Mr. Bland to make the request.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Bland was actually referring not to substitutes, but to amendments in the nature of a substitute.

—Request That House Take Recess for Party Conference

§ 10.7 The Speaker declined to recognize for a unanimous-consent request of the Minority Leader that the House take a recess for a Republican Conference.

On Apr. 11, 1951,⁽⁶⁾ shortly after the convening of the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry by the Minority Leader that he would decline to entertain a unanimous-consent request for a recess:

MR. [JOSEPH W.] MARTIN [Jr.] of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: I inquire if the Speaker would agree that the House would take a recess of 2 hours. I make this request because of the tragic situation that prevails in the world. I should like, if I could, to have a Republican conference. If the Speaker will permit me to make that request, I shall do so.

6. 97 CONG. REC. 3673, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will say that that is a very unusual request. The Chair does not think it has ever been made in the history of the Congress.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Of course, these are very unusual conditions.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is perfectly willing to agree with the gentleman from Massachusetts on that point. However, there is an amendment coming up to the bill that the Chair thinks will take some hours, in all probability.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: The Chair understands that in accordance with his policies and the policies I have previously agreed with, too, we desire all our membership to be on the floor when these various bills are being read for amendment. Because of the tremendous importance of the situation in the world today, I should like to submit that request, but, of course, I shall not insist on it if the Speaker is not agreeable to it.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Massachusetts poses a very hard question for the Chair. For the moment the Chair thinks he will not entertain the request.

Note: The House was to consider the 1951 amendments to the Universal Military Training and Service Act.

—Pending Disposition of Conference Report

§ 10.8 The Speaker announced that he would not recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests pending the disposition of a conference report where the floor manager of the report had been in an accident and required medical attention.

On Oct. 6, 1962,⁽⁷⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, made the following announcement:

The Chair desires to make a brief statement that the Chair will not recognize any Member for unanimous-consent requests until after the foreign assistance appropriations conference report is disposed of.

In order that Members may understand the reason why the Chair is doing this, last night our dear friend and distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Passman] had an accident. He was sent to the Naval Hospital. He is in his office. He is going to handle the conference report this morning.

. . . The Chair, and I know the Members, will all agree with the thoughts and the action of the Chair to have the conference report disposed of as quickly as possible so that the gentleman from Louisiana may go back to the hospital for further treatment.

Request To Rerefer Bill

§ 10.9 The Speaker declined to recognize the chairman of a committee for a unanimous-consent request to rerefer a bill where the chairman of the other committee involved had not been consulted.

7. 108 CONG. REC. 22709, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Mar. 25, 1948,⁽⁸⁾ Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, asked unanimous consent for the rereferral of a bill from the Committee on Veterans' Affairs to the Committee on the Judiciary. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, inquired whether Mrs. Rogers, chairwoman of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, had consulted with the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary. Mrs. Rogers responded that she had not and the Speaker stated:

It is customary to consult with the chairman of the committee to whom the bill is to be referred. No harm will come if this matter is delayed until Monday.

Mrs. Rogers withdrew the request.

Speaker May Decline Recognition for Request for Consideration of Measure

§ 10.10 The Chair may, by declining recognition to a Member to make a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a measure, refuse to permit the request to be entertained, and thus register his personal objection as a Member of the House.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Jan. 23, 1984:⁽⁹⁾

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: . . . Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that an open rule permitting consideration of House Joint Resolution 100, the voluntary school prayer constitutional amendment, be called up for immediate consideration within the next 10 legislative days.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair cannot and will not entertain that request.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have made a unanimous-consent request. That is a perfectly proper request by any Member of this body, and it is either objected to or is not objected to. I do not understand the procedure that the Chair is using by not entertaining the unanimous-consent request.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will inform the gentleman that the Chair can object by declining recognition.

§ 10.11 The Speaker's authority to decline to recognize individual Members to request unanimous consent for the consideration of bills and resolutions derives from clause 2 of Rule XIV, on the Speaker's general power of recognition, and from the precedents developed under that rule.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Jan. 26, 1984:⁽¹¹⁾

MR. [WILLIAM E.] DANNEMEYER [of California]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. . . .

Mr. Speaker, this is the first time I have heard that we have had some addition to the customs or procedures or even the rules of the House, which seems to say that before I as a Member can ask unanimous-consent requests that I must obtain the approval of the leadership of the majority to pose that request.

My parliamentary inquiry is this, Mr. Speaker. Where in the rules does it say that? What is the specific provision in the rules that authorizes the Speaker to make that kind of a rule for this House? . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ Clause 2 of rule XIV.⁽¹³⁾

MR. DANNEMEYER: Is it the position of the Speaker that section 2 of rule XIV authorizes what has come to become a gag rule here?

THE SPEAKER: No. The Chair believes that it has been the custom of this body through the years to give the power to the Speaker of the House that the House be run in an efficient manner and that the business of the House should be done in an orderly fashion and that obstruction should be avoided.

§ 10.12 In recognizing Members to ask unanimous consent for the consideration of bills, the Speaker takes into account the complexity and importance of the bills involved.

On July 1, 1932,⁽¹⁴⁾ Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, made the following statement in relation to the unanimous-consent consideration of bills:

In order that gentlemen may understand the situation, let the Chair state how it is the Chair recognizes certain gentlemen. The Chair must decline to recognize a great many gentlemen who have meritorious matters, because the Chair must have some yardstick that can be applied to every Member of the House. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Pittenger] had a bill that had passed the House unanimously, had gone to the Senate, and had an amendment placed on it there, adding one name. The Chair thinks in a case of that kind, where unanimous consent has to be given, it is well enough for the Chair to recognize the Member for that purpose; but the Chair will not recognize gentlemen to take up as an original proposition private claims or other matters unless they are of an emergency nature and apply to the general public rather than to one individual.

§ 10.13 Where a Member who had been recognized to proceed for one minute asked for the unanimous-consent consideration of a bill, the Speaker held that the Member was not recognized for that purpose.

On Jan. 26, 1944,⁽¹⁵⁾ Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the Minority Leader, asked unanimous consent to proceed for one minute, and on being recognized attempted to obtain unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 minute.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁶⁾ The Chair will not recognize any other Member at this time for that purpose but will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the generosity of the Chair.

I take this minute, Mr. Speaker, because I want to make a unanimous-consent request and I think it should be explained.

I agree with the President that there is immediate need for action on the soldiers' vote bill. A good many of us have been hoping we could have action for the last month. To show our sincerity in having action not next week but right now, I ask unanimous consent that the House immediately take up the bill which is on the Union Calendar known as S. 1285, the soldiers' voting bill.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Massachusetts was not recognized for that purpose.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky.

§ 10.14 The Speaker declined to recognize a Member for a unanimous-consent request to take a bill from the Speaker's table and concur in the Senate amendments, where such a request was made without the authorization of the chairman of the committee involved and where Members had been informed there would be no further legislative business for the day.

On July 31, 1969,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Hale Boggs, of Louisiana, asked unanimous consent to take the bill H.R. 9951 from the Speaker's table and to concur in the Senate amendments thereto. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, refused recognition for that purpose:

The Chair will state that at this time the Chair does not recognize the gentleman from Louisiana for that purpose.

The chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means is at present appearing before the Committee on Rules seeking a rule and Members have been told that there would be no further business tonight.

The Chair does not want to enter into an argument with any Member, particularly the distinguished gentleman from Louisiana whom I admire very much. But the Chair has stated that the Chair does not recognize the gentleman for that purpose.

—Bills on Former Consent Calendar

§ 10.15 On former Consent Calendar days only eligible bills on the calendar were called, and the Speaker could decline to recognize Members with unanimous-consent requests for the consideration of other bills on the calendar.

On May 6, 1946, which was Consent Calendar Day,⁽¹⁸⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Overton Brooks, of Louisiana, relative to the call of a bill on the Consent Calendar prior to the expiration of the three-day requirement by the rules.

MR. BROOKS: Mr. Speaker, would it be in order to ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill H.R. 2325, which is No. 419 on the Consent Calendar that was called today?

18. 92 CONG. REC. 4527, 79th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair announced some time ago that since those known as the objectors had examined only the eligible bills on the Consent Calendar the Chair would not recognize Members to take up the remaining bills, unless they involved emergencies.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Consent Calendar was abolished in the 104th Congress. The Corrections Calendar was established in its place. See Rule XIII, clause 4.⁽¹⁹⁾

—Where Leadership Has Not Been Consulted

§ 10.16 Under an extension of guidelines announced by the Speaker on the opening day of the Congress, the Chair will decline to recognize for a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a (reported) bill unless given assurance of clearances from both majority and minority floor and committee leaderships (guidelines heretofore applicable to consideration of unreported measures).

On July 23, 1993,⁽²⁰⁾ the Chair discussed the role of the leadership in determining whether requests for the consideration of bills would be allowed:

MR. [STEVE] GUNDERSON [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is this: Is it possible to ask unanimous consent to bring H.R. 2667 for its immediate consideration?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The leadership on both sides of the aisle has to agree to allow that unanimous-consent request.

MR. GUNDERSON: . . . Is it possible to bring an appropriation bill to the floor for consideration without a rule?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Yes, if it is privileged and it has been reported and available for 3 days and is called up by the committee.

MR. GUNDERSON: Can the 3-day rule be waived?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: By unanimous consent, yes.

MR. GUNDERSON: Mr. Speaker, is it possible to move that H.R. 2667 be brought up for immediate consideration?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Only the committee can make that motion.

MR. GUNDERSON: Any member of the committee, Mr. Speaker, could make that motion?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The chairman or a member authorized by the committee. . . .

MR. GUNDERSON: Mr. Speaker, I have one further parliamentary inquiry.

Is it possible to ask unanimous consent at any time during the day to bring up an appropriation bill for its immediate consideration?

1. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The chairman or his designee could bring the bill up.

MR. GUNDERSON: . . . If, for example, I were to move or ask unanimous consent to do that and the Chair did not recognize me, would it be possible at that point to literally appeal the ruling of the Chair for another Member to bring it up?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous agreement between the leaderships of the Democrat and Republican side, only the chairman of the committee would be recognized to bring up the bill after agreement of both leaderships by a unanimous-consent request. Another Member would not be recognized for that reason, and the denial of recognition to make a unanimous-consent request is not appealable.

MR. GUNDERSON: . . . The chairman of the Appropriations Committee can bring up H.R. 2667 for immediate consideration at any time?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Prior to the 3-day availability, he could bring it up by unanimous consent, but as the gentleman knows, these things are traditionally handled with the concurrence of both leaderships and very carefully orchestrated before unanimous consent is requested in order to be sure that it is adhered to.

§ 10.17 Pursuant to the Speaker's announced policy in the 98th Congress on recognition for unanimous-consent requests for the initial consideration of bills and resolutions, the Chair will decline recognition for such unanimous-consent requests without assurances that the majority and minority leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection thereto.

On Oct. 2, 1984,⁽²⁾ the Chair having declined recognition for a unanimous-consent request that a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution be brought to the floor for immediate consideration, discussion took place relating to the Speaker's power of recognition⁽³⁾ and, specifically, to the effect of announced guidelines governing recognition for requests for the initial consideration of bills.

MR. [THOMAS F.] HARTNETT [of South Carolina]: . . . If you are sincere, Mr. Chairman, if your colleagues over there who now say let us have a balanced budget really mean what they say, when you know the American people are not going to be fooled by this move. Let us have companion legislation, the balanced budget amendment.

The Speaker is here. Let us bring by unanimous consent the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution to the floor of the House right now and let us vote on both of these bills if you mean what you say. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent, to recall or discharge from the committee the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution so that we can bring it to the floor of the House with House Joint Resolution 243.

I ask unanimous consent that it be brought before the House right now.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁴⁾ . . . Under the rules and precedents, the motion is not to be entertained.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman did not make a motion, it is my understanding. The gentleman asked unanimous-consent request. Is the Speaker ruling that unanimous-consent requests are not in order? We have already had one previous unanimous-consent request that was granted during the course of debate. How would this one not be in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under the Speaker's announcement of guidelines for unanimous-consent requests to consider legislative business, this request is not recognized. . . .

MS. [BOBBI] FIEDLER [of California]: Mr. Speaker, before you had dialog with the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Hartnett) regarding his parliamentary inquiry as it related to the balanced budget amendment and his right to ask for a unanimous-consent request in relationship to it. . . .

I would like to ask of the Chair if the Chair will make the inquiry as to whether the Democratic side leadership will also ask to support his right under unanimous consent to bring the balanced budget amendment, attach it to the existing bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has not been advised that there is an intention to change the guidelines that were announced earlier in the year for the purpose that they were issued. . . .

MS. FIEDLER: Will the Chair inquire as to whether or not the leadership on the Democratic side is willing to change the existing rules? I realize that the Chair has indicated twice now that he has not been informed that they have changed, but I am making a request that he ask the leadership if they will make that change.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair states that this is not a proper parliamentary inquiry. The Chair has not been advised that there is a change in the policy that was issued the first week of the session. . . .

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, we are still trying to sift our way through the Chair's previous ruling with regard to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina.

Can the requirement that the Chair cites, can that requirement be waived by unanimous consent?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question has to do with whether or not recognition will be granted for that purpose, and the Chair's ruling is based on guidelines that were issued on January 25, 1984, and the Chair would read from the statement that was made at that time by the Speaker.

The Speaker said:

4. Richard A. Gephardt (Mo.).

As indicated on page 476 of the House Rules and Manual, the Chair has established a policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions by unanimous consent only when assured that the majority and minority leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection.

Consistent with that policy, and with the Chair's inherent power of recognition under clause 2, rule XIV, the Chair and any occupant of the chair appointed as Speaker pro tempore, pursuant to clause 7, rule I, will decline recognition for unanimous-consent requests for consideration of bills and resolutions without assurances that the request has been cleared by that leadership.

This denial of recognition by the Chair will not reflect necessarily any personal opposition on the part of the Chair to orderly consideration of the matter in question, but will reflect the determination upon the part of the Chair that orderly procedures will be followed, that is, procedures involving consultation and agreement between floor and committee leadership on both sides of the aisle.

It is that guideline that the Chair is following in this instance. . . .

MR. WALKER: The guidelines that the Chair has cited, what I am inquiring is, can those guidelines be set aside by unanimous consent?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It is the Chair's power of recognition that is involved, and that is the question that is being decided in conformance with the guidelines, not other questions.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: If the House so deems that we could set aside those guidelines by unanimous consent, is that a proper request? That is the question of this gentleman.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will again state that what is involved directly or indirectly, is a question of recognition, and not other or further questions, and it is that question that is being decided in conformance with the guidelines.

Parliamentarian's Note: An announcement that the above policies concerning recognition for requests for the consideration of bills and resolutions would be continued in the 100th Congress was made by the Chair on Jan. 6, 1987.⁽⁵⁾

§ 10.18 The Speaker may decline to recognize unanimous-consent requests for consideration of bills if the Member making such request has not consulted the leadership.

On July 11, 1946,⁽⁶⁾ Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, of Connecticut, asked for the unanimous-consent consideration of House Joint Resolution 372, to reinstate rent control. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, refused to recognize her to make the request after she disclosed that she had not consulted or notified the leadership.

Mr. John Phillips, of California, later objected to the refusal of recognition as based on a “technicality.” The Speaker then made the following statement:

. . . For a long time, ever since 1937 at least, the present occupant of the chair knows that when Members intend to ask unanimous consent to bring up a bill they have always properly consulted with both the majority and minority leaders of the House and with the Speaker. That has been the unailing custom. The Chair is exercising that right and intends to continue to exercise it as long as he occupies the present position because the Chair wants the House to proceed in an orderly fashion.

MRS. LUCE: Mr. Speaker, may I now ask unanimous consent to bring up the bill tomorrow?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will meet that question when the time comes.

The Chair would certainly like the courtesy of being consulted in advance.

§ 10.19 Recognition for unanimous-consent requests to consider legislation is within the discretion of the Chair, who normally refuses recognition for legislative requests at a time when the membership has been advised that no further business would be scheduled, and who may inquire whether the majority leadership has been notified of and has assented to the making of the request at a particular time before bestowing recognition.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Dec. 17, 1982,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of H.R. 5536 (authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to engage in a feasibility study of water resources development in Nebraska):

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁸⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from California (Mr. Burton) rise?

MR. PHILLIP BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of making a unanimous-consent request which has been cleared from the other side, and the unanimous-consent request is as follows.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would direct a question to the gentleman from California and state that at this late hour, at 5 minutes to 1 o'clock in the morning, the Chair was unaware that any further substantive business would come up before the House. The Chair was only aware of the business which has just been concluded, which is the general debate on the Immigration Reform and Control Act. The Chair was unaware of this matter and has not had a chance to consult with leadership on whether or not this matter would fit within the array of legislation. . . .

The Chair would ask the gentleman, has the gentleman had an opportunity to check with the leadership of the House? . . .

MR. PHILLIP BURTON: Mr. Speaker, I am unaware of any Member in our

7. 128 CONG. REC. 32033-35, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

8. Romano L. Mazzoli (Ky.).

leadership who is opposed to this. I am aware of about a 20th of the Members of the House who are for this proposal.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair understands. The Chair would suggest that, because of the membership of the House having left the House thinking the only matter before it would be the Immigration Reform and Control Act under general debate, is at a disadvantage in being unable to be aware of the gentleman's motion.

MR. PHILLIP BURTON: Mr. Speaker, it is not a motion. It is a unanimous-consent request and I would urge regular order to see if there is objection to the request.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would ask the gentleman's indulgence. Given the nature of the circumstance, the Chair would ask if the gentleman would kindly withhold his motion. . . .

The Chair is suggesting that the gentleman might under the circumstances, given the peculiar nature and the hour, which is 1 o'clock, might under the circumstances withhold his unanimous-consent request until the Chair has had an opportunity to check with the leadership. . . .

MR. PHILLIP BURTON: . . . I will demand regular order, the request being I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 5536), an act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to engage in a feasibility study of water resource development and for other purposes in the Central Platte Valley, Nebr., with a Senate amendment thereto and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: . . . I believe that the Chair might be able to help the two gentlemen who are trying to struggle to find a solution by suggesting that the Chair could guarantee that the gentleman would be the first order of business tomorrow when the House does convene. I could give that assurance and would communicate that to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

If that would be satisfactory to the gentleman from California and the gentleman from Pennsylvania, then it would give us time to check with our respective leadership.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Further reserving the right to object, I would say the gentleman from Pennsylvania is in some way here trying to be helpful to the Chair since I have no minority Members on this side with whom to consult with on this request.

I certainly think that that suggestion would be acceptable to this gentleman if the gentleman from California would agree to that.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman from California find that satisfactory under these difficult circumstances?

MR. PHILLIP BURTON: . . . I will yield . . . because of our distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania's suggestion.

So I would ask this be put over until the first order of business tomorrow.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: I thank the gentleman.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman and I withdraw my reservation of objection.

§ 10.20 The Speaker on occasion has reiterated his policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions by unanimous consent only when assured that the majority- and minority-elected floor leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection.

Several Members having propounded unanimous-consent requests to permit consideration of various legislative measures by a day certain under an "open rule" procedure, the Speaker on Jan. 25, 1984,⁽⁹⁾ reiterated the Chair's policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions only when assured that the majority and minority floor and committee and subcommittee leaderships have no objection. This policy was intended in part to prevent the practice whereby one side might force the other to go on record as objecting to propositions regarding which they have only procedural or technical objections rather than substantive opposition.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that an open rule permitting consideration of House Joint

9. 130 CONG. REC. 354, 355, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

Resolution 100, the voluntary school prayer constitutional amendment, be called up for immediate consideration within the next 10 legislative days.

MR. [BILL] ALEXANDER [of Arkansas]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ Objection is heard.

The Chair will read the following statement:

As indicated on page 476 of the House Rules and Manual, the Chair has established a policy of conferring recognition upon Members to permit consideration of bills and resolutions by unanimous consent only when assured that the majority and minority floor leadership and committee and subcommittee chairmen and ranking minority members have no objection. Consistent with that policy, and with the Chair's inherent power of recognition under clause 2, rule XIV, the Chair, and any occupant of the Chair appointed as Speaker pro tempore pursuant to clause 7, rule I, will decline recognition for unanimous-consent requests for consideration of bills and resolutions without assurances that the request has been cleared by that leadership. This denial of recognition by the chair will not reflect, necessarily, any personal opposition on the part of the Chair to orderly consideration of the matter in question, but will reflect the determination upon the part of the Chair that orderly procedures will be followed, that is, procedures involving consultation and agreement between floor and committee leadership on both sides of the aisle. . . .

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, do I understand now that the unanimous-consent procedure cannot be used by anyone to bring legislation to the floor unless that has been specifically cleared by both the majority and the minority leadership; is that correct?

10. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: That has been the custom and it will continue to be the custom. . . .

MR. WALKER: I just want to clarify then that the entire matter then of utilizing unanimous-consent requests for any kind of legislative business, such as bringing up legislation, will be denied to all parties.

THE SPEAKER: Unless the Chair has assurances that proper clearance has taken place. . . .

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: . . . The Speaker mentioned fairness on both sides and both sides be knowledgeable. . . . [C]ould the Chair describe how fairness to both sides and how both sides might be knowledgeable might proceed? . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair intends to go through the legitimate leadership of the gentleman's side of the aisle, and the elected leadership on the other side of the aisle.

MR. GINGRICH: So in the future the legitimate leadership on our side of the aisle might legitimately expect to be informed?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair considers the legitimate leadership as the leadership that was elected, not caucuses within the party.

§ 10.21 The Chair himself may object to a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of legislation, by denying recognition for the request, and it is the policy of the Chair to refuse recognition for requests to consider legislation not approved by the leadership.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Nov. 15, 1983:⁽¹¹⁾

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution introduced by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fish) specifying a rule for consideration of House Joint Resolution 1 be made in order for consideration by the House on Wednesday or any day thereafter.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair cannot entertain that motion without consultation with the leadership. The Chair will not recognize the gentleman for that purpose.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is that this is a unanimous-consent request and it is entirely in order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has the same right to object as any Member, and I do so object.

§ 10.22 The Chair may refuse to entertain unanimous-consent requests for the consideration of legislation that does not have the approval of the leadership.

On Nov. 16, 1983,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

11. 129 CONG. REC. 32746, 32747, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
12. Ronald Coleman (Tex.).
13. 129 CONG. REC. 33138, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that House Resolution 373 be made in order for consideration in the House on Thursday or any day thereafter.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair cannot recognize for that purpose.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, it is a unanimous-consent request.

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: I object, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair cannot recognize for that purpose. There is objection nevertheless.

MR. WALKER: Let it be noted here this evening that the objection to considering the resolution by which we would consider ERA under the rules of the House and with an amendment and in open debate was objected to from the Democratic side of the aisle. Let that be noted.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state there is precedent for denying the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman dating back to May of 1982 and yesterday and furthermore there was objection heard.

§ 10.23 In enforcing the Speaker's announced policy regarding recognition of Members requesting unanimous consent for the consideration of bills and resolutions, the Chair indicated that the Speaker would accept the word of any Member that he had obtained the clearance of the majority and minority floor and committee leader-ships and that such permission need not be reduced to writing.

On Jan. 31, 1984,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [GEORGE W.] GEKAS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a point of parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. GEKAS: Mr. Speaker, yesterday I had a colloquy with Speaker O'Neill in which I asserted to him and represented to him that I had had the clearance of the minority leadership in order to gain unanimous consent to bring to the House's attention legislation on the line-item veto, the line-item veto which is in controversy today as a measure of controlling spending.

During that colloquy the Speaker, Speaker O'Neill, interrupted my representation that I had the clearance of the minority and said, "Do you have it in writing?"

The point of my parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker, is whether or not that requirement, as was implicit in that question posed by Speaker O'Neill, is a rule of the House or in conformity with or in concordance with the Speaker's own pronouncement in that regard?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The inquiry should properly be addressed to the Speaker but the Chair, of course, takes the word of the Member.

MR. GEKAS: I thank the Speaker.

15. Jim Bates (Calif.).

§ 10.24 On one occasion, a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of legislation (a joint resolution making urgent supplemental appropriations) was made and then withdrawn because the Chair had not previously received assurances that the request had been cleared by the necessary parties (in this case, the Minority Leader).

The following exchange occurred in the House on Feb. 29, 1984:⁽¹⁶⁾

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order on Tuesday next or any day thereafter to consider the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 493) making an urgent supplemental appropriation for the Department of Health and Human Services for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1984, in the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁷⁾ The Chair has not received assurances that this has been cleared by the minority leader.

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, I discussed it with the Speaker and the assistant majority leader, and I also have advised the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) on the Republican side.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the matter has to be cleared by the minority leader.

16. 130 CONG. REC. 3895, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

17. Esteban E. Torres (Calif.).

MR. WHITTEN: I presume it was, but personally I do not know; I have not seen him.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has not received that assurance.

Will the gentleman withhold his request until assurance is received?

MR. WHITTEN: I will be glad to, Mr. Speaker.

§ 10.25 Pursuant to the Speaker's previously announced policy, the Chair declined to recognize a Member to request unanimous consent for the consideration of an unreported measure, where the request had not been cleared with the minority leadership.

On June 6, 1984,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MRS. [KATIE] HALL of Indiana: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service be discharged from further consideration of House joint resolution (H.J. Res. 247) to designate April 24, 1984, as National Day of Remembrance of Man's Inhumanity to Man, and ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment at the desk.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ The Chair understands that this has not been cleared by the leadership on the minority side. Since the Speaker has made the statement that those types of requests would not be entertained, under such circumstances the Chair does not recognize the gentlewoman.

18. 130 CONG. REC. 15174, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

19. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

—Recognition for Request To Dispose of Senate Amendments Accorded to Committee Chairman

§ 10.26 In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Chair announced guidelines for recognition for unanimous-consent requests to dispose of Senate amendments to House-passed bills on the Speaker's table, indicating that the Chair will entertain a unanimous-consent request for the disposition of a Senate amendment to a House-passed bill on the Speaker's table, only if made by the chairman of the committee with jurisdiction, or by another member of the committee where the Chair has been advised by the chairman of the committee that such member has been authorized formally or informally by the committee to make the request.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Apr. 26, 1984:⁽²⁰⁾

MR. [DANIEL E.] LUNGREN [of California]: . . . Mr. Speaker, since we have moved with such dispatch on the question dealing with the labor unions' concern, I would like to direct to the Chair a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Speaker, it deals with a piece of legislation that has come out of the same committee and is a variation of H.R. 3635, the Child Protection Act of 1983, which we passed 400 to 1 on November 11, 1983.

There was an agreement worked out between the Members of the House and the Senate for a compromise. That went to the Senate. They passed our version, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute and it is my information that H.R. 3635 was sent to the Speaker's desk from the Senate on April 2 or 3 of this year.

My parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker, is: Is H.R. 3635 presently at the Speaker's desk?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Speaker, does that mean that the Senate amendment, H.R. 3635, has not yet been referred to a committee?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. LUNGREN: And can the Chair inform me at this time and inform the House as to what procedure might be available to us at this time to allow for immediate consideration of that Senate amendment?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would advise the gentleman that the Chair would only recognize for a request by the chairman or another member if authorized by the committee.

MR. LUNGREN: Authorization of the committee, that means authorization of the Democratic leadership?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Authorization of the committee.

MR. LUNGREN: Does the Chair mean that it takes an official vote of the committee or an agreement by the chairman of the committee itself?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Speaker would look to the chairman of the committee.

Request for Restoration of Bills to Private Calendar

§ 10.27 The Speaker declines to recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests that bills stricken from the Private Calendar be restored thereto where they have not consulted with the official objectors for that calendar.

On Apr. 19, 1948,⁽²⁾ Mr. Thomas J. Lane, of Massachusetts, asked unanimous consent that a bill stricken from the Private Calendar be restored thereto. Speaker

². 94 CONG. REC. 4573, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, inquired whether Mr. Lane had consulted with the objectors and Mr. Lane responded that he had not. The Speaker stated that the Chair could not entertain the request until Mr. Lane had taken up the matter with the objectors.

Permission for Majority Leader To Announce Legislative Program Pending Motion To Adjourn

§ 10.28 While the motion to adjourn takes precedence over any other motion under clause 4 of Rule XVI, the Speaker may through his power of recognition recognize the Majority Leader by unanimous consent for one minute to announce the legislative program prior to entertaining the motion to adjourn; and on one occasion, the Speaker recognized the Majority Leader to announce the program for the remainder of the day and declined to recognize a Member to offer a motion to adjourn pending that announcement, although the Majority Leader had neglected to obtain unanimous consent to address the House for one minute, and the Speaker then suggested that decorum would best be maintained by unanimous-consent permission to announce the leadership program pending a motion to adjourn.

On Dec. 14, 1982,⁽³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ The Chair recognizes the majority leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright).

MR. [DENNY] SMITH of Oregon: Mr. Speaker, I have a preferential motion I send to the desk.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will be seated. The Speaker has the right of recognition.

MR. SMITH of Oregon: Mr. Speaker, I have a preferential motion.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the majority leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright).

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, let me simply announce for the benefit of the Members that it is our intention now to have no further votes tonight. We plan to take up the things that we put off last night in order that Members might go and attend the reception in the White House, the remaining suspension, as was agreed with the Republican leadership and our leadership last night, but we will not have any votes. We will roll the votes until tomorrow, let the votes be the first thing tomorrow.

MR. SMITH of Oregon: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his preferential motion.

MR. SMITH of Oregon: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Smith).

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

MR. SMITH of Oregon: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 122, nays 202, not voting 109, as follows: . . .

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will make the following statement:

It is the usual and customary practice in this House that when we come to the end of a proceeding, as we did, that the majority leader then announces the program for the remainder of the night. The majority leader had informed me that he was going to make that announcement. Normally it is a unanimous-consent request, and that is what the Chair anticipated that the majority leader would do.

It is the prerogative and the duty of the Speaker of the House to run this body in an expeditious manner and he should be informed when motions are going to be made, whether they are privileged or otherwise, and when he is suddenly confronted with a privileged motion, then it is my opinion, while the Chair appreciates that he follows the rules of the House, it does not improve the decorum of the House. The Speaker at all times tries to be fair, and thought he was being fair with the Members when he was recognizing the majority leader to inform the membership what the program was for the remainder of the evening.

Speaker May Recognize for Unanimous-consent Request Prior to Motion To Discharge

§ 10.29 The rule providing that motions to discharge committees shall be in order “immediately” after the reading of the Journal on appropriate days was construed not to prohibit the Speaker from recognizing for unanimous-consent requests prior to recognition for motions to discharge.

On Oct. 12, 1942,⁽⁵⁾ which was Discharge Calendar Day, Mr. Joseph A. Gavan, of New York, called up a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from the consideration of a resolution providing for the consideration of a bill. Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, made a point of order against the motion on the ground that the rule providing for discharge motions on the second and fourth Mondays [Rule XXVII clause 4] directed that such motions shall be in order “immediately” after the reading of the Journal, and that prior to the making of the motion miscellaneous business had intervened, such as sending bills to conference (by unanimous consent) and passing a bill (considered by unanimous consent).

5. 88 CONG. REC. 8066, 8067, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled as follows:

The Chair is ready to rule. . . .

The Chair recognized all the time that the word “immediately” is in this rule, as he has read the rule every day for the past 6 days.

In ruling on a matter similar to this some time ago, the Chair had this to say, although the matter involved was not exactly on all-fours with this point of order, but it is somewhat related:

The Chair thinks the Chair has a rather wide range of latitude here and could hold, being entirely technical, that a certain point of order might be sustained.

The Chair is not going to be any more technical today than he was at that time. The Chair recognized the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Doughton) on a highly important matter in order to expedite the business of the Congress, not only the House of Representatives but the whole Congress.

The Chair does not feel that the intervention of two or three unanimous-consent requests would put him in a position where he could well hold that the word “immediately” in the rule was not being followed when he recognized the gentleman from New York (Mr. Gavagan).⁽⁶⁾

Request To Address House on Future Date

§ 10.30 The Chair declines to recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests to address the House prior to completion of legislative business on future days.

On June 14, 1935,⁽⁷⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, responded as follows to a request for recognition for a unanimous-consent request:

MR. [KENT E.] KELLER [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that on next Monday after the reading of the Journal and the completion of business on the Speaker's desk I may address the House for 15 minutes to answer an attack upon an amendment I proposed to the Constitution made in the Washington Times of June 12 by Mr. James P. Williams, Jr.

THE SPEAKER: Under the custom that prevails and the action of the Chair heretofore, the Chair cannot recognize the gentleman today to make a speech on Monday. The Chair hopes the gentleman will defer his request.

§ 10.31 The Speaker declined to recognize for a unanimous-consent request for two Members to address the House with the privilege of yielding to other Members.

On Oct. 17, 1945,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Hugh De Lacy, of Washington, asked unanimous consent that on the next Tuesday, following legislative business, he and Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, be allowed to address the House on the subject of freedom of the air, with the privilege of yielding to other Members. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the request was unusual and that he would recognize for requests of Mr. De Lacy and of Mr. Celler to address the House, but would not recognize for the unanimous-consent request as put by Mr. De Lacy. Mr. De Lacy withdrew the request.

Extensions of Remarks

§ 10.32 The Speaker announced that he would refuse recognition to extend remarks in the Record if the request was made after there had been a quorum call and where the House was about to resolve into the Committee of the Whole.

8. 91 CONG. REC. 9727, 79th Cong. 1st Sess.

On Feb. 8, 1945,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, made the following announcement:

So many Members who were not on the floor at the proper time have come to the Chair to ask that they be allowed to submit requests to extend remarks that the Chair will now recognize Members to submit unanimous-consent requests to extend remarks or correct the Record.

Hereafter, when there is a legislative program, Members on the floor at the beginning of the session will have an opportunity to submit such requests, but after the roll is called and the House is ready to go into the Committee of the Whole no Member will be recognized for any purpose.

§ 10.33 Where there was no legislative program for the day, the Speaker recognized a Member to extend his remarks "at this point in the Record" regardless of the number of words.

On Feb. 6, 1945,⁽¹⁰⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [ROBERT F.] RICH [of Pennsylvania]: I wish to ask the Chair how it is that if a Member on this side asks

9. 91 CONG. REC. 929, 79th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. 91 CONG. REC. 839, 79th Cong. 1st Sess.

for a minute in which to address the House he is permitted to insert 300 words or less, but that when some Members on the other side of the aisle make similar requests they are permitted to put in 7 $\frac{1}{3}$ pages, or some 8,000 words? How does the discrimination come about?

THE SPEAKER: There is no discrimination because there was no legislative program on yesterday and anyone had the right to extend his remarks "at this point" in the Record.⁽¹¹⁾

§ 10.34 The Speaker may decline to recognize Members to extend their remarks where a motion to discharge a committee is pending.

On June 11, 1945,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, called up a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from the further consideration of a resolution providing an order of business. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, moved that the motion be laid on the table, but Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that the motion to table was not in order. Mr. Rankin then asked unanimous consent to extend his remarks at "this point in the Record." The Speaker ruled:

The Chair cannot recognize Members to extend their remarks until this matter has been disposed of.⁽¹³⁾

11. Extending remarks in the Record generally, see Ch. 5, supra.

12. 91 CONG. REC. 5892, 5895, 5896, 79th Cong. 1st Sess.

13. See Rule XXVII clause 3, House Rules and Manual §908 (1995):

§ 10.35 Where a Member had requested permission to insert certain remarks in the Record but had delayed submission thereof to the printer, the Speaker declined to recognize another Member to make the same request.

On Nov. 17, 1943,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, asked unanimous consent to extend his remarks and to print therein a radio address of Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, responded that he would not recognize Mr. Rankin for the request, Mr. Patman having previously asked unanimous consent to insert the address in the Record.

Request That Speech Made to Joint Meeting Be Printed as House Document

§ 10.36 The Speaker declined to entertain a unanimous-consent request that a speech made to a joint meeting by the General of the Army be printed as a House document.

“[T]he House shall proceed to its consideration (motion to discharge) in the manner herein provided without intervening motion except one motion to adjourn.”

14. 89 CONG. REC. 9626, 78th Cong. 1st Sess.

On May 2, 1951,⁽¹⁵⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, refused to entertain a request that a speech be printed as a House document:

MRS. [EDITH NOURSE] ROGERS of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent, in view of the great interest in the speech of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, that it may be ordered printed as a House document.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair thinks the gentlewoman from Massachusetts should refer to the Joint Committee on Printing.

MRS. ROGERS of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I introduced a bill for that purpose, but I had hoped we could get it done by unanimous consent.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not like to start doing things like that; it is very unusual. We do have a Joint Committee on Printing.

The Chair cannot entertain the request.

Request To Revoke Special Rule; Consideration of Conference Reports

§ 10.37 The Speaker declined to recognize a Member to ask unanimous consent for the revocation of a special rule, previously agreed to, permitting the consideration of conference reports on the same day reported.

On Sept. 25, 1961,⁽¹⁶⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, declined to recognize for a unanimous-consent request:

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I have a unanimous-consent request to make concerning the procedure of the House. I ask unanimous consent that the action by which clause 2 of rule XXVIII was suspended a week ago last Saturday be revoked, and that clause 2, rule XXVIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives be restored.

Mr. Speaker, I should like to be heard briefly on my reasons for so doing.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under the circumstances the Chair declines to recognize the gentleman from Iowa to submit the request.

Special Rule Providing for Reading Committee Amendment by Sections; Request To Read Substitute by Sections

§ 10.38 Where the House has by special rule provided for reading by sections in Committee of the Whole of a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute as an original bill, any amendment offered thereto must be read in its entirety; the Committee may not by unanimous consent order that an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the committee amendment be in turn read by sections for amendment.

The proceedings of Mar. 25, 1975,⁽¹⁷⁾ demonstrate that, while the Chair may through the power of recognition encourage the orderly offering of amendments to a pending amendment in the nature of a substitute which has been read in its entirety, a unanimous-consent request to read the substitute for amendment by sections is not in order:

MR. [JAMES G.] O'HARA [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. O'Hara: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Committee to the text of the bill, H.R. 4222, insert the following:

That this Act may be cited as "The National School Lunch Act and Child Nutrition Act of 1966 Amendments of 1975".

SCHOOL BREAKFAST PROGRAM

Sec. 2: Section 4(a) of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 is amended by inserting immediately after "and June 30, 1975," the following: "and subsequent fiscal years".

MR. O'HARA (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with and that it be printed in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

17. 121 CONG. REC. 8490, 8491, 94th Cong. 1st Sess. Under consideration was H.R. 4222, to amend the National School Lunch Act and Child Nutrition Act.

18. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object. For all intents and purposes it now appears that the original committee substitute, made in order by the rule, is to be junked and instead we are being asked to consider this new substitute which the gentleman from Michigan has just now offered. The original rule on this bill provided that the committee substitute be read for purposes of amendment, as is usual. If the gentleman now obtains unanimous consent to consider his substitute as read and open to amendment, all sorts of confusion can result. No one will have any control over what amendments will be presented and in which order and debate may be cut off.

MR. O'HARA: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. BAUMAN: I yield to the gentleman.

MR. O'HARA: Mr. Chairman, while it is being read in the Record it will not be open to amendment section by section. It would be open to amendment when the entire amendment is read.

MR. BAUMAN: That is precisely what we object to. . . .

MR. [ALBERT H.] QUIE [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, this is significant to what the gentleman is talking about. If the substitute is read, it is my understanding of the rules of the House that we cannot stop at the end of each section for amendments, but the entire substitute has to be read before it would be open for amendments.

May I inquire of the Chairman, is that right?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I wonder if the gentleman from Michigan would make a unanimous-consent request that his amendment be read section by section. This would accomplish the purpose we are after.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Chair would not entertain a request of that nature. The amendment must be read in its entirety under the rules of the House, if the gentleman from Maryland insists upon his objection. The Chair would encourage that amendments be made to each section once it has been read, but it cannot be open for amendment prior to the reading.

Request To Add Members as Co-sponsors of Bill

§ 10.39 Although the Chair, in accordance with Rule XXII, clause 4(b)(1), under which only the chief sponsor of a bill may add cosponsors, may decline to entertain a unanimous-consent request on the floor by a Member not the chief sponsor to add all Members as cosponsors of a bill under consideration, the Chair may permit instead a listing in the Record of the Members' names.

On Dec. 18, 1985,⁽¹⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House during consideration of House Resolution 345 (concerning the deaths of members of the 101st Air-Assault Division in an airplane crash):

MR. [WILLIAM] NICHOLS [of Alabama]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Armed Services be discharged from further consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 345) to express the sentiment of Congress regarding the deaths of members of the 101st Air Assault Division in an airplane crash on December 12, 1985, at Gander, Newfoundland, Canada, while en route home for the season's holiday, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

MR. [LARRY J.] HOPKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I do so so that the chairman might have an opportunity to explain his position.

I yield to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Nichols).

MR. NICHOLS: . . . Mr. Speaker, the resolution merely expresses our sorrow at the deaths of the 248 members of the 101st Airborne Division. . . .

MR. HOPKINS: Mr. Speaker, in withdrawing my reservation of objection, I ask that all Members' of the House of Representatives names be added to this resolution.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: . . . Did the gentleman ask that all Members' names be listed in the Record as cosponsors?

MR. HOPKINS: That is correct, Mr. Speaker, that all Members' names be listed in the Record as cosponsors of this resolution. I ask unanimous consent for that permission.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

The list of Members' names referred to is as follows: . . .

Limitation on Debate—Request Not Entertained Until Resolution Read or Considered as Read

§ 10.40 The Chair may decline to entertain a unanimous-consent request that all debate on a pending measure be limited, in advance of completion of reading of that measure in its entirety and in the absence of a unanimous-consent agreement to consider the measure as having been read.

On July 16, 1975,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 591 (establishing a Select Committee on Intelligence) in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, made a unanimous-consent request, as follows:

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the necessary number of 20. Dale E. Kildee (Mich.).

words. . . . I am going to ask unanimous consent that the resolution be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, then I can only ask unanimous consent that all debate on the resolution and all amendments thereto close at 2:30.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman should be advised that that request cannot be made until the resolution has been read.

—Request Not Entertained During Reading of Amendment

§ 10.41 The Chair will not entertain a unanimous-consent request regarding the limitation of time for debate on an amendment during the reading of the amendment.

During consideration of the Energy Conservation and Oil Policy Act of 1975 (H.R. 7014) in the Committee of the Whole on Sept. 18, 1975,⁽³⁾ the proceedings described above occurred as follows:

MR. [JAMES M.] JEFFORDS [of Vermont]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

2. Frank E. Evans (Colo.).

3. 121 CONG. REC. 29322, 29323, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Jeffords: Page 331, after line 10, add the following:

TITLE VI—ENERGY LABELING AND EFFICIENCY STANDARDS FOR BEVERAGE CONTAINERS

DEFINITIONS AND COVERAGE

Sec. 601.—For purposes of this part—

(1) The term “beverage container” means a bottle, jar, can, or carton of glass, plastic, or metal, or any combination thereof, used for packaging or marketing beer . . . or a carbonated soft drink of any variety in liquid form which is intended for human consumption. . . .

MR. JEFFORDS (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the Record due to the fact that it was printed in the Record with the exception of two words which I shall explain. . . .

MR. [PHILLIP H.] HAYES of Indiana: Mr. Chairman, I object. . . .

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to make a unanimous consent request with regard to a limitation of time. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The Chair will state to the gentleman from Michigan that the reading of the amendment has not been completed and we should dispose of the reading of the amendment prior to such a request.

The Clerk will proceed to read the amendment.

4. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

Request That Debate End Ten Minutes After Subsequent Amendment Offered

§ 10.42 Where there was pending an amendment and a substitute therefor, the Chair declined to entertain a unanimous-consent request that debate end ten minutes after another Member “has had an opportunity to offer” a further substitute, where the offering of such substitute might be precluded by the adoption of the pending substitute.

During consideration of the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979 (H.R. 3930) in the Committee of the Whole on June 26, 1979,⁵ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I offer amendments as a substitute for the amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. Michel as a substitute for the amendments offered by Mr. Wright of Texas: On page 5, line 2, strike out the period after “section” and insert in lieu thereof “and at least 2,000,000 barrels per day crude oil equivalent of synthetic fuels”

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I see only about five or six Members standing. I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Wright amendment and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁶ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

MR. [JAMES M.] JEFFORDS [of Vermont]: Reserving the right to object, the gentleman knows I have a substitute which I think ought to be considered . . . and I just cannot agree to 15 minutes unless I am sure I am going to have 5 minutes myself in order to be able to explain the substitute.

MR. MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Wright amendment and all amendments thereto close 10 minutes after the gentleman has had an opportunity to offer his substitute amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman that in the event the amendment offered as a substitute by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) were adopted, no other substitute would be in order and the request would be unworkable.

Request To Extend Debate Time—Not Entertained Pending Demand for Recorded Vote

§ 10.43 A time limitation on debate imposed by the Committee of the Whole, pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, may be rescinded or modified only by unanimous consent; and a unanimous-consent request to extend debate time on an amendment may not be entertained while there is pending a demand for a recorded vote on that amendment.

During consideration of the Energy Conservation and Oil Policy Act of 1975 (H.R. 7014) in the Committee of the Whole on Sept. 17, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ When the Committee rose on Friday, August 1, 1975, all time for debate on title III of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto had expired and there was pending the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) to title III on which a recorded vote had been requested by the gentleman from Ohio.

Without objection, the Clerk will again read the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown).

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Brown of Ohio: Strike out sections 301, 302, 303.

Renumber the succeeding sections of title III accordingly. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . . The parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman is, Would it be in order at this point while the vote is pending to ask unanimous consent of the House that 2 minutes may be granted on either side of the aisle for a discussion at this point of the pending vote?

THE CHAIRMAN: Such a request would be in order only if the gentleman first withdrew his request for a recorded vote. . . .

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, then I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my request for a recorded vote at this point.

THE CHAIRMAN: That does not require unanimous consent. The gentleman withdraws his request for a recorded vote.

Does the gentleman now ask unanimous consent for debate time? . . .

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that 1 minute be granted to the Democratic side in the hands of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) and 1 minute to the Republican side to be in the hands of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Consideration of Resolution Inviting Non-members To Address House

§ 10.44 The Speaker has declined to recognize Members proposing the unanimous-consent consideration of resolutions inviting non-members to address the House.

On Feb. 23, 1943,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, declined to recognize Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, to request unanimous consent for the consideration of a resolution inviting Captain Eddie Rickenbacker to address a joint session of Congress. The Speaker stated that in any event the resolution would have to be referred to the Committee on Rules.

On Oct. 11, 1943,⁽¹⁰⁾ Speaker Rayburn stated that he would decline to recognize a Member to ask unanimous consent for the consideration of a resolution inviting certain Senators to address the House:

THE SPEAKER: . . . The Chair does not intend to recognize a Member to ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of a resolution inviting Senators to address the House in open or executive session, because the Chair thinks that is tantamount to an amendment to the rules of the House and, therefore, is a matter for the House to determine. If resolutions like that are introduced, they will be sent to the proper committee.

MR. RANKIN: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

9. 89 CONG. REC. 1212, 78th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. Id. at p. 8197.

MR. RANKIN: Of course, the Speaker has a right to refuse to recognize me for that purpose, but I think if the Speaker will investigate the rules he will find that we have a right to invite those men to come here to address the Members in the House.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has already investigated that and finds it otherwise. Members of the Senate have the privilege of the floor, but they do not have the privilege of addressing the House of Representatives.

Request That Committee Be Permitted To Sit (Under Former Practice)

§ 10.45 Pursuant to the Speaker's policy announced in the 98th Congress in regard to recognition for requests that committees and subcommittees be permitted to sit during the five-minute rule, the Speaker Pro Tempore indicated on a day when no rollcall votes were scheduled, that such a request (except as to hearings) should be withheld until the next day, when Members had been advised there could be rollcall votes.

The following exchange occurred in the House on May 23, 1983:⁽¹¹⁾

MR. [NORMAN Y.] MINETA [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation and the Committee on Public Works and Transportation have permission to sit during the 5-minute rule in the House on Wednesday, May 25, 1983.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair will advise the gentleman that under the Speaker's statement he will have to make that request tomorrow.

Parliamentarian's Note: The provision prohibiting committees from sitting during proceedings under the five-minute rule was stricken by H. Res. 5, 103d Cong. 1st Sess., Jan. 5, 1993. The prohibition of Rule XI, clause 2(i), was reinstated in modified form in the 104th Congress and also applies to committee meetings during joint sessions and joint meetings. House Rules and Manual §710 (1995).

Request To Withdraw Disorderly Words

§ 10.46 Although a Member whose words have been taken down as disorderly must take his seat, the Speaker may recognize him for a unanimous-consent request to withdraw the words in question.

On June 12, 1947,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Chet Holifield, of California, referred in

12. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

13. 93 CONG. REC. 6895, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

debate to the Committee on Un-American Activities as the "Un-American Committee." Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, demanded that those words be taken down and Mr. Holifield attempted to deliver further remarks. Mr. Rankin objected that "the gentleman cannot speak until this matter is disposed of." Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, responded "the gentleman is correct, unless he (Mr. Holifield) makes a unanimous-consent request." When Mr. Rankin asserted that a Member whose words were being taken down could make no unanimous-consent request under the rules, the Speaker declared:

The Chair can always recognize anyone to propound a unanimous-consent request. Of course, it would be within the province of the gentleman from Mississippi to object, but the Chair can put unanimous-consent requests at any time.

Request To Be Allowed To Proceed for One Minute Pending Demand That Another Member's Words Be Taken Down

§ 10.47 The Chair does not entertain a unanimous-consent request that a Member be allowed to proceed for one minute pending a demand that another Member's words be taken down.

On Jan. 21, 1964,⁽¹⁴⁾ while the House was in the Committee of the Whole, certain words used in debate by a Member were demanded to be taken down and reported to the House. Before the Committee rose, Mr. James Roosevelt, of California, asked unanimous consent to proceed for one minute. Chairman William S. Moorhead, of Pennsylvania, refused to entertain the request.⁽¹⁵⁾

Speaker Announced Policy for Recognition for One-minute and Special-order Speeches

§ 10.48 The Speaker, in announcing a new policy for recognition for one-minute speeches and for special-order requests indicated that he would: (1) alternate recognition between majority and minority Members in the order in which they seek recognition; (2) recognize Members for special-order speeches first who want to address the House for five minutes or less, alternating between majority and minority Members, otherwise in the order in which permission was granted; and (3) then recognize Members who wish to address the House for longer than five minutes and up to one hour, alternating between majority and minority Members in the order in which permission was granted by the House.

On Aug. 8, 1984,⁽¹⁶⁾ Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., of Massachusetts, made the following announcement:

THE SPEAKER: After consultation with and concurrence by the minority leader, the Chair announces that he will institute a new policy of recognition for "1-minute" speeches and for special order requests. Beginning September 5, the Chair will alternate recognition for 1-minute speeches between majority and minority Members, in the order in which they seek recognition in the well under present practice from the Chair's right to the Chair's left, with possible exceptions for Members of the leadership and Members having business requests. The Chair, of course, reserves the right to limit 1-minute speeches to a certain period of time or to a special place in the program on any given day, with notice to the leadership.

16. 130 CONG. REC. 22963, 98th Cong. 2d Sess. Recognition for one-minute speeches is discussed in §§ 10.48–10.63, infra; for special orders in §§ 10.64–10.78, infra.

With respect to recognition for “special-order speeches” at the end of legislative business of the day, the Chair will recognize first those Members who wish to address the House for 5 minutes or less, alternating between majority and minority members, otherwise in the order in which those permissions were granted by the House. Thereafter, the Chair will recognize those Members who wish to address the House for longer than 5 minutes up to 1 hour, alternating between majority and minority members in the order in which those permissions were granted by the House.

Thus all Members can continue to obtain permissions to address the House in the same ways as are presently utilized, either by requests made by the acting majority and minority leaders at the end of the day through their respective Cloak Rooms or by individual requests agreed to on the floor for that day or for a future day. For the request to be entertained, it should state “permission to address the House at the conclusion of legislative business, consistent with the Speaker’s announced policy of recognition”. Thus, Members should be on notice that a special order for more than 5 minutes, although agreed to at a prior time, may be preceded by a series of special orders of 5 minutes or less, or by a longer special order of a Member of the other party.

Further refinements of this policy based upon experience may be announced by the Chair in the future after consultation with the minority leader.

The Speaker implemented the above stated policy for the first time on Sept. 5, 1984:⁽¹⁷⁾

THE SPEAKER: This is the day on which a new precedent will be established. We will call one Member from the majority side on the 1-minute speeches and then one Member from the Republican side, as the Chair so notified the House at an earlier date.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton).

Parliamentarian’s Note: An announcement that the above policies concerning recognition for one-minute and special-order speeches would be continued in the 100th Congress was made by the Chair on Jan. 6, 1987.⁽¹⁸⁾

One-minute Speeches—Chair Announced Procedure

§ 10.49 The Speaker announced the procedure whereby (and the time at which) Members would be recognized to make speeches up to one minute in length.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

THE SPEAKER: May the Chair state, particularly for the benefit of new Members, that we generally open the proceedings, after the prayer and disposition of the Journal and things which are immediately on the Speaker's desk, by recognizing Members for individual requests and for speeches up to 1 minute.

The Chair habitually and regularly starts at the extreme right and goes all the way around; then comes back and starts over. If Members want to be heard, the Chair wants to take them in that order. So, Members will be recognized in the order from the first seat to the Speaker's right to the last seat on the Speaker's left, and then the process will be repeated, if other Members come in.

*—Chair Endeavors To Be Non-partisan§ 10.50 While the Chair's calculation of time under the "one-minute rule" is not subject to challenge, the Chair endeavors to recognize majority and then minority Members by allocating time in a nonpartisan manner.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Aug. 4, 1982:⁽²⁰⁾

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

20. 128 CONG. REC. 19319, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

[C]an the Chair tell me how long 1 minute is?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Does the gentleman request additional time?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I am just inquiring. We have had several long speeches here this morning. I thought that we were limited in the 1-minute time frame to 1 minute each. . . .

I am making a parliamentary inquiry of the Chair as to whether or not that is the rule of the House that is supposed to be obeyed.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It is, by precedent, and since the Chair wants to be fair, the Chair would like to extend to the gentleman and his side of the aisle any additional 1-minute speeches that they require immediately. Would the gentleman like to use it now?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Chair. I think there are a number of Members who are waiting yet to speak, and I would certainly yield such time as I might consume to Members on the Republican side who have yet to speak so that everyone has an opportunity to speak this morning.

I thank the Chair.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will recognize them after recognizing Members on the right side of the aisle, and the Chair will in fairness extend to them as much time under the 1-minute rule as they need.

*—Recognition Is Within Discretion of Chair§ 10.51 Recognition for one-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Speaker who may continue to recognize Members appearing in the well on the majority side prior to recognizing minority Members (although at that time the Speaker customarily recognized first those Members who were in the Chamber at the beginning of the daily session and then those arriving later).

During the period for one-minute speeches in the House on Mar. 18, 1981,⁽²⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore George E. Danielson, of California, in responding to a parliamentary inquiry, reiterated the rule that recognition was within the discretion of the Speaker. The proceedings were as follows:

(Mr. Frank asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. [BARNEY] FRANK [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, the American administration in El Salvador makes little sense either politically or geopolitically. . . .

(Mr. Markey asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. [EDWARD J.] MARKEY [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, over 13,000 deaths have been reported in the past 15 months in El Salvador, a country just larger than my own State of Massachusetts. A majority of these deaths have been attributed to the rightist government in power since 1979. . . .

MR. [KENNETH B.] KRAMER [of Colorado]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

Are we still proceeding under the normal rules for 1-minute speeches?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Colorado that recognition at this time is within the total discretion of the Speaker.

The House is proceeding under the 1-minute practice.

The gentleman will be recognized.

The Chair assures the gentleman that he will be recognized. . . .

MR. [LAWRENCE J.] DENARDIS [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, I positioned myself here 55 minutes ago to speak on an education and labor matter, and I want to say, for the record, that my associates on the minority side of the aisle, who were here promptly at 3 o'clock, have had to wait, I would say unnecessarily and unfairly long, to have our opportunity to speak.

§ 10.52 Recognition of Members for “one-minute speeches” prior to legislative business is within the discretion of the Speaker, who may announce his intention to alternate recognition between majority and minority Members for one hour before recognizing a Member to call up scheduled legislative business.

2. 127 CONG. REC. 4617–19, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

On June 26, 1981,⁽³⁾ Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., of Massachusetts, made the following statement in the House:

THE SPEAKER: The Chair desires to make the following announcement:

There are a considerable number of requests for 1-minute speeches. Following the doctrine of fairness, the Chair will recognize one Member from the Democratic side and then one from the Republican side, and at the hour of 11 o'clock will recognize the chairman of the Budget Committee to offer a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole.

§ 10.53 While at one time the Chair normally conferred recognition from his right to his left upon those Members who are standing in the well when the time for one-minute speeches prior to legislative business begins, the order of recognition is within the discretion of the Chair who may continue to recognize majority Members arriving at a later time before recognizing minority Members.

On Apr. 20, 1978,⁽⁴⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding the order of recognition for one-minute speeches:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has been observing this House for about 25 years now in various capacities and was under the impression that the Speaker's normal custom was to recognize Members for 1-minute speeches from his right to left allowing those Members who were there from the beginning to speak. This morning we have seen a parade of Members on the majority side of the aisle fill up the seats of Members who have already taken their 1-minute speeches while several other Members on the minority side of the aisle have been sitting here for more than an hour. I just wondered if that is not still the custom of the House?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is advised that recognition lies within the discretion of the Chair. This Member has observed the Chair, I think without exception, recognizing from his right side to his left. The Chair has no control of the number of Members who might seek recognition. But the Chair is seeking to protect the rights of all Members of the House and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) may be assured that the rights of all Members will be protected.

§ 10.54 While the Chair strives for fairness in recognizing Members for one-minute speeches prior to legislative business and has recognized minority Members prior to later arriving majority Members, the order of recognition for one-minute speeches is in the discretion of the Chair.

On June 28, 1983,⁽⁵⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore George E. Brown, Jr., of California, responded to a parliamentary inquiry of Mr. Gerald B. Solomon, of New York, as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. SOLOMON: Mr. Speaker, I am just concerned with fairness. We have heard a lot about it on the floor here this morning, but I understand it is the Speaker's policy to recognize those Members who wish to address the House for 1 minute in the order in which they came.

We naturally give the Democrats first preference, but it seems in recent days we see Members sitting here, like myself, for an hour and 10 minutes now and then we have other Members coming in on the Democratic side in the last 5 minutes. I would hope that the Speaker would continue his policy of once the Democrats have been recognized in the order in which they came, follow through with the Republicans in the act of fairness and then go back to those who came in later.

Is that the policy of the Chair, Mr. Speaker?

5. 129 CONG. REC. 17671, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It is in the discretion of the Chair to recognize Members as he sees fit; however, the Chair invariably seeks to be fair in his procedures.

§ 10.55 The order of recognition for one-minute speeches prior to legislative business is within the discretion of the Chair and is not subject to challenge on a point of order.

On Nov. 15, 1983,⁽⁶⁾ during the time for one-minute speeches in the House, the following exchange occurred:

MR. [MICKEY] EDWARDS of Oklahoma: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order.

I noticed in the recognition of Members as they sat around the room here to be recognized for 1-minute speeches that one Member was just recognized who had not been sitting in order to participate.

I would inquire of the Speaker if it is his intention now to continue to recognize the Republican Members before accepting any more Democrats who are not currently sitting to be recognized.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁷⁾ The Chair would state that this is not really a point of order. Recognition is within the discretion of the Chair, and the Chair is attempting to be fair.

It was the Chair's present intention to recognize a minority Member gentleman from Ohio, who stands seeking recognition at this time. This is what the Chair intends to do.

Parliamentarian's Note: Various protocols have been enunciated by Speakers regarding the order of one-minute speech recognition. See § 10.48, supra.

§ 10.56 Recognition for one-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Chair, who may decline recognition until a later time in the legislative day.

On May 16, 1984,⁽⁸⁾ pursuant to clause 5 of Rule I, the Speaker postponed the vote on his approval of the Journal until a time certain that day, in order to permit a period of one-minute speeches and then a quorum call or record vote on the Journal prior to declaring a recess for a joint meeting. Questions arose during the proceedings as to whether one-minute speeches would be resumed after the recess:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof. . . .

MR. [VIN] WEBER [of Minnesota]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

8. 130 CONG. REC. 12481, 12483, 12484, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

9. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair intends to have a quorum call before the President of Mexico comes, at about 10:25.

Does the gentleman withhold his motion?

MR. WEBER: No, I will not, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the Chair's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. WEBER: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will postpone the vote on the Journal until 10:25 a.m. . . .

The Chair will recognize 1-minute speeches.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright). . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair will announce that it intends to take one more Member on the Democratic side, and then, because the House intends to vote at 10:25, the Chair will move to the Republican side. . . .

MR. [DANIEL E.] LUNGREN [of California]: Mr. Speaker, does this mean that when we come back after we have received the President of Mexico, we will resume 1-minutes?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is a possibility.

MR. LUNGREN: Well, Mr. Speaker, that is really not an answer to my question. Are we or are we not going to do it? Because we have had 20 minutes of Democratic one minutes, and perhaps 4 minutes of Republican 1-minutes.

10. Pat Williams (Mont.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will answer the gentleman that that is a possibility because it will be up to the judgment of the Speaker. . . .

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman in the chair is the Speaker at this point. What we need is a ruling as to whether or not the minority side is going to be accorded the right to 1-minutes, since many of us have been sitting here after, or before members of the majority side were recognized. Now, it seems to us that we deserve our opportunity to have our 1-minutes considered here, too.

Is the Chair going to allow 1-minutes or not?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will again tell the gentleman of the minority that the decision as to the earlier gentleman's request as to whether or not 1-minutes will proceed immediately after the recess, the Chair announces that decision will be the Speaker's.

The Chair will also announce that the Republican side of the aisle, as well as the Democratic side, will have an opportunity for 1-minutes sometime during the course of the day. . . .

MR. WEBER: Mr. Speaker, does the Chair mean that the Republicans will be given the opportunity to do the 1-minutes prior to the beginning of legislative business?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: No, some time during the day.

MR. WEBER: Perhaps at the end of legislative business?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That will be a decision for the Speaker.

§ 10.57 Recognition is within the discretion of the Chair, who may deny a Member recognition to speak under the "one-minute rule" in order to uphold order and decorum in the House as required under clause 2 of Rule I; thus, the Speaker inquired of a Member in the well seeking recognition, as to his purpose in utilizing an object for demonstration in debate, and then denied that Member recognition pursuant to his authority under clause 2 of Rule XIV, when he determined that the object might subject the House to ridicule.

On Aug. 27, 1980,⁽¹¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair would ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Shuster) what he intends to do with the doll. The Chair is not going to allow the Congress to be held up to ridicule and will object to any such exhibit being used in debate.

MR. [E. G.] SHUSTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, if I may respond, I simply want to introduce this duck as a symbol of the lameduck session that I want to speak to.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is of the opinion the Member would be holding

11. 126 CONG. REC. 23456, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

12. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

the House up to ridicule and would ask the gentleman to make the speech without utilizing the apparatus or the doll or anything of that nature.

MR. SHUSTER: Mr. Speaker, this is certainly not the intention.

THE SPEAKER: That is the way the Chair feels about it and the Chair so rules.

(Mr. Shuster asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Parliamentarian's Note: The original transcript shows that the Speaker first inquired as to Mr. Shuster's purpose and then denied him recognition, and that Mr. Shuster was then recognized for one minute. Thus, the Speaker was exercising his power of recognition, and was not unilaterally preventing the use of a demonstration during debate, which would be a matter to be determined by a vote of the House, under Rule XXX.

—Chair May Recognize After Legislative Business

§ 10.58 The elected Speaker Pro Tempore (the Majority Leader) reiterated his policy announced on the previous day to refuse to entertain unanimous-consent requests to address the House for one minute before legislative business because of the press of legislative business during the remainder of the week, but stated that any policy for the remainder of the session with respect to one-minute speeches would be a matter for the Speaker to determine.

During the proceedings of the House on July 25, 1980,⁽¹³⁾ the Speaker Pro Tempore made the following statement regarding recognition for one-minute speeches:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ . . . As the Chair announced yesterday, requests to address the House for 1 minute will be entertained at the conclusion of the legislative business today, rather than at the beginning. . . .

The Chair believes there is genuine value in the 1-minute rule in the exercise of free expression For all its value, however, the Chair does not believe that the 1-minute rule must necessarily precede, nor be permitted to postpone, the business of the House. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, yesterday the gentleman from Maryland heard the Chair answer a question regarding 1-minute speeches. The gentleman from Maryland asked the Chair whether or not limits on such speeches is to be a policy to be followed for the remainder of the session, and the Chair, as recorded on page H6404, said that the Chair was not announcing a policy for the remainder of the session, but only for Thursday and Friday.

13. 126 CONG. REC. 19762-64, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

14. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

Do I take the Chair's announcement this morning to mean that this will be the policy for the remainder of this session?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: No; as the Chair stated yesterday in response to a question from the gentleman from Maryland, the present occupant of the chair is not in a position to announce a policy for the remainder of the session, and so stated.

The policy for the remainder of the session would be more appropriately determined and stated by Speaker O'Neill. At this present time, that is all the Chair has to say, or all that he properly should or could say.

Parliamentarian's Note: In the above instance, a resolution directing that the Speaker "exercise his prerogative and reinstitute the custom of allowing one-minute speeches at the beginning of the session" was held not to raise a question of the privileges of the House.⁽¹⁵⁾ In general, it is not in order to raise as a question of the privileges of the House a proposition to amend or interpret the rules of the House or to impinge on the Chair's power of recognition.

§ 10.59 On occasion the Speaker has announced his intention to recognize for one-minute speeches after completion of the first item of legislative business, rather than at the beginning of the day.

15. 126 CONG. REC. 19762, 96th Cong. 2d Sess., July 25, 1980.

On Nov. 10, 1983,⁽¹⁶⁾ after putting the question on approval of the Journal, the Speaker made an announcement:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ The question now is on the approval of the Journal. . . .

The Chair will announce that following the vote we will go directly to consideration of the continuing resolution. Following the completion of the continuing resolution, we will then take the 1-minute addresses for the day.

§ 10.60 Recognition for one-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Speaker; and when the House has a heavy legislative schedule, he sometimes refuses to recognize Members for that purpose until the completion of legislative business.

On July 24, 1980,⁽¹⁸⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, made an announcement regarding one-minute speeches, as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair desires to announce that in view

16. 129 CONG. REC. 32097, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

18. 126 CONG. REC. 19386, 19387, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

of the need to complete the legislative schedule, which has been long delayed, the Chair will recognize Members at this time only for unanimous-consent requests to revise and extend their remarks and not for 1-minute speeches.

Members will be recognized for 1-minute speeches at the conclusion of the legislative business today.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, it has, of course, been traditional in the House to allow 1-minute speeches at the discretion of the Chair, as the Chair has just indicated.

Is this denial of 1-minute speeches to be the policy for the remainder of the session, or is it just for today?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair cannot and would not attempt to set a policy for the remainder of the session. For the remainder of this week, today and tomorrow, the Chair desires to complete the legislative program that is scheduled for this week and to allow Members to leave at 3 o'clock tomorrow.

Subsequently, a Member took the floor for a special-order speech to criticize the decision of the Speaker Pro Tempore to refuse to recognize for one-minute speeches prior to legislative business on that day:⁽¹⁹⁾

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) is recognized for 60 minutes.

(Mr. Bauman asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I take this time to observe with sorrow the events that occurred earlier today. I did not wish to explore them at length during the 1-minute speech which I was finally permitted, but I do think they deserve some comment. I will try to confine myself to the 1-hour the House permits me under special order.

I happen to believe that the conduct of the President's brother, Billy Carter, has raised valid questions that need to be answered. . . .

So I would just suggest that we all re-examine our position and only put aside the traditions of the House and the free speech of Members if it is absolutely necessary for good reason.

—Second Request Not Entertained

§ 10.61 Under the Speaker's power of recognition as traditionally exercised prior to legislative business, a Member may be recognized for a "one-minute speech" only once, and a second unanimous-consent request on that day will not be entertained.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from New York rise?

MR. [THOMAS J.] DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Pennsylvania will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, am I not correct that, having given one 1-minute speech, the gentleman is not entitled to a second 1-minute speech today?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is the custom, if the gentleman from New York (Mr. Downey) has had a 1-minute speech. . . .

(Mr. [Byron L.] Dorgan of North Dakota asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield to me?

MR. DORGAN of North Dakota: I yield to the gentleman from New York.

casion recognized Members by unanimous consent for one-minute speeches prior to the call of committees.

While the precedents⁽²⁾ indicate that the call of committees should ordinarily precede unanimous-consent requests for the conduct of other business, the Speaker may make exceptions. Thus, on Mar. 21, 1984,⁽³⁾ the Speaker recognized a Member for a unanimous-consent request:

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 minute, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ What has the gentleman got in his hand?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, this is a demonstration of what I have. I am not certain I am going to be able to use it under the rules.

THE SPEAKER: If the gentleman does not think so, why is he trying?

MR. WALKER: I will explain that in my speech, but I certainly would not want to violate the rules.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the Speaker recognizes the gentleman and will be watching carefully.

MR. WALKER: I thank the Speaker, and I know that the Speaker always watches very carefully everything that I do. . . .

The Clerk called the committees.

—Recognition During Reading of Journal

§ 10.63 A Member by unanimous consent secured recognition during the reading of the Journal.

On Apr. 9, 1964,⁽⁵⁾ during the reading of the Journal, Mr. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, raised a parliamentary inquiry whether there was any method by which he could be recognized for one minute. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded that unanimous consent could be granted for such recognition, and the House granted unanimous consent for the purpose of that recognition.

Recognition and Limitation of Time for Special Order Speeches; “Oxford-style” Debates

§ 10.64 Pursuant to several unanimous-consent requests, the House agreed to a 90-day trial period from February 23 through May 23, 1994, [subsequently extended on several occasions] and agreed on a format of recognition and limitation of time for each party for special-order speeches, including periodic “Oxford style” structured debates and morning-hour debates; the Speaker then announced the applicable guidelines for recognition during such speeches and debate.

5. 110 CONG. REC. 7356, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

The following unanimous-consent request was agreed to on Feb. 11, 1994:⁽⁶⁾

MR. [RICHARD A.] GEPHARDT [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, following my unanimous-consent request to put in place an agreed upon format for recognitions to address the House during a 90-day trial period beginning February 23, 1994, including a morning hour debate, an oxford style debate and a restriction on special order speeches, the Speaker will announce his guidelines for recognition. In so doing it is stipulated that the establishment of this format for recognition by the Speaker is without prejudice to the Speaker’s ultimate power of recognition under clause 1, rule XIV should circumstances so warrant.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the special orders previously granted by the House to address the House on dates through May 23, 1994 be vacated;

Further that during the period beginning February 23, 1994 and for 90 days thereafter, on Mondays and Tuesdays of each week the House convene 90 minutes earlier than the time otherwise established by order of the House solely for the purpose of conducting morning hour debates to be followed by a recess declared by the Speaker pursuant to clause 12, rule I under the following conditions:

6. CONG. REC. p. ____, 103d Cong. 2d Sess.

(1) Prayer by the Chaplain, approval of the Journal and the pledge of allegiance to the flag to be postponed until the resumption of the House session following the completion of morning hour debate;

(2) Debate to be limited not to exceed 30 minutes allocated to each party, with initial and subsequent recognition alternating daily between parties to be conferred by the Speaker only pursuant to lists submitted by the majority leader and minority leaders respectively (no Member on such lists to be permitted to address the House for longer than 5 minutes except for the majority leader and minority leader respectively);

Further, that on (every third) Wednesday, beginning on a day to be designated by the Speaker and mutually agreed upon by the majority leader and minority leader, it shall be in order, at a time to be determined by the Speaker, for the Speaker to recognize the majority leader and minority leader (or their designees), jointly, for a period of not to exceed 2 hours, for the purpose of holding a structured debate. The topic of the debate, when mutually agreed upon by the majority leader and minority leader, shall be announced by the Speaker. The format of the debate, which shall allow for participation by four Members of the majority party and four from the minority party in the House, chosen by their respective party leaders, with specified times for presentations and rebuttals by all participants, and periods of questioning of each Member by others participating, shall be announced to the House by the Speaker.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Subsequently, the Speaker announced the following guidelines for implementation of the unanimous-consent agreement:

THE SPEAKER: With respect to special orders to address the House for up to 1 hour at the conclusion of legislative business or on days when no legislative business is scheduled, the Chair announces that:

First, Tuesdays, following legislative business, there will be an unlimited period of special orders not extending beyond midnight, with recognition for 5-minute and then for longer special orders alternating between the parties and with initial recognition, for longer special orders, rotating on a daily basis between the parties, and with the first hour of recognition on each side reserved to the House leadership—majority leader and whip and minority leader or their designee;

Second, on Mondays, Wednesdays, except those Wednesdays when Oxford style debates are in order, Thursdays and Fridays, the Chair will recognize Members from each party for up to 2 hours of special order debate at the conclusion of legislative business and

7. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

5-minute special orders, or when no legislative business is scheduled, not extending beyond midnight, again with initial recognition alternating between the parties on a daily basis and with the allocation of time within each 2-hour period, or short period if prorated to end by midnight, to be determined by a list submitted to the Chair by the House leadership, majority leader and whip and minority leader or designees, respectively, and with the first hour of recognition on each side reserved to the House leadership, majority leader and whip and minority leader or their designees. Members will be limited to signing up for all such special orders no earlier than 1 week prior to the special order, and additional guidelines may be established for such sign-ups by the majority and minority leaders, respectively. One-minute speeches on those days both prior to and at the conclusion of legislative business shall be at the discretion of the Speaker;

Third, pursuant to clause 9(b)(1) of rule I, during this trial period the television cameras will not pan the Chamber, but a crawl indicating morning hour or that the House has completed its legislative business and is proceeding with special order speeches will appear on the screen. Other television camera adaptations during this period may be announced by the Chair;

Fourth, special orders to extend beyond the 4-hour period may be permitted at the discretion of the Chair with advance consultation between the leaderships and notification to the House.

Parliamentarian's Note: On subsequent occasions, the House extended the above unanimous-consent agreement.⁽⁸⁾ On May 12, 1995, the House extended the agreement by unanimous consent, but changed the Tuesday morning hour to 9 a.m.

The proceedings of May 12, 1995, were as follows:

MR. [RICHARD K.] ARMEY [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the order of the House of January 4, 1995, relating to morning hour debates be continued through the adjournment of the 2d session of the 104th Congress sine die, except that on Tuesdays the House shall convene for such debate 1 hour earlier than the time otherwise established by order of the House rather than 90 minutes earlier; and the time for such debates shall be limited to 25 minutes allocated to each party rather than 30 minutes to each; but in no event shall such debates continue beyond the time that falls 10 minutes before the appointed hour for the resumption of legislative business, and with the understanding that the format for recognition for special order speeches first instituted on February 23, 1994, be continued for the same period. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Meetings of the leadership following the February 11 proceedings produced further guidelines for implementation of the special-order and morning-hour procedures. The guidelines provided, among other matters, for alternation of recognition between the parties, and for procedures whereby Members sign up in advance for special orders, the majority in the Majority Leader's office and the minority in the cloak-room, the lists to be approved on the floor. For the Oxford-style debates, each leader would designate four participants for the debate every third Wednesday, to be held on a mutually agreeable topic announced by the Speaker. Guidelines for the morning hour on every Monday and Tuesday also provided for allocation of time and for the procedure of signing up with the party leaders.⁽⁹⁾

Recognition for Special-order Speeches—Speaker's Guidelines

§ 10.65 Pursuant to the Speaker's guidelines of Aug. 8, 1984, recognition for special-order speeches of five minutes occurred in the order in which they were requested, alternating between majority and minority Members with each Member controlling his own time (in the absence of unanimous consent to permit recognition out of that order).

On Oct. 21, 1985,⁽¹⁰⁾ during the period designated for special-order speeches, the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding the order of recognition:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. [Eldon D.] Rudd) is recognized for 5 minutes. . . .

MR. [GEORGE W.] GEKAS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, since the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Rudd), the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Coble), and myself are all going to engage in the same discussion, is it possible to amalgamate the special orders entered into for the three of us into one block of time and allow us to yield back and forth so that we can complete a three-way dialog on it?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will call the Members' names in the order they appear here. No other Members are seeking special orders today. We will call Members' names in order. . . .

Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. [Howard] Coble) is recognized for 5 minutes. . . .

10. 131 CONG. REC. 28129, 28130, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

11. Glenn English (Okla.).

Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Gekas) is recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. GEKAS: Mr. Speaker, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Rudd), and I would only ask that he give me a chance to say something in response to the gentleman who is in the well.

Parliamentarian's Note: In this case, the Chair observed that Representative Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, a Democrat, was listed after Representative Coble, but was not present, and so the three Republican Members (Mr. Rudd, Mr. Coble, and Mr. Gekas) would be recognized in sequence, each to control his own time, and unanimous consent was not required to permit Mr. Gekas to be recognized ahead of Mr. Udall.

—Discretion of Speaker

§ 10.66 The Speaker may not be compelled by a motion under Rule XXV to recognize Members for scheduled "special orders" immediately upon completion of scheduled legislative business, but rather may continue to exercise his power of recognition under Rule XIV clause 2 to recognize other Members for unanimous-consent requests and permissible motions; thus, the Speaker has declined to recognize a Member who sought to invoke Rule XXV to interfere with the Speaker's power of recognition.

Rule XXV, which provides that "questions as to the priority of business shall be decided by a majority without debate," merely precludes debate on motions to go into Committee of the Whole, on questions of consideration, and on appeals from the Chair's decisions on priority of business, and should not be utilized to permit a motion directing the Speaker to recognize Members in a certain order or to otherwise establish an order of business. Thus, for example, on July 31, 1975,⁽¹²⁾ the Speaker⁽¹³⁾ refused to recognize a Member who sought to make a motion to direct recognition of Members for special orders.

MR. PHILLIP BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order that a quorum is not present.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make the point of order to this effect: Under the new rules of the House, is it not true that once the House has proceeded to the closing business of the day, granting requests for absences and special orders, that it is no longer in order to make a point of order that a quorum is not present?

12. 121 CONG. REC. 26249, 26251, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

13. Carl Albert (Okla.).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has not started to recognize Members for special orders yet. All the business on the Chair's desk has been completed. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the rules preclude a quorum at this point because personal requests have already been read from the desk. A leave of absence was granted to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Teague).

Under the new rules, Mr. Speaker, a quorum does not lie after this point of business in the day.

THE SPEAKER: If the Chair understands the gentleman's point of order, it relates to the fact, which is a new rule, not the rule we used to follow. The rule is that once a special order has started, the Member who has the special order and is speaking cannot be taken off his feet by a point of order of no quorum. However, there is nothing in the rules of which the Chair is aware that requires the Chair to begin to call a special order at any particular time.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I move under rule XXV that the House proceed to recognize the Members previously ordered to have special orders today, and on that I ask for a rollcall vote.

MR. [MICHAEL T.] BLOUIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, on that, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 137, nays 202, not voting 95, as follows: . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, under rule XXV, I again renew my motion that the Chair proceed to the recognition of other Members who have previously been granted special orders for today.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Danielson).

MR. [GEORGE E.] DANIELSON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, there is a motion pending.

Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 142, nays 205, not voting 87, as follows: . . .

§ 10.67 The Speaker is not required to recognize Members for scheduled "special-order" speeches immediately upon completion of legislative business but may continue to recognize other Members for unanimous-consent requests and permissible motions.

On July 31, 1975,⁽¹⁴⁾ the proposition stated above was demonstrated in the House as follows:

MR. JOHN L. BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁵⁾ The motion is not in order since we just had a vote on a similar motion and there has been no intervening business or debate. . . .

The Chair will take unanimous-consent requests.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recess subject to the call of the Chair.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state to the gentleman that is not a privileged motion. The Chair cannot entertain that motion at this time.

MR. [WILLIAM L.] ARMSTRONG [of Colorado]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is will the Chair state what is the pending business before the House?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state there is no pending business. . . .

MR. ARMSTRONG: Mr. Speaker, under a previous order of the House I have been granted a special order for 60 minutes. I ask to be recognized at this time for that purpose.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Colorado does not have the first special order.

MR. [BARBER B.] CONABLE [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I believe I have the first special order, and I ask to be recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is not going to recognize any special order at this time, and the Chair has that authority. . . .

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONER [Jr., of Louisiana]: . . . Mr. Speaker, is it not correct to say that if a unanimous-consent request to allow the Committee on Rules until midnight to file a report on the Turkish aid issue now being debated by the other body, was granted, that the House could then adjourn and at the same time work its will because then, if the Committee on Rules files a report, it could be considered then under the rules of the House, and if they did not file a report, the issue would be moot?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that that is an accurate statement of the situation, as the Chair understands it. . . .

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, there have been some remarks made that the House would be denied its will and there would be no way to consider the matter in the event the other body agreed to some legislation tonight. Am I correct in the proposition that if a bill is passed by the other body tonight, there is a procedure under the rules whereby the matter could be considered tomorrow? . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state this. The regular rule is that a report from the Rules Committee has to go over 1 day or it takes a two-thirds vote for consideration on the day reported. The other way is that a unanimous-consent request can be made, and if the Committee on Rules can file it by 10 o'clock tomorrow, and the House adjourns tonight, then it will take a majority vote for consideration tomorrow after the House meets, just as it always does on a subsequent legislative day.

—Previous Order of House: Veterans Day Speeches

§ 10.68 After a recess of approximately six hours and eleven minutes, the Speaker called the House to order, and under a previous order of the House, recognized a majority and minority member of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs for special-order speeches in commemoration of Veterans Day.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Nov. 11, 1983:⁽¹⁶⁾

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at 6 o'clock p.m.

IN COMMEMORATION OF VETERANS DAY

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. Edwards) will be recognized for 30 minutes; and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Hammerschmidt) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Edwards).

—Before or After Legislative Business

§ 10.69 Once special orders have begun, it is customary not to resume legislative business, however this custom is not binding on the House and the Speaker has the authority to recognize for further business; thus, on occasion the Speaker has announced that he would begin to call the special orders, which action would not prejudice calling up of further legislative business later that day.

On Aug. 1, 1975,⁽¹⁸⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, made the following statement:

THE SPEAKER: . . . The normal procedure, as the Members know, special orders are called when the legislative business has ended. We have not called special orders yet.

We have at least three bills, to my knowledge, that may come over here from the Senate.

The Chair would like to take the special orders and reserve the authority to call up these bills at a later time. . . .

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

THE SPEAKER: Without prejudice to calling up other legislative business which might come over to the House from the Senate, the Chair will call the special orders at this time.

§ 10.70 The Speaker announced that he was awaiting a message from the Senate, and that he would recognize for requests and special orders while reserving the right to call up the Senate message on its arrival.

On Nov. 20, 1975,⁽¹⁹⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, made the following statement:

THE SPEAKER: The House is waiting for a message from the Senate but the Chair will take requests from the acting floor leaders at this time, reserving the right to call up the message whenever it gets here.

§ 10.71 The Chair announced, having consulted with both sides of the aisle, that he would entertain one or more special-order speeches previously granted for the day, not necessarily in the order in which granted, with the understanding that further legislative business scheduled for the day, and possible rollcall votes, would follow such speeches, and that other special-order speeches might follow all legislative business.

^{19.} 121 CONG. REC. 37301, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

On Oct. 4, 1984,⁽²⁰⁾ the Chair made an announcement regarding proceedings in the House for the remainder of the day:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The Chair desires to make an announcement. After consultation with both sides of the aisle, the Chair will entertain one or more special order speeches previously granted at this time, not necessarily in the order in which granted, with the understanding that further legislative business scheduled for the day, and possible rollcall votes, will follow those speeches for which the Chair recognizes. Other special orders may follow all legislative business.

—Entertaining Unanimous-consent Request, Concerning Legislative Business, During Special Orders

§ 10.72 While the Chair will not ordinarily entertain unanimous-consent requests involving legislative business during “special-order speeches” when no further legislative business is scheduled, he may entertain a request for late filing of a report when assured that the minority has no objection to the request or to its being made during special orders.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Nov. 21,

^{1.} Theodore S. Weiss (N.Y.).

1985,⁽²⁾ during the period designated for special-order speeches:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾ Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Nelson) is recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. [BILL] NELSON [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, due to official business, I was unable to be present and voting for rollcall Nos. 414 through 416 on November 20, 1985. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Weaver) is recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. [JAMES] WEAVER [of Oregon]: . . . Mr. Speaker, according to estimates prepared by the Congressional Budget Office, my bill will save the American taxpayers $30 billion over the next 5 years. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Appropriations may have until midnight tonight to file a report on a joint resolution making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1986.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Does the Chair understand that this has been cleared with the other side?

MR. NATCHER: This has been cleared, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

—Committee on Rules Filing Privileged Report During Special Orders

§ 10.73 The Committee on Rules has on occasion filed a privileged report during special-order speeches, unanimous consent not being required.

Although it is true that legislative business generally does not take place after special-order speeches have begun, the practice has not been considered as prohibiting the filing of special rules. Thus, on Nov. 4, 1983,⁽⁴⁾ a privileged report from that committee was submitted:

Mr. [Tony P.] Hall of Ohio, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 98-487) on the resolution (H. Res. 362) providing for the consideration of the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 403) making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1984, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) is recognized for 60 minutes.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, it has been generally accepted in the House that we operate under certain comity principles that permits us to operate in an orderly fashion. We try around here to do certain things that move the House forward, and on some irregular occasions there have been, and I have been a part of many of those, attempts to slow down the procedures of the House simply by utilizing the rules. . . .

4. See 129 CONG. REC. 30954, 30956, 30957, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

Well, we do have a standing commitment in the House that we will conduct no substantive business after special orders have been arrived at. I would say to the gentleman it was his staff who reminded me of that last winter when I stood on the floor and protected just that procedure here late one evening. I think it was around 1 o'clock in the morning, as a matter of fact. That is precisely what this gentleman is referring to.

The filing of the rule, which is a controversial rule, is in my mind a piece of business that violates that comity procedure

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: That would have been substantive business of a type that manifestly is not considered to be in order generally after you have begun special orders because the unanimous consent by which a special order is granted is usually predicated upon the request that upon completion of all business, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, or wherever, might be permitted to address the House for 60 minutes, or for however long.

But I think what the gentleman may not be aware of is that the filing of rules is a matter separate and apart from the taking up of legislative business. The filing of rules has occurred on numerous occasions after special orders have begun.

—Recognition Before or After Recess

§ 10.74 Where legislative business has been completed prior to the announced time for a recess, the Speaker has in his discretion recognized some Members for special-order speeches until the declaration of a recess and then recognized other Members for special orders following the recess (for a joint session to receive a message from the President).

On Jan. 25, 1984,⁽⁵⁾ the Speaker responded to several parliamentary inquiries regarding special-order speeches:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. Lungren) is recognized for 60 minutes.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WALKER: Do not the special orders normally come at the end of the legislative day, and would we not be entitled to a special order at the end of the legislative day?

THE SPEAKER: Of course, if the gentleman wants the time, some Member of his party can speak up for him; no problem. We are not doing anything that is unusual.

Does the gentleman desire his time?

MR. [DANIEL E.] LUNGREN [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry at this point. . . .

5. 130 CONG. REC. 372, 373, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

6. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

It is my understanding the Speaker announced when he took the chair this morning that we have to, for security reasons, leave no later than 5 o'clock today.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is correct.

MR. LUNGREN: And since my special order is for an hour, I would like to have that hour and not interfere with the sweep of the House. I would be here immediately after the President's speech.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman want 20 minutes now and the remainder later on this evening?

MR. LUNGREN: That is a very, very nice suggestion on the part of the Speaker, but I would like to collect my thoughts after the President's speech.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will be happy to grant the gentleman's request.

MR. LUNGREN: I thank the Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) is recognized for 60 minutes.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, would I also be entitled to collect my thoughts so that I might utilize the time later on this evening? It may take me a little time.

THE SPEAKER: Well, if that is the gentleman's request, I would be happy to grant it.

MR. WALKER: I thank the Speaker for that very much.

THE SPEAKER: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Gingrich) is recognized for 20 minutes.

Does the gentleman wish to take 20 minutes now?

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: The Speaker has been so generous to us today and is, as always, such an able man in presiding over this body and it is such a joy to work with him that if the Speaker would not mind my taking 20 minutes now, I would be very honored to take some time now.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman may have the 20 minutes now and is so recognized.

Parliamentarian's Note: Representatives Lungren and Walker had one-hour special orders, which would run longer than the remaining time prior to the 5 p.m. recess. Thus, the Speaker recognized Representative Gingrich, who had a 20-minute special order, and returned to the other Members after the joint session.

—Question of Personal Privilege Takes Precedence

§ 10.75 Under Rule IX, a question of personal privilege takes precedence over a special-order speech previously scheduled at the conclusion of legislative business; on one occasion, a Member who had received, by unanimous consent, permission to address the House under a "special order" rose instead to a question of personal privilege based on a press account criticizing him in his official capacity and was recognized for one hour.

On Sept. 21, 1979,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [JACK] BRINKLEY [of Georgia]: . . . [P]rior to the convening of the 96th Congress . . . [Mr. Claude D. Pepper, of Florida] agreed to hold the record open on a proposed report from the staff of the Select Committee on the Aging—in order to include a presentation from American Family Life Assurance Co. headquartered in my congressional district.

A Knight-Ridder reporter, noting my connection, made something sinister of it. I had attended the conference with Congressman Pepper; my public disclosure statement showed that I was a stockholder.

—One Hour Limit

§ 10.76 A Member may not control more than one hour of debate in the House (on a special order), even by unanimous consent.

On Oct. 16, 1979,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Rhodes) is recognized for 60 minutes.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this special order is to outline what Congress should be doing to help our Nation turn back inflation. It has been said that inflation is the neutron bomb of our economy. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The time of the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Rhodes) has expired.

MR. [DELBERT L.] LATTA [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman proceed for 5 additional minutes.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That request is not in order.

—Relevancy in Debate; Principle as Applicable

§ 10.77 Unanimous-consent requests to address the House for up to one hour may specify the subject of the “special order”, and the occupant of the Chair during that special order may enforce the rule of relevancy in debate if the special order has been permitted only on that subject.

Most special-order requests do not specify the subject to be debated, and if granted by the House the Member recognized may speak on any subject. Under Rule XIV, clause 1, however, if the question under debate has been specified by the House, the Member must confine his remarks to that subject. On Jan. 23, 1984,⁽¹¹⁾ a Member indicated the subject of special orders requested, and another Member asked for a ruling that the special orders be strictly limited to those subjects:

10. John G. Fary (Ill.).

MRS. [PATRICIA] SCHROEDER [of Colorado]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that today, following legislative business and any special orders heretofore entered into, the following Members may be permitted to address the House, revise and extend their remarks, and include extraneous material:

Ms. Oakar, for 15 minutes;

Mr. Annunzio, for 5 minutes;

Mr. Gonzalez, for 30 minutes

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹²⁾
Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Colorado?

MRS. SCHROEDER: Mr. Speaker, I also ask unanimous consent that following legislative business on the following days, these special orders be allowed so that Members may revise and extend their remarks, and include therein extraneous material:

Mrs. Schroeder, to honor the prior Congressman, Mr. Rogers—

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

MRS. SCHROEDER: Mr. Speaker, may I make a point? These are requests for the honoring of members who were deceased over the period that we have been adjourned.

MR. WALKER: Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

The unanimous-consent request is simply for time, and it is not supposed to include the title of what it is that is being done. . . .

MRS. SCHROEDER: Yes, Mr. Speaker. There is precedent for restating why we want special days assigned, and several Members, prior Members of this body, were deceased during this period while we have been adjourned.

Many Members would like to participate in the special orders, and Members have requested certain days in advance so that we could know that and send out a "Dear Colleague" in order to do that. . . .

The three orders dealing with that are these:

Myself, representing the memory of Byron Rogers, which we hope to do on January 30 for 60 minutes; and

Mr. Kastenmeier and Mr. Fascell on January 31, both wanting 60 minutes to the memory of our deceased prior chairman, Mr. Zablocki.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Colorado?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I do so to request of the Chair whether or not these special orders will be absolutely limited to those subject matters. I ask whether the Chair will rule at this point that those special orders being entered into will be absolutely limited to those subject matters that were suggested by the gentlewoman from Colorado.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the occupant of the chair at the time would have to rule on such matters.

—Yielding During Special-order Speeches

§ 10.78 By unanimous consent, a Member recognized for one hour in the House for a “special-order speech” may yield a designated portion of that time to another Member, to be yielded in turn by that Member.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on July 17, 1985:⁽¹³⁾

MR. [WILLIAM F.] CLINGER [Jr., of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to be joined in this special order by my distinguished chairman, the chairman of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Howard), and by my distinguished leader of the Economic Development Subcommittee, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Nowak).

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Howard) 30 minutes of my special order time.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

MR. CLINGER: Mr. Speaker, I yield to my chairman.

13. 131 CONG. REC. 19474, 19475, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

14. Richard A. Gephardt (Mo.).

MR. [JAMES J.] HOWARD [of New Jersey]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to yield a portion of the time yielded to me by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Clinger) to other Members of the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

§ 11. Limitations on Power of Recognition; Basis for Denial

Some limitations on the Speaker's power of recognition are inherent in certain House rules (see Rule XIV and XXXII). Other restrictions have developed in long-standing practices to which the Speaker adheres.

Limitations on Power of Speaker

§ 11.1 In response to parliamentary inquiries, the Chair indicated that the Speaker's power of recognition is subject to any limitations imposed by the House rules.

On July 29, 1970,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 17654, the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970. A pending amendment thereto would have required the Congressional Record to contain a verbatim account of floor proceedings. The amendment also contained a provision authorizing Members to insert remarks not spoken on the floor but requiring their printing in distinctive type.

Mr. Dante B. Fascell, of Florida, made a number of parliamentary inquiries as to the effect of the pending amendment on the Chair's power of recognition. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, indicated: (1) that unless specifically restricted by a rule of the House, the Speaker retains the right of recognition; (2) that the Speaker may recognize for unanimous-consent requests to waive the requirements of an existing rule unless the rule in question specifies that it is not subject to waiver, even by unanimous consent; and (3) that there are certain rules (such as the prohibition against reference to gallery occupants in Rule XIV, clause 8, and Rule XXXII, clause 1, regarding admission to the floor) which the Speaker himself cannot waive and which are not subject to waiver by unanimous consent.

Recognizing for Questions of Privilege

§ 11.2 While one question of privilege is pending, the Chair does not recognize a Member to present another question of privilege.

On Apr. 20, 1936,⁽¹⁶⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ruled that while one Member had stated a question of privilege and that question was pending, another Member could not rise to another question of privilege:

MR. [THOMAS L.] BLANTON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of the privilege of the whole House and offer a privileged resolution, which I ask the Clerk to read.

The Clerk read as follows:

HOUSE RESOLUTION 490

Whereas during the House proceedings on April 17, 1936, the gentleman from Washington [Mr. Zioncheck] attempted to speak out of order and to indulge in personalities, when he was admonished by the Chair, as follows—

MR. [MARION A.] ZIONCHECK: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of personal privilege.

16. 80 CONG. REC. 5704-06, 74th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman cannot do that while another question of privilege is pending.

MR. ZIONCHECK: A point of order, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ZIONCHECK: The point of order is this: I know what the contents are. I have no objection to them.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is not stating a point of order. The gentleman will please remain quiet while this resolution is being read for the information of the House.⁽¹⁷⁾

Recognition During Reading of Presidential Messages

§ 11.3 The Chair declines to recognize Members to submit parliamentary inquiries during the reading of a message from the President.

On Jan. 21, 1946,⁽¹⁸⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, laid before the House the message of the President on the state of the Union and transmitting the budget. Mr. Robert F. Rich, of Pennsylvania, interrupted the reading of the message to raise a parliamentary inquiry. The Speaker Pro Tempore ruled that a parliamentary inquiry could not be entertained during the reading of the message.

Recognition on Questions of Equal Privilege

§ 11.4 Where two propositions of equal privilege are pending it is for the Chair to decide whom he will recognize to call up one of the propositions, but the House may by unanimous consent determine such precedence.

On Sept. 11, 1945,⁽¹⁹⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. Alfred L. Bulwinkle, of North Carolina, to make the unanimous-consent request that when the House meets on the following day, it immediately proceeds to the consideration of H.R. 3974. Mr. Robert F. Rich, of Pennsylvania, stated under a reservation of objection that he was under the impression that another bill was to be the first order of business on the following day. The Speaker responded:

That is a question for the Chair, as to whether the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Illinois to call up the rule or recognize the gentleman from Oklahoma to call up the bill repealing war time. The request being made at this time is for the war time repeal bill to take precedence.

Recognition for Point of No Quorum

§ 11.5 The Speaker does not recognize Members for a point of no quorum before the prayer is offered in the House.

On Apr. 12, 1946,⁽²⁰⁾ the House met at 10 o'clock a.m. Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, immediately made the point of order that a quorum was not present but Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, declined to recognize him. The prayer was offered and the Speaker then inquired of Mr. Hoffman whether he desired to insist on his point of order, and Mr. Hoffman withdrew it.

Parliamentarian's Note: The prayer is not considered in House practice as business requiring the presence of a quorum.⁽¹⁾

Recognition During Absence of Quorum

§ 11.6 The Chair refuses to recognize Members for business after the absence of a quorum has been announced by the Chair, and no business is in order until a quorum has been established.

20. 92 CONG. REC. 3567, 79th Cong. 2d Sess.

On June 8, 1960,⁽²⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, made a point of no quorum. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, counted and announced that a quorum was not present. A call of the House was ordered. Mr. Hoffman then attempted to seek recognition. The Speaker declined, saying:

The Chair cannot recognize the gentleman because a point of order of no quorum has been made, and the Chair announced that there was no quorum.

§ 11.7 Pending a point of order of no quorum, the Chair may not recognize a Member to propound a parliamentary inquiry unrelated thereto.

On July 23, 1942,⁽³⁾ Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, made the point of order that a quorum was not present, and Mr. Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, immediately attempted to state a parliamentary inquiry. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled:

The Chair doubts the authority of the Chair to recognize the gentleman to propound a parliamentary inquiry when a point of order is made, unless the gentleman from Texas withholds it.

§ 11.8 The Chair does not recognize for a demand for a teller vote pending his count of a quorum.

On Aug. 21, 1950,⁽⁴⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Carl T. Durham, of North Carolina, ruled that he would not entertain a demand for a teller vote while counting for a quorum.

Recognition Pending Call to Order

§ 11.9 The Chair does not recognize for debate pending the demand that a Member's words be taken down.

On Jan. 21, 1964,⁽⁵⁾ while the House was in the Committee of the Whole, certain words used in debate by a Member were demanded to be taken down and reported to the House. Before the Committee rose, Mr. James Roosevelt, of California, asked unanimous consent to proceed for one minute and Chairman William S. Moorhead, of Pennsylvania, refused to entertain the request.⁽⁶⁾

5. 110 CONG. REC. 756, 757, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.
6. Pending the demand, no debate is in order and recognition may not be sought for any purpose (except the unanimous-consent request of the Member called to order to withdraw the disorderly words). See §§48 et seq., infra.

Recognition To Refer to Visitors

§ 11.10 The Chair declines to recognize Members to refer to gallery occupants or to ask unanimous consent for that purpose.⁽⁷⁾

On July 27, 1954,⁽⁸⁾ during debate on a bill, Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, yielded to Mr. Walter H. Judd, of Minnesota, who stated his intention to call attention to a "French nurse who is in the gallery." Chairman Benjamin F. James, of Pennsylvania, ordered Mr. Judd to suspend since the rules of the House prohibited references to persons in the gallery. Mr. Judd then asked for unanimous consent to proceed out of order, and the Chairman answered as follows:

The gentleman may not proceed out of order for the purpose for which he manifestly intends to use the time. The Chair regrets extremely that he must so hold under the rules of procedure of

7. Rule XIV clause 8, House Rules and Manual §764 (1995) provides "It shall not be in order for any Member to introduce or to bring to the attention of the House during its sessions any occupant in the galleries of the House; nor may the Speaker entertain a request for the suspension of this rule by unanimous consent or otherwise." the House. We are all conscious of the great heroism of the person to whom the Chair knows that the gentleman wishes to allude, but it is a matter of extreme regret that because of the rules of the House, reference may not be made to anyone in the gallery.

Recognition for Reference to the Senate

§ 11.11 The Chair declines to recognize a Member proposing to refer to Senators or to proceedings of the Senate.

On May 25, 1937,⁽⁹⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering House Joint Resolution 361, for relief appropriations, Mr. Alfred F. Beiter, of New York, stated his intention to read from letters he had from members of the Senate, stating their sympathy with a movement. Chairman John J. O'Connor, of New York, made a point of order, on his own responsibility, against the reading of the letters.⁽¹⁰⁾

Recognition for Motion To Adjourn

having the floor for a motion to adjourn.

On Mar. 16, 1945,⁽¹¹⁾ Mr. Robert F. Jones, of Ohio, objected to the vote on a motion to recommit a general appropriations bill on the ground that a quorum was not present. An automatic rollcall was ordered, but a quorum failed to respond. Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, was recognized for a parliamentary inquiry and then stated his intention to move that the House adjourn. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, asked him to withhold his request and Mr. Hoffman responded: "If the Chair is refusing recognition, I will." The Speaker stated that he could not so refuse recognition for a motion to adjourn. Mr. John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then moved adjournment and the motion was agreed to.⁽¹²⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: This bill was considered under the general rules of the House, since privileged for consideration. The special order for consideration of a typical non-privileged bill provides that “the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.” While that language would ordinarily preclude an intervening motion to adjourn, the failure of a quorum to vote on recommittal or passage allows a motion to adjourn to intervene.

Requests Prohibited by Rule

§ 11.13 During the consideration of an omnibus private bill the Chair refused to recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests to extend the time for debate.

On July 20, 1937,⁽¹³⁾ the House was considering omnibus bills on the Private Calendar. Mr. Alfred F. Beiter, of New York, was speaking for five minutes in opposition to an amendment which had been offered and asked unanimous consent to address the House for an additional minute when his time expired. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that such a request could not be made, the rule limiting each side to five minutes' debate.⁽¹⁴⁾ § 11.14 The Speaker stated that he would not recognize a Member to request an off-the-record meeting of Members in the House Chamber.

On Oct. 18, 1943,⁽¹⁵⁾ John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, the Majority Leader, announced that an off-the-record meeting of Members would be held in the auditorium of the Library of Congress in order to hear the Chief of Staff of the Army and other generals on the war situation. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, objected that the meeting was an executive session of the House which should be held in the House Chamber. Mr. McCormack responded that the meeting was not an “executive session of Congress.”

Mr. Rankin asked Mr. McCormack to modify his announcement to ask unanimous consent that the meeting be had in the House Chamber, but Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that he would not recognize a Member to make such a request.⁽¹⁶⁾

Control of Debate Time Prescribed by Statute

§ 11.17 Debate on an implementing revenue bill must be equally divided and controlled among those favoring and those opposing the bill under section 151(f)(2) of the Trade Act of 1974, and unanimous consent is required to divide the time between the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee if both favor the bill; in the absence of such a unanimous-consent agreement, a Member opposed to the bill is entitled to control 10 hours of debate in opposition, with priority of recognition to opposing members of the Committee on Ways and Means; and the Member recognized to control the time in opposition may not be compelled to use less than that amount of time unless the Committee rises and the House limits further debate basis for the Speaker's ruling: "Should objection be made by two or more Members to the consideration of any bill or resolution so called (from the Private Calendar), it shall be recommitted to the committee which reported the bill or resolution, and no reservation of objection shall be entertained by the Speaker."

in the Committee of the Whole.

During consideration of the Trade Agreement Act of 1979 (H.R. 4537) in the House on July 10, 1979,⁽¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [AL] ULLMAN [of Oregon]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to Section 151(f) of Public Law 93-618, the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 4537) to approve and implement the trade agreements negotiated under the Trade Act of 1974, and for other purposes, and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate on the bill be equally divided and controlled between the gentleman from New York (Mr. Conable) and myself. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman)?

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object. . . .

I take this reservation for the purpose of propounding a parliamentary inquiry to the Chair.

The rule, section 151, before consideration says:

Debate in the House of Representatives on an implementing bill or approval resolution shall be limited to not more than 20 hours which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the bill or resolution. . . .

My query to the Chair as a part of my reservation is, if the unanimous-consent request of the chairman is granted can the chairman then move to terminate debate at any time during the course of debate before the 20 hours have expired?

THE SPEAKER: Reading the statute a motion further to limit the debate shall not be debatable, and that would be made in the House, either now or later, and not in the Committee of the Whole.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, if the gentleman from Ohio were to be recognized as opposing the bill, does the gentleman have the absolute right to the 10 hours regardless of the time that would be taken on the other side?

THE SPEAKER: Unless all general debate were further limited by the House a member of the Committee on Ways and Means who is opposed to the bill could seek to control the 10 hours of time. The gentleman would be entitled to the 10 hours unless a request came from a member of the Committee on Ways and Means who would be in opposition. . . .

MR. ASHBROOK: I thank the Speaker.

I ask this for a very specific purpose. Further reserving the right to object, it is my understanding then that the gentleman from Oregon could not foreclose debate as long as whoever controls the opposition time still has part of the 10 hours remaining. Is that correct, under the statute providing for consideration of this trade bill? . . .

THE SPEAKER: Not unless the committee rose and the House limited all debate.

A motion to limit general debate would not be entertained in the Committee of the Whole and the Chair cannot foresee something of that nature happening.

Member Recognized in Opposition Yielding Back Time

§ 11.18 Where debate on an amendment has been limited and equally divided between the proponent and a Member opposed, and the Chair has recognized the only Member seeking recognition in opposition to the amendment, no objection lies against that Member subsequently yielding back all the time in opposition.

On May 4, 1983,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration House Joint Resolution 13, calling for a freeze and reduction in nuclear weapons. House Joint Resolution 13 was being considered pursuant to a special rule agreed to on Mar. 16,⁽⁴⁾ and a special rule providing for additional procedures for consideration, agreed to on May 4.⁽⁵⁾ Mr. William S. Michigan, rose in opposition⁽⁶⁾ to an amendment⁽⁷⁾ offered by Mr. Henry J. Hyde, of Illinois, to a substitute amendment:

MR. BROOMFIELD: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The gentleman is recognized for 15 minutes in opposition to the amendment, for purposes of debate only.

MR. BROOMFIELD: Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

MR. HYDE: Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time and request a vote.

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, we have 15 minutes in order to oppose the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: No one stood up on that side of the aisle, and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) represented to the Chair that he opposed the amendment and was recognized for 15 minutes in opposition, and he yielded back the balance of his time, as did the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hyde). . . .

MR. [LES] AUCOIN [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Chairman, my inquiry is this: This side, which opposes the amendment, has been foreclosed an opportunity, not on this amendment but on the previous amendment, to have 15 minutes in opposition to the amendment because a Member on that side who voted against an amendment that was hostile to the exact amendment said he was opposed to it.

My parliamentary inquiry is, Mr. Chairman, is that in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: As the Chair previously explained, no one on the majority side of the aisle rose in opposition to that amendment. The Chair looked to the other side of the aisle and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) rose, represented that he was in opposition to the amendment and was recognized.

Parliamentarian's Note: Had another Member also been seeking to control time in opposition at the time the first Member was recognized and yielded back, the Chair could have allocated the time to that Member so that it could have been utilized.

Member May Not Proceed After Debate Time Expires

MR. [ROBERT K.] DORNAN of California: In 10 years . . . I have never heard on this floor so obnoxious a statement as I heard from Mr. Coelho, which means "rabbit" in Portuguese, as ugly a statement as was just delivered. Mr. Coelho said that we on our side of the aisle and those conservative Democrats, particularly those representing States which border the Gulf of Mexico, sold out the Contras. That is absurd . . . Panama is in chaos and Communists in Nicaragua, thanks to the liberal and radical left leadership in this House are winning a major victory, right now.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The time of the gentleman from California [Mr. Dornan] has expired.

MR. DORNAN of California: Wait a minute. On Honduran soil and on Nicaraguan soil.

MR. [HAROLD L.] VOLKMER [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, regular order, regular order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The time of the gentleman has expired. Will the Sergeant at Arms please turn off the microphone?

MR. [JUDD] GREGG [of New Hampshire]: . . . Under what rule does the Speaker decide to close down the debate and pursue a policy of shutting up the opposition by [not] allowing us access to the public and to the media and to our own microphones, the microphones of this House? . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: . . . Mr. Dornan grossly exceeded the limits and abused the privilege far in excess of 1 minute, and the Chair proceeded to restore order and decorum to the House. . . .

The Chair will state that unless a person receives permission to address the House, under the rules of the House he is not addressing the House. . . .

MR. GREGG: . . . I have not heard the Chair respond to my inquiry which is what ruling is the Chair referring to which allows him to turn off the microphone of a Member who has the floor?

§ 12. Priorities in Recognition

The order in which Members are recognized, or whether they are recognized at all, on matters before the House depends substantially on the application of the standing rules and the precedents to each specific motion or question. The purpose of this division is to delineate the general principles governing recognition during the deliberations of the House.

The discretion of the Speaker to determine the order of recognition is based on Rule XIV clause 2:

When two or more Members rise at once, the Speaker shall name the Member who is first to speak⁽¹²⁾

The Speaker or the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole has the power and discretion to decide the order of recognition,⁽¹³⁾ without the right of appeal,⁽¹⁴⁾ but he is governed in his decisions by the usages and precedents of the House.⁽¹⁵⁾

13. See, for example, §12.1, infra.

14. See §§9.5, 9.6, supra.

15. For a discussion of practices and precedents on the order of and right

When a Member rises to seek recognition, the Chair first ascertains the purpose for which he seeks recognition.⁽¹⁶⁾ If recognition for the purpose stated is required under the rules and precedents to be first extended to a Member with certain qualifications, such as being opposed to a measure, the Chair may further inquire whether the Member meets those qualifications.⁽¹⁷⁾ The Chair generally takes judicial notice of the committee rank and party alignment of a Member.

Generally, prior recognition is extended to a member of the committee which has reported the bill—often the chairman or senior member or other committee member who has been designated as manager of the bill.⁽¹⁸⁾ to recognition, see Cannon's Procedure in the House of Representatives 150–155, H. Doc. No. 122, 86th Cong. 1st Sess. (1959).

16. See §8, supra. The inquiry “for what purpose does the gentleman rise” does not confer recognition.

17. For examples of the Chair's inquiry whether a Member is opposed, see §§15.11, 15.12, 15.14, 15.15, infra. For discussion of recognition of one opposed in order of rank, see §12.4, infra.

18. See House Rules and Manual §§754, 756 (1995).

The rules provide that a committee manager may open and close debate; see Rule XIV clause 3, House

Where the committee or Member in charge offers an “essential” motion and the motion is rejected by the House, recognition passes to the opposition for controlling debate and for offering amendments and motions on the pending matter.⁽¹⁹⁾

The Chair endeavors to alternate recognition to offer pro forma amendments between majority and minority Members (giving priority to committee members) rather than between sides of the question.⁽²⁰⁾

On July 19, 1967,⁽¹⁾ Chairman Joseph L. Mr. William C. Cramer, of Florida, made the point of order that William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, the ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary, which had reported the bill, had been on his feet seeking recognition to offer an amendment at the time and that members of the committee reporting the bill had the prior right to be recognized. The Chairman declared:

The Chair is trying to be fair and trying to recognize Members on both sides. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch].

The Chairman recognized Mr. McCulloch for a unanimous-consent request, and then recognized Mr. Edmondson to debate his amendment.

the Committee of the Whole, the Chair gives preference to the chairman of the legislative committee reporting the bill under consideration.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽²⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule a bill reported from the Committee on Education and Labor, chaired by Mr. Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky. Mr. Edward J. Gurney, of Florida, sought recognition and when Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, asked for what purpose he rose, he stated that he sought recognition to offer an amendment. The Chairman then recognized Mr. Perkins, the chairman of the committee, to submit a unanimous-consent request to limit debate before recognizing Mr. Gurney to offer his amendment.

the bill according to seniority.

On July 21, 1949,⁽³⁾ Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the order of recognition for amendments under the five-minute rule:

MR. [JAMES P.] SUTTON [of Tennessee]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN: Mr. Chairman, is it not the custom during debate under the 5-minute rule for the Chair in recognizing Members to alternate from side to side? At least I suggest to the Chair that that would be the fair procedure. The Chair has recognized three Democrats in a row.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say to the gentleman that the matter of recognition of members of the committee is within the discretion of the Chair. The Chair has undertaken to follow as closely as possible the seniority of those Members.

MR. [CLIFFORD R.] HOPE [of Kansas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOPE: For the information of the Chair, the gentleman from Wisconsin, who has been seeking recognition, has been a Member of the House for 10 years, and the gentleman from Tennessee is a Member whose service began only this year.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would refer the gentleman to the official list of the members of the committee, which the Chair has before him.

The Clerk will report the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.

§ 12.4 In recognizing Members to move to recommit, the Speaker gives preference first to the ranking minority member of the committee reporting the bill, if opposed to the bill, and then to the remaining minority members of that committee in the order of their rank.

On June 18, 1957,⁽⁴⁾ the House was considering H.R. 6127, the Civil Rights Act of 1957. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the order of recognition for a motion to recommit would be in the order of rank of minority members of the committee reporting the bill, the Committee on the Judiciary. When two minority members of the committee arose to offer the motion, the Speaker recognized the member higher in rank:

MR. [JOSEPH W.] MARTIN [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, on a motion to recommit, for over 20 years it has been the custom for the minority leader to select the Member who shall make that motion. The leader has selected a member of the committee who is absolutely opposed to the bill. My parliamentary inquiry is, does he have preference over someone who would move to recommit with instructions but who at the same time would not vote for the bill even if the motion to recommit should prevail? So I propound the inquiry whether a gentleman who is absolutely opposed to the bill, who led the fight for the jury trial amendment in the committee, would have preference over someone who would not vote for the bill even in the event a motion to recommit prevailed.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair in answer to that will ask the Clerk to read the holding of Mr. Speaker Champ Clark, which is found in volume 8 of Cannon's Precedents of the House of Representatives, section 2767.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Chair laid down this rule, from which he never intends to depart unless overruled by the House, that on a motion to recommit he will give preference to the gentleman, at the head of the minority list, provided he qualifies, and then go down the list of the minority of the committee until it is gotten through with. And then if no one of them offer a motion to recommit the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Murdock], as the leader of the third party in the House. Of course he would have to qualify. The Chair will state it again. The present occupant of the chair laid down a rule here about a year ago that in making this preferential motion for recommitment the Speaker would recognize the top man on the minority of the committee if he qualified—that is, if he says he is opposed to the bill—and so on down to the end of the minority list of the committee.

MR. MARTIN: Will the Clerk continue the reading of the section? I think there is a little more to it than that.

THE SPEAKER: If the gentleman desires, the Clerk will read the entire quotation. The Clerk will continue to read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Then, if no gentleman on the committee wants to make the motion, the Speaker will recognize the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. Mann, because he is the leader of the minority. Then, in the next place, the Speaker would recognize the gentleman from Kansas, Mr. Murdock. But in this case, the gentleman from Kansas, Mr. Murdock, is on the Ways and Means Committee, which would bring him in ahead, under that rule, of the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. Mann.

MR. MARTIN: The Chair does not think that preference should be given to an individual who was going to make a motion to recommit and who was absolutely opposed to the bill?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is not qualified to answer a question like that. The Chair in response to the parliamentary inquiry of the gentleman from Massachusetts will say that the decision made by Mr. Speaker Champ Clark has never been overturned, and it has been upheld by 1 or 2 Speakers since that time, especially by Mr. Speaker Garner in 1932.

In looking over this list, the Chair has gone down the list and will make the decision when someone arises to make a motion to recommit. The Chair does not know entirely who is going to seek recognition.

MR. [RICHARD H.] POFF [of Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. POFF: I am, Mr. Speaker.

MR. [RUSSELL W.] KEENEY [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I also offer a motion to recommit, and I, too, am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: In this instance the Chair finds that no one has arisen who is a member of the minority of the Committee on the Judiciary until it comes down to the name of the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Poff]. He ranks the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Kenney] and is therefore senior. Under the rules and precedents of the House, the Chair therefore must recognize the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Poff].⁽⁵⁾

§ 12.5 Priority of recognition under a limitation of time for debate under the five-minute rule is in the complete discretion of the Chair, who may disregard committee seniority and consider amendment sponsorship.

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto cease at 6:40 p.m. . . .

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 209, noes 183, answered “present” 1, not voting 41, as follows: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ The Chair will attempt to explain the situation.

The Committee has just voted to end all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto at 6:40. The Chair in a moment is going to ask those Members wishing to speak between now and then to stand. The Chair will advise Members that he will attempt, once that list is determined, to recognize first those Members on the list with amendments which are not protected by having been printed in the Record. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, did I understand the Chair correctly that Members who are protected by having their amendments printed in the Record will not be recognized until the time has run so that those Members will only have 5 minutes to present their amendments, but that other Members will be recognized first for the amendments which are not printed in the Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: Those Members who are recognized prior to the expiration of time have approximately 20 seconds to present their amendments. Those Members whose amendments are printed in the Record will have a guaranteed 5 minutes after time has expired. . . .

The Chair will now recognize those Members who wish to offer amendments which have not been printed in the Record.

The Chair will advise Members he will recognize listed Members in opposition to the amendments also for 20 seconds. . . .

MR. [RICHARD] KELLY [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, is it not regular order that the Members of the Committee with amendments be given preference and recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman once the limitation of time has been agreed to and time divided, that priority of recognition is within the complete discretion of the Chair.

Alternation Between Majority and Minority

§ 12.6 In recognizing Members to offer “pro forma amendments” under the five-minute rule, the Chair endeavors to alternate between majority and minority Members, giving priority of recognition to committee members and, having no knowledge of whether specific Members oppose or support the pending proposition, does not endeavor to alternate between both sides of the question.

On Mar. 21, 1994,⁽⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration H.R. 6 (Improving America's Schools Act of 1994). The following exchange took place:

MR. [CHARLES H.] TAYLOR of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Cunningham), a member of the committee.

MR. TAYLOR of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, is it possible to have some support statements made on the floor, since most have been negative?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is to give priority to members of the committee and does not confer recognition by stated position on the issue. The gentleman will be recognized in due course.

rule between the majority and minority, with preference being given to senior members of the reporting committee; and a senior committee majority member has no precedence in recognition over the minority manager of the bill.

On Sept. 9, 1980,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of the Rail Act of 1980 in the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Madigan) rise?

MR. [EDWARD R.] MADIGAN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

MR. [ROBERT C.] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, am I not entitled to recognition as a senior Member on the floor?

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Eckhardt) rise?

MR. ECKHARDT: To offer an amendment, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Texas that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Madigan) was on his feet. The Chair heard the gentleman from Illinois first, and the Chair recognized him first. The Chair has the prerogative of recognizing Members at his discretion. The Chair is attempting to be fair. I think the Chair has been fair in this instance.

§ 12.8 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole announced that during consideration of an appropriation bill under the five-minute rule he would alternate recognition between the majority and minority sides of the aisle.

On July 30, 1969,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, made an announcement on the order of recognition during consideration under the five-minute rule of H.R. 13111, appropriations for the Health, Education, and Welfare and Labor Departments:

The Chair might state, under the procedures of the House, he is trying to recognize first members of the subcommittee on appropriations handling the bill and second general members of the Committee on Appropriations. It is his intention to go back and forth to each side of the aisle to recognize Members who have been standing and seeking recognition the longest. The gentlewoman from Hawaii sought recognition all yesterday afternoon, and the Chair was unable to recognize her because of the procedures of the House, having to recognize Members on both sides of the aisle who are members of the committee. I wish the Members to know that the Chair will recognize them under the normal procedures.⁽¹³⁾

12. 115 CONG. REC. 21420, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

—Principle as Affected by Recognition for Parliamentary Inquiry

§ 12.9 The fact that the Chair has recognized a Member to raise a parliamentary inquiry does not prohibit the Chair from then recognizing the same Member to offer an amendment, and the principle of alternation of recognition does not require the Chair to recognize a Member from the minority to offer an amendment after recognizing a Member from the majority to raise a parliamentary inquiry.

On July 2, 1980,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of the Rail Act of 1980 (H.R. 7235) in the Committee of the Whole, it was demonstrated that a decision of the Chair on a matter of recognition is not subject to challenge. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [ROBERT C.] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

13. For the practice of alternation of recognition, see House Rules and Manual § 756 (1995).

14. 126 CONG. REC. 18292, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ The gentleman will state his inquiry.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I was not aware at the time that this amendment was offered that it would purport to deal with a number of very different subjects. I assume that it would not be in order to raise a point of order concerning germaneness at this late time, not having reserved it, but I would like to ask if the question may be divided. There are several subjects that are quite divisible in the amendment offered here, and that deal with different matters.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Texas that he is correct, it is too late to raise a point of order on the question of germaneness.

The Chair will further advise the gentleman from Texas that a substitute is not divisible.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered as a substitute for the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment to the substitute amendment.

MR. [EDWARD R.] MADIGAN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order. . . .

I understand that the procedure is that the members of the subcommittee would be recognized for amendments first, and that the gentleman from Texas sought recognition for the purpose of making a parliamentary inquiry and was recognized for that purpose, and was not recognized for the purpose of offering an amendment. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will respond to the gentleman by saying to him that the normal procedure is to recognize members of the full committee by seniority, alternating from side to side, which the Chair has been doing. The gentleman was recognized under that procedure, and the Chair's recognition is not in any event subject to challenge. . . .

MR. MADIGAN: Further pursuing my point of order, and with all due respect to the Chair, am I incorrect in assuming that the gentleman from Texas was recognized for the point of raising a parliamentary inquiry?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. He was recognized for that purpose; then separately for the purpose of the amendment that he is offering, which the Clerk will now report.

Members Simultaneously Seeking Recognition

§ 12.10 Where more than one Member seeks recognition, the Speaker recognizes the Member in charge or a member of the reporting committee, if he seeks recognition.

On Sept. 11, 1945,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Robert F. Rich, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, arose at the same time seeking recognition during the five-minute rule on a bill being handled by Mr. Sabath. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. Sabath since he had priority of recognition as the Member in charge and then answered parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition:

MR. RICH: After the reading of section 4 of the bill which contained subsections (a), (b), and (c), could not a Member have risen to strike out the last word and have been recognized?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman did not state for what purpose he rose. The gentleman from Illinois who is in charge of the resolution was on his feet at the same time. The Chair recognized the gentleman from Illinois, and the gentleman from Illinois made a preferential motion.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOFFMAN: Must a Member on the floor addressing the Speaker state the purpose for which he addresses the Speaker before he may be recognized?

THE SPEAKER: Two Members rose. The Speaker always has the right to recognize whichever Member he desires. The Chair recognized the gentleman from Illinois who was in charge of the resolution. The gentleman from Illinois made a preferential motion; the Chair put the motion and it was adopted.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule a bill reported from the Committee on Education and Labor, chaired by Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky. Mr. Edward J. Gurney, of Florida, sought recognition and when Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, asked for what purpose he rose, he stated that he sought recognition to offer an amendment. The Chairman then recognized Mr. Perkins, the chairman of the committee, to submit a unanimous-consent request to limit debate before recognizing Mr. Gurney to offer his amendment.⁽¹⁸⁾

In Absence of Agreement as to Control of Time

§ 12.11 During general debate on District of Columbia business in Committee of the Whole, where there has been no agreement in the House as to control of time, the Chair alternates in recognizing between those for and against the pending legislation, giving preference to members of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

18. See Rule XIV clause 2, House Rules and Manual §753 (1995): "When two or more Members rise at once, the Speaker shall name the Member who is first to speak. . . ." See id. at §§754–757 for the usages and priorities which govern the Chair when two or more Members rise.

On Apr. 11, 1932,⁽¹⁹⁾ Chairman Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition in the Committee of the Whole during general debate on a District of Columbia bill:

MR. [WILLIAM H.] STAFFORD [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, when the Committee on the District of Columbia has the call and the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union is considering legislation, is it necessary, in gaining recognition, that a Member has to be in opposition to the bill or is any Member whatsoever entitled to one hour's time for general debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: From the Chair's experience, gained through having been a member of this committee for over 10 years, he will state that where a bill is called up for general debate on District day in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and the chairman of the committee has yielded the floor, a member of the committee opposed to the bill is entitled to recognition over any other member opposed to the bill, and it was the duty of the Chair to ascertain whether there were any members of the committee opposed to the bill who would be entitled to prior recognition. The Chair, having ascertained there were no members of the committee opposed to the bill, took pleasure, under the direction of the gentleman from Wisconsin, in recognizing the gentleman from Mississippi.

19. 75 CONG. REC. 7990, 72d Cong. 1st Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: Ordinarily, consideration of District of Columbia business in Committee of the Whole is preceded by a unanimous-consent agreement in the House as to division and control of general debate.

Announcement by Chair as to Recognition Under Five-minute Rule

§ 12.12 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole announced that during consideration of an appropriation bill under the five-minute rule he would alternate recognition between the majority and minority sides of the aisle and would follow the following priorities: first, members of the committee or subcommittee handling the bill; second, members of the full Committee on Appropriations; and finally, other Members of the House.

On July 30, 1969,⁽²⁰⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, made an announcement on the order of recognition during consideration under the five-minute rule of H.R. 13111, appropriations for the

20. 115 CONG. REC. 21420, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

Health, Education, and Welfare and Labor Departments:

The Chair might state, under the procedures of the House, he is trying to recognize first members of the subcommittee on appropriations handling the bill and second general members of the Committee on Appropriations. It is his intention to go back and forth to each side of the aisle to recognize Members who have been standing and seeking recognition the longest. The gentlewoman from Hawaii sought recognition all yesterday afternoon, and the Chair was unable to recognize her because of the procedures of the House, having to recognize Members on both sides of the aisle who are members of the committee. I wish the Members to know that the Chair will recognize them under the normal procedures.

Recognition for Motion To Strike Enacting Clause Where Another Had Been Recognized To Offer Amendment

§ 12.13 Under Rule XXIII clause 7, a motion to strike out the enacting clause takes precedence over a motion to amend, and may be offered where another Member has been recognized to offer an amendment but prior to reading of the amendment by the Clerk.

During consideration of H.R. 6096, the Vietnam Humanitarian and Evacuation Act, in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 23, 1975,⁽¹⁾ the principle described above was demonstrated as follows:

MR. [BOB] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The Clerk will read.

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR. BLOUIN

MR. [MICHAEL T.] BLOUIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Blouin moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

I recognize that the gentleman has a preferential motion, but is it not so that the Chair had recognized the gentleman from Texas to offer his amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair had recognized the gentleman from Texas, to offer an amendment but the preferential motion supersedes that amendment.

MR. WAGGONNER: Even after the gentleman had been recognized to proceed?

THE CHAIRMAN: He had not been recognized. The amendment had not been read.

1. 121 CONG. REC. 11513, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.
2. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

MR. WAGGONNER: The gentleman had been recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman had been recognized only for the purpose of finding out the reason for which he sought recognition. The gentleman stated that he had an amendment at the desk. The Chair asked the Clerk to report the amendment, and before the amendment was reported, a preferential motion was made.

The gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Blouin) is recognized.

Amendments to General Appropriation Bill

§ 12.14 When a general appropriation bill has been read, or considered as read, for amendment in its entirety, the Chair (after entertaining points of order) first entertains amendments which are not prohibited by clause 2(c) of Rule XXI, and then recognizes for amendments proposing limitations not contained or authorized in existing law pursuant to clause 2(d) of Rule XXI, subject to the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been agreed to.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 27, 1983,⁽³⁾ during consideration of H.R. 4139 (Department of Treasury and Postal Service appropriations for fiscal 1984):

MR. [CHRISTOPHER H.] SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order at this time to offer a change in the language that would not be considered under the House rules to be legislating on an appropriations bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will first entertain any amendment to the bill which is not prohibited by clause 2(c), rule XXI, and will then entertain amendments proposing limitations pursuant to clause 2(d), rule XXI.

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

MR. [BRUCE A.] MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Smith of New Jersey: On page 49, immediately after line 2, add the following new section:

“Sec. 618. No funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to pay for an abortion, or the administrative expenses in connection with any health plan under the Federal employees health benefit program which provides any benefits or coverages for abortions. . . .

3. 129 CONG. REC. 29630, 29631, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

4. Philip R. Sharp (Ind.).

MR. MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be heard on my point of order. . . .

Mr. Chairman, my point of order is that this amendment constitutes a limitation on an appropriation and cannot be considered by the House prior to the consideration of a motion by the Committee to rise.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must indicate to the gentleman that no such preferential motion has yet been made.

The gentleman is correct that a motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted takes precedence over an amendment proposing a limitation.

MR. MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, then I move that the committee do now rise. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . It would be more appropriate if a motion to rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as have been adopted, pursuant to clause 2(d), rule XXI were offered instead. . . .

MR. [EDWARD R.] ROYBAL [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that bill, as amended, do pass.

[The motion was rejected.]

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Smith of New Jersey: On page 49, immediately after line 2, add the following new section:

“Sec. 618. No funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to pay for an abortion. . . .

Parliamentarian’s Note: Mr. Smith was the only Member seeking recognition to offer a limitation after the preferential motion was rejected and could have been preempted by a member of the Appropriations Committee or a more senior member offering an amendment since principles governing priority of recognition would remain applicable. A Member who has attempted to offer a limitation before the motion to rise and report is rejected is not guaranteed first recognition for a limitation amendment.

Member of Minority Opposed to Bill Has Priority Over Majority Member Opposed To Control Time in Opposition to Motion To Suspend Rules

§ 12.15 To control the time in opposition to a motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill (on which a second is not required), the Speaker recognizes a minority Member who is opposed to the bill, and if no minority member of the reporting committee qualifies to control the time in opposition, a minority Member who is opposed may be recognized.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on May 4, 1981,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of the Cash Discount Act (H.R. 3132):

MR. [FRANK] ANNUNZIO [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3132) to amend the Truth in Lending Act to encourage cash discounts, and for other purposes. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ Pursuant to the rule, a second is not required on this motion.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: May I inquire, Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) opposed to the bill?

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) opposed to the bill?

MR. [THOMAS B.] EVANS [Jr.] of Delaware: No; Mr. Speaker, I am not opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) opposed to the bill?

MR. WALKER: Yes; Mr. Speaker, I am.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) is entitled

5. 127 CONG. REC. 8323, 8324, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

6. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

to the time that the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) would have had.

So the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio).

Parliamentarian's Note: Representative Barney Frank, of Massachusetts, a majority party member of the Banking Committee, desired recognition to control the time in opposition, but a minority member opposed is entitled to recognition over a majority member even if on the committee.

Special Rule—Control of Time in Opposition

§ 12.16 Where a special rule limiting debate on an amendment under the five-minute rule requires the time thereon to be equally divided and controlled by the proponent of the amendment and a Member opposed thereto, the Chair has discretion in determining which Member to control the time in opposition, and may recognize the majority chairman of the subcommittee with jurisdiction over the subject matter of an amendment which has been offered by a member of the minority, over the ranking minority member of the full committee managing the bill, to control the time in opposition under the principle of alternation of recognition.

On Sept. 24, 1984,⁽⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration House Joint Resolution 648 (continuing appropriations) when an amendment was offered as indicated below:

MR. [HANK] BROWN of Colorado: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Brown of Colorado: Page 2, line 24, strike out the period at the end of section 101(b) and insert in lieu thereof the following: “: Provided, That 2 percent of the aggregate amount of new budget authority provided for in each of the first three titles of H.R. 6237 shall be withheld from obligation. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Pursuant to House Resolution 588, the amendment is considered as having been read.

The gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Brown) will be recognized for 15 minutes and a Member opposed will be recognized for 15 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Brown). . . .

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

7. 130 CONG. REC. 26769, 26770, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

8. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is required to choose between these two distinguished gentlemen and would prefer to alternate the parties in this case.

The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long). The gentleman from Maryland is recognized for 15 minutes in opposition to the amendment.

§ 12.17 Where a special rule limited debate time on amendments to be controlled by a proponent and opponent, the Chair accorded priority of recognition in opposition to an amendment to a minority member of one of the reporting committees over a majority Member not on any reporting committee.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 29, 1987,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of the Trade Reform Act of 1987 (H.R. 3):

MR. [CLAUDE] PEPPER [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Pepper: On page 278, after line 23, add the following section:

9. 133 CONG. REC. 10488, 100th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. Anthony C. Beilenson (Calif.).

Sec. 199. The USTR shall request that all relevant agencies prepare appropriate recommendations for improving the enforcement of restrictions on importation of articles from Cuba. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM V.] ALEXANDER [of Arkansas]: Mr. Chairman, would the Chair state how the time will be divided on the amendment that has been read?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Florida [Mr. Pepper] will be entitled to 15 minutes and a Member in opposition will be entitled to 15 minutes.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the amendment, and I would request that that time be assigned to me, if some Member of the committee is not opposed.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Arkansas if there is someone else on the committee who seeks time in opposition, the Chair would designate that person in opposition.

Does the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Frenzel] seek time in opposition?

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, I am opposed to the amendment, and I also seek time in opposition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Frenzel] will have 15 minutes in opposition.

—All Amendments Except Pro Forma Amendments Prohibited

§ 12.18 Where the Committee of the Whole resumed consideration of a bill under a special rule prohibiting amendments to a pending amendment except pro forma amendments for debate, the Chair announced that he would first recognize Members who had not offered pro forma amendments on the preceding day, priority of recognition being given to members of the reporting committee.

On Aug. 3, 1977,⁽¹¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the National Energy Act (H.R. 8444):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair would like to make a statement for the information of the Members of the Committee of the Whole.

The Chair has before it a list of those who spoke on this amendment yesterday. The Chair will recognize those who have not spoken on this amendment first and, of course, preference will be given to the members of the ad hoc committee and any Member, of course, under the rule has the right to offer pro forma amendments. The Chair will adhere to that direction.

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) did not speak on this amendment yesterday, so as a member of the ad hoc committee, for what purpose does the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) [rise]?

11. 123 CONG. REC. 26444, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Edward P. Boland (Mass.).

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

—Permitting Simultaneous Pendency of Three Amendments in Nature of Substitute Then Perfecting Amendments in Specified Order

§ 12.19 Where a special rule permitted the simultaneous pendency of three amendments in the nature of a substitute and then permitted the offering of pro forma amendments and of perfecting amendments in a specified order, the Chair indicated that he would recognize the proponent of each substitute under the five-minute rule and for unanimous-consent extensions of time, then Members offering pro forma amendments to debate any of the substitutes once pending, and then Members designated to offer perfecting amendments.

The House having agreed to a special rule⁽¹³⁾ for the consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 345, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal 1983, a discussion of the effect of the rule took place on May 25, 1982. The special rule stated in part:

13. H. Res. 477, 128 CONG. REC. 11085, 11093, 97th Cong. 2d Sess., May 21, 1982.

H. RES. 477

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order, section 305(a)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) to the contrary notwithstanding, to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 345) revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for the fiscal year 1982. . . . No amendment to the concurrent resolution shall be in order except those listed in categories A and B as follows: (A) four amendments in the nature of a substitute printed in the Congressional Record of May 21, 1982. . . . (B) after all amendments in category A above are disposed of, the following three amendments in the nature of a substitute printed in the Congressional Record of May 21, 1982, which shall be offered and voted on only in the following order but which shall if offered be pending simultaneously as amendments in the first degree and said amendments shall be in order any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding: (1) an amendment in the nature of a substitute by, and if offered by, Representative Latta of Ohio; (2) an amendment in the nature of a substitute by, and if offered by, Representative Aspin of Wisconsin; and (3) an amendment in the nature of a substitute consisting of the text of H. Con. Res. 345 if offered by Representative Jones of Oklahoma. None of the said substitutes in category B shall be subject to amendment except by pro forma amendments for the purpose of debate only and by the following perfecting amendments printed in the Congressional Record of May 21, 1982:

(1) the amendment by Representative Pease; . . .

(67-68) the amendments by Representative Clausen in the order in which printed.

These perfecting amendments, if offered, shall be considered only in the order listed in this resolution and shall be in order any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding.

The discussion of the effect of the rule was as follows:⁽¹⁴⁾

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: . . . As I understand it, we have now completed the four substitutes under the so-called category A substitutes, and we are prepared to move into category B, where three substitutes may be offered.

I would like to inquire as to the order in which those three would be offered and what then would be the parliamentary situation.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ Perhaps it would be helpful if the Chair re-read an earlier statement. . . .

The Chair proposes to recognize and allow debate by the three Members proposing to whatever amount of time the committee approves, each in order, until all are pending before the Committee of the Whole. In other words, Mr. Latta will be recognized first. He will have as much debate as is allowed to him under the 5-minute rule by the Committee. Then Mr. Aspin will be recognized, if he rises, to go through the same process. Then Mr. Jones will be third on that list for the same process. Then, the Committee will go back and all the amendments in the nature of a substitute will be subject to amendment in the manner described. . . .

MR. [DELBERT L.] LATTA [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, in listening to what the Chair has just explained to the minority whip, I assume the procedure will be, after I yield the floor in introducing my substitute, then we will go immediately to Mr. Aspin, and as soon as he yields the floor we will then go to Mr. Jones.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. LATTA: So we will not have any intervening debate at that point.

THE CHAIRMAN: No. The only possible exception to that is that by unanimous consent—and the Chair tried to imply this—by unanimous consent if the gentleman seeks additional time over 5 minutes of that provided, that he will be given that opportunity. No other debate will intervene.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry. . . . Suppose an amendment is offered by the proponent to one substitute but not to other substitutes. At that particular time, as I understand the rule, the amendment would then be available to other Members to offer to the substitutes which had not been considered previous to that time. The question occurs as to whether or not, after the amendment has been disposed of once, whether another Member could come back to that amendment to offer it to another substitute, or are all Members precluded from using an amendment printed in the Record after the amendment which comes after that in sequence, has been considered?

15. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has consulted with the Parliamentarian, and agrees that if one proposal is made and there is nobody who rises when the request by the Chair is made, "Is there an additional offering of that amendment," then that amendment will be closed off.

Amendment No. 1 will be over, and then the Committee will move to amendment No. 2, and move to amendment No. 3 in exactly that same fashion. In other words, each amendment will be dealt with by itself and finally.

MR. RHODES: If I understand the Chair correctly, then if amendment No. 1 is offered to Latta and disposed of, and amendment No. 1 is not then offered to the other substitutes and no other Member other than the proponent desires to offer it, then the Committee goes to amendment No. 2, and any further offerings of amendment No. 1 would be precluded?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. LATTA: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry. . . .

As I recall the rule, there is a slight variation. If, in the situation the Chairman just explained, if say amendment No. 5 is offered to our substitute and does not prevail, and then they offer it to the Aspin substitute, or to the Jones substitute, then there are only 10 minutes of debate allowed under the rule.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct. The second and third offerings would be under a 10-minute rule. . . .

MR. [LES] ASPIN [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, if we go through the series where Mr. Latta offers his substitute and maybe asks for additional time to explain it, and then explains his substitute; then we go to the coalition substitute and I may ask for additional time, and so forth; we finish the presentation of all three substitutes, is it the intention of the Chair to recognize additional Members for general debate on the substitutes, or is it the intention of the Chair to go directly to the amendments at that point?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will entertain pro forma amendments for a time, and at the conclusion of that, he will go to numbered amendments. . . .

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry one more time. . . .

The question is prompted by the question of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Aspin) because under normal procedure there would be a presentation of a Member, and joined in by either cosponsors or other Members. Would it make a more orderly process if at least a selected few or limited number be recognized in general support of the proposition that was introduced before getting to that amendment stage?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) can yield for that purpose if he gets extra time, but it would make for a more orderly process to get all three substitutes presented, with only the principal proponent being allowed debate at that point. At the end of those three being set in and available simultaneously, then, as the Chair just said, he would entertain pro forma amendments by Members who desire to support or oppose any one of the three, and at the conclusion of a reasonable time, then proceed to the numbered amendments.

After Rejection of Previous Question

§ 12.20 In response to parliamentary inquiries the Speaker advised that if the previous question on a privileged resolution reported by the Committee on Rules were voted down, the resolution would be open to further consideration and debate, and that the Chair, under the hour rule, would recognize the Member who appeared to be leading the opposition.

On Oct. 19, 1966,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Claude D. Pepper, of Florida, called up by direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 1013, establishing a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct. Mr. Pepper was recognized for one hour and offered a committee amendment to the resolution, which amendment was agreed to. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then answered a series of parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition should Mr. Pepper move the previous question and should the motion be defeated:

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused, is it true that then amendments may be offered and further debate may be had on the resolution?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is defeated, then the resolution is open to further consideration and action and debate.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Speaker, under the rules of the House, is it not equally so that a motion to table would then be in order?

THE SPEAKER: At that particular point, that would be a preferential motion. . . .

MR. [JAMES G.] FULTON of Pennsylvania: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused and the resolution is then open for amendment, under what parliamentary procedure will the debate continue? Or what would be the time limit?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would recognize whoever appeared to be the leading Member in opposition to the resolution.

MR. FULTON of Pennsylvania: What would be the time for debate?

THE SPEAKER: Under those circumstances the Member recognized in opposition would have 1 hour at his disposal, or such portion of it as he might desire to exercise.⁽¹⁷⁾

For Motion To Recommit

§ 12.21 In response to a parliamentary inquiry the Speaker stated that recognition to offer a motion to recommit is the prerogative of a Member opposed to the bill, that the Speaker will first look to minority members of the committee reporting the bill in their order of seniority on the committee, second to other Members of the minority and finally to majority Members opposed to the bill; thus, a minority Member opposed to a bill but not on the committee reporting it is entitled to recognition to offer a motion to recommit over a majority Member who is also a member of the committee.

On July 10, 1975,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8365 (Department of Transportation appropriations) in the House, the Speaker put the question on passage of the bill and then recognized Mr. William A. Steiger, of Wisconsin, a minority Member, to offer a mosential motion, see House Rules and Manual § 755 (1995).

18. 121 CONG. REC. 22014, 22015, 94th Cong. 1st Sess. See also § 12.4, supra.

tion to recommit. The proceedings were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁹⁾ The question is on the passage of the bill.

MR. STEIGER of Wisconsin: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. STEIGER of Wisconsin: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman qualifies. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not a member of the Committee on Appropriations. As I understand the rule, a member of the Committee on Appropriations must offer a motion to recommit.

The gentleman who offered the motion is not on the Committee on Appropriations.

THE SPEAKER: A member of the minority has priority over all the members of the majority, regardless of whether he is on the committee.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, may I continue with my statement on the point of order.

THE SPEAKER: You may.

MR. YATES: "Cannon's Precedents" states, Mr. Speaker, that if a motion is offered by a person other than a member of the committee, a member of the committee takes precedence in offering a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: A motion to recommit is the prerogative of the minority, and the Chair so rules and so answers the parliamentary inquiry.

19. Carl Albert (Okla.).

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, may I refer the attention of the Chair to page 311.

I am quoting from page 311 of "Cannon's Precedents."

A member of the committee reporting the measure and opposed to it is entitled to recognition to move to recommit over one not a member of the committee but otherwise qualified.

And, Mr. Speaker, it cites volume 8, page 2768.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair desires to call the attention of the gentleman on the question of the motion to "Deschler's Procedure" chapter 23, section 13. It provides that in recognizing Members who move to recommit, the Speaker gives preference to the minority Member, and these recent precedents are consistent with the one cited by the gentleman from Illinois.

What the gentleman is saying is that because he is a member of the Committee on Appropriations, he is so entitled. The Chair has not gone over all the precedents, but the Chair can do it if the gentleman desires him to do so.

The rule is not only that a member of the minority on the Committee on Appropriations has preference over a majority member, but any Member from the minority is recognized by the Speaker over any Member of the majority, regardless of committee membership.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, if the Speaker will permit me to continue—

THE SPEAKER: The only exception is when no Member of the minority seeks to make a motion to recommit.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, in that respect may I say that "Cannon's Precedents" is clear on that point; that where none of those speaking, seeking recognition, are members of the committee and otherwise equally qualified, the Speaker recognizes the Member from the minority over the majority.

But the point is, Mr. Speaker, that I am a member of the committee where the gentleman offering the motion to recommit on the minority side is not a member of the committee.

I suggest, therefore, that under the precedents, I should be recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that in order that there can be no mistake the Chair will ask the Clerk to read the following passage from the rules and manual of the House.

The Clerk read as follows (from section 788):

Recognition to offer the motion to recommit, whether in its simple form or with instructions, is the prerogative of a Member who is opposed to the bill (Speaker Martin, Mar. 29, 1954, p. 3692); and the Speaker looks first to minority members of the committee reporting the bill, in order of their rank on the committee (Speaker Garner, Jan. 6, 1932, p. 1396; Speaker Byrns, July 2, 1935, p. 10638), then to other Members on the minority side (Speaker Rayburn, Aug. 16, 1950, p. 12608). If no Member of the minority qualifies, a majority Member who is opposed to the bill may be recognized (Speaker Garner, Apr. 1, 1932, p. 7327).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair states that that definitely settles the question, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin to offer the motion to recommit.

The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steiger of Wisconsin moves to recommit the bill H.R. 8365 to the Committee on Appropriations.

—Conference Report; Bill Reported by Two Committees

§ 12.22 On one occasion, the Speaker Pro Tempore recognized the ranking minority member of one of the two committees which had originally reported a bill in the House, who was not a conferee on the bill, to move to recommit a conference report, rather than the second highest ranking minority member of the other committee which had reported the bill, who was a conferee (although the highest ranking minority member of a select committee normally has the right to recognition to move to recommit a bill reported from a select committee).

The following proceedings occurred in the House on June 27, 1980,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of the conference report on S. 1308 (Energy Mobilization Board):

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the conference report.

The previous question was ordered.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ For what reason does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine) rise?

MR. [SAMUEL L.] DEVINE [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

MR. [MANUEL] LUJAN [Jr., of New Mexico]: Mr. Speaker, I am a member of the conference committee, and I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine).

MR. DEVINE: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit, and I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman qualifies.

MR. LUJAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LUJAN: Mr. Speaker, does not a member of the conference committee have preference in recognition to the ranking minority member on the standing committee working on the bill?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) was on his feet at the time of the recommittal motion. Does the gentleman from Ohio, the second ranking minority member of the conference committee, have a motion?

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: I am unqualified for the motion to recommit. I was standing, however, to make sure that the motion to recommit was protected for the minority, and when the Chair recognized the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine), the ranking minority member of the Commerce Committee, I took my seat. . . .

1. John P. Murtha (Pa.).

MR. LUJAN: Mr. Speaker, I did not hear an answer to my parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: As the gentleman knows, the Chair's control over recognition is not subject to challenge and the Chair recognized the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine).

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine) is recognized for a motion.

MR. DEVINE: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman opposed to the conference report?

MR. DEVINE: I am opposed to the bill, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman qualifies.

The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Devine moves to recommit the conference report to accompany the Senate bill, S. 1308, to the committee of conference.

Parliamentarian's Note: Ordinarily, the prior right to recognition to move to recommit should belong to a member of a conference committee (the committee reporting the bill).

For Motion To Refer

§ 12.23 While recognition to offer a motion to recommit a bill or joint resolution (previously referred to committee) under clause 4 of Rule XVI is the prerogative of the minority party if opposed to the bill, recognition to offer a motion to refer under clause 1 of Rule XVII after the previous question has been moved or ordered on a resolution (not previously referred to committee) does not depend on party affiliation or upon opposition to the resolution.

During consideration of House Resolution 1042 (directing the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate the unauthorized publication of the report of the Select Committee on Intelligence) in the House on Feb. 19, 1976,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: I rise to a question involving the privileges of the House, and I offer a privileged resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 1042

Resolution requiring that the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct inquire into the circumstances leading to the public publication of a report containing classified material prepared by the House Select Committee on Intelligence

Whereas the February 16, 1976, issue of the Village Voice, a New York City newspaper, contains the partial text of a report or a preliminary report prepared by the Select Committee on Intelligence of the House, pursuant to H. Res. 591, which relates to the foreign activities of the intelligence agencies of the United States and which contains sensitive classified information . . . Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct be and it is hereby authorized and directed to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the publication of the text and of any part of the report of the Select Committee on Intelligence, and to report back to the House in a timely fashion its findings and recommendations thereon.

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ The gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. STRATTON: I yield for the purposes of debate only to the distinguished majority leader, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill). . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, some of the Members have been curious as to why the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) has the floor at this time and why the resolution is privileged.

It is privileged because he believes that the rules of the House and the processes of the integrity of the House have been transgressed.

I believe that Mr. Stratton's motion to usurp the normal procedure is transgressing on the rights of all our membership here, and especially the rights of the members of the Rules Committee which normally would have jurisdiction over this issue. We should demand the normal course. We should not just say, "Here, we will send this to the Ethics Committee and the Ethics Committee will make an investigation, because we are going to bypass the Committee on Rules." That is exactly what Mr. Stratton desires. I want the Members to know that when the time comes, after the hour provided to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) is over, and after that gentleman has moved the previous question, that I will rise, and I will expect that the Speaker will recognize me and I will then move, at that time, that, pursuant to clause 1 of rule XVII, that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Rules. . . .

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time and I move the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to rule XVII, clause 1, I move to refer the resolution to the Committee on Rules.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Maryland will state the point of order.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the gentleman's motion comes too late. The Chair has already put the previous question and it has been moved.

THE SPEAKER: The motion to refer a resolution is in order after the previous question is ordered under clause 1, rule XVII. . . .

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Massachusetts, the distinguished majority leader, has offered, in effect, a motion to recommit the original resolution. Is it not true that under the practices and procedures of this House one who is opposed to the motion and who is on the minority side of the aisle is entitled to control of the motion to recommit? Would I not be entitled to preference over the gentleman from Massachusetts in offering a motion to recommit which is, in effect, what the gentleman from Massachusetts has offered?

3. Carl Albert (Okla.).

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is referring to the procedure under rule XVI. In this rather unique situation, the resolution has not been before a committee and the House technically cannot recommit a resolution that has never been previously referred to committee. This is a motion to commit or refer under rule XVII and not a motion to recommit under clause 4, rule XVI.⁽⁴⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: If the Majority Leader had offered the motion to refer under clause 1 of Rule XVII when the previous question was moved but before it was ordered, the motion to refer would itself have been debatable as well as amendable.

Under Motion To Suspend Rules

§ 12.24 Alternation of recognition is not followed during the 40 minutes of debate on a motion to suspend the rules.

4. See also 2 Hinds' Precedents § 1456.

On Sept. 20, 1961,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. William R. Poage, of Texas, moved to suspend the rules and pass a bill. After a second was ordered, Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, stated:

I understand that under the rules it is not necessary to rotate time under a suspension of the rules.

Speaker Pro Tempore John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded "That is correct."

On Apr. 16, 1962,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. James Roosevelt, of California, moved to suspend the rules and pass a bill. Speaker Pro Tempore Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Gross, that under suspension of the rules it was not necessary to rotate the time between opposing and favoring sides of the question.⁽⁷⁾ motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill or agree to an amendment, the Speaker gave preference to a majority Member opposed to the bill or amendment over a minority Member who did not qualify as being opposed.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 644 (further continuing appropriations for fiscal year 1981) in the House on Dec. 15, 1980,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ Is a second demanded?

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Illinois demands a second.

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a point of order. Does the gentleman object to the resolution?

THE SPEAKER: There is no objection. This is for suspension of the rules.

MR. STRATTON: Well, he fails to qualify for a second. I demand a second.

MR. MICHEL: I recognize the gentleman's prerogative, Mr. Speaker. I am not opposed to the joint resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from New York has the second, since he qualifies as being opposed to the motion.

Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

9. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from Rule XXVII in the 102d Congress (see H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991).

§ 12.26 A Member of the minority who was opposed to a bill considered under suspension of the rules had the right to recognition, over a majority Member opposed to the bill, to demand a second thereon (under a former rule) and to control the twenty minutes of debate in opposition thereto.

On Nov. 17, 1980,⁽¹⁰⁾ the House had under consideration S. 885 (Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act of 1980) when the following proceedings occurred:

sumers of the Pacific Northwest through use of the Federal Columbia River Power System to achieve cost-effective energy conservation, to encourage the development of renewable energy resources, to establish a representative regional power planning process, to assure the region of an efficient and adequate power supply, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹¹⁾ Is a second demanded?

MR. [F. JAMES] SENSENBRENNER [Jr., of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

MR. [JAMES] WEAVER [of Oregon]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Wisconsin from the minority is entitled to the second.

MR. WEAVER: Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman opposed to the bill? I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman from Wisconsin opposed to the bill?

MR. SENSENBRENNER: I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Sensenbrenner) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen).

Parliamentarian's Note: Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from Rule XXVII in the 102d Congress (see H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991).

*Generally§ 13.1 As a customary practice and in the absence of other considerations, members of the committee which reported a bill are entitled to prior recognition thereon.

On Feb. 10, 1941,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, responded to a parliamentary inquiry on the practice of extending priority for recognition to members of the committee reporting a bill:

MR. [LYLE H.] BOREN [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. I want it thoroughly understood that I recognize fully the custom of members of the committee being recognized ahead of any other Member on the floor, not a member of the committee. I am quite willing to withdraw my amendment for that purpose, but as I understood it the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Cooper] rose to make the point of order that my recognition at that time was not in order. I understood the Chair sustained the point of order and recognized the gentleman from New York [Mr. Crowther]. I should like to be enlightened as to under what rule of the House that point of order is sustained after the Chair had recognized me for the purpose of offering an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York [Mr. Crowther] is a member of the committee reporting the bill and, therefore, entitled to prior recognition.

12. 87 CONG. REC. 875, 876, 77th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JACK] NICHOLS [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. NICHOLS: Is there a rule of the House that gives the members of the committee the right to recognition ahead of other Members of the House? Is that a rule of the House?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is a procedure of long standing.

MR. NICHOLS: It is not a rule of the House.

THE CHAIRMAN: In the absence of other considerations, members of the committee in charge of the bill are entitled to prior recognition. The rule is essential to expedition in legislation and its importance is too obvious to require justification.

Parliamentarian's Note: No point of order was actually made or sustained relative to recognition. The Chair simply gave priority of recognition to a committee member, Mr. Crowther, to offer an amendment.

§ 13.2 During amendment of a bill in Committee of the Whole, the Chairman first recognizes members of the committee reporting the bill, if on their feet seeking recognition.

On June 29, 1939,⁽¹³⁾ Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, ruled that a Member who had been recognized to offer an amendment could not be deprived of recognition by members of the committee reporting the bill, if not on their feet seeking recognition:

13. 84 CONG. REC. 8311, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [HAROLD] KNUTSON [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the Clerk's desk which I would like to offer at this time.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Knutson: Strike out all of section 1 and insert the following—

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York] (interrupting the reading of the amendment): Mr. Chairman, would it be in order for the committee members to be recognized first to offer amendments?

MR. KNUTSON: I have already been recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: If there is any member of the committee seeking recognition, he is entitled to recognition.

MR. FISH: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be recognized.

MR. KNUTSON: I already have the floor, and have been recognized.

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Knutson] has already been recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: Recognition is in the discretion of the Chair, and the Chair will recognize members of the committee first. Does the acting chairman of the committee seek recognition?

MR. [SOL] BLOOM [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask whether the committee amendments to section 1 have been agreed to?

THE CHAIRMAN: The only one the Chair knows about is the one appearing in the print of the bill, and that has been agreed to.

MR. BLOOM: In line 16, there is a committee amendment.

MR. KNUTSON: Mr. Chairman, I was recognized by the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair feels that inasmuch as members of the committee were not on their feet and the gentleman from Minnesota had been recognized, the gentleman is entitled to recognition.

Priority Over Member Who Introduced Bill

§ 13.3 Members of the committee reporting a bill are entitled to prior recognition over the Member who introduced the bill.

On July 8, 1937,⁽¹⁴⁾ Chairman Marvin Jones, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the order of recognition on the pending bill:

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, what is the order of priority on the bill? Does the author of the bill precede a member who is not a member of the committee?

THE CHAIRMAN: If the Chair understands the rule correctly, the members of the committee which report the bill have preference. After that all members of the Committee of the Whole are on equal standing.

14. 81 CONG. REC. 6946, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

Opposition to Substitute Amendment—Proponent of Amendment Does Not Have Priority

§ 13.4 The proponent of an amendment may be recognized to control the time in opposition to a substitute offered therefor, but a member of the committee reporting the bill has priority of recognition to control such time.

On May 4, 1983,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding priority of recognition for debate:

MR. [NORMAN D.] DICKS [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment as a substitute for the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Dicks as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Levitas: In view of the matter proposed to be inserted, insert the following: "with negotiators proceeding immediately to pursuing reductions." . . .

MR. [ELLIOTT H.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

My parliamentary inquiry is twofold, Mr. Chairman.

15. 129 CONG. REC. 11074, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

The first is that under the rule if I am opposed to the amendment being offered as a substitute for my amendment, can I be recognized in opposition thereto?

My second inquiry is: Is the substitute open for amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ The answer to the second question is the substitute is open for amendment.

It is appropriate under the rules to offer an amendment. In terms of whom the Chair recognizes in opposition, the Chair would be inclined to recognize a member of the committee, if a member of the committee seeks recognition in opposition to the amendment.

If a committee member does not seek recognition for that purpose the Chair would be inclined to recognize the gentleman.

Members of Committee or Subcommittee

§ 13.5 The Chair, in giving preference of recognition on appropriation bills, does not distinguish between members of the full committee and members of the subcommittee which handled the bill.

On Apr. 7, 1943,⁽¹⁷⁾ Chairman Luther A. Johnson, of Texas, recognized Mr. Frank B. Keefe, of Wisconsin, in opposition to a pro forma amendment. Mr. Keefe was a member of the Committee on Appropriations, which had reported the pending bill. Mr. John H. Kerr, of North Carolina, objected that he asked to be recognized, as a member of the subcommittee which had handled the bill. The Chairman stated as follows on the priority of recognition:

16. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

17. 89 CONG. REC. 3067, 78th Cong. 1st Sess.

As the Chair understands it, a member of the Committee on Appropriations has the same right as those who are members of that committee who happen to be members of a subcommittee. That is the parliamentary procedure, as the Chair understands it. The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Wisconsin. Had he not done so, he certainly would have recognized the gentleman from North Carolina.

§ 13.6 Priority of recognition to offer amendments under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole is extended to members of the full committee reporting the bill, alternating between the majority and minority, and the Chair does not distinguish between members of the subcommittee which considered the bill and other members of the full committee.

On July 2, 1980,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of the Rail Act of 1980

18. 126 CONG. REC. 18292, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

(H.R. 7235) in the Committee of the Whole, it was demonstrated that a decision of the Chair on a matter of recognition is not subject to a point of order. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [ROBERT C.] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ The gentleman will state his inquiry.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I was not aware at the time that this amendment was offered that it would purport to deal with a number of very different subjects. I assume that it would not be in order to raise a point of order concerning germaneness at this late time, not having reserved it, but I would like to ask if the question may be divided. There are several subjects that are quite divisible in the amendment offered here, and that deal with different matters.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Texas that he is correct, it is too late to raise a point of order on the question of germaneness.

The Chair will further advise the gentleman from Texas that a substitute is not divisible.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered as a substitute for the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment to the substitute amendment.

MR. [EDWARD R.] MADIGAN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

19. Les AuCoin (Oreg.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. MADIGAN: Mr. Chairman, I understand that the procedure is that the members of the subcommittee would be recognized for amendments first, and that the gentleman from Texas sought recognition for the purpose of making a parliamentary inquiry and was recognized for that purpose, and was not recognized for the purpose of offering an amendment.

I further understand that the gentleman from Maryland, a member of the subcommittee, was on her feet seeking recognition for the purpose of offering an amendment, as well as the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Broyhill). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will respond to the gentleman by saying to him that the normal procedure is to recognize members of the full committee by seniority, alternating from side to side, which the Chair has been doing. The gentleman was recognized under that procedure, and the Chair's recognition is not in any event subject to challenge.

Therefore, the gentleman is recognized, and any point of order that the gentleman from Illinois would make on that point would not be sustained.

MR. MADIGAN: Further pursuing my point of order, and with all due respect to the Chair, am I incorrect in assuming that the gentleman from Texas was recognized for the point of raising a parliamentary inquiry?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. He was recognized for that purpose; then separately for the purpose of the amendment that he is offering, which the Clerk will now report.

§ 13.7 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole announced that in recognizing Members under the five-minute rule for consideration of an appropriation bill, he would alternate recognition between the majority and minority sides of the aisle and would follow these priorities: first, members of the subcommittee handling the bill; second, members of the full Committee on Appropriations; and finally, other Members of the House.

On July 30, 1969,⁽²⁰⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, made an announcement on the order of recognition during consideration under the five-minute rule of H.R. 13111, appropriations for the Health, Education, and Welfare and Labor Departments:

The Chair might state, under the procedures of the House, he is trying to recognize first members of the subcommittee on appropriations handling the bill and second general members of the Committee on Appropriations. It is his intention to go back and forth to each side of the aisle to recognize Members who have been standing and seeking recognition the longest. The gentlewoman from Hawaii sought recognition all yesterday afternoon, and the Chair was unable to recognize her because of the procedures of the House, having to recognize Members on both sides of the aisle who are members of the committee. I wish the Members to know that the Chair will recognize them under the normal procedures.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Chair normally follows the list of full committee seniority and is not bound by subcommittee rankings.

Alternation Between Majority and Minority

§ 13.8 While recognition of Members to offer amendments is within the Chair's discretion and cannot be challenged on a point of order, the Chair under the precedents alternates recognition between majority and minority members of the committee reporting the bill.

During consideration of the Outer Continental Shelf Act (H.R. 6218) in the Committee of the Whole on June 11, 1976,⁽¹⁾ the following occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:^{v(2)} The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy).

The amendment was agreed to.

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

1. 122 CONG. REC. 17764, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.
2. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Murphy of New York; On page 59, lines 12 to 20, strike paragraphs 5(a), (6), (7), and (8) and renumber subsequent paragraphs accordingly.

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. FISH: Mr. Chairman, the minority has amendments to offer, including a substitute amendment to title II. It is my understanding that the minority would have its turn at the same time as the majority in considering the amendments.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fish) that that would not come under the category of a point of order; but the Chair would further advise the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fish) that since the gentleman has raised the point, the Chair will alternate from side to side.

§ 13.9 While the Chair endeavors to alternate recognition for the purpose of offering amendments, and controlling time in opposition thereto, between majority and minority Members, members of the committee reporting a pending bill are entitled to prior recognition over non-committee members regardless of their party affiliation.

tion 13 (nuclear weapons freeze) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair, in responding to an inquiry, indicated that priority in recognition is with the committee reporting the pending legislation:

MR. [STEPHEN J.] SOLARZ [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Solarz to the amendment offered by Mr. Levitas: Strike out the matter proposed to be added to the resolution by the Levitas amendment and insert in lieu thereof the following: “, with reductions to be achieved as soon as possible after the achievement of a mutual and verifiable freeze”.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁴⁾ The gentleman from New York (Mr. Solarz) is recognized for 15 minutes, for purposes of debate only, on his amendment.

MR. [JAMES G.] MARTIN of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

MR. SOLARZ: Certainly. I am happy to yield for that purpose.

MR. MARTIN of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARTIN of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, I would appreciate if the Chair would put a little time over here.

Is it customary and is it correct order for the business of the House of Representatives for the Chair to sequentially recognize only Members of the majority party time and time again, both to make an amendment, to take the position opposing that amendment, and then to offer the next amendment; is that regular order?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Under the precedents the priority in this instance is with the committee members to offer an amendment to the amendment.

MR. MARTIN of North Carolina: I beg pardon?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Priority in this instance by the Chair is with the committee members, regardless of party.

MR. MARTIN of North Carolina: That means the Chair will not recognize anyone on the Republican side until after all this has been disposed of, is that what the Chair is saying? Is that the Chair's prerogative?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has indicated its position on recognition up to this point.

§ 13.10 In recognizing members of the committee reporting a bill to offer amendments in the Committee of the Whole, the Chairman has discretion whether to first recognize a minority or majority member.

On June 4, 1948,⁽⁵⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 6801, the foreign aid appropriation bill, for amendment, Chairman Albert M. Cole, of Kansas, recognized Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois (a majority member), to offer an amendment. Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, objected that the minority was entitled to recognition to move to amend the bill. The Chairman responded:

Under the rules of the House, any member of the committee may offer an amendment, and it is in the discretion of the Chair as to which member shall be recognized.

§ 13.11 While the Chair endeavors to alternate recognition for the purpose of offering amendments between majority and minority Members, members of the committee reporting a pending bill are entitled to prior recognition over noncommittee members regardless of their party affiliation.

On July 22, 1974,⁽⁶⁾ during consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974,⁽⁷⁾ the Chairman⁽⁸⁾ of the Committee of the Whole indicated that he would continue to accord prior recognition to minority members of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs to offer amendments to a bill reported from that committee over majority noncommittee Members, but that he would alternate between parties if majority committee members sought recognition. The proceedings were as follows:

8. Neal E. Smith (Iowa).

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered by Mrs. Mink as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Hosmer to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I do not know whether a point of order or a parliamentary inquiry is in order; but I would like to make one or the other.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. HAYS: It is my understanding that under the long-standing rules of the House and the Committee of the Whole that we alternate from the Democratic side to the Republican side, or vice versa, whichever the case may be.

Now, there are Members on this side who want to offer amendments. If the Chair is going to consistently listen to three in a row that the gentleman from California has had, we do not know where we stand.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair understands the gentleman's parliamentary inquiry; but the Chair believes that as long as members of the committee seek recognition, they are entitled to recognition first; at least, up to a certain point, and if a member of the committee from the majority side stands, he could be recognized.

Subjects Beyond Jurisdiction of Committee

§ 13.12 Where the Committee of the Whole was considering, under a special rule waiving points of order, a bill that extended to a number of legislative subjects that were beyond the jurisdiction of the reporting committee (a general appropriations bill containing a variety of legislative provisions), the Chairman ruled that he would not limit recognition to the members of the committee reporting a bill, but that his decision was not to be taken as a precedent for other bills.

On Mar. 5 and 6, 1941,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 3737, a general appropriation bill, pursuant to House Resolution 126, waiving all points of order against the bill. As to distribution of recognition for debate on the bill, Chairman John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, ruled that, contrary to normal practice, recognition would not be limited to members of the Committee on Appropriations.

THE CHAIRMAN: Permit the Chair to make a statement.

9. 87 CONG. REC. 1846, 1921, 1922, 77th Cong. 1st Sess.

On yesterday the question of recognizing members of the committee to the exclusion of other Members of the House was raised. The Chair stated that since we were operating under a rule that makes in order legislation on an appropriation bill, the Chair did not feel the policy that has grown up in recent years of recognizing members of the committee to the exclusion of other Members of the House should be followed. The Chair does not know what attitude future Chairmen of the Committee of the Whole may assume, but the present occupant of the chair wishes to lay down what the Chair believes to be a sound principle in this respect.

There are 40 members of the Committee on Appropriations. They have control of all the time for general debate on bills coming from that committee just as members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, members of the Committee on Ways and Means, or other committees have control of the time under general debate on bills coming from their respective committees. There is no written or adopted rule of this House giving members of the committee in control of the bill the exclusive right to recognition under the 5-minute rule over other Members of the House, but a custom to that effect seems to have grown up in recent years which the Chair thinks is wrong.

It is all right to give preference to the chairman of a subcommittee or to the ranking minority member on that subcommittee in connection with important amendments under the 5-minute rule, but the Chair does not think it is fair to the rest of the membership of the House to follow a policy, and gradually petrify it into the rules of the House, of recognizing all members of a committee handling the bill under the 5-minute rule to the exclusion of other Members of the House.

MR. [CLARENCE] CANNON of Missouri: Mr. Chairman, I trust the Chair has no intention of announcing a formal decision, which would be in contravention of the practice of the House, which has been in effect for a hundred years. From time immemorial the members of the committee in control of the bill and charged with its passage have been given precedence in recognition, other things being equal.

MR. [CLIFTON A.] WOODRUM of Virginia: Will the gentleman yield?

MR. CANNON of Missouri: I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

MR. WOODRUM of Virginia: That does not apply alone to the Appropriations Committee; it applies to all committees.

MR. CANNON of Missouri: The gentleman is correct. There is no code applying to any one committee more than to any other committee. And that rule—like all rules of the House—is justified by reason and logic. There is a reason for it. The members of a committee through months—sometimes years—of work on a certain class of legislation or a recurring bill are naturally more familiar with it, and under the rules of the House are responsible for its disposition. And it naturally follows that they must be in position to secure the floor and must be accorded priority of recognition when that subject or that bill is under consideration in order to expedite the business of the House. There is no specific provision in the body of the rules, but the practice has not only been established in the long history of the American Congress but came down to us from the English Parliament from which we received originally our parliamentary code. And as Speaker Cannon and Speaker Reed both said authoritatively, the greater portion of our procedure is the unwritten law—more binding than the letter of the law—because not subject to amendment save through the long processes of evolution.

In all the years I have been on the floor, 30 years next month, I have never heard from the Chair a decision questioning this rule, nor a suggestion that it was not a reasonable rule, or a rule that should not be strictly enforced. As I understand it, the Chairman is about to decide that while this is the rule and practice of the House, that due to the fact that a resolution was adopted when this bill was brought in, the Chair is warranted for the time being in recognizing another priority; but does not pass on the rule itself under normal circumstances. I realize the Chairman would not at this late date propose to set aside, even temporarily, a rule which has been in effect from the beginning of the Republic and which is based upon sound parliamentary logic.

THE CHAIRMAN: Let the Chair say in reply to the gentleman from Missouri, whom the Chair regards as one of the greatest parliamentarians on earth, that the Chair is not setting aside any rule.

MR. WOODRUM of Virginia: Mr. Chairman, I would like to withdraw my request for recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is not discussing that.

MR. WOODRUM of Virginia: Mr. Chairman, I will withdraw my request for recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair desires to finish his statement.

The Chair may say to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon] that there is no written rule on this subject, but within the last two or three decades appropriations have been taken away from other committees and concentrated in the hands of one committee. The Chair is not speaking any more with reference to the Committee on Appropriations than any other committee. It is perfectly fair for a committee to have charge of general debate and probably debate under the 5-minute rule to a large extent, but the Chair does not think it is fair—especially under conditions such as we have here, where a rule has been adopted making legislation that ordinarily comes from the Committee on Agriculture and from other committees of the House in order on the bill—the Chair does think it fair to the rest of the membership of the House to recognize members of the Committee on Appropriations under the 5-minute rule to the exclusion of the other Members of the House.

So far as the present occupant of the chair individually is concerned, if the time should come when that matter is presented, the Chair might go a step further and apply it to all measures coming before the House and considered under the 5-minute rule. If we are going to have legislation by the entire Congress we will have to come to that decision ultimately.

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. TABER: Would the Chair feel the same way with reference to a bill being considered from the Committee on Agriculture or from the Committee on World War Veterans?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes.

MR. TABER: Or from the Committee on Foreign Affairs?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes. The Chair is not singling out any committee. A great many Members of the House are vitally interested in the various provisions of these bills, and the Chair does not think it is right to exclude them until the committee has exhausted and closed debate.

MR. [EVERETT M.] DIRKSEN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DIRKSEN: Is this to be regarded as a ruling today, or is it merely an observation of the Chair?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is a ruling as far as this bill is concerned.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina.

MR. [JOHN W.] MCCORMACK [of Massachusetts]: Will the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry.

MR. [HAMPTON P.] FULMER [of South Carolina]: I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

MR. MCCORMACK: Mr. Chairman, is it my understanding that the ruling just made by the Chair confines itself to the pending bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is right.

MR. MCCORMACK: And by reason of the rule adopted making in order certain provisions which are legislative, the Chair feels, under those circumstances, that the broader application should be applied to this bill only?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes. The Chair may say to the gentleman from Massachusetts that if the present occupant were in the chair when one of these relief bills came in, which also covers a multitude of various phases of legislation, the Chair would assume the same attitude.

MR. MCCORMACK: May I say that the Chair is absolutely correct so far as this bill is concerned, but may I say for the Record, so that some future Chairman might not construe the broad remarks of the Chair as a precedent, that the present Chairman is confining himself in his ruling to the present bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. Fulmer].

May Lose Priority

§ 13.13 Members of the committee reporting a bill under consideration usually have preference of recognition, but such preference may be lost if they do not seek recognition in a timely manner.

On Aug. 8, 1967,⁽¹⁰⁾ Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, recognized under the five-minute rule a Member not on the committee which reported the bill because a committee member's request for recognition was untimely.

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Michigan rise?

10. 113 CONG. REC. 21842, 21843, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JAMES G.] O'HARA of Michigan: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

MR. [CLARK] MACGREGOR [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. MACGREGOR: Mr. Chairman, is it not customary when two Members rise at approximately the same time that the Chairman recognizes a member of the committee first?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Michigan was on his feet, and the Chair recognized the gentleman from Michigan.

MR. MACGREGOR: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Minnesota was on his feet, and had asked for recognition before the teller vote was taken.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Chair saw the gentleman from Michigan on his feet first, and the Chair recognized the gentleman from Michigan.

Where Committee Member Does Not Seek Recognition

§ 13.14 In recognizing Members under the five-minute rule, the Chair attempts to give preference to members of the committee reporting the bill; but the Chair may recognize another where a committee member is standing but not actively seeking recognition by addressing the Chair.

On Aug. 4, 1978,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of the foreign aid ap-

11. 124 CONG. REC. 24439, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

appropriation bill for fiscal 1979 (H.R. 12931) in the Committee of the Whole, it was demonstrated that, in order to be recognized, a Member must be on his feet and must address the Chair at the appropriate time:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE II—FOREIGN MILITARY CREDIT SALES

FOREIGN MILITARY CREDIT SALES

For expenses not otherwise provided for, necessary to enable the President to carry out the provisions of sections 23 and 24 of the Arms Export Control Act, $648,000,000. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there amendments to title II?

For what purpose does the gentleman from Iowa rise?

MR. [THOMAS R.] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin).

MR. [CLARENCE E.] MILLER of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I am a member of the committee.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin).

MR. MILLER of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet at the time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will tell the gentleman that he might have been on his feet, but the Chair was not aware that he addressed the Chair. . . .

Let the Chair make this announcement for the last time during the consideration of this bill. On yesterday twice the Chair admonished the members of this Committee that if they had amendments pending, it was their duty to be standing and to address the Chair seeking recognition. Otherwise the Chair would have no way of knowing that they had an amendment to offer. The Chair is for the third and last time admonishing the Committee that those who have amendments not only be on their feet but seek recognition. On this particular occasion the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Miller) did not seek the Chair's attention, and the Chair did recognize the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin), who did seek the Chair's attention.

Absence of Chairman

§ 13.15 Where the chairman and ranking minority member of the reporting committee, named in a resolution to control debate on the bill, are absent, the Speaker or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may recognize the next ranking majority and minority members (if the chairman and ranking minority member have not designated other members to control the time).

On July 23, 1942,⁽¹³⁾ the House adopted a resolution from the

12. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

13. 88 CONG. REC. 6542-46, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

Committee on Rules providing for debate on a bill to be divided between the Chairman and the ranking minority member of the reporting committee—the Committee on Election of the President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress. The chairman and ranking minority member both being absent, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, declared, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that the Chair would recognize the next ranking majority member and the next ranking minority member to control debate:

MR. [JOHN E.] RANKIN of Mississippi: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RANKIN of Mississippi: Mr. Speaker, we have been unable to find a man in the House on either side who was present when this bill was voted out. A majority of the members of the committee who are here are opposed to the bill. We feel that the time ought to be divided not between the Members who are for the bill but know nothing about it any more than the rest of us, but between the members of the committee who are for the bill and the members of the committee who are opposed to the bill. I would like to have the Chair's ruling on that proposition.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair thinks the Chair has a rather wide range of latitude here. The Chair could hold and some future Speaker might hold that since the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee are not here there could be no general debate because there was nobody here to control it, but the present occupant of the chair is not going to rule in such a restricted way.

The Chair is going to recognize the next ranking majority member and the next ranking minority member when the House goes into the Committee of the Whole.

When the House had resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, responded as follows to a similar inquiry:

MR. RANKIN of Mississippi: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RANKIN of Mississippi: Mr. Chairman, there is not a member of the committee present who was present when this bill was voted out. A majority of the members of the committee who are present are opposed to this bill. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say in response to the parliamentary inquiry, that the Speaker held only a few moments ago that the ranking majority Member, acting as chairman of the committee, and the ranking minority Member present, would have control of the time under the rule that has been adopted for the consideration of the bill.

Recognition for Points of Order

§ 13.16 Members of the committee reporting a bill have priority of recognition to make points of order against proposed amendments to the bill.

On Mar. 30, 1949,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Henry M. Jackson, of Washington, and Mr. Carl T. Curtis, of Nebraska, simultaneously arose in the Committee of the Whole to make a point of order against a pending amendment on the ground that it constituted legislation on an appropriation bill. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, recognized Mr. Jackson in preference over Mr. Curtis since Mr. Jackson was a member of the committee which had reported the bill.

Pro Forma Amendments

§ 13.17 Where the Committee of the Whole resumed consideration of a bill under a special rule prohibiting amendments to a pending amendment except pro forma amendments for debate, the Chair announced that he would first recognize Members who had not offered pro forma amendments on the preceding day, priority of recognition being given to members of the reporting committee.

14. 95 CONG. REC. 3520, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

On Aug. 3, 1977,⁽¹⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the National Energy Act (H.R. 8444):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ The Chair would like to make a statement for the information of the Members of the Committee of the Whole.

The Chair has before it a list of those who spoke on this amendment yesterday. The Chair will recognize those who have not spoken on this amendment first and, of course, preference will be given to the members of the ad hoc committee and any Member, of course, under the rule has the right to offer pro forma amendments. The Chair will adhere to that direction.

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) did not speak on this amendment yesterday, so as a member of the ad hoc committee, for what purpose does the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) [rise]?

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Opposition to Motion To Discharge

§ 13.18 The chairman of a committee having jurisdiction over a bill is entitled to prior recognition for debate in opposition to a motion to discharge the committee, and if the chairman is not opposed to the motion the next ranking member of the committee is recognized for that purpose, and so on, in order of rank.

On Jan. 13, 1936,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, moved to discharge the Committee on Ways and Means from the further consideration of H.R. 1, for the immediate cash payment of adjusted service certificates. Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, stated that 20 minutes' debate would be had on the motion, to be equally divided between those for and against the motion. He stated that he would recognize Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina (chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means), to control half the time. Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, stated that he wished to be heard in opposition to the motion. The Speaker responded:

The chairman of the committee before which the bill is pending is entitled to be recognized in opposition, if he desires.

On May 23, 1938,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, moved

17. 80 CONG. REC. 336, 337, 74th Cong. 2d Sess.

18. 83 CONG. REC. 7274, 7275, 75th Cong. 3d Sess.

to discharge the Committee on Rules from the further consideration of House Resolution 478, making in order the consideration of a bill. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, stated that Mrs. Norton would control 10 minutes' debate in favor of the motion. The Speaker further stated:

Does the gentleman from New York, chairman of the Committee on Rules, desire recognition in opposition to the resolution?

MR. [JOHN J.] O'CONNOR of New York: Mr. Speaker, I cannot qualify in opposition because I am wholeheartedly in favor of the bill.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Georgia [the next ranking member on the committee]?

MR. [EDWARD E.] COX [of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I am proud to say I am in position to qualify. I claim the time and will yield to the gentleman from Texas.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Georgia for 10 minutes in opposition to the resolution, and the gentlewoman from New Jersey is now recognized for 10 minutes.⁽¹⁹⁾

Where Portion of Bill Is Considered Read and Open to Amendment

§ 13.19 Where a pending title of a bill is open to amendment and a unanimous-consent request is made that the next two succeeding titles also be considered as open to amendment, all three titles would be open to amendment, with priority in recognition being given to members of the committee reporting the bill.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Jan. 29, 1980,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of the Water Resources Development Act (H.R. 4788):

MR. [RAY] ROBERTS [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that titles III and IV be considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas? . . .

MR. [ALLEN E.] ERTEL [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, am I under the understanding at this point that titles II, III, and IV are now open to amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct, if no objection is heard.

20. 126 CONG. REC. 973, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

1. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

MR. ERTEL: I have no objection.

MR. [DON H.] CLAUSEN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I want to make sure we are going to be proceeding in an orderly manner. I am assuming we will proceed through title II for the consideration of the amendment and then follow on with the consideration of titles III and IV.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that if the unanimous-consent request is adopted without objection, titles II, III, and IV will be open for amendment at any point. Committee members will, of course, have priority in recognition.

MR. ERTEL: Mr. Chairman, I reserve the right to object, and I do object. I think we ought to go by title II, then go to title III and title IV. I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

Recognition To Offer Substitute—Previous Recognition To Debate Original Amendment

§ 13.20 While recognition during the five-minute rule is within the discretion of the Chair and is not subject to a point of order, the Chair will ordinarily recognize a member of a committee reporting a bill to offer a substitute before recognizing a non-committee member, although that committee member may already have been recognized to debate the original amendment.

During consideration of the Department of Energy Authorization Act (H.R. 3000) in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 18, 1979,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾ Are there further amendments to title IV? If not, the Clerk will designate title V. Title V reads as follows:

TITLE V—NUCLEAR ASSESSMENT, SPENT FUEL DISPOSITION OPERATIONS, AND DECONTAMINATION AND DECOMMISSIONING . . .

MR. [JOHN W.] WYDLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Wydler: On page 56, line 21 and 22, substitute the following new title: . . .

MR. [PHILIP R.] SHARP [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, there are two things we have to recognize: First, we are moving ahead to deal with the question of away-from-reactor storage for domestic spent fuel.

After further debate, Mr. Sharp was recognized to offer an amendment:

MR. SHARP: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment as a substitute for the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Sharp as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Wydler: On page 56, line 21 and 22, substitute the following new title: "TRANSITIONAL STORAGE OF SPENT FUEL."

On page 57, after line 7, insert the following new subsections: . . .

MR. WYDLER: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order. I believe the gentleman from Indiana was already recognized on this amendment and there were other people standing on the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Indiana has been recognized to offer a substitute for the gentleman's amendment, and the Clerk is reporting the substitute amendment.

MR. WYDLER: The gentleman had already been recognized on my amendment. Is the Chairman aware of that?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the amendment. The gentleman is on the committee which considered the pending title and is entitled to separate recognition to offer an amendment, and the Clerk will report the substitute.

Chairman Requesting Conference

§ 13.21 The Speaker indicated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that only the chairman of the committee having jurisdiction of the subject matter of a bill would be recognized to ask unanimous consent to take the bill from the table, disagree to a Senate amendment and ask for a conference.

On the legislative day of Aug. 31, 1960,⁽⁴⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry as follows:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Would it be in order for a unanimous-consent request to be made to send the bill that has just come from the Senate to conference?

THE SPEAKER: That would be up to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Cooley] [chairman of the committee with jurisdiction].

District of Columbia Business

§ 13.22 During the consideration of District of Columbia business in the Committee of the Whole, in the absence of a special agreement controlling time for general debate, the Chair alternates in recognizing between those for and against the pending legislation, giving preference to members of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The above-stated principle is set out in detail in another section.⁽⁵⁾

Private Calendar

§ 13.23 Recognition for debate in opposition to an amendment to a bill on the Private Calendar goes to a member of the committee reporting the bill in preference to a Member who is not on that committee.

On Dec. 14, 1967,⁽⁶⁾ during the call of the Private Calendar, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, extended recognition to oppose an amendment to a private bill to Mr. Michael A. Feighan, of Ohio, a member of the reporting committee, over Mr. Durward G. Hall, of Missouri, not a member of the committee, and stated "a member of the committee is entitled to recognition."

Calendar Wednesday

§ 13.24 In recognizing for five minutes' debate in opposition to a motion to dispense with business under the Calendar Wednesday call of committees, the Speaker extends preference to a member of the committee having the call.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽⁷⁾ Mr. Dwight L. Rogers, of Florida, moved to dispense with the call of committees on Calendar Wednesday. When the five minutes' debate by Mr. Rogers in favor of the motion, provided for by rule, had expired, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, refused to recognize Mr. Andrew J. Biemiller, of Wisconsin, who was not a member of the committee who had the call. He then recognized Thruston Ballard Morton, of Kentucky, who was a member of the committee next to be called on the Calendar Wednesday list of committees.

§ 13.25 In recognizing a Member to control time in opposition to a bill on Calendar Wednesday in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair recognizes minority members in the order of their seniority on the committee reporting the bill.

On Apr. 14, 1937,⁽⁸⁾ the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of H.R. 1668, to amend the Interstate Commerce Act, called up by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce under the Calendar Wednesday call of committees. Chairman J. Mark Wilcox, of Florida, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the order of recognition for debate in opposition to the bill:

MR. [PEHR G.] HOLMES [of Massachusetts]: Am I to understand that 1 hour will be extended me in opposition to the bill as a minority member of the committee?

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman from Massachusetts opposed to the bill?

MR. HOLMES: I am, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman from Massachusetts the ranking minority member of the committee?

MR. HOLMES: I am the ranking minority member opposed to the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is entitled to recognition in opposition to the bill unless a minority member of the committee outranking the gentleman desires recognition.

Minority Committee Member Offered Amendment in Nature of Substitute From Floor

§ 13.26 Pursuant to a special rule providing for the consideration of the text of a bill as an amendment in the nature of a substitute, to be read by titles as an original bill immediately after the reading of the enacting clause of the bill to which offered, the Chair recognized a minority member of the committee to offer the amendment in the nature of a substitute from the floor before it could be considered under the rule.

On Sept. 19, 1974,⁽⁹⁾ Chairman Thomas M. Rees, of California, recognized James T. Broyhill, of North Carolina, who then offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute:

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: When the Committee rose on Tuesday, September 17, 1974, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, immediately after the reading of the enacting clause, it shall be in order to consider the text of the bill H.R. 16327 as an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill, and said substitute shall be read for amendment by title.

The Clerk will read the enacting clause.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. . . .

MR. BROYHILL of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, under the rule, I offer the following amendment in the nature of a substitute, which is to the text of the bill (H.R. 7917).

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Broyhill of North Carolina: That this Act may be cited as the "Consumer Product Warranties-Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act".

of the committee and had introduced the bill made in order by the rule. The Chair recognized him when the chairman of the then Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce did not immediately seek recognition. It should be noted that the Chair could have considered the amendment to be pending and could have directed that it be read by title as an original bill without being offered from the floor.

Suspension of Rules

§ 13.27 In recognizing a Member to demand a second on a motion to suspend the rules (under a former rule), the Speaker gave preference to a member of the reporting committee who was opposed to the bill; that Member was then recognized to speak in opposition to the motion.

On Feb. 20, 1967,⁽¹⁰⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled as follows on recognition to demand a second on the motion to suspend the rules:

THE SPEAKER: Is a second demanded?

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER: For what reason does the gentleman from Michigan [Mr.

10. 113 CONG. REC. 3829, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

Nedzi], a member of the committee, stand?

MR. [LUCIEN N.] NEDZI: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. YATES: The distinguished gentleman from Michigan is my good friend. Is it in order to inquire as to whether the gentleman from Michigan is opposed to the bill?

MR. NEDZI: I will allay the gentleman's fears. He is.

MR. YATES: I will withdraw.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair had not reached that point yet. The Chair would have asked that question.

Is the gentleman from Michigan opposed to the bill?

MR. NEDZI: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman qualifies. Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Member demanding a second on the motion to suspend the rules was entitled to recognition for debate against the motion.⁽¹¹⁾ Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from Rule XXVII in the 102d Congress (see H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991).

§ 13.28 A member of the committee reporting a bill, who is opposed to the bill, has prior right to recognition to demand a second on a motion to suspend the rules.

11. See 105 CONG. REC. 17600, 86th Cong. 1st Sess., Sept. 1, 1959.

On Dec. 1, 1941,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. J. Harry McGregor, of Ohio, and Mr. Pehr G. Holmes, of Massachusetts, arose simultaneously to demand a second on a motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill. Mr. Holmes responded to the inquiry of Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, by saying that he was not opposed to the bill. Mr. McGregor was recognized to demand a second after he stated that he was opposed to the bill and was a member of the committee which reported it.

Parliamentarian's Note: Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from Rule XXVII in the 102d Congress (see H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991).

§ 13.29 The Speaker accords priority of recognition to demand a second on a motion to suspend the rules to a minority member of the committee reporting the bill who qualifies as being opposed to the motion.

On Sept. 20, 1976,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of H.R. 14319 (the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [HARLEY O.] STAGGERS [of West Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 14319) to amend the Public Health Service Act and the Social Security Act to revise and improve the authorities under those acts for the regulation of clinical laboratories, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SHORT TITLE

Section 1. This Act may be cited as the "Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act of 1976". . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ Is a second demanded?

MR. [STEVEN D.] SYMMS [of Idaho]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

MR. [TIM LEE] CARTER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

MR. [JAMES T.] BROYHILL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is each of the gentlemen who request a second opposed to the bill?

13. 122 CONG. REC. 31328, 31333, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

All three Members demanding a second were minority Members, with Mr. Carter ranking on the committee reporting the bill, Mr. Broyhill junior on that committee, and Mr. Symms not on the committee.

14. John J. McFall (Calif.).

MR. SYMMS: I am opposed to the bill, Mr. Speaker.

MR. BROYHILL: I am opposed to the bill, Mr. Speaker.

MR. CARTER: Mr. Speaker, so am I, in its present form.

MR. SYMMS: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. SYMMS: Mr. Speaker, did the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Carter) say that he is opposed to the bill?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Carter) did say he is opposed to the bill, in its present form.

MR. CARTER: Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my demand for a second.

MR. BROYHILL: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman from North Carolina opposed to the bill?

MR. BROYHILL: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from Rule XXVII in the 102d Congress (see H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991).

Seniority as Factor

§ 13.30 Recognition of Members to offer amendments under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is within the discretion of the Chair, and he extends preference to members of the committee which reported the bill according to seniority.

On July 21, 1949,⁽¹⁵⁾ Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the order of recognition for amendments under the five-minute rule:

MR. [JAMES P.] SUTTON [of Tennessee]: Mr. Chairman, I offered an amendment.

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN: Mr. Chairman, is it not the custom during debate under the 5-minute rule for the Chair in recognizing Members to alternate from side to side? At least I suggest to the Chair that that would be the fair procedure. The Chair has recognized three Democrats in a row.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say to the gentleman that the matter of recognition of members of the committee is within the discretion of the Chair. The Chair has undertaken to follow as closely as possible the seniority of those Members.

MR. [CLIFFORD R.] HOPE [of Kansas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOPE: For the information of the Chair, the gentleman from Wisconsin, who has been seeking recognition, has been a Member of the House for 10 years, and the gentleman from Tennessee is a Member whose service began only this year.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would refer the gentleman to the official list of the members of the committee, which the Chair has before him.

The Clerk will report the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.

§ 13.31 Recognition under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is within the discretion of the Chair, and the Chair is not required in every instance to recognize members of the legislative committee reporting the bill in order of their seniority.

On Oct. 2, 1969,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 14000, military procurement authorization. Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, recognized Robert C. Wilson, of California, a minority member of the Committee on Armed Services which had reported the bill, to offer an amendment. Mr. Lucien N. Nedzi, of Michigan, inquired whether members of the committee were not supposed to be recognized in the order of their seniority. The Chairman responded "That is a matter for the Chair's discretion" and proceeded to recognize Mr. Wilson for his amendment.

§ 13.32 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole gives priority in recognition, in opposition to an amendment printed in the Record and offered after debate is limited, to senior members of the committee reporting the bill regardless of party affiliation.

On June 7, 1977,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of the Federal Employees' Political Activities Act of 1977 (H.R. 10) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman James R. Mann, of South Carolina, responded to a parliamentary inquiry, as follows:

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: The Chairman just referred to the situation whereby debate was limited, which is under clause 6, rule XXIII, and under that procedure any Member who has filed and published an amendment is protected in his right to call up the amendment and is entitled to 5 minutes to explain the amendment.

17. 123 CONG. REC. 17700, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

My parliamentary inquiry is: How will the Chair determine the appropriate Member to speak in opposition to the amendment? In other words, what will qualify a Member to speak in opposition to these pending amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will endeavor to recognize committee members who are opposed, and if there is more than one committee member desiring to speak in opposition to the amendment, the Chair will seek to recognize the most senior of the committee members. The matter of party affiliation will not be controlling.

§ 13.33 While the matter of recognition to offer amendments in Committee of the Whole under the five-minute rule is within the discretion of the Chairman, members of the reporting committee(s) are normally accorded prior recognition in order of committee seniority.

During consideration of House Resolution 1186 (providing for consideration of H.R. 39, the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act) in the House on May 17, 1978,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [CHRISTOPHER J.] DODD [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules I call up House Resolution 1186 and ask for its immediate consideration. . . .

18. 124 CONG. REC. 14139-45, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read the resolution. . . .

MR. DODD: Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 1186 provides for the consideration of H.R. 39, the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1978. This resolution provides for an open rule with 3 hours of general debate; 2 hours to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, and 1 hour to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries. . . .

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: The Chair will tell us, will he not, that the rules and customs of the House would ordinarily indicate that the floor managers of the bill or members of the appropriate committees would be recognized ahead of other Members in case there were more than one substitute to be offered?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ The Chair will state that recognition of Members will be under the control of the Chair at the time that the House is in the Committee of the Whole.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BAUMAN: I would like to ask the Chair whether it is not true, under the precedents of the House, that any member of either committee has a right to be recognized to offer amendments; of course, the chairman and ranking minority member first and other Members after that, may be recognized to offer amendments, so that no restriction is imposed on any Member's right to offer amendments under this rule?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the gentleman has correctly stated the general principles relating to recognition.

—Chair May Base Recognition on Seniority or on Preferential Status of Amendments

§ 13.34 The order of recognition to offer amendments is within the discretion of the Chair, who may either base his initial recognition on committee seniority or upon the preferential voting status of the amendments sought to be offered; thus, where both a pending amendment and a substitute therefor are open to perfecting amendments, the Chair has the discretion of first recognizing either the senior committee member, or a junior committee member whose amendment would be first voted upon, where both amendments could ultimately be pending at the same time.

The following proceedings occurred during consideration of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1979 in the Committee of the Whole on May 15, 1979: ⁽²⁰⁾

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) rise?

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is this to the Udall substitute?

MR. SEIBERLING: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk to the Udall-Anderson bill, which is actually a series of technical amendments which I will ask unanimous consent to offer en bloc. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Since there is no other amendment pending to the Udall substitute, the amendment of the gentleman from Ohio may be offered. . . .

MR. [JOHN B.] BREAUX [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, assuming there is an amendment to be offered to the so-called Breaux-Dingell merchant marine version, that would take precedence over an amendment to the so-called Udall-Anderson interior bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has the option either to recognize the senior Member first or to first recognize that Member seeking to offer the amendment which will be preferential and first voted upon.

MR. [THOMAS J.] HUCKABY [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, I have amendments at the desk for the Breaux-Dingell bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendments.⁽²⁾

MR. [DON H.] CLAUSEN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. Chairman, what is the parliamentary situation? Is there an amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) or the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Huckaby)?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) sought recognition to amend the Udall substitute, but the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Huckaby) has an amendment to the Merchant Marine and Fisheries amendment in the nature of a substitute, and he will be recognized. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) later for the purposes of offering his amendment. . . .

MR. HUCKABY: Mr. Chairman, I offer amendments to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendments.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Huckaby's amendments to the original amendment were subsequently agreed to.⁽³⁾ Mr. Seiberling then indicated that he had amendments to the substitute, and Mr. Huckaby that he had further amendments to the original amendment. As noted above, the Chair would have discretion to rior and Insular Affairs, but Mr. Huckaby's amendment was to be voted on first and he represented the majority position on the committee.

recognize either Member; but the Chair indicated that in either case, the question would not be put on amendments to the substitute until all amendments to the original amendment had been disposed of.

Limitation on Debate Under Five-minute Rule as Affecting Priority of Recognition

§ 13.35 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited to 5 minutes the remaining time for debate on an amendment, the five-minute rule is in effect abrogated and the Chair may in his discretion recognize two Members to equally control the time in support of and in opposition to the amendment (granting priority of recognition to control the time in opposition to a member of the committee handling a bill).

On June 22, 1977,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 7797 (the foreign assistance and related agencies appropriation bill for fiscal 1978) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair made an announcement regarding debate under the five-minute rule. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I move that all

4. 123 CONG. REC. 20291, 20292, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

debate on this amendment and any amendments thereto close in 5 minutes.

The motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ Let the Chair make this announcement. There is no way that the Chair can divide 5 minutes among all who wish to speak. Therefore, under the prerogative of the Chair, the Chair will recognize one proponent and one opponent each for 2½ minutes.

The Chair at this time recognizes the proponent, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Wolff). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there any member of the committee who wishes to be recognized in opposition to the amendment?

If not, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) as an opponent of the amendment.

§ 13.36 A limitation on debate abrogates the five-minute rule and the ordinary criteria for priority of recognition, and the Chair may extend priority of recognition under a limitation to Members seeking to offer amendments not printed in the Record, before members of the reporting committee.

On June 27, 1979,⁽⁶⁾ it was demonstrated that, where time had been limited for debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole, the Chair could continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule and then as the expiration time approached allocate the remaining time among Members seeking to offer amendments not printed in the Congressional Record, and Members opposing such amendments. The proceedings during consideration of H.R. 4389 (the Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations) were as follows:

6. 125 CONG. REC. 17018, 17029, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the balance of the bill be considered as read, open to amendment at any point, and that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 8:30 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to make an announcement. We have less than 45 minutes of the allocated time. The Chair would like for all those Members who have amendments which are not printed in the Record—not printed in the Record—to please rise and remain standing so that the Chair can get the names of the Members and try to recognize them for the offering of their amendments.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Miller) for approximately 3 minutes.

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Chairman, is it not normal practice to recognize members of the committee before we recognize other Members?

THE CHAIRMAN: Not when a time limitation has been imposed. That rule does not apply, but the Chair will try to protect all the Members who do not have amendments printed in the Record.

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CONTE: If some member of the committee opposes one of these amendments, may that Member rise and speak against an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: Certainly.

§ 13.37 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on a bill and all amendments thereto, the five-minute rule may be abrogated at any time the Chair in his discretion deems it necessary to divide the remaining time; and if such limitation is to a time certain several hours in the future, the Chair may in his discretion continue to proceed under the five-minute rule until he desires to allocate remaining time on possible amendments, and may then divide that time between proponents and committee opponents of amendments before they are offered.

During consideration of the Department of Defense authorization bill (H.R. 3519) in the Committee of the Whole on July 16, 1981,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: . . . I was wondering if we could agree that we would limit the debate on this bill and all amendments thereto until 5 o'clock tonight, so we would then know whether or not we have to come back tomorrow. I think that would give the Members ample time and ample opportunity to speak. That still allows 6½ hours more time for amendment and debate.

So, Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto terminate at 5 p.m. today.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the precedents of the House, the Chairman has the power in this situation to allocate time, a limitation having been imposed. The Chair will on the Moffett amendment, if offered, allocate 9 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Moffett) and 9 minutes to the opposition. Following that the Chair will, if time remains, allocate 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Foley) and if he offers an amendment to any opposition if there is any, and then what time may be remaining the Chair will allocate to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Minish) if he offers an amendment, 1 minute, to be divided equally between any proponents or opponents.

MR. DICKINSON: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Alabama will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DICKINSON: I was just wondering if the Chair could clear up for us the definition of "opponents." The Chair is going to recognize the proponent for 9 minutes and the opponent for 9 minutes. Does that mean the committee, or does that mean some identified person?

THE CHAIRMAN: That means a senior member of the committee in opposition.

§ 13.38 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill and the permissible degree of amendments thereto, the Chair indicated in response to parliamentary inquiries that a motion to limit debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto was in order although the bill itself had not been read, and that all Members would be allocated equal time under the limitation regardless of committee membership but that Members seeking to offer amendments could be first recognized.

On June 10, 1976,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole having under consideration a bill relating to the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 (H.R. 13367), a motion to limit debate was offered and the proceedings that followed were as indicated below:

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Brooks amendment and all amendments thereto end by 6 p.m. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: . . . I do not remember the bill being open at any point to amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ The motion of the gentleman from New York, as the Chair understood it, was that all debate on the Brooks amendment and all amendments thereto end at 6 p.m.

MR. BAUMAN: So that the motion is in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion is in order. It is limited to the Brooks amendment and amendments thereto. . . .

MR. [J. J.] PICKLE [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. PICKLE: Mr. Chairman, under the proposed time limitation, would the Chair tend to recognize a Member who is not a member of the committee? For instance, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Adams) has an important amendment, and if he is not recognized within the time limitation, would the chairman of the committee let the gentleman be recognized?

MR. [JACK] BROOKS [of Texas]: I do not have control of the time. I think the answer, obviously, is that he will be recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under limitation of time committee members no longer have priority in seeking recognition. Time is equally allocated.

So the motion was agreed to.

§ 13.39 Where debate under the five-minute rule on a bill and all amendments thereto has been limited by motion to a time certain (with approximately 90 minutes remaining) the Chair may in his discretion continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule, according priority to members of the committee reporting the bill, instead of allocating time between proponents and opponents or among all Members standing, where it cannot be determined what amendments will be offered.

On July 29, 1983,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of the International Monetary Fund authorization (H.R. 2957) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to several parliamentary inquiries regarding recognition following agreement to a motion to limit debate to a time certain:

MR. [FERNAND J.] ST GERMAIN [of Rhode Island]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill, H.R. 2957, be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Rhode Island?

There was no objection.

The text of title IV and title V is as follows:

TITLE IV—INTERNATIONAL LENDING SUPERVISION

Sec. 401. This title may be cited as the "International Lending Supervision Act of 1983". . . .

MR. ST GERMAIN: I have a motion, Mr. Chairman. . . .

I now move that all debate on the bill, H.R. 2957, and all amendments thereto, cease at 12 o'clock noon. . . .

MR. [ED] BETHUNE [of Arkansas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Chairman, the parliamentary inquiry is for the Chair to please state the process by which we will do our business from now until the time is cut off. . . .

MR. [STEPHEN L.] NEAL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, would it not be in order at this time to ask that the time be divided between the proponents and the opponents of this measure, since there is a limitation on the time?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The Chair believes not, because the time has been limited on the entire bill. It would be very difficult to allocate time to any one particular party or two parties when the Chair has no knowledge of the amendments that will be offered.

MR. NEAL: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. NEAL: Mr. Chairman, is it not true that members of the committee should be given preference in terms of recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is true. At the time the gentleman from Pennsylvania was recognized, he was the only one seeking recognition.

§ 13.40 Where under a time limitation only five minutes of debate is available in opposition both to an amendment and to a substitute therefor printed in the Record, one Member cannot simultaneously be recognized for 10 minutes in opposition to both amendments, but must be separately recognized on each amendment, with preference of recognition being accorded to members of the committee reporting the bill.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 27, 1985,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1872 (Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1986):

Amendment offered by Mr. Markey: Insert the following new section at the end of title X (page 200, after line 4): . . .

(a) Limitation of Funds Authorized for Fiscal Year 1986.—None of the funds appropriated pursuant to the authorizations of appropriations in this or any other Act may be used for the production of the 155-millimeter artillery-fired, atomic projectile. . . .

MR. [VIC] FAZIO [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment as a substitute for the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Fazio as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Markey: Insert the following new section at the end of title X (page 200, after line 4): . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment and the amendment to the amendment.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BADHAM [of California]: Mr. Chairman, at this time, I would ask a parliamentary inquiry of the Chair. . . .

My inquiry is that since there were two offerings, an amendment and an amendment to the amendment in the form of a substitute, would the opposition now be exercising its prerogative in using 10 minutes in opposition to both?

14. 131 CONG. REC. 17799–802, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ That is correct, except that the gentleman from New York rose in opposition to the Markey amendment. There would be 5 minutes of debate left in opposition to the Fazio substitute. . . .

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Chairman, I rose in opposition to both amendments, both the Markey amendment and the Fazio amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the gentleman can only rise in opposition to one amendment at a time, and when he rose, the Chair understood him to rise first in opposition to the Markey amendment. That leaves only 5 minutes in opposition to the Fazio substitute amendment.

Any Member wishing to rise in opposition to the Fazio substitute amendment may, and a member of the committee is recognized before other Members.

Motion To Recommit

§ 13.41 In response to a parliamentary inquiry the Speaker stated that recognition to offer a motion to recommit is the prerogative of a Member opposed to the bill, that the Speaker will first look to minority members of the committee reporting the bill in their order of seniority on the committee, second to other Members of the minority and finally to majority Members opposed to the bill;

15. Marty Russo (Ill.).

thus, a minority Member opposed to a bill but not on the committee reporting it is entitled to recognition to offer a motion to recommit over a majority Member who is also a member of the committee.

On July 10, 1975,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8365 (Department of Transportation appropriations) in the House, the Speaker put the question on passage of the bill and then recognized Mr. William A. Steiger, of Wisconsin, a minority Member, to offer a motion to recommit. The proceedings were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ The question is on the passage of the bill.

MR. STEIGER of Wisconsin: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. STEIGER of Wisconsin: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman qualifies. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not a member of the Committee on Appropriations. As I understand the rule, a member of the Committee on Appropriations must offer a motion to recommit.

16. 121 CONG. REC. 22014, 22015, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Carl Albert (Okla.).

The gentleman who offered the motion is not on the Committee on Appropriations.

THE SPEAKER: A member of the minority has priority over all the members of the majority, regardless of whether he is on the committee.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, may I continue with my statement on the point of order.

THE SPEAKER: You may.

MR. YATES: "Cannon's Precedents" states, Mr. Speaker, that if a motion is offered by a person other than a member of the committee, a member of the committee takes precedence in offering a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: A motion to recommit is the prerogative of the minority, and the Chair so rules and so answers the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, may I refer the attention of the Chair to page 311.

I am quoting from page 311 of "Cannon's Precedents."

A member of the committee reporting the measure and opposed to it is entitled to recognition to move to recommit over one not a member of the committee but otherwise qualified.

And, Mr. Speaker, it cites volume 8, page 2768.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair desires to call the attention of the gentleman on the question of the motion to "Deschler's Procedure" chapter 23, section 13. It provides that in recognizing Members who move to recommit, the Speaker gives preference to the minority Member, and these recent precedents are consistent with the one cited by the gentleman from Illinois.

What the gentleman is saying is that because he is a member of the Committee on Appropriations, he is so entitled. The Chair has not gone over all the precedents, but the Chair can do it if the gentleman desires him to do so.

The rule is not only that a member of the minority on the Committee on Appropriations has preference over a majority member, but any Member from the minority is recognized by the Speaker over any Member of the majority, regardless of committee membership.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, if the Speaker will permit me to continue—

THE SPEAKER: The only exception is when no Member of the minority seeks to make a motion to recommit.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, in that respect may I say that "Cannon's Precedents" is clear on that point; that where none of those speaking, seeking recognition, are members of the committee and otherwise equally qualified, the Speaker recognizes the Member from the minority over the majority.

But the point is, Mr. Speaker, that I am a member of the committee where the gentleman offering the motion to recommit on the minority side is not a member of the committee.

I suggest, therefore, that under the precedents, I should be recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that in order that there can be no mistake the Chair will ask the Clerk to read the following passage from the rules and manual of the House.

The Clerk read as follows (from section 788):

Recognition to offer the motion to recommit, whether in its simple form or with instructions, is the prerogative of a Member who is opposed to the bill (Speaker Martin, Mar. 29, 1954, p. 3692); and the Speaker looks first to minority members of the committee reporting the bill, in order of their rank on the committee (Speaker Garner, Jan. 6, 1932, p. 1396; Speaker Byrns, July 2, 1935, p. 10638), then to other Members on the minority side (Speaker Rayburn, Aug. 16, 1950, p. 12608). If no Member of the minority qualifies, a majority Member who is opposed to the bill may be recognized (Speaker Garner, Apr. 1, 1932, p. 7327).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair states that that definitely settles the question, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin to offer the motion to recommit.

The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steiger of Wisconsin moves to recommit the bill H.R. 8365 to the Committee on Appropriations.

§ 13.42 In recognizing Members to move to recommit, the Speaker gives preference first to the ranking minority member of the committee reporting the bill, and then to the remaining minority members of that committee in the order of their rank.

On June 18, 1957,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House was considering H.R. 6127, the Civil Rights Act of 1957. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the order of recognition for a motion to recommit would be determined by the order of rank of minority members of the committee reporting the bill, the Committee on the Judiciary. When two minority members of the committee arose to offer the motion, the Speaker recognized the member higher in rank:

MR. [RICHARD H.] POFF [of Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. POFF: I am, Mr. Speaker.

MR. [RUSSELL W.] KEENEY [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I also offer a motion to recommit, and I, too, am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: In this instance the Chair finds that no one has arisen who is a member of the minority of the Committee on the Judiciary until it comes down to the name of the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Poff]. He ranks the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Keeney] and is therefore senior. Under the rules and precedents of the House, the Chair therefore must recognize the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Poff].¹⁹

§ 13.43 Recognition for a motion to recommit is accorded to the ranking minority member of the committee reporting a bill, even though that member is opposed to the measure merely “in its present form.”

On Mar. 12, 1964,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Robert J. Corbett, of Pennsylvania, offered a motion to recommit a pending bill reported from the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, of which he was a minority member. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, inquired whether he was opposed to the measure, and he stated he was opposed to the bill “in its present form.” Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, also a minority member of the committee, but lower in rank than Mr. Corbett, stated that he should be recognized to offer the motion to recommit, being unqualifiedly opposed to the bill. The Speaker declined to recognize Mr. Gross and recognized Mr. Corbett for the motion.

§ 13.44 A minority member of a committee reporting a bill is entitled to recognition to offer a motion to recommit, if opposed to the bill, over a minority Member not on the committee, although the Speaker may have failed to notice the committee member seeking recognition at the time the noncommittee Member sought to offer a motion but before it was reported by the Clerk.

During consideration of the Department of Agriculture appropriation bill for fiscal 1976 (H.R. 8561) in the House on July 14, 1975,⁽¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁾ Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. ROUSSELOT: Yes, I am, Mr. Speaker.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT OFFERED BY MR.
MICHEL

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Illinois is the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, I believe I was recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair did not see the gentleman from Illinois.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I was on my feet and I was standing right here. I had the motion at the desk. I was just standing here as a matter of courtesy.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair was at fault in that the Chair did not see the gentleman from Illinois because the gentleman from California was addressing the Chair and the Chair was looking in that direction.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, I believe I was recognized and the Clerk was proceeding with the motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair did not see the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) who was entitled to recognition being the senior member on the Committee on Appropriations and entitled to recognition, and the motion to recommit had not been reported by the Clerk.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

§ 13.45 In granting recognition to offer a motion to recommit, the Chair first recognizes minority members of the committee reporting the bill who are opposed in order of their seniority, and then other minority Members who are opposed; and in one instance, the Chair recognized a senior member of the committee to offer a motion to recommit even though another Member had sought recognition to offer the motion and had been asked by the Chair if he was opposed to the bill and had responded that he was, the Chair ruling in response to a point of order that recognition in such an instance is not conferred until the Chair has directed the Clerk to report the motion.

On Apr. 24, 1979,⁽³⁾ during consideration of the State Department authorization (H.R. 3303) in the House, the following exchange occurred:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the passage of the bill.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is aware that the gentleman is standing and the Chair intends to recognize the gentleman. . . .

Is there any member of the committee that desires to make a motion to recommit on the minority side? . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will—

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I was recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair under the precedents of the House, will recognize the gentleman from Michigan to make a motion if he qualifies. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, had not the Speaker said to the gentleman from Maryland, "Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?"

And the gentleman from Maryland was thus recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair appreciates that the gentleman is opposed to the bill; but under the precedents of the House, the Clerk has not reported the motion. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: I make a point of order against recognizing the gentleman from Michigan or anyone else, because he did not rise in a timely fashion to make the motion. Once the Chair recognizes a Member, the precedents will support the fact that he has the right to offer the motion.

THE SPEAKER: On the point of order, the gentleman's motion has not been read yet; so the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Michigan, a senior member of the committee, who is standing. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. BROOMFIELD: Yes, I am, Mr. Speaker. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Broomfield moves to recommit the bill, H.R. 3363, to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman makes a point of order that the gentleman is not in order in making the motion, since another Member had already been recognized. The Chair has already conferred that recognition and had inquired whether or not the gentleman from Maryland was opposed.

THE SPEAKER: In the opinion of the Chair, until the motion has been read,

3. 125 CONG. REC. 8360, 8361, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

4. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

the gentleman has not been recognized for that purpose.

MR. BAUMAN: Well, the gentleman did not yield to anyone else to offer a motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman had not been recognized for that purpose and consequently—the Chair asked the gentleman if he was in opposition. The gentleman replied. The gentleman was not then recognized for that purpose. That is the statement and the opinion of the Chair. The Chair did not recognize the gentleman by directing the Clerk to report the motion. The Chair is trying to follow the precedents of the House.

Now, the Chair has ruled on the gentleman's point of order and the gentleman from Michigan is entitled to 5 minutes. The Chair so recognizes the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield).

—By Minority Leader

§ 13.46 On one occasion, the Minority Leader asserted a “preemptory right” over other minority Members to offer a motion to recommit a reprimand resolution to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct with instructions to report back forthwith an amendment proposing the more severe punishment of censure (although the ranking minority member of that committee opposed to the reported resolution would ordinarily have been entitled to recognition to offer the motion under Rule XVII, clause 1).

On July 20, 1983,⁽⁵⁾ Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, of Illinois, was recognized to offer a motion to recommit House Resolution 266 (reprimanding Mr. Daniel B. Crane, of Illinois). The proceedings in the House were as follows:

MR. MICHEL: . . . I am going to exercise my preemptory right of taking the motion to recommit for myself and it will read as follows. Those of you who want to vote for it can, and those who will not I am certainly not going to have any quarrel with you because, frankly, I think the committee recommendations are good and sound and were based on fundamental good reason. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ Is the gentleman opposed to the resolution?

MR. MICHEL: I am, Mr. Speaker, in its present form.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Michel of Illinois moves to recommit House Resolution 266 to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct with instructions to report the resolution back to the House forthwith with the following amendment: Strike all after the resolving

5. 129 CONG. REC. 20028, 20029, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

6. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(1) That Representative Daniel B. Crane be censured. . . .⁽⁷⁾

[The motion to recommit was agreed to.]

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Michel's assertion of "preemptory right" as Minority Leader was valid only if no member of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct qualified as opposed to the resolution in its reported form. Apart from members of the committee who are opposed to the bill or resolution, however, the Minority Leader can preempt all other minority Members of the House in recognition for recommitment of a reported bill or resolution.

Opposition to Recommendation To Strike Enacting Clause

§ 13.47 In recognizing a Member in opposition to a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report a bill

7. The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct had recommended that Mr. Crane be reprimanded for sexual misconduct. Mr. Michel offered the recommitment motion to give Members the opportunity to vote on a more stringent penalty (censure) and to prevent other motions, such as postponement as part of recommitment. (Expulsion would not have been germane to reprimand.)

back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, the Chair extends preference to a member of the committee handling the bill.

On Mar. 1, 1950,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report back the bill under consideration with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Chairman Clark W. Thompson, of Texas, ruled that a member of the committee reporting the bill had priority of recognition in debate to oppose the motion:

MR. [FRANCIS H.] CASE of South Dakota: Mr. Chairman, I object, and claim time in opposition to the motion.

MR. [CARL] HINSHAW [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the motion.

MR. [OREN] HARRIS [of Arkansas]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HARRIS: This is a preferential motion to strike out the enacting clause, and I believe a committee member is entitled to recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California [Mr. Hinshaw].

MR. CASE of South Dakota: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

8. 96 CONG. REC. 2597, 2598, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: The gentleman from South Dakota was recognized, was he not?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman was recognized by the Chair to make an objection, but not to speak.

MR. HINSHAW: Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from South Dakota desires time, I will be glad to yield to him for a minute or so.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Case had objected to a unanimous-consent request to withdraw the motion.

§ 13.48 When no member of the committee from which a bill is reported seeks recognition in opposition to a motion to strike the enacting clause, the Chair may recognize for that purpose a Member from the party other than that of the Member making the motion.

On Aug. 2, 1955,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 7718, reported from the Committee on the District of Columbia. Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, a Republican, offered the motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. When no member of the Committee on the District of Columbia rose to seek recognition in opposition to the motion, Chairman Aime J. Forand, of Rhode Island, declined to recognize Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, also a Republican, and recognized a Member of the opposite party.

9. 101 CONG. REC. 12997, 84th Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 13.49 Priority of recognition in opposition to a preferential motion to recommend that the enacting clause be stricken is accorded to a member of the committee reporting the bill.

During consideration of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1976 (H.R. 10498) in the Committee of the Whole on Sept. 15, 1976,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Wright moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion. . . .

11. J. Edward Roush (Ind.).

MR. [MIKE] MCCORMACK [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman on the committee?

MR. MCCORMACK: No, I am not; but I rise in opposition to the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Rogers) seek recognition? . . .

MR. MCCORMACK: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Washington will state his point of order.

MR. MCCORMACK: Mr. Chairman, there is a motion on the floor. I rise in opposition to it.

As I understand, under the rules, one Member is allowed 5 minutes to speak in opposition to a motion like this.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that what the gentleman says is absolutely true.

However, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. Rogers, a member of the committee and manager of the bill] who is on his feet, if he seeks recognition in opposition to the preferential motion.

§ 13.50 Members of the committee managing the bill have priority of recognition for debate in opposition to a preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on May 5, 1988,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1989 (H.R. 4264):

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ Does any Member desire to rise in opposition to the preferential motion? Members of the committee have priority.

MR. [JOHN G.] ROWLAND of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Connecticut is recognized for 5 minutes.

Debate on Committee Amendment

§ 13.51 When a bill is being considered under a closed rule permitting only committee amendments, only two five-minute speeches are in order on an amendment—one in support and one against the amendment—and the Chair gives preference in recognition to members of the committee reporting the bill.

On May 18, 1960,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 5, amending the Internal Revenue Code, pursuant to House Resolution 468, permitting only amendments offered by the reporting committee, the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Cleveland M. Bailey, of West Virginia, not a member of the committee, stated a parliamentary inquiry on whether he could gain recognition under the five-minute rule:

MR. BAILEY: I rise in opposition to the amendment, and I oppose the legislation in general.

Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. BAILEY: On what ground may I get recognition for the purpose of opposing the legislation?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognized the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Boggs] for 5 minutes in support of the committee amendment, so the gentleman from Louisiana would have to yield to the distinguished gentleman from West Virginia.

MR. BAILEY: At the expiration of the 5 minutes allowed the gentleman from Louisiana, may I be recognized to discuss the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: If no other member of the committee rises in opposition to the amendment, the Chair will recognize the gentleman.

§ 13.52 In recognizing members of the committee reporting a bill, the Chair generally recognizes a member in favor of a committee amendment prior to recognizing a member thereof who is opposed.

15. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

On Jan. 30, 1957,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering House Joint Resolution 1311, to authorize the President to cooperate with nations of the Middle East, under a resolution permitting only committee amendments. A committee [Foreign Affairs] amendment was offered, and Mr. Brooks Hays, of Arkansas, a member of the committee, rose in opposition to the amendment. Pursuant to a point of order, Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, extended recognition to Mr. Frank M. Coffin, of Maine, a member of the committee who authored and supported the amendment.

Opposition to More Than One Amendment

§ 13.53 Where the Committee of the Whole fixes the time for debate on amendments to a substitute amendment, the Chair in counting those seeking recognition may in his discretion allot a portion of the opposition time to the reporting committee, and may recognize the same committee member in opposition to each amendment.

16. 103 CONG. REC. 1311, 85th Cong. 1st Sess.

On Feb. 8, 1950,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole fixed time for debate on amendments to a committee substitute. Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, then stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that the Chair could recognize the same committee member in opposition to each amendment offered where no other member of the committee sought such recognition:

MR. [FRANCIS H.] CASE of South Dakota: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: Under what precedent or ruling is the Chair recognizing a certain member of the committee for 1 minute in opposition to each amendment being offered? That was not included in the motion. Had it been included in the motion, it would have been subject to a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is trying to be fair in the conduct of the committee, and the only gentleman that has arisen on the opposite side has been the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Murray]. There was no point of order raised at the time that I announced that I would recognize the committee for 1 minute in rebuttal to each amendment.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: But the gentleman from South Dakota got up at the time the Chair proposed to recognize the gentleman from Tennessee a second time. Obviously, when the committee avails itself of the opportunity to make a motion to limit debate it, in a sense, is closing debate, and unless it does seek to limit time and is successful in so doing, in principle it forfeits that courtesy. The Members who have proposed amendments here have been waiting all afternoon to be heard, and if the committee adopted the procedure of seeking to close debate on 20 minutes' notice, with 10 amendments pending, it would seem as a matter of courtesy that the committee should restrain itself to one member of the committee who might have been on his feet, but to recognize one gentleman a succession of times seems entirely out of keeping with the spirit of closing debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chairman, in the list of names, also read the name of the committee. If the Chair was so inclined, the Chair could recognize two Members for 5 minutes each on amendments, on each side, and that would preclude the others from having any voice in the amendments that are pending, or in the debate.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: That, of course, is true, the Chair could do that. But, ordinarily, under the precedents always followed in the House, when time is closed on amendments, the time is divided among those who are seeking to offer amendments, and unless the motion specifically reserves time to the committee, it has been the precedent to divide the time among those who are seeking to offer amendments.

17. 96 CONG. REC. 1691, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair feels that the committee is entitled to a rebuttal on any amendment that is offered, and has so announced, and there was no point of order made at the time. The Chair sustains its present position.

Debate Provisions of Trade Act

§ 13.54 Debate on an implementing revenue bill must be equally divided and controlled among those favoring and those opposing the bill under section 151(f)(2) of the Trade Act of 1974, and unanimous consent is required to divide the time between the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee if both favor the bill; in the absence of such a unanimous-consent agreement, a Member opposed to the bill is entitled to control 10 hours of debate in opposition, with priority of recognition to opposing members of the Committee on Ways and Means; and the Member recognized to control the time in opposition may not be compelled to use less than that amount of time unless the Committee rises and the House limits further debate in the Committee of the Whole.

During consideration of the Trade Agreement Act of 1979 (H.R. 4537) in the House on July 10, 1979,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [AL] ULLMAN [of Oregon]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to Section 151(f) of Public Law 93-618, the Trade Act of 1974, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 4537) to approve and implement the trade agreements negotiated under the Trade Act of 1974, and for other purposes, and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate on the bill be equally divided and controlled between the gentleman from New York (Mr. Conable) and myself. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman)?

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object. . . .

I take this reservation for the purpose of propounding a parliamentary inquiry to the Chair.

The rule, section 151, before consideration says:

Debate in the House of Representatives on an implementing bill or approval resolution shall be limited to not more than 20 hours which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the bill or resolution. . . .

My query to the Chair as a part of my reservation is, if the unanimous-consent request of the chairman is granted can the chairman then move to terminate debate at any time during the course of debate before the 20 hours have expired?

THE SPEAKER: Reading the statute a motion further to limit the debate shall not be debatable, and that would be made in the House, either now or later, and not in the Committee of the Whole.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, if the gentleman from Ohio were to be recognized as opposing the bill, does the gentleman have the absolute right to the 10 hours regardless of the time that would be taken on the other side?

THE SPEAKER: Unless all general debate were further limited by the House a member of the Committee on Ways and Means who is opposed to the bill could seek to control the 10 hours of time. The gentleman would be entitled to the 10 hours unless a request came from a member of the Committee on Ways and Means who would be in opposition. . . .

MR. ASHBROOK: I thank the Speaker. I ask this for a very specific purpose. Further reserving the right to object, it is my understanding then that the gentleman from Oregon could not foreclose debate as long as whoever controls the opposition time still has part of the 10 hours remaining. Is that correct, under the statute providing for consideration of this trade bill? . . .

THE SPEAKER: Not unless the committee rose and the House limited all debate.

A motion to limit general debate would not be entertained in the Committee of the Whole and the Chair cannot foresee something of that nature happening.

Generally

- § 14.1 Where more than one Member seeks recognition under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, the Speaker recognizes the Member in charge of the bill or resolution if he seeks recognition.

On Sept. 11, 1945,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Robert F. Rich, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, arose at the same time seeking recognition on a resolution called up by Mr. Sabath and being considered (by special order) in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. Sabath, since he had priority of recognition as the Member in charge, and then answered parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition:

MR. RICH: After the reading of section 4 of the bill which contained subsections (a), (b), and (c), could not a Member have risen to strike out the last word and have been recognized?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman did not state for what purpose he rose. The gentleman from Illinois who is in charge of the resolution was on his feet at the same time. The Chair recognized the gentleman from Illinois, and the gentleman from Illinois made a preferential motion.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOFFMAN: Must a Member on the floor addressing the Speaker state the purpose for which he addresses the Speaker before he may be recognized?

THE SPEAKER: Two Members rose. The Speaker always has the right to recognize whichever Member he desires. The Chair recognized the gentleman from Illinois who was in charge of the resolution. The gentleman from Illinois made a preferential motion; the Chair put the motion and it was adopted.

§ 14.2 Where the Member handling a bill on the floor and a minority Member both seek recognition, the Chair gives preference to the former.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 2388, economic opportunity amendments, reported by the Committee on Education and Labor, and under the management of its Chairman, Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky. Mr. Edward J. Gurney, of Florida, sought recognition from the Chair to offer an amendment, but Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, recognized Mr. Perkins to submit a unanimous-consent request (to close debate at a certain hour). Mr. Gurney's point of order against recognition of Mr. Perkins was overruled.

§ 14.3 The member of the committee in charge of a bill is entitled to prior recognition over other Members of the Committee of the Whole.

20. 91 CONG. REC. 8510, 79th Cong. 1st Sess.

1. 113 CONG. REC. 32655, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

On July 8, 1937,⁽²⁾ Chairman Marvin Jones, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the order of recognition on the pending bill and indicated that the legislative committee member in charge of the bill would be entitled to recognition over other Members of the Committee of the Whole.

Recognition Under Five-minute Rule

§ 14.4 In bestowing recognition under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair gives preference to the chairman of the legislative committee reporting the bill under consideration.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule a bill reported from the Committee on Education and Labor, chaired by Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky. Mr. Edward J. Gurney, of Florida, sought recognition and started to offer an amendment. The Chairman then recognized Mr. Perkins, the chairman of the committee and manager of the bill, to submit a unanimous-consent request on closing debate, and then subsequently recognized Mr. Gurney to offer his amendment.

3. 113 CONG. REC. 32655, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 14.5 Under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, the Member handling a bill has preference in recognition for debate but the power of recognition remains with the Chair and the Member cannot “yield” himself time for debate.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Adam C. Powell, of New York, was the Member in charge of debate on H.R. 2362, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, which was being considered for amendment under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Powell arose and stated “I yield myself 5 minutes.” Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated as follows:

The gentleman cannot yield himself 5 minutes. The Chair assumes he moves to strike out the last word.

Mr. Melvin R. Laird, of Wisconsin, objected that Mr. Powell had not moved to strike out the last word, and then made such motion himself. However, the

4. 111 CONG. REC. 6113, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

Chairman recognized Mr. Powell for that motion, since he was the manager of the bill and chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor.

§ 14.6 In recognizing Members to offer amendments, the Chair gives preference to the chairman of the committee reporting the bill.

On July 12, 1962,⁽⁵⁾ Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Michael A. Feighan, of Ohio, that he would be recognized at the proper time to offer a substitute to a pending amendment. The Chairman then extended prior recognition to Mr. Thomas E. Morgan, of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, which had reported the pending bill, to offer an amendment.

§ 14.7 Recognition to offer amendments is first extended to the manager of a bill, and the fact that the Committee of the Whole has just completed consideration of one amendment offered by the manager does not preclude his being recognized to offer another.

5. 108 CONG. REC. 13391, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Apr. 6, 1967,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Robert W. Kastenmeier, of Wisconsin, was the Member in charge of H.R. 2512, being considered for amendment in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Kastenmeier had offered an amendment, which was adopted by the Committee. He then immediately offered another amendment. Mr. Byron G. Rogers, of Colorado, made a point of order against recognition for that purpose, and Chairman John H. Dent, of Pennsylvania, overruled the point of order:

MR. ROGERS of Colorado: The gentleman from Wisconsin just offered an amendment, and certainly I as a member of the committee ought to have the privilege of offering an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Wisconsin is manager of the bill. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin.

—After Limitation on Debate

§ 14.8 The Committee of the Whole having agreed to limit debate under the five-minute rule on an amendment and all amendments thereto, the Member in charge of the bill may be recognized to speak under the limitation although he has already spoken on the amendment.

6. 113 CONG. REC. 8617, 8618, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

On June 25, 1952,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of amendments to a bill in the Committee of the Whole, a motion was adopted to close debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto at a certain time. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, answered a parliamentary inquiry as to the right to recognition, under the limitation, of the Member in charge of the bill:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: Under this limitation is the chairman of the committee, who has already spoken once on this amendment, entitled to be heard again under the rule?

THE CHAIRMAN: The chairman of the committee could rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment and be recognized again.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Under the limitation?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes; under the limitation.

Parliamentarian's Note: A limitation on debate abrogates the five-minute rule, and the Chair may allocate the remaining time among those Members desiring recognition, including Members who have already spoken. If sufficient time remains under the limitation to allow the five-minute rule to continue to operate, a Member who has spoken on an amendment may again be recognized to speak in opposition to an amendment thereto (including a pro forma amendment).

7. 98 CONG. REC. 8028, 82d Cong. 2d Sess.

Manager Designated by Committee

§ 14.9 Where the Committee on Rules designates a member to call up a report from the committee, only that member may be recognized for that purpose, unless the resolution has been on the calendar for seven legislative days without action.

On June 6, 1940,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, sought recognition to call up for consideration a special resolution from the Committee on Rules providing for the consideration of a bill. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, inquired whether Mr. Fish had been authorized to call up the resolution and Mr. Fish stated he had not. He asserted that calling up such a resolution was "the privilege of any member of the Rules Committee."

The Speaker, in declining to recognize Mr. Fish for that purpose, stated:

The Chair cannot recognize the gentleman from New York to call up the resolution unless the Record shows he was authorized to do so by the Rules Committee. The Chair would be authorized to recognize the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. Colmer] to call up the rule in the event the resolution offered by the gentleman from New York, which was the unfinished business, is not called up.

8. 86 CONG. REC. 7706, 76th Cong. 3d Sess.

MR. FISH: Will the Chair permit me to read this rule?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would be glad to hear the gentleman.

MR. FISH: Rule XI reads as follows:

It shall always be in order to call up for consideration a report from the Committee on Rules (except it shall not be called up for consideration on the same day it is presented to the House, unless so determined by a vote of not less than two-thirds of the Members voting).

I submit, according to that rule and the reading of that rule, Mr. Speaker, that any member of the Rules Committee can call up the rule, but it would require the membership of the House to act upon it by a two-thirds vote in order to obtain consideration.

THE SPEAKER: The precedents are all to the effect that only a Member authorized by the Rules Committee can call up a rule, unless the rule has been on the calendar for 7 legislative days without action.

MR. FISH: Of course, there is nothing to that effect in the reading of the rule.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is relying upon the precedents in such instances.

—Calendar Wednesday Bill

§ 14.10 Where a committee designates a member thereof to call up a bill on Calendar Wednesday, no other Member may take such action.

On Feb. 24, 1937,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore William J. Driver, of Arkansas, answered a parliamentary inquiry preceding the call of committees on Calendar Wednesday:

MR. [EARL C.] MICHENER [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHENER: Mr. Speaker, where a bill has been reported favorably by a committee, and the chairman of the committee is authorized to call the bill up on Calendar Wednesday, when the chairman absents himself from the floor, and when other members of the committee are present, is it proper for one of the other members to call up the bill?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state to the gentleman that under the rules only the chairman or the member designated by the committee is authorized to call up a bill.

Privileged Resolution

§ 14.11 Debate on a privileged resolution is under the hour rule and the Member in charge of the resolution has control of the time.

On Feb. 27, 1963,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Samuel N. Friedel, of Maryland, called

9. 81 CONG. REC. 1562, 1563, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. 109 CONG. REC. 3051, 3052, 88th Cong. 1st Sess.

up, by direction of the Committee on House Administration, House Resolution 164, a privileged resolution providing funds for the Committee on Armed Services. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry as to control of the time for debate:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: As I understand it, the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Friedel] has said that he would yield time to Members on the minority side, and that is what we want. If there is another minority Member who wants to be recognized at this time, it would be in order under the rules for that Member to be granted time in order that he might make such statement as he might want to make.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that under the rules of the House and pursuant to custom that has existed from time immemorial, on a resolution of this kind the Member in charge of the resolution has control of the time and he, in turn, yields time. The gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Friedel] in charge of the resolution has yielded 10 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio. If the gentleman from Ohio desires to yield to some other Member, he may do so but he may not yield a specific amount of time.

Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, the Majority Leader, then made the following statement on distribution of time to the minority:

MR. ALBERT: . . . Of course, the principle is well established under the rules of the House and has been observed by both parties from time immemorial, that the Member recognized to call up the resolution has control of the time under the 1-hour rule. But, I would like to advise the gentleman, as the gentleman from Maryland has, I am sure the gentleman from Maryland will yield at least half of the time to the minority.

On Feb. 25, 1954,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, answered parliamentary inquiries on the control of debate on a privileged resolution called up by the Member in charge—the chairman of the Committee on House Administration:

MR. [KARL M.] LECOMPTE [of Iowa]: Under the rules the Chairman has control of the time.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman has 1 hour to yield to whomsoever he desires.

MR. LECOMPTE: And he has control of the matter of offering amendments.

THE SPEAKER: A committee amendment is now pending. No other amendment can be offered unless the gentleman yields the floor for that purpose.

MR. LECOMPTE: A motion to recommit, of course, belongs to some member of the minority opposed to the resolution. Would any motion except a motion to recommit be in order except by the gentleman in charge of the bill?

THE SPEAKER: Not unless the gentleman yields for that purpose.

11. 100 CONG. REC. 2282, 83d Cong. 2d Sess.

The gentleman from Iowa is recognized for 1 hour.

Absence or Death of Manager

§ 14.12 Where the chairman and ranking minority member, named in a resolution to control debate on a bill, are absent and have not designated Members to control the time, the Speaker or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole recognizes the next ranking majority and minority members for control of such debate.

On July 23, 1942,⁽¹²⁾ the House adopted a resolution from the Committee on Rules providing for debate on a bill to be divided between the chairman and the ranking minority member of the reporting committee. The chairman and ranking minority member both being absent, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, declared, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that the Chair would recognize the next ranking majority member and the next ranking minority member to control debate:

MR. [JOHN E.] RANKIN of Mississippi: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RANKIN: . . . We feel that the time ought to be divided not between the Members who are for the bill but know nothing about it any more than the rest of us, but between the members of the committee who are for the bill and the members of the committee who are opposed to the bill. I would like to have the Chair's ruling on that proposition.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair thinks the Chair has a rather wide range of latitude here. The Chair could hold and some future Speaker might hold that since the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee are not here there could be no general debate because there was nobody here to control it, but the present occupant of the chair is not going to rule in such a restricted way.

The Chair is going to recognize the next ranking majority member and the next ranking minority member when the House goes into the Committee of the Whole.

§ 14.13 Where a Member designated in a resolution to call up a bill dies, the Speaker may recognize another Member in favor of the bill.

On Oct. 12, 1942,⁽¹³⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, overruled a point of order against consideration of a resolution discharged from the Committee on Rules, where the resolution named as manager a Member no longer living:

THE SPEAKER: If no Member wishes to be heard on the point of order the Chair is ready to rule.

12. 88 CONG. REC. 6542-46, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

13. 88 CONG. REC. 8080, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

A matter not exactly on all fours with this, but similar to it, was ruled on a few weeks ago. On that occasion both the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee were absent. A point of order was made against consideration of the bill because of that fact.

In ruling on the point of order at that time the Chair made the following statement:

The Chair thinks the Chair has rather a wide range of latitude here. The Chair could hold, and some future Speaker might hold, that since the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee are not here there could be no general debate because there was nobody here to control it; but the present occupant of the Chair is not going to rule in such a restricted way.

The Chair is going to recognize the next ranking majority member and the next ranking minority member when the House goes into the Committee of the Whole.

We have here even a stronger case than that. The absence of a living Member may be his or her fault; the absence of a dead signer of this petition is not his fault.

There is a rule followed by the chancery courts which might well be followed here. It is that equity never allows a trust to fail for want of a trustee. Applying that rule to the instant case, the Chair holds that the consideration of this legislation will not be permitted to fail for want of a manager. After all, an act of God ought not, in all good conscience, deprive this House of the right to consider legislation; especially so, since this House has by its vote on the motion to discharge expressed its intent. . . .

The Chair overrules the point of order made by the gentleman from Alabama.⁽¹⁴⁾

Unanimous-consent Consideration of Bill

§ 14.14 Where the House has agreed to consider a bill called up by unanimous consent, the Member calling up the bill is recognized for one hour, and amendments may not be offered by other Members unless the Member in charge yields for that purpose.

On Oct. 5, 1962,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, asked for the unanimous-consent consideration of a bill in the House. Mr. Arch A. Moore, Jr., of West Virginia, a minority Member, sought recognition to offer an amendment. Since Mr. Walter was recognized to control time (one hour) on the bill, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, asked Mr. Walter whether he was willing to accept the amendment, and Mr. Walter answered in the affirmative.

Parliamentarian's Note: Ordinarily a Member in charge of a bill considered in the House loses the floor if he yields for an amendment. In this instance, the amendment was non-controversial and the Speaker put the question on the amendment and on the bill.

—Private Bill

§ 14.15 When a private bill is called up by unanimous consent for consideration in the House, the Member making the request is recognized for one hour.

On Mar. 12, 1963,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of private bill H.R. 4374, to proclaim Sir Winston Churchill an honorary citizen of the United States, in the House. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered parliamentary inquiries on the control and time for debate:

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, under what circumstances will this resolution be considered? Will there be any time for discussion of the resolution, if unanimous consent is given?

THE SPEAKER: In response to the parliamentary inquiry of the gentleman from Iowa, if consent is granted for the present consideration of the bill, the gentleman from New York [Mr. Celler] will be recognized for 1 hour and the gentleman from New York may yield to such Members as he desires to yield to before moving the previous question.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, is some time to be allocated to this side of the aisle?

MR. CELLER: I intend to allocate half of the time to the other side.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: Normally a Private Calendar bill called up by unanimous consent is considered under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, unless the request specifies consideration "in the House" (discharging the Committee of the Whole).

Recognition for Motion or Request To Limit Debate

§ 14.16 During five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole, the Member managing the bill is entitled to prior recognition to move to close debate on a pending amendment over other Members who desire to debate the amendment or to offer amendments thereto.

16. 109 CONG. REC. 3993, 88th Cong. 1st Sess. The Journal indicates that Mr. Eller asked for consideration in the House, although the Record does not. H. Jour. 279, 88th Cong. 1st Sess.

On Nov. 25, 1970,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting five-minute debate on H.R. 19504, which was being handled by Mr. John C. Kluczynski, of Illinois. Mr. Kluczynski was recognized by Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, to move to close all debate on the pending amendment immediately. The motion was adopted. Mr. Jonathan B. Bingham, of New York, then attempted to offer another amendment, and Mr. Andrew Jacobs, Jr., of Indiana, attempted to debate the amendment on which debate had been closed. The Chairman stated:

The Chair has not recognized the gentleman from New York or the gentleman from Indiana. The Chair had recognized the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Kluczynski). The gentleman from Indiana misunderstood the Chair had recognized him. The Chair had to recognize the gentleman from Illinois as chairman of the subcommittee.

§ 14.17 While it is customary for the Chair to recognize the manager of the pending bill to offer motions to limit debate, any Member may, pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, move to limit debate at the appropriate time in Committee of the Whole.

17. 116 CONG. REC. 38990, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on July 31, 1975:⁽¹⁸⁾

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁹⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. HAYS of Ohio: Would it be in order for a person not a member of the committee to move to close debate on whatever pending amendment there might be, and all amendments thereto, to this bill when we go into the Committee of the Whole?

THE SPEAKER: It is the practice and custom of the House that the Chair looks to the manager of the bill for motions relating to the management of the bill.

MR. HAYS of Ohio: If I made the motion—and I will make it more specific—would it be out of order or in violation of the rules?

THE SPEAKER: A proper motion could be entertained at the proper time.

MR. HAYS of Ohio: I am prepared to make such a motion and I will seek the proper time.

§ 14.18 Although any Member may move, or request unanimous consent, to limit debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, the manager of the bill has the prior right to recognition for such purpose.

18. 121 CONG. REC. 26223, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

19. Carl Albert (Okla.).

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 19, 1984,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of the Immigration Reform and Control Act (H.R. 1510):

MR. [DANIEL E.] LUNGREN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment end at 7:15.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. [THEODORE S.] WEISS [of New York]: Objection, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Chairman, I move—

MR. [ROMANO L.] MAZZOLI [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I should be recognized as the floor manager.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Mazzoli).

MR. MAZZOLI: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MAZZOLI: Mr. Chairman, I believe under the rule, the gentleman from Kentucky, the floor manager, is entitled to be heard and to be recognized on matters limiting debate.

Let me just respectfully suggest to my friend, the gentleman from California, the House has made it clear we are not going to protract the debate tonight. . . .

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Chairman, if I might reclaim my time, I indulged the gentleman from Texas and asked him to withdraw his motion on the pretext that I would make a motion, as I have the ability to do under the rule, that debate on this amendment shall end in a half hour. Since I had the gentleman agree to withdraw it, I feel bound that I will then continue with this motion, and I so move.

MR. MAZZOLI: Mr. Chairman, can the gentleman say 45 minutes? I understand 45 minutes will be enough.

THE CHAIRMAN: If the gentleman from Kentucky has no motion, the gentleman from California is entitled to make his motion. Does the gentleman offer a motion?

MR. LUNGREN: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I move that debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright) be concluded at 7:30.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Lungren).

The motion was agreed to.

§ 14.19 A Member is not entitled to five minutes of debate on a pro forma amendment in Committee of the Whole until the Chair has recognized him for that purpose; and the subcommittee chairman who is managing the bill is entitled to prior recognition to move to limit debate over a Member seeking recognition to offer a pro forma amendment.

cies appropriation bill for fiscal year 1978 (H.R. 7797) in the Committee of the Whole on June 22, 1977,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JONATHAN B.] BINGHAM [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet seeking recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Maryland rise?

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask unanimous consent for a limitation on the debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: Will the gentleman make his request.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto cease in 10 minutes.

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto cease in 10 minutes.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Chairman, my understanding is that the Chairman recognized the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bingham) and he was half-way down the aisle.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair saw both gentlemen at the same time, and he did recognize the gentleman from Maryland because the Chair had to, by custom and rule, I believe, recognize the chairman of the subcommittee. . . .

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long).

The motion was agreed to.

Recognition for Motion That Committee Rise

§ 14.20 The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise is always within the discretion of the Member handling the bill before the Committee.

On June 16, 1948,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. George W. Andrews, of Alabama, was managing the consideration in the Committee of the Whole of a bill being read for amendment under the five-minute rule, and moved that the Committee rise, several Members desiring recognition being absent. Mr. George A. Smathers, of Florida, interjected that he would like to be heard on the motion. Chairman Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, ruled:

That is not a debatable motion. It is always within the discretion of the gentleman handling the bill to move that the Committee rise.

Parliamentarian's Note: Any Member may be recognized under the five-minute rule to offer the preferential motion that the Committee rise. Under general debate, only a Member controlling time for general debate may make the motion.

—Minority Member in Control Where Chairman Opposed to Concurrent Resolution

§ 14.21 On one occasion, the ranking minority member of a subcommittee who had introduced and controlled general debate in favor of a concurrent resolution being considered in Committee of the Whole, moved that the Committee rise and report the resolution to the House favorably, where the chairman who had reported the resolution had offered the motion for its consideration but had controlled time in opposition.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on May 24, 1983,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of House Concurrent

5. 129 CONG. REC. 13594, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

Resolution 113 (approving MX missile funds):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ All time has expired.

The Clerk will report the concurrent resolution.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 113

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States approve the obligation and expenditure of funds appropriated in Public Law 97-377 for MX missile procurement. . . .

MR. [JACK] EDWARDS of Alabama [ranking minority member of the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations]: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the concurrent resolution back to the House with the recommendation that the concurrent resolution be agreed to.

The motion was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: Although Mr. Joseph P. Addabbo, of New York, chairman of the Subcommittee on Defense, arguably had the responsibility under Rule XI, clause 2(l)(1)(a) to take all necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote, he did not want to move that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the concurrent resolution favorably, since he opposed that motion.

Recognition in Opposition to Motion Recommending That Enacting Clause Be Stricken

§ 14.22 The Chair normally recognizes the manager of a bill for five minutes if he rises in opposition to a preferential motion that the enacting clause be stricken, and no preference in recognition is granted to the minority.

An illustration of the proposition described above occurred on Apr. 23, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Vietnam Humanitarian Assistance Act (H.R. 6096):

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. O'Neill moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill) in support of his preferential motion. . . .

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill).

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, my parliamentary inquiry is this: Does the grant of time by the Chairman to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Morgan) preclude anyone on the minority side from rising in opposition to the preferential motion and being heard?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say that that is correct.

MR. DU PONT: Under the rules, is not time designated to the minority side?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that is not a prerogative of the minority on a preferential motion of this sort.

§ 14.23 The chairman of a committee managing a bill is entitled to recognition for debate in opposition to a motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, over the minority manager of the bill.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 28, 1983,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze):

April 21, 1983, pending was the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute which is considered as an original resolution for the purpose of amendment. All time for debate on the text of the resolution had expired.

Are there further amendments?

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR.
AU COIN

MR. [LES] AU COIN [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. AuCoin moves that the committee do now rise and report the resolution back to the House with the recommendation that the resolving clause be stricken out.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Oregon (Mr. AuCoin) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion.

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin] [Chairman of Committee on Foreign Affairs]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion and ask for a vote.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) is recognized for 5 minutes in opposition to the preferential motion.

Where Committee Discharged From Consideration of Privileged Resolution

§ 14.24 If a motion to discharge a committee from the further consideration of a privileged resolution is agreed to, the resolution is debatable under the hour rule, and the proponent of the resolution is entitled to prior recognition.

The principle described above was illustrated on Sept. 29, 1975,⁽¹¹⁾ during proceedings in the House relating to House Resolution 718 (a resolution of inquiry, directing the Secretary of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to furnish documents relating to public school systems to the House):

MR. [JAMES M.] COLLINS of Texas: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged motion to discharge the Committee on Education and Labor from consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 718).

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read the motion as follows:

Mr. Collins of Texas moves to discharge the Committee on Education and Labor from consideration of House Resolution 718.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 718

Resolved, That the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, to the extent not incompatible with the public interest, is directed to furnish to the House of Representatives, not later than sixty days following the adoption of this resolution, any documents containing a list of the public school systems in the United States which, during the period beginning on August 1, 1975, and ending on June 30, 1976, will be receiving Federal funds and will be engaging in the busing of schoolchildren to achieve racial balance, and any documents respecting the rules and regulations of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare with respect to the use of any Federal funds administered by the Department for the busing of schoolchildren to achieve racial balance.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the privileged motion to discharge.

The motion was agreed to.

MR. COLLINS of Texas: Mr. Speaker, basically, what I am concerned with here is full documentation from the Secretary of HEW.

I filed this in the Congressional Record and have met the necessary requirements for a resolution of inquiry. . . .

The other body at this time is discussing the appropriation bill on HEW and has raised the subject over and over again regarding transportation of students to achieve racial balance and how that is affecting the budget. Therefore, it is absolutely essential to us, in our deliberations here in this House, that we have a concise, clear, complete, and factual statement from the Secretary of HEW as defined in my House Resolution 718.

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

Moving the Previous Question

§ 14.25 A Member calling up a privileged resolution in the House may move the previous question at any time, except to take another Member from his feet, notwithstanding his prior allocation of debate time to another Member.

On Mar. 9, 1977,⁽¹³⁾ it was demonstrated that the Member recognized to control debate in the House may, by moving the previous question, terminate utilization of debate time he has previously yielded:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁴⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Anderson), for the minority, pending which I yield myself 5 minutes. . . .

Mr. Speaker, the other amendment that the gentleman offers proposes to give the House the opportunity to vote up or down in a certain period of time regulations proposed by the select committee. What that does, and it really demonstrates an almost total lack of understanding of the rules, is to upgrade regulations into rules. The Members of the House will have the opportunity to deal with all laws and rules. That is provided in the resolution. . . .

13. 123 CONG. REC. 6816, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

14. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution. . . .

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois: I have time remaining. Do I not have a right to respond to the gentleman from Missouri?

THE SPEAKER: Not if the previous question has been moved, and it has been moved.

MR. ANDERSON of Illinois: Even though the gentleman mentioned my name and made numerous references to me for the last 10 minutes?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is aware of that.

The question is on ordering the previous question.

§ 15. — Of Opposition After Rejection of Essential Motion

Right of recognition to offer a motion to recommit pending final passage, which is the prerogative of the minority if opposed, should be distinguished from the right of recognition for a motion to refer under Rule XXIII clause 7 pending a vote in the House on a motion to strike out the enacting clause. In the latter case, a Member seeking recognition need not be opposed to the bill, since the motion to refer in this case is a measure designed to avert final adverse disposition of the bill. As stated by Speaker Frederick H.

Gillett, of Massachusetts, on May 19, 1924,⁽¹⁵⁾ “apparently the provision for a motion to refer was inserted so that the friends of the original bill might avert its permanent death by referring it again to the committee, where it could again be considered in the light of the action of the House.” By the same reasoning, Speaker Gillett pointed out, rejection of the motion to refer should not give the right of recognition to sponsors of the bill, but to one supporting the motion to strike the enacting clause.

The right to recognition upon rejection of the previous question is not necessarily a prerogative of the minority.

Motion To Postpone Consideration to Day Certain Not “Essential” Motion

§ 15.2 A motion to postpone consideration to a day certain (of a vetoed bill) is not an essential motion whose defeat requires recognition to pass to a Member opposed.

On June 2, 1930,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House was considering the passage of a vetoed bill. A motion to postpone consideration of the bill had been made by the chairman of the committee managing the bill and had been rejected. Mr. John N. Garner, of Texas, raised a parliamentary inquiry whether that motion was an essential motion whose defeat required recognition to pass to the minority. Speaker Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, discussed the principle raised and ruled that the motion to postpone consideration was not an essential motion within the meaning of the rule.

MR. GARNER: Mr. Speaker, the only issue involved was the question of whether the consideration of the President's veto should be postponed until Thursday. Does the Chair agree with the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon] that a motion for the previous question being defeated, transfers the right of recognition?

THE SPEAKER: It does; but that is not the question.

MR. GARNER: Then may I follow that up with this statement? That was the motion of the gentleman from South Carolina. If he is recognized now, he will move the previous question on the matter of consideration.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not know what the gentleman from South Carolina would do.

MR. GARNER: He did not have the opportunity to do that, but the Chair recognized the gentleman from Minnesota. He moved to postpone until next Thursday, and moved the previous question. The previous question was ordered. The House overwhelmingly declined to let the matter go over until Thursday, indicating that it wants to vote on the matter immediately. And now the Chair proposes to continue the recognition of the gentleman from Minnesota?

THE SPEAKER: Precisely. The House has indicated its desire to vote immediately, but the gentleman from Minnesota is the chairman of the Committee on Pensions, and it seems to the Chair that he is entitled as chairman of the committee to discuss the matter on the merits. We have had no vote that has gone to the merits of the bill at all.

MR. GARNER: I understand that, but that is not the question involved in recognizing the gentleman from Minnesota. The question is, under the practice and rules of the House, Does this vote automatically transfer to the opposition the right of recognition?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not think so in this case.

Mr. Garner attempted to appeal the Speaker's ruling on recognition but the Speaker ruled that an appeal did not lie to a decision on recognition.

Motion To Table Resolution of Inquiry

§ 15.3 Where a motion to lay a resolution on the table is made by the Member in charge of the resolution, and that motion is defeated, the right to prior recognition passes to the Member leading the opposition to the motion.

On Feb. 20, 1952,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. James P. Richards, of South Carolina, called up, by direction of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, a resolution of inquiry (H. Res. 514) directed to the Secretary of State. Mr. Richards had sent to the Clerk's desk an adverse report of the committee, recommending that the resolution not pass. Mr. Richards immediately moved the privileged and nondebatable motion to lay the resolution on the table. The motion was defeated.

Mr. John M. Vorys, of Ohio, the Member leading the opposition to the motion, was then recognized by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, who explained the parliamentary situation:

The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Vorys] is in charge of the time, the gentleman being with the majority in this instance, and on that side of the issue which received the most votes.

Mr. Vorys controlled debate on the resolution, which was agreed to by the House.

Parliamentarian's Note: If the manager's motion to table is defeated and no other Member seeks recognition, the manager may retain control over the remaining time for debate.⁽¹⁹⁾

§ 15.4 The Member calling up for consideration a privileged resolution of inquiry reported adversely from committee is recognized for one hour and may move to lay the resolution on the table at any time; and where the Member calling up the resolution uses part of his hour of debate and then offers a motion to table the resolution which is defeated, the Chair will normally recognize another Member for an hour of debate but may recognize the Member who called up the resolution to control the remainder of his hour of debate, if no other Member seeks recognition.

On June 15, 1979,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 291 (a resolution of inquiry directing the President to provide Members of the House with certain information) the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the resolution (H. Res. 291), a resolution of inquiry directing the President to provide Members of the House with information on the energy situation, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

20. 125 CONG. REC. 15027, 15029, 15030, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

H. RES. 291

Resolved, That the President, to the extent possible, is directed to furnish to the House of Representatives, not later than fifteen days following the adoption of this resolution, full and complete information on the following:

(1) the existence and percentage of shortages of crude oil and refined petroleum products within the United States and administrative regions; . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) is recognized for 1 hour.

Subsequently in the proceedings, Mr. Dingell made a motion to table the resolution:

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Speaker, at this time I move to table the resolution of inquiry now before the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion to table offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell). . . .

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 4, nays 338, not voting 92, as follows: . . .

So the motion to table was rejected. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell).

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Speaker, may I inquire as to how much time remains?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state to the gentleman that he has 48 minutes remaining.

1. John Brademas (Ind.).

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Speaker, I will, then, at this time yield 24 minutes to my distinguished friend, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine), for purposes of debate only.

Motion To Dispose of Senate Amendment

§ 15.5 Where a motion is made by the Member in charge of a bill to recede and concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment and the motion is defeated, recognition for a motion to further insist on disagreement passes to a Member opposed.

On June 26, 1942,⁽²⁾ Mr. Malcolm C. Tarver, of Georgia, the Member in charge of a general appropriations bill reported from conference with amendments in disagreement, moved that the House recede and concur with an amendment to one of the Senate amendments in disagreement. The motion was rejected.

Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, a Member opposed to the motion, then arose to make the motion to further insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment; at the same time, Mr. Tarver arose to make the same motion. After the question of recognition was discussed, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. Cannon to make the motion:

MR. TARVER: Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a parliamentary inquiry. It was my purpose to offer a motion as I have done in connection with the same subject matter on previous occasions. I had risen for the purpose of offering a motion to further insist upon the disagreement of the House to Senate amendments Nos. 90 and 91. I wish to inquire whether or not I am privileged, as chairman of the House conferees, to offer that motion?

MR. CANNON of Missouri: Mr. Speaker, my motion is to further insist.

MR. TARVER: Mr. Speaker, I was on my feet before the gentleman from Missouri rushed over between me and the microphone and offered his motion.

MR. CANNON of Missouri: Mr. Speaker, it is a long-established rule of procedure that when a vital motion made by the Member in charge of a bill is defeated, the right to prior recognition passes to the opposition. That is the position in which the gentleman finds himself. He has made a major motion. The motion has been defeated. Therefore the right of recognition passes to the opposition, and I ask to be recognized to move to further insist.

MR. TARVER: Mr. Speaker, may I be heard with regard to that statement?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will hear the gentleman.

MR. TARVER: The question has never been raised so far as I have known in the course of my experience of some 16 years upon an appropriation bill conference report, but if as the gentleman states the right of making the motion passes to the opposition, it should pass to my Republican colleague the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Lambertson] with whom the gentleman from Missouri has been associated in the defeat of the motion offered by the chairman of the subcommittee. I have desired to offer the motion myself in the absence of the exercise of that privilege by the gentleman from Kansas.

2. 88 CONG. REC. 5642, 5643, 77th Cong. 2d Sess. Generally, see Ch. 33, infra.

MR. [WILLIAM P.] LAMBERTSON: Mr. Speaker, I ask for recognition.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Georgia has the floor.

MR. TARVER: I have completed all I desire to say except that I desire to offer the motion if it is permissible; otherwise, I insist that the right should pass to the opposition and to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Lambertson].

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is of the opinion that the gentleman from Missouri has been properly recognized to offer a motion. The gentleman will state his motion.

MR. CANNON of Missouri: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

§ 15.6 Where a vital motion made by the Member in charge of a bill is defeated, the right to prior recognition passes to a Member opposed; thus, where a motion made by the Member in charge of a bill to recede and concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment had been defeated, recognition for a motion to recede and concur with another amendment passed to a Member opposed to the defeated motion.

During consideration of H.J. Res. 1131, a further continuing appropriation for fiscal year 1975, in the House on Oct. 7, 1974,⁽³⁾ the proceedings described above were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ The Clerk will report the first amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 3: On page 2, line 9, strike out: "to the Government of Turkey until the President certifies to the Congress that substantial progress toward agreement has been made regarding military forces in Cyprus" and insert "or for the transportation of any military equipment or supplies to any country which uses such defense articles or services in violation of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 or the Foreign Military Sales Act, or any agreement entered into under such Acts."

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mahon moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 3 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert: "or for the transportation of any military equipment or supplies to the Government of Turkey unless and until the President determines and certifies to the Congress that the Government of Turkey is in compliance with the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the Foreign Military Sales Act, or any agreement entered into under such Acts by making good faith efforts to reach a negotiated settlement with respect to Cyprus.”

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Cederberg) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon).

MR. MAHON: Mr. Speaker, I should just like to say a word and then I will yield to my colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rosenthal). . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question pending is on the motion of the gentleman from Texas. Those in favor of it will vote “yea.”

MR. [BENJAMIN S.] ROSENTHAL [of New York]: Is this vote on the previous question?

THE SPEAKER: The vote is on the motion.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 69, nays 291, not voting 74. . . .

So the motion was rejected. . . .

MR. ROSENTHAL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Rosenthal moves that the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment numbered 3 and concur therein with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by Senate amendment numbered 3, insert the following: “or for the transportation of any military equipment or supplies to Turkey until and unless the President certifies to the Congress that the Government of Turkey is in compliance with the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the Foreign Military Sales Act, and any agreement entered into under such Acts, and that substantial progress toward agreement has been made regarding military force in Cyprus.”

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from New York is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. ROSENTHAL: Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Delaware (Mr. du Pont), pending which I yield myself 5 minutes. . . .

MR. ROSENTHAL: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rosenthal).

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it. . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: Pursuant to Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b), time for debate on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported from conference in disagreement is equally divided between majority and minority parties. When the Mahon motion was defeated and Mr. Rosenthal was recognized for one hour, he yielded one-half of his time to a minority party Member pursuant to that rule.

§ 15.7 Where a motion to dispose of an amendment reported from conference in disagreement, offered by the manager of the conference report, is rejected, the Speaker recognizes a Member leading the opposition to offer another motion to dispose of the amendment.

During consideration of the conference report on H.R. 7554 (Housing and Urban Development and independent agencies appropriations for fiscal year 1978) in the House on July 19, 1977,⁽⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 24: Page 17, line 11, strike out "$2,943,600,000" and insert "$3,013,000,000".

MR. [EDWARD P.] BOLAND [of Massachusetts] [manager of the conference report]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Boland moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 24 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$2,995,300,000".

5. 123 CONG. REC. 23668, 23669, 23678, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

6. Norman Y. Mineta (Calif.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) is recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Coughlin) is recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland).

MR. BOLAND: Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. . . .

MR. [DON] FUQUA [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to amendment No. 24. . . .

[After debate, the motion was rejected.]

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Florida (Mr. Fuqua) is recognized for 60 minutes. . . .

MR. FUQUA: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

The previous question was ordered.

The motion was agreed to.

§ 15.8 While a motion offered by the manager of a conference report to dispose of an amendment reported from conference in disagreement is debatable for one hour, equally divided between the majority and minority parties (under Rule XXVIII clause 2(b)), rejection of that motion causes recognition to pass to a Member opposed thereto to offer another motion to dispose of the amendment, and that Member controls the entire hour of debate on his motion.

During consideration of the foreign assistance appropriation bill (H.R. 7797) in the House on Oct. 18, 1977,⁽⁷⁾ a motion was offered and the proceedings that followed were as indicated below:

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Long of Maryland moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 47 and concur therein.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁸⁾ Without objection, the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long) will be agreed to.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, if objection is heard to agreeing to the Senate amendment, then 1 hour would be allotted to the manager of the bill (Mr. Long of Maryland), half of which time would be yielded to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Young). Is that correct?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: There would be 30 minutes allotted to each party, the Chair would advise the gentleman.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long) is recognized for 30 minutes.

[The motion was rejected.]

MR. [C. W.] YOUNG of Florida: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Young of Florida moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 47.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Young) for 1 hour.

§ 15.9 The House having rejected a motion offered by the manager of a conference report in disagreement to recede and concur with an amendment in the Senate amendment reported from conference in disagreement, a Member who has opposed that motion may be recognized to offer a motion to recede and concur with a different amendment, and the hour of debate on said motion is pursuant to clause 2(b), Rule XXVIII, divided between the majority and minority parties.

On May 29, 1980,⁽⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 307) setting forth the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal years

7. 123 CONG. REC. 34108, 34109, 34111, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

8. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

9. 126 CONG. REC. 12678, 12680, 12709, 12710, 12712, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

1981, 1982, and 1983 and revising the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1980, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Clerk will read the conference report. . . .

Pursuant to the rule, the Senate amendment is considered as having been read.

The Senate amendment reads as follows:

Strike out all after the resolving clause, and insert:

That the Congress hereby determines and declares, pursuant to section 301(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, that: . . .

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Giaimo moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and to concur therein with an amendment, as follows: . . .

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

The previous question was ordered.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo).

[The motion was rejected.]

MR. [LEON E.] PANETTA [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Panetta moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment to House Concurrent Resolution 307 and to concur therein with two amendments, as follows:

In the engrossed Senate amendment to House Concurrent Resolution 307, strike out section 1 and sections 14–20 and insert in lieu thereof the following: . . .

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from California (Mr. Panetta) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Panetta).

Where Manager Had Not Offered the Rejected Motion

§ 15.10 A preferential motion to concur in a Senate amendment reported from conference in disagreement having been rejected, and a motion to disagree to the Senate amendment being then in order, the manager of the conference report maintained the prior right to recognition where he had not been the one to offer the motion to concur.

On Nov. 3, 1977,⁽¹¹⁾ the proceedings relating to consideration of H.R. 7555 (the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations for fiscal 1978) in the House were as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood).

MR. [DANIEL J.] FLOOD [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the resolution just agreed to, I call up the conference report on the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 82 to the bill (H.R. 7555) making appropriations for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and for other purposes. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 28: Sec. 209. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to perform abortions except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term. . . .

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mahon moves that the House concur in the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 82.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon). . . .

So the preferential motion was rejected. . . .

MR. FLOOD: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Flood moves that the House disagree to the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 82.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: Had Mr. Flood offered the motion to concur, recognition would have passed to the opponents upon rejection of that motion.

Previous Question Rejected

§ 15.11 Where the previous question was voted down on a resolution before the House, recognition passed to the opponents of the resolution, and the Speaker declared that a minority Member was entitled to recognition, if opposed.

On July 20, 1939,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, managing on behalf of the Committee on Rules a resolution to authorize an investigation, moved the previous question on the resolution.

13. 84 CONG. REC. 9591, 9592, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. K. Gunn McKay (Utah).

Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, then answered parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition to be followed should the previous question be rejected:

MR. [VITO] MARCANTONIO [of New York]: If the previous question is voted down, will that open up the resolution to amendment?

THE SPEAKER: Undoubtedly.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: If I understand the situation correctly, if the previous question is voted down, the control of the measure would pass to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Keller]; and the resolution would not be open to amendment generally, but only to such amendments as the gentleman from Illinois might yield for. Is my understanding correct, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is voted down it would not necessarily pass to the gentleman from Illinois; it would pass to the opponents of the resolution. Of course a representative of the minority would have the first right of recognition.

Parliamentarian's Note: A majority Member could be recognized, after defeat of the previous question, to offer a preferential motion, such as to table, postpone or recommit (the prohibition against dilatory motions on a privileged resolution from the Committee on Rules no longer applying).

§ 15.12 A minority Member, who had led the opposition, was recognized after the House had refused to order the previous question on a resolution offered by the majority and providing for the seating of a Member-elect.

On Mar. 1, 1967,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, a Member of the majority, moved the previous question on House Resolution 278, which he had offered, and which provided for the seating of challenged Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York. The previous question was rejected.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then recognized Thomas B. Curtis, of Missouri, a Member of the minority, to offer a substitute amendment excluding Member-elect Powell from membership in the House.

§ 15.13 The motion for the previous question on a resolution being voted down, recognition for control of debate on the resolution passes to a Member opposed.

On Mar. 13, 1939,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, called

14. 113 CONG. REC. 5019, 5020, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

15. 84 CONG. REC. 2663, 76th Cong. 1st Sess. Parliamentarian's Note: Pendup at the direction of the Committee on the District of Columbia House Resolution 113, authorizing an investigation of the milk industry in the District of Columbia. Mr. Smith moved the previous question on the resolution. After the motion was rejected, Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, stated:

Under the rules of procedure, the recognition passes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Mapes] if he desires to claim it.

The Speaker declared, in response to parliamentary inquiries, that Mr. Carl E. Mapes, who had been leading the opposition to the resolution, would control one hour of debate and would lose the floor if he yielded to another Member to offer an amendment.

Qualification of Member as Opposed

§ 15.14 After determining that a Member was qualified as opposed to the pending resolution, the Speaker recognized him to offer a motion ing a vote on ordering the previous question, the Chair may decline to indicate whom he might recognize or what form of amendment might be in order if the previous question were rejected. 115 CONG. REC. 29219, 29220, 91st Cong. 1st Sess., Oct. 8, 1969.

to table the resolution after the previous question had been rejected.

On Oct. 19, 1966,⁽¹⁶⁾ the House rejected the previous question moved by Mr. Claude D. Pepper, of Florida, the Member in control of a resolution from the Committee on Rules (establishing a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct). Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then recognized Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, to offer a motion to lay the resolution on the table, after determining whether Mr. Waggoner was entitled to recognition as being opposed to the resolution:

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman from Louisiana opposed to the resolution?

MR. WAGGONNER: I am, in its present form, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: Has the gentleman participated actively in the debate in opposition?

MR. WAGGONNER: I did, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Waggoner moves to lay House Resolution 1013 on the table.

Parliamentarian's Note: Normally, the Speaker determines opposition from his observations of debate and not by requiring a Member to “qualify”.

16. 112 CONG. REC. 27725, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

Resolution Called Up Prior to Adoption of Rules

§ 15.15 Recognition to offer an amendment to a resolution called up prior to the adoption of rules passes to a Member leading the opposition to the resolution if the previous question is rejected.

On Jan. 10, 1967,⁽¹⁷⁾ at the convening of the 90th Congress and before the adoption of standing rules, Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, called up a resolution (H. Res. 1) authorizing Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, to administer the oath of office to challenged Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York, and referring the question of his final right to a seat to a select committee. Pending debate on the resolution, Speaker McCormack answered parliamentary inquiries on the procedure of consideration and recognition for the resolution:

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is voted down would, then, under the rules of the House, amendments or substitutes be in order to the resolution offered by the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. Udall]?

17. 113 CONG. REC. 14, 15, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Waggonner] that any germane amendment [would] be in order. . . .

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Speaker, one further parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, under the rules of the House would the option or priority or a subsequent amendment or a substitute motion lie with the minority?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will pass upon that question based upon the rules of the House. That would be a question that would present itself to the Chair at that particular time.

. . . However, the usual procedure of the Chair has been to the effect that the Member who led the fight against the resolution will be recognized.

§ 15.16 The motion for the previous question on a resolution having been rejected before the adoption of rules, the Speaker recognized the Minority Leader to offer an amendment to the resolution.

On Jan. 10, 1967,⁽¹⁸⁾ at the convening of the 90th Congress and before the adoption of the rules, Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, moved the previous question on House Resolution 1, which he had called up and which related to the right of Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York, to be sworn. The previous question was rejected. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then recognized Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, the Minority Leader, to offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute to the resolution.

Rejection of Previous Question on Privileged Resolution

§ 15.17 In response to parliamentary inquiries the Speaker advised that if the previous question on a privileged resolution reported by the Committee on Rules were voted down: (1) the resolution would be open to further consideration, amendment, and debate; (2) the resolution would be subject to a motion to table; and (3) the Chair, under the hour rule, would recognize the Member who appeared to be leading the opposition.

On Oct. 19, 1966,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Claude D. Pepper, of Florida, called up by direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 1013, establishing a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct. Mr. Pepper was recognized for one hour and offered a committee amendment to the resolution, which amendment was agreed to. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then answered a series of parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition should Mr. Pepper move the previous question and should the motion be defeated:

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused, is it true that then amendments may be offered and further debate may be had on the resolution?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is defeated, then the resolution is open to further consideration and action and debate.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WAGGONER: Mr. Speaker, under the rules of the House, is it not equally so that a motion to table would then be in order?

THE SPEAKER: At that particular point, that would be a preferential motion. . . .

MR. [JAMES C.] FULTON of Pennsylvania: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused and the resolution is then open for amendment, under what parliamentary procedure will the debate continue? Or what would be the time limit?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would recognize whoever appeared to be the leading Member in opposition to the resolution.

MR. FULTON of Pennsylvania: What would be the time for debate?

THE SPEAKER: Under those circumstances the Member recognized in opposition would have 1 hour at his disposal, or such portion of it as he might desire to exercise.

19. 112 CONG. REC. 27725, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 15.18 Upon rejection of the motion for the previous question on a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules, control shifts to the Member leading the fight against the previous question, who may offer a proper amendment or motion and who controls the time for debate thereon.

The proceedings of May 29, 1980, relating to House Resolution 682, providing for consideration of H.R. 7428 (public debt limit extension) are discussed in §34.6, infra.

§ 15.19 Where the House rejects the previous question, the Member who led the opposition thereto is entitled to one hour of debate and is entitled to close debate where he has yielded half of his time to another Member.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on June 25, 1981,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 169 (providing for consideration of H.R. 3982, Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981):

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the

20. 127 CONG. REC. 14065, 14078, 14079, 14081, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 169 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 169

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 3982) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 301 of the first concurrent resolution on the budget for the fiscal year 1982. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

After debate, Mr. Bolling moved the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [DELBERT L.] LATTA [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

[The previous question was rejected.]

MR. LATTA: Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Latta: Strike all after the resolving clause and insert in lieu thereof the following: . . .

1. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. LATTA: Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield to my good friend, the Speaker of the House. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Let the Chair inquire of the gentleman from Ohio, did he . . . yield 30 minutes of the hour to the Speaker?

MR. LATTA: Right. . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: I reserve my right until such time as the gentleman wants to move the previous question.

MR. LATTA: We have the right under the rules of procedure to close debate.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. LATTA: We have the right to close debate on this issue.

MR. O'NEILL: I have no requests for time on this side.

Previous Question and Motion To Lay Resolution on Table Rejected

§ 15.20 The previous question and a motion to lay a resolution on the table having been rejected, the Chair, under the hour rule, recognized a Member in opposition to the resolution.

On Oct. 19, 1966,⁽³⁾ Mr. Claude D. Pepper, of Florida, called up by direction of the Committee on

2. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

3. 112 CONG. REC. 27713-26, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

Rules House Resolution 1013, establishing a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct. Mr. Pepper moved the previous question and the motion was rejected. Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana who assured Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, of his opposition to the resolution, was recognized to move to lay the resolution on the table. The motion was rejected.

The Speaker then recognized, for one hour of debate, Mr. Wayne L. Hays, of Ohio, who opposed the resolution.

Motion in House May Be Amended if Member in Control Yields or Previous Question Rejected

§ 15.21 A pending motion being considered in the House is not subject to amendment unless the Member in control specifically yields for that purpose or unless the previous question is rejected.

On Oct. 31, 1983,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of a motion to instruct conferees on H.R. 3222 (Departments of Commerce, State, and Justice appropriations for fiscal 1984) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [GEORGE M.] O'BRIEN [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

4. 129 CONG. REC. 29963, 29964, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. O'Brien moves that the managers on the part of the House in the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill, H.R. 3222, be instructed to insist on the House position on the amendment of the Senate numbered 93.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. O'Brien) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. O'BRIEN: Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this motion instructs the House conferees to insist on the House position on Senate amendment 93, which earmarks $70,155,000 in the bill for the juvenile justice program. . . .

MR. [HANK] BROWN of Colorado: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. O'BRIEN: I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Colorado.

MR. BROWN of Colorado: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk that I would like to offer in order to amend the motion.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. O'Brien) yield for that purpose?

MR. O'BRIEN: I yield not for the purposes of amendment.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman yield for debate only?

MR. O'BRIEN: For debate only, Mr. Speaker.

MR. BROWN of Colorado: Mr. Speaker, I believe I was yielded to without that limitation, and I would like to offer my amendment No. 1 as an amendment to the motion to instruct.

MR. O'BRIEN: In my naivete, I did not anticipate the amendment, Mr.

Speaker. However my statement still prevails. I yielded only for comment.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes that the gentleman yielded only for comment, so the Chair is going to sustain the position of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. O'Brien). . . .

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his inquiry.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Colorado wishes to offer his amendment as an amendment to the instructions offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. O'Brien), could that be done by defeating the previous question on the motion, thereby giving the gentleman from Colorado an opportunity to offer an amendment?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: If the previous question is voted down, an amendment would be in order. . . .

MR. O'BRIEN: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

[The previous question was defeated and Mr. Brown offered an amendment.]

—Effect of Adjournment Following Intervention of Other Business After Rejection of Previous Question

§ 15.22 The rule that recognition passes to the opposition after rejection of the previous question was once held subject to the following exception: where other business intervenes and occupies

5. Robert A. Roe (N.J.).

the remainder of the day immediately after defeat of the previous question, the bill on which the previous question was rejected must be subsequently called up as unfinished business by a Member directed by his committee to call up that special class of business on a day when that business is in order, since the Speaker does not lay such special bills before the House as unfinished business. Once that Member has called up the bill, however, the Speaker would recognize a Member opposed if he immediately seeks to offer an amendment.

On Feb. 8, 1932,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Vincent L. Palmisano, of Maryland, Chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia, called up as unfinished business S. 1306, to provide for the incorporation of the District of Columbia Commission on the George Washington Bicentennial.

Mr. Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, raised an inquiry as to the parliamentary situation. He stated that the bill had previously been before the House (on the preceding District of Columbia Monday) and that the previous question had been rejected, requiring recognition to offer amendments or motions to pass to the opposition. [On the preceding District of Columbia Monday, the Chair had recognized another Member, immediately after rejection of the previous question on S. 1306, to call up a general appropriation bill, which was considered until adjournment on that day.]

Mr. LaGuardia and Mr. William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, both asserted that the parliamentary situation remained the same as when the previous question was rejected, requiring the Chair to grant recognition to the opposition on the bill.

Speaker Pro Tempore Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, ruled that the chairman of the reporting committee was entitled to recognition since the bill could come before the House only by being called up as unfinished business.

The proceedings were as follows:

MR. PALMISANO: Mr. Speaker, I call up the bill (S. 1306) to provide for the incorporation of the District of Columbia Commission, George Washington Bicentennial.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland calls up a Senate bill, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

MR. LA GUARDIA: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

6. 75 CONG. REC. 3548-50, 72d Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LAGUARDIA: The bill which the gentleman calls up was before the House two weeks ago.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: This is unfinished business. We have had a second reading of the bill at the former meeting when the bill was considered on last District day.

MR. LAGUARDIA: But the previous question was voted down.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The previous question was then voted down. It is before the House now for further consideration, just where we left off before.

MR. LAGUARDIA: I ask recognition in opposition.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Palmisano], who is the ranking majority member of the committee, is entitled to recognition first to offer committee amendments, and then the gentleman from New York will be recognized.

MR. STAFFORD: Mr. Speaker, I assume that when this bill is now brought up we are brought back to the same legislative situation we were in when it was last considered.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is the situation.

MR. STAFFORD: The previous question was then voted down. At that moment any person who wished to propose an amendment would have had the privilege of being recognized. I claim that any person who wishes to offer an amendment has prior recognition to the gentleman from Maryland.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: But the previous question having been voted down, it did not take off the floor the gentleman from Maryland, who stands in the position of chairman of the committee, so the parliamentarian informs the Chair.

MR. STAFFORD: The very fact that the previous question was voted down granted the right to the opposition to offer an amendment and have control of the time.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: This is another date on this legislation, and while it is in the same situation the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Maryland first, as acting chairman of his committee, and after that will recognize some Member who is opposed to the bill.

MR. [LAFAYETTE L.] PATTERSON [of Alabama]: Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry. Do we understand that the gentleman from Maryland will be recognized for one hour and then the opponents of the bill be recognized for one hour?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland, as acting chairman of the committee, is recognized first to offer committee amendments, and if some Member does not move the previous question—

MR. STAFFORD: Oh, Mr. Speaker, I take issue with the ruling of the Chair, because the House has affirmatively decided that the opposition is entitled to recognition, the previous question having been voted down. In the consideration of this bill we are placed in the same situation as we were when it was last considered.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state the parliamentary situation. On a previous District day when this bill was up for consideration, the previous question was moved and the House voted down that motion. Then the opposition clearly was entitled to recognition. This is another legislative day; and that being true, it is the duty of the Chair to recognize the one standing as chairman of the committee, who is the gentleman from Maryland, to offer committee amendments. Then the Chair will recognize someone in opposition to the bill. The Chair is advised by the parliamentarian that such is the correct procedure.

MR. LAGUARDIA: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LAGUARDIA: I can not follow the statement of the Chair that the bill is coming before the House de novo. The Chair properly stated that the bill now is the unfinished business. A bill can not change its status because it is the unfinished business and carried over to another day. The previous question having been voted down, the bill is now open to the House for amendment, and on that I have asked for recognition by the Chair to offer an amendment.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will rule that the one acting for the committee in calling up the bill has a right to first offer committee amendments. If the proceedings had continued on the day the previous question was voted down, then any Member opposing the bill gaining recognition could have offered an amendment; but this being another legislative day, it is the duty of the Chair to recognize the acting chairman of the committee in calling up the bill to offer committee amendments, and the Chair has done that. Regardless of his own opinion, the Chair is guided by the parliamentarian. When a parliamentary situation arises whereby the Chair can recognize some one opposed to the bill, the Chair will do that.

Parliamentarian's Note: Bills which are in order on certain days under the rules of the House do not automatically come before the House, but must be called up by an authorized committee member. Therefore, in this instance, the Chair recognized the Chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia to bring the bill before the House. Once recognized for that purpose, the chairman of the committee could offer committee amendments not printed in the bill, but if an opposition Member immediately sought to offer an amendment, the Chair indicated that he would first be recognized if he immediately had stated his intention.⁽⁷⁾

C. RECOGNITION ON PARTICULAR QUESTIONS

§ 16. As to Bills

Generally, members of a committee reporting a bill are entitled to prior recognition thereon in the House or in the Committee of the Whole,⁽⁸⁾ debate usually being controlled by the chairman and ranking minority members.⁽⁹⁾ Factors affecting recognition or control of debate also include special rules,⁽¹⁰⁾ the chairman's opposition to a measure,⁽¹¹⁾ and consideration under a discharge procedure.⁽¹²⁾

This section includes discussion of principles of recognition affecting consideration of Calendar Wednesday,⁽¹³⁾ Private Calendar,⁽¹⁴⁾ and District of Columbia⁽¹⁵⁾ bills.

Priority of Members of Reporting Committee

§ 16.1 Under a practice of long standing, members of a committee reporting a bill are ordinarily entitled to prior recognition thereon in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

On Jan. 12, 1933,⁽¹⁶⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina, recognized Mr. William

16. 76 CONG. REC. 1679, 72d Cong. 2d Sess.

J. Granfield, of Massachusetts, to offer an amendment to the pending bill. Mr. Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, made the point of order that recognition should have been granted to a member of the committee reporting the bill who was on his feet. The following discussion and ruling by the Chair ensued:

MR. SNELL: Mr. Chairman, there is no written rule in the book, but it has been the unbroken precedent, as far as I know anything about the practice in this House, that a member of a committee demanding recognition in debate is recognized in preference to anyone not a member of the committee. I would like to call the attention of the Chair to section 750 of the Manual—

In debate members of the committee, except the Committee of the Whole, are entitled to priority of recognition in debate. . . .

I respectfully submit to the Chair, as the gentleman from Maine [Mr. Snow] is a member of that committee, he is entitled to recognition before the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Granfield]. I trust the present Chair will so hold, as it is certainly in interest of orderly procedure in the consideration of legislation.

MR. [WILLIAM H.] STAFFORD [of Wisconsin]: If the Chair will indulge me for just a moment, the precedent referred to by the gentleman from New York has been recognized from time immemorial. It has always been the practice first to recognize members of the committee. It is bottomed upon the idea of advancing the consideration of legislation in an orderly way. It is presumed that members of the committee, who have given consideration to the bill under consideration, have given more thorough consideration to the bill than Members outside the committee; and to advance the orderly working of the House is the real reason why in the long-established practice of the House the Speaker and Chairman have recognized members of the committee in priority over other Members—to the end that orderly procedure would be advanced thereby.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair understands the precedents of the House. The Chair has uniformly given preference to members of the committee on each occasion when he has presided. The Chair agreed to recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Granfield]. The gentleman was on his feet and asking for recognition before any member of the committee. However, the Chair will follow the precedents and recognize the gentleman from Maine [Mr. Snow] to offer an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

On Feb. 10, 1941,⁽¹⁷⁾ Chairman Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, responded to a parliamentary inquiry on the nature of the practice of extending priority for recognition to members of the committee reporting a bill:

MR. [LYLE H.] BOREN [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. I want it thoroughly understood that I recognize fully the custom of members of the committee being recognized ahead of any other Member on the floor, not a member of the committee. I am quite willing to withdraw my amendment for that purpose, but as I understood it the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Cooper] rose to make the point of order that my recognition at that time was not in order. I understood the Chair sustained the point of order and recognized the gentleman from New York [Mr. Crowther]. I should like to be enlightened as to under what rule of the House that point of order is sustained after the Chair had recognized me for the purpose of offering an amendment.

17. 87 CONG. REC. 875, 876, 77th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York [Mr. Crowther] is a member of the committee reporting the bill and, therefore, entitled to prior recognition.

MR. [JACK] NICHOLS [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. NICHOLS: Is there a rule of the House that gives the members of the committee the right to recognition ahead of other Members of the House? Is that a rule of the House?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is a procedure of long standing.

MR. NICHOLS: It is not a rule of the House.

THE CHAIRMAN: In the absence of other considerations, members of the committee in charge of the bill are entitled to prior recognition. The rule is essential to expedition in legislation and its importance is too obvious to require justification.⁽¹⁸⁾

18. For more detailed discussion of the priority of committee members in debate, see §13, supra.

Parliamentarian's Note: Although the Chair extends priority of recognition to members of the reporting committee, no point of order lies against the manner in which the Chair exercises the power of recognition.

Consideration Under Special Rule—Bill Must Be Called Up by Member Designated by Committee

§ 16.2 The adoption of a resolution making in order the consideration of a bill does not necessarily make such bill the unfinished business the next day and such bill can only be called up by a Member designated by the committee to do so.

On July 19, 1939,⁽¹⁹⁾ after the House had adopted a resolution from the Committee on Rules making in order the consideration of a bill, Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [CLAUDE V.] PARSONS [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

See, generally, House Rules and Manual §§753–757 (1995). For the opening and closing of debate by the Member reporting a measure from committee, see Rule XIV clause 3, House Rules and Manual §759 (1995).

19. 84 CONG. REC. 9541, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. PARSONS: Mr. Speaker, the House having adopted the rule, is not this bill the unfinished business of the House on tomorrow?

THE SPEAKER: Not necessarily. The rule adopted by the House makes the bill in order for consideration, but it is not necessarily the unfinished business. It can only come up, after the adoption of the rule, by being called up by the gentleman in charge of the bill.

—Special Rule Allowing Speaker To Recognize Any Member of Committee

§ 16.3 Where a resolution provides that general debate on a bill be “equally divided and controlled by the majority and minority members” of a committee, instead of specifying, as is usual practice, that control of debate be by the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee, the Speaker may recognize any member of the committee to call up the bill and control the time.

On Sept. 26, 1966,⁽¹⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 923, making in order the consideration of H.R. 1511, the economic opportunity amendments for 1966. The resolution provided that eight hours of general debate would be “equally divided and controlled by the majority and minority members of the Committee on Education and Labor,” without specifying, as such resolutions usually do, that debate be controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee.

1. 112 CONG. REC. 23762, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

Following the adoption of the resolution, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Adam C. Powell, of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of the bill.

In the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Jack B. Brooks, of Texas, made the following decision on recognition for control of general debate:

Under the rule, the gentleman from New York [Mr. Powell] will be recognized for four hours to control the time for the majority, and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Ayres] will be recognized to control the time for the minority.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Ayres was the ranking minority member of the committee and supported the views of Mr. Powell, the chairman, that the resolution was an affront to the authority of committee chairmen. Mr. Powell had indicated, prior to the offering of the resolution on the floor of the House, that if he were recognized to move that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole, and recognized to control debate, he would not oppose the resolution.

—Absence of Chairman and Ranking Minority Member

§ 16.4 In the absence of the chairman and ranking minority member, named in a resolution to control debate on a bill, the Speaker or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole recognizes the next ranking majority and minority members for control of such debate (where the chairman and ranking minority member have not designated other Members to control the time).

On July 23, 1942,⁽²⁾ the House adopted a resolution from the Committee on Rules providing for debate on a bill to be divided between the chairman and the ranking minority member of the reporting committee—the Committee on Election of the President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress. The chairman and ranking minority member both being absent, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, declared in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that the Chair would recognize the next ranking majority member and the next ranking minority member to control debate.

—Death of Designated Manager

§ 16.5 Where a Member designated in a resolution (discharged from the Committee on Rules) to call up a bill had died, the Speaker recognized another Member in favor of the bill to call it up.

On Oct. 13, 1942,⁽³⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, rejected a point of order that he had improperly recognized a Member to call up a bill, the resolution providing for consideration having named as manager a Member no longer living (the resolution had been brought up pursuant to a successful motion to discharge). The Speaker reiterated his ruling of the previous day that the resolution could properly be considered and that another Member in favor of the bill could be recognized to manage the bill.⁽⁴⁾

—Special Rule Waiving Points of Order Against Legislation on Appropriation Bill

§ 16.6 On one occasion, the Chairman ruled that while members of the Committee on Appropriations are ordinarily entitled to recognition in debate on a general appropriation bill, where a rule is adopted waiving points of order against legislative provisions in the bill, recognition would be divided between members of the committee and other Members interested in the bill.

On Mar. 5 and 6, 1941,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 3737, a general appropriations bill, pursuant to House Resolution 126, waiving all points of order against the bill. Chairman John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, made the following statement on the matter of recognition under the five-minute rule:

The gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Pace] has been seeking recognition. The Chair realizes that this is an appropriation bill, and that ordinarily members of that committee would be entitled to preference, but under the rule adopted yesterday we make this part of it a legislative bill by making certain legislation in order. The Chair is going to divide the time between the members of the Appropriations Committee and the other Members of the House who are vitally interested in this proposition. . . .

. . . It is perfectly fair for a committee to have charge of general debate and probably debate under the 5-minute rule to a large extent, but the Chair does not think it is fair—especially under conditions such as we have here, where a rule has been adopted making legislation that ordinarily comes from the Committee on Agriculture and from other committees of the House in order on the bill—the Chair does think it fair to the rest of the membership of the House to recognize members of the Committee on Appropriations under the 5-minute rule to the exclusion of the other Members of the House.

Parliamentarian's Note: Chairman Rankin indicated that his ruling was not to be taken as a precedent, differing as it did from customary practice extending priority of recognition to members of the committee reporting a bill.

Unanimous-consent Request for Consideration

§ 16.7 In extending recognition for unanimous-consent requests for the consideration of bills, the Speaker may take into account the stage of consideration, whether the bill is of an emergency nature, and whether the bill is public or private.

On July 1, 1932,⁽⁶⁾ Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, made the following statement regarding recognition for the unanimous-consent consideration of bills:

In order that gentlemen may understand the situation, let the Chair state how it is the Chair recognizes certain gentlemen. The Chair must decline to recognize a great many gentlemen who have meritorious matters, because the Chair must have some yardstick that can be applied to every Member of the House. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Pittenger] had a bill that had passed the House unanimously, had gone to the Senate, and had an amendment placed on it there, adding one name. The Chair thinks in a case of that kind, where unanimous consent has to be given, it is well enough for the Chair to recognize the Member for that purpose; but the Chair will not recognize gentlemen to take up as an original proposition private claims or other matters unless they are of an emergency nature and apply to the general public rather than to one individual.

§ 16.8 The Speaker declines to recognize for a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a measure until the Member making such request has consulted the leadership.

6. 75 CONG. REC. 14511, 72d Cong. 1st Sess.

On July 11, 1946,⁽⁷⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, refused to recognize Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, of Connecticut—who sought to ask for the unanimous-consent consideration of a rent-control measure (H.J. Res. 372)—because she had not consulted with or notified the Speaker of the request. Following remarks by Mr. John Phillips, of California, that consideration of the measure was being refused on a “technicality,” the Speaker made the following comments:

. . . [T]he present occupant of the chair knows that when Members intend to ask unanimous consent to bring up a bill they have always properly consulted with both the majority and minority leaders of the House and with the Speaker. That has been the unfailing custom. The Chair is exercising that right and intends to continue to exercise it as long as he occupies the present position because the Chair wants the House to proceed in an orderly fashion.

MRS. LUCE: Mr. Speaker, may I now ask unanimous consent to bring up the bill tomorrow?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will meet that question when the time comes.

The Chair would certainly like the courtesy of being consulted in advance.

§ 16.9 In recognizing a Member to ask unanimous consent for the consideration of a vitally important measure, the Speaker declared that if any amendments were to be offered he would ask the Member to withdraw the request and move to suspend the rules and pass the bill.

On July 5, 1943,⁽⁸⁾ just prior to an adjournment of two months, Mr. John D. Dingell, of Michigan, asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of S. 35, to authorize the use of certain metals for war purposes. Mr. Frederick C. Smith, of Ohio, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to whether the bill would be subject to amendment. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, indicated that time was of the essence and declared:

The gentleman is correct, it would be subject to amendment, but the Chair is going to be very frank with the gentleman. If there are going to be amendments offered to this bill the Chair will request the gentleman from Michigan to withdraw his request, and then the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Michigan to move to suspend the rules and pass the bill. The Chair thinks it vitally important.

—Member Had Been Recognized for Different Purpose

§ 16.10 The Minority Leader having been recognized to proceed for one minute and in that time having asked unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill, the Speaker held that the gentleman was not recognized for that purpose.

On Jan. 26, 1944,⁽⁹⁾ Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the Minority Leader, asked unanimous consent to proceed for one minute. When Mr. Martin attempted to ask for the consideration of a bill, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, held he had not been recognized for that purpose:

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 minute.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will not recognize any other Member at this time for that purpose but will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the generosity of the Chair.

I take this minute, Mr. Speaker, because I want to make a unanimous-consent request and I think it should be explained.

I agree with the President that there is immediate need for action on the soldiers' vote bill. A good many of us have been hoping we could have action for the last month. To show our sincerity in having action not next week but right now, I ask unanimous consent that the House immediately take up the bill which is on the Union Calendar known as S. 1285, the soldiers' voting bill.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Massachusetts was not recognized for that purpose.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky.

Private Bill Called Up by Unanimous Consent

§ 16.11 When a private bill is called up by unanimous consent in the House, the Member making the request is recognized for one hour.

On Mar. 12, 1963,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, asked for the unanimous-consent consideration in the House of a private bill, H.R. 4374, conferring honorary citizenship on Sir Winston Churchill. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that if consent were granted for the consideration of the bill, Mr. Celler would be recognized for one hour with the right to yield to other Members and to move the previous question.

Parliamentarian's Note: Normally a Private Calendar bill called up by unanimous consent is considered under the five-minute rule, since private bills when reported are referred to the Calendar of the Committee of the Whole House.

10. 109 CONG. REC. 3993, 88th Cong. 1st Sess.

Recognition Where House Has Agreed To Consider Bill by Unanimous Consent

§ 16.12 Where the House has agreed to consider in the House a bill called up by unanimous consent, the Member calling up the bill is recognized for one hour, and amendments may not be offered by other Members unless he yields for that purpose.

On Oct. 5, 1962,⁽¹¹⁾ Mr. Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, called up S. 3361, relating to entry of alien skilled specialists and asked unanimous consent for its "immediate consideration in the House." When there was no objection to the request, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. Walter for one hour. Mr. Arch A. Moore, Jr., of West Virginia, attempted to offer an amendment, and the Speaker inquired of Mr. Walter whether he would accept the amendment since he was in control. Mr. Walter accepted the amendment.

Parliamentarian's Note: The procedure is otherwise if unanimous consent is requested only for the “immediate consideration” of a bill which belongs on the Union Calendar. In that case the bill is considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole, and Members may be recognized to offer amendments under the five-minute rule unless the previous question is ordered.

Discharged Bill

§ 16.13 Where a motion to discharge a committee from a resolution providing for consideration of an unreported bill has been agreed to, the proponents of that motion are entitled to prior recognition for the purpose of managing the bill.

On June 14, 1932,⁽¹²⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the order of recognition on a bill discharged from committee:

MR. [CHARLES R.] CRISP [of Georgia]: The House yesterday discharged the Committee on Rules from the consideration of a resolution making it a special order to consider the adjusted-service compensation bill. The House then adopted the resolution which makes it today in order as a special order to consider that bill. The House having voted in favor of the proponents of the legislation and the Ways and Means Committee having made an adverse report on it, the effect of the vote of the House is to turn down the Ways and Means Committee and place control of that legislation in the hands of its friends. Under these circumstances and under the parliamentary rules and procedure of the House, are not the friends of the legislation entitled to have charge of the bill when we go into Committee of the Whole to consider it and to have the management of the measure on the floor?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The proponents and the friends of the bill will, of course, have charge of it from now on.⁽¹³⁾

Parliamentarian’s Note: The discharge “rule” read as follows:

HOUSE RESOLUTION 220

Resolved, That upon the day succeeding the adoption of this resolution a special order be, and is hereby, created by the House of Representatives for the consideration of H.R. 7726, notwithstanding the adverse report on said bill. That on said day the Speaker shall recognize the Representative from the first district of Texas, Wright Patman, to call up H.R. 7726, a bill to provide for the immediate payment to veterans of the face value of their adjusted-service certificates, as a special order of business, and to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the said H.R. 7726. After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed four hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the Member of the House requesting a rule for the considering of the said H.R. 7726 and a Member of the House who is opposed to the said H.R. 7726, to be designated by the Speaker, the bill shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule. At the conclusion of the reading of the bill for amendment the committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and the amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit. The special order shall be a continuing order until the bill is finally disposed of.

§ 16.14 So as not to interfere with the right of a Member to move to go into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of a bill before the House as a result of a motion to discharge, the Speaker announced he would entertain unanimous-consent requests only for extensions of remarks.

On Apr. 26, 1948,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House agreed to a motion to discharge a committee from the further consideration of a bill. The motion had been offered by Mr. L. Mendel Rivers, of South Carolina. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, then made the following announcement:

Without interfering with the rights of the gentleman from South Carolina to move to go into the Committee of the Whole, the Chair will entertain consent requests for extensions of remarks only.

§ 16.15 In recognizing a Member to control time for debate in opposition to a bill taken away from a committee through the operation of the discharge rule, the Speaker recognizes the chairman of the committee having jurisdiction of the subject matter if he be opposed (where the rule provides for general debate in opposition to be controlled by "the Member of the House who is opposed" to the bill).

On Aug. 14, 1950, the House agreed to a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from the further consideration of a resolution making in order the consideration of a bill within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. The resolution, which was then adopted, provided that the bill be considered on the following day, and provided that general debate be “equally divided and controlled by the Member of the House requesting the rule for the consideration of said H.R. 8195 and the Member of the House who is opposed to the said H.R. 8195, to be designated by the Speaker.” On Aug. 15, 1950, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled as follows on recognition to control time for debate in opposition to the bill:

Pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 667, the Chair designates the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Murray], chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, to control time for debate in opposition to the bill H.R. 8195.⁽¹⁵⁾

Committee Chairman Opposed Reported Bill

§ 16.16 On one occasion, the chairman of a committee, acting at the President's request, introduced a bill, presided over the hearings in committee, reported the bill, applied to the Committee on Rules for a special order, and moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole; when recognized to control one-half of the debate in the Committee, he then announced his opposition to the measure and turned over management of the bill to the ranking majority member of the committee.

On June 14, 1967,⁽¹⁶⁾ Harley O. Staggers, of West Virginia, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of House Joint Resolution 559, providing for the settlement of a railroad labor dispute. The House had adopted House Resolution 511 making in order the consideration of the bill and providing that general debate be controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

In the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, recognized Mr. Staggers to control one-half the time on the bill. Mr. Staggers made the following statement:

Mr. Chairman, I am here today in a most unusual position. I was requested by the President to introduce the bill we have before us today, and because of my responsibilities as chairman of the committee, I introduced the bill. If the House was to be given an opportunity to work its will on this legislation, it was necessary that hearings begin promptly and continue as expeditiously as possible, and I think the record will bear me out, that the hearings before our committee have been prompt, they have not been delayed in any respect.

In fact we interrupted consideration of a very important piece of health legislation in order to take up this bill. We have heard every witness who wanted to be heard on the legislation. I did this because I felt it to be my responsibility to the House as chairman of the committee.

Following the conclusion of our hearings I promptly scheduled executive sessions for consideration of the bill and we met as promptly as possible both morning and afternoon and the committee reported the bill to the House.

Yesterday I went before the Rules Committee as chairman of the committee to present the facts to the Rules Committee and attempt to obtain a rule so that the bill would be considered by the House. I have done these things because I felt it is my responsibility to do so as chairman of the committee.

Unfortunately, Mr. Chairman, I was opposed to this bill when I introduced it, and having heard all the witnesses and all the testimony, I am still opposed to it. For that reason I have asked the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Friedel] to handle the bill in Committee of the Whole, so that I would be free to express my opposition to it. . . .

Mr. Chairman, this concludes the presentation I desire to make on the bill. At this time I request the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Friedel], the ranking majority member on the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, to take charge of managing the bill on the floor.

Parliamentarian's Note: The chairman of each committee in the House has the responsibility of reporting or causing to be reported any measure approved by his committee, and of taking or causing to be taken steps to have the matter considered and voted upon in the House, regardless of his personal opposition to the measure.⁽¹⁷⁾

Calendar Wednesday Bills

§ 16.17 On Calendar Wednesday, debate on bills considered in the Committee of the Whole is limited to two hours, one hour controlled by the Member in charge of the bill and one hour by the ranking minority member of the committee who is opposed to the bill.

On Apr. 14, 1937,⁽¹⁸⁾ Chairman J. Mark Wilcox, of Florida, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that debate on a bill (called up under the Calendar Wednesday procedure) in the Committee of the Whole would be limited to two hours, one hour to be controlled by the chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and one hour to be controlled by the ranking minority committee member opposed to the bill.⁽¹⁹⁾

§ 16.18 In recognizing a Member to control time in opposition to a bill on Calendar Wednesday in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair recognizes minority members, if opposed, in the order of their seniority on the committee reporting a bill.

On Apr. 14, 1937,⁽²⁰⁾ the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a bill called up under the Calendar Wednesday procedure by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Chairman J. Mark Wilcox, of Florida, answered a parliamentary inquiry as to the order of recognition on the bill.

MR. [PEHR G.] HOLMES [of Massachusetts]: Am I to understand that 1 hour will be extended me in opposition to the bill as a minority member of the committee?

19. Rule XXIV clause 7, House Rules and Manual §897 (1995), governs the consideration of bills called up by committees under the Calendar Wednesday procedure.

20. 81 CONG. REC. 3456, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman from Massachusetts opposed to the bill?

MR. HOLMES: I am, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman from Massachusetts the ranking minority member of the committee?

MR. HOLMES: I am the ranking minority member opposed to the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is entitled to recognition in opposition to the bill unless a minority member of the committee outranking the gentleman desires recognition.

MR. [CARL E.] MAPES [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Holmes] is the only minority member of the committee who is opposed to the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: Then the gentleman from Massachusetts will be recognized in opposition to the bill.

§ 16.19 A Member calling up a bill on Calendar Wednesday must be authorized and directed to do so by the committee having jurisdiction over the bill.

On Feb. 24, 1937,⁽¹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore William J. Driver, of Arkansas, responded to a parliamentary inquiry during the Calendar Wednesday call of committees:

MR. [EARL C.] MICHENER [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, where a bill has been reported favorably by a committee, and the chairman of the committee is authorized to call the bill up on Calendar Wednesday, when the chairman absents himself from the floor, and when other members of the committee are present, is it proper for one of the other members to call up the bill?

1. 81 CONG. REC. 1562, 1563, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state to the gentleman that under the rules only the chairman or the member designated by the committee is authorized to call up a bill.⁽²⁾

§ 16.20 Members of a committee having jurisdiction of a bill on the Union Calendar called up on Calendar Wednesday are entitled to prior recognition to oppose it, but if no member of the committee rises to oppose the bill, any Member may be recognized for the hour in opposition.

On May 14, 1930,⁽³⁾ Chairman Scott Leavitt, of Montana, ruled that since no member of a committee calling up a bill on Calendar Wednesday sought recognition to oppose the bill, any Member of the House could be recognized to control one hour's debate in opposition to the bill.

—Duty of Chair To Report Bill

§ 16.21 A provision of the Legislative Reorganization Act

of 1946, later adopted as a House rule, requiring the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly any measure approved by his committee or to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring a matter to a vote, was cited by the Speaker in overruling a point of order that a committee member did not have authority to call up a bill on Calendar Wednesday.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽⁴⁾ John Lesinski, of Michigan, Chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, called up a bill under the Calendar Wednesday procedure. Mr. Tom Pickett, of Texas, made the point of order that Mr. Lesinski was not entitled to recognition for that purpose, not having been expressly authorized by the committee to call up the bill under that procedure.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, overruled the point of order, saying:

The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Lesinski] has already stated that the committee did give him this authority. The present occupant of the chair has read the minutes of the committee and thinks the gentleman from Michigan is correct.

4. 96 CONG. REC. 2161, 2162, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

Also the latest rule on this matter is section 133, paragraph (c), of the Legislative Reorganization Act, and there is very good reason for this rule because in times past the chairmen of committees have been known to carry bills around in their pockets for quite a while and not present them.

The rule is as follows:

It shall be the duty of the chairman of each such committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the Senate or House of Representatives, as the case may be, any measure approved by his committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote.

The Chair overrules the point of order.⁽⁵⁾

District of Columbia Bills

§ 16.22 During general debate on District of Columbia business in the Committee of the Whole, in the absence of a unanimous-consent agreement in the House allocating control of general debate, the Chair alternates in recognizing between those for and those against the pending legislation, giving preference to members of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

5. The statute cited was later adopted as part of the standing rules; see Rule XI clause 2(l)(1)(A), House Rules and Manual § 713a (1995).

On Apr. 11, 1932,⁽⁶⁾ Chairman Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition in the Committee of the Whole during general debate on a District of Columbia bill.⁽⁷⁾

—Privileged Resolution and Other Business Was Considered Before District Business

§ 16.23 On a District of Columbia Monday, the Speaker recognized a member of the Committee on Rules to call up a privileged resolution relating to the order of business, and later recognized the chairman of another committee to call up the business made in order thereby, prior to recognizing the chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia to call up District business.

On Sept. 24, 1962,⁽⁸⁾ which was District of Columbia Monday, the Committee on the District of Columbia did not assert its right to call up District business. Speaker

7. For District of Columbia business, see Rule XXIV clause 8, House Rules and Manual § 899 (1995).

8. 108 CONG. REC. 20489, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi, of the Committee on Rules to call up House Resolution 804 (privileged resolution making in order the consideration of S.J. Res. 224, authorizing the President to call up armed forces reservists). Following the adoption of the House resolution, the Speaker recognized Carl Vinson, of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee on Armed Services, to call up and control debate on the measure made in order thereby. Thereafter, the Speaker announced it was District of Columbia day and then recognized John L. McMillan, of South Carolina, Chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia, to call up District business.

—Motion To Suspend Rules Is of Equal Privilege

§ 16.24 Where a Member seeks recognition to call up District of Columbia business, privileged on District of Columbia Monday, and another Member seeks recognition to suspend the rules and agree to a bill made privileged by unanimous consent, it is within the discretion of the Speaker as to which of the two Members he shall recognize.

On Aug. 27, 1962,⁽⁹⁾ which was District of Columbia Monday, Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, moved to suspend the rules and pass Senate Joint Resolution 29, proposing an amendment to the United States Constitution (to prohibit the use of a poll tax as a qualification for voting). Thomas G. Abernethy, of Mississippi, a member of the Committee on the District of Columbia, made a point of order against the motion on the ground that under the rules of the House District of Columbia business was privileged and mandatory on District of Columbia day. Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, asked to be heard on the point of order and stated that suspension motions had been transferred to the present day by a unanimous-consent agreement several days prior. Mr. Abernethy debated the point of order, as did Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, asserting that Rule XXIV clause 8 required the Speaker to recognize for District of Columbia business. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled as follows:

Several days ago on August 14 unanimous consent was obtained to transfer the consideration of business under suspension of the rules on Monday last until today. That does not prohibit the consideration of a privileged motion and a motion to suspend the rules today is a privileged motion. The matter is within the discretion of the Chair as to the matter of recognition.

9. 108 CONG. REC. 17654, 17655, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Chair overrules the point of order.

Private Calendar Bills

§ 16.25 Under clause 6 of Rule XXIV, the call of the Private Calendar on the third Tuesday of a month is entirely within the discretion of the Speaker.

On Oct. 16, 1990,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding the Private Calendar:

MR. [F. JAMES] SENSENBRENNER [Jr., of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 6 of rule XXIV, today is the day for the call of the Private Calendar. Is the Private Calendar not going to be called today?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ The Chair will notify the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Sensenbrenner] that the Chair has complete discretion on the third Tuesday whether to call the Private Calendar.

§ 16.26 The rules do not permit pro forma amendments to bills on the Private Calendar.

endar, Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, moved to strike out the last word and asked unanimous consent to revise and extend his remarks. There was no objection to the request and Mr. Hoffman was recognized. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, then made a statement:

The Chair wishes to make a statement in order to clarify the rules of procedure during the calling of the Private Calendar. Inadvertently, the Chair recognized the gentleman from Michigan to strike out the last word. Under the rules of the House, of course, that may be done on bills on the Consent Calendar, but not on the Private Calendar.⁽¹³⁾

—Recognition To Request Extension of Time Declined

§ 16.27 During amendment of omnibus private bills the Chair refuses to recognize Members for the purpose of requesting an extension of time under the five-minute rule.

On July 20, 1937,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House was considering under the five-minute rule omnibus bills on the Private Calendar. Mr. Alfred F. Beiter, of New York, who had the floor, asked unanimous consent to proceed for one additional minute when his five minutes expired. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled:

Under the rule governing the consideration of these bills, 5 minutes on each side is the limit for debate.

The Speaker then ruled that Mr. Beiter could not be recognized to offer a pro forma amendment to the pending bill.⁽¹⁵⁾

—Unanimous-consent Request To Address House

§ 16.28 During consideration of bills on the Private Calendar, the Chair refuses to recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests to address the House on such bills.

endar and Mr. Charles V. Truax, of Ohio, asked unanimous consent to “proceed for five minutes.” Speaker Pro Tempore John J. O’Connor, of New York, refused to recognize Mr. Truax for that purpose.

—Recognition in Opposition to Amendment

§ 16.29 Recognition in opposition to an amendment to a bill on the Private Calendar goes first to a member of the committee reporting the bill.

On Dec. 14, 1967,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House was considering a private bill under the five-minute rule. Mr. Durward G. Hall, of Missouri, rose to be heard in opposition to an amendment, but Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, extended recognition for that purpose to Mr. Michael A. Feighan, of Ohio, a member of the committee reporting the bill.

—Unanimous-consent Requests To Take Up Similar Senate Bills

§ 16.30 Where an omnibus private bill is passed containing House bills similar to Senate bills on the Speaker’s table, the Speaker recognizes Members for unanimous-consent requests to take up such Senate bills for consideration.

On Aug. 21, 1935,⁽¹⁸⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, made the following statement:

Permit the Chair to make a statement. In the omnibus bills which were passed on yesterday there were included several bills which had previously passed the Senate and were on the Speaker's table. The Chair feels that those Members who are interested in those particular bills should have an opportunity to ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the Senate bills, so that they can be taken out of the omnibus bills when they are reported to the Senate. The Chair will therefore first recognize Members who have such bills. . . .

The Speaker then recognized Mr. William A. Pittenger, of Minnesota, to ask unanimous consent for the consideration of one of the Senate bills.

§ 17. As to Conference Reports and Other House-Senate Matters

The chairman of the committee with jurisdiction of the subject matter of a bill is ordinarily recognized for requests for a conference, motions and resolutions relating to disposition of Senate amendments, or calling up conference reports.⁽¹⁹⁾

One hour of debate, equally divided between the majority and minority parties, is permitted on a conference report; and the Speaker recognizes the Member calling up the report to control 30 minutes and a Member from the other party, preferably the senior conferee from that party, to control 30 minutes.⁽²⁰⁾ Under customary practice, the Members controlling the time for debate on a conference report are among those who served as House managers in the conference.⁽¹⁾

Rule XXVIII, clause 1(b)⁽²⁾ provides that the time allotted for debate on any motion to instruct House conferees shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties, except that if the proponent of the motion and the Member from the other party are both supporters of the motion, one third of such debate time shall be allotted to a Member who is opposed to said motion.

Similarly, the time allotted for debate in the consideration of a conference report is equally divided between the majority party and the minority party, except that if the floor manager for the majority and the floor manager for the minority are both supporters of the conference report, one third of such debate time shall be allotted to a Member who is opposed to said conference report.⁽³⁾ A similar provision applies specifically to consideration of amendments in disagreement.⁽⁴⁾

The offering of a preferential motion does not deprive the Member making the original motion to dispose of a Senate amendment of control of the floor for debate, and the Chair will recognize the Member controlling the floor when the preferential motion is offered.⁽⁵⁾ For example, where the manager of a conference report has offered a motion to insist on disagreement to a Senate amendment, a motion to recede and concur therein is preferential and is voted on first, but the manager retains control of the majority time on the amendment.⁽⁶⁾

On the other hand, where the House rejects a motion by the manager of a bill to dispose of a Senate amendment remaining in disagreement, recognition to offer another motion is accorded to a Member who led the opposition to the rejected motion.⁽⁷⁾ Accordingly, where a motion by the Member in charge of a conference report to recede and concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment is defeated, recognition for a motion to further insist on disagreement passes to a Member opposed.⁽⁸⁾

A motion to concur in a Senate amendment to a House amendment to a Senate amendment to a House measure, the stage of disagreement having been reached, is preferential to a motion to disagree and request a conference and is debatable under the provisions of Rule XXVIII, clause 2.⁽⁹⁾

The prior right to recognition to move to recommit a conference report ordinarily belongs to a member of the conference committee, although on one occasion, the Chair recognized the ranking minority member of one of the two committees which had originally reported the bill, even though the member was not a conferee on the bill.⁽¹⁰⁾

Motion To Send Bill to Conference

§ 17.1 The motion to send a bill to conference pursuant to Rule XX clause 1 is privileged at any time the House is in possession of the papers if the appropriate committee has authorized the motion and the Speaker in his discretion recognizes for that purpose.

On Mar. 20, 1975,⁽¹¹⁾ the following proceedings pertaining to consideration of the foreign assistance appropriations (H.R. 4592) occurred in the House:

MR. [OTTO E.] PASSMAN [of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, in accordance with rule XX of the House rules and by direction of the Committee on Appropriations, I move to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 4592) making appropriations for foreign assistance and related programs for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Passman).

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that no objection is in order.

The motion was agreed to.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, does this report not have to lay over for a period of time prior to the request being made for conferees?

THE SPEAKER: Not for the appointment of conferees.

MR. BAUMAN: Then, Mr. Speaker, it is in order today?

THE SPEAKER: The motion to send the bill to conference is in order today.

Further Debate by Unanimous Consent After Previous Question on Motion To Instruct Conferees

§ 17.2 By unanimous consent, further debate may be permitted on a motion to instruct conferees on which the previous question has been ordered.

12. Carl Albert (Okla.).

During consideration of a motion to instruct House conferees on the conference with the Senate on H.R. 3919 (crude oil windfall profits tax) on Feb. 20, 1980,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [NORMAN E.] D'AMOURS [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. D'Amours moves that, pursuant to the provisions of clause 1(b) of Rule XXVIII, the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendment to the bill H.R. 3919 be instructed to agree to the provisions contained in parts 1, 2 and 4 of title II of the Senate amendment to the text of the bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ The gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. D'Amours) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to instruct.

There was no objection.

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . . [T]here may have been some confusion on the last vote, given what appeared on the screens in Members' offices. . . .

This question . . . we will vote on now is a vote on the motion to instruct the conferees?

13. 126 CONG. REC. 3322, 3337, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

14. Benjamin S. Rosenthal (N.Y.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question that will occur now is on the motion to instruct the conferees.

(By unanimous consent Mr. Gibbons was allowed to speak out of order.)

MR. [SAM M.] GIBBONS [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, I cannot believe the last vote. It is absolutely astounding.

What my colleagues voted for was to instruct the conferees to throw away $26 billion on some tax credits of doubtful value. . . .

But, please, do not instruct us. We are about to complete this conference. We are about to get things wound up and get it out here where we can either accept it or reject it.

Special Rule Providing for Debate on Conference Reports Considered En Bloc

§ 17.3 Pursuant to a special rule providing for four hours of debate on five conference reports considered en bloc in the House, equally divided between the majority and minority, with one hour to be confined to debate on one of the five reports (natural gas policy), the Speaker recognized the chairman and ranking minority member of the Ad Hoc Committee on Energy for one-half hour each for the first hour, to be confined to debate on the natural gas conference report, and then recognized them for one and one-half hour each on the remaining reports.

On Oct. 14, 1978,⁽¹⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [THOMAS L.] ASHLEY [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 1434, I call up the conference reports on the bills [H.R. 4018, Public Utility Rates; H.R. 5037, Energy Conservation; H.R. 5146, Coal Conversion; H.R. 5289, Natural Gas Policy; and H.R. 5263, Energy Tax]. . . .

The Clerk read the titles of the bills.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁶⁾ Pursuant to House Resolution 1434, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashley) will be recognized for 2 hours and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Anderson) will be recognized for 2 hours.

The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashley) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Anderson) for 30 minutes to debate the conference report on H.R. 5289. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: May I . . . inquire of the Chair whether the first hour of debate is to be directed to the natural gas conference report and not to the other four conference reports?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. BAUMAN: Only to the natural gas conference report?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. BAUMAN: Would it be out of order to discuss the other parts during that time?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman that the Chair would have to rule as points along that line are brought to the attention of the Chair.

MR. BAUMAN: I thank the Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman that the resolution provides the first hour of which shall be confined solely to the conference report on the bill H.R. 5289.

The House Has, by Use of a Special Order, Deemed a Conference Report, Not Yet Before the House, To Be Adopted

§ 17.4 A special order providing for consideration of a bill included an additional provision specifying a contingent order of the House—the adoption of a conference report pending in the Senate, if the Senate notified the House before a date certain that it had agreed thereto.

On Mar. 28, 1996,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House adopted H. Res. 391, a special rule providing for consideration of the bill (H.R. 3136) to provide for consideration of the Senior Citizens' Right to Work Act of 1996. The rule also provided a "contingent order" relating to title II which contained the text of the 17. 142 CONG. REC. p. ____, 104th Cong. 2d Sess.

“Line Item Veto” bill previously passed by the House. The text of title II was the same as that agreed upon by House and Senate managers in the conference on the previously-passed Line Item Veto bill, S. 4. If the House were to be informed by a message from the Senate that the conference report on S. 4 had been approved by the Senate, then that conference report would be “deemed adopted” by the House, and the Clerk, in enrolling the bill H.R. 3136, would strike the then superfluous title II.

This rather complicated special order was drafted to make it possible for the House to adjourn for its Easter break, scheduled for Mar. 29-Apr. 15. Otherwise, there would have been an effort to remain in session until the Senate completed action on the conference report.

The Senate actually informed the House of the adoption of the conference agreement later on the same day (Mar. 28), and so the contingencies in H. Res. 391 were executed that same day. Title II of H.R. 3136, containing the line item veto provisions identical to those in S. 4, was stricken in the engrossment of the bill. The conference agreement on S. 4 was deemed adopted by the House. S. 4 was enrolled and sent to the President. It became Public Law 104-130.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 3136, CONTRACT WITH AMERICA ADVANCEMENT ACT OF 1996

MR. [GERALD B. H.] SOLOMON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 391 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 391

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order (except those arising under section 425(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974) to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 3136) to provide for the enactment of the Senior Citizens' Right to Work Act of 1996, the Line Item Veto Act, and the Small Business Growth and Fairness Act of 1996, and to provide for a permanent increase in the public debt limit. The amendments specified in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution shall be considered as adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, as amended, and on any further amendment thereto to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate on the bill, as amended, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means; (2) a further amendment, if offered by the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, which shall be in order without intervention of any point of order (except those arising under section 425(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974) or demand for division of the question, shall be considered as read, and shall be separately debatable for 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent; and (3) one motion to recommit, which may include instructions only if offered by the Minority Leader or his designee.

Sec. 2. If, before March 30, 1996, the House has received a message informing it that the Senate has adopted the conference report to accompany the bill (S. 4) to grant the power to the President to reduce budget authority, and for other purposes, then—

(a) in the engrossment of H.R. 3136 the Clerk shall strike title II (unless it has been amended) and redesignate the subsequent titles accordingly; and

(b) the House shall be considered to have adopted that conference report.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ The gentleman from New York [Mr. Solomon] is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. SOLOMON: Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. Beilenson], pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

(Mr. Solomon asked and was given permission to include extraneous material.)

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SOLOMON

MR. SOLOMON: Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Solomon:

Page 2, line 9, strike "one hour" and all that follows through "Means" on line 12, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"80 minutes of debate on the bill, as amended, with 60 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means and 20 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight or their designees".

MR. SOLOMON: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be agreed to.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. SOLOMON: . . . Mr. Speaker, this rule provides for consideration in the House of H.R. 3136, as modified by the amendments designated in the Committee on Rules report on this resolution. The rule provides for the adoption of two amendments. The first amendment is to title III of the bill relating to regulatory reform, and the second amendment is to title I of this bill relating to the Social Security earnings test limit. Both amendments address specific concerns of the administration and have been included in the bill in the spirit of bipartisan cooperation. It is hoped that the final product will meet the concerns of all parties involved. . . .

Finally, Mr. Speaker, the rule provides that if before March 30, 1996, the House has received a Senate message stating that the Senate has adopted the conference report on S. 4, which is the Line-Item Veto Act, then following House passage and engrossment of H.R. 3136, the Clerk shall be instructed to strike title II unless amended from this bill. This title contains the exact text of the conference report of Senate bill 4.

Furthermore, upon the actions of the House, it will be deemed to have adopted the conference report on S. 4, which is the line-item veto conference report. This final procedure has been included in the rule as part of our continuing efforts to expedite the consideration of this terribly, terribly important piece of legislation.

The rule also sets up a highly unusual procedure, which the gentleman from New York [Mr. Solomon] described a few minutes ago, for disposing of the Line Item Veto Act. The rule provides that if the other body approves the conference report on this bill before Saturday and the House passes H.R. 3136, the conference report shall be sent to the President as a free-standing bill.

Because the Senate approved the conference report last night, that part of this bill will in fact be separated upon passage of this legislation. We believe it is unnecessary and unwise to construct final action on the Line Item Veto Act in this convoluted manner. There is no good reason why this matter should not be considered in the same way other conference reports are normally considered; that is, as free-standing legislation and without reference to action by the other body. For that matter, there is no good reason why any of the extraneous legislation included in this increase in the debt limit must be included.

Later the same day:

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE . . .

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 4) "An act to grant the power to the President to reduce budget authority."

(For text of conference report deemed adopted pursuant to Resolution 391, see proceedings of the House of March 21, 1996, at page H2640.)

SENATE ENROLLED BILL SIGNED

The Speaker announced his signature to enrolled bills of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 4. An act to give the President line item veto authority with respect to appropriations, new direct spending, and limited tax benefits.

TITLE II—LINE ITEM VETO

Sec. 201. Short Title.

This title may be cited as the "Line Item Veto Act".

High Privilege of Conference Report

§ 17.5 The rules provide that conference reports shall always be in order, except when the Journal is being read, while the roll is being called, or the House is dividing on any proposition;⁽¹⁹⁾ and the Chair may recognize a Member to call up a conference report before proceeding to other business mandated by the rules.

Under a former rule,⁽²⁰⁾ the call of the Consent Calendar was mandatory on the first and third Mondays of the month immediately after the approval of the Journal. (The Consent Calendar was replaced in the 104th Congress by the Corrections Calendar.)⁽¹⁾ The proceedings of May 4, 1970,⁽²⁾ which was Consent Calendar Monday, are illustrative of the high privilege of conference reports. On that day, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, first recognized Mr. Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky, to call up a conference report before directing the Clerk to call the Consent Calendar.

Chairman of Committee Opposed to Bill

§ 17.6 The Speaker recognized the ranking majority member of a committee, and not the chairman thereof, also a conferee, to call up a conference report.

On July 17, 1967,⁽³⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massa-

Parliamentarian's Note: Harley O. Staggers, of West Virginia, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and a conferee on the bill, was not recognized to call up the report because he was opposed to the bill.⁽⁴⁾

Manager Called Up Conference Report Although He Was Opposed

§ 17.7 The senior manager on the part of the House at a conference called up for consideration and managed the debate on the conference report, although he had not signed the report and was opposed to it.

On Dec. 6, 1967,⁽⁵⁾ William R. Poage, of Texas, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and senior manager for the House in conference on H.R. 12144, the Federal Meat Inspection Act of 1967, called up the conference report on that bill and managed the debate thereon. Mr. Poage delivered the following remarks when calling up the report:

MR. POAGE: Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, today I find myself in the same position which I occupied when we sent this bill to conference. I have no desire to interfere with or delay consideration of the bill. I full well recognize the very proper desire of every Member of this House to secure and maintain the very best possible meat inspection program for the United States. I join in that desire. The conference report which our committee brings you is intended to achieve that result. I hope it will.

This report is signed by all of the conferees on the part of the Senate and all but two of the conferees on the part of the House. I am one of those two.

Conference Report Within Jurisdiction of Two Committees

§ 17.8 A conference report on a bill with two titles was called up by the chairman of one committee, who controlled one-half hour on one title of the bill, and who then yielded to the chairman of another committee to control one-half hour on the other title and to move the previous question.

On May 13, 1970,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Harley O. Staggers, of West Virginia, called up a conference report on H.R. 14465, the Airport and Airway Development and Revenue Acts of 1970. The managers on the part of the House had been appointed from two House committees, since title I of the bill dealt with airport authorizations, within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and title II dealt with raising revenue for airport construction, within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means.

The Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce had reported the bill in the House, and Mr. Staggers, Chairman of that committee, therefore called up the conference report for consideration. He controlled one-half hour of debate on title I, which was within the jurisdiction of his committee. He then yielded to Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, to control one-half hour of debate on title II of the bill. Mr. Mills moved the previous question on the report.

Parliamentarian's Note: The hour of debate on a conference report is now equally divided between the majority and minority parties. See § 17.9, infra.

Debate on Conference Report—How Divided

§ 17.9 One hour of debate, equally divided between the majority and minority parties, is permitted on a conference report; and the Speaker recognizes the Member calling up the report to control 30 minutes and a Member from the other party (preferably the senior conferee from that party) to control 30 minutes.

On Jan. 19, 1972,⁽⁷⁾ Wayne L. Hays, of Ohio, Chairman of the Committee on House Administration, called up the conference report on S. 382, the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1972. Speaker Carl Albert recognized Mr. Hays to control 30 minutes of debate on the report and Mr. William L. Springer, of Illinois (ranking minority member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and a conferee) to handle the other 30 minutes.

Conferees had been appointed from both the Committees on House Administration and Interstate and Foreign Commerce, since the bill was the work product of both committees.

7. 118 CONG. REC. 319, 320, 92d Cong. 2d Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XXVIII, clause 2(a) was amended in the 92d Congress, 1st Session (H. Res. 5) to require a division of the hour for debate on a conference report. Prior to that time, debate on a conference report was under the hour rule, with the Member recognized to call up the report in control of the time.⁽⁸⁾ The rule now also provides that if the floor managers for the majority and minority both support the conference report, one-third of the debate time shall be allotted to a Member opposed.⁽⁹⁾

Debate on Motion To Reject Nongermane Portion of Conference Report

§ 17.10 Pursuant to Rule XXVIII clause 4, 40 minutes for debate on a motion to reject a nongermane portion of a conference report is equally divided between the proponent and an opponent of the motion to reject, and recognition is not based upon party affiliation; and

8. See, for example, 115 CONG. REC. 40451, 91st Cong. 1st Sess., Dec. 20, 1969; 108 CONG. REC. 4247–51, 87th Cong. 2d Sess., Mar. 15, 1962.

9. See House Rules and Manual § 912a (1995).

the House conferee who has been recognized for 20 minutes in opposition to a motion to reject a nongermane portion of a conference report is entitled to close debate on the motion to reject.

H.R. 5247, a bill reported from the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, consisted of one title relating to grants to state and local governments for local public works construction projects. A new title added by the Senate and contained in a conference report provided grants to state and local governments to assist them in providing public services. On Jan. 29, 1976,⁽¹⁰⁾ a point of order was made in the House, pursuant to Rule XXVIII clause 4, against the title added by the Senate. The title was held to be not germane, because it proposed a revenue-sharing program within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Government Operations, and because the approach taken in the Senate version was not closely related to the methods used to combat unemployment as delineated in the House bill.⁽¹¹⁾ After the Speaker had ruled on the point of order, a motion was made:

MR. [JACK] BROOKS [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

10. 122 CONG. REC. 1582, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

11. For further discussion of the ruling on the issue of germaneness, see Ch. 28, §4.99, supra.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Brooks moves that the House reject title II of H.R. 5247, as reported by the committee of conference.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Jones) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Brooks) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

MR. BROOKS: Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. HORTON: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is this: Do we have 20 minutes on the minority side?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the division of time is between those in favor and those opposed to the motion to reject title II. The gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Jones) has 20 minutes and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Brooks) has 20 minutes.

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas, on behalf of Mr. Jones]: Mr. Speaker, I have one other speaker, the majority leader. I do not know what the courtesy is, or the appropriate protocol, in a matter of this kind.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will rule that the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Wright] may close debate.⁽¹³⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: Where the House agrees to a motion to reject a nongermane portion of a conference report pursuant to Rule XXVIII clause 4, the pending question, in the form of a motion offered by the manager of the conference report, is to recede from disagreement to the Senate amendment and concur with an amendment consisting of the remaining portions of the conference report not rejected on the separate vote, and one hour of debate, equally divided between the majority and minority parties, is permitted on that pending question.⁽¹⁴⁾

Debate on Conference Report After Section Containing Nongermane Senate Matter Agreed to

§ 17.11 Pursuant to a special rule and to clause 1 of Rule XX, in effect in the 92d Congress, the House agreed to a section of a conference report (containing nongermane Senate matter) following 40 minutes of debate; the House then considered the entire conference report, the Member calling up the report and a Member of the minority party each being recognized for 30 minutes under Rule XXVIII clause 2.

On Nov. 10, 1971,⁽¹⁵⁾ pursuant to a special rule, a separate vote was demanded on a section of a conference report, and the House agreed to the section after 40 minutes of debate divided between the manager of the report and the Member demanding the separate vote.⁽¹⁶⁾

The House then considered the entire conference report, and the Speaker stated that one hour of debate would be had, the Member calling up the report, F. Edward Hébert, of Louisiana, to be recognized for 30 minutes, and a Member of the minority party, Leslie C. Arends, of Illinois, to be recognized for 30 minutes.

Debate Controlled by Conferees Appointed From Two Committees

§ 17.12 One hour of debate, equally divided between the majority and minority parties, is permitted on a conference report; and where conferees have been appointed from two committees of the House, the Speaker recognizes one of the minority committee members (not necessarily a member of the same committee as the Member controlling the majority time) to control 30 minutes of debate.

On Jan. 19, 1972,⁽¹⁷⁾ Wayne L. Hays, of Ohio, Chairman of the Committee on House Administration, called up a conference report on S. 382, the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1972. Conferees on the part of the House had been appointed from two House committees with jurisdiction over the bill, the Committee on House Administration and the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, recognized Mr. Hays for 30 minutes of debate to control time for the majority. He recognized William L. Springer, of Illinois, ranking minority member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to control 30 minutes of debate for the minority.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Springer controlled the minority time although he had resigned as a conferee on the bill, even though Samuel L. Devine, of Ohio, ranking minority member of the Committee on House Administration and a conferee on the bill, was on the floor and participated in debate. Under customary practice, however, the Members controlling the time for debate on a conference report are among those who served as House managers in the conference.⁽¹⁸⁾

17. 118 CONG. REC. 319, 320, 92d Cong. 2d Sess.

Rule XXVIII, clause 2(a) now provides that if the floor manager for the majority and minority both support the conference report, one-third of the debate time shall be allotted to a Member opposed.⁽¹⁹⁾

Permitting Additional Debate on Conference Report; Special Order

§ 17.13 While debate on a conference report is limited to one hour⁽²⁰⁾ to be equally divided between majority and minority parties,⁽¹⁾ the House

18. For division of debate on a conference report, see Rule XXVIII clause 2(a), House Rules and Manual §912a (1995).

19. See House Rules and Manual §912a (1995).

20. See Rule XIV clause 2, House Rules and Manual §758 (1995).

1. See Rule XXVIII clause 2, House Rules and Manual §912a (1995). The rule also provides that if the majority and minority floor managers both support the conference report, one-third of the debate time shall be allotted to a Member opposed.

may, by unanimous consent, either extend that time or permit debate by “special order” on the conference report prior to actual consideration thereof; thus, on one occasion, by unanimous consent, two Members, the chairman and ranking minority member of the House conferees, were permitted “special orders” of one hour each to debate a conference report following adoption of a resolution making in order the consideration of the report but prior to actual consideration of the report.

On Mar. 26, 1975,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House during consideration of a resolution waiving points of order against consideration of a conference report not yet filed or printed. The manager of the rule, Mr. Matsunaga, during debate on the rule, yielded to the chairman of the House conferees (Mr. Ullman) to file the conference report. After filing, Mr. Ullman then requested a special order to explain the report while awaiting copies to reach the floor; the ranking minority member of the House conferrees also received permission for a special order.

MR. [SPARK M.] MATSUNAGA [of Hawaii]: Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman).

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2166, TAX REDUCTION ACT OF 1975

MR. [AL] ULLMAN [of Oregon] submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 2166) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 . . . to increase the investment credit and the surtax exemption, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. 94-120)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2166) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 . . . having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Tax Reduction Act of 1975”

MR. ULLMAN: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that upon the adoption of the rule I be granted a 60-minute special order.

2. 121 CONG. REC. 8899, 8900, 8916, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER: ⁽³⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, we have in the rules of the House an adequate rule for the consideration of conference reports I have no way of knowing, nor does any Member in this Chamber know, who will control the time during a special order, except the gentleman from Oregon, whether questions, once raised, will be answered, or whether or not debate will deteriorate into partisan debate.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is very effectively but improperly stating the rules. The minority has 30 minutes and the majority has 30 minutes on the conference report.

MR. BAUMAN: I am talking about the lack of protection contained in the request for the 1-hour special order that was just made by the gentleman from Oregon.

THE SPEAKER: Any Member of the House may make a request for a special order.

MR. BAUMAN: I withdraw my reservation of objection.

MR. [HERMAN T.] SCHNEEBELI [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I also ask for a 60-minute special order following that of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman).

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Conference Report on Budget Resolution—Debate Is Under Hour Rule on Amendments in Disagreement

§ 17.14 While under section 305(a)(4) [now section 305(a)(6)] of the Congressional Budget Act ⁽⁴⁾ there can be up to five hours of debate on a concurrent resolution on the budget equally divided between the majority and minority parties, where the conferees have reported in total disagreement, debate on the motion to dispose of the amendment in disagreement is not covered by the statute and is therefore under the general “hour” rule in the House.

During consideration of the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1978 (S. Con. Res. 19) in the House on May 17, 1977,⁽⁵⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 19) setting forth the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1978 (and revising the congressional budget for fiscal year 1977), and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ The Clerk will read the conference report.

The Clerk read the conference report. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the Senate amendment to the House amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment to the House amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House engrossed amendment, insert: . . .

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Giaimo moves to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo) for 1 hour.

Parliamentarian's Note: Since the Senate amendment to the House amendment had not been reported from conference in disagreement, but had been subsequently added by the Senate after consideration of the conference report in that body, the requirement for equal division of time on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported from conference in disagreement was not applicable.

On May 13, 1976,⁽⁷⁾ the conferees' report on Senate Concurrent Resolution 109, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal 1977, was called up in the House. The conferees reported in total disagreement on a House amendment in the nature of a substitute for the resolution.

The Senate had amended the House amendment to incorporate the provisions informally agreed upon in conference but outside the scope of the differences with respect to three functional categories. In accordance with the procedure applicable when conferees report that they are unable to agree, the report was called up in the House but not acted upon. The Speaker then directed the Clerk to report the pending Senate amendment to the House amendment for disposition by motion.

MR. [BROCK] ADAMS [of Washington]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 109) setting forth the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1977—and revising the congressional budget for the transition quarter beginning July 1, 1976—and ask for its immediate consideration.

The conference report stated in part:⁽⁸⁾

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 109) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for the fiscal year 1977 (and revising the congressional budget for the transition quarter beginning July 1, 1976), report that the conferees have been unable to agree. This is a technical disagreement, necessitated by the fact that in three instances the substitute language agreed to by the conferees includes figures which (for purely technical reasons) would fall outside the permissible range between the corresponding House and Senate provisions.

It is the intention of the conferees that the managers on the part of the Senate will offer a motion in the Senate to recede and concur in the House amendment to the Senate-passed resolution with an amendment (in the nature of a substitute) consisting of the language agreed to in conference, and that upon the adoption of such amendment in the Senate the managers on the part of the House will offer a motion in the House to concur therein.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ The Chair lays before the House the Senate amendment to the House amendment, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment to the House amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the amendment of the House insert:

9. Carl Albert (Okla.).

That the Congress hereby determines and declares, pursuant to section 301(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, that for the fiscal year beginning on October 1, 1976—

MR. ADAMS: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Adams moves that the House concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Washington (Mr. Adams) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. ADAMS: Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio for purposes of debate only, pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume.⁽¹⁰⁾

On May 17, 1978,⁽¹¹⁾ the conferees' report on Senate Concurrent Resolution 80, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal 1979, was called up in the House. The conferees reported in total disagreement, and

10. Parliamentarian's Note: Since the Senate amendment to the House amendment had not been reported from conference in disagreement, but had been subsequently added by the Senate after consideration of the conference report in that body, the requirement for equal division of time on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment "reported from conference" [see Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b)] in disagreement was not applicable.

11. 124 CONG. REC. 14116, 14117, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

the conference report stated in part: ⁽¹²⁾

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 80) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for the fiscal year 1979, having met, after full and free conference have been unable to agree on a conference report because the conference decisions have reduced certain budget figures, including the deficit and the public debt, below the provisions enacted by either House. As set forth in the accompanying Joint Explanatory Statement, the conferees do propose a congressional budget, containing the lower figures, incorporated in a further amendment for the consideration of the two Houses.

In accordance with the procedure applicable when conferees report that they are unable to agree, the report was called up in the House but not acted upon. The Senate having added an amendment to the House amendment after its consideration of the conference report, the Speaker then directed the Clerk to report the pending Senate amendment to the House amendment for disposition by motion.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment to the House amendment, as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House engrossed amendment, insert:

12. See 124 CONG. REC. 13615, 95th Cong. 2d Sess., May 15, 1978.

That the Congress hereby determines and declares, pursuant to section 301(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, that for the fiscal year beginning on October 1, 1978—

(1) the recommended level of Federal revenues is $447,900,000,000 and the amount by which the aggregate level of Federal revenues should be decreased is $24,700,000,000. . . .

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut] (during the reading): Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate amendment to the House amendment be considered as read and printed in the Record.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: ⁽¹³⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, could the gentleman tell us in what parliamentary form this budget comes before us? Are we dealing with a conference report or a motion to agree to the Senate amendment with an amendment?

MR. GIAIMO: We are in technical disagreement on the conference report, because of the questions of scope, both as to the aggregates and as to the functional categories.

We have before us an amendment to the House amendment to the original Senate resolution. The amendment to the House amendment is the substitute amendment which was agreed upon in conference by the conferees.

It is our intention to move to concur in the Senate amendment to the House amendment.

13. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, it is my recollection that when the Budget Act was originally passed, the law contemplated bringing before the House a conference report, parts of which could be attacked through the ordinary parliamentary rules of the House, so that individual changes made in the conference report could be dealt with. It appears to me the parliamentary avenue the gentleman has chosen to bring this before us precludes the rights of Members of the House and forces us to swallow the whole thing in one gulp without adequate deliberation and a chance to work our will.

MR. [BARBER B.] CONABLE [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. BAUMAN: I yield to the gentleman from New York.

MR. CONABLE: Mr. Speaker, does this result in us not having the statutory period of time to debate the conference report?

MR. BAUMAN: The full 5 hours the Budget Act allows.

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, not 5 hours, we have 1 hour, as I understand the parliamentary situation.

MR. CONABLE: Why is it brought up in this way, Mr. Chairman?

MR. GIAIMO: As I understand the rules, this is the only way it can be brought up and it has been done in this way in the past.

MR. CONABLE: Why do we have the 5-hour rule statutorily, if it has been brought up under a 1-hour rule in the past?

MR. GIAIMO: The 5-hour rule provides where the conference report is not in technical disagreement, because of questions of scope.

MR. CONABLE: Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield further, is it in technical disagreement, because so many of the items in dispute between the House and the Senate were settled outside the parameters set by the two bodies?

MR. GIAIMO: Either above or below the parameters.

MR. CONABLE: Then when we make such a settlement, we always avoid the statutory requirement of 5 hours of debate; is that the conclusion?

MR. GIAIMO: The gentleman can draw whatever inference he wishes.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I think it is still worth making the point. . . . Now we come back and are offered a parliamentary motion that circumvents the rules of the House and does not allow us to attack individual categories of spending or actions of the conferees. This appears to confirm the charges and again calls into question the entire budget process.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XXVIII clause 2(b), requiring division of time for debate on an amendment reported from conference in disagreement, does not apply to a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment added after consideration of a conference report in disagreement in that body.

Recognition To Move Adoption of Part of Conference Report Denied

§ 17.15 A Member cannot be recognized to move the adoption of a conference report only with respect to certain amendments included therein.

On Aug. 22, 1940,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, called up a conference report on a Senate joint resolution. Mr. Walter G. Andrews, of New York, moved the adoption of the report "insofar as amendments numbered 1 to 14 are concerned." Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that Mr. Andrews could not be recognized for that motion, since conference reports must be acted upon as a whole.

Recognition for Motion To Recede and Concur With Amendment After Rejection of Nongermane Matter

§ 17.16 Pursuant to Rule XXVIII clause 4, where the House adopts a motion to reject a portion of a conference report containing a modification of a nongermane Senate amendment, the conference report is considered as rejected and the manager is recognized to offer a motion (considered to be the pending question) to recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment consisting of the remainder of the conference report.

The proceedings of Dec. 2, 1982, relating to rejection of matter found to be nongermane in the conference report on H.R. 2330 (the Nuclear Regulatory Commission authorization), are discussed in more detail in Ch. 28, §§ 26.34 and 26.35, supra. The following exchange⁽¹⁵⁾ occurred after adoption of the motion to reject a portion of the conference report:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE [William H. Natcher, of Kentucky]: Pursuant to clause 4, rule XXVIII, a motion to reject section 23 of the conference report having been adopted, the conference report is considered as rejected and the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Udall) is recognized to offer an amendment consisting of the remainder of the conference report.

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 4, rule XXVIII, and the action of the House, I move that the House recede from its disagreement and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment which I send to the desk.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Udall moves that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate, insert the following.

14. 86 CONG. REC. 10763, 76th Cong. 3d Sess.

15. 128 CONG. REC. 28552, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

Time for Debate Divided Three Ways

§ 17.17 In certain instances, under Rule XXVIII, where Members of the majority and minority who would otherwise divide the time for debate do not oppose a proposition, one who does oppose such proposition may be recognized to control one-third of the time.

Provisions of Rule XXVIII apply to debate on motions to instruct conferees, conference reports, and Senate amendments in disagreement. Application of these provisions is discussed in §§ 17.18–17.20, and in § 26, infra.

§ 17.18 Pursuant to clause 2(b) of Rule XXVIII, debate on a motion to dispose of an amendment reported from conference in disagreement is equally divided between the majority and minority parties, unless the minority Member favors the motion, in which event one-third of the time is allocated to a Member opposed.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Aug. 1, 1985,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of the conference report on Senate Concurrent Resolution 32 (the First Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for fiscal year 1986):

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ Under the rules, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Gray) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

MR. [BARNEY] FRANK [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. FRANK: Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) opposed to the bill?

MR. [DELBERT L.] LATTA [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I am not opposed to the bill.

MR. FRANK: Mr. Speaker, I believe then that under rule XXVIII, a Member in opposition to the bill is entitled to 20 minutes.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is correct. Under the rule, the gentleman is entitled to one-third of the time.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Gray) will be recognized for 20 minutes, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

§ 17.19 Pursuant to clause 2(a) of Rule XXVIII, where the floor managers for the majority and minority parties on a conference report are both supporters thereof, a Member opposed may be recognized for one-third of the debate time and it is within the discretion of the Chair as to which Member is recognized in opposition; such recognition does not depend upon party affiliation, and the time in opposition may be divided by unanimous consent or yielded by the Member recognized.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Dec. 11, 1985,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of the conference report on House Joint Resolution 372 (the public debt limit increase):

MR. [DAN] ROSTENKOWSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of Tuesday, December 10, 1985, I call up the conference report on the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 372), increasing the statutory limit on the public debt.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ Pursuant to the order of the House of Tuesday, December 10, 1985, the conference report is considered as having been read. . . .

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Rostenkowski) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Duncan) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

18. 131 CONG. REC. 36069, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

19. Lawrence J. Smith (Fla.).

MR. [DAVID R.] OBEY [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. OBEY: Mr. Speaker, did I hear the Speaker say that the time would be divided between the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Rostenkowski) and the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Duncan)?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman heard correctly.

MR. OBEY: Mr. Speaker, [is the gentleman] from Tennessee opposed to the legislation?

MR. [JOHN J.] DUNCAN [of Tennessee]: Mr. Speaker, I am not opposed to the legislation.

MR. OBEY: Mr. Speaker, that being the case, I ask under rule XXVIII, since the rules provide that those in opposition be entitled to 20 minutes, I would ask that I be assigned that 20-minute time block.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair advises that the gentleman is correct, and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Rostenkowski) will be recognized for 20 minutes, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Duncan) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

MR. DUNCAN: I have a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his inquiry.

MR. DUNCAN: Mr. Speaker, did I understand there is to be additional time assigned to those who oppose the conference report? If I understand correctly, we have some people on our side.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey) is opposed, and he will control the 20 minutes time.

MR. DUNCAN: Mr. Speaker, Mr. Crane is also opposed. We would expect equal time, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Crane is on the committee, and he would expect equal time.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would advise that the gentleman from Wisconsin is also on the conference committee.

MR. DUNCAN: No, Mr. Speaker, he is not on the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Crane is.

We would expect, and I am for the proposal, and he is in opposition.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under the rule, 60 minutes is allotted: 20 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois, 20 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Duncan), and 20 minutes to one Member opposed, in this case the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey).

MR. [PHILIP M.] CRANE [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CRANE: Mr. Speaker, I am on the committee; I rose, registered my objection, and I do not know whether that was heard in the din of the crowd here tonight, but I would at least ask the Speaker to permit a division of that time. I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise that the gentleman from Wisconsin was on his feet and was recognized, in the Chair's discretion and was granted the 20 minutes of the 60.

MR. DUNCAN: Mr. Speaker, under the rules of the House, I think that the gentleman would be entitled to half of that; otherwise, I think everyone wants to be fair; that I would ask unanimous consent that he be granted that.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would advise that the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey) can yield whatever time that he may desire.

MR. DUNCAN: Would Mr. Obey yield half of that to our side?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Tennessee poses a question to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

The gentleman from Wisconsin has the 20 minutes; the gentleman from Tennessee wishes to know if he would grant half of that to the minority.

MR. OBEY: Mr. Speaker, I do not think the rule requires that those who are opposed grant the time to the opposition party. I will certainly make certain that people are recognized, but I would appreciate it if they could come to me and let me know that they want to speak.

MR. DUNCAN: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Mr. Crane have the same amount of time that the majority has and that he may control that time.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

MR. OBEY: I object, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Rostenkowski).

§ 17.20 Pursuant to clause 2(a) of Rule XXVIII, it is within the discretion of the Speaker as to which Member is recognized to control 20 minutes of debate in opposition to a conference report (where the minority manager is not opposed), and such recognition does not depend on party affiliation.

On Dec. 16, 1985,⁽²⁰⁾ after the conference report on House Joint Resolution 456 (making further continuing appropriations for fiscal 1986) was called up in the House, the Speaker Pro Tempore allocated time for debate in support and in opposition, as indicated below:

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of today, I call up the conference report on the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 456) making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1986, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ This conference report is being considered pursuant to the unanimous consent request granted earlier today, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Whitten asked unanimous consent that it shall be in order, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, at any time on Monday, December 16, or any day thereafter, to consider the conference report and amendments in disagreement and motions to dispose of said amendments on House Joint Resolution 456 subject to the availability of said conference report and motions to dispose of amendments in disagreement for at least 1 hour, that all points of order be waived against the conference report and amendments in disagreement and motions to dispose of said amendments, and that said conference report and amendments in disagreement be considered as having been read when called up for consideration. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

MR. [BARNEY] FRANK [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I ask for 20 minutes recognition in opposition because the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) is for the bill. . . .

Mr. Speaker, since the gentleman from Massachusetts is for the bill, under the rule I ask for the 20 minutes to be allotted to a Member in opposition, when both the chairman and the ranking minority Member are in support of the bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman has that right.

The time will be divided in this fashion: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) will be recognized for 20 minutes; the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) will be recognized for 20 minutes; and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

20. 131 CONG. REC. 36716, 36717, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

1. Dale E. Kildee (Mich.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, the minority has just been effectively frozen out of controlling any of the time, when I was seeking recognition to take the 20 minutes. The Chair has denied, then, the minority the opportunity to control our portion of the time.

Can the Chair explain why Members on this side were not recognized? I, too, am opposed to the bill and should have been entitled to the 20 minutes.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that recognition of one Member who is opposed is in the Speaker's discretion, and the Speaker tries always to be fair.

The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank) may yield time as he wishes. . . .

The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte), the minority side, will be recognized for 20 minutes; the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank), who is opposed, will be recognized for 20 minutes; and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

The procedure under which we are proceeding was agreed upon earlier today, and the Chair will be guided by the will of the House, which was stated earlier today.

Division of Time Under Former Practice

§ 17.21 Under the former practice, the offeror of a motion to instruct conferees controlled one hour of debate and could yield half of that time to an opponent.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 372 (public debt limit increase) in the House on Oct. 11, 1985,⁽²⁾ a motion was made by Robert H. Michel, of Illinois, as follows:

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct conferees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Michel moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes on the two Houses on the joint resolution, H.J. Res. 372, be instructed to promptly report amendments to the Budget Control and Impoundment Act which provide mechanisms for deficit reductions, including specific and mandatory budget goals for achieving a balanced budget within the next 6 years.

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I would not expect to use the complete hour.

THE SPEAKER: Will the gentleman yield a half hour to the Democratic side?

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield 15 minutes for the moment and 15 minutes for our side and let us see where we go.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman want to ask unanimous consent that the debate be 30 minutes instead of 1 hour?

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I do not want to do anything that is going to upset some Members here, but if we can put a little bit of restraint—

2. 131 CONG. REC. 27366, 27367, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

3. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman intend to yield equal time to the opponents of the motion, if there is opposition?

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I would certainly intend that the time be equally divided.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) is recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Rostenkowski) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XXVIII, clause 1(b)⁽⁴⁾ now provides that the time allotted for debate on any motion to instruct House conferees shall be equally divided between the majority and minority parties, except that if the proponent of the motion and the Member from the other party are both supporters of the motion, one third of such debate time shall be allotted to a Member who is opposed to said motion.

§ 17.22 Under the former practice, a motion to instruct conferees was debatable for one hour within the control of the proponent of the motion, and another Member could not obtain recognition from the Chair to speak in opposition, unless yielded time by the proponent (or unless the previous question was rejected).

4. House Rules and Manual §909a (1995).

Parliamentarian's Note: Under a rule adopted in the 101st Congress, time for debate on a motion to instruct conferees is divided. (H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1989).

During consideration of H.R. 12930 (the Treasury, Postal Service, general government appropriation bill) in the House on Sept. 7, 1978,⁽⁵⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [TOM] STEED [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 12930) making appropriations for the Treasury Department, the United States Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain Independent Agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1979, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments therefor, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Brown of Ohio moves that the managers on the part of the House, at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill, H.R. 12930, the "Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations, 1979," be instructed

5. 124 CONG. REC. 28362, 28363, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

6. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

to agree to the amendment of the Senate numbered 7.

THE SPEAKER: Under the rules, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) is recognized for one hour.

For what purpose does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Vanik) rise?

MR. [CHARLES A.] VANIK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I desire to be heard in opposition to the motion.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the time is under the control of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown).

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) is recognized for one hour. . . .

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Vanik), for the purpose of debate only.

Senate Amendments—Actively Seeking Recognition

§ 17.23 A Member desiring to offer a motion in the House to dispose of a Senate amendment must actively seek recognition from the Chair before another motion to dispose of the amendment has been adopted, and the fact that he may have been standing at that time is not sufficient to confer recognition.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 357 (further continuing appropriations) in the House on Nov. 22, 1981,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

7. 127 CONG. REC. 28751, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁸⁾ The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 37

MR. [VIC] FAZIO [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Fazio moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 37.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Fazio). All those in favor say "aye," opposed "no."

The ayes have it. The motion is agreed to.

The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk. I have a motion. I was standing, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: To what amendment does the gentleman have a motion?

MR. CONTE: Senate amendment No. 37.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the House has already disposed of that amendment.

MR. CONTE: I was standing here seeking recognition, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, what was the decision?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman may have been standing, but he was not seeking recognition, in the opinion of the Chair.

MR. CONTE: What was the outcome of that, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: Senate amendment No. 37 was disagreed to.

8. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

MR. CONTE: And I was standing with a motion, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognized that there were three or four others standing, and the gentleman was in a conversation with one of his colleagues, and was not asking for recognition.

—Full Committee Chairmen

§ 17.24 Where the Member calling up a conference report in disagreement does not seek recognition to offer a motion to dispose of the matter in disagreement, the majority Member recognized to offer a motion controls one-half the time thereon, and the minority the other half, pursuant to Rule XXVIII clause 2; thus, in the present instance, where the chairman of the subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations calling up a conference report in disagreement on a Senate amendment to a House amendment to a Senate amendment to a House bill did not seek recognition to offer a motion, the Chair recognized the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations to offer the preferential motion to concur in the Senate amendment and divided the time between the majority and minority.

On Nov. 3, 1977,⁽⁹⁾ the proceedings relating to the consideration of H.R. 7555 (the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations) in the House were as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood).

MR. [DANIEL J.] FLOOD [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the resolution just agreed to, I call up the conference report on the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 82 to the bill (H.R. 7555) making appropriations for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and for other purposes. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 28: Sec. 209. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to perform abortions except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas] [Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mahon moves that the House concur in the amendment of the Sen-

9. 123 CONG. REC. 36959, 36966, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. K. Gunn McKay (Utah).

ate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 82.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon).

—Manager of Conference Report Recognized

§ 17.25 Where a conference report in disagreement, which has been available for three days as required by clause 2 of Rule XXVIII, is called up, the conference report and the Senate amendment in disagreement are considered as having been read, and the Chair recognizes the manager of the conference report to offer a motion to dispose of the Senate amendment; the motion is debatable for one hour, equally divided between the majority and minority parties.

On May 29, 1980,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of the conference report on a House concurrent resolution, the following proceedings took place in the House:

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 307) setting forth the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal years 1981, 1982, and 1983 and revising the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1980, and ask for its immediate consideration.

11. 126 CONG. REC. 12678, 12680, 12684, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹²⁾ The Clerk will read the conference report.

The Clerk read the conference report. . . .

THE SPEAKER: Pursuant to the rule, the Senate amendment is considered as having been read.

The Senate amendment reads as follows:

Strike out all after the resolving clause, and insert:

“That the Congress hereby determines and declares, pursuant to section 301(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, that: . . .

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Giaimo moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and to concur therein with an amendment, as follows: . . .

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo).

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for 2 hours of debate on my motion.

12. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

—Manager of Conference Report May Defer to Another To Offer Motion To Dispose of Amendment

§ 17.26 The manager of a conference report and amendments reported from conference in disagreement may defer to another member of the committee to offer the initial motion to dispose of an amendment reported in disagreement.

On May 24, 1984,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of the conference report on House Joint Resolution 492 (urgent supplemental appropriations for the Department of Agriculture) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Whitten moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 34 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ The question is on the motion offered by

13. 130 CONG. REC. 14254, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

14. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten).

The motion was agreed to.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will designate amendment No. 14.

The amendment reads as follows:

Senate amendment No. 14: Page 2, after line 17, insert:

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

For activities of the Central Intelligence Agency . . . not to exceed $21,000,000. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten).

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, on this amendment I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland).

MR. [EDWARD P.] BOLAND [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Boland moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14 and concur therein with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert the following:

No funds are appropriated herein for the Central Intelligence Agency in fiscal year 1984 for the purpose . . . of supporting, directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary operations in Nicaragua. . . .

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I yield our time to my good friend from Virginia (Mr. Robinson).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Robinson) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Whitten technically could not "yield" to Mr. Boland in this instance, since he did not have the floor between motions, but simply defer and not seek recognition.

—When Preferential Motion To Dispose of Senate Amendment May Be Offered

§ 17.27 Where a Member offering a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment in disagreement controls one-half hour of debate, a preferential motion to dispose of the Senate amendment may not be offered while he has the floor unless yielded for that purpose, but may be offered pending recognition of a Member from the other political party to control one-half the time on the initial motion; moreover, the previous question may not be moved by the Member first recognized so as to prevent the Member from the other party from controlling half the debate and from offering a proper preferential motion to dispose of the Senate amendment.

On July 2, 1980,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of the supplemental appropriations and rescission bill for fiscal year 1980 (H.R. 7542) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁶⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long), to concur with the Senate amendment numbered 95.

The motion was rejected.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves to recede and concur in the amendment of the Senate (No. 95) with an amendment as follows: . . .

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I have a preferential motion.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have been recognized, I believe. . . .

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I was on my feet for a preferential motion.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: On this motion the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) has the time. . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: . . . I offer a preferential motion that is at the desk. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Well, I did not yield for that purpose, Mr. Speaker. I control the time, do I not?

15. 126 CONG. REC. 18357, 18359-61, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

16. Paul Simon (Ill.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) has 30 minutes, the majority side has 30 minutes. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: For what purpose does the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill) seek recognition?

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, a point of order. I moved the previous question on the pending motion.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The motion for the previous question does not rule out a preferential motion, if moved while time is remaining to the opposite party. The previous question is not yet in order.

Recognition for Unanimous-consent Request To Dispose of Senate Amendment

§ 17.28 In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Chair announced guidelines for recognition for unanimous-consent requests to dispose of Senate amendments to House-passed bills on the Speaker's table, indicating that the Chair will entertain a unanimous-consent request for the disposition of a Senate amendment to a House-passed bill on the Speaker's table, only if made by the chairman of the committee with jurisdiction, or by an other member of the committee where the Chair has been advised by the chairman of the committee that such member has been authorized formally or informally by the committee to make the request.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Apr. 26, 1984:⁽¹⁷⁾

MR. [DANIEL E.] LUNGREN [of California]: . . . Mr. Speaker, since we have moved with such dispatch on the question dealing with the labor unions' concern, I would like to direct to the Chair a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Speaker, it deals with a piece of legislation that has come out of the same committee and is a variation of H.R. 3635, the Child Protection Act of 1983, which we passed 400 to 1 on November 11, 1983.

There was an agreement worked out between the Members of the House and the Senate for a compromise. That went to the Senate. They passed our version, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute and it is my information that H.R. 3635 was sent to the Speaker's desk from the Senate on April 2 or 3 of this year.

My parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker, is: Is H.R. 3635 presently at the Speaker's desk?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

17. 130 CONG. REC. 10193, 10194, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

18. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Speaker, does that mean that the Senate amendment, H.R. 3635, has not yet been referred to a committee?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. LUNGREN: And can the Chair inform me at this time and inform the House as to what procedure might be available to us at this time to allow for immediate consideration of that Senate amendment?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would advise the gentleman that the Chair would only recognize for a request by the chairman or another member if authorized by the committee.

MR. LUNGREN: Authorization of the committee, that means authorization of the Democratic leadership?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Authorization of the committee.

MR. LUNGREN: Does the Chair mean that it takes an official vote of the committee or an agreement by the chairman of the committee itself?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Speaker would look to the chairman of the committee.

§ 17.29 The Speaker, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, indicated that only the chairman of the committee having jurisdiction of the subject matter of a bill would be recognized to ask unanimous consent to take it from the Speaker's table, disagree to a Senate amendment, and ask for a conference.

On Sept. 1, 1960,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, raised a parliamentary inquiry on the disposition of a House bill with a Senate amendment which had been returned to the House and was on the Speaker's table. Mr. Halleck inquired whether it would be in order to submit a unanimous-consent request to take the bill from the table, disagree to the Senate amendment, and send the bill to conference. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, responded that such a request could only be made by Chairman Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, of the committee with jurisdiction over the bill, the Committee on Agriculture.

—Unanimous-consent Request To Call House Bill With Senate Amendments From Speaker's Table

§ 17.30 House bills with Senate amendments may be called from the Speaker's table by unanimous consent for disposition of the Senate amendments or for a request to go to conference, and the Speaker recognizes the Member in charge of the bill for that purpose.

¹⁹ 106 CONG. REC. 18920, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

On July 11, 1932,⁽²⁰⁾ Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, made the following statement:

The Chair asks the attention of the House for a moment. Where a House bill has been passed, has gone to the Senate, and the Senate has amended it, the Chair thinks it is the duty of the Chair to recognize the Member in charge of the bill to ask unanimous consent for its present consideration either to go to conference or concur in the Senate amendment. If any of the gentlemen have bills under such circumstances, the Chair will recognize them for the purpose of asking unanimous consent for the consideration of the Senate amendment at this time.⁽²¹⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: A privileged motion to disagree with Senate amendments or insist on House amendments, and request or agree to a conference, is in order (at the Speaker's discretion) if authorized by the reporting committee, under clause 1 of Rule XX, and may be offered by the chairman of the committee or another member designated by the committee. Otherwise, Senate amendments requiring consideration in Committee of the Whole are not subject to disposition by privileged motion under clause 1, Rule XX before the stage of disagreement has been reached.

§ 17.31 The Speaker declined to recognize a Member for a unanimous-consent request to take a bill from the Speaker's table and concur in the Senate amendments, where such a request was made without the authorization of the chairman of the committee with jurisdiction and where Members had been informed there would be no further legislative business for the day.

On July 31, 1969,⁽¹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, refused to recognize Mr. Hale Boggs, of Louisiana, for a unanimous-consent request:

MR. BOGGS: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H.R. 9951), to provide for the collection of the Federal unemployment tax in quarterly installments . . . and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that at this time the Chair does not recognize the gentleman from Louisiana for that purpose.

The chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means is at present appearing before the Committee on Rules seeking a rule and Members have been told that there would be no further business tonight.

—Committee Chairman Moves To Suspend Rules

§ 17.32 The Speaker recognizes the chairman of the committee with jurisdiction of a bill to move to suspend the rules and agree to a resolution taking the bill with Senate amendments from the Speaker's table, disagreeing to Senate amendments, and requesting a conference.

On Oct. 1, 1962,⁽²⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Thomas J. Murray, of Tennessee, Chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, to suspend the rules and agree to House Resolution 818:

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the bill H.R. 7927, with the Senate amendment thereto, be, and the same hereby is, taken from the Speaker's table, to the end that the Senate amendment be, and the same hereby is, disagreed to and a conference is requested with the Senate upon the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

§ 17.33 The Speaker recognizes the chairman of the committee with jurisdiction over the subject matter of a bill to move to suspend the rules and agree to a resolution taking the bill with Senate amendments from the Speaker's table and agreeing to the Senate amendments.

On Aug. 27, 1962,⁽³⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Oren Harris, of Arkansas, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to move to suspend the rules and agree to House Resolution 269:

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the bill H.R. 11040, with the Senate amendments thereto, be, and the same is hereby taken from the Speaker's table, to the end that the Senate amendment be, and the same is hereby, agreed to.

Debate on Nongermane Senate Amendments

§ 17.34 Where a Member opposed to a section of a conference report demanded a separate vote on that section pursuant to a special order permitting such procedure and pursuant to Rule XX, clause 1, that Member and the Member calling up the conference report were each recognized for 20 minutes of debate as required by Rule XX clause 1.

On Nov. 10, 1971,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. F. Edward Hébert, of Louisiana, called up a conference report on H.R. 8687, military procurement authorization. Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, stated that the special order under which the report was being considered, House Resolution 696, provided that a separate vote could be demanded on certain sections of the conference report (containing nongermane portions of the Senate amendment). Mr. Donald M. Fraser, of Minnesota, demanded a separate vote on section 503 of the report pursuant to the special order and pursuant to Rule XX clause 1 of the House rules.

The Speaker then stated the order of recognition pending the separate vote:

4. 117 CONG. REC. 40483, 92d Cong. 1st Sess.

Under clause 1 of Rule XX, 40 minutes of debate are permitted before a separate vote is taken on a nongermane Senate amendment, one-half of such time in favor of, and one-half in opposition to the amendment.

Pursuant to that rule, the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Hébert] will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Fraser] will be recognized for 20 minutes.

Debate on Motion To Dispose of Amendment in Disagreement

§ 17.35 Debate on a motion to dispose of an amendment reported from conference in disagreement is equally divided between the majority and minority parties under Rule XXVIII clause 2(b),⁽⁵⁾ and where the manager of the conference report making the motion does not immediately seek recognition for debate, the Chair nevertheless allocates 30 minutes to him and may recognize a minority Member at that time for 30 minutes.

5. The rule now makes provision for a three-way division of debate where the majority and minority floor managers support the motion. See § 17.17, supra.

Oct. 18, 1977,⁽⁶⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Long of Maryland moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 74 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: Restore the matter stricken by said amendment, amended to read as follows:

“Sec. 503C. Of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act, not more than $18,100,000 shall be used for military assistance, not more than $1,850,000 shall be used for foreign military credit sales, and not more than $700,000 shall be used for international military education and training to the Government of the Philippines.” . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁷⁾ . . . Does the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long) seek recognition?

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I do not, at this time.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Young) desire to be recognized.

MR. [C. W.] YOUNG of Florida: Mr. Speaker, I do.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Young) will be recognized for 30 minutes each.

is read but not acted on when called up; the Speaker directs the Clerk to report the (Senate) amendment in disagreement and recognizes the manager of the report for a motion to dispose of said amendment; and said motion is debatable for one hour, equally divided between the majority and minority pursuant to clause 2(b) of Rule XXVIII.

On Sept. 15, 1977,⁽⁸⁾ the procedure for consideration of a conference report in total disagreement was demonstrated as follows:

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of September 15, 1977, I call up the conference report on the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 341) revising the congressional budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1978, and ask for its immediate consideration.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ The Clerk will read the conference report. . . .

The Clerk will report the Senate amendment [in disagreement]. . . .

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

8. 123 CONG. REC. 29424, 29425, 95th Cong. 1st Sess. Rule XXVIII, cl. 2(b) now provides for a three-way division of debate where the majority and minority floor managers support the motion. See § 17.17, supra.
9. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Giaimo moves to recede from disagreement to the Senate amendment and to concur therein with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed by the Senate, insert the following: . . .

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) will be recognized for 30 minutes each.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo).

During consideration of the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1980 (H. Con. Res. 107) in the House on May 23, 1979,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of May 22, 1979, I call up the conference report on the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 107) setting forth the Congressional Budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1980 and revising the Congressional Budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1979. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ The Clerk will read the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Strike out all after the resolving clause and insert:

That the Congress hereby determines and declares [that]

(a) In order to achieve a balanced budget in fiscal year 1981, the following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1979, October 1, 1980, and October 1, 1981— . . .

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Giaimo moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and to concur therein with an amendment, as follows: . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo) will be recognized for 30 minutes [and] the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Latta) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Giaimo).

Former Practice as to Debate on Amendments in Disagreement

§ 17.37 Prior to the amendment to Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b) in the 92d Congress (providing that debate on an amendment in disagreement be divided between the majority and minority parties), debate on an amendment reported from conference in disagreement was under the hour rule and the Member calling up the conference report was in control of the debate thereon.

10. 125 CONG. REC. 12469, 12471, 12472, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

11. John Brademas (Ind.).

On Aug. 1, 1962,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. John E. Fogarty, of Rhode Island, called up a conference report together with certain Senate amendments in disagreement. During consideration of the amendments, Speaker Pro Tempore Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, answered a parliamentary inquiry put to him by Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa:

MR. GROSS: Is the gentleman from Rhode Island [Mr. Fogarty] going to explain any of these amendments?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is within the discretion of the gentleman.

MR. GROSS: A further parliamentary inquiry. Does not the gentleman have an hour on each of these amendments?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman has if he desires to use it.⁽¹³⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: House Resolution 1153, which was adopted on Oct. 13, 1972, 92d Cong. 2d Sess., to become effective at the end of the 92d Congress, amended Rule XXVIII by requiring that debate on amendments reported from conference in disagreement be equally divided and controlled by the majority and minority parties. Thus the hour of debate on a motion offered to dispose of an amendment in disagreement is equally controlled by the Member calling up the report and a Member of the minority, typically the senior conferee of that party. Language in Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b)(1) now provides further that if the managers for the majority and minority both support a motion to dispose of an amendment one-third of the debate time shall be allotted to a Member opposed to the motion.

Recognition for Motions To Dispose of Amendments in Disagreement

§ 17.38 As each amendment in disagreement is reported, the Chair recognizes the Member handling the conference report to offer a motion relating to that amendment; and even though another Member offers a preferential motion relating to that amendment, the Member handling the report remains in control of the debate under the hour rule (subject to the division of time required by clause 2(b) of Rule XXVIII).

On Oct. 24, 1967,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Joseph L. Evins, of Tennessee, was handling a conference report being considered by the House on H.R. 9960, an appropriation for fiscal year 1968. As each amendment in disagreement was reported, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. Evins to make a motion in regard to that amendment. On amendments 58 and 59 (considered en bloc by unanimous consent), Mr. Evins moved that the House insist on its disagreement. Mr. Robert N. Giaimo, of Connecticut, then made the preferential motion that the House recede and concur in those amendments. The Speaker recognized Mr. Evins as the Member in control of the report to control one hour of debate on both motions, and the preferential motion was rejected.

§ 17.39 Where a Senate amendment reported from conference in disagreement remains in disagreement following subsequent action by the House and Senate, a further motion to dispose of the Senate amendment in the House is privileged and subject to one hour of debate, equally divided, under Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b), between majority and minority parties (subject to the division of time required by Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b) when the majority and minority floor managers support the motion).

On Feb. 22, 1978,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of H.R. 9375 (supplemental appropriations for 1978) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I move to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 9375) making supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and for other purposes, with the remaining amendment in disagreement thereto, and that the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment numbered 43 and concur therein.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Senate amendment No. 43: Page 14, after line 4, insert:

Appropriations provided under this heading in the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1977, are rescinded in the amount of $462,000,000.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁶⁾ The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon) is recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Cederberg) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Proponent of Motion To Recede and Concur Did Not Seek Recognition

§ 17.40 Where the proponent of a motion to recede and con-

16. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

cur in a Senate amendment failed to seek recognition to debate the motion, the Chair recognized the Member handling the conference report (who did not then have a motion pending).

On May 14, 1963,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House was considering a conference report and Senate amendments in disagreement, called up and managed by Mr. Albert Thomas, of Texas. Mr. Robert R. Barry, of New York, offered a preferential motion that the House recede and concur in a certain amendment in disagreement (after a motion to recede and concur with an amendment offered by Mr. Thomas was ruled out on a point of order). A division of the question was demanded and Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that the question was on receding from disagreement.

Mr. Thomas then raised a parliamentary inquiry:

Mr. Speaker, is it in order for the chairman of the House conferees to make a short statement at this time on it?

The Speaker answered that the motion was debatable, and since Mr. Barry did not seek recognition, the Speaker recognized Mr. Thomas on the motion. In answer to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Barry, the proponent of the motion, the Speaker stated that Mr. Thomas had control of time on the motion since he had been recognized.

Parliamentarian's Note: Where the manager of a conference report with amendments in disagreement has offered a proper motion on an amendment in disagreement, he controls the time even where a preferential motion is offered (see §17.38, supra).

Motion To Dispose of Amendment Was Preferential in Form Only—Chair Recognized for Subsequent Preferential Motion

§ 17.41 Where a motion, already offered and under debate, to dispose of a Senate amendment appeared to be in form a preferential motion, but was in fact a motion merely re-inserting House text stricken by the Senate amendment (and therefore in effect a motion to insist on disagreement), the Chair could consider the substance of the motion and was not prohibited from recognizing for a subsequent proper preferential motion and putting the question first thereon, a point of order against the initial motion having been reserved.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on July 2, 1980,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of H.R. 7542 (supplemental appropriations and rescission bill for fiscal year 1980):

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves to recede and concur in the amendment of the Senate (No. 95) with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken and inserted by said amendment insert the following:

CHAPTER VI

MR. [ALLEN E.] ERTEL [of Pennsylvania] (during the reading): Mr. Speaker, I reserve a point of order.

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I have a preferential motion. . . .

19. Paul Simon (Ill.).

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have the floor and I do not yield. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: On this motion the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Bauman] has the time. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: My parliamentary inquiry is that the Chair stated a moment ago that the time on a preferential motion to concur with an amendment is divided between the majority and the minority. Is it not controlled by the maker of the motion? . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The practice of the House is clearly on a motion of this type after an initial motion has been rejected on an amendment reported from conference in disagreement that the time is divided between the majority and the minority parties.

MR. BAUMAN: The second question I have is, has not the gentleman from Maryland made a preferential motion which is now pending?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Bauman] made a motion which was in form a preferential motion. Upon examination by the Chair, it is in fact a motion to insist upon the original House position rather than a motion to amend the Senate amendment. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Well, is not the gentleman from Maryland's motion a preferential motion under the rule?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: In form it is but upon examination it is in fact a motion to insist upon the House position.

MR. BAUMAN: Well, does not the Chair have to be subjected to a point of order at an appropriate time in order to make that ruling? Does the Chair on its own inquire behind the form of motion? . . .

Well, but the Chair made a statement a few moments ago, unsolicited by anyone that my motion was not a preferential motion. This gentleman would like to ask upon what authority the Chair is able to rule a preferential motion offered in proper form is non-preferential when no one has raised the issue.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has not ruled out the motion of the gentleman from Maryland. It is still pending. The parliamentary inquiry was whether it was a preferential motion. . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: . . . The Clerk will read the preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows: Mr. O'Neill moves that the House concur in the amendment of Senate numbered 95 with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter deleted and inserted by said amendment, insert the following: . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order that this motion is not a preferential motion. It is, in fact, an amendment to the pending motion of the gentleman from Maryland, which sought to concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is trying to be fair to all Members, but the fact remains that the motion to concur with an amendment takes precedence over a motion to insist on the House petition, and the point is not well taken.

MR. BAUMAN: A point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The gentleman from Maryland has offered a motion to concur in the amendment of the Senate with an amendment, and now another motion to concur in the amendment of the Senate with an amendment is being offered. That additional motion is not in order at this point.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland has offered an amendment which in form was a motion to concur with an amendment. In fact, it is a motion to insist on the original House language.

Proponent of Preferential Motion Does Not Control Debate

§ 17.42 Where amendments have been reported from conference in disagreement, the motion to recede and concur with an amendment has preference over a motion to insist on disagreement, but the proponent of the preferential motion does not thereby gain control of the time for debate.

On May 14, 1975,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of the conference report on H.R. 4881⁽²¹⁾ in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER:⁽²²⁾ The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mahon moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 61.

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR. CONTE

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Conte moves that the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment number 61 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate, insert the following:

“CHAPTER VIII

“DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

“FEDERAL RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION

“For payment of financial assistance to assist railroads by providing funds for repairing, rehabilitating, and improving railroad roadbeds and facilities, $200,000,000. . . .”

MR. [E. G.] SHUSTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SHUSTER: Mr. Speaker, how is the time divided?

THE SPEAKER: The time is divided equally between the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon), who has 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) who has 30 minutes or such small fraction thereof as he may decide to use.

§ 17.43 The stage of disagreement having been reached on a Senate amendment to a House amendment to a Senate amendment to a House bill, the motion to concur in the Senate amendment takes precedence over a motion to disagree and request a conference, but the Member offering the preferential motion does not thereby obtain control of the time which is controlled by the manager of the bill and is equally divided between the majority and minority.

On Oct. 13, 1977,⁽¹⁾ the House had under consideration H.R. 7555 (Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriation bill for fiscal 1978) when the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [DANIEL J.] FLOOD [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I move to take

1. 123 CONG. REC. 33688, 33689, 33693, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 7555) making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment to the House amendment to Senate amendment numbered 82, disagree to the amendment of the Senate, and request a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

MOTION OFFERED BY MR. FLOOD

Mr. Flood moves to take from the Speaker's table the bill H.R. 7555, making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment to the House amendment to Senate amendment numbered 82, disagree to the amendment of the Senate, and request a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

MR. [NEWTON I.] STEERS [Jr., of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steers of Maryland moves that the House concur in the Senate Amendment to the House Amendment to the Senate Amendment No. 82.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood) is in control of the time, and the gentleman is recognized for 30 minutes.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RHODES: Mr. Speaker, since the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Steers) made the motion which is being considered by the House, does the gentleman from Maryland not have control of the time?

THE SPEAKER: In response to the parliamentary inquiry, the preferential motion made by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Steers) does not take the time from the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the chairman of the committee, who previously had the time under his original motion. The motion was in order. The vote will come first on the preferential motion.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood).

§ 17.44 The offering of a preferential motion cannot deprive the Member making an original motion (to dispose of a Senate amendment) of control of the floor for debate, and the Chair will recognize the Member controlling the floor when a preferential motion is offered.

During consideration of the foreign assistance appropriation bill (H.R. 7797) in the House on Oct. 18, 1977,⁽³⁾ the following motions were offered:

3. 123 CONG. REC. 34112, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

2. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Long of Maryland moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 74 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: Restore the matter stricken by said amendment, amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 503C. Of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act, not more than $18,100,000 shall be used for military assistance, not more than $1,850,000 shall be used for foreign military credit sales, and not more than $700,000 shall be used for international military education and training to the Government of the Philippines." . . .

MR. [C. W.] YOUNG of Florida: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Young of Florida moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 74 and concur therein.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁴⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long).

Parliamentarian's Note: Although during the above proceedings Mr. Young moved the previous question on his preferential motion, ordinarily the maker of a preferential motion should not be permitted to move the previous question thereon, since he does not gain the floor for any purpose other than to offer the motion. The manager of the bill should be the one recognized to move the previous question on the motion.

Although, as in the above instance, the minority Member controlling half the time on a motion on an amendment in disagreement may make a preferential motion during his time for debate, the more usual practice is that the preferential motion be made either before or after the hour of debate on the initial motion.

§ 17.45 A motion to concur in a Senate amendment (the stage of disagreement having been reached) takes precedence over a motion to disagree, but the proponent of the preferential motion does not gain control of the time for debate, which remains in the control of the Member calling up the bill and offering the initial motion.

On Oct. 14, 1978,⁽⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House during consideration of H.R. 12929 (Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations):

MR. [DANIEL J.] FLOOD [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I again move to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H.R. 12929) making appropriations for

4. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

5. 124 CONG. REC. 38230, 38231, 38236, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare, and related agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1979, and for other purposes, with Senate amendment No. 103 thereto and disagree to the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read Senate amendment No. 103 as follows:

Page 40, strike out lines 1 to 4, inclusive, and insert:

Sec. 210. None of the funds in this Act shall be used to perform abortions except . . . where medically necessary

MR. FLOOD: Mr. Speaker, I have moved to disagree to the Senate amendment.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ That motion is now pending.

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mahon moves that the House concur in the amendment of the Senate.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. FLOOD: Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time.

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the preferential motion.

The previous question was ordered.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Member calling up a bill which has been reported from conference and which remains in the stage of disagreement controls one hour of debate on a motion to dispose of an amendment adopted by the Senate after consideration of the conference report in both Houses (and not reported from conference in disagreement), and the division of time between the majority and minority under clause 2(b) of Rule XXVIII does not apply.

§ 17.46 Although the motion to concur in a Senate amendment takes precedence over the motion to disagree where the stage of disagreement has been reached, the Member offering the preferential motion does not thereby gain control of the time for debate, which remains in the control of the manager of the bill under the hour rule.

On Nov. 29, 1977,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [DANIEL J.] FLOOD [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I move to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H.R. 7555) making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and for other purposes, with the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate No. 82, and disagree thereto.

6. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

7. 123 CONG. REC. 38033, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment to the House amendment to the Senate amendment No. 82, as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 82, insert the following:

Sec. 209. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to perform abortions: . . .

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mahon moves that the House concur in the amendment of the Senate to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 82. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁸⁾ The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized for 1 hour.

Parliamentarian's Note: Under the former practice, debate on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment which had not been reported from conference in disagreement but which was otherwise before the House, the stage of disagreement having been reached, was under the control of the manager of the bill under the hour rule and was not divided between the majority and minority parties. The custom has since developed of equally dividing between majority and minority parties the time on all motions to dispose of amendments emerging from conference in disagreement, whether reported in disagreement, or before the House upon rejection of a conference report by a vote or on a point of order.⁽⁹⁾

8. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

§ 17.47 During consideration of Senate amendments reported from conference in disagreement, a preferential motion to recede and concur in a Senate amendment takes precedence over a motion offered by the manager of the report to insist on disagreement to the Senate amendment; but the offeror of the preferential motion does not thereby gain control over the time for debate, which continues for one hour equally divided and controlled by the majority and the minority manager of the conference report.

On Aug. 1, 1979,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings took place in the House during consideration of Senate amendments reported from conference on H.R. 4388 (energy and water development appropriations):

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ The Clerk will designate the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

MR. [TOM] BEVILL [of Alabama]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bevill moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 30.

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR.
BREAUX

MR. [JOHN B.] BREAUX [of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Breaux moves that the House recede and concur in the amendment of the Senate numbered 30.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman from Alabama wish to debate this amendment?

MR. BEVILL: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I believe I am allotted 1 hour; is that correct?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The rule would provide 30 minutes on the side. The gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill) is recognized for 30 minutes.

§ 17.48 The manager of a conference report with Senate amendments reported from conference in disagreement having offered a motion to insist on disagreement to a Senate amendment, a motion to recede and concur therein is preferential and is voted on first, but the manager retains control of the thirty minutes of majority time on the amendment.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 637 (further continuing appropriations for fiscal year 1981) on Dec. 13, 1980,⁽¹²⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Whitten moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 40.

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR.
DUNCAN OF OREGON

MR. [ROBERT] DUNCAN of Oregon: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Duncan of Oregon moves that the House recede and concur with the amendment of the Senate numbered 40.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ Does the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) desire recognition?

MR. WHITTEN: Not at this time, Mr. Speaker.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I wonder if the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Duncan) would explain precisely what his amendment does?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) has the time. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) for 30 minutes.

MR. WHITTEN: I yield to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Duncan).

—When Proponent of Preferential Motion May Control Time

§ 17.49 While the manager of a conference report controls the majority time on all motions with respect to an amendment in disagreement where he has offered an initial motion and sought recognition to control time for debate, he does not necessarily control the majority time on a motion to concur with an amendment offered after the House has voted to recede (a motion to recede and concur having been divided), if (1) the manager's original motion was to insist, which has been preempted by adoption of the motion to recede, and (2) the manager did not seek recognition to control debate time on the motion to recede and concur when it was offered, but allowed the Chair to immediately put the question on receding; in such case, the proponent of the preferential motion to concur with an amendment may be recognized to control one-half the time and a Member of the other party one-half the time under the hour rule as required by Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b).

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Oct. 1, 1982,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 599 (continuing appropriations for fiscal year 1983):

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ The Clerk will designate the next amendment in disagreement.

The amendment reads as follows:

Senate amendment No. 83: Page 19, after line 2, insert:

Sec. 151. (a) Section 4109 of title 5, United States Code is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(c) Notwithstanding subsection (a)(1) of this section, the Administrator, Federal Aviation Administration, may pay an individual training to be an air traffic controller . . . at the applicable rate of basic pay for the hours of training officially ordered or approved in excess of forty hours in an administrative workweek.” . . .

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

14. 128 CONG. REC. 27295–97, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

15. Norman Y. Mineta (Calif.).

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Whitten moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 83.

MR. [LAWRENCE] COUGHLIN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Coughlin moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 83 and concur therein.

MR. [WILLIAM D.] FORD of Michigan: Mr. Speaker, I demand a division of the question.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question will be divided.

The Chair will state that the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Whitten) has the time. Does the gentleman wish to use his time for debate now?

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Coughlin).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: If the gentleman from Mississippi does not seek to control debate time, the Chair will put the question on receding.

The question is, will the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 83?

The House receded from its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 83.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: For what purpose does the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Ford) seek recognition?

MR. FORD of Michigan: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Ford moves that the House concur in Senate amendment numbered 83 with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment, insert the following: . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Since the House has receded, the gentleman from Mississippi's original motion has been preempted and he did not seek to control time therefore the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Ford) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Coughlin) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Ford).

Recognition After Rejection of Conference Report

§ 17.50 Where a conference report was rejected and the manager of the report did not seek further recognition, the Speaker recognized a minority member of the committee with legislative jurisdiction to move to concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment.

On Dec. 10, 1969,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, the manager of a conference report on an export control bill, moved the previous question. When the House rejected the report, and when Mr. Patman did not seek further recognition, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Gary E. Brown, of Michigan, a minority member of the Committee on Banking and Currency which had reported the bill. Mr. Brown was recognized to offer a motion to concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment.

¹⁶ 115 CONG. REC. 38102-06, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 17.51 Where a conference report on a House bill with a Senate amendment is rejected, the Chair directs the Clerk to report the Senate amendment; and if the manager of the report does not seek recognition to offer a motion to dispose of the Senate amendment the Chair recognizes the Member who had led the opposition to the conference report to offer a motion to dispose of the amendment.

On Sept. 16, 1977,⁽¹⁷⁾ during proceedings relating to the consideration of the conference report on H.R. 5262 (international financial institutions), the following occurred:

So the conference report was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

MR. [TOM] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Madam Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Harkin moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the text of the bill (H.R. 5262) to provide for increased participation by the United States in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the International Development Association, the International Finance Corporation, the Asian Development Bank and the Asian Development Funds, and for other purposes, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ The gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) will be recognized for 30 minutes in support of his motion, and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Stanton) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin).

§ 17.52 Following rejection of a conference report on a point of order, debate on a motion to dispose of the Senate amendment remaining in disagreement is evenly divided between the majority and minority parties under the rationale contained in clause 2(b) of Rule XXVIII requiring such division of time on motions to dispose of amendments reported from conference in disagreement.

lowing motion with respect to a Senate amendment to H.R. 13367, extending the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, the Speaker having ruled out the conference report on a point of order and directed the Clerk to report the Senate amendments remaining in disagreement for disposition by motion.

MR. BROOKS: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Brooks moves that the House recede from its disagreement and concur in the Senate amendment to the House bill (H.R. 13367) to extend and amend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 and for other purposes, with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: . . .

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: ⁽²⁰⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. HORTON: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask what the allocation of time is on this particular motion.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the rule provides, of course, for 30 minutes on a side under consideration of a conference report but the practice has been followed, if the Chair recalls correctly, of allotting 30 minutes to a side on a motion when a conference report is ruled out on a point of order.

Under that procedure, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Brooks) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair would inquire who will be handling the matter on the minority side?

MR. HORTON: Mr. Speaker, I will be handling time on this side.

THE SPEAKER: And the gentleman from New York (Mr. Horton) will be recognized for 30 minutes for debate only.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Brooks) for 30 minutes.

Rejection of Motion To Dispose of Amendment in Disagreement

§ 17.53 Where a motion to dispose of an amendment reported from conference in disagreement, offered by the manager of the conference report, is rejected, the Speaker recognizes a Member leading the opposition to offer another motion to dispose of the amendment; debate on the motion offered by the manager of the conference report is equally divided between the majority and minority parties (pursuant to Rule XXVIII, clause

20. Carl Albert (Okla.).

2(b)); under a former practice, after rejection of such motion, recognition to offer another motion having passed to the opposition, debate on the opposition motion was under the hour rule and within the control of the Member recognized to make such motion.

Parliamentarian's Note: The custom has developed of equally dividing between majority and minority parties the time on all motions to dispose of amendments emerging from conference in disagreement, whether reported in disagreement or, for example, before the House upon rejection of a conference report by a vote or on a point of order,⁽²¹⁾ or upon rejection of an initial motion to dispose of the amendment.⁽²²⁾

During consideration of the conference report on H.R. 7554 (Housing and Urban Development and independent agencies appropriations for fiscal year 1978) in the House on July 19, 1977,⁽¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

MR. [EDWARD P.] BOLAND [of Massachusetts] [manager of the conference report]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Boland moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 24 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$2,995,300,000".

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) is recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Coughlin) is recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland).

MR. BOLAND: Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. . . .

MR. [DON] FUQUA [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to amendment No. 24. . . .

MR. FUQUA: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Fuqua moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 24 and concur therein.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Florida (Mr. Fuqua) is recognized for 60 minutes. . . .

MR. FUQUA: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

The previous question was ordered.
The motion was agreed to.

§ 17.54 Where the House rejects a motion by the manager of a bill to dispose of a Senate amendment remaining in disagreement, recognition to offer another motion is accorded to a Member who led the opposition to the rejected motion.

On Sept. 30, 1976,⁽³⁾ Mr. Jack Brooks, of Texas, made the following motion with respect to a Senate amendment to H.R. 13367, extending the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, the Speaker having ruled out the conference report on a point of order and directed the Clerk to report the Senate amendments remaining in disagreement for disposition by motion.

MR. BROOKS: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Brooks moves that the House recede from its disagreement and concur in the Senate amendment to the House bill (H.R. 13367) to extend and amend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 and for other purposes, with an amendment as follows:

The motion was rejected.⁽⁵⁾

MR. HORTON: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: . . .

After Rejection of Previous Question on Motion To Concur, Opponents of Motion Recognized

§ 17.55 The opponents of a motion to concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment are entitled to seek recognition on the amendment after the House rejects the ordering of the previous question on that motion.

On May 14, 1963,⁽⁶⁾ the House was considering amendments reported from conference in disagreement on H.R. 5517, making supplemental appropriations for fiscal 1963. The amendments were being managed by Mr. Albert Thomas, of Texas, who had called up the conference report. Mr. Thomas moved the previous question (without debate) on his motion to concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment. The previous question was rejected. Mr. George Meader, of Michigan, who was in opposition to the motion to concur, then sought recognition. He was recognized by Speaker John W. McCormack, of

6. 109 CONG. REC. 8508-11, 88th Cong. 1st Sess.

Massachusetts, to control debate on the motion. The motion to concur with an amendment was rejected, a previously pending motion to concur was rejected, and Mr. Meader was then recognized to move that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment, which was adopted by the House.⁽⁷⁾

Rejection of Motion To Recede and Concur—Effect on Recognition

§ 17.56 Where a vital motion made by the Member in charge of a bill is defeated, the right to prior recognition passes to a Member opposed; thus, where a motion made by the Member in charge of a bill to recede and concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment had been defeated, recognition for a motion to recede and concur with another amendment passed to a Member opposed to the defeated motion.

7. See § 17.57, infra, for the principle that after defeat of the motion to recede and concur, an essential motion, the right to recognition passes to the opposition to the motion. However, the manager of the conference report retains control over the consideration of the remainder of the amendments in disagreement (see § 17.38, supra).

During consideration of H.J. Res. 1131, a further continuing appropriation for fiscal year 1975, in the House on Oct. 7, 1974,⁽⁸⁾ the proceedings described above were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ The Clerk will report the first amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 3: On page 2, line 9, strike out: "to the Government of Turkey until the President certifies to the Congress that substantial progress toward agreement has been made regarding military forces in Cyprus" and insert "or for the transportation of any military equipment or supplies to any country which uses such defense articles or services in violation of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 or the Foreign Military Sales Act, or any agreement entered into under such Acts."

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mahon moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 3 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert: "or for the transportation of any military equipment or supplies to the Government of Turkey unless and until the President determines and certifies to the Congress that the Government of Turkey is in compliance with the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the Foreign Military Sales Act, or any agreement entered into under such Acts by making good faith efforts to reach a negotiated settlement with respect to Cyprus."

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Cederberg) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Mahon).

MR. MAHON: Mr. Speaker, I should just like to say a word and then I will yield to my colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rosenthal). . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question pending is on the motion of the gentleman from Texas. Those in favor of it will vote "yea."

MR. [BENJAMIN S.] ROSENTHAL [of New York]: Is this vote on the previous question?

THE SPEAKER: The vote is on the motion.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 69, nays 291, not voting 74

So the motion was rejected. . . .

MR. ROSENTHAL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Rosenthal moves that the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment numbered 3 and concur therein with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by Senate amendment numbered 3, insert the following: "or for the transportation of any military equipment or supplies to Turkey until and unless the President certifies to the Congress that the Government of Turkey is in compliance with the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the Foreign Military Sales Act, and any agreement

9. Carl Albert (Okla.).

entered into under such Acts, and that substantial progress toward agreement has been made regarding military force in Cyprus.”

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from New York is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. ROSENTHAL: Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Delaware (Mr. du Pont), pending which I yield myself 5 minutes. . . .

MR. ROSENTHAL: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Rosenthal).

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it. . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: Pursuant to Rule XXVIII, clause 2(b), time for debate on a motion to dispose of a Senate amendment reported from conference in disagreement is equally divided between majority and minority parties. (But see §17.18, supra, for division of time where majority and minority are in agreement on the motion. Provision for a three-way division of the hour was added to the rules in 1985.) When the Mahon motion was defeated and Mr. Rosenthal was recognized for one hour, he yielded one-half of his time to a minority party Member pursuant to that rule.

§ 17.57 Where a motion is made by the Member in charge of a conference report to recede and concur in a Senate amendment with an amendment and the motion is defeated, recognition for a motion to further insist on disagreement passes to a Member opposed.

On June 26, 1942,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Malcolm C. Tarver, of Georgia, the Member in charge of a bill reported from conference in disagreement, moved that the House recede and concur with an amendment. The motion was rejected.

Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, opposed to the amendment, then arose to make the motion to further insist on disagreement to the Senate amendment, at the same time that Mr. Tarver arose to make the same motion. After the question of recognition was discussed, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. Cannon to make the motion:

MR. TARVER: Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a parliamentary inquiry. It was my purpose to offer a motion as I have done in connection with the same subject matter on previous occasions. I had risen for the purpose of offering a motion to further insist upon the disagreement of the House to Senate amendments Nos. 90 and 91. I wish to inquire whether or not I am privileged, as chairman of the House conferees, to offer that motion?

MR. CANNON of Missouri: Mr. Speaker, my motion is to further insist.

MR. TARVER: Mr. Speaker, I was on my feet before the gentleman from Missouri rushed over between me and the microphone and offered his motion.

MR. CANNON of Missouri: Mr. Speaker, it is a long-established rule of procedure that when a vital motion made by the Member in charge of a bill is defeated, the right to prior recognition passes to the opposition. That is the position in which the gentleman finds himself. He has made a major motion. The motion has been defeated. Therefore the right of recognition passes to the opposition, and I ask to be recognized to move to further insist.

MR. TARVER: Mr. Speaker, may I be heard with regard to that statement?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will hear the gentleman.

MR. TARVER: The question has never been raised so far as I have known in the course of my experience of some 16 years upon an appropriation bill conference report, but if as the gentleman states the right of making the motion passes to the opposition, it should pass to my Republican colleague the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Lambertson] with whom the gentleman from Missouri has been associated in the defeat of the motion offered by the chairman of the subcommittee. I have desired to offer the motion myself in the absence of the exercise of that privilege by the gentleman from Kansas.

MR. [WILLIAM P.] LAMBERTSON [of Kansas]: Mr. Speaker, I ask for recognition.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Georgia has the floor.

MR. TARVER: I have completed all I desire to say except that I desire to offer the motion if it is permissible; otherwise, I insist that the right should pass to the opposition and to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Lambertson].

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is of the opinion that the gentleman from Missouri has been properly recognized to offer a motion. The gentleman will state his motion.

MR. CANNON of Missouri: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendments.

The motion was agreed to.⁽¹¹⁾

On Dec. 3, 1969,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. Joseph W. Evins, of Tennessee, manager of a conference report and amendments in disagreement, moved the previous question and the report was agreed to. Mr. Evins then offered a motion that the House recede and concur in a Senate amendment. The motion was rejected, and Mr. Evins did not seek further recognition on the amendment.

Speaker Pro Tempore Charles M. Price, of Illinois, then recognized Glenn R. Davis, of Wisconsin, a minority Member, to offer a motion to further insist on disagreement.

§ 17.59 Upon rejection of a motion offered by the manager of a conference report in disagreement to recede and concur in the Senate amendment in disagreement with an amendment, the manager may be recognized to offer a motion that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment with a request for a further conference.

House during consideration of the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1980:

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of May 22, 1979, I call up the conference report on the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 107) setting forth the Congressional Budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1980 and revising the Congressional Budget for the U.S. Government for the fiscal year 1979. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Clerk will read the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Strike out all after the resolving clause and insert:

That the Congress hereby determines and declares [that]

(a) In order to achieve a balanced budget in fiscal year 1981, the following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years beginning on October 1, 1979, October 1, 1980, and October 1, 1981— . . .

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Giaimo moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and to concur therein with an amendment, as follows: . . .

[The motion was rejected.]

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Giaimo moves that the House insist upon its disagreement to the

The motion was agreed to.

Defeat of Motion To Reject Nongermane Portion of Motion To Recede and Concur—Effect on Recognition

§ 17.60 Upon defeat of a motion to reject a nongermane portion of a motion to recede and concur in a Senate amendment with a further amendment, the Member who had moved to recede and concur with an amendment and a minority Member are each recognized for 30 minutes of debate on that motion.

On July 31, 1974,⁽¹⁵⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, recognized Wilbur Mills, of Arkansas, to call up the conference report on H.R. 8217 (exemption from tariff duty of equipment on United States vessels) in the House:

MR. MILLS: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 8217) to exempt from duty certain equipment and repairs for vessels operated by or for any agency of the United States, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers be read in lieu of the report. . . .

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement. . . .

MR. MILLS: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Mills moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment to the text of the bill, H.R. 8217, and concur therein with an amendment, as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment to the text of the bill (page 2, after line 6), insert the following:

Sec. 3. The last sentence of section 203(e)(2) of the Federal-State Extended Unemployment Compensation Act of 1970 (as added by section 20 of Public Law 93-233 and amended by section 2 of Public Law 93-256 and by section 2 of Public Law 93-329) is amended by striking out "August 1, 1974" and inserting in lieu thereof "April 30, 1975". . . .

MR. [J. J.] PICKLE [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order on section 3 of this bill because it does not conform to the House germaneness rule, rule 28, clause 5(b)(1). . . .

Section 3 deals with the unemployment compensation program as it relates to extended benefits. This has nothing to do with the "repair of vessels." . . .

MR. MILLS: Mr. Speaker, I must admit that the point of order is well taken. I cannot resist the point of order.

THE SPEAKER: The point of order is sustained.

MR. PICKLE: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Pickle moves that the House reject section 3 of the proposed amendment to the Senate amendment to the text of the bill H.R. 8217.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Pickle) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Mills) will be recognized for 20 minutes. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Pickle).

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present. . . .

THE SPEAKER: . . . [T]he Chair does recognize the gentleman from Iowa who objects to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and makes the point of order that a quorum is not present, and evidently a quorum is not present. . . .

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 63, nays 336, not voting 35, as follows: . . .

So the motion was rejected. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair desires to state that under the rule the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Mills) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Schneebeli) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

Motion To Recede and Concur Divided—Effect of Rejection of Motion To Recede

§ 17.61 Where a motion to recede and concur with an amendment to an amendment reported in disagreement from conference has been divided, and the motion to recede is rejected, the conferee managing the bill is entitled to recognition to offer a motion to insist on disagreement.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Sept. 24, 1975:⁽¹⁶⁾

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ . . . The question is on the motion to recede.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [M. G.] SNYDER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present. . . .

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 197, nays 203, not voting 33, as follows: . . .

So the motion to recede was rejected. . . .

MR. [JOHN M.] SLACK [of West Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Slack moves that the House insist on its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 8.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman from West Virginia desire time on the motion?

MR. SLACK: Mr. Speaker, I desire no time.

17. Carl Albert (Okla.).

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield just for 30 seconds?

MR. SLACK: I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to say I had the same motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Motion To Recommit Conference Report

§ 17.62 On one occasion, the Speaker Pro Tempore recognized the ranking minority member of one of the two committees which had originally reported a bill in the House, who was not a conferee on the bill, to move to recommit a conference report, rather than the second highest ranking minority member of the other committee which had reported the bill, who was a conferee (although the highest ranking minority member of a select committee normally has the right to recognition to move to recommit a bill reported from a select committee).

The following proceedings occurred in the House on June 27, 1980,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of the conference report on S. 1308 (Energy Mobilization Board):

18. 126 CONG. REC. 17371, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the conference report.

The previous question was ordered.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ For what reason does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine) rise?

MR. [SAMUEL L.] DEVINE [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

MR. [MANUEL] LUJAN [Jr., of New Mexico]: Mr. Speaker, I am a member of the conference committee, and I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine).

MR. DEVINE: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit, and I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman qualifies.

MR. LUJAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LUJAN: Mr. Speaker, does not a member of the conference committee have preference in recognition to the ranking minority member on the standing committee working on the bill?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) was on his feet at the time of the recommital motion. Does the gentleman from Ohio, the second ranking minority member of the conference committee, have a motion?

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: I am unqualified for the motion to recommit. I was standing, however, to make sure that the motion to recommit was protected for the minority, and when the Chair recognized the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine), the ranking minority member of the Commerce Committee, I took my seat. . . .

MR. LUJAN: Mr. Speaker, I did not hear an answer to my parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: As the gentleman knows, the Chair's control over recognition is not subject to challenge and the Chair recognized the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine).

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine) is recognized for a motion.

MR. DEVINE: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman opposed to the conference report?

MR. DEVINE: I am opposed to the bill, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman qualifies.

The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Devine moves to recommit the conference report to accompany the Senate bill, S. 1308, to the committee of conference.

Parliamentarian's Note: Ordinarily, the prior right to recognition to move to recommit should belong to a member of a conference committee (the committee reporting the bill).⁽²⁰⁾

§ 18. As to Simple or Concurrent Resolutions; Special Rules

Simple resolutions (headed "H. Res.") are used to express a fact, or to declare the principles, opinions, or purposes of the House. Rules, including "special rules" providing for consideration of bills, are adopted by simple resolution. Special committees are authorized and expenditures made from the contingent fund in this manner. Resolutions of inquiry or disapproval, including resolutions under congressional disapproval procedures prescribed by statute, are generally made by simple resolution; and such resolutions are used to express the sense of the House on various matters.

Concurrent resolutions (headed, e.g., "H. Con. Res.") are used as a means by which the two Houses may concurrently express certain facts, opinions or purposes. A concurrent resolution is not binding on either House until agreed to by both, and is not sent to the President for approval.

Rule XXII clause 2(b)⁽¹⁾ now provides:

R. Archer, Jr., of Texas, a conferee and member of the Ways and Means Committee, was recognized for a motion to recommit the conference report on the Tax Reform Act of 1986 (H.R. 3838).

1. House Rules and Manual §852 (1995).

No bill or resolution, and no amendment to any bill or resolution, establishing or expressing any commemoration may be introduced or considered in the House.

For purposes of this paragraph, the term “commemoration” means any remembrance, celebration, or recognition for any purpose through the designation of a specified period of time.

Debate on a privileged resolution is under the hour rule, and the Member recognized to call it up has control of the time.⁽²⁾ Thus, a Member offering a resolution presenting a question of the privilege of the House is recognized to control one hour of debate on the resolution.⁽³⁾ Moreover, the Member calling up a privileged resolution from the Committee on Rules controls one hour of debate in the House, and the resolution is not subject to amendment from the floor unless the Member in charge yields for that purpose.⁽⁴⁾

Only a member of the Committee on Rules designated to call up a special rule from the committee may be recognized for that purpose, unless the rule has been on the calendar for seven legislative days without action.⁽⁵⁾

If the previous question on a privileged resolution reported by the Committee on Rules is voted down, the resolution is subject to further consideration, debate, and a motion to table, and the Member leading the opposition to the resolution is recognized under the hour rule.⁽⁶⁾

When a resolution from the Committee on Rules is called up the same day it is reported, recognition for debate is not in order until the House agrees by a two-thirds vote to consider the resolution.⁽⁷⁾

Calling Up Privileged Resolution

§ 18.1 Debate on a privileged resolution is under the hour rule and the Member recognized to call it up has control of the time.

On Feb. 27, 1963,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Samuel N. Friedel, of Maryland, called up by direction of the Committee on House Administration House Resolution 164, a privileged resolution providing funds for the Committee on Armed Services. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then answered a parliamentary inquiry as to control of the time for debate:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: As I understand it, the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Friedel] has said that he would yield time to Members on the minority side, and that is what we want. If there is another minority Member who wants to be recognized at this time, it would be in order under the rules for that Member to be granted time in order that he might make such statement as he might want to make.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that under the rules of the House and pursuant to custom that has existed from time immemorial, on a resolution of this kind the Member in charge of the resolution has control of the time and he, in turn, yields time. The gentleman from Maryland [Mr. Friedel] in charge of the resolution has yielded 10 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio. If the gentleman from Ohio desires to yield to some other Member, he may do so but he may not yield a specific amount of time.

On Feb. 25, 1954,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, answered parliamentary inquiries on the control of debate on a privileged resolution (authorizing the payment of certain committee expenses) called up by Karl M. LeCompte, of Iowa, Chairman of the Committee on House Administration:

MR. LECOMPTE: Under the rules the Chairman has control of the time.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman has 1 hour to yield to whomsoever he desires.

MR. LECOMPTE: And he has control of the matter of offering amendments.

THE SPEAKER: A committee amendment is now pending. No other amendment can be offered unless the gentleman yields the floor for that purpose.

MR. LECOMPTE: A motion to recommit, of course, belongs to some member of the minority opposed to the resolution. Would any motion except a motion to recommit be in order except by the gentleman in charge of the bill?

Offering Privileged Resolution Prior to Adoption of the Rules

§ 18.2 Prior to the adoption of the rules, a Member offering a privileged resolution on the seating of a Member-elect is recognized for one hour of debate.

On Jan. 10, 1967, prior to the adoption of the rules, Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, offered as privileged House Resolution 1, authorizing Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, to administer the oath of office to challenged Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York, and referring the question of his final right to a seat to a select committee. Speaker McCormack ruled that Mr. Udall was entitled to recognition for one hour.⁽¹⁰⁾ called up prior to the adoption of rules and relating to the seat of a Member-elect passes to a Member leading the opposition to the resolution if the previous question thereon is rejected.

On Jan. 10, 1967,⁽¹¹⁾ at the convening of the 90th Congress and before the adoption of standing rules, Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, called up a resolution (H. Res. 1), authorizing Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, to administer the oath of office to challenged Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York, and referring the question of his final right to a seat to a select committee. Pending debate on the resolution, Speaker McCormack answered parliamentary inquiries on the procedure for consideration of and recognition on the resolution:

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is voted down would, then, under the rules of the House, amendments or substitutes be in order to the resolution offered by the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. Udall]?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Waggonner] that any germane amendment may be in order to that particular amendment. . . .

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Speaker, under the rules of the House would the option or priority or a subsequent amendment or a substitute motion lie with the minority?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will pass upon that question based upon the rules of the House. That would be a question that would present itself to the Chair at that particular time. . . . However, the usual procedure of the Chair has been to the effect that the Member who led the fight against the resolution will be recognized.

Mr. Udall moved the previous question on the resolution, and the motion was rejected.

Speaker McCormack then recognized Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, the Minority Leader, to offer an amendment to the resolution.⁽¹²⁾

§ 18.4 A minority Member, who had led the opposition, was recognized after the House had refused to order the previous question on a resolution offered by the majority and providing for the seating of a Member-elect.

On Mar. 1, 1967,⁽¹³⁾ Emanuel Celler, of New York, a Member of the majority, moved the previous question on House Resolution 278, which he had offered, and which provided for the seating of challenged Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York. The previous question was rejected.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then recognized

Rejection of Previous Question on Resolution From Committee on Rules

§ 18.5 If the previous question is voted down on a Committee on Rules resolution authorizing an investigation, recognition passes to the opponents of the resolution, and the Chair first recognizes a Member of the minority party, if opposed.

On July 20, 1939,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, managing a resolution from the Committee on Rules to authorize an investigation, moved the previous question on the resolution. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, answered parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition to be followed should the previous question be rejected:

MR. [VITO] MARCANTONIO [of New York]: If the previous question is voted down, will that open up the resolution to amendment?

THE SPEAKER: Undoubtedly.

14. 84 CONG. REC. 9591, 9592, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: If I understand the situation correctly, if the previous question is voted down, the control of the measure would pass to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Keller]; and the resolution would not be open to amendment generally, but only to such amendments as the gentleman from Illinois might yield for. Is my understanding correct, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is voted down, it would not necessarily pass to the gentleman from Illinois; it would pass to the opponents of the resolution. Of course, a representative of the minority would have the first right of recognition.

On Mar. 13, 1939,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Smith called up at the direction of the Committee on the District of Columbia House Resolution 113, authorizing an investigation of the milk industry in the District of Columbia. Mr. Smith moved the previous question on the resolution, and the motion was rejected:

Speaker Bankhead then stated:

Under the rules of procedure, the recognition passes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Mapes] if he desires to claim it.

The Speaker added, in response to parliamentary inquiries, that Mr. Carl E. Mapes, who was leading the opposition to the resolution, would control one hour of debate and would lose the floor if he yielded to another Member to offer an amendment.⁽¹⁶⁾

—Member Opposed to Resolution Offers Motion To Table

§ 18.6 In response to parliamentary inquiries the Speaker advised that if the previous question on a privileged resolution reported by the Committee on Rules were voted down, the resolution would be subject to further consideration, debate, and a motion to table, and that he would recognize under the hour rule the Member who appeared to be leading the opposition.

On Oct. 19, 1966,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Claude D. Pepper, of Florida, called up, by direction of the Committee on Rules, House Resolution 1013, establishing a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct. Mr. Pepper was recognized for one hour

16. Pending a vote on ordering the previous question, the Chair may decline to indicate whom he might recognize or what form of amendment might be in order if the previous question were rejected. See 115 CONG. REC. 29219, 29220, 91st Cong. 1st Sess., Oct. 8, 1969.

and offered a committee amendment to the resolution, which amendment was agreed to. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then answered a series of parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition should Mr. Pepper move the previous question and should the motion be defeated:

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused, is it true that then amendments may be offered and further debate may be had on the resolution?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is defeated, then the resolution is open to further consideration and action and debate. . . .

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, under the rules of the House, is it not equally so that a motion to table would then be in order?

THE SPEAKER: At that particular point, that would be a preferential motion. . . .

MR. [JAMES G.] FULTON of Pennsylvania: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused and the resolution is then open for amendment, under what parliamentary procedure will the debate continue? Or what would be the time limit?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would recognize whoever appeared to be the leading Member in opposition to the resolution.

MR. FULTON of Pennsylvania: What would be the time for debate?

THE SPEAKER: Under those circumstances the Member recognized in opposition would have 1 hour at his disposal, or such portion of it as he might desire to exercise.

Subsequently, after the previous question had been rejected, the Speaker recognized a Member who qualified as being opposed to the resolution, to offer a motion to table the resolution. The Speaker's determination as to whether the Member qualified, and the subsequent recognition, were as follows:

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman from Louisiana opposed to the resolution?

MR. WAGGONNER: I am, in its present form, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: Has the gentleman participated actively in the debate in opposition?

MR. WAGGONNER: I did, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Waggonner moves to lay House Resolution 1013 on the table.

Recognition After Defeat of Motion by Member in Charge To Table Resolution of Inquiry

§ 18.7 Where the motion to lay a resolution of inquiry on the table is made by the Member in charge of the resolution, and that motion is defeated, the right to prior recognition passes to the Member leading the opposition to the motion.

On Feb. 20, 1952,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. James P. Richards, of South Carolina, called up by direction of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, House Resolution 514, a privileged resolution of inquiry directed to the Secretary of State. Mr. Richards sent to the Clerk's desk the adverse report of the committee, recommending that the resolution not pass. Mr. Richards immediately moved to lay the resolution on the table. The motion was defeated.

John M. Vorys, of Ohio, the Member leading the opposition to the motion, was then recognized by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, who explained the parliamentary situation:

The gentleman from Ohio is in charge of the time, the gentleman being with the majority in this instance, and on that side of the issue which received the most votes.

Mr. Vorys controlled debate on the resolution, which was agreed to by the House.

Parliamentarian's Note: Resolutions of inquiry addressed to heads of executive departments are privileged. If the committee to which the resolution is referred makes an adverse decision on the Resolution Disapproving Reorganization Plan

—Member Opposed Moved That House Proceed to Consideration

§ 18.8 After a committee had reported to the House a resolution disapproving a reorganization plan (under the Reorganization Act of 1949), a Member could be recognized to move that the House proceed to the consideration thereof although he was not in favor of the resolution.

On July 19, 1961,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Dante B. Fascell, of Florida, moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of House Resolution 328, disapproving Reorganization Plan No. 5, which resolution was reported from the Committee on Government Operations. Mr. Fascell made a unanimous-consent request that debate be limited to five hours, to be equally divided and controlled by himself and by Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan. Mr. Hoffman objected to the latter request and Mr. Fascell moved simply that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to whether Mr. Fascell had to qualify to make the motion by stating he was in favor of the resolution. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that he did not have to so qualify since under the statute, any Member could call up a disapproval resolution reported from committee. In the Committee of the Whole, the Chairman stated that Mr. Fascell would be recognized for up to five hours, and Mr. Hoffman, the gentleman opposed to the resolution, would be recognized for five hours.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Reorganization Act of 1949 (Public Law 81-109, 63 Stat. 203) provided that in the consideration of a resolution relating to a reorganization plan, there be not to exceed 10 hours of debate, to be equally divided between those favoring and those opposing the resolution (5 USC § 912). However, the statute as it related to the procedures of the House and Senate was enacted with recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change its rules at any time (5 USC § 908).

There are a variety of statutes providing for the privileged consideration of simple, concurrent, and joint resolutions to approve or disapprove certain proposals of the executive branch. Each such statute should be consulted to determine the procedure for consideration and recognition.

Debate on Motion To Discharge Committee From Consideration

§ 18.9 Debate on a motion to discharge a committee from further consideration of a resolution (under the Reorganization Act of 1949) disapproving a reorganization plan was limited to one hour and was equally divided between the Member making the motion and a Member opposed thereto; and the Chair recognized the Member making the motion to open and close debate.

On Aug. 3, 1961,⁽¹⁾ Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, moved to discharge the Committee on Government Operations from the further consideration of House Resolution 335, disapproving Reorganization

1. 107 CONG. REC. 14548, 87th Cong. 1st Sess.

Plan No. 6, transmitted by the President to Congress. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, inquired whether Mr. Gross was in favor of the resolution and when Mr. Gross assured the Speaker he was, the Speaker recognized Mr. Gross to open debate and to control 30 minutes on the motion. The Speaker recognized a Member in opposition for 30 minutes and then recognized Mr. Gross to close debate.⁽²⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: The time for debate and the division of time between those favoring and those opposing the resolution, on a motion to discharge a committee from the further consideration of a resolution disapproving a reorganization plan, was specifically provided in the Reorganization Act of 1949.⁽³⁾

the House, and the resolution is not subject to amendment unless the Member in charge yields for that purpose.

On Feb. 26, 1976,⁽⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House relative to calling up a resolution from the Committee on Rules:

MR. [CLAUDE] PEPPER [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 868 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 868

Resolved, That Rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new clause:

"7. It shall not be in order to consider any report of a committee unless copies or reproductions of such report have been available to the Members on the floor for at least two hours before the beginning of such consideration. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, this resolution is to be considered in the House which would preclude an amendment from being offered by any Member.

THE SPEAKER: It is a rule that comes from the Committee on Rules. It is

4. 122 CONG. REC. 4625, 4626, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.
5. Carl Albert (Okla.).

under the charge of the gentleman handling the resolution.

MR. BAUMAN: So unless the gentleman yields for the purpose of an amendment, none would be in order?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is correct.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, what unanimous-consent request might be entertained in order to allow amendments to be offered generally? Would it be a request to consider it in the House as in the Committee of the Whole?

THE SPEAKER: No. The gentleman from Florida controls the floor under the 1-hour rule in the House because this is a change in the rules brought to the floor by the Committee on Rules as privileged. Rules changes can be considered in the House.

Rule IX—Questions of Privilege

§ 18.11 When a Member asserts that he rises to a question of the privileges of the House, the Speaker may hear the question and may then refuse recognition if the resolution is not admissible as a question of privilege under Rule IX.

On June 27, 1974,⁽⁶⁾ it was demonstrated that a Member may not, by raising a question of the privileges of the House under Rule IX, attach privilege to a question not otherwise in order under the rules of the House.

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H.

6. 120 CONG. REC. 21596-98, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

Res. 1203) involving a question of privileges of the House, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 1203

Whereas on January 31, 1973, the House of Representatives voted to establish a ten-member, bipartisan Select Committee on Committees charged with conducting a "thorough and complete study of rules X and XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives; and

Whereas the select committee was further "authorized and directed to report to the House . . .

Whereas on March 21, 1974, the select committee reported House Resolution 988 in conformance with its mandate; and

Whereas the chairman of the select committee has failed to seek a rule making House Resolution 988 in order for consideration by the House; and

Whereas, clause 27(d)(1) of House Rule XI states, "It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House any measure approved by his committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote;" . . .

Resolved, That the chairman of the select committee be directed to forthwith seek a rule making in order for consideration by the House, House Resolution 988; and be it further

Resolved, That the House Committee on Rules be directed to give immediate consideration to such request. . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the resolution offered by the gentleman from Illinois does not raise the question of privilege. . . .

MR. ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, I desire to be heard on the point of order. My question of privilege arises under rule IX which provides that, and I quote:

Questions of privilege shall be, first, those affecting the rights of the House collectively, its safety, dignity and the integrity of its proceedings. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I rest my question of privilege on that clause which declares those questions privileged which relate to the integrity of the proceedings of the House. It is my contention that there has been a deliberate attempt to delay House consideration of House Resolution 988, the so-called Bolling-Martin Committee Reform Amendments of 1974, and that this intentional delay not only interferes with and flouts the integrity of the proceedings of this body, but is in clear violation of clause 27(d)(1) of rule XI of the Rules of the House.

Under that rule, and I quote:

It shall be the duty of the chairman of each committee to report or cause to be reported promptly to the House any measure approved by his committee and to take or cause to be taken necessary steps to bring the matter to a vote. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁷⁾ The Chair is ready to rule.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Anderson) has submitted a resolution which he asserts involves a question of the privileges of the House under rule IX. Following the preamble of the resolution, the resolution provides that:

Resolved, That the chairman of the Select Committee be directed to forthwith seek a rule making in order for consideration by the House, House Resolution 988, and be it further

Resolved, That the House Committee on Rules be directed to give immediate consideration to such request.

As indicated in "Hinds' Precedents," volume III, section 2678, Speakers are authorized to make a preliminary determination as to those questions presented which may involve privileges. As reaffirmed by Speaker McCormack on October 8, 1968 (Record p. 30214 to 30216) when a Member asserts that he rises to a question of the privileges of the House, the Speaker may hear the question and then, if the matter is not one admissible as a question of privilege of the House he can refuse recognition.

The Chair has listened to the arguments concerning the privileged status of this resolution and has examined the precedents of the House in this regard. It will be noted that the gentleman from Illinois has relied heavily on section 2609, volume III of "Hinds' Precedents," in which it was held by Speaker Reed that a report having been ordered to be made by a select committee but not being made within a reasonable time, a resolution directing the report to be made raised a question of the privileges of the House.

That case is distinguishable from the present instance in that in this instance the chairman has made the report and the resolution is pending on the calendar of the House and it does not become privileged until the House has adopted a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules providing for the consideration of House Resolution

7. Carl Albert (Okla.).

988. The Chair does not feel that a question of privilege of the House under rule IX should be used as a mechanism for giving privilege to a motion which would not otherwise be in order under the Rules of the House, in this case, namely, a motion to direct the Committee on Rules to take a certain action.

The Chair now would refer to Hinds' Precedents, volume III, section 2610, wherein Speaker Crisp ruled that a charge that a committee had been inactive in regard to a subject committed to it did not constitute a question of privilege of the House. . . .

The rules did not provide at the time of Speaker Reed's ruling, as is now the case in clause 27(d)(2) of Rule XI, for a mandatory filing of the reports within 7 calendar days after the measure has been ordered reported upon signed request by a committee majority.

In the instant case, however, the Select Committee on Committees has filed its report and the Chair is not aware that the chairman of the Select Committee on Committees has in any sense violated the rule cited by the gentleman from Illinois. For these reasons, the Chair holds that the gentleman's resolution does not present a question of the privileges of the House under [rule] IX and the resolution may not be considered.

§ 18.12 Under the former rule, a Member offering a resolution presenting a question of the privilege of the House is recognized to control one hour of debate on the resolution.

On Feb. 19, 1976,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Samuel S. Stratton, of New York, offered a privileged resolution as follows:

MR. STRATTON: I rise to a question involving the privileges of the House, and I offer a privileged resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 1042

Resolution requiring that the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct inquire into the circumstances leading to the public publication of a report containing classified material prepared by the House Select Committee on Intelligence

Whereas the February 16, 1976, issue of the Village Voice, a New York City newspaper, contains the partial text of a report or a preliminary report prepared by the Select Committee on Intelligence of the House, pursuant to H. Res. 591, which relates to the foreign activities of the intelligence agencies of the United States and which contains sensitive classified information . . . Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct be and it is hereby authorized and directed to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the publication of the text and of any part of the report of the Select Committee on Intelligence, and to report back to the House in a timely fashion its findings and recommendations thereon.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ The gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) is recognized for 1 hour.

Calling Up Special Rule

§ 18.13 Only a member of the Committee on Rules designated to call up a report from the committee may be recognized for that purpose, unless the rule has been on the calendar for seven legislative days without action.

On June 6, 1940,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, sought recognition to call up for consideration a special resolution from the Committee on Rules providing for the consideration of a measure. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, inquired whether Mr. Fish had been authorized to call up the resolution and Mr. Fish stated he had not. He asserted that calling up such a resolution was “the privilege of any member of the Rules Committee.”

The Speaker declined to recognize Mr. Fish for that purpose, saying:

The Chair cannot recognize the gentleman from New York to call up the resolution unless the Record shows he was authorized to do so by the Rules Committee. . . .

The precedents are all to the effect that only a Member authorized by the 10. 86 CONG. REC. 7706, 76th Cong. 3d Sess. See Rule XI, cl. 4(c), House Rules and Manual § 730 (1995), as to calling up special rule.

Rules Committee can call up a rule, unless the rule has been on the calendar for 7 legislative days without action.

§ 18.14 If a resolution providing a special order of business is not called up for consideration by the Member reporting the resolution within seven legislative days, any member of the Committee on Rules may call it up for consideration [Rule XI, cl. 4(c)]; and since the motion to call up such a resolution is privileged, the Speaker would be obliged to recognize for this purpose unless a matter of equal or higher privilege was also pending, in which case the order of consideration would be determined by the Speaker’s recognition.

On Sept. 22, 1966,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition of members of the Committee on Rules to call up a special rule reported from that committee but not yet called up at the direction of the committee:

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

11. 112 CONG. REC. 23691, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

Under the rules of the House, as I understand them, this rule, House Resolution 1007, to bring up the so-called House Un-American Activities Committee bill, is a privileged matter, and if it is not programed, then the gentleman handling the rule or any member of the Rules Committee, may call it up as a privileged matter. Is my understanding correct about that?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman's understanding is correct. Of course, the question of recognition is with the Chair, where there are two similar preferential matters, but the gentleman's understanding is correct that after 7 legislative days a member of the Rules Committee could call it up.

If it were a question of recognition, if the same preferential status existed at the same time, recognition rests with the Chair.⁽¹²⁾

§ 18.15 If a resolution providing a special order of business is reported from the Committee on Rules and is not called up by the Member making the report within seven legislative days thereafter, any member of the Rules Committee may call the resolution up, and the Speaker shall recognize the Member seeking recognition for that purpose as a matter of highest privilege.

12. See Rule XI clause 4(c), House Rules and Manual §730 (1995), for the procedure where a special rule has been on the calendar for seven legislative days.

On Sept. 25, 1980,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege, and pursuant to clause 4(c) of House rule XI, I call up House Resolution 675 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move, section 402(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) to the contrary notwithstanding, that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 6674) to amend the National Visitor Center Facilities Act of 1968 to authorize additional funds, and for other purposes, and the first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ Under the rule, this resolution is a highly privileged one.

The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Lott) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. LOTT: Mr. Speaker, I yield the usual 30 minutes to a majority member of the Committee on Rules, should the majority choose to use its time, but I reserve to myself the balance of the time not used by the majority.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I have invoked this rarely used House rule, clause 4(c) of

13. 126 CONG. REC. 27417-24, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

14. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

rule XI, because I think there comes a time when we must invoke the House rules in order to call to the attention of the House and the American people the fact that we are ignoring, even violating, a far more important law and House rule which should be binding on this Congress. I am referring, of course, to the Congressional Budget Act of 1974

Mr. Speaker, let me conclude by just asking my colleagues to vote no on the previous question. It is a vote against violating the Budget Act. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on ordering the previous question.

Special Rule Withdrawn From Consideration

§ 18.16 Where a special rule providing for the consideration of a measure was pending when a recess was declared to await the receipt of an engrossed bill (when the rules allowed any Member to demand the reading in full of an engrossed bill), the manager of the special rule withdrew it from consideration since no action had been taken thereon.

On Apr. 8, 1964,⁽¹⁵⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 665, offered by Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, from the Committee on Rules, providing for taking a bill from the Speaker's table and agreeing to Senate amendments thereto. Before a vote was had on the resolution, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, declared a recess pending the receipt of the engrossed copy of another bill, H.R. 10222, the Food Stamp Act of 1964. When the House reconvened, the Speaker announced that the unfinished business was the reading of the latter bill. Mr. Oliver P. Bolton, of Ohio, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to the status of the resolution pending at the recess. The Speaker, without responding to the inquiry, recognized Mr. Bolling, the manager of the resolution, who then withdrew the resolution from consideration.

15. 110 CONG. REC. 7302-04, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

Member Who Withdrew Resolution Recognized Again

§ 18.17 A Member calling up a privileged resolution from the Committee on Rules is recognized for a full hour notwithstanding the fact that he has previously called up the resolution and temporarily withdrawn it after debate.

On Apr. 8, 1964,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, called up at the direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 665, making in order the consideration of a wheat-cotton measure. While the resolution was pending, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, declared a recess to await the receipt of the engrossed copy of a bill.

16. 110 CONG. REC. 7303-08, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

Following the recess, Mr. Bolling withdrew House Resolution 665 in order that the engrossed copy of the bill could be taken up as unfinished business. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Speaker stated that when the Committee on Rules resolution was again brought up, the Member calling it up would be recognized for a full period of debate despite the fact he had previously brought it up, debated and withdrew it:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, in view of the withdrawal of the resolution by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Bolling] do I understand that we start all over again on the consideration of the rule for the wheat-cotton bill?

THE SPEAKER: When the gentleman calls it up, the understanding of the gentleman is correct.

MR. HALLECK: We will start all over again with 30 minutes on a side?

THE SPEAKER: That is correct.

Majority Leader by Unanimous Consent Called Up Special Rule

§ 18.18 The Majority Leader, by unanimous consent, called up on behalf of the Committee on Rules a resolution providing for the consideration of a bill.

On June 3, 1948,⁽¹⁷⁾ Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, the Majority Leader, called up by unanimous consent, and on behalf of the Committee on Rules, House Resolution 621, providing for the consideration of a bill.

Minority Member of Committee on Rules Called Up Special Rule

§ 18.19 A minority member of the Committee on Rules called up and obtained consideration of a resolution reported by that committee providing a special order of business.

On July 14, 1949,⁽¹⁸⁾ James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, a minority member of the Committee on Rules, called up House Resolution 278, making in order the consideration of a bill. Mr. Wadsworth delivered the remarks below in explanation of his action, which was contrary to usual practice:

MR. WADSWORTH: Mr. Speaker, under rather unusual circumstances and

17. 94 CONG. REC. 7108, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

18. 95 CONG. REC. 9511, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

in violation of some of the traditions of the House, as a minority Member I venture to call up House Resolution 278, and ask for its immediate consideration. . . .

Mr. Speaker, in further explanation of this unusual performance, of a member of the minority of the Committee on Rules calling up a rule, may I say I can see no member of the majority party of the Committee on Rules here present to take charge of the rule. I have, however, consulted with the gentleman from Tennessee who, I am informed on infallible authority, is the Democratic whip, and I have his consent to behave in this atrocious manner.

I understand under the rules 1 hour of debate is in order. On this side of the aisle no requests for time have been made to speak on the rule. I now inquire if there are any requests for time on the majority side?

MR. [J. PERCY] PRIEST [of Tennessee]: Mr. Speaker . . . if there is no request for time on the rule, if the gentleman from New York [Mr. Wadsworth] will move the previous question, since he has called the rule up, I believe that would be in order and we could proceed with the consideration of the bill.

MR. WADSWORTH: Mr. Speaker, it is with great cheerfulness that I move the previous question on the rule.

Special Rule Called Up on Same Day Reported

§ 18.20 When a resolution from the Committee on Rules is called up the same day it is reported, recognition for debate is not in order until the House agrees by a two-thirds vote to consider the resolution.

On May 26, 1964,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, reported at the direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 726, making in order the consideration of an appropriation bill, and asked for its consideration. In answer to parliamentary inquiries by Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, advised that a two-thirds vote was required to consider the resolution on the same day reported, and that no debate was in order until the House decided whether to consider the resolution.⁽²⁰⁾

Committee Amendments Were Agreed to Before Member Reporting Special Rule Recognized for Debate

§ 18.21 Where a privileged resolution is reported by the Committee on Rules, with committee amendments, the amendments are reported (and in some cases acted upon) before the Member reporting the resolution is recognized for debate thereon.

On Aug. 19, 1964,⁽¹⁾ the Committee on Rules reported House Resolution 845, providing for the consideration of H.R. 11926, limiting the jurisdiction of federal courts in apportionment cases, although that bill had not been reported by the committee to which it had been referred. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, directed the Clerk, after the reading of the resolution, to read the committee amendments. The amendments were then agreed to and the Speaker recognized Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, the manager of the resolution, for one hour of debate.

Parliamentarian's Note: Generally the Chair puts the question on minor perfecting committee amendments to a special rule before recognizing the Member calling it up for debate. But where the amendments are more substantive (as in the case of a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute), the manager may be recognized to debate the amendment(s) and the resolution under the hour rule.

1. 110 CONG. REC. 20213, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

Special Rule (and Bill Made in Order) Called Up on District Monday

§ 18.22 On a District of Columbia Monday, the Speaker recognized a member of the Committee on Rules to call up a privileged resolution relating to the order of business, and later recognized the chairman of another committee to call up the business made in order thereby, prior to recognizing the chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia to call up District business.

On Sept. 24, 1962,⁽²⁾ which was District of Columbia Monday, the Committee on the District of Columbia did not assert its right to call up District business. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi, of the Committee on Rules to call up House Resolution 804 (a privileged resolution making in order the consideration of S.J. Res. 224, authorizing the President to call up armed forces reservists). Following the adoption of the resolution, the Speaker recognized Carl Vinson, of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee on Armed Services, to control debate on and call up the bill made in order by the resolution.

2. 108 CONG. REC. 20489, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

Following the adoption of the bill, the Speaker announced it was District of Columbia day and then recognized John L. McMillan, of South Carolina, Chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia, to call up District business.

Immediate Vote on Resolution After Motion To Discharge Agreed To § 18.23 Prior to the 102d Congress, where the Committee on Rules was discharged from further consideration of a resolution providing a special order of business, the vote then came immediately on the adoption of the resolution, and recognition to debate the resolution was not in order.

On June 11, 1945,⁽³⁾ the House agreed to a motion to discharge the Committee on Rules from the further consideration of House Resolution 7, making in order the consideration of a bill. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, advised Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, that the vote would then be taken immediately on the resolution itself, without debate.⁽⁴⁾

Chair Declined Recognition for Unanimous-consent Request To Revoke Special Rule

§ 18.24 The Speaker Pro Tempore declined to recognize a Member to ask unanimous consent for the revocation of a special rule, previously agreed to, permitting the consideration of conference reports on the same day reported.

On Sept. 25, 1961,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, made the following request:

Mr. Speaker, I have a unanimous-consent request to make concerning the procedure of the House. I ask unanimous consent that the action by which clause 2 of Rule XXVIII was suspended a week ago last Saturday be revoked, and that clause 2, Rule XXVIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives be restored.

Speaker Pro Tempore John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, declined to recognize Mr. Gross for that request.

4. See Rule XXVII clause 3, House Rules and Manual §908 (1995) for the current procedure when a special rule is discharged from the Committee on Rules.

5. 107 CONG. REC. 21183, 21184, 87th Cong. 1st Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XXVIII clause 2 provides a three-day layover of conference reports before they are considered. The special rule sought to be revoked by Mr. Gross provided for consideration of conference reports on the same day reported.

Concurrent Resolution

§ 18.25 While the House customarily does not consider legislation after the Speaker has begun to recognize Members for "special-order speeches," there is no House rule prohibiting consideration of legislative business at any time the House is in session; thus, on one occasion, the Speaker recognized a Member between "special-order speeches" to request consideration of a House concurrent resolution by unanimous consent.

On Mar. 9, 1976,⁽⁶⁾ the proceedings in the House after a special-order speech had concluded, were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁷⁾ Without objection, the remaining special orders will be postponed.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Reserving the right to object,

6. 122 CONG. REC. 5897-99, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

7. Carl Albert (Okla.).

Mr. Speaker, will this have the effect of permitting other legislation to be brought up?

THE SPEAKER: Yes.

MR. BAUMAN: Under the rules, after special orders begin, legislation cannot be brought up.

THE SPEAKER: There is not a rule to that effect.

MR. BAUMAN: Reserving the right to object to the request for suspending the special orders, Mr. Speaker, is that not correct?

THE SPEAKER: No. Normally we do not consider business after the beginning of special orders, but there is no rule of the House which prohibits such consideration. . . .

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 577). . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the concurrent resolution.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution as follows:

H. CON. RES. 577

Whereas, in recognition of the Bicentennial celebrations of the United States of America, the House of Lords and the House of Commons of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland have unanimously adopted motions respectfully praying that Her Majesty, the Queen, direct that an original copy of the Magna Carta be placed on loan to the people of the United States for a period of one year . . . Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That (a) a delegation of Members of Congress shall be appointed to proceed at the invitation of the two Houses of Parliament, to the United Kingdom, there to attend the presentation of the Magna Carta, under suitable auspices, to the people of the United States

Parliamentarian's Note: The Speaker took the floor on this occasion to express his strong support for the consideration by unanimous consent of a concurrent resolution authorizing appointment of a delegation to accept the British Parliament's loan of the Magna Carta (a resolution similar to one previously rejected by the House without extended debate).

§ 19. For Offering and Debating Amendments

Recognition to offer an amendment in the House is governed by Rule XIV, clause 2 and the precedents developed thereunder. In Committee of the Whole, Rule XXIII, clause 5 is the governing authority.

Must Be Recognized To Offer Amendment

§ 19.1 A Member wishing to offer an amendment must first be recognized by the Chair for that purpose.

On Sept. 21, 1967,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, asked unanimous consent that it be in order on a certain day, or thereafter, to consider a joint resolution making continuing appropriations. Mr. Frank T. Bow, of Ohio, under a reservation of objection, inquired whether such a resolution would be subject to germane amendment. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered that amendments would be in order. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Idaho, then raised a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I would assume the Speaker could add to that the statement [that amendments would be in order]: "If the gentleman is recognized for the purpose of offering an amendment."

Mr. Speaker, as a parliamentary inquiry is that not correct?

THE SPEAKER: Will the gentleman restate his parliamentary inquiry?

MR. GROSS: The parliamentary inquiry is this: That the gentleman could offer an amendment if the Speaker recognized the gentleman for that purpose?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the question answers itself. The answer would be yes, subject to the right of recognition, it is a question within the discretion of the Speaker.⁽⁹⁾

Seeking Recognition

§ 19.2 In order to obtain recognition to offer an amendment, a Member must not only be standing but must also actively seek recognition

9. See also § 21.4, infra (a Member desiring to offer an amendment under the five-minute rule must seek recognition from the Chair, and may not be yielded the floor for that purpose by another Member).

tion by addressing the Chair at the appropriate time.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 26, 1983,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense appropriations for fiscal year 1984 (H.R. 4185):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows: . . .

For construction, procurement, production, modification, and modernization of aircraft, equipment including ordnance . . . and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants . . . $9,994,245,000. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Nichols) seek recognition?

MR. [WILLIAM] NICHOLS [of Alabama]: Yes; I do, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment relating to page 20, line 9, of the bill.

The Clerk proceeded to read the page and line numbers of the amendment.

MR. [JOSEPH P.] ADDABBO [of New York] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I raise a point of order against the amendment. We have already passed that section.

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet at the time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman was on his feet

10. 129 CONG. REC. 29430, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

11. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

but did not know that he was seeking recognition.

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I was at the microphone. I was standing. I was prepared to offer my amendment had the Chairman recognized me.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will have to make the observation that the gentleman from Alabama was not seeking active recognition. The Chair recognized the gentleman was on his feet but did not notice that he was seeking recognition by any vocal expression. . . .

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to offer my amendment at this point.

[Objection was heard.]

§ 19.3 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole advised Members that they must be on their feet seeking recognition at the proper time in order to protect their rights under the rules to make points of order or to offer amendments.

On Apr. 14, 1970,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, made the following statement:

. . . The Chair wishes to say that the Chair is most desirous of occupying this chair with dignity and with fairness to all concerned. There were other amendments that the Chair had been told would be offered, and the gentlemen who came and told the Chair were not on their feet seeking recognition,

12. 116 CONG. REC. 11649, 11650, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

nor did they address the Chair at the time, and therefore the Chair was in the position of allowing the Clerk to continue to read.

If the Members do not protect their own rights and use the rules of the House to their advantage, the Chair is not here to protect them when they do not insist on their own rights at the proper time.

The Chair says this with no degree of reprimand, but the Chair is the servant of the House, and the Chair will try to be fair.

§ 19.4 A Member who is not standing and addressing the Chair at the time a paragraph in an appropriation bill is read is precluded from offering an amendment to that paragraph after subsequent paragraphs have been read.

On Apr. 14, 1970,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was reading for amendment H.R. 16916, the Office of Education appropriations for fiscal 1971. Mr. Marvin L. Esch, of Michigan, offered an amendment to a paragraph on page 3, after the Clerk had read past page 4, line 17. Mr. Daniel J. Flood, of Pennsylvania, made a point of order against the amendment on the ground it was offered too late. He stated that Mr. Esch had not been on his feet at the proper time and did not address the Chair. Mr. Esch responded that he had been on his feet addressing the Chair at the proper time.

13. 116 CONG. REC. 11648, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, suggested that Mr. Esch ask unanimous consent that his amendment, although untimely, be considered, but Mr. Flood objected to the request. The Chairman sustained the point of order:

The Chair is constrained to uphold the point of order of the gentleman from Pennsylvania. The Chair wants to be fair, but the gentlemen in the Chamber that wish to offer their amendments must be on their feet.

§ 19.5 A point of order against an amendment, on the grounds that the section to which it is offered has been passed and is therefore not subject to amendment, will not lie where a Member was on his feet seeking recognition to offer the amendment at the appropriate time.

On Apr. 3, 1957,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, offered an amendment to a section of the bill pending in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. John Taber, of New York, made a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it was offered too late, the Clerk having read past the section to which the amendment pertained. Mr. Cooley stated as follows:

14. 103 CONG. REC. 5034-36, 85th Cong. 1st Sess.

It was not passed. My amendment was at the Clerk's desk, but the Clerk was reading so rapidly that he passed that section inadvertently.

Chairman Aime J. Forand, of Rhode Island, overruled the point of order:

The Chair is ready to rule on that point. The gentleman from North Carolina was on his feet while the Clerk was reading. The Clerk continued to read before the gentleman had a chance to offer his amendment.

The gentleman was entitled to recognition.

Member Must Offer Amendment From Floor in Addition to Placing With Clerk

§ 19.6 Members must be in the Chamber and offer their amendments from the floor at the proper point to the bill as it is read, and it is not sufficient to merely place such amendments at the Clerk's desk.

For example, on Apr. 1, 1947,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Sam Hobbs, of Alabama, offered an amendment to an appropriation bill. Mr. John Taber, of New York, made the point of order that the amendment came too late, the Clerk having read beyond the portion of the bill sought to be amended. Chairman George A. Dondero, of Michigan, sustained the point of order. Mr. Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, then inquired as follows:

15. 93 CONG. REC. 2987, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Chairman, as I understand it this amendment was on the Clerk's desk and the fact it was not reported was due to the Clerk's failing to see the amendment. The parliamentary inquiry is: Does it come too late when the amendment was on the desk?

The Chairman responded:

The gentleman from Alabama was not present to protect his rights and the Clerk continued to read beyond the point where the amendment should properly have been offered.

Likewise, on June 13, 1947, Chairman Thomas A. Jenkins, of Ohio, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, when the amendment offered by the gentleman from California was voted on, I had on the Clerk's desk an amendment to strike out the last three or four lines of that paragraph. Was that amendment out of order?

THE CHAIRMAN: No. In answer to the inquiry of the gentleman, the Chair will state that the Chair has no information as to amendments on the Clerk's desk or what they contain.

That information is brought to the attention of the House and the Chair when a Member sends up the amendment, rises and addresses the Chair stating that he offers an amendment. The gentleman from Michigan did not do that, or at least the Chair did not hear him.⁽¹⁶⁾

Chair's Authority To Structure Orderly Amendment Process; Discretion in Order of Recognition

§ 19.7 While the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may, through the power of recognition, encourage the orderly offering of amendments to a pending amendment in the nature of a substitute which has been read in its entirety, a unanimous-consent request, not contemplated by the special order governing the procedure, to read the substitute for amendment by sections is not in order.

On Mar. 25, 1975,⁽¹⁷⁾ it was demonstrated that, where the House has by special rule provided for reading by sections in Committee of the Whole of a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute as an original bill, any amendment offered thereto must be read in its entirety, and the Committee may not by unanimous consent order that an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the committee amendment be in turn read by sections for amendment. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [JAMES G.] O'HARA [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. O'Hara: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Committee to the text of the bill, H.R. 4222, insert the following:

That this Act may be cited as "The National School Lunch Act and Child Nutrition Act of 1966 Amendments of 1975".

SCHOOL BREAKFAST PROGRAM

Sec. 2: Section 4(a) of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 is amended by inserting immediately after "and June 30, 1975," the following: "and subsequent fiscal years".

MR. O'HARA (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with and that it be printed in the Record.

was H.R. 4222, to amend the National School Lunch Act and Child Nutrition Act.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object. For all intents and purposes it now appears that the original committee substitute, made in order by the rule, is to be junked and instead we are being asked to consider this new substitute which the gentleman from Michigan has just now offered. The original rule on this bill provided that the committee substitute be read for purposes of amendment, as is usual. If the gentleman now obtains unanimous consent to consider his substitute as read and open to amendment, all sorts of confusion can result. No one will have any control over what amendments will be presented and in which order and debate may be cut off.

MR. O'HARA: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. BAUMAN: I yield to the gentleman.

MR. O'HARA: Mr. Chairman, while it is being read in the Record it will not be open to amendment section by section. It would be open to amendment when the entire amendment is read.

MR. BAUMAN: That is precisely what we object to. . . .

MR. [ALBERT H.] QUIE [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, this is significant to what the gentleman is talking about. If the substitute is read, it is my understanding of the rules of the House that we cannot stop at the end of each section for amendments, but the entire substitute has to be read before it would be open for amendments.

18. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

May I inquire of the Chairman, is that right?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I wonder if the gentleman from Michigan would make a unanimous-consent request that his amendment be read section by section. This would accomplish the purpose we are after.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Chair would not entertain a request of that nature. The amendment must be read in its entirety under the rules of the House, if the gentleman from Maryland insists upon his objection. The Chair would encourage that amendments be made to each section once it has been read, but it cannot be open for amendment prior to the reading.

§ 19.8 The order of recognition to offer amendments is within the discretion of the Chair, who may either base his initial recognition on committee seniority or upon the preferential voting status of the amendments sought to be offered; thus, where both a pending amendment and a substitute therefor are open to perfecting amendments, the Chair has the discretion of first recognizing either the senior committee member, or a junior committee member whose amendment would be first voted upon, where both amendments could ultimately be pending at the same time.

The following proceedings occurred during consideration of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1979 in the Committee of the Whole on May 15, 1979:⁽¹⁹⁾

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) rise?

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is this to the Udall substitute?

MR. SEIBERLING: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk to the Udall-Anderson bill, which is actually a series of technical amendments which I will ask unanimous consent to offer en bloc. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Since there is no other amendment pending to the Udall substitute, the amendment of the gentleman from Ohio may be offered. . . .

MR. [JOHN B.] BREAUX [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, assuming there is an amendment to be offered to the so-called Breaux-Dingell merchant marine version, that would take precedence over an amendment to the so-called Udall-Anderson interior bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has the option either to recognize the senior Member first or to first recognize that Member seeking to offer the amendment which will be preferential and first voted upon.

19. 125 CONG. REC. 11135, 11136, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Paul Simon (Ill.).

MR. [THOMAS J.] HUCKABY [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, I have amendments at the desk for the Breaux-Dingell bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendments.⁽¹⁾

MR. [DON H.] CLAUSEN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. Chairman, what is the parliamentary situation? Is there an amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) or the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Huckaby)?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) sought recognition to amend the Udall substitute, but the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Huckaby) has an amendment to the Merchant Marine and Fisheries amendment in the nature of a substitute, and he will be recognized. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Seiberling) later for the purposes of offering his amendment. . . .

MR. HUCKABY: Mr. Chairman, I offer amendments to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendments.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Huckaby's amendments to the original amendment were subsequently agreed to.⁽²⁾ Mr. Seiber-

1. Mr. Seiberling was senior to Mr. Huckaby on the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, but Mr. Huckaby's amendment was to be voted on first and he represented the majority position on the committee.
2. 125 CONG. REC. 11152, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

ling then indicated that he had amendments to the substitute, and Mr. Huckaby that he had further amendments to the original amendment. As noted above, the Chair would have discretion to recognize either Member; but the Chair indicated that in either case, the question would not be put on amendments to the substitute until all amendments to the original amendment had been disposed of.

§ 19.9 Although perfecting amendments take priority over substitute amendments in the matter of voting, it is within the discretion of the Chair as to who he will recognize for submitting either kind of amendment.

On Dec. 15, 1937,⁽³⁾ Chairman John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition for offering amendments in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [GERALD J.] BOILEAU [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, and I do so to propound a parliamentary inquiry as to the order in which amendments are to be offered. The amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New Jersey is now pending. Would not perfecting amendments have priority of consideration over a substitute amendment?

3. 82 CONG. REC. 1590, 75th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has no knowledge of what amendments may be offered; but ordinarily a perfecting amendment has precedence over a motion to substitute insofar as voting is concerned. If the unanimous-consent request is granted, it is the understanding of the Chair that amendments will be offered section by section.

MR. BOILEAU: Nevertheless, it is the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey that would be before the House.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is before the Committee now.

MR. BOILEAU: Would not perfecting amendments have priority over an amendment to substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: So far as voting is concerned, yes.

MR. BOILEAU: I appreciate that fact, but may I propound a further parliamentary inquiry, whether or not a Member rising in his place and seeking recognition would not have a prior right to recognition for the purpose of offering a perfecting amendment to the amendment now pending?

THE CHAIRMAN: It does not necessarily follow that such Member would have a prior right. Recognition is in the discretion of the Chair.

MR. BOILEAU: I recognize it does not necessarily follow, but I am trying to have the matter clarified. Therefore I ask the Chair whether or not a Member who qualifies as offering a perfecting amendment does not have prior right of recognition in offering such amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has tried to be as helpful as he could, but the Chair does not feel he should estop himself of his own discretion in the matter of recognitions.

MR. BOILEAU: Does the Chair then rule that is within the discretion of the Chair rather than a right of the Member?

THE CHAIRMAN: In answer to the gentleman's inquiry, the Chair is of the opinion it is within the province of the Chair whom the Chair will recognize, having in mind the general rules of the House.

Preference in Recognition to Committee Members

§ 19.10 The order of recognition to offer amendments is in the discretion of the Chair, and preference is given to members of the committee reporting the bill who are on their feet seeking recognition.

On June 29, 1939,⁽⁴⁾ Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, ruled that although a Member had been recognized to offer an amendment, the Chairman would in his discretion have first recognized a member of the committee reporting the bill if he had been on his feet seeking recognition:

MR. [HAROLD] KNUTSON [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, I have an

4. 84 CONG. REC. 8311, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

Priority of recognition generally, of members of reporting committee, see § 13, supra.

amendment at the Clerk's desk which I would like to offer at this time.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Knutson: Strike out all of section 1 and insert the following——

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York] (interrupting the reading of the amendment): Mr. Chairman, would it be in order for the committee members to be recognized first to offer amendments?

MR. KNUTSON: I have already been recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: If there is any member of the committee seeking recognition, he is entitled to recognition.

MR. FISH: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be recognized.

MR. KNUTSON: I already have the floor, and have been recognized.

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Knutson] has already been recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: Recognition is in the discretion of the Chair, and the Chair will recognize members of the committee first. Does the acting chairman of the committee seek recognition?

MR. [SOL] BLOOM [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask whether the committee amendments to section 1 have been agreed to?

THE CHAIRMAN: The only one the Chair knows about is the one appearing in the print of the bill, and that has been agreed to.

MR. BLOOM: In line 16, there is a committee amendment.

MR. KNUTSON: Mr. Chairman, I was recognized by the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair feels that inasmuch as members of the committee were not on their feet and the gentleman from Minnesota had been recognized, the gentleman is entitled to recognition.

The Clerk will continue the reporting of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota.

§ 19.11 The order of recognition to offer amendments is within the discretion of the Chair, but in practice he generally recognizes members of the committee handling the bill in the order of their seniority.

On July 23, 1970,⁽⁵⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, recognized Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, to offer an amendment to an appropriation bill reported by the Committee on Appropriations. Mr. Charles R. Jonas, of North Carolina, objected that he had already been recognized to offer an amendment. Chairman Holifield advised Mr. Jonas that he intended to recognize members of the Committee on Appropriations in the order of their seniority and that Mr. Mahon was a more senior member of the committee than Mr. Jonas.

§ 19.12 When a paragraph of a bill is open to amendment at any point, the Chair may recognize Members to offer amendments in a sequence in accordance with their committee rank.

5. 116 CONG. REC. 25635, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

On July 23, 1970,⁽⁶⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, recognized Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, a member of the Committee on Appropriations which had reported the pending bill, to offer an amendment to the pending paragraph. The Chairman then answered a series of parliamentary inquiries on the prior rights of ranking members of the reporting committee to recognition to offer amendments:

MR. [CHARLES R.] JONAS [of North Carolina]: May I respectfully remind the Chair that I was recognized, and that the Chair allowed a point of order to intervene only, and I had been recognized. The Chair ruled that since a point of order had been made, the Chair would dispose of the point of order first.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair respectfully states that the point of order did intervene following the gentleman's recognition. The Chair intends to recognize members of the committee in the order of their seniority. The Chair, therefore, recognized the gentleman from Texas. The Chair will later recognize the gentleman from North Carolina.

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHEL: Did the Clerk read through the section concluding with line 3, page 39?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is the understanding of the Chair that he did.

MR. JONAS: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JONAS: I respectfully ask the Chair to rule that my amendment does precede the amendment that will be offered by the gentleman from Texas. My amendment goes to line 5, page 38, and my information is that the amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Texas comes at a later point in the paragraph.

THE CHAIRMAN: A whole paragraph is open to amendment at the same time. Therefore, the line does not determine the order of the amendment.

Chair's Discretion To Recognize Minority or Majority Member

§ 19.13 In recognizing members of the committee reporting a bill to offer amendments in the Committee of the Whole, the Chairman has discretion whether to first recognize a minority or majority member.

On June 4, 1948,⁽⁷⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was con-

6. 116 CONG. REC. 25635, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

7. 94 CONG. REC. 7189, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

sidering H.R. 6801, the foreign aid appropriation bill, for amendment, Chairman W. Sterling Cole, of New York, recognized Mr. Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois (a majority member), to offer an amendment. Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, objected that the minority was entitled to recognition to move to amend the bill. The Chairman responded:

Under the rules of the House, any member of the committee may offer an amendment, and it is in the discretion of the Chair as to which member shall be recognized.

Manager of Bill Offering More Than One Amendment

§ 19.14 Recognition to offer amendments is first extended to the manager of a bill, and the fact that the Committee of the Whole has just completed consideration of one amendment offered by the manager does not preclude his being recognized to offer another.

On Apr. 6, 1967,⁽⁸⁾ Robert W. Kastenmeier, of Wisconsin, was the Member in charge of H.R. 2512, being considered for amendment in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Kastenmeier had offered an amendment, which was adopted by the Committee. He then immediately offered another amendment. Mr. Byron G. Rogers, of Colorado, made a point of order against recognition for that purpose, and Chairman John H. Dent, of Pennsylvania, overruled the point of order:

8. 113 CONG. REC. 8617, 8618, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. ROGERS of Colorado: The gentleman from Wisconsin just offered an amendment, and certainly I as a member of the committee ought to have the privilege of offering an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Wisconsin is manager of the bill. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin.⁽⁹⁾

As to Right of Proponent To Further Amend

§ 19.15 A Member may offer an amendment to his own amendment by unanimous consent only; but in the event of objection to a unanimous-consent request to modify a pending amendment, any Member other than the proponent of the amendment may offer a proper amendment in writing thereto.

On Apr. 9, 1979, during consideration of H.R. 3324, the Inter-

9. For the prior rights of the manager of the bill being considered, see § 14, supra.

national Development Cooperation Act of 1979, an amendment was offered as follows,⁽¹⁰⁾ with subsequent efforts to modify it:

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. [Robert E.] Bauman [of Maryland]: On page 23, line 10, strike all of Section 303(a) and insert in lieu thereof the following new Section 303:

"Sec. 303. (a) Section 533 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 533—Southern Africa Program

"(a) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated to carry out this chapter for the fiscal year 1980, $68,000,000 shall be available (only) for the countries of southern Africa and for—

"(1) a southern Africa regional refugee support, training, and economic planning program to address the problems caused by the economic dislocation resulting from the conflict in that region;

"(2) education and job training assistance;

"(3) a southern Africa fair and open election program to address the problem resulting from the conflict and internal strife in that region.

"Such funds may be used to provide humanitarian assistance to African refugees and persons displaced by war and internal strife in southern Africa, to improve transportation links interrupted or jeopardized by regional political conflicts and to provide support to countries in that region.

"(b) In furtherance of the purposes of this section and the foreign policy objectives of the United States the President may appoint a team of impartial observers to observe elections in southern Africa and report to Congress:

"(1) as to whether all of the people of southern Africa and all organized political groups were given a fair opportunity to participate fully in the election without regard to ethnic identity or political affiliation; and

"(2) on the extent of public participation in the election, including the extent to which disruptions in the election process due to guerrilla activities may have affected public participation in the election and the extent to which eligible voters expressed opposition by voluntarily refraining from voting in the election.

"(c) Of the amounts authorized to be appropriated to carry out the purposes of this section, $20,000,000 shall be made available to the government of Zimbabwe/Rhodesia which is installed in that nation as a result of the election held in April 1979, which election may be evaluated and reported upon by observers as provided for in this section."

Mr. Paul Findley, of Illinois, inquired as to the effect of certain language:⁽¹¹⁾

MR. FINDLEY: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I wonder if the author of the amendment could shed a little light on the effect of the language.

For example, section (c) at the bottom of the amendment has been brought into question, and several speakers have indicated that this mandates the provision of $20 million to the Government of Rhodesia under certain circumstances. . . . [T]he language I have in my hand contains the word, "may," and it is written in. The word, "shall," is stricken in two different places in that last paragraph.

I wonder if that is the form in which the amendment now pending before this body appears? Does it say, "may" or "shall"?

MR. BAUMAN: I believe, as it is before the committee at the Clerk's desk, it says that $20 million shall be made available, but I would be amenable to a change, if that comforts the gentleman.

MR. FINDLEY: Is the gentleman asking unanimous consent to modify the amendment?

MR. BAUMAN: No; I will leave that to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Findley).

MR. FINDLEY: Then, Mr. Chairman, may I also ask this: Concerning the effect of the language on the first page of the amendment which would seem to set aside $68 million exclusively for the countries of southern Africa, could the gentleman shed any light on this question? To what extent would this amendment alter the provision of aid which is contemplated by the original bill?

MR. BAUMAN: The language in section (a) is not, for the most part, the language of the gentleman from Maryland but, rather, the language of the bill. But last year, when this southern Africa fund was created, it specifically earmarked the funds only for southern African countries. Without any notice in the report of this bill, that "only" was taken out, and the language before us, on page 23 of the bill, is—

. . . shall be available for the countries of southern Africa and for a southern Africa regional, refugee support . . .

MR. FINDLEY: Is it the gentleman's intention that the amendment now pending not tie the hands of the President in any single respect?

MR. BAUMAN: Only that it would provide him the opportunity, and indeed the responsibility, if he refused, of using these observers in the instance of any elections that occur, so that the Congress and the public of the United States could judge whether or not these elections were free and open and fair. . . .

MR. FINDLEY: Mr. Chairman, just to bring this to a head, I ask unanimous consent that the word "shall" which appears in two places in the last paragraph of the amendment be changed to "may."

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

MR. [STEPHEN J.] SOLARZ [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

The gentleman will have to submit an amendment in writing if the Chair is to consider it.

An amendment was offered by Mr. Solarz:⁽¹³⁾

MR. SOLARZ: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Solarz to the amendment offered by Mr. Bauman: On page 2 of the amendment, strike out subsections (b) and (c).

12. Elliott Levitas (Ga.).

13. 125 CONG. REC. 7763, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Solarz amendment was agreed to, whereupon Mr. Bauman sought to offer an amendment:⁽¹⁴⁾

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from Maryland ask unanimous consent to offer an amendment to his pending amendment?

MR. BAUMAN: Am I not in order, Mr. Chairman, to offer an amendment to an amendment once it has been offered?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that that requires unanimous consent.

MR. BAUMAN: Then, Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot) will offer the amendment.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROUSSELOT TO THE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BAUMAN, AS AMENDED

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Rousselot to the amendment offered by Mr. Bauman, as amended: Immediately after the last sentence of subsection (a) of section 533 of the amendment offered by Mr. Bauman, as amended, add the following:

(b) In furtherance of the purposes of this section and the foreign policy objectives of the United States the President may appoint a team of impartial observers to observe elections in southern Africa and report to Congress;

(1) as to whether all of the people of any such southern African nation and all organized political groups were given a fair opportunity to participate fully in the election without regard to ethnic identity or political affiliation; and

(2) on the extent of public participation in the election, including the extent to which disruptions in the election process due to guerrilla activities may have affected public participation in the election and the extent to which eligible voters expressed opposition by voluntarily refraining from voting in the election.

(c) of the amounts authorized to be appropriated to carry out the purposes of this section, $20,000,000 may be made available to the government of Zimbabwe/Rhodesia which is installed in that nation as a result of the election held in April 1979, which election may be evaluated and reported upon by observers as provided for in this section.

(In response to a point of order that the Rousselot amendment was identical to language just stricken, the Chair ruled that the amendment was proper because the change in language from "shall" to "may" was a substantive change.)

Priority of Members of Committee To Make Points of Order Against Amendments

§ 19.16 Members of the committee reporting a bill have priority of recognition to make points of order against proposed amendments to the bill.

14. Id. at p. 7764.

On Mar. 30, 1949,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Henry M. Jackson, of Washington, and Mr. Carl T. Curtis, of Nebraska, simultaneously arose in the Committee of the Whole to make a point of order against a pending amendment on the ground that it constituted legislation on an appropriation bill. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, recognized Mr. Jackson in preference over Mr. Curtis since Mr. Jackson was a member of the committee which had reported the bill.

Chair Determines Whether There Are Points of Order to Remainder of Bill Before Recognizing for Amendments

§ 19.17 Where the remainder of a general appropriation bill is, by unanimous consent, considered as read and open for amendment at any point, the Chair first ascertains whether there are any points of order to the remainder of the bill before recognizing Members to offer amendments.

For example, on July 30, 1962,⁽¹⁶⁾ the procedure below was

15. 95 CONG. REC. 3520, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

16. 108 CONG. REC. 14998, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

followed in the consideration of a bill and amendments thereto.

MR. [ALBERT] THOMAS [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill be considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: And also open to points of order at any point, I take it?

MR. THOMAS: Yes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ Is there objection to the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there any points of order to be made to the remainder of the bill?

MR. GROSS: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the language on page 27, beginning in line 24 and running through line 12 on page 28, as being legislation on an appropriation bill.

Point of Order Must Be Decided Before Recognition To Offer Amendment

§ 19.18 Unless reserved, a pending point of order against an amendment (on the grounds it constitutes an appropriation on a legislative bill) must be decided prior to recognition of another Member to offer an amendment to the challenged language.

On May 18, 1966,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. Charles R. Jonas, of North Carolina, made a point of order against certain language in a committee amendment offered by the Committee on Banking and Currency to H.R. 14544, the Participation Sales Act of 1966. Wright Patman, of Texas, chairman of the committee, stated that he had a substitute amendment to the committee amendment which would correct the objectionable language. Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, advised Mr. Jonas and Mr. Patman that the point of order, unless reserved, must be disposed of before Mr. Patman could be recognized to offer the amendment correcting the challenged language. Mr. Jonas reserved his point of order and the substitute amendment was offered and agreed to.

17. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

18. 112 CONG. REC. 10894-96, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

Committee Amendments Before Floor Amendments

§ 19.19 Where a bill is considered as read and open for amendment at any point, committee amendments are considered before the Chair extends recognition for amendments from the floor.

On July 18, 1968,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Thomas E. Morgan, of Pennsylvania, asked unanimous consent that a bill being considered in the Committee of the Whole be considered as read and open to amendment at any point. There was no objection. Before Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, extended recognition to Members to offer amendments from the floor, committee amendments were read and considered.

19. 114 CONG. REC. 22094, 22095, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: Committee amendments to that portion of a bill or resolution which has been read are normally considered before recognition is granted to offer other amendments, unless the committee amendment is given lesser priority, as in the case of a motion to strike out the pending section, which is held in abeyance until perfecting floor amendments are disposed of.

Minority Committee Member Usually Has Preference Over Nonmember

§ 19.20 Although minority members of the committee reporting a bill under consideration usually have preference of recognition over nonmembers, the power of recognition remains in the discretion of the Chair.

On July 19, 1967,⁽²⁰⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Joseph L. Evins, of Tennessee, recognized Mr. Edmond Edmondson, of Oklahoma, for a parliamentary inquiry and then recognized him to offer an amendment to the pending bill. Mr. William C. Cramer, of Florida, made the point of order that William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, the ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary, which had reported the bill, had been on his feet seeking recognition to offer an amendment at the time and that members of the committee reporting the bill had the prior right to be recognized. Chairman Evins did in fact subsequently recognize Mr. McCulloch, but overruled the point of order, and stated that in fairness he was attempting to recognize Members on both sides of the question.

20. 113 CONG. REC. 19416, 19417, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

Instance Where Chair Recognized Nonmember of Committee

§ 19.21 Members of the committee reporting a bill usually have preference of recognition to offer amendments but the Chair has recognized another based on his failure to see a committee member seeking recognition.

On Aug. 10, 1949,⁽¹⁾ Chairman Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, answered parliamentary inquiries on the subject of recognition in the Committee of the Whole to offer amendments:

MR. [WALTER E.] BREHM [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have been standing on my feet seeking recognition ever since the Speaker requested the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Cooley] to occupy the chair. Moreover, I am a member of the committee. I think my amendment should have preference.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair had recognized the gentleman from North Carolina even before recognizing the gentleman from Michigan.

MR. BREHM: I feel that the Chair was in error in so doing, because I am a member of the committee and the gentleman from North Carolina is not, and I was on my feet prior to the time the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Redden] asked for recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from North Carolina is recognized to offer his amendment.

MR. [JOSEPH W.] MARTIN [Jr.], of Massachusetts: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARTIN of Massachusetts: Does the Chair rule that a member of the committee does not have preference in recognition when two Members, one not a member of the committee, are seeking recognition at the same time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair did not see the gentleman from Ohio on his feet at the same time. The Chair had recognized the gentleman from North Carolina, then the Chair recognized the gentleman from Michigan to submit a consent request. The gentleman from Ohio will be recognized in due time.

The Clerk will report the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina.⁽²⁾

Committee Amendments to Special Rule; Nonsubstantive Amendment Acted on Before Debate

§ 19.22 Where a privileged resolution providing for the consideration of a measure is reported by the Committee on Rules, with committee amendments to the resolution, the amendments may be reported and acted upon before the Member managing the measure is recognized for debate thereon.

On Aug. 19, 1964,⁽³⁾ the Committee on Rules reported House Resolution 845, providing for the consideration of H.R. 11926, limiting the jurisdiction of federal courts in apportionment cases, which bill had not been reported by the committee to which referred. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, directed the Clerk, after the reading of the resolution, to read the committee amendments thereto. The amendments were then agreed to and the Speaker recognized Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, the manager of the resolution, for one hour of debate.

3. 110 CONG. REC. 20213, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: If the committee amendments to a resolution are substantive in nature, they may be reported and remain pending during the hour of debate in the House.

Anticipating Recognition

§ 19.23 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may advise a Member that he will recognize that Member, at a subsequent point in the proceedings, to offer a substitute for an amendment.

On July 12, 1962,⁽⁴⁾ Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that he would recognize a Member at the proper time to offer an amendment:

MR. [MICHAEL A.] FEIGHAN [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have a substitute amendment. Is it proper for me to offer the amendment at this time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will recognize the gentleman at the proper time.

§ 19.24 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole does not anticipate the order in which amendments may be offered nor does he declare in advance the order of recognition, but where he knows a Member desires recognition to offer an amendment, he may indicate that he will protect the Member's rights.

4. 108 CONG. REC. 13391, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Sept. 8, 1966,⁽⁵⁾ Chairman Edward P. Boland, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry as to the order of recognition for offering amendments under the five-minute rule:

MR. [ROBERT G.] STEPHENS [Jr., of Georgia]: It is my understanding that the procedures will be for the Minish amendment to be considered and after the Minish amendment is disposed of then I will offer a substitute and it is my understanding I will be recognized immediately after the amendment for the purpose of submitting that substitute. Is that the correct parliamentary situation?

THE CHAIRMAN: Recognition, of course, is within the discretion of the Chair, but the Chair will protect the gentleman's rights.⁽⁶⁾

Member May Not Yield for Amendment

§ 19.25 A Member recognized under the five-minute rule may not yield to another Member to offer an amendment (thereby depriving the Chair of his power of recognition), but he may by unanimous consent yield the balance of his time to another Member who may thereafter offer an amendment.

The proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 30, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8603, the Postal Reorganization Act Amendments of 1975:

(Mr. Cohen asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. [WILLIAM S.] COHEN [of Maine]: I yield to the gentleman from Delaware.

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair will state that the gentleman from Maine cannot yield for the purpose of the ber when the limitation is agreed to (see § 22.4, infra).

gentleman from Delaware offering an amendment.

MR. COHEN: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. du Pont).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maine?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Delaware is recognized for 2 minutes.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. DU PONT

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read the amendment as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. du Pont: Page 32, immediately after line 26, add the following new section:

Sec. 16. (a) Chapter 6 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section: . . .

§ 19.26 A Member recognized under the five-minute rule may not yield to another Member to offer an amendment, as it is within the power of the Chair to recognize each Member to offer amendments.

On Apr. 19, 1973,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering a bill for amendment under the five-minute rule. Chairman Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, refused to allow a Member with the floor to yield to another to offer an amendment:

9. 119 CONG. REC. 13240, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. DON H. CLAUSEN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. However, at this time I want to yield to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bingham) who has another appointment, so that he may offer his amendment at this time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from California (Mr. Don H. Clausen) he cannot yield for that purpose. If the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bingham) were here, the Chair would recognize him.⁽¹⁰⁾

Chair Declined Recognition for Amendment Where Member Obtained Floor for Debate

§ 19.27 The Chair declined to recognize a Member to offer a substantive amendment where the Member had obtained the floor to debate a motion to strike out the last word.

On July 28, 1965,⁽¹¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment under the five-minute rule H.R. 77, reported by the Committee on Education and Labor. Mr. William H. Ayres, of Ohio, ranking minority member of the committee, moved to strike out the last word and was recognized by Chairman Leo W. O'Brien, of New York, for five minutes. During that time, Mr. Ayres offered an amendment, but the Chairman declined to further recognize Mr. Ayres for that purpose.

Parliamentarian's Note: Several majority members of the Committee on Education and Labor were seeking recognition to offer amendments.

Member May Not Offer Amendment in Time Yielded for Debate

§ 19.28 A Member may not be recognized to offer an amendment during time yielded for debate only.

On Feb. 2, 1955,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. Ray J. Madden, of Indiana, called up at the direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 63, authorizing the Committee on Veterans' Affairs to investigate certain aspects of the Veterans' Administration. Mr. Madden yielded three minutes' time for debate to Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts. Mrs. Rogers indicated she wished to offer an amendment to prohibit the Committee on Veterans' Affairs from investigating any matter under investigation by another committee of the House. Mr. Madden stated that he did not yield for the purpose of having such an amendment offered. Speaker Pro Tempore Robert C. Byrd, of West Virginia, ruled that Mrs. Rogers did not have the right to offer an amendment in time yielded her for debate only.

Amendment Offered While Motion To Strike Pending

§ 19.29 While a motion to strike a pending portion of a bill will be held in abeyance until perfecting amendments to that portion are disposed of, a Member who has been recognized to debate his motion to strike may not be deprived of the floor by another Member who seeks to offer a perfecting amendment, but the perfecting amendment may be offered and voted on before the question is put on the motion to strike.

During consideration of H.R. 10024 (depository institutions amendments of 1975) in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 31, 1975,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

12. 101 CONG. REC. 1076-79, 84th Cong. 1st Sess.

13. 121 CONG. REC. 34564, 34565, 34566, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Roussetot: Beginning on page 10, line 18, strike all that follows through page 188, line 10.

MR. [FERNAND J.] ST GERMAIN [of Rhode Island]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

I believe that under the rules of the House since this amendment involves a motion to strike the title, that perfecting amendments that are at the desk take precedence over such a motion to strike a title. Is that not correct?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ That is true, if any are offered. . . .

MR. [JOHN J.] MOAKLEY [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I might state that I was standing when the Chairman recognized the gentleman from California (Mr. Roussetot), and I have a perfecting amendment at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the amendment offered by the gentleman from California, Mr. Roussetot, is pending now, and that the gentleman from California has been recognized. The gentleman may offer his perfecting amendment after the gentleman from California has completed his five minutes in support of his amendment to strike.

May Not Offer Amendment
When Recognized for Parliamentary Inquiry

§ 19.30 A Member recognized to propound a parliamentary

14. Spark M. Matsunaga (Ha.).

inquiry may not, having secured the floor for that limited purpose, then offer an amendment.

On Mar. 12, 1964,⁽¹⁵⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, ruled that where a Member was recognized for a parliamentary inquiry, recognition was limited to that purpose and that the Member so recognized could not then offer an amendment:

MR. [AUGUST E.] JOHANSEN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JOHANSEN: I direct this inquiry to the Chair as to whether it will be in order if I secure recognition to offer an amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio.

THE CHAIRMAN: Of course, the gentleman, if he is recognized, may offer an amendment.

MR. [JAMES H.] MORRISON [of Louisiana]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. The gentleman secured recognition first and asked the parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has not been recognized, except for a parliamentary inquiry.

MR. MORRISON: The gentleman has a substitute amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman made the parliamentary inquiry as to whether he could offer an amendment, and the Chair responded that the gentleman could offer an amendment if he was recognized.

15. 110 CONG. REC. 5140, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

Amendments Made in Order by Special Rule

§ 19.31 Where a special rule adopted by the House makes in order a designated amendment to a bill in Committee of the Whole but gives no special priority or precedence to such an amendment, the Chair is not required to extend prior recognition to offer that amendment but may rely on other principles of recognition such as alternation between majority and minority parties and priority of perfecting amendments over motions to strike.

On June 21, 1979,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 111, the Panama Canal Act of 1979, the Chair, after recognizing the manager of the bill to offer a pro forma amendment under the five-minute rule, recognized the ranking minority member to offer a perfecting amendment, prior to recognizing another majority member seeking recognition on behalf of another committee with jurisdiction over a portion of the bill to move to strike that portion, where the motion to strike was made in order but given no preferential status in the special rule governing consideration of the bill. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise at this time with so many Members in the well and on the floor to ask as many Members as possible to try to stay on the floor throughout the next hour and 50 minutes. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Bauman: Page 187, strike out line 19 and all that follows through line 20 on page 189 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

CHAPTER 2—IMMIGRATION

Sec. 1611. Special Immigrants.—
(a) Section 101(a)(27) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)), relating to the definition of special immigrants, is amended—

MS. [ELIZABETH] HOLTZMAN [of New York] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I want to raise a point of order. . . .

Mr. Chairman, at the time that the last amendment was voted on, I was on my feet seeking to offer an amendment on behalf of the Committee on the Judiciary with respect to striking in its entirety section 1611 of the bill.

The right to offer that amendment is granted under the rule, in fact on page 3 of House Resolution 274. I want to ask the Chair whether I am entitled to be recognized or was entitled to be recognized to make first a motion, which was a motion to strike the entire section before amendments were made to the text of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ Unless an amendment having priority of consideration under the rule is offered, it is the Chair's practice to alternate recognition of members of the several committees that are listed in the rule, taking amendments from the majority and minority side in general turn, while giving priority of recognition to those committees that are mentioned in the rule.

The gentlewoman from New York (Ms. Holtzman) is a member of such a committee, but following the adoption of the last amendment the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy), the chairman of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, sought recognition to strike the last word. Accordingly, the Chair then recognized the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) to offer a floor amendment, which is a perfecting amendment to section 1611 of the bill.

The rule mentions that it shall be in order to consider an amendment as recommended by the Committee on the Judiciary, to strike out section 1611, if offered, but the rule does not give any special priority to the Committee on the Judiciary to offer such amendments, over perfecting amendments to that section.

MS. HOLTZMAN: Mr. Chairman, may I be heard further? The gentleman said that he was going to recognize members of the committees that had a right to offer amendments under the rule alternately. I would suggest to the Chair that no member of the Committee on the Judiciary has been recognized thus far in the debate with respect to offering such an amendment and, therefore, the Chair's principle, as I understood he stated it, was not being observed in connection with recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would observe that the Chair is attempting to be fair in recognizing Members alternately when they are members of committees with priority and that the rule permits but does not give the Committee on the Judiciary special priority of recognition over other floor amendments, which under the precedents would take priority over a motion to strike.

Second, the Chair would like to advise the gentlewoman from New York that recognition is discretionary with the Chair and is not subject to a point of order. Does the gentlewoman have any further comment to make on the point of order?

The Chair overrules the point of order and recognizes the gentleman in the well.

Parliamentarian's Note: The amendment offered by Mr. Bauman struck out section 1611 of the bill and inserted a new section, whereas the amendment made in order under the rule on behalf of the Committee on the Judiciary was an amendment to strike that section; thus adoption of the Bauman amendment precluded the offering of the Judiciary Committee amendment. It would have made little difference if Ms. Holtzman was recognized first, since the Bauman amendment could have been offered as a perfecting amendment while the Holtzman motion to strike was pending and if the Bauman amendment was adopted the motion to strike would have necessarily fallen and would not have been voted on.

17. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

If the Holtzman amendment, and the amendments to be offered on behalf of the Committees on Foreign Affairs and Post Office and Civil Service, had been committee amendments formally recommended in reports on H.R. 111, they would have been automatically considered by the Committee of the Whole, but only the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries had formally reported H.R. 111.

Recognition for Amendments Under Special Rules—Committee Amendments and Other Amendments Under Modified Closed Rule

§ 19.32 Where a bill consisting of several titles was considered as read and open to amendment at any point under a special “modified closed rule” permitting germane amendments only to certain portions of titles but permitting committee amendments to any portion of the bill, the Chair first recognized a Member to offer committee amendments to title I and then recognized other Members to offer amendments to that title.

On Aug. 7, 1974,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1974 (H.R. 16090) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, made the following statement:

THE CHAIRMAN: No amendments, including any amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill, are in order to the bill except the following:

In title 1: Germane amendments to subsection 101(a) proposing solely to change the money amounts contained in said subsection, providing they have been printed in the Congressional Record at least 1 calendar day before being offered; and the text of the amendment to be offered on page 13, following line 4, inserted in the Congressional Record of August 5, 1974, by Mr. Butler.

In title 2: Germane amendments to the provisions contained on page 33, line 17, through page 35, line 11, providing they have been printed in the Record at least 1 calendar day before being offered; and the amendment printed on page E5246 in the Record of August 2, 1974.

18. 120 CONG. REC. 27258, 27259, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

In title 4: Germane amendments which have been printed in the Record at least 1 calendar day before they are offered, except that sections 401, 402, 407, 409 and 410 shall not be subject to amendment; and the text of the amendment printed on page H7597 in the Congressional Record of August 2, 1974.

Amendments are in order to any portion of the bill if offered by direction of the Committee on House Administration, but said amendments shall not be subject to amendment.

Are there any Committee on House Administration amendments to title I?

MR. [FRANK] THOMPSON [Jr.] of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer three committee amendments to title I of the bill and I ask unanimous consent that they be considered en bloc.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the committee amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendments: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Thompson).

The committee amendments were agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there further committee amendments to title I?

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to title I.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. du Pont: Page 2, line 16, strike "$5,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$2,500".

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, as required by the rule adopted by the House today, my amendment was published at pages E5306 and E5307 of yesterday's Record.

Recognition To Offer Amendments Printed in Record

§ 19.33 Where a special rule restricts the offering of amendments to those printed in the Record but does not specify the Members who must offer them, the right to propose amendments properly inserted in the Record inures to all Members; thus, under a special rule permitting only germane amendments printed in the Record for at least two calendar days to be offered to a designated title of a bill, and prohibiting amendments thereto, a Member was permitted to offer a pro forma amendment to that title ("to strike the requisite number of words") where that amendment had been inserted in the Record by another Member, and at a time when no substantive amendment was pending.

The proceedings described above occurred on Mar. 26, 1974,⁽¹⁹⁾ in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 69, a bill to amend and extend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ When the Committee rose on Tuesday, March 12, 1974, all time for general debate on the bill had expired.

Under the rule, no amendment shall be in order to title I of the substitute committee amendment printed in the reported bill except germane amendments which have been printed in the Congressional Record at least 2 calendar days prior to their being offered during the consideration of said substitute for amendment, and amendment offered by direction of the Committee on Education and Labor, and neither of said classes of amendments shall be subject to amendment.

Pursuant to the rule, the Clerk will now read by titles the substitute committee amendment printed in the reported bill as an original bill for the purpose of amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Elementary and Secondary Education Amendments of 1974".

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TITLE I—AMENDMENTS OF TITLE I OF THE ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION ACT OF 1965 . . .

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order. Under the rule the motion is not in order unless he has printed the motion in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair overrules the point of order. The amendment offered by the gentleman from Kentucky was printed in the Record.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, I submit to the Committee that the motion I heard was to strike out the requisite number of words. If the gentleman from Kentucky has not had that motion printed in the Record, he is not entitled to 5 minutes under the rule.

THE CHAIRMAN: That amendment was printed in the Record.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, how many times does he get to use it?

THE CHAIRMAN: As many times as it is printed in the Record.

MR. BAUMAN: I thank the Chairman.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, had inserted five pro forma amendments in the Record, and Mr. Perkins offered one of the five. Pursuant to 8 Canon's Precedents § 2874, the Chair stated that, without objection, the pro forma amendment would be withdrawn at the conclusion of Mr. Perkin's five-minute speech, in order to avoid putting the question on the pro forma amendment and to permit re-offering of that amendment at a future time to title I.

Amendment in Nature of Substitute Was Offered From Floor, Not Under Special Rule

§ 19.34 Pursuant to a special rule providing for the consideration of the text of a bill as an amendment in the nature of a substitute, to be read by titles as an original bill immediately after the reading of the enacting clause of the bill to which offered, the Chair recognized a Member to offer the amendment in the nature of a substitute from the floor before it could be considered under the rule.

On Sept. 19, 1974,⁽¹⁾ Chairman Thomas M. Rees, of California, recognized James T. Broyhill, of North Carolina, who then offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute:

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: When the Committee rose on Tuesday, September 17, 1974, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, immediately after the reading of the enacting clause, it shall be in order to consider the text of the bill H.R. 16327 as an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the bill, and said substitute shall be read for amendment by title.

1. 120 CONG. REC. 31727, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk will read the enacting clause.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. . . .

MR. BROYHILL of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, under the rule, I offer the following amendment in the nature of a substitute, which is to the text of the bill (H.R. 7917).

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Broyhill of North Carolina: That this Act may be cited as the "Consumer Product Warranties-Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act".

TITLE I—CONSUMER PRODUCT
WARRANTIES

DEFINITION

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Broyhill was a minority member of the committee and had introduced the bill made in order by the rule. The Chair recognized him when the chairman of the then Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce did not immediately seek recognition. It should be noted that the Chair could have considered the amendment to be pending and could have directed that it be read by title as an original bill without being offered from the floor.

Right To Offer Amendment
After Expiration of Debate Time

§ 19.35 Where a special rule governing consideration of a bill in Committee of the Whole limits debate on each amendment or on each amendment thereto to a specific amount of time, equally divided and controlled, the expiration of time on an amendment does not preclude the offering of an amendment thereto, debatable under such time limitation.

On May 4, 1983,⁽²⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration House Joint Resolution 13, calling for a freeze and reduction in nuclear weapons. House Joint Resolution 13 was being considered pursuant to a special rule agreed to on Mar. 16,⁽³⁾ and a special rule providing for additional procedures for consideration, agreed to on May 4.⁽⁴⁾

MR. [STEPHEN J.] SOLARZ [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment. . . .

2. 129 CONG. REC. 11086, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
3. H. Res. 138, 129 CONG. REC. 5666, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
4. H. Res. 179, 129 CONG. REC. 11037, 98th Cong. 1st Sess. (including the division of time as described above).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Solarz to the amendment offered by Mr. Hunter: In the section proposed to be added to the resolution by the Hunter amendment, strike out all that follows "prevent" through "crews" and insert in lieu thereof "safety-related improvements in strategic bombers".

MR. [ROBERT E.] BADHAM [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

Mr. Chairman, it occurs to me that all time for the proponents and all time for the opponents of the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Hunter), has been used up.

Is it not true, under the rule, that we must now vote on that amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: No. The Chair will advise the gentleman from California (Mr. Badham), that it is true that all time relative to the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Hunter), for and against, has expired, but under the rule another amendment can be offered, and is being offered, and 15 minutes are allocated to the proponent of the amendment and 15 minutes are allocated to an opponent of the amendment.

—Amendments Not Printed in Record May Be Offered, Not Debated

§ 19.36 After the expiration of debate under the five-minute rule on a bill and amendments thereto, amendments not printed in the Record may still be offered but are not subject to debate.

During consideration of the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriation bill (H.R. 4389) in the Committee of the Whole on June 27, 1979,⁽⁶⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

Amendments offered by Mr. Early: Page 15, line 5, strike out "$961,158,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$970,158,000". . . .

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Chairman, what happened to those Members who were on their feet with amendments that were not printed in the Record when the Chair acknowledged those Members? Were they all shut out from being recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that any Member can still offer an amendment.

MR. MICHEL: But they cannot speak on the amendments; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct, with the exception of a unanimous-consent request.

Motion To Suspend Rules
"With Amendments"

§ 19.37 While it is not in order to offer an amendment to a bill being considered under a motion to suspend the rules, the Speaker may recognize a Member for a motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill with amendments.

On June 16, 1952,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, offered a motion to suspend the rules and to pass a bill with amendments. Mr. Carl T. Curtis, of Nebraska, made a point of order against the motion, on the ground that under the precedents a motion to amend could not be invoked pursuant to a motion to suspend the rules. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled as follows:

. . . There can be no amendment offered to the motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill, but it is entirely in order for the Speaker to recognize a Member to move to suspend the rules and pass a bill with amendments and recognition for that is entirely within the discretion of the Chair. The Chair can recognize a Member to move to suspend the rules on the proper day and pass a bill with an amendment that has been authorized by a committee, or if the Chair so desires he can recognize a Member to move to suspend the rules and pass a bill with his own amendment.

8. 98 CONG. REC. 7287, 7288, 82d Cong. 2d Sess.

Appropriation Bills: Limitation Amendments

§ 19.38 When a general appropriation bill has been read, or considered as read, for amendment in its entirety, the Chair (after entertaining points of order) first entertains amendments which are not prohibited by clause 2(c) of Rule XXI, and then recognizes for amendments proposing limitations not contained or authorized in existing law pursuant to clause 2(d) of Rule XXI [adopted in Jan. 1983, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.], subject to the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been agreed to.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 27, 1983,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 4139 (Departments of Treasury and Postal Service appropriations for fiscal 1984):

9. 129 CONG. REC. 29630, 29631, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [CHRISTOPHER H.] SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order at this time to offer a change in the language that would not be considered under the House rules to be legislating on an appropriations bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will first entertain any amendment to the bill which is not prohibited by clause 2(c), rule XXI, and will then entertain amendments proposing limitations pursuant to clause 2(d), rule XXI.

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

MR. [BRUCE A.] MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Smith of New Jersey: On page 49, immediately after line 2, add the following new section:

"Sec. 618. No funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to pay for an abortion, or the administrative expenses in connection with any health plan under the Federal employees health benefit program which provides any benefits or coverages for abortions. . . ."

MR. MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be heard on my point of order. . . .

Mr. Chairman, my point of order is that this amendment constitutes a limitation on an appropriation and cannot be considered by the House prior to the consideration of a motion by the Committee to rise.

10. Philip R. Sharp (Ind.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must indicate to the gentleman that no such preferential motion has yet been made.

The gentleman is correct that a motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted takes precedence over an amendment proposing a limitation.

MR. MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, then I move that the committee do now rise. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . It would be more appropriate if a motion to rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as have been adopted, pursuant to clause 2(d), rule XXI were offered instead. . . .

MR. [EDWARD R.] ROYBAL [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that bill, as amended, do pass.

[The motion was rejected.]

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Smith of New Jersey: On page 49, immediately after line 2, add the following new section:

“Sec. 618. No funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to pay for an abortion

Parliamentarian’s Note: Mr. Smith was the only Member seeking recognition to offer a limitation after the preferential motion was rejected and could have been preempted by a member of the Appropriations Committee or a more senior member offering an amendment since principles governing priority of recognition would remain applicable. A Member who has attempted to offer a limitation before the motion to rise and report is rejected is not guaranteed first recognition for a limitation amendment.

Amending Committee Amendment in Nature of Substitute Under Hour Rule; Motion To Recommit With Instructions

§ 19.39 Where there was pending in the House under the hour rule a resolution and a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, the Chair indicated that an amendment to the committee amendment could be offered only if the manager yielded for that purpose or if the previous question were rejected, and that a motion to recommit with instructions containing a direct amendment could not be offered if the committee substitute were adopted (since it is not in order to further amend a measure already amended in its entirety).

On Mar. 22, 1983,⁽¹¹⁾ after House Resolution 127 was called up for consideration in the House, Speaker Pro Tempore John F. Seiberling, of Ohio, responded to several parliamentary inquiries, as indicated below:

MR. [FRANK] ANNUNZIO [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on House Administration, I call up a privileged resolution (H. Res. 127), providing amounts from the contingent fund of the House for expenses of investigations and studies by standing and select committees of the House in the 1st session of the 98th Congress.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 127

Resolved, That there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House in accordance with this primary expense resolution not more than the amount specified in section 2 for investigations and studies by each committee named in such section

Committee amendment in the nature of a substitute: Strike out all after the resolving clause and insert: That there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House in accordance with this primary expense resolution not more than the amount specified in section 2 for investigations and studies by each committee named in such section

Sec. 2. The committees and amounts referred to in the first section are: Select Committee on Aging, $1,316,057; Committee on Agriculture, $1,322,669; Committee on Armed Services, $1,212,273. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM E.] DANNEMEYER [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

If this Member from California would now offer an amendment to the total in this resolution . . . would that amendment now be in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would rule that the amendment would be in order if the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio) would yield to the gentleman from California. . . .

MR. DANNEMEYER . . . What if we were successful in defeating the previous question with respect to this issue? If we did, would an amendment to reduce spending consistent with what I stated previously then be in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would advise the gentleman if the previous question were defeated a germane amendment to the committee amendment would be in order at that time. . . .

MR. DANNEMEYER: I have a further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

We have a motion to commit which is available at the conclusion of a matter of this type. Is the procedure under which this process is now considered by the floor such that the motion to commit can be used with instructions to reduce spending by a certain amount or is it a motion to recommit without instructions?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: If the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute is agreed to no further direct amendment could be made by a motion to recommit.

Chair May Recognize Manager for Request To Limit Debate Before Amendment

§ 19.40 The Chair may recognize the manager of a bill to request a limit on debate on a pending portion of the bill before recognizing a Member to offer an amendment thereto.

On Dec. 4, 1979,⁽¹²⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission authorization bill (H.R. 2608):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ Is there any further debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Harris)? If not, the question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Harris).

The amendment was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will indicate that we believe there is one additional amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez).

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, then I would ask unanimous consent that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto close at 4:15.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous consent request was granted will be recognized for 10 seconds each.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez).

MR. [HENRY B.] GONZALEZ [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Gonzalez: Page 11, after line 15, add the following new title:

TITLE IV—PROTECTION FOR INSPECTORS

Sec. 401. Section 1114 of Title 18, United States Code is amended by inserting “any construction inspector or quality assurance inspector on any Nuclear Regulatory Commission licensed project,” after “Department of Justice.”.

After debate on a point of order, Mr. Gonzalez made a parliamentary inquiry:

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez) is recognized for 40 seconds.

MR. GONZALEZ: Mr. Chairman, I would like now to interpose my parliamentary inquiry with regard to the time allotted me. . . .

Why should I be limited to a motion that was made subsequent to the knowledge that I had a pending amendment to offer?

Had I known that I would come under that limitation on a subsequent motion, though I had not been recognized for the purpose of amendment, because the gentleman from Arizona was recognized anticipatorily on a motion I had no knowledge was going to be made. If I had known, I would have objected to the unanimous-consent request, because I wanted the opportunity to offer the amendment and be given at least 5 minutes, that is the customary time allotted a Member.

13. Leon E. Panetta (Calif.).

Let me say this, in order to avoid any kind of an argument. How much net time will I have to present this amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has 1 minute and 20 seconds on his amendment. . . .

With regard to the parliamentary inquiry, the Chair would indicate that he first recognized the chairman, the gentleman from Arizona as manager of the bill, that the gentleman made a unanimous-consent agreement with regard to limitation of time and that there was no objection.

Therefore, the gentleman is recognized for 1 minute and 20 seconds on his amendment.

May Not Debate Amendment Not Yet Offered

§ 19.41 Only one amendment to a substitute may be pending at one time, and amendments which might be subsequently offered may not be debated while another amendment is pending.

On May 15, 1979,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1979 (H.R. 39), the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole:

14. 125 CONG. REC. 11178, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Huckaby) to the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

The amendments to the amendment in the nature of a substitute were agreed to.

MR. [PETER H.] KOSTMAYER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have two amendments.

THE CHAIRMAN: Are these amendments to the Merchant Marine Committee amendment?

MR. KOSTMAYER: To Udall-Anderson.

THE CHAIRMAN: There is already an amendment pending to the Udall substitute. Another amendment to the Udall substitute is not in order at this point.

MR. KOSTMAYER: Well, Mr. Chairman, they can be spoken on now and voted on later; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: They are not in order at this time.

Recognition for Debate as Not Precluding Point of Order

§ 19.42 Mere recognition for debate on an amendment does not preclude a point of order against the amendment before the Member recognized has begun his remarks.

15. Paul Simon (Ill.).

On July 30, 1955,⁽¹⁶⁾ the House was considering a Consent Calendar bill under the five-minute rule. Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered an amendment and was recognized by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, to debate his amendment. Before Mr. Hoffman began his remarks, Mr. Henry S. Reuss, of Wisconsin, made a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it was not germane. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, made a point of order against the point of order on the ground that Mr. Hoffman was recognized before the point of order was made. The Speaker overruled the point of order, noting that Mr. Hoffman had not begun his remarks.

The Speaker then requested Mr. Reuss to reserve his point of order so that Mr. Hoffman could explain his amendment. Mr. Reuss did so until the conclusion of Mr. Hoffman's five minutes' time.

Chair's Discretion in Allocating Time

§ 19.43 Where debate on an amendment has been limited and equally divided between the proponent and a Member opposed, and the Chair has recognized the only Member seeking recognition in opposition to the amendment, no objection lies against that Member subsequently yielding back all the time in opposition.

16. 101 CONG. REC. 12408, 84th Cong. 1st Sess.

On May 4, 1983,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration House Joint Resolution 13, calling for a freeze and reduction in nuclear weapons. House Joint Resolution 13 was being considered pursuant to a special rule agreed to on Mar. 16,⁽¹⁸⁾ and a special rule providing for additional procedures for consideration, agreed to on May 4.⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. William S. Broomfield, of Michigan, rose in opposition⁽²⁰⁾ to an amendment⁽¹⁾ offered by Mr. Henry J. Hyde, of Illinois, to a substitute amendment:

MR. BROOMFIELD: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The gentleman is recognized for 15 minutes in opposition to the amendment, for purposes of debate only.

MR. BROOMFIELD: Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

2. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

MR. HYDE: Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time and request a vote.

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, we have 15 minutes in order to oppose the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: No one stood up on that side of the aisle, and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) represented to the Chair that he opposed the amendment and was recognized for 15 minutes in opposition, and he yielded back the balance of his time, as did the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hyde). . . .

MR. [LES] AUCOIN [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Chairman, my inquiry is this: This side, which opposes the amendment, has been foreclosed an opportunity, not on this amendment but on the previous amendment, to have 15 minutes in opposition to the amendment because a Member on that side who voted against an amendment that was hostile to the exact amendment said he was opposed to it.

My parliamentary inquiry is, Mr. Chairman, is that in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: As the Chair previously explained, no one on the majority side of the aisle rose in opposition to that amendment. The Chair looked to the other side of the aisle and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) rose, represented that he was in opposition to the amendment and was recognized.

Parliamentarian's Note: Had another Member also been seeking to control time in opposition at the time the first Member was recognized and yielded back, the Chair would have allocated the time to that Member so that it could have been utilized.

Chair Does Not Distinguish as Between Members of Full Committee and Subcommittee

§ 19.44 The Chair in giving preference of recognition to members of a committee reporting a bill does not distinguish between members of the full committee and members of the subcommittee which handled the bill.

On Apr. 7, 1943,⁽³⁾ Chairman Luther A. Johnson, of Texas, recognized Mr. Frank B. Keefe, of Wisconsin, in opposition to a pro forma amendment. Mr. Keefe was a member of the Committee on Appropriations, which had reported the pending bill. Mr. John H. Kerr, of North Carolina, objected that he sought recognition as a member of the subcommittee which had handled the bill. The Chairman stated as follows on the priority of recognition:⁽⁴⁾

As the Chair understands it, a member of the Committee on Appropriations has the same right as those who are members of that committee who happen to be members of a subcommittee. That is the parliamentary procedure, as the Chair understands it. The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Wisconsin. Had he not done so, he certainly would have recognized the gentleman from North Carolina.

Extending Five-minute Debate—Proponent of Amendment Offering Pro Forma Amendment

§ 19.45 Under the five-minute rule, the proponent of a pending amendment may offer a pro forma amendment thereto (for additional debate time) only by unanimous consent.

During consideration of the nuclear weapons freeze resolution (H.J. Res. 13) in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 13, 1983,⁽⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ELLIOTT C.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ Without objection, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Levitas) is recognized for 5 minutes. . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, does the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Levitas) have an amendment pending?

5. 129 CONG. REC. 8382, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
6. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York is correct. The gentleman from Georgia has an amendment in the nature of a substitute to the text pending.

MR. STRATTON: Well, is it proper to strike the last word on one's own amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman asked for recognition, and without objection, he was recognized for 5 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: Technically, the proponent may rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment offered by another Member in order to secure an additional five minutes.

Where Five-minute Debate Continues on Subsequent Day—Proponent May Speak Again Only by Unanimous Consent

§ 19.46 When the Committee of the Whole resumes consideration of an amendment which had been debated by its proponent on a prior day, the proponent may speak again on his amendment only by unanimous consent.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Dec. 12, 1979,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of S. 423 (Dispute Resolution Act):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ . . . When the Committee of the Whole rose on Tuesday, December 11, 1979, section 3 had been considered as having been read and open to amendment at any point, and pending was an amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kindness).

For what purpose does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kindness) rise?

MR. [THOMAS N.] KINDNESS [of Ohio]: Madam Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

MR. [ROBERT W.] KASTENMEIER [of Wisconsin]: Madam Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. KASTENMEIER: Madam Chairman, has the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kindness) not already been recognized to speak for 5 minutes on his amendment? I believe he has already spoken on his amendment during the course of this debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

Without objection, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kindness) is recognized for 5 additional minutes in support of his amendment.

MR. KASTENMEIER: Madam Chairman, reserving the right to object, I will not make an objection, but I do note that this is the second time the gentleman has spoken on his amendment.

Madam Chairman, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Without objection, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kindness) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his amendment.

There was no objection.

Speaking Twice on Same Amendment

§ 19.47 While a Member may not speak twice on the same amendment, he may speak in opposition to a pending amendment and subsequently offer a pro forma amendment and debate the latter.

On June 30, 1955,⁽⁹⁾ Mr. James P. Richards, of South Carolina, was managing a bill under consideration in the Committee of the Whole. He had spoken in opposition to a pending amendment and had then gained the floor by offering a pro forma amendment. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, objected that Mr. Richards could not speak twice on the same amendment. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, ruled that Mr. Richards properly had the floor and could offer a pro forma amendment, gaining time for debate, where he had already spoken in opposition to the pending amendment.⁽¹⁰⁾

§ 19.48 While a Member may not be recognized to speak twice on the same amendment, he may rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment and accomplish that result.

10. For the prohibition against one Member speaking twice to the same question, see Rule XIV clause 6, House Rules and Manual §762 (1995). On speaking twice to an amendment under the five-minute rule, see § 21, infra.

On July 20, 1951,⁽¹¹⁾ Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition to debate amendments in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [JESSE P.] WOLCOTT [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, is it in order for a Member to talk twice on the same amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: A Member may rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment and accomplish that result, if he desires to do so.

§ 19.49 In the Committee of the Whole the Member in charge of the bill having spoken on an amendment may be recognized to speak again on the amendment when debate under the five-minute rule has been limited, abrogating the five-minute rule.

On Nov. 14, 1967,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky, manager of a bill being considered in the Committee of the Whole, moved that all debate on the pending amendment conclude at a certain time, and the motion was agreed to. Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the allocation of time under the limitation:

MR. [JOHN N.] ERLBORN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

11. 97 CONG. REC. 8566, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

12. 113 CONG. REC. 32343-44, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ERLBORN: I have noticed in the past, and again at this time, that when a unanimous-consent request to limit debate has been made, Members who have already been recognized to debate the issue are again recognized under the unanimous-consent limitation. I wonder if this is in order. The Chairman just announced that the gentleman from Kentucky, the chairman of the committee, would be recognized again, though he has already debated on this amendment. I wonder if Members can be recognized for a second time to debate the same amendment merely because a unanimous-consent request is made to limit time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must say to the gentleman that when the unanimous-consent request was made and agreed to it abrogated the 5-minute rule.

Recognition for Debate Where Amendment Tree Is Full

§ 19.50 Where there is pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute, a substitute therefor, an amendment to the original amendment and an amendment to the substitute, a Member may be recognized to debate the amendment to the substitute either prior or subsequent to the first vote on the amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

On Oct. 1, 1974,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 988 (to reform the structure, jurisdiction, and procedures of House committees) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to the following parliamentary inquiries:

MR. [BOB] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, do I understand correctly that the Thompson amendment is to the Hansen substitute, and that no other amendment would be in order to that amendment in the nature of a substitute until the Thompson amendment is voted upon?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to inform the gentleman that he is correct. No additional amendments to the Hansen amendment in the nature of a substitute are in order until the Thompson amendment is voted on.

Further, the Chair would like to advise the gentleman that no additional amendments to the Martin substitute are in order until the Sullivan amendment is voted upon.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I have another parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, would I be protected in supporting the Sullivan amendment if I should wait and postpone asking for recognition until after the Thompson amendment has been disposed of?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to inform the gentleman that he has a choice but that he can at this time debate the Sullivan amendment, and the Chair would recognize the gentleman for that purpose.

MR. ECKHARDT: I thank the Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

§ 19.51 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute, a substitute therefor and an amendment to the substitute, and debate had been limited on the substitute and all amendments thereto but not on the original amendment or amendments thereto, the Chair indicated that (1) further amendments to the substitute or modifications of the substitute by unanimous consent must await disposition of the pending amendment to the substitute; (2) amendments to the original amendment could be offered and debated under the five-minute rule and would be voted on before amendments to the substitute; (3) amendments to the substitute could be offered and voted upon without debate unless printed in the Record pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XXIII; and (4) the question would not be put on the substitute until all perfecting amendments to it and to the original amendment were disposed of.

13. 120 CONG. REC. 33338, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

14. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

During consideration of the Natural Gas Emergency Act of 1976 (H.R. 9464) in the Committee of the Whole on Feb. 5, 1976,⁽¹⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Smith amendment and all amendments thereto terminate immediately upon the conclusion of consideration of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Eckhardt).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, as I understood it, the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) was that all debate on the Smith substitute amendment cease after the disposition of the Eckhardt amendment. The Eckhardt amendment would be the pending business then, and immediately after the determination of the Eckhardt amendment, we would vote on the Smith amendment. Is that not correct? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Let the Chair add this: the Chair has said it once, and would like to say it again. Before we vote on the Smith substitute, amendments to the Krueger amendment are debatable if offered.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: I understand that, Mr. Chairman. My questions were with reference only to how we get to the Smith amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The point that the Chair is trying to make, regardless of what agreements are reached, is that until the Krueger amendment is finally perfected to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Chair cannot put the question on the Smith substitute. . . .

There has been no limitation of debate on the Krueger amendment or amendments thereto. The basic parliamentary situation is that we have a substitute amendment for the amendment in the nature of a substitute, the Krueger amendment. Both of those are subject to amendment, but both must be perfected before the Chair can put the question on the substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: With respect to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell), the Eckhardt amendment is still to be voted upon, and then there are to be no other amendments to the Smith amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: There is to be no further debate on such amendments. . . .

15. 122 CONG. REC. 2646-48, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

16. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, if my time still applies, I would like to ask the Chair to state the circumstances. If I may, before the Chair does that, I would like to ask the question this way: As the situation stands at this moment, the Krueger amendment is still perfectable by amendments under the normal course of time, and there is no limitation on the Krueger amendment.

The Smith amendment, however, can be perfected only by the vote on the Eckhardt amendment, and then if there are other amendments to the Smith amendment there is no debate time remaining on those amendments.

Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: Unless they are printed in the Record.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: And if they are printed in the Record, the debate time is 5 minutes per side pro and con. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: And they must be printed as amendments to the Smith amendment. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct. . . .

MR. [ROBERT] KRUEGER [of Texas]: . . . Mr. Chairman, my question is this: We will vote first on the Eckhardt amendment to the Smith substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is right.

MR. KRUEGER: Following that, there will then be a vote without further debate on the Smith substitute, or no?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair cannot say, because if there were amendments printed in the Record, there can be both an amendment offered and debate on the amendment. If there were no amendments that were qualified for debate by being printed in the Record, they could not be offered and voted on without debate.

But if they are offered to the Krueger amendment in the nature of a substitute, they would both be considered and would be debatable under the 5-minute rule.

MR. KRUEGER: Mr. Chairman, does the 5-minute rule apply also to any possible amendments to the Smith substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: The 5-minute rule applies only to amendments to the Smith amendment which has been printed in the Record. Other amendments to the Smith amendment do not have debate time; they are just voted on.

§ 19.52 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill and the permissible degree of amendments thereto, the Chair indicated in response to parliamentary inquiries: (1) that a motion to limit debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute was in order although the bill itself had not been read; (2) that amendments printed in the Record would be debatable for 10 minutes notwithstanding the limitation; and (3) that all Members would be allocated equal time under the limitation regardless of committee membership but that Members seeking to offer amendments could be first recognized.

The proceedings in the Committee of the Whole relating to consideration of H.R. 13367 (a bill to amend and extend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972) on June 10, 1976,⁽¹⁷⁾ were as follows:

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Brooks amendment and all amendments thereto end by 6 p.m. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: . . . I do not remember the bill being open at any point to amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ The motion of the gentleman from New York, as the Chair understood it, was that all debate on the Brooks amendment and all amendments thereto end at 6 p.m.

MR. BAUMAN: So that the motion is in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion is in order. It is limited to the Brooks amendment and amendments thereto.

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, of course I believe it is understood that this does not apply to any amendments that are printed in the Congressional Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rules of the House, it does not apply to those amendments. . . .

17. 122 CONG. REC. 17380, 17381, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

18. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

MR. [J. J.] PICKLE [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. PICKLE: Mr. Chairman, under the proposed time limitation, would the Chair tend to recognize a Member who is not a member of the committee? For instance, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Adams) has an important amendment, and if he is not recognized within the time limitation, would the chairman of the committee let the gentleman be recognized?

MR. [JACK] BROOKS [of Texas]: I do not have control of the time. I think the answer, obviously, is that he will be recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under limitation of time committee members no longer have priority in seeking recognition. Time is equally allocated.

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the motion was made will be recognized for approximately 1 minute and 55 seconds each.

Debate Where Point of Order Is Reserved

§ 19.53 Once a point of order has been reserved against an amendment and debate has commenced under the five-minute rule, the Chair will permit the proponent of the amendment to utilize the time allotted him before hearing arguments on the point of order.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 21, 1979:⁽¹⁹⁾

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ When the Committee rose on Tuesday, March 20, 1979, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) had been recognized to offer an amendment.

The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Weiss: Page 3, insert after line 5 the following:

Sec. 5. (a) Section 3(b) of the Council on Wage and Price Stability Act is amended by striking out "Nothing in this Act" and inserting in lieu thereof "Except as provided in section 8, nothing in this Act". . . .

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Moorhead) will be protected on his reservation of the point of order.

MR. [TED] WEISS [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak on the amendment. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I am today offering an amendment to H.R. 2283, the Council on Wage and Price Stability Reauthorization Act.

My amendment would give the President standby authority to impose wage, price, and related economic controls. . . .

19. 125 CONG. REC. 5779-81, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Butler Derrick (S.C.).

MR. MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I would now like to insist on my point of order against the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will point out that the time is under the control of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

MR. WEISS: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Marks) had asked if I would yield to him, and I am pleased to yield to him at this point.

MR. [MARC LINCOLN] MARKS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) has expired.

The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Moorhead). . . .

MR. MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

Recognition To Speak in Support of Amendment Before Another Recognized To Offer Substitute

§ 19.54 Under the five-minute rule, a Member is entitled to recognition in support of his amendment prior to recognition of another Member to offer, and speak, to a substitute therefor.

On July 17, 1962,⁽¹⁾ Mr. Wayne N. Aspinall, of Colorado, offered

1. 108 CONG. REC. 13795, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

an amendment to the pending bill, which was being read for amendment under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Chairman B. F. Sisk, of California, recognized Mr. Aspinall. Mr. James E. Van Zandt, of Pennsylvania, then inquired whether it was in order at that time to offer a substitute amendment (before Mr. Aspinall had begun his remarks). Chairman Sisk indicated that Mr. Van Zandt could not be recognized until Mr. Aspinall had had an opportunity to be heard on his amendment.

Recognizing Member Favoring Committee Amendment Before One Opposed

§ 19.55 In recognizing members of the committee reporting a bill, the Chair generally recognizes a member in favor of a committee amendment prior to recognizing a member thereof who is opposed.

On Jan. 30, 1957,⁽²⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering House Joint Resolution 117, to authorize the President to cooperate with nations of the Middle East, under a resolution permitting only committee amendments

2. 103 CONG. REC. 1311, 85th Cong. 1st Sess.

(Committee on Foreign Affairs). A committee amendment was offered, and Mr. Wayne L. Hays, of Ohio, a member of the committee, rose in opposition to the amendment. Pursuant to a point of order, Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, extended recognition to Mr. Frank M. Coffin, of Maine, a member of the committee who authored and supported the amendment.

Recognition To Oppose Amendments—Debate on Amendment Printed in Record in Addition to Speaking Under Limitation on Time

§ 19.56 Pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, a Member may be recognized for five minutes in opposition to an amendment which had been printed in the Record and debated by its proponent for five minutes, notwithstanding a prior allocation of time to that Member under a limitation on the pending proposition and all amendments thereto.

On July 25, 1974,⁽³⁾ during consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974 (H.R. 11500) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair overruled a point of order, as follows:

3. 120 CONG. REC. 25221, 25222, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. HOSMER: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Arizona has spoken for a minute and 20 seconds already.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under the rule, when the amendment has been printed in the Record, the author of the amendment gets 5 minutes in support of his amendment and an opponent gets 5 minutes in opposition to the amendment, regardless of a time limitation.

The Chair overrules the point of order.

Debate in Opposition to Amendment to Bill on Private Calendar—Recognition of Member of Committee § 19.57 Recognition for debate in opposition to an amendment to a bill on the Private Calendar goes first to a member of the committee reporting the bill.

On Dec. 14, 1967,⁽⁵⁾ during the call of the Private Calendar, Speaker John W. McCormack, of

4. Neal Smith (Iowa).

5. 113 CONG. REC. 36535–37, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

Massachusetts, extended recognition to oppose an amendment to a private bill to Mr. Michael A. Feighan, of Ohio, a member of the reporting committee, over Mr. Durward G. Hall, of Missouri, not a member of the committee, and stated “a member of the committee is entitled to recognition.”

Recognition After Rejection of Previous Question

§ 19.58 In response to parliamentary inquiries the Speaker advised that if the previous question on a privileged resolution reported by the Committee on Rules were voted down, the resolution would be open to amendment, and that the Chair would recognize for that purpose the Member who appeared to be leading the opposition.

On Oct. 19, 1966,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Claude D. Pepper, of Florida, called up by direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 1013, establishing a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct. Mr. Pepper was recognized for one hour and offered a committee amendment to the resolution, which amendment was agreed to.

6. 112 CONG. REC. 27725, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, then answered a series of parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition should Mr. Pepper move the previous question and should the motion be defeated:

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused, is it true that then amendments may be offered and further debate may be had on the resolution?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is defeated, then the resolution is open to further consideration and action and debate. . . .

MR. [JAMES G.] FULTON of Pennsylvania: Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is refused and the resolution is then open for amendment, under what parliamentary procedure will the debate continue? Or what would be the time limit?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would recognize whoever appeared to be the leading Member in opposition to the resolution.

MR. FULTON of Pennsylvania: What would be the time for debate?

THE SPEAKER: Under those circumstances the Member recognized in opposition would have 1 hour at his disposal, or such portion of it as he might desire to exercise.

MR. [CORNELIUS E.] GALLAGHER [of New Jersey]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GALLAGHER: If the previous question is voted down we will have the option to reopen debate, the resolution will be open for amendment, or it can be tabled. Is that the situation as the Chair understands it?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is voted down on the resolution, the time will be in control of some Member in opposition to it, and it would be open to amendment or to a motion to table.⁽⁷⁾

§ 19.59 If the previous question is voted down on a resolution before the House, recognition to offer an amendment passes to the opponents of the resolution, and the Chair first recognizes a Member of the minority party, if opposed.

On July 20, 1939,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, managing a resolution to authorize an investigation, moved the previous question on the resolution. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, answered parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition to be followed should the previous question be rejected:

MR. [VITO] MARCANTONIO [of New York]: If the previous question is voted down, will that open up the resolution to amendment?

THE SPEAKER: Undoubtedly.

7. The rule requiring recognition to pass to the opposition after rejection of the previous question is subject to one exception (see § 15.22, supra).
8. 84 CONG. REC. 9591, 9592, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: If I understand the situation correctly, if the previous question is voted down, the control of the measure would pass to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Keller]; and the resolution would not be open to amendment generally, but only to such amendments as the gentleman from Illinois might yield for. Is my understanding correct, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: If the previous question is voted down, it would not necessarily pass to the gentleman from Illinois; it would pass to the opponents of the resolution. Of course, a representative of the minority would have the first right of recognition.

Rejection of Previous Question Prior to Adoption of the Rules—Seating of Member-elect § 19.60 Recognition to offer an amendment to a resolution called up prior to the adoption of rules and relating to the seat of a Member-elect passes to a Member leading the opposition to the resolution if the previous question is rejected.

On Jan. 10, 1967,⁽⁹⁾ at the convening of the 90th Congress and before the adoption of standing rules, Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, called up a resolution (H. Res. 1), authorizing the Speaker to administer the oath of office to challenged Member-elect Adam C. Powell, of New York, and referring the question of his final right to a seat to a select committee. Pending debate on the resolution, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered parliamentary inquiries on the procedure of consideration and recognition for the resolution:

9. 113 CONG. REC. 14, 15, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is voted down would, then, under the rules of the House, amendments or substitutes be in order to the resolution offered by the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. Udall]?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Waggonner] that any germane amendment may be in order to that particular amendment.

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Speaker, one further parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, under the rules of the House would the option or priority or a subsequent amendment or a substitute motion lie with the minority?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will pass upon that question based upon the rules of the House. That would be a question that would present itself to the Chair at that particular time.

. . . However, the usual procedure of the Chair has been to the effect that the Member who led the fight against the resolution will be recognized.

Mr. Udall moved the previous question on the resolution, and the motion was rejected.

Speaker McCormack then recognized Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, the Minority Leader, to offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute to the resolution.⁽¹⁰⁾

§ 20. For Points of Order and Debate Thereon; Objections and Inquiries; Calls of the House

Procedural issues, which manifest themselves in points of order, parliamentary inquiries, responses to requests or motions put by the Chair, are, as a rule, not subject to debate. Whatever debate or dialogue ensues is for the benefit of the Chair, and occurs under the control of the Chair, who can refuse to recognize for debate at all or can curtail it when he has heard sufficient argument.

Parliamentary Inquiries: Recognition Within Discretion of Chair

§ 20.1 Recognition for the purpose of propounding a parliamentary inquiry is within the discretion of the Chair.

On Oct. 8, 1968,⁽¹¹⁾ the Clerk was reading the Journal when Mr.

At the time of this ruling, consideration of a bill (S.J. Res. 175), to suspend for the 1968 campaign the equal-time requirements for nominees for the offices of President and Vice President, was being delayed by roll calls. Consideration was delayed for 23 hours.

Robert J. Dole, of Kansas, attempted to raise a parliamentary inquiry. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated he would not “entertain any more parliamentary inquiries at this time.”

On Dec. 13, 1932,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, rose to a question of “constitutional privilege” and offered a resolution of impeachment of President Herbert Hoover. The resolution was read by the Clerk. Mr. William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, interrupted the reading of the resolution and asked whether the Chair would entertain a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, objected that it was improper to disturb the reading of the resolution by a parliamentary inquiry and that only a point of order “would reach the matter.”

Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, stated:

That is in the discretion of the Chair. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Wisconsin to make a parliamentary inquiry.

In response to Mr. Stafford’s inquiry, the Speaker stated that the question of consideration could not be raised until the resolution was read in full. Following the reading of the resolution, it was laid on the table.⁽¹³⁾

On June 8, 1972,⁽¹⁴⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, declined to entertain a parliamentary inquiry not related to the pending question (which was the previous question on a conference report):

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Speaker, I do want to point out that we have most important provisions affecting the Vocational Educational Act of 1963. Certain of those programs will expire unless the conference report is adopted.

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman’s parliamentary inquiry relate to the previous question?

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Speaker, it does not relate to the vote on the previous question.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on ordering the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

Parliamentary Inquiry During Call of Roll

§ 20.2 On one occasion, the Speaker recognized Members to propound parliamentary inquiries during a call of the roll, relating to the pending vote.

On Oct. 12, 1962,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, objected to the vote on a pending appropriation bill on the ground that a quorum was not present. During an extended call of the roll, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, entertained a number of parliamentary inquiries and clarified the nature and effect of the pending question.

On Apr. 9, 1964,⁽¹⁶⁾ while the Journal was being read, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, entertained a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana. The Speaker advised Mr. Halleck that he could gain recognition to speak briefly at that time by unanimous consent. Without objection, Mr. Halleck was recognized for one minute to discuss the scheduling of debate on a bill.

Parliamentary Inquiry Moot Where Speaker Had Recognized Member To Withdraw Resolution

16. 110 CONG. REC. 7356, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Apr. 8, 1964,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 665, providing for taking a bill from the Speaker's table and agreeing to Senate amendments thereto. Before a vote was had on the resolution, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, declared a recess pending the receipt of another bill, H.R. 10222, the Food Stamp Act of 1964. When the House reconvened, the Speaker announced that the unfinished business was the reading of the latter bill. Mr. Oliver P. Bolton, of Ohio, raised a parliamentary inquiry as to the status of the resolution pending at the recess and the Speaker, without responding to the inquiry, recognized Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, the proponent of the resolution, who then withdrew the resolution from consideration. In answer to further parliamentary inquiries, the Speaker stated that the withdrawal of the resolution terminated the reason for the parliamentary inquiry and that the Speaker retained the discretion to recognize for a parliamentary inquiry and then to decline to respond where the inquiry became moot.⁽¹⁸⁾

Member Having Floor Need Not Yield for Parliamentary Inquiry

§ 20.5 A Member may not be interrupted by another Member for a parliamentary inquiry without his consent and if the Member who has the floor refuses to yield and demands regular order the Chair will not recognize another Member to propound a parliamentary inquiry.

On July 8, 1975,⁽¹⁹⁾ the proceedings described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Dingell to the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Hébert: . . .

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, this is an amendment about which my colleagues have received communications in the last few days from the Sierra Club and from other nationwide conservation organizations. . . .

MR. [DON] YOUNG of Alaska: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order to the germaneness of this amendment.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I do not yield for the point of order. The point of order is too late.

19. 121 CONG. REC. 21628, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ The Chair rules that the point of order is too late.

MR. YOUNG of Alaska: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, may we have the regular order. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) refuses to yield.

MR. YOUNG of Alaska: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: That could only be made before the gentleman from Michigan was recognized with respect to his amendment. . . .

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I ask for the regular order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) refuses to yield.

Under regular order, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) is recognized.

Recognition for Parliamentary Inquiry—May Not Offer Amendment

§ 20.6 A Member recognized to propound a parliamentary inquiry may not, having secured the floor for that limited purpose, then offer an amendment.

On Mar. 12, 1964,⁽¹⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, ruled that where a Member was recognized for a parliamentary inquiry, recognition was limited to that purpose and that the Member so

20. Neal Smith (Iowa).

1. 110 CONG. REC. 5140, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

recognized could not then offer an amendment:

MR. [AUGUST E.] JOHANSEN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JOHANSEN: I direct this inquiry to the Chair as to whether it will be in order if I secure recognition to offer an amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio.

THE CHAIRMAN: Of course, the gentleman, if he is recognized, may offer an amendment.

MR. [JAMES H.] MORRISON [of Louisiana]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. The gentleman secured recognition first and asked the parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has not been recognized, except for a parliamentary inquiry.

MR. MORRISON: The gentleman has a substitute amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman made the parliamentary inquiry as to whether he could offer an amendment, and the Chair responded that the gentleman could offer an amendment if he was recognized.

Member Recognized for Parliamentary Inquiry May Not Yield

§ 20.7 Recognition for a parliamentary inquiry is within the discretion of the Chair, and a Member so recognized may not yield to other Members.

On Mar. 16, 1988,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [JUDD] GREGG [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I was just in my office viewing the proceedings here, and during one of the proceedings, when the gentleman from California [Mr. Dornan] was addressing the House, it was drawn to my attention that the Speaker requested that Mr. Dornan's microphone be turned off, upon which Mr. Dornan's microphone was turned off.

Mr. Speaker, my inquiry of the Chair is: Under what rule does the Speaker decide to gag opposite Members of the House? . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾ The Chair is referring to Mr. Dornan. He requested permission of the Chair to proceed for 1 minute, and that permission was granted by the House. Mr. Dornan grossly exceeded the limits and abused the privilege far in excess of 1 minute, and the Chair proceeded to restore order and decorum to the House. . . .

MR. GREGG: . . . I have not heard the Chair respond to my inquiry which is what ruling is the Chair referring to which allows him to turn off the microphone of a Member who has the floor?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Clause 2 of rule I.

2. 134 CONG. REC. 4084, 4085, 100th Cong. 2d Sess.

3. Gary L. Ackerman (N.Y.).

MR. GREGG: Mr. Speaker, I would ask that that rule be read. I would ask that that rule be read, Mr. Speaker. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It reads, 2. He shall preserve order and decorum, and, in case of disturbance or disorderly conduct in the galleries, or in the lobby, may cause the same to be cleared. . . .

MR. GREGG: My parliamentary inquiry is that I want to know how the Chair can specifically turn off the microphone and what rule the Chair does it under, because the Chair has not answered that question.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has responded to the parliamentary inquiry of the gentleman from New Hampshire.

MR. GREGG: Mr. Speaker, I reserve my time, and yield to the gentlewoman from Illinois [Mrs. Martin]. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair advises that a Member may not yield time to another Member under a parliamentary inquiry.

Parliamentary Inquiry Is Not Intervening Business That Would Preclude Right To Demand Recorded Vote

§ 20.8 A parliamentary inquiry relating to a pending motion occurring after the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole has announced the results of a voice vote does not constitute such intervening business as to preclude the right of a Member to demand a recorded vote on the pending motion.

On July 26, 1984,⁽⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration H.R. 11, the Education Amendments of 1984. A motion was made to limit debate:

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Then, Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Coats amendment, all substitutes and all amendments thereto, be concluded at 2 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Kentucky.

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [WILLIAM F.] GOODLING [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GOODLING: I want to make sure the motion was talking only about this portion of this bill.

MR. PERKINS: This does not include the Goodling amendment, Mr. Chairman. This does not include the Goodling amendment, the funding of the school programs.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: I want to get a record vote.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: This motion referred to the Coats amendment and all amendments thereto.

MR. WALKER: That is right, and I want a record vote on the ruling of the Chair.

4. 130 CONG. REC. 21249, 21250, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

5. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Those in favor of taking this by recorded vote.

MR. WALKER: Pending that, Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

MR. [RICHARD J.] DURBIN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. DURBIN: Is it my understanding there was intervening business between the vote which was taken orally, the parliamentary inquiry made by the gentleman?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The intervening business was a parliamentary inquiry that was related to the motion, and no independent business has been taken up.

MR. DURBIN: As a further parliamentary inquiry of the Chair, does not this parliamentary inquiry and interruption preclude the gentleman from Pennsylvania's right to ask for a recorded vote?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: No, it is related to the status of the vote, and of the motion.

Recognition for Parliamentary Inquiry Denied When Point of No Quorum Has Been Made

§ 20.9 The Chair has refused to recognize a Member to propound a parliamentary inquiry when a point of no quorum has been made.

On July 23, 1942,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, attempted to state a parliamentary inquiry directly following a point of no quorum by Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, declined to entertain the inquiry:

6. 88 CONG. REC. 6540, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Chair doubts the authority of the Chair to recognize the gentleman to propound a parliamentary inquiry when a point of order is made, unless the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Patman] withholds it.

On Oct. 8, 1968,⁽⁷⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled that a parliamentary inquiry could not be propounded by Mr. John H. Dent, of Pennsylvania, where a point of no quorum had been made. After a call of the House had been ordered, the Speaker then recognized Mr. Dent to make the point of order relating to the call of the House (that the Speaker had ordered the doors to the Chamber locked but that not all the doors were in fact closed).

Recognition for Parliamentary Inquiry Denied After Automatic Rollcall Ordered on Motion To Table Resolution

§ 20.10 The Speaker refused to recognize Members to propound parliamentary inquiries after an automatic roll-call had been ordered on a motion to table a resolution.

7. 114 CONG. REC. 30093, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Oct. 19, 1966,⁽⁸⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 1013, establishing a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct. The House refused to order the previous question and Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, moved to lay the resolution on the table. Mr. Delbert L. Latta, of Ohio, objected to the vote on that motion on the ground that a quorum was not present. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, announced that a quorum was not present and that a rollcall came automatically on the motion to lay on the table.

Mr. Waggoner attempted to raise a parliamentary inquiry and the Speaker ruled:

The Chair will state that the rollcall has been ordered and at this point there is nothing that can interfere with the proceedings of the automatic rollcall.

Parliamentary Inquiry Not Entertained in Absence of Quorum—But Recognition Given for Point of Order Relating to Pending Call of House

§ 20.11 While a parliamentary inquiry is not entertained by the Chair in the absence of a quorum, the Chair may recognize a Member on a point of order which relates to a pending call of the House.

8. 112 CONG. REC. 27725, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Oct. 8, 1968,⁽⁹⁾ Mr. Donald Rumsfeld, of Illinois, made a point of order that a quorum was not present, and a call of the House was ordered. Mr. John H. Dent, of Pennsylvania, attempted to raise a parliamentary inquiry after the point of order was made and before the ordering of the call, but Speaker Pro Tempore Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, ruled that the inquiry could not be raised at that time. Mr. Dent then made a point of order relating to the call of the House, which was entertained:

MR. DENT: Mr. Speaker, a point of order, which relates to the call of the roll.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ The House will be in order. The Clerk will proceed with the call of the roll.

MR. DENT: Mr. Speaker, the point of order relates to the proper calling of the roll.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. DENT: The point of order is the doors were ordered closed, and the doors to the outside of the Chamber are open in the cloakrooms.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has given instructions to close all doors and allow no Members out.

Point of No Quorum—Seeking Recognition

§ 20.12 The fact that a Member is on his feet does not constitute notice to the Chair that he is seeking recognition to object to a vote on the ground that a quorum is not present.

On Oct. 5, 1962,⁽¹¹⁾ the House passed S. 1447, amending the Teacher's Salary Act for the District of Columbia. Mr. James G. Fulton, of Pennsylvania, then rose and objected to the vote on the ground that a quorum was not present. Mr. Fulton insisted he had been on his feet seeking to gain recognition to object for that purpose at the proper time. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated:

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that if a Member is on his feet, that is insufficient. The gentleman did not address the Chair.

MR. FULTON: I was saying "Mr. Speaker," and was not heard. I was on my feet.

THE SPEAKER: If the gentleman asks unanimous consent to vacate the action, the Chair will entertain a request. But the passage of the bill had been completed.

MR. FULTON: Mr. Speaker, I was on my feet addressing the Speaker, but I was not recognized.

11. 108 CONG. REC. 22649, 22650, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not know what is in the gentleman's mind when the gentleman is on his feet.

The House by unanimous consent vacated the proceedings by which the bill was passed, and a point of no quorum by Mr. Fulton and an automatic rollcall ensued.

Under Former Practice, Point of No Quorum in Order at Any Time, Even When Another Had Floor

§ 20.13 A point of no quorum was a privileged matter and was in order at any time, even when a Member had the floor in debate (until amendments to the rules in the 93d Congress).

On May 4, 1949,⁽¹²⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Henry M. Jackson, of Washington, ruled that a motion to adjourn was not in order and that the motion that the Committee rise could not be made unless the Member with the floor yielded for that purpose. Mr. Donald W. Nicholson, of Massachusetts, then made the point of order that a quorum was not present. Mr. Monroe M. Redden, of North Carolina, objected that Mr. Nicholson was out of order since he had not asked the Member holding the floor [Arthur L. Miller (Nebr.)] to yield. Chairman Jackson ruled:

The Chair will state that a point of order based on no quorum is a privileged matter and is in order at any time.

On July 12, 1949,⁽¹³⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. William R. Poage, of Texas, who had the floor, declined to yield to Mr. Wayne L. Hays, of Ohio, who nevertheless made the point of order that a quorum was not present. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, objected that Mr. Poage had not yielded for that purpose. Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, responded to the point of order, as follows:

MR. RANKIN: Mr. Chairman, a point of order: A Member has no right to interrupt the speaker to make a point of no quorum.

THE CHAIRMAN: A point of no quorum may be made at any time.

MR. RANKIN: The gentleman from Texas did not yield for that point.

THE CHAIRMAN: The point of no quorum is in order at any time.⁽¹⁴⁾

Chairman in Committee of the Whole May Entertain Point of No Quorum During General Debate

§ 20.14 Pursuant to clause 2, Rule XXIII as amended in the 97th Congress, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may in his discretion entertain a point of order of no quorum during general debate.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Dec. 1, 1982,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6995 (Federal Trade Commission Authorization Act):

MR. [JAMES T.] BROYHILL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ Under clause 2, rule XXIII, as adopted by the House of Representatives on January 5, 1981, the Chair, in his discretion, may entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present.

ant to the provisions of clause 2, rule XXIII, he will vacate proceedings under the call when a quorum of the Committee appears.

Members will record their presence by electronic device.

The call was taken by electronic device.

Prayer Is Not Business—Point of No Quorum Not Allowed Before Prayer

§ 20.15 The prayer offered at the beginning of the business of the House is not considered as business and the Speaker does not recognize a point of order that a quorum is not present before the prayer.

On Aug. 4, 1950,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House met at 10 a.m. and Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the Chaplain would offer prayer. Mr. Robert F. Rich, of Pennsylvania, made the point of order that a quorum was not present. The Speaker ruled:

We will have the prayer first, because that is not considered business.

Prayer will be offered by the Chaplain.⁽¹⁸⁾

Objection to Vote on Ground of No Quorum Is Not Too Late Where No Business Has Intervened

§ 20.16 Even though preceded by a parliamentary inquiry and following the Chair's announcement of the result of a voice vote, an objection to a vote on the ground that a quorum was not present and voting does not come too late and is in order where no business has intervened.

On Mar. 7, 1956,⁽¹⁹⁾ after the vote was put on an amendment and the vote announced, Mr. Gordon Canfield, of New Jersey, made a point of order and then inquired whether it was too late to have the amendment read again to the House. Speaker Pro Tempore John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that reading the amendment was not in order after the vote. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, then objected to the vote on the amendment on the ground that a quorum had not been present. Mr. John Taber, of New York, made the point of order that the point of no quorum came too late, since a parliamentary inquiry had been submitted after the vote and before the point of no quorum.

19. 102 CONG. REC. 4215, 84th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Speaker Pro Tempore ruled as follows:

The gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. Canfield] addressed the Chair on a point of order. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. Gross] was justified in waiting until that point of order had been determined by the Chair. Immediately upon that determination the gentleman from Iowa made the point of order that a quorum was not present and objected to the vote on the ground that a quorum was not present. The Chair feels that the gentleman from Iowa exercised his rights under the rules in such manner that a point of order against his point of order would not lie.

Point of No Quorum as Dilatory After Quorum Has Been Disclosed

§ 20.17 The Chair has held dilatory points of no quorum made after a quorum has been disclosed.

On July 21, 1947,⁽²⁰⁾ the House was considering under suspension of the rules H.R. 29, making unlawful the payment of a poll tax as a prerequisite for voting in national elections. A motion to adjourn was offered and was rejected on a yea and nay vote, resulting in 85 yeas, 299 nays, and 46 not voting. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, then made a point of order that a quorum was not present. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, ruled:

20. 93 CONG. REC. 9522-51, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

The gentleman's point of order is dilatory. That is obvious to all Members.

Chair Does Not Recognize Members After Absence of Quorum Has Been Announced

§ 20.18 The Chair refuses to recognize Members after the absence of a quorum has been announced by the Chair; no business is in order until a quorum has been established.

On June 8, 1960,⁽¹⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, made the point of order that a quorum was not present. When Mr. Hoffman attempted to speak before and during the call of the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, advised him that the absence of a quorum having been announced, following a point of no quorum, recognition for debate was not in order.

1. 106 CONG. REC. 12142, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

Business May Intervene by Unanimous Consent Only Between Quorum Call and Chair's Putting Demand for Recorded Vote on Pending Amendment

§ 20.19 No business, including debate, may intervene between a quorum call and the Chair's putting a demand for a recorded vote pending when the point of order of no quorum was made, except by unanimous consent; by unanimous consent in Committee of the Whole, a Member has been recognized to inquire as to the legislative schedule for the remainder of the day, between the conclusion of a quorum call and the request for a recorded vote on a pending amendment.

During consideration of the housing and community development amendments (H.R. 7262) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 21, 1980,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾
 . . . The pending business is the demand of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Wylie) for a recorded vote.

MR. [J. WILLIAM] STANTON [of Ohio]:
 Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

2. 126 CONG. REC. 22288, 22289, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

3. Richard C. White (Tex.).

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. STANTON: Mr. Chairman, the parliamentary inquiry is as follows: Would it be possible, before this vote is taken, for me to be able to ask the majority leader what the procedure is for the balance of the evening after this vote is over? Could I do this by unanimous consent?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, the gentleman will be recognized for that purpose.

There was no objection.

MR. STANTON: Mr. Chairman, I take this time in order to ask the majority leader if he could announce to the House the schedule for this evening, after the pending Wylie amendment, and perhaps for tomorrow.

Chair Does Not Entertain Point of No Quorum When Question Has Not Been Put on Pending Proposition in House; May Recognize for Motion for Call of House at Any Time

§ 20.20 Although the Chair may not entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present when the question has not been put on the pending proposition in the House, the Chair may recognize for a motion for a call of the House at any time in his discretion.

Under Rule XV, clause 6(e)(2),⁽⁴⁾ the Chair may recognize for a motion for a call of the House at any time in his discretion. Thus, on June 27, 1980,⁽⁵⁾ the Chair recognized for such motion, although a point of order that a quorum was not present did not lie at that time.

MR. [PHIL] GRAMM [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ That point of order does not lie at this time, but the Chair will inquire, does the gentleman move a call of the House?

MR. GRAMM: I do, Mr. Speaker. I move a call of the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, a call of the House is ordered.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gramm) for a call of the House.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

So the motion was rejected.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: A call of the House is not ordered and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown).

Discretion of Chair in Recognizing for Call of House

§ 20.21 It is within the discretion of the Chair whether to recognize for a call of the House when the question has not been put on the pending motion or proposition under clause 6 of Rule XV.

An instance in which the Chair declined to recognize a Member to move a call of the House occurred, for example, on Oct. 14, 1978:⁽⁷⁾

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: . . . I have been here throughout the 2 hours of debate—it is almost 2 hours—and I do not think there have ever been more than 50 Members on the floor, and most of the time it has been in the neighborhood of 20, about the equal of the number of staff.

Mr. Speaker, on the basis of the fact that this is considered to be such important legislation, the most important bill we face in this session of Congress, I would move a call of the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair will state to the gentleman that he cannot recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) for that request at this time.

May Recognize for Call of House After Previous Question Before Chair Puts Question on Final Adoption present is not in order unless the question has been put on the pending motion or proposition, the Chair may recognize for a call of the House at any time after the previous question is ordered on adoption of a proposition in the House but before the Chair puts the question on final adoption thereof under clause 6(e) of Rule XV.

On Oct. 14, 1978,⁽⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, a call of the House is ordered.

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, is this now a vote on the bill?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: This is a call of the House.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I thought the question had been put.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: No; the Chair has not put the question.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Are we going to have a vote on the legislation?

9. 124 CONG. REC. 38503, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman that after the call of the House, then we will have the final vote on these conference reports en bloc. . . .

Members will record their presence by electronic device. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ On this rollcall 366 Members have recorded their presence by electronic device, a quorum.

By unanimous consent, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

Points of Order: Must Seek Recognition in Timely Fashion

§ 20.23 The mere fact that a Member was on his feet does not entitle him to make a point of order against certain language where he has not affirmatively sought recognition by the Chair at the time the language complained of was read for amendment.

On Apr. 14, 1970,⁽¹¹⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, sustained a point of order that a point of order against language in an appropriation bill came too late, where the Member making the point of order was not affirmatively seeking recognition at the proper time:

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood), care to be heard on the point of order?

MR. [DANIEL J.] FLOOD: Yes, Mr. Chairman, I do.

I do not like to operate this way, but I am the chairman of the subcommittee and obviously I must object, and make a point of order because the point of order comes much, much too late. We have passed that point in the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Clerk had read past that paragraph of the so-called title I, and stopped at line 14 on page 3. The gentleman was not on his feet seeking recognition at the time the first section, down through line 12 on page 2, was read.

MR. WILLIAM D. FORD [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, the paragraphs are not being read. The bill is being read by paragraph headings. I was on my feet at the beginning of the reading. As a matter of fact, I moved from there to here as soon as the Clerk began to read. I was never off my feet from the moment he started the reading. I was trying to get to the point in the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair cannot observe the movements of the Members from place to place. The gentleman was not seeking recognition at the time when he should have been, under the rules. He should have been seeking recognition vocally, not by standing.

The Chair sustains the point of order made by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Flood).⁽¹²⁾ § 20.24 Members seeking to make points of order must address the Chair and be recognized before proceeding.

On Oct. 24, 1945,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, demanded that Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, be called to order for terming him the “Jewish gentleman from New York” in debate. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that the appellation violated the rules. Discussion ensued, and Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, attempted to make a point of order, but the Speaker ruled that no Member could make a point of order without first being recognized by the Chair.

Recognition To Make Point of Order or Offer Amendment

§ 20.25 Members must be on their feet seeking recognition at the proper time in order to protect their rights under the rules to make points of order or to offer amendments.

. . . The Chair wishes to say that the Chair is most desirous of occupying this chair with dignity and with fairness to all concerned. There were other amendments that the Chair had been told would be offered, and the gentleman who came and told the Chair were not on their feet seeking recognition, nor did they address the Chair at the time, and therefore the Chair was in the position of allowing the Clerk to continue to read.

If the Members do not protect their own rights and use the rules of the House to their advantage, the Chair is not here to protect them when they do not insist on their own rights at the proper time.

Not Necessary That Member Yield for Point of Order; Chair Must Recognize for Point of Order

§ 20.26 The Chair must recognize a Member to make a point of order relative to the conduct of debate at any time, and it is not necessary that the Member having the floor yield for that purpose.

During consideration of H.R. 14014 (the Endangered Species Act Amendments of 1978) in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 14, 1978,⁽¹⁵⁾ Representative Dingell held the floor debating an amendment. The tone of his debate resulted in the following exchange:

MR. [ROBERT B.] DUNCAN of Oregon: Mr. Chairman, may I state a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. DUNCAN of Oregon: Mr. Chairman, the point of order is— . . .

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I do not yield for the point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that it is not necessary that the gentleman yield for that purpose. The Chair has a right at any time to recognize a Member on a point of order.

Point of Order as Interrupting Question of Privilege

§ 20.27 A point of order may interrupt a Member stating a question of privilege.

On June 30, 1939,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, was in the process of stating a point of personal privilege based on an insertion in the Congressional Record. Mr. Hoffman was interrupted by points of order relating to the nature of the question of privilege and to the scope of Mr. Hoffman's remarks. Mr. Hoffman objected to the interruptions and stated that he did not yield for a point of order. Speaker William B.

Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that a Member making a point of order could be entitled to recognition while a question of privilege was being stated.

Speaker Did Not Observe Member Seeking Recognition—Point of Order Entertained After Committee of the Whole Reported Back to House

§ 20.28 Where the Speaker failed to observe a Member seeking recognition to make a point of order against a committee report prior to the House resolving itself into the Committee of the Whole, the Speaker recognized the Member for his point of order after the House had resolved into the Committee and the Committee had reported back to the House.

On July 25, 1966,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole to consider a bill. Mr. John Bell Williams, of Mississippi, attempted to make a point of order but was not recognized because Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, did not hear him. In the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Williams rose to a point of order and stated that he had been seeking recognition at the proper time to make a point of order against the bill on the grounds that the committee report did not contain a comparative print of changes in existing law as required by the rules of the House. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that he did not have the power to entertain the point of order, and on appeal his ruling was sustained. The Committee then adopted a motion offered by Mr. Williams that the Committee rise and the Speaker then recognized Mr. Williams for a point of order (eventually overruled):

18. 112 CONG. REC. 16840, 16842, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mississippi.

MR. WILLIAMS: Mr. Speaker, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union a moment ago. When the question was put by the Chair, I was on my feet seeking recognition for the purpose of offering a point of order against consideration of the legislation. Although I shouted rather loudly, apparently the Chair did not hear me. Since the [House] proceeded to go into the Committee of the Whole, I would like to know, Mr. Speaker, if the point of order which I had intended to offer can be offered now in the House against the consideration of the bill; and, Mr. Speaker, I make such a point of order and ask that I be heard on the point of order.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the Chair did not hear the gentleman make his point of order. There was too much noise. Under the circumstances the Chair will entertain the point of order.

Member of Committee Has Priority To Make Point of Order Against Amendment

§ 20.29 A member of the committee reporting a bill has priority of recognition over one not a member of the committee to make points of order against proposed amendments to the bill.

On Mar. 30, 1949,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Henry M. Jackson, of Washington, and Mr. Carl T. Curtis, of Nebraska, simultaneously arose in the Committee of the Whole to make a point of order against a pending amendment on the ground that it constituted legislation on an appropriation bill. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, recognized Mr. Jackson in preference over Mr. Curtis since Mr. Jackson was a member of the committee which had reported the bill.

Point of Order Against Paragraph Too Late After Debate on Paragraph an appropriation bill comes too late after there has been debate on the paragraph.

On Apr. 3, 1957,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, attempted to make a point of order against a paragraph in an appropriation bill. Chairman Aime J. Forand, of Rhode Island, ruled that the point of order came too late, there having been "a great deal of debate on the rest of the paragraph."

Germaneness Points of Order Too Late After Debate

§ 20.31 Germaneness points of order against a proposed amendment come too late after debate has been had thereon.

On July 5, 1949,⁽¹⁾ Mr. James P. Richards, of South Carolina, made a point of order, on the ground of germaneness, against an amendment. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, ruled that the point of order came too late since debate on the amendment had commenced.⁽²⁾

Due Diligence—Member Recognized Even Though Sponsor Had Commenced Debate

§ 20.32 A Member who has shown due diligence is recognized to make a point of order against a proposed amendment even though the sponsor of the amendment has commenced his remarks.

On Sept. 26, 1967,⁽³⁾ Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, offered an amendment on the pending bill in the Committee of the Whole, and began his remarks on the amendment. Mr. Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky, rose to make a point of order against the amendment, but Mr. Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, objected that the point of order came too late since debate on the amendment had begun. Chairman Charles E. Bennett, of Florida, determined that Mr. Perkins had shown due diligence and was entitled to recognition on the point of order:

MR. GERALD R. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the gentleman's point of order comes too late.

The gentleman from Louisiana had started his discussion of the amendment, and there was no previous point of order made prior to the discussion.

MR. PERKINS: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet seeking recognition at the time the gentleman commenced to address the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN: Was the gentleman from Kentucky on his feet seeking recognition?

MR. PERKINS: I was, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair then overrules the point of order made by the gentleman from Michigan, and the Chair will hear the gentleman from Kentucky on his point of order.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: Mr. Chairman, how far in the discussion of a man who offers an amendment can such a point of order be made, then?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Kentucky was on his feet seeking recognition, and so stated. Therefore, the gentleman from Kentucky will be recognized to make his point of order.⁽⁴⁾ ing the point of order shows due diligence therein.

On May 11, 1959,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, made a point of order against language contained in an appropriation bill, on the ground the language was legislation in an appropriation bill. Mr. Albert Thomas, of Texas, objected to the point of order since debate had intervened:

MR. THOMAS: I oppose the point of order because the paragraph was read.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The Chair thinks the gentleman from Iowa was within his rights to make the point of order. He observed the gentleman standing when unanimous consent was granted to go back to the previous section.

MR. THOMAS: Well, the point of order is good, then. We admit it, then.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair sustains the point of order.

On Sept. 15, 1961,⁽⁷⁾ Mr. Gross made a point of order against a paragraph in an appropriation bill, after the next paragraph had been partially read. Chairman Oren Harris, of Arkansas, stated, in response to a point of order that the point of order came too late, that Mr. Gross was entitled to recognition since the Chair had observed that Mr. Gross was on his feet seeking recognition while the Clerk was reading.

§ 20.34 Although a point of order against a paragraph of a general appropriation bill will not lie after an amendment thereto has been debated, the Chair does not permit the reading of an amendment to preclude a point of order made by a Member who has shown due diligence and who sought recognition at the proper time.

On May 24, 1960,⁽⁸⁾ the Clerk read a paragraph of an appropriation bill and Mr. Fred Wampler, of Indiana, offered an amendment thereto. Parliamentary inquiry was then made of Chairman Hale Boggs, of Louisiana, on recognition to raise a point of order against the amendment.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GROSS: I have a point of order against the language to be found on this page. Will the discussion of this amendment abrogate my right to make a point of order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct, it would. If the gentleman has a point of order, it would have to be urged at this point.

MR. GROSS: The gentleman is trying to obtain recognition from the Chair to make a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman to make the point of order.

Appropriation Bill Considered Read and Open to Amendment—Chair First Inquires as to Points of Order to Remainder of Bill

§ 20.35 Where a general appropriation bill is, by unanimous consent, considered read and open for amendment, the Chairman first ascertains whether there are any points of order to the remainder of the bill before recognizing Members to offer amendments.

On July 30, 1962,⁽⁹⁾ the procedure below was followed where a unanimous-consent request was made that the remainder of a bill be considered as read and open for amendment at any point:

MR. [ALBERT] THOMAS [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill be considered as read and open for amendment at any point.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: And also open to points of order at any point, I take it?

MR. THOMAS: Yes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ Is there objection to the [request of the] gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there any points of order to be made to the remainder of the bill?

MR. GROSS: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the language on page 27, beginning in line 24 and running through line 12 on page 28, as being legislation on an appropriation bill.

Point of Order Reserved—
Chair Permits Proponent

Amendment Before Debate on Point of Order

§ 20.36 Once a point of order has been reserved against an amendment and debate has commenced under the five-minute rule, the Chair will permit the proponent of the amendment to utilize the time allotted him before hearing arguments on the point of order.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 21, 1979:⁽¹¹⁾

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ When the Committee rose on Tuesday, March 20, 1979, the gentleman from New York

12. Butler Derrick (S.C.).

(Mr. Weiss) had been recognized to offer an amendment.

The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Weiss: Page 3, insert after line 5 the following:

Sec. 5. (a) Section 3(b) of the Council on Wage and Price Stability Act is amended by striking out "Nothing in this Act" and inserting in lieu thereof "Except as provided in section 8, nothing in this Act". . . .

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Moorhead) will be protected on his reservation of the point of order.

MR. [TED] WEISS [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak on the amendment. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I am today offering an amendment to H.R. 2283, the Council on Wage and Price Stability Reauthorization Act.

My amendment would give the President standby authority to impose wage, price, and related economic controls. . . .

MR. MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I would now like to insist on my point of order against the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will point out that the time is under the control of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

MR. WEISS: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Marks) had asked if I would yield to him, and I am pleased to yield to him at this point.

MR. [MARC LINCOLN] MARKS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) has expired.

The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Moorhead). . . .

MR. MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss).

Point of Order Against Portion of Bill Must Be Ruled on Before Amendments Offered § 20.37 It is not the practice to permit the reservation of a point of order against a portion of a general appropriation bill and then to consider amendments thereto.

On Apr. 13, 1949,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Frederic R. Coudert, Jr., of New York, reserved a point of order with respect to three lines in a paragraph of an appropriation bill, on the ground that they constituted legislation. He stated that he would not insist on the point of order if the amounts contained in the bill remained the same, but would insist on his point of order if the amounts were increased by amendment. Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, ruled that a point of order must be ruled upon before amendments were offered. In answer to a further inquiry by Mr. Coudert, the Chairman stated:

13. 95 CONG. REC. 4521, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

The Chair is informed that it has not been the practice to reserve points of order and then consider amendments. The Chair will entertain the gentleman's point of order if the gentleman presses it.

Debate on Point of Order Is Within Discretion of Chair—Member Recognized on Point of Order May Not Yield § 20.38 Discussion on a point of order is within the control of the Chair, and a Member recognized on a point of order may not yield to other Members.

During consideration of the conference report on H.R. 13367 (to extend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972) in the House on Sept. 30, 1976,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JACK] BROOKS [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 13367) to extend and amend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers be read in lieu of the report.

14. 122 CONG. REC. 34074–76, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read the title of the bill [and the statement]. . . .

MR. [BROCK] ADAMS [of Washington]: Mr. Speaker, I raise a point of order against the conference agreement. . . .⁽¹⁵⁾

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. ADAMS: I yield to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Horton).

MR. HORTON: I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman understands, does he not, there is no additional amount in fiscal year 1977?

MR. ADAMS: That is correct. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. ADAMS: I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown).

MR. BROWN of Ohio: I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I refer to Public Law 93-344, the language that exists on page 22(d)(2).

MR. ADAMS: Would the gentleman refer to the motion, please? I am using both the conference report and the statute.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Section 401.

MR. ADAMS: Is the gentleman referring to the statute or the conference report?

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Section 401 of the statute.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁶⁾ The Chair has been liberal in enforcing the rules on arguing on a point of order. The Chair controls the time and each individual Member desiring to be heard should address the Chair and not yield to other Members.

Does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) desire to be heard?

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I do desire to be heard.

§ 20.39 Recognition and time for debate on a point of order are within the discretion of the Chair, and a Member speaking on a point of order does not control a fixed amount of time which he can reserve or yield.

On Feb. 23, 1978,⁽¹⁷⁾ a point of order was made with respect to the germaneness of an amendment to H.R. 9214 (concerning United States participation in the supplementary financing facility of the International Monetary Fund). The proceedings in part were as follows:

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 9214

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Bretton Woods Agreements Act (22 U.S.C. 286-286k-2), as amended, is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Sec. 27. (a) For the purpose of participation of the United States in the Supplementary Financing Facility . . . the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make resources available as provided in the decision numbered 5509-(77/127) of the Fund, in an amount not to exceed the equivalent of 1,450 million Special Drawing Rights.

17. 124 CONG. REC. 4421, 4426, 4427, 4451, 4452, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [THOMAS R.] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Harkin: Page 3, immediately after line 14, insert the following:

Sec. 3. The Bretton Woods Agreements Act (22 USC 286-286k-2), as amended, is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section: . . .

“(b) In accordance with the unique character of the International Monetary Fund, the Secretary of the Treasury shall direct the U.S. Executive Director to take all possible steps to the end that all Fund transactions, including economic programs developed in connection with the utilization of Fund resources, do not contribute to the deprivation of basic human needs. . . .

MR. [STEPHEN L.] NEAL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ The Chair will hear the gentleman.

MR. NEAL: Mr. Chairman, we have just established that we are only considering the so-called Witteveen Facility of the International Monetary Fund, and this amendment goes far beyond that.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) desire to be heard on the point of order?

MR. HARKIN: Yes, I do, Mr. Chairman.

I would respond to that argument by saying that my amendment is entirely in order because, if we look at the different sections, the first section of my amendment goes toward instructing the U.S. Executive Director of the IMF to do certain positive things about initiating wide consultations, and so forth, which would help to promote those kinds of programs that would help meet the basic human needs in other countries. . . .

MR. [HENRY S.] REUSS [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield on his point of order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will recognize the gentleman on the point of order.

Has the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) concluded?

MR. HARKIN: Mr. Chairman, I have not concluded. I would like to reserve the balance of my time to speak further on the point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: It is not in order to reserve debate time on a point of order. The gentleman has no [block] of time to reserve.

MR. HARKIN: Then, I would like to continue, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is hearing arguments on the point of order at the present time. The gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) will be recognized in support of his amendment at a subsequent time if the point of order is not sustained. . . .

MR. HARKIN: . . . Mr. Chairman, I want to speak further before the Chair rules on the point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will hear the gentleman.

MR. HARKIN: Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman from Georgia (Mr.

18. Lucien N. Nedzi (Mich.).

Mathis) has raised an interesting point. . . .

MR. [DAWSON] MATHIS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from Iowa yield further on the point of order?

THE CHAIRMAN: Has the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) concluded his statement on the point of order?

MR. HARKIN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to yield to the gentleman.

THE CHAIRMAN: There is no yielding on a point of order.

Must Rise To Object to Unanimous-consent Request

§ 20.40 A Member must rise to object to a unanimous-consent request; if the Member has done so, the objection to a unanimous-consent request is timely if entered before the Chair enters an order thereon (as by saying, “Without objection, so ordered”).

On Nov. 7, 1991,⁽¹⁹⁾ discussion arose in the House as to whether a Member had risen to object to a unanimous-consent request in timely fashion.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Would it be an appropriate parliamentary inquiry to ask unanimous consent that the letter the gentlewoman just referred to be placed in the Record at this point?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ The Chair would inform the gentleman

19. 137 CONG. REC. 30633, 102d Cong. 1st Sess.

20. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery (Miss.).

that that is really not a parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I am asking whether or not it would be appropriate in the procedures of the House at the moment for there to be a unanimous-consent request that the letter to which the gentlewoman just referred be put in the Record at this point?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is normally the prerogative of the Member possessing the letter. Is the gentleman asking that the letter be put in the Record?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I would ask unanimous consent that the letter be included in the Record.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

MR. [BILL] ALEXANDER [of Arkansas]: I object.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

MR. WALKER: The gentleman was not standing when he made the objection.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, I object. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

MR. WALKER: It was not a timely objection, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair looked at the gentleman sitting and nothing else had transpired. Then the Chair recognized that the gentleman was standing and the Chair put the question again.

Similarly, on June 23, 1992,⁽¹⁾ the Chair made an announcement

1. 138 CONG. REC. p. ____, 102d Cong. 2d Sess. See also §§ 8.27–8.31, supra, concerning the proper manner of seeking recognition to object to a unanimous-consent request:

MR. [JOHN] MILLER of Washington: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend my remarks.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

MR. [LAWRENCE J.] SMITH of Florida: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Chair would advise Members that if they wish to object, they should please stand, so that the Chair will see the objector.

Recognition for Objection to Unanimous-consent Request Does Not Extend Recognition in Opposition to Motion for further discussion of recognition to object to unanimous-consent requests.

2. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery (Miss.).

On Mar. 1, 1950,⁽³⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, moved that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the pending bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken and after debating the motion asked unanimous consent to withdraw it. Mr. Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, rose to object to the withdrawal of the motion and to seek recognition in debate to oppose the motion. Chairman Clark W. Thompson, of Texas, then recognized Mr. Oren Harris, of Arkansas, a member of the committee reporting the bill, for five minutes' debate in opposition to the motion. Mr. Case inquired whether he had not been recognized. The Chairman stated: "The gentleman was recognized by the Chair to make an objection, but not to speak."⁽⁴⁾

On Dec. 3, 1969,⁽⁵⁾ Speaker John W. The Speaker immediately put the question on the unanimous-consent request and there was no objection heard.⁽⁶⁾

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The gentleman from Louisiana has asked unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the amendment. . . .

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

MR. PHILLIP BURTON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask our distinguished colleague in the well, is this the 479-page amendment that the gentleman has before the House? . . .

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I believe on this reservation which is now pending, we ought to proceed with the regular order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is, Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana.

MR. PHILLIP BURTON: I am reserving the right to object.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I demand regular order.

THE CHAIRMAN: Regular order has been demanded.

MR. PHILLIP BURTON: I would like to make this point, Mr. Chairman: I was on the floor. I have the time, and I reserve the right to object.

THE CHAIRMAN: When regular order is demanded, the Chair is required to put the request to the body.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I will not demand regular order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan withdraws his demand for regular order, and the gentleman from California (Mr. Phillip Burton) is recognized.

Where Member Recognized for One Hour Makes Unanimous-consent Request, Time Under Reservation of Objection Not Charged to Member § 20.44 Where a Member has been recognized for one hour of debate but has not begun his remarks, and makes a unanimous-consent request, time consumed by a Member who reserves the right to object to that request is not charged to the Member who has been recognized for an hour.

On Apr. 15, 1970, Mr. Louis C. Wyman, of New Hampshire, was recognized for one hour of debate (on a "special-order" speech). Before he commenced to address the House, Mr. Wyman asked unanimous consent to revise and extend his remarks; Mr. Phillip Burton, of California, reserved the right to object and made several remarks on the pending resolution. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled that Mr. Wyman still had one hour of debate time available, and that the time consumed by Mr. Burton would not be charged to Mr. Wyman's hour.⁽⁹⁾

§ 21. Under the Five-minute Rule

Recognition for amendments and debate under the five-minute rule is subject to the discretion of the Chair, who may adhere to any one of several recognized principles to avoid being perceived as "arbitrary." Seniority, committee membership, alternation between parties—all are established as techniques or tests for bestowing recognition. (All of these "criteria" for recognition are within the discretion of the Chair. So all these principles should be considered as alternatives.)

Principles of Recognition: Prior Recognition of Committee Members

§ 21.1 The matter of recognition of Members in the Committee of the Whole to offer amendments under the five-minute rule is within the discretion of the Chair, and he may extend preference to members of the committee which reported the bill according to seniority.

On July 21, 1949,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole was reading for amendment under the five-minute rule H.R. 5345, the Agriculture Adjustment Act of 1949. Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, recognized Mr. James P. Sutton, of Tennessee, to offer an amendment. The Chairman then responded to a parliamentary inquiry on the order of recognition for amendments under the five-minute rule:

MR. H. CARL ANDERSEN [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, is it not the custom during debate under the 5-minute rule for the Chair in recognizing Members to alternate from side to side? At least I suggest to the Chair that that would be the fair procedure. The Chair has recognized three Democrats in a row.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say to the gentleman that the matter of recognition of members of the committee is within the discretion of the Chair. The Chair has undertaken to follow as closely as possible the seniority of those Members.

MR. [CLIFFORD R.] HOPE [of Kansas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOPE: For the information of the Chair, the gentleman from Wisconsin, who has been seeking recognition, has been a Member of the House for 10 years, and the gentleman from Tennessee is a Member whose service began only this year.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would refer the gentleman to the official list of the members of the committee, which the Chair has before him.

The Clerk will report the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.⁽¹¹⁾

Chairman of Committee

§ 21.2 In bestowing recognition under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair gives preference to the chairman of the legislative committee reporting the bill under consideration.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽¹²⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule a bill reported from the Committee on Education and Labor, chaired by Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky. Mr. Edward J. Gurney, of Florida, sought recognition and when Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, asked for what purpose, he stated that his purpose was to offer an amendment. The Chairman then recognized Mr. Perkins to submit a unanimous-consent request on closing debate before recognizing Mr. Gurney to offer his amendment.

Chair as Protecting Members' Rights to Recognition

§ 21.3 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole does not anticipate the order in which amendments may be offered under the five-minute rule nor does he declare in advance the order of recognition, but where he knows a Member desires recognition to offer an amendment, he may indicate that he will protect the Member's rights.

On Sept. 8, 1966,⁽¹³⁾ Chairman Edward P. Boland, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry as to the order of recognition for offering amendments under the five-minute rule:

MR. [ROBERT G.] STEPHENS [Jr., of Georgia]: It is my understanding that the procedures will be for the Minish amendment to be considered and after the Minish amendment is disposed of then I will offer a substitute and it is my understanding I will be recognized immediately after the amendment for the purpose of submitting that substitute. Is that the correct parliamentary situation?

13. 112 CONG. REC. 22020, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: Recognition, of course, is within the discretion of the Chair, but the Chair will protect the gentleman's rights.⁽¹⁴⁾

Member Must Seek Recognition From Chair

§ 21.4 A Member desiring to offer an amendment under the five-minute rule must seek recognition from the Chair, and may not be yielded the floor for that purpose by another Member.

On Dec. 12, 1973,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Robert C. Eckhardt, of Texas, sought recognition, under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, in order to yield to Mr. Peter W. Rodino, Jr., of New Jersey, for the latter to offer an amendment. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that Mr. Eckhardt could not be recognized for that purpose.⁽¹⁶⁾ may not yield to another Member to offer an amendment (thereby depriving the Chair of his power of recognition), but he may by unanimous consent yield the balance of his time to another Member who may thereafter offer an amendment.

Member May Not Yield for Amendment

The proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 30, 1975,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8603, the Postal Reorganization Act Amendments of 1975:

(Mr. Cohen asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. [WILLIAM S.] COHEN [of Maine]: I yield to the gentleman from Delaware.

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ The Chair will state that the gentleman from Maine cannot yield for the purpose of the gentleman from Delaware offering an amendment.

MR. COHEN: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. du Pont).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maine?

17. 121 CONG. REC. 34442, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.
18. Walter Flowers (Ala.).

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Delaware is recognized for 2 minutes.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. DU PONT

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read the amendment as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. du Pont: Page 32, immediately after line 26, add the following new section:

Sec. 16. (a) Chapter 6 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section: . . .

Power of Recognition Is With the Chair—Manager of Bill May Not Yield to Himself

§ 21.6 Under the five-minute rule the Member managing the bill has preference in recognition for debate, but the power of recognition is with the Chair and the Member cannot “yield” himself time for debate.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽¹⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment H.R. 2362, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, reported by the Committee on Education and Labor, chaired by Adam C. Powell, of New York. The committee agreed to a motion to close debate on the pending section and on amendments thereto in five minutes. Mr. Powell then stated as follows:

19. 111 CONG. REC. 6113, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a point of order and to a parliamentary inquiry that although Mr. Powell could not “yield” himself time for debate under the five-minute rule, he could gain five minutes by offering a pro forma amendment or speaking in opposition to the pending amendment.

Senior Member of Committee Could Offer Amendment at Any Point of Paragraph of Appropriation Bill

§ 21.7 The pending paragraph of an appropriation bill being read under the five-minute rule is open to amendment at any point, and a senior member of the committee reporting the bill may be first recognized to offer an amendment notwithstanding the fact that it would insert matter on a line in the paragraph following the line sought to be amended by another Member.

On July 23, 1970,⁽²⁰⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, recognized George H. Mahon, of Texas, a member of the Committee on Appropriations which had reported the pending bill, to offer an amendment to the pending paragraph. Chairman Holifield then answered a series of parliamentary inquiries on the priority of ranking members of the reporting committee to recognition to offer amendments, where a paragraph is open to amendment at any point:

20. 116 CONG. REC. 25635, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [CHARLES R.] JONAS [of North Carolina]: May I respectfully remind the Chair that I was recognized, and that the Chair allowed a point of order to intervene only, and I had been recognized. The Chair ruled that since a point of order had been made, the Chair would dispose of the point of order first.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair respectfully states that the point of order did intervene following the gentleman's recognition. The Chair intends to recognize members of the committee in the order of their seniority. The Chair, therefore, recognized the gentleman from Texas. The Chair will later recognize the gentleman from North Carolina.

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHEL: Did the Clerk read through the section concluding with line 3, page 39?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is the understanding of the Chair that he did.

MR. JONAS: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JONAS: I respectfully ask the Chair to rule that my amendment does precede the amendment that will be offered by the gentleman from Texas. My amendment goes to line 5, page 38, and my information is that the amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Texas comes at a later point in the paragraph.

THE CHAIRMAN: A whole paragraph is open to amendment at the same time. Therefore, the line does not determine the order of the amendment.

Recognition in Order of Seniority Is Within Discretion of Chair

§ 21.8 Recognition under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is within the discretion of the Chair, and the Chair is not required in every instance to recognize members of the legislative committee reporting the bill in order of their seniority.

On Oct. 2, 1969,⁽¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 14000, military procurement authorization. Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, recognized Mr. Charles H. Wilson, of California, a member of the Committee on Armed Services which had reported the bill, to offer an amendment. Mr. Lucien N. Nedzi, of Michigan, inquired whether members of the committee were supposed to be recognized in the order of their seniority. The Chairman responded "That is a matter for the Chair's discretion" and proceeded to recognize Mr. Wilson for his amendment.

1. 115 CONG. REC. 28101, 28102, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

Chair Alternates Between Majority and Minority, Not Necessarily Members Supporting and Opposing Proposition

§ 21.9 In recognizing Members to move to strike the last word under the five-minute rule, the Chair attempts to alternate between majority and minority Members; but the Chair has no knowledge as to whether specific Members oppose or support the pending proposition and therefore cannot strictly alternate between both sides of the question.

On June 7, 1984,⁽²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 5504 (Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1984) in

2. 130 CONG. REC. 15423, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Shannon).

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. FRENZEL: Mr. Chairman, is it not customary to choose Members opposed and supporting the amendment in some kind of rough order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is attempting to be fair. What the Chair is doing is alternating between the two sides.

MR. FRENZEL: I thank the Chair.

Member Recognized in Support of Amendment Prior to Recognition of Another To Offer Substitute

§ 21.10 Under the five-minute rule, a Member is entitled to recognition in support of his amendment prior to recognition of another Member to offer, and debate, a substitute therefor.

On July 17, 1962,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Wayne N. Aspinall, of Colorado, offered an amendment to the pending bill, being considered under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Chairman B. F. Sisk, of California, recognized Mr. Aspinall to debate his amendment for five minutes. Mr. James E. Van Zandt, of Pennsylvania, inquired whether it was in order at that time for him to offer a substitute amendment. The Chairman responded that it was not in order "until the gentleman from Colorado has had an opportunity to be heard on his amendment."

3. Dan Daniel (Va.).

4. 108 CONG. REC. 13795, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

Priority of Recognition to Those Supporting Committee Amendment

§ 21.11 In recognizing, under the five-minute rule, members of the committee reporting a bill, the Chair recognizes a member in favor of a committee amendment prior to recognizing a member thereof who is opposed.

On Jan. 30, 1957,⁽⁵⁾ Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, ruled, sustaining a point of order, that where a bill was being amended under the five-minute rule, a member of the reporting committee seeking recognition to speak in support of a committee amendment was entitled to prior recognition over a committee member seeking recognition to speak against the committee amendment.

5. 103 CONG. REC. 1311, 85th Cong. 1st Sess.

Extending Five-minute Debate by Unanimous Consent

§ 21.12 Debate in the House as in the Committee of the Whole proceeds under the five-minute rule, but a Member who has already been recognized for five minutes may be recognized again by unanimous consent only.

Although a joint resolution called up under the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act was not subject to substantive amendment under section 8(d)(5)(B) of that Act, pro forma amendments for the purpose of debate under the five-minute rule were permitted where the resolution, on Nov. 2, 1977,⁽⁶⁾ was being considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole by unanimous consent.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁷⁾ The unfinished business of the House is the further consideration of the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 621) approving the Presidential decision on an Alaska natural gas transportation system, and for other purposes, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

Without objection, the Clerk will again report the joint resolution.

6. 123 CONG. REC. 36613, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

7. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

H.J. RES. 621

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the House of Representatives and Senate approve the Presidential decision on an Alaska natural gas transportation system submitted to the Congress on September 22, 1977, and find that any environmental impact statements prepared relative to such system and submitted with the President's decision are in compliance with the Natural Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. UDALL: Mr. Speaker, am I correct in assuming that the joint resolution before us has been laid before the House, but is not amendable?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. UDALL: Am I further correct, Mr. Speaker, in assuming that under the procedure by which we are operating, the only way for a Member to gain time is to make a pro forma motion to strike the necessary number of words?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

It is the Chair's understanding that those who have already offered pro forma amendments on the joint resolution may do so again only by unanimous consent.

§ 21.13 A Member recognized under the five-minute rule may extend his debate time only by unanimous consent, and a motion to that effect is not in order.

On Apr. 28, 1976,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 611, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1977:

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. Leggett) has expired.

MR. [ROBERT L.] LEGGETT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to proceed for 3 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California? . . .

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

MR. LEGGETT: Mr. Chairman, I move that I be given 2 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: That motion is not in order. The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. Leggett) has expired.

§ 21.14 Under the five-minute rule, the proponent of a pending amendment may offer a pro forma amendment thereto (for additional de-

During consideration of the nuclear weapons freeze resolution (H.J. Res. 13) in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 13, 1983,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ELLIOTT C.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ Without objection, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Levitas) is recognized for 5 minutes. . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, does the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Levitas) have an amendment pending?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York is correct. The gentleman from Georgia has an amendment in the nature of a substitute to the text pending.

MR. STRATTON: Well, is it proper to strike the last word on one's own amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman asked for recognition, and without objection, he was recognized for 5 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: Technically, the proponent may rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment offered by another Member in order to secure an additional five minutes.

Member Speaking on Amendment Could Speak on Amendment Thereto

§ 21.15 While the rules forbid a Member speaking twice on an amendment offered under the five-minute rule, he may speak on the amendment and later in opposition to a pro forma amendment offered during the pendency of the original amendment.

On Mar. 13, 1942,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, recognized, during five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, to speak in opposition to a pro forma amendment. Mr. Frank E. Hook, of Michigan, objected that a Member could not speak twice on the same amendment and that Mr. Dirksen had already spoken on the pending amendment. The Chairman ruled that Mr. Dirksen could speak on the pro forma amendment although he had already spoken to the pending substantive amendment.⁽¹³⁾

§ 21.16 A Member who has offered an amendment and spoken thereon is not precluded from recognition to speak to a proposed amendment to his amendment.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽¹⁴⁾ Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, ruled that a Member who had offered an amendment and spoken thereon was not precluded from speaking on an amendment to his amendment:

MR. [AUGUSTUS F.] HAWKINS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

MR. [HUGH L.] CAREY [of New York]: A point of order, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CAREY: Mr. Chairman, I have no wish to foreclose the right of my colleague from California to be heard, but I believe he has already spoken on the floor for 10 minutes in support of his amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Since the time the gentleman from California addressed the Committee with regard to the Hawkins amendment, another amendment has been offered, which is an amendment to the Hawkins amendment, and the gentleman from California has not yet spoken on that.

MR. CAREY: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my point of order.

Offering Pro Forma Amendment After Recognition on Previous Amendment

§ 21.17 A Member who has spoken in debate on a second degree amendment may offer a further pro forma amendment to debate the underlying first degree amendment.

On June 28, 1995,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of a bill⁽¹⁶⁾ making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs, Mrs. Carrie P. Meek, of Florida, was debating an amendment in time yielded by Mrs. Corrine Brown, of Florida:

MS. BROWN of Florida: I yield to the gentlewoman from Florida.

MRS. MEEK of Florida: Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me.

Mr. Chairman, there are a lot of things that have been said today, but there are still a lot of questions existing. No. 1, there is no one in this Congress, all 435 of them, that know doodley-squat about the Haitian Constitution. They know absolutely nothing about it.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The time of the gentlewoman from Florida [Ms. Brown] has expired.

(On request of Mr. Bonior and by unanimous consent, Ms. Brown of Florida was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

MRS. MEEK of Florida: Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

MS. BROWN of Florida: I yield to the gentlewoman from Florida. . . .

MRS. MEEK of Florida: I have a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, I am trying to get recognized so I can move to strike the last word on the underlying amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentlewoman from Florida [Ms. Brown] requested 2 additional minutes. The time is hers now. That was granted without objection. She has now yielded to the gentlewoman from Florida [Mrs. Meek] in the well, so the Chair would say to the gentlewoman from Florida [Mrs. Meek] the time is hers as long as the gentlewoman yields to her.

MRS. MEEK of Florida: I have a further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentlewoman will state her inquiry.

MRS. MEEK of Florida: Mr. Chairman, after I have expended the 2 minutes that she gives me, may I request 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentlewoman may, under that circumstance. . . .

The time of the gentlewoman from Florida [Ms. Brown] has again expired.

In the following exchange, the Chair indicated that one who has offered a pro forma amendment on a second-degree amendment may offer another pro forma amendment on the first degree amendment:

MR. [THOMAS M.] FOGLIETTA [of Pennsylvania]: I have a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. . . .

I believe I heard the gentlewoman from Florida [Mrs. Meek] say that she moved to strike the requisite number of words on the underlying amendment. She has spoken on her own amendment. Now she has asked for 5 minutes on the underlying amendment. I think she is entitled to that 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct, and the Chair would recognize the gentlewoman for 5 minutes to strike the last word on the Goss amendment.

MRS. MEEK of Florida: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words. . . .

When the Goss amendment says "None of the funds appropriated in this act may be made available to the Government of Haiti when it is made known to the President that such Government is controlled by a regime holding power through means other than the democratic elections scheduled for calendar year 1995 and held in substantial compliance with requirements of the Constitution," I repeat again to the gentleman, what does the gentleman mean by "substantial," rhetorical statement, "compliance?" What does the gentleman mean by saying that the people in Haiti are not ready? That is the inference the gentleman is making, that they are not ready for a free election.

§ 21.18 Where there was pending in the Committee of the Whole an amendment and a substitute therefor, the Chair stated, in response to parliamentary inquiries (1) that the Member offering the substitute could debate it for five minutes and could subsequently be recognized to speak for or against the original amendment; and (2) that a Member recognized to speak on a pending amendment might offer a pro forma amendment and thereby be entitled to a second five minutes of debate.

On July 28, 1970,⁽¹⁸⁾ an amendment and a substitute therefor were pending to a bill being considered under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, responded to parliamentary inquiries on recognition of Members for amendments and substitute amendments:

MR. [WILLIAM H.] HARSHA [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. HARSHA: How many times is a Member permitted to speak on his own amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Ohio inquires as to how many times a Member may speak on his own amendment. The answer to that is he may speak one time to his amendment.

MR. HARSHA: The author of the amendment is asking for additional time, and some of the rest of us have not had any time.

MR. [B. F.] SISK [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my request and yield back the remainder of my time.

MR. [HAROLD R.] COLLIER [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. COLLIER: Is that rule not also applicable to any other Member of the House, once he has spoken on an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. [JAMES C.] CLEVELAND [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. CLEVELAND: Am I not correct in stating that when the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Schwengel) offered his amendment, he spoke on it; and am I not correct that when the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Reuss) offered an amendment the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Schwengel) offered a substitute. Would not the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Schwengel) be allowed to speak for 5 minutes for or against the Reuss amendment, as well as in support of his own substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. CLEVELAND: I thank the Chairman.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WAGGONER: Under the rules of the House cannot a Member move to strike the last word and be considered on the same amendment?

18. 116 CONG. REC. 26027, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. WAGGONER: And under those conditions a man could speak twice, could he not?

THE CHAIRMAN: Possibly. If a Member were to speak one time in opposition to an amendment subsequently he could move to strike the last word and he would be entitled to be recognized.

Recognition Limited to Five Minutes

§ 21.19 A decision of the Committee of the Whole to permit a Member to read a letter means that the Member may read the letter within the five minutes allotted to him, and does not necessarily permit him to read the entire letter.

On June 26, 1952,⁽¹⁹⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 8210, the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1952, Mr. Clinton D. Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, put the question to the Committee, which voted to permit Mr. McKinnon to read the letter.

While Mr. McKinnon was reading the letter, Chairman Mills interrupted him and stated that his five minutes had expired. Mr. Herman P. Eberharter, of Pennsylvania, made the point of order that the vote by the Committee permitted Mr. McKinnon to read the entire letter; the Chairman overruled the point of order:

MR. EBERHARTER: Mr. Chairman, the House decided by a teller vote to permit the reading of this letter. I submit that the letter should be read in its entirety; that is the point of order I make.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not the decision made by the Committee. The Committee made the decision that the gentleman could read the letter within the time allotted to the gentleman of 5 minutes.

MR. EBERHARTER: I did not hear it so stated when the motion was put, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question put to the Committee had nothing whatsoever to do with the time to be consumed by the gentleman from California. The Chair recognized the gentleman from California for 5 minutes; the question arose as to whether or not he could within that 5 minutes time read extraneous papers.

The point of order is overruled.⁽²⁰⁾

Recognition on Reintroduced Amendment

§ 21.20 Upon the re-offering of an amendment which has, by unanimous consent, been withdrawn in the Committee of the Whole, the proponent is entitled to debate the amendment for a second five-minute period.

On May 3, 1956,⁽¹⁾ Chairman J. Percy Priest, of Tennessee, stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that a Member who again offers an amendment he has withdrawn in the Committee of the Whole is entitled to debate the amendment for five minutes regardless of previous debate thereon:

MR. [NOAH M.] MASON [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MASON: Under the rules of the House does a man get two 5-minute discussions on the same amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman withdrew his amendment, and it has been offered again. The gentleman from Maine is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his amendment.

thereto for the former prohibition against reading papers, over objection, without the consent of the House.

Recognition for En Bloc Amendments

§ 21.21 A Member offering two amendments may, with the consent of the Committee of the Whole, have them considered together, but such consent does not permit the Member to debate the amendments for two five-minute periods.

On Mar. 5, 1937,⁽²⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment under the five-minute rule an appropriation bill, Mr. Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, asked unanimous consent that two amendments he was offering, both applicable to the same page, be considered together. There was no objection to the request.

Mr. Dirksen then stated he assumed that he was entitled to proceed for 10 minutes, having two amendments. Chairman Schuyler Otis Bland, of Virginia, stated that Mr. Dirksen was entitled to only five minutes.

Recognition for Debate Does Not Preclude Timely Point of Order Against Amendment

§ 21.22 Mere recognition for debate on an amendment

2. 81 CONG. REC. 1919, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

under the five-minute rule does not preclude a point of order against the amendment before the Member recognized has begun his remarks.

On July 30, 1955,⁽³⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered an amendment to a Union Calendar bill on the Consent Calendar, being considered under the five-minute rule. Mr. Hoffman was recognized by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, to debate his amendment for five minutes. Before Mr. Hoffman had begun his remarks, Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, made a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it was not germane. Mr. Hoffman objected that Mr. Gross could not be recognized for the point of order, since Mr. Hoffman had already been recognized to debate the amendment.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, stating that Mr. Hoffman had not yet begun his remarks.

Closed Rules and Pro Forma Amendments

§ 21.23 When an amendment, offered by direction of a committee, is being considered under a closed rule, only two five-minute speeches are in order and a third Member is not entitled to recognition notwithstanding the fact that the second Member, recognized in opposition, spoke in favor of the amendment.

On May 18, 1960,⁽⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 5, the Foreign Investment Tax Act of 1960, reported by the Committee on Ways and Means, pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 468, permitting only amendments offered at the direction of said committee and amendments thereto. Mr. George Meader, of Michigan, was recognized by Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, for five minutes' debate in opposition to the pending committee amendment. The Chairman then answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [JOHN H.] DENT [of Pennsylvania]: Did the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Meader] get up and ask for time to speak in opposition and would that include any of us who are opposed to the bill, since he is speaking in favor of the bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, no one else can be recognized.

MR. MEADER: Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Pennsylvania wants me to yield to him to make a statement, I will be glad to do so.

4. 106 CONG. REC. 10579, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. DENT: I do not think that is it. I just want to know if the rules of the House allow the time to be usurped by those in favor of the bill when some time is supposed, under the rules of the House, to be allocated to those who are opposed to the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair wishes to inform the gentleman from Pennsylvania that the gentleman from Michigan stated that he rose in opposition to the amendment, and the Chair recognized the gentleman from Michigan.

§ 21.24 When a bill is being considered under a closed rule permitting only committee amendments, only two five-minute speeches are in order, one in support of the committee amendment and one in opposition, and the Chair gives preference in recognition to members of the committee reporting the bill.

On May 18, 1960,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 5, the Foreign Investment Tax Act of 1960, reported by the Committee on Ways and Means, pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 468, permitting only amendments offered at the direction of said committee. A member of the Committee on Ways and Means (Mr. Hale Boggs, of Louisiana) offered an amendment and was recognized for five minutes. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that only five minutes for and five minutes against the amendment were in order, and that committee members had prior rights to debate:

MR. [CLEVELAND M.] BAILEY [of West Virginia]: I rise in opposition to the amendment and I oppose the legislation in general.

Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BAILEY: On what ground may I get recognition for the purpose of opposing the legislation?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognized the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Boggs] for 5 minutes in support of the committee amendment, so the gentleman from Louisiana would have to yield to the distinguished gentleman from West Virginia.

MR. BAILEY: At the expiration of the 5 minutes allowed the gentleman from Louisiana, may I be recognized to discuss the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: If no other member of the committee rises in opposition to the amendment, the Chair will recognize the gentleman.

§ 21.25 Where a bill is being considered under a special order permitting only committee amendments and prohibiting amendments thereto, a second Member rising to support the committee amendment cannot be recognized, since he would necessarily be speaking to a pro forma amendment.

On Sept. 3, 1959,⁽⁶⁾ Chairman William Pat Jennings, of Virginia, stated that to the pending bill, H.R. 9035, no amendments were in order under the special rule adopted by the House except amendments offered by the Committee on Public Works. Mr. Frank J. Becker, of New York, was recognized for five minutes to support the second committee amendment offered. At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Toby Morris, of Oklahoma, sought recognition in support of the amendment. Chairman Jennings declined to recognize Mr. Morris for that purpose:

The Chair will state to the gentleman that only 5 minutes is permitted in support of the amendment and 5 minutes in opposition. Five minutes has been consumed in support of the amendment. Therefore, the Chair cannot recognize the gentleman at this time.

§ 21.26 When a committee amendment is being considered under a "closed" rule prohibiting amendments thereto, only two five-minute speeches are in order, pro forma amendments are not permitted and a third member may be recognized only by unanimous consent.

An illustration of the proposition described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 8, 1977,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of the Tax Reduction and Simplification Act of 1977 (H.R. 3477). The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [WILLIAM M.] KETCHUM [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the committee amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair will state that only two 5-minute speeches are in order under the rule absent unanimous consent.

MR. KETCHUM: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to speak in favor of the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Special Rule Permitting Pro Forma Amendments

ments in a certain order and pro forma amendments, the Chair has discretion to recognize Members to offer pro forma amendments to debate the underlying text between consideration of perfecting amendments.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on May 26, 1982,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 345 (the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1983):

MR. [HENRY A.] WAXMAN [of California]: At the appropriate time after we have completed this amendment, I will seek to strike the last word to make other comments that may be of interest to Members.

MR. [EDWARD R.] MADIGAN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. MADIGAN: Is the procedure that has just been suggested by the gentleman from California one that would be in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will entertain pro forma amendments between amendments.

MR. MADIGAN: Further pursuing my parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman, how would the gentleman from California be able to be recognized to speak in behalf of something that he says he is not going to offer?

THE CHAIRMAN: Between amendments, no amendment is pending. That is why a pro forma amendment presumably to one of the substitutes will be allowed. It provides an opportunity for discussion between amendments.

Amendments Printed in Record

§ 21.28 Where a special rule adopted by the House only requires that all amendments offered to a bill in Committee of the Whole be printed in the Record, any Member may offer any germane amendment printed in the Record, and there is no requirement that only the Member causing the amendment to be printed may offer it, unless the special rule so specifies.

On Oct. 31, 1979,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of the Priority Energy Projects Act of 1979 (H.R. 4985) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry as follows:

MR. [NICK J.] RAHALL [II, of West Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment that was printed in the Record.

I also have an amendment by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) that was printed in the Record and through negotiations between the two of us, I am offering the amendment of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) at this point. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹²⁾ The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, do I understand that under this rule that governs the consideration of this bill that any Member can offer any amendment that was printed in the Record, no matter who the author of the amendment was?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct. That is the correct interpretation.

Parliamentarian's Note: The question as to who may offer a printed amendment under such a rule must be distinguished from that of who may offer a printed amendment under Rule XXIII, clause 6, which specifically applies to the Member who caused the amendment to be printed.

Limiting Debate

§ 21.29 A Member is not entitled to five minutes of debate on a pro forma amendment in Committee of the Whole until the Chair has recognized him for that purpose; and the subcommittee chairman who is managing the bill is entitled to prior recognition to move to limit debate over a Member seeking recognition to offer a pro forma amendment.

During consideration of the foreign assistance and related agencies appropriation bill for fiscal year 1978 (H.R. 7797) in the Committee of the Whole on June 22, 1977,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JONATHAN B.] BINGHAM [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet seeking recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Maryland rise?

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask unanimous consent for a limitation on the debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: Will the gentleman make his request.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto cease in 10 minutes.

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto cease in 10 minutes.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Chairman, my understanding is that the Chairman recognized the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bingham) and he was half-way down the aisle.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair saw both gentlemen at the same time, and he did recognize the gentleman from Maryland because the Chair had to, by custom and rule, I believe, recognize the chairman of the subcommittee. . . .

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long).

The motion was agreed to.

Member Managing Bill Entitled to Prior Recognition To Move To Close Debate on Amendment

§ 21.30 During five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole, the Member managing the bill is entitled to prior recognition, to move to close debate at once on a pending amendment, over other Members who desire to debate the amendment or to offer amendments thereto.

On Nov. 25, 1970,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 19504, the Federal-aid Highway Act, being managed by Mr. John C. Kluczynski, of Illinois. Mr. Kluczynski moved that all debate on the pending amendment close instantly, and the motion was agreed to. Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, then indicated in response to parliamentary inquiries that Mr. Kluczynski had the prior right to recognition to move to limit debate over other Members seeking recognition, and that further debate was not in order (although non-debatable amendments could still be offered):

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from New York rise?

MR. [JONATHAN B.] BINGHAM [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

MR. [ANDREW] JACOBS [Jr., of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, after all, I was recognized before the Chair recognized the gentleman from New York.

Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry. Are men on their feet going to be permitted to speak for their 3 seconds?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair had not recognized the gentleman from New York or the gentleman from Indiana. The Chair had recognized the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Kluczynski). The gentleman from Indiana misunderstood the Chair had recognized him. The Chair had to recognize the gentleman from Illinois as chairman of the subcommittee.

15. 116 CONG. REC. 38990, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. JACOBS: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. JACOBS: What about those of us who were on our feet when debate was choked off? Will we be recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: There was no count made of Members standing for time, and the motion of the gentleman from Illinois was to close debate, and that motion was agreed to.

Debate on Motion To Strike Enacting Clause

§ 21.31 On a motion to strike out the enacting clause in the Committee of the Whole, only two five-minute speeches are permitted and the Chair declines to recognize for a pro forma amendment.

On Aug. 1, 1957,⁽¹⁶⁾ after Mr. Earl Wilson, of Indiana, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report back the pending bill with the recommendation the enacting clause be stricken, Mr. Leon H. Gavin, of Pennsylvania, sought to gain recognition on a motion to strike out the last word. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, declined to recognize him for that purpose. After two five-minute speeches had been had on the motion, Mr. Gavin again sought recognition to debate the motion, and the Chairman ruled that no further debate could be had.

§ 21.32 On a motion to strike out the enacting clause offered in the Committee of the Whole, only two five-minute speeches are permitted and the Chair generally declines to recognize a request for an extension of that time.

On July 18, 1951,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report back the pending bill with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. He then asked unanimous consent to revise and extend his remarks and to proceed for five additional minutes. Mr. Brent Spence, of Kentucky, objected to the request. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, ruled as follows on the request:

The gentleman may revise and extend his remarks, without objection, but he may not proceed for an additional 5 minutes on a motion to strike out the enacting clause.⁽¹⁸⁾ only two five-minute speeches are permitted, notwithstanding the fact that the second Member, recognized in opposition to the motion, spoke in favor thereof.

On Mar. 18, 1960,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Paul C. Jones, of Missouri, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the pending bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Mr. Jones was recognized for five minutes' debate in support of the motion. Mr. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi, rose in opposition to the motion and consumed his five minutes, actually speaking in favor of the motion. Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, then made a point of order, which was overruled by Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania:

MR. HOFFMAN: Mr. Chairman, a point of order. I seek recognition in opposition to the amendment on the ground that the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Colmer) did not talk against the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The 5 minutes for the preferential motion and the 5 minutes against the motion have expired.

§ 21.34 A Member offering a motion in the Committee of the Whole to strike out the enacting clause of a bill may yield to another while he has the floor but he may not yield his five minutes of debate to another Member to discuss the motion.

On Sept. 27, 1945,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report back the pending bill with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Mr. May then stated he yielded his five minutes' time on the motion to another Member. Mr. Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, objected that Mr. May could not so yield all his time and Mr. May then remained on his feet and yielded part of his time to the other Member to debate the motion.

§ 21.35 The Chair recognizes only two Members to speak on the preferential motion that the Committee rise and report with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

Committee of the Whole, the proceedings described above were as follows:

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Conte moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his amendment. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Anderson).

MR. [GLENN M.] ANDERSON of California: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's motion and yield back the balance of my time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

The preferential motion was rejected.

Parliamentarian's Note: Since Mr. Anderson utilized only a small fraction of his time to speak against the preferential motion, Mr. Garry Brown, of Michigan, sought recognition to speak against the motion. The Chair declined to recognize him, since only two Members may be recognized to speak on the motion.

2. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

Debate on Appeal of Ruling

§ 21.36 An appeal in the Committee of the Whole is debatable under the five-minute rule, whether the Committee is conducting general debate or proceeding under the five-minute rule, and such debate is confined to the appeal.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate on H.R. 4453, the Federal Fair Employment Practice Act. Mr. Adam C. Powell, Jr., of New York, who had the floor, yielded one minute of debate to Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia. Mr. Smith delivered some remarks on the lateness of the session and then moved that the Committee rise. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, ruled that Mr. Smith could not so move, having been recognized for debate only. Mr. Smith appealed the Chair's ruling.

In response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, the Chairman stated that debate on the appeal was under the five-minute rule. Mr. Rankin debated the appeal, and Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, made a point of order against Mr. Rankin's remarks on the ground he was not confining himself to the subject of the appeal. The Chairman sustained the point of order.

3. 96 CONG. REC. 2178, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 22. Where Five-minute Debate Has Been Limited

A limitation of debate on a bill and all amendments thereto in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; and decisions regarding the division of the remaining time and the order of recognition of those Members desiring to speak are largely within the discretion of the Chair.⁽⁴⁾

Notwithstanding a limitation on debate and the allocation of the remaining time by the Chair, ten minutes of debate is permitted on an amendment which has been printed in the Record, under Rule XXIII, clause 6.⁽⁵⁾ The Chair in his discretion may defer recognition of listed Members whose amendments have been printed in the Record until after others have been recognized in the division of time.⁽⁶⁾

Motion To Limit Debate Disposed of Before Further Recognition

§ 22.1 When the motion to limit debate on an amendment is pending, that motion must be disposed of prior to further recognition by the Chair.

On June 5, 1962,⁽⁷⁾ Mr. Adam C. Powell, of New York, asked unanimous consent that debate on a pending amendment close. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, interrupted Mr. Powell to object to the request. Mr. Powell then moved that debate close at 2 o'clock. Mr. Gross then sought recognition to offer the preferential motion that the Committee rise and report back the bill with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Chairman Jack B. Brooks, of Texas, ruled that recognition for that purpose was not in order pending the motion to limit debate, which must be first disposed of.⁽⁸⁾

Res. 5 in the 92d Congress to allow five minutes' debate for and against an amendment, regardless of a time limitation, which has been printed in the Congressional Record at least one day prior to its floor consideration.

The language of the time limitation, whether to a time certain or for a total time for debate, determines whether time for reading amendments, for quorum calls, for points of order and for votes is to be taken out of the remaining time. See §79, infra.

for debate on amendments, such time may be extended only by unanimous consent.

On Aug. 18, 1949,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a request that all debate on pending amendments close in one hour. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, then advised Members that since 30 Members wished to speak, each would be entitled to two minutes. Mr. Cecil F. White, of California, inquired whether it would be in order to move that the time be extended in view of the fact that so many Members had requested time. The Chairman responded that such an extension would require unanimous consent, debate already having been limited.

Proponent of Amendment Was Recognized for Five Minutes After Motion To Limit Debate Agreed to § 22.3 Where a motion to limit debate has been made and agreed to following the offering of an amendment but prior to recognition of its proponent, the Chair may nevertheless allocate five minutes to the proponent and in his discretion divide the remaining time among other Members.

A limitation on time for debate, in effect, abrogates the five-minute rule. On one occasion, a Member who had offered an amendment but had not been recognized to debate the amendment was recognized, in the exercise of discretion by the Chair, for five minutes. The proceedings of Oct. 9, 1975,⁽¹⁰⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, were as follows:

MRS. [LEONOR K.] SULLIVAN [of Missouri] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title IV be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

MRS. SULLIVAN: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendment to title IV and all amendments thereto be limited to 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would prefer to wait until the amendment has been offered.

MR. [PAUL N.] McCLOSKEY [Jr., of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. McCloskey: On page 77 at line 18 add a new section as follows:

“Sec. 407. The United States hereby consents to the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice with respect to any claim or controversy arising as a result of the enactment or the implementation of this Act.”

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. Sullivan) move to limit debate on this title and all amendments thereto to 10 minutes?

MRS. SULLIVAN: I do, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. Sullivan).

The motion was agreed to.

MR. McCLOSKEY: Mr. Chairman, may I ask if I will have 5 minutes to explain my amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from California is correct, he will have 5 minutes.

Recognition of Members Not in Chamber When Limitation Is Agreed to § 22.4 While a limitation of debate in the Committee of the Whole on a pending amendment and on all amendments thereto normally abrogates the five-minute rule, the Chair may, in his discretion, announce his intention to recognize each Member offering an amendment for five minutes where it is apparent that all Members who might offer amendments are not in the Chamber at the time the limitation is imposed.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill, a motion to close all debate on the substitute and all amendments thereto at a time certain would be in order. He indicated the procedure to be followed in recognition by the Chair should five-minute debate be limited:

MR. [JAMES T.] BROYHILL of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, my parliamentary inquiry is this: If the time is limited, would only those Members who are presently standing and would be listed—would they be the only Members who could be recognized either to propose an amendment or to oppose an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state any motion that the Chair can conceive of would involve enough time so that the Chair would feel that he could reserve that right to recognize Members under the 5-minute rule.

The Chair will explain that if needed.

The gentleman is talking about limiting debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute, and all amendments thereto?

MR. BROYHILL of North Carolina: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chairman would presume that there will be a substantial block of amendments, and the Chair would feel that the Chair should not fail to protect the Members who are not in the Chamber at the moment who might have amendments that they sought to offer.

Members To Indicate Wish To Speak Under Limitation

§22.5 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, after a limitation of time for debate had been agreed to and the list of Members to be recognized had been fixed, requested the Members on the list who wished to speak to the pending amendment to so indicate.

On May 21, 1959,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion closing debate on a pending amendment at a time certain. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, indicated, in response to parliamentary inquiries, that those Members who were standing seeking recognition at the time the limitation was agreed to and who were noted by the Chair would be entitled to recognition under the limitation. The Chairman then requested Members so entitled and on the Clerk's list to indicate whether they wished to speak.

Chair's Discretion as to Recognition and Division of Time Under Limitation

§ 22.6 Where the Committee of the Whole agrees to terminate all debate on an amendment at a certain time, the Chair may divide the time remaining among those Members who indicate a desire to speak; and if free time remains after these Members have been recognized, the Chair may at his discretion recognize Members who have not spoken to the amendment or Members who were recognized for less than five minutes under the limitation of time.

On Mar. 17, 1960,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a request that all debate on the pending amendment close at 3:50 p.m. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, recognized then those Members who had indicated they wished to speak. When those Members had spoken, time still remained and the Chairman recognized for debate Members who were not standing seeking recognition when the limitation was agreed to. The Chair answered a parliamentary inquiry:

14. 106 CONG. REC. 5911, 5914, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [JAMES C.] DAVIS of Georgia: Was not the time fixed for this debate and was not the time limited to those who were standing on their feet seeking recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: The time was fixed at 3:50. The Chair made a list of the names of those Members who indicated they desired to speak. However, the thing that governs is the time that was fixed in the unanimous consent request made by the gentleman from New York, but because the time has not arrived when debate will end, the Chair will recognize those Members who seek recognition.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: Does that limitation then of 2 minutes apply to me, or could I have some of this additional time?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes, the gentleman could be recognized again if he sought recognition.

§ 22.7 Where the Committee of the Whole has, by motion, agreed to limit all debate on a section and all amendments thereto, the Chair generally divides the time equally among those who indicate, by standing when the motion is made, that they desire recognition, or who have submitted their names to be listed among those wishing to speak; but the matter of recognition is largely within the discretion of the Chair and he may simply recognize each Member who seeks recognition for five minutes until the time for debate has been exhausted.

On July 22, 1965,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion, offered by Mr. Sam M. Gibbons, of Florida, to close all debate on the pending section and all amendments thereto (H.R. 8283, Economic Opportunity Act Amendments of 1965). Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition under the limitation:

MR. GERALD R. FORD [of Michigan]: Will the Chair announce who has time in the 10 minutes we have for the discussion of four or five or six amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has not the slightest idea who has amendments.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: Does not the Chair have a list of who has time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair does not have a list.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: May I ask, is it not the usual procedure that such a list is available when time is limited?

THE CHAIRMAN: Not necessarily.

§ 22.8 Where the Committee of the Whole fixed debate at an hour and a half, the Chair did not note the names of the Members seeking recognition and divide the time at less than five minutes each, as is the practice when a shorter period is fixed.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, moved that debate close on pending amendments at 2:30 a.m. and the Committee of the Whole agreed thereto. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, then answered a parliamentary inquiry on division of the time:

MR. [JACOB J.] JAVITS [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, is the Chair disposed to divide the time in view of the fact that it has been limited, and to announce the Members who will be recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: In view of the fact that one hour and a half remains for debate, and since it was impossible for the Chair to determine the number of Members who were on their feet, I believe it is advisable to follow the strict rule [five minutes for each Member recognized].

§ 22.9 Pending a unanimous-consent request that debate on pending amendments be limited to a time certain, the Chair indicated that all Members standing would be recognized under the limitation although they might already have debated the amendments.

On July 28, 1970,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. B. F. Sisk, of California, made a unanimous-consent request that all debate on pending amendments close at a time certain. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Alphonzo Bell, of California, asked whether a Member who had already spoken on the amendments could speak again under the time limitation. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, responded as follows:

The Chair would like to inform the gentleman from California that all Members standing would be recognized.

Mr. Bell withdrew his reservation of objection.

§ 22.10 Where the Committee of the Whole has fixed the time for debate on pending amendments, the Chair may prepare a list of names of those Members seeking recognition at the time the limitation was agreed to and divide the time equally between them.

On Aug. 18, 1949,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. John Kee, of West Virginia, asked unanimous consent that debate on pending amendments close in one hour. There was no objection. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, then responded to points of order and parliamentary inquiries on the procedure to be followed by the Chair in recognizing Members under the limitation:

MR. [EARL] WILSON of Indiana: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WILSON of Indiana: There were a certain number of us on our feet when the unanimous-consent request was propounded. After the time was limited, about twice as many people got on their feet to be recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is endeavoring to ascertain those Members who desire to speak, and has no disposition to violate any rights of freedom of speech.

MR. WILSON of Indiana: Further pressing my point of order, is it in order after the time is limited for others to get the time that we have reserved for ourselves? I would like to object under the present situation.

THE CHAIRMAN: Permit the Chair to answer the gentleman. If the gentleman from Indiana will ascertain and indicate to the Chair the names of the Members who were not standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was agreed to, the gentleman will render a great service to the Chair in determining how to answer the gentleman.

MR. [ROBERT F.] RICH [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RICH: That is not the duty of the gentleman from Indiana. That is the duty of the Clerk.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Pennsylvania and the Chair both understand that, but apparently all Members do not. The Chair is endeavoring to do the best he can to ascertain those who desire to speak under this limitation of time. Now permit the Chair to ascertain that.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Will the Chair, with the assistance of the Clerk, advise me how many Members have asked for time, and how much time each Member will be allotted?

THE CHAIRMAN: Each of the Members whose names appear on the list will be recognized for 2 minutes, there being 30 Members on their feet at the time and debate having been limited to 1 hour.

§ 22.11 Where the Committee of the Whole had separately limited debate on the remaining titles of a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute which was open to amendment at any point, the Chair indicated that he would give preference in recognition to all Members who had amendments to the title being debated, and that

Members who had printed amendments in the Record should offer them at the conclusion of debate under the limitation on that title.

When consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974⁽¹⁹⁾ resumed in the Committee of the Whole on July 24, 1974,⁽²⁰⁾ Chairman Neal Smith, of Iowa, made an explanatory statement of the pending situation as follows:

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H.R. 11500, with Mr. Smith of Iowa in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will attempt to explain the situation.

Before the Committee rose on yesterday, it had agreed that the remainder of the substitute committee amendment titles II through VIII, inclusive, would be considered as read and open to amendment at any point.

The Committee further agreed that the time for debate under the 5-minute rule would be limited to not to exceed 3 hours and allocated time to titles II through VIII as follows: 50 minutes for title II, 20 minutes for title III, 50 minutes for title IV, 5 minutes for title V, 5 minutes for title VI, 40 minutes for title VII, and 10 minutes for title VIII.

In an attempt to be consistent with the unanimous-consent agreement en-

19. H.R. 11500.

20. 120 CONG. REC. 25009, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

tered into on yesterday, the Chair will endeavor to recognize all Members who wish to offer or debate amendments to title II during the 50 minutes of time for debate on that title.

If Members who have printed their amendments to title II in the Record would agree to offer those amendments during the 50-minute period and to be recognized for the allotted time, the Chair will recognize both Committee and non-Committee members for that purpose.

Members who have caused amendments to title II to be printed in the Record, however, are protected under clause 6, rule XXIII, and will be permitted to debate for 5 minutes any such amendment which they might offer to title II at the conclusion of the 50 minutes of debate thereon.

The Chair will now compile a list of those Members seeking recognition to offer or debate amendments to title II and will allocate 50 minutes for debate accordingly.

The Chair will give preference where possible to those Members who have amendments to offer to title II.

Members who were standing at the time of the determination of the time allocation will be recognized for 1 minute and 20 seconds each.

—Guidelines Used in Recognition

§ 22.12 Where all debate on a bill and amendments thereto has been limited, the order in which the Chair recognizes Members desiring to speak is subject to his discretion; and he may in determining the order of recognition use several guidelines, such as seniority, committee status, Members having amendments at the desk.

On Oct. 14, 1966,⁽¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under five-minute debate S. 3708, the Demonstration Cities Act of 1966. A motion offered by Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, to close debate on the bill and all amendments thereto after a certain amount of time, was pending. Chairman Daniel Flood, of Pennsylvania, answered parliamentary inquiries on the order of recognition under the limitation if agreed to:

MR. [THOMAS L.] ASHLEY [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ASHLEY: Mr. Chairman, I was in the cloakroom at the time this request motion was made. I have an amendment. Am I counted among those who have amendments at the desk?

THE CHAIRMAN: We have not counted anyone. The Chair has just stated that there are so many amendments at the Clerk's desk. And if the gentleman has an amendment at the Clerk's desk it has been included in the number. . . .

The motion was agreed to.

1. 112 CONG. REC. 26976, 26977, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: I am sure that all Members who are standing are not seeking recognition. Will those seeking recognition remain standing so that the Clerk can note their names.

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr.], of Massachusetts: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. O'NEILL of Massachusetts: Mr. Chairman, in what order will the Chair recognize Members to offer their amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is up to the Chairman. The Chair always recognizes Members in a difficult situation like this by seniority and, of course, going from one side to the other, naturally.

MR. [DONALD J.] IRWIN [of Connecticut]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. IRWIN: Mr. Chairman, will Members who have amendments at the desk be recognized before other Members?

THE CHAIRMAN: Oh, yes. As far as the Chair is concerned, any Member who has an amendment here—and, of course, this is not a necessary procedure—but the Chair assures you that the Chair will recognize Members who have an amendment at the desk before recognizing Members to strike out the last word. It is not necessary but I will so rule.

MR. DEL CLAWSON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DEL CLAWSON: Will members of the committee be recognized before other Members?

THE CHAIRMAN: Members of the Committee on Banking and Currency under the rules, will be recognized before any other Member.

MR. DEL CLAWSON: I thank the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN: If they have amendments at the desk.

§ 22.13 While a motion to limit debate on a portion of a bill and all amendments thereto was pending, the Chair advised that in the event the motion carried: (1) the Chair would first recognize those Members standing, each for five minutes, then any other Members seeking recognition, also for five minutes, until the time expired or there were no other requests for recognition; and (2) if requests for recognition did not consume the time set, the Chair would direct the Clerk to read.

On Aug. 1, 1966,⁽²⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 14765, the Civil Rights Act of 1966, Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, moved that all debate on title I and amendments thereto close in one and one-half hours. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, then answered a parliamentary inquiry stated by Mr. Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, on the order of recognition and time for debate should the motion be agreed to:

2. 112 CONG. REC. 17759, 17760, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I notice that there are relatively only a few standing. How will the Chair determine under that process those who will be eligible to speak? The lack of those standing does not necessarily mean that Members will not wish to speak.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that if the time is fixed at 1½ hours and there are no other gentlemen to be recognized or who desire to be heard, the Chair will proceed to ask the Clerk to read the next title.

If, however, there are 1½ hours, each Member standing now will be recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. If there are not a sufficient number of Members standing at the present time, will the Chair proceed under the 5-minute rule during the 1½ hours?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will see to it that each of those Members now standing will be recognized in an orderly fashion. If there are others desiring to speak within the time limitation, the Chair will then recognize them. Those now standing will receive a priority from the Chair.

limitation of debate on an amendment, the five-minute rule is abrogated and the Chair may, in his discretion, either permit continued debate under the five-minute rule, divide the remaining time among those desiring to speak or divide the time between a proponent and opponent to be yielded by them.

On May 25, 1982,⁽³⁾ during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 345 (the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1983) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to an inquiry regarding recognition for debate, as indicated below:

MR. [ELLIOTT H.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, further reserving the right to object, as I understand it, the Chair's stated intention, in the event the unanimous-consent request is not agreed to, is to continue to go from one side to the other recognizing Members who have been on their feet. Is that the Chair's intention?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁴⁾ The Chair has the prerogative to do one of several things. He may continue the same process under the five-minute rule, or the Chair can apportion the remaining time based upon the number of people who are standing or to one proponent and opponent to be yielded by them.

§ 22.15 Where debate on a bill and all amendments thereto is limited to a time certain, the five-minute rule is abrogated, and the Chair may choose either to allocate the time among those Members standing and desiring to speak, or choose to recognize only Members wishing to offer amendments and to oppose amendments; the Chair may decline to recognize Members more than once under the limitation and may refuse to permit Members to divide their allotted time so as to speak to several of the amendments which are to be offered.

On May 6, 1970,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion, offered by Mr. L. Mendel Rivers, of South Carolina, that all debate on the pending bill and amendments thereto close at a certain hour. Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, stated his intention to follow certain procedures in recognizing Members offering or opposing amendments.

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Under the limitation of debate imposed by the House, a moment ago, is there any restriction on those Members who will be permitted to speak on amendments, either for or against, between now and 7 o'clock?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will endeavor to divide the time equally among the proponents and the opponents of those who have amendments. . . .⁽⁶⁾

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. STRATTON: Under the limitation of debate, is it permissible for a Member to speak twice within his allotted time either for or against two specific amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will recognize the gentleman for one time in support of or in opposition to an amendment.

MR. STRATTON: But not more than once?

THE CHAIRMAN: No; not more than once.

§ 22.16 Where the Committee of the Whole fixes the time for debate on amendments, the Chair may divide such time equally between Members seeking recognition without regard to the five-minute rule.

6. See also 118 CONG. REC. 16862, 92d Cong. 2d Sess., May 11, 1972 (under limitation on five-minute debate, Chair may give priority of recognition to those Members seeking to offer amendments).

On May 11, 1949,⁽⁷⁾ Mr. Brent Spence, of Kentucky, made a unanimous-consent request that all debate on a pending section of a bill, and amendments thereto, close in 30 minutes. Chairman Albert A. Gore, of Tennessee, then answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [EARL C.] MICHENER [of Michigan]: Under the consent request of the gentleman from Kentucky, the time would be limited to 30 minutes. There is nothing in the request as to a division of that time. Under the rules, therefore, would not the first Member recognized be entitled to 5 minutes and each succeeding Member recognized be entitled to 5 minutes until the 30 minutes was used up? In other words, during the reading of a bill for amendment under the rules of the House, unless other arrangement is made by unanimous consent, each Member as recognized is entitled to 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: As a matter of parliamentary fact, while it might perhaps be within the discretion of the Chair, if the rules were insisted upon the Chair would have to recognize the first Member for 5 minutes, and other Members likewise. But it has long been the practice of the Committee of the Whole when a limitation of debate is imposed to divide the time equally between the Members seeking recognition.

§ 22.17 Where there was pending in Committee of the Whole an amendment and a substitute therefor, the Chair stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that if debate on the pending amendments were limited, the five-minute rule would be abrogated, and Members who had already spoken on an amendment could be recognized again under the limitation.

On July 28, 1970,⁽⁸⁾ an amendment and a substitute therefor were pending to a bill being considered under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Parliamentary inquiries were raised on the rights of Members to speak twice on the same amendment. Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, then inquired whether a time limitation for debate on the pending amendment and substitute would abrogate the five-minute rule so that a Member who had already spoken to the amendments could speak again. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, responded in the affirmative.

§ 22.18 A limitation of time for debate abrogates the five-minute rule and allocation of the time remaining to Members seeking recognition is within the discretion of the

8. 116 CONG. REC. 26027, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

Chair, except that Members who had caused amendments to be printed in the Record under Rule XXIII clause 6 would receive the full five minutes.

On June 26, 1975,⁽⁹⁾ an illustration of the proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [NEAL] SMITH of Iowa: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto cease in 60 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will further add that all Members who were standing at the time the limitation of debate was made will be recognized for approximately 2 minutes each. . . .

MR. [ROBERT F.] DRINAN [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, will the time be allotted according to the three amendments now pending at the desk?

THE CHAIRMAN: All Members who were listed, who were standing at the time the limitation of time was granted, will be accorded the same amount of time.

9. 121 CONG. REC. 20951, 20957, 94th Cong. 1st Sess. Under consideration was H.R. 8121, the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary and related agencies appropriation bill for fiscal year 1976.

10. Charles A. Vanik (Ohio).

MR. DRINAN: Mr. Chairman, will the time be limited with regard to the amendments offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Heinz) so that the other Members who have filed amendments will also have a certain amount of time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Heinz) will be recognized, and then all other Members will be allotted 2 minutes, except for such amendments as were printed in the Congressional Record. Every Member who has an amendment that was printed in the Congressional Record will be guaranteed a full 5 minutes.

§ 22.19 A limitation of debate on a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; and decisions regarding the division of the remaining time and the order of recognition of those Members desiring to speak are largely within the discretion of the Chair, who may defer recognition of listed Members whose amendments have been printed in the Record and who are therefore guaranteed five minutes notwithstanding the limitation.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 4, 1975,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of the Voting Rights Act Extension (H.R. 6219):

11. 121 CONG. REC. 16899, 16901, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto terminate at 6:45 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California.

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: With the permission of the Committee, the Chair will briefly state the situation.

There are a number of Members who do not have amendments that were placed in the Record, and the Chair feels that he must try to protect them somewhat, so he proposes to go to a number of Members on the list so they will at least get some time. The time allotted will be less than a minute.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. de la Garza).

—Chair May Continue Under Five-minute Rule

§ 22.20 Where debate under the five-minute rule on a bill and all amendments thereto has been limited by motion to a time certain (with approximately 90 minutes remaining) the Chair may in his discretion continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule, according priority to members of the committee reporting the bill, instead of allocating time between proponents and opponents or among all Members standing, where it cannot be determined what amendments will be offered.

12. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

On July 29, 1983,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of the International Monetary Fund authorization (H.R. 2957) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to several parliamentary inquiries regarding recognition following agreement to a motion to limit debate to a time certain:

MR. [FERNAND J.] ST GERMAIN [of Rhode Island]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill, H.R. 2957, be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Rhode Island?

There was no objection.

The text of title IV and title V is as follows:

TITLE IV—INTERNATIONAL LENDING SUPERVISION

Sec. 401. This title may be cited as the "International Lending Supervision Act of 1983". . . .

MR. ST GERMAIN: I have a motion, Mr. Chairman. . . .

I now move that all debate on the bill, H.R. 2957, and all amendments thereto, cease at 12 o'clock noon. . . .

13. 129 CONG. REC. 21649, 21650, 21659, 21660, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Chairman, the parliamentary inquiry is for the Chair to please state the process by which we will do our business from now until the time is cut off. . . .

MR. [STEPHEN L.] NEAL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, would it not be in order at this time to ask that the time be divided between the proponents and the opponents of this measure, since there is a limitation on the time?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Chair believes not, because the time has been limited on the entire bill. It would be very difficult to allocate time to any one particular party or two parties when the Chair has no knowledge of the amendments that will be offered.

MR. NEAL: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. NEAL: Mr. Chairman, is it not true that members of the committee should be given preference in terms of recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is true. At the time the gentleman from Pennsylvania was recognized, he was the only one seeking recognition.

—Effect on Recognition of Extension of Time

§ 22.21 A limitation on time for debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto in effect abrogates the five-minute rule and the Chair, at his discretion, may allocate time to all Members desiring to speak, whether or not they have previously spoken on the amendment; and where time for debate has been limited and the time remaining allocated to those Members wishing to speak, an extension of time for debate by unanimous consent would increase the time allotted to individual Members but would not allow additional Members to seek recognition.

On Oct. 1, 1975,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense appropriation bill (H.R. 9861) in the Committee of the Whole, the proceedings described above occurred as follows:

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I had misjudged before the desire of the House at an earlier time to try to limit debate to 30 minutes. I want to be sure that no one is denied the opportunity to speak. I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto conclude in 15 minutes.

There was no objection. . . .

16. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

MR. [BURT L.] TALCOTT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, may I inquire whether or not the Members who have already spoken on this amendment may speak again during limited time?

THE CHAIRMAN: When time is limited, Members are permitted to speak again under the allocation of time.

MR. TALCOTT: And they can yield their time to other Members?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is a unanimous-consent request. . . .

MR. [BARRY] GOLDWATER [Jr., of California]: . . . I ask unanimous consent that the time be extended another 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. [ANDREW J.] HINSHAW [of California]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, if we were to accede to the unanimous-consent request, would that open the door for additional Members to stand up to seek additional time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has already announced his allocation of time.

—Recognition of Member To Speak a Second Time

§ 22.22 An agreement to limit debate on a pending amendment has the effect of abrogating the five-minute rule and a Member previously recognized to speak on the amendment may be recognized again under the limitation.

On Nov. 14, 1967,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a request that all debate on a pending amendment close at a certain hour. Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the rights of Members who had already spoken to the amendment to speak again under the time limitation:

17. 113 CONG. REC. 32343, 32344, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JOHN N.] ERLNBORN [of Illinois]: I have noticed in the past, and again at this time, that when a unanimous-consent request to limit debate has been made, Members who have already been recognized to debate the issue are again recognized under the unanimous-consent limitation. I wonder if this is in order. . . .

. . . The Chairman just announced that the gentleman from Kentucky, the chairman of the committee, would be recognized again, though he has already debated on this amendment. I wonder if Members can be recognized for a second time to debate the same amendment merely because a unanimous-consent request is made to limit time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must say to the gentleman that when the unanimous-consent request was made and agreed to it abrogated the 5-minute rule.⁽¹⁸⁾ amendment in Committee of the Whole in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; recognition is in the discretion of the Chair under such limitation and the Chair may recognize under the limitation a Member who has already spoken on the amendment.

On Aug. 4, 1977,⁽¹⁹⁾ during consideration of the National Energy Act (H.R. 8444) in the Committee of the Whole, a motion was made to limit debate on a pending amendment and the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [THOMAS L.] ASHLEY [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I move that debate on this amendment conclude at 2 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashley).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Ashbrook) there were—ayes 37, noes 20.

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ . . . The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Howard).

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order. . . .

Under the rules of the House, are not Members who have already spoken to wait until all other Members are recognized until they speak again on a pending amendment?

19. 123 CONG. REC. 27006, 27007, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

THE CHAIRMAN: No one was up at the time the Chair rapped the gavel, and the gentleman from New Jersey was standing at the time the Chair recognized him. We will be going back and forth, but of course, the limitation abrogates the 5-minute rule.

§ 22.24 In the Committee of the Whole the Member in charge of the bill having spoken on an amendment may speak again on the amendment after debate thereon under the five-minute rule has been limited.

On June 25, 1952,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of amendments to a bill in the Committee of the Whole, a motion was adopted to close debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto at a certain time. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, answered a parliamentary inquiry as to the right, under the limitation, of the Member in charge of the bill to be recognized a second time:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: Under this limitation is the chairman of the committee, who has already spoken once on this amendment, entitled to be heard again under the rule?

THE CHAIRMAN: The chairman of the committee could rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment and be recognized again.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Under the limitation?

1. 98 CONG. REC. 8028, 82d Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes; under the limitation.

—Same Committee Member Recognized in Opposition to Each Amendment

§ 22.25 The time for debate having been fixed on amendments to a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, the Chair may without objection recognize the same committee member in opposition to each amendment offered where no other member of the committee seeks such recognition.

On Feb. 8, 1950,⁽²⁾ Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, answered a parliamentary inquiry after the Committee of the Whole had agreed to a motion limiting debate on amendments to a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute:

MR. [FRANCIS H.] CASE of South Dakota: Under what precedent or ruling is the Chair recognizing a certain member of the committee for 1 minute in opposition to each amendment being offered? That was not included in the motion. Had it been included in the motion, it would have been subject to a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is trying to be fair in the conduct of the committee, and the only gentleman that has arisen on the opposite side has been the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Murray]. There was no point of order raised at the time that I announced that I would recognize the committee for 1 minute in rebuttal to each amendment.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: But the gentleman from South Dakota got up at the time the Chair proposed to recognize the gentleman from Tennessee a second time. Obviously, when the committee avails itself of the opportunity to make a motion to limit debate it, in a sense, is closing debate, and unless it does seek to limit time and is successful in so doing, in principle it forfeits that courtesy. The Members who have proposed amendments here have been waiting all afternoon to be heard, and if the committee adopted the procedure of seeking to close debate on 20 minutes' notice, with 10 amendments pending, it would seem as a matter of courtesy that the committee should restrain itself to one member of the committee who might have been on his feet, but to recognize one gentleman a succession of times seems entirely out of keeping with the spirit of closing debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chairman, in the list of names, also read the name of the committee. If the Chair was so inclined, the Chair could recognize two Members for 5 minutes each on amendments, on each side, and that would preclude the others from having any voice in the amendments that are pending, or in the debate.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: That, of course, is true, the Chair could do that. But, ordinarily, under the precedents always followed in the House, when time is closed on amendments, the time is divided among those who are seeking to offer amendments, and unless the motion specifically reserves time to the committee, it has been the precedent to divide the time among those who are seeking to offer amendments.

2. 96 CONG. REC. 1691, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair feels that the committee is entitled to a rebuttal on any amendment that is offered, and has so announced, and there was no point of order made at the time. The Chair sustains its present position.

—Proponent of Amendment Recognized Before Committee Chairman in Opposition

§ 22.26 Where all time for debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto is limited and, by unanimous consent, placed in control of the proponent of the amendment and of the chairman of the committee (in opposition), the Chair first recognizes the proponent of the amendment.

On July 9, 1965,⁽³⁾ the unfinished business in the Committee of the Whole was H.R. 6400, the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, made the following statement on the order of recognition, the Committee having limited, on the prior day, time for debate on a pending amendment:

3. 111 CONG. REC. 16207, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

When the Committee rose on yesterday, there was pending the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch] as a substitute for the committee amendment.

It was agreed that all time for debate on the so-called McCulloch substitute and all amendments thereto would be limited to 2 hours, such time to be equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Celler] and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch]. Under the unanimous-consent agreement, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch] in support of his amendment.

Parliamentarian's Note: The time limitation coupled with the unanimous-consent agreement on control of time abrogated the five-minute rule. Under the agreement, the two Members controlling debate could yield for debate or for amendments. Amendments could also be offered by Members not yielded time, after the expiration of the time limitation, but such amendments would be considered without debate.

—Chair May Permit Reservation of Time Where Debate Limited to Specific Number of Minutes

§ 22.27 Where time for debate is limited to a specific number of minutes rather than a limitation to a time certain on the clock, the Chair may permit Members to reserve time until an amendment to an amendment has been disposed of so as to speak on the main amendment.

On Oct. 3, 1975,⁽⁴⁾ the proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my request and now I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Brown amendment and all amendments thereto end in 20 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

MR. [PETER A.] PEYSER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee, if this is going to be ending in 20 minutes and we have a vote on the Symms amendment, as I understand it, does that time for the vote go into the 20 minutes?

MR. FOLEY: No. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield. I asked unanimous consent that all debate on the Brown amendment and all amendments thereto end in 20 minutes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington that all debate will end on the Brown amendment in the nature of a substitute and the Symms amendment and all amendments thereto in 20 minutes?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McCormack).

MR. [MIKE] MCCORMACK [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve my time in order to speak on the Brown of California amendment after the vote on the Symms amendment. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser).

MR. PEYSER: Mr. Chairman, I reserve my time until after the vote on the Symms amendment. . . .

MR. FOLEY: Is it correct that approximately 2½ minutes remain of debate under the limitation previously adopted, and that following that a vote will occur on the Brown amendment in the nature of a substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman states the question correctly. The gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser) has 1¼ minutes, and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McCormack) has 1¼ minutes. Then a vote will occur on the Brown amendment.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser).

Parliamentarian's Note: Where time is limited by the clock, a Member attempting to reserve time may be preempted by votes, quorum calls, etc., which come out of the time remaining. Therefore, the Chair, to protect Members' right to speak, might refuse to permit a reservation of time.

—Remaining Time Allocated Equally Among Three Members

§ 22.28 Following an agreement to limit debate on an amendment and an amendment thereto to a time certain, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may exercise his discretion and allot the remaining time in three equal parts; in this case time was controlled by the offeror of the amendment (Brown), the offeror of the amendment to the amendment (Leach), and the floor manager of the bill (Zablocki).

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 13, 1983,⁽⁶⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze):

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: . . . I ask unanimous consent that debate close at 6:05.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

MR. [JACK] KEMP [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. ZABLOCKI: 6:15?

6. 129 CONG. REC. 8425, 8426, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

7. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The unanimous-consent request is agreed to and debate is limited to 6:15.

The Chair is going to exercise discretion and allot the time in three equal parts to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Leach), the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Brown) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) and, of course, those Members can yield for purposes of debate.

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GINGRICH: Mr. Chairman, if I may express my ignorance for a moment, is it, in fact, the prerogative of the Chair in that sort of unanimous-consent request to then design whatever system seems workable?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes, it is. The Chair has exercised its discretion in light of the circumstances and allocates 6 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Leach); 6 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Brown); and 6 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki).

—Equal Allocation Between Two Members on Opposing Sides of Question

§ 22.29 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited debate under the five-minute rule to a time certain and an equal division of the remaining time among all the Members seeking recognition would severely restrict each Member in his presentation, the Chair may in his discretion equally allocate the time between two Members on opposing sides of the question to be yielded by them.

On June 14, 1977,⁽⁸⁾ it was demonstrated that a limitation of debate on amendments in the Committee of the Whole to a time certain in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; and decisions regarding the division of the remaining time and the order of recognition are largely within the discretion of the Chair.

MR. [TOM] BEVILL [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on these amendments and all amendments thereto, cease at 4 o'clock and 45 minutes p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill).

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has before him a list of more than 25 Members to occupy the next 10 minutes. It has been suggested that it would be possible for the Chair to recognize the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill) and the gentleman from Massachusetts

(Mr. Conte) to allocate those 10 minutes.

Accordingly, the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill) for 5 minutes.

MR. JOHN T. MYERS [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JOHN T. MYERS: How did the Chair make that decision?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has the authority to allocate time under a limitation, and it is obvious to the Chair that this is the most rational way to handle the 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

§ 22.30 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited to 5 minutes the remaining time for debate on an amendment, the five-minute rule is in effect abrogated and the Chair may in his discretion recognize two Members to equally control the time in support of and in opposition to the amendment, granting priority of recognition to control the time in opposition to a member of the committee handling the bill; but where no committee member seeks recognition for that purpose, the Chair may recognize any Member to control the time.

8. 123 CONG. REC. 18826, 18833, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

9. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

On June 22, 1977,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of H.R. 7797 (the foreign assistance and related agencies appropriation bill for fiscal 1978) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair made an announcement regarding debate under the five-minute rule. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and any amendments thereto close in 5 minutes.

The motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ Let the Chair make this announcement. There is no way that the Chair can divide 5 minutes among all who wish to speak. Therefore, under the prerogative of the Chair, the Chair will recognize one proponent and one opponent each for 2½ minutes.

The Chair at this time recognizes the proponent, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Wolff). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there any member of the committee who wishes to be recognized in opposition to the amendment?

If not, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) as an opponent of the amendment.

—Chair May Reallocate Time

§ 22.31 Where the Committee of the Whole has agreed that debate under the five-minute rule close at a certain time on an amendment and all amendments thereto, the Chair attempts to divide the time equally among the Members desiring recognition; but where part of the fixed time is consumed by voting, it may not be possible for the Chair to reach each Member on his list before the time expires, and no point of order lies against the inability of the Chair to recognize each Member on the list.

On June 27, 1977,⁽¹²⁾ the situation described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [ROBERT W.] KASTENMEIER [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all other amendments to the bill close at 5:40 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Ashbrook) there were—ayes 46, noes 20. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier) to close debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired.

MR. [ROBERT] MCCLORY [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, the Chair has not recognized me yet. The Chair read my name, but the Chair has not recognized me yet.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman from Illinois that we have run out of time.

MR. MCCLORY: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. MCCLORY: Mr. Chairman, when there is a time limitation and Members are standing, it is my understanding that the Chair must divide the time equally among the Members standing.

Mr. Chairman, I was standing and my name was read.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that according to the motion, which limited all debate to 5:40 p.m., we are bound by the clock. Time consumed by voting has required the Chair to reallocate time. Therefore, the Chair overrules the point of order.

Protection of Right To Debate Amendment Which Has Been Printed in Record

§ 22.32 Notwithstanding a limitation of debate to a time certain and the allocation of the remaining time by the Chair, a Member who has inserted the text of his amendment in the Record is entitled, under Rule XXIII clause

6, to be recognized for five minutes upon offering that amendment during the limitation.

On Apr. 19, 1973,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request, offered by Mr. James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, that all debate on the pending title and amendments, being considered under the five-minute rule, close at a certain time. Chairman Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, allotted the remaining time to Members seeking recognition, each Member being entitled to 45 seconds.

Mr. Thomas F. Railsback, of Illinois, was recognized and offered an amendment. At the conclusion of 45 seconds the Chairman stated that his time had expired. Mr. Railsback objected that he had printed his amendment in the Congressional Record prior to floor consideration thereof, and was therefore entitled to debate his amendment for five minutes pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6. The Chairman, who had not been aware the amendment was printed in the Record, ruled that Mr. Railsback was entitled to five minutes.⁽¹⁵⁾

14. 119 CONG. REC. 13253, 13254, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

15. Rule XXIII clause 6 was amended in the 92d Congress to allow the pro-

§ 22.33 Where all debate in the Committee of the Whole on a bill and on amendments thereto has been terminated, a Member offering an amendment which has been printed in the Record on a preceding day may nevertheless, pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, debate that amendment for five minutes, and another Member opposing the amendment may then speak for five minutes.

On Aug. 2, 1973,⁽¹⁶⁾ Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the right of Members with amendments printed in the Record to debate them for five minutes, after the Committee had agreed to a unanimous-consent agreement closing all debate on the pending bill and amendments thereto at a time certain:

MR. [JOHN] DELLENBACK [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DELLENBACK: May I ask whether under the rules of the House for ponent of the amendment five minutes of debate, regardless of a limitation, on an amendment printed in the Record. See House Rules and Manual §874 (1995).

every amendment that has been published in the Record is it not true the sponsor has 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. . . .

MR. DELLENBACK: Do I understand that those 5 minutes as accumulated will come out of the deadline time rather than be subsequent time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto is limited to 9:30.

MR. DELLENBACK: I thank the Chairman.

At the expiration of the time agreed to, the following ensued:

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair desires to announce at this time that all time under the limitation has expired. This does not apply to those Members who had their amendments previously printed in the Record. Those Members whom the Chair observed standing who have amendments, those amendments will be reported and voted upon.

Are there amendments from the members of the committee who were standing at the time the limitation was set? If not, the Chair recognizes the Members who have had their amendments printed in the Record.

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows: . . .

MR. [SAM] STEIGER of Arizona: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. STEIGER of Arizona: Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding that the proponent of the amendment is entitled to be recognized for 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. STEIGER of Arizona: And also any Member opposing the amendment is entitled to 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

—Chair May Recognize Member With Amendment Printed in Record After Member's Recognition Under Limitation

§ 22.34 The Committee of the Whole having agreed to a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule on a section of a bill and all amendments thereto, distribution of the time under the limitation is within the discretion of the Chair, who may recognize under the limitation first those Members offering amendments which have not been printed in the Congressional Record, and Members speaking in opposition to such amendments, and recognize after the limitation has expired those Members with amendments printed in the Record, since printed amendments are debatable for 10 minutes, 5 for and 5 against, notwithstanding the expiration of the limitation.

On June 26, 1979,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979 (H.R. 3930) in the Committee of the Whole, it was demonstrated that priority of recognition under a limitation of time for debate under the five-minute rule is in the complete discretion of the Chair. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto cease at 6:40 p.m. . . .

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 209, noes 183, answered “present” 1, not voting 41, as follows: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ The Chair will attempt to explain the situation.

The Committee has just voted to end all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto at 6:40. The Chair in a moment is going to ask those Members wishing to speak between now and then to stand. The Chair will advise Members that he will attempt, once that list is determined, to recognize first those Members on the list with amendments which are not protected by having been printed in the Record. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, did I understand the Chair correctly that Members who are protected by having their amendments printed in the Record will not be recognized until the time has run so that those Members will only have 5 minutes to present their amendments, but that other Members will be recognized first for the amendments which are not printed in the Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: Those Members who are recognized prior to the expiration of time have approximately 20 seconds to present their amendments. Those Members whose amendments are printed in the Record will have a guaranteed 5 minutes after time has expired. . . .

The Chair will now recognize those Members who wish to offer amendments which have not been printed in the Record.

The Chair will advise Members he will recognize listed Members in opposition to the amendments also for 20 seconds. . . .

MR. [RICHARD] KELLY [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, is it not regular order that the Members of the Committee with amendments be given preference and recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman once the limitation of time has been agreed to and time divided, that priority of recognition is within the complete discretion of the Chair.

—Priority in Recognition for Opposition to Amendment Printed in Record

§ 22.35 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole gives priority in recognition, in opposition to an amend- ment printed in the Record and offered after debate is limited, to senior members of the committee reporting the bill regardless of party affiliation.

On June 7, 1977,⁽¹⁹⁾ during consideration of the Federal Employees' Political Activities Act of 1977 (H.R. 10) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman James R. Mann, of South Carolina, responded to a parliamentary inquiry, as follows:

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: The Chairman just referred to the situation whereby debate was limited, which is under clause 6, rule XXIII, and under that procedure any Member who has filed and published an amendment is protected in his right to call up the amendment and is entitled to 5 minutes to explain the amendment.

My parliamentary inquiry is: How will the Chair determine the appropriate Member to speak in opposition to the amendment? In other words, what will qualify a Member to speak in opposition to these pending amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will endeavor to recognize committee members who are opposed, and if there is more than one committee member desiring to speak in opposition to the amendment, the Chair will seek to recognize the most senior of the committee members. The matter of party affiliation will not be controlling.

19. 123 CONG. REC. 17700, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

—Member Permitted To Debate in Opposition Notwithstanding Prior Allocation of Time Under Limitation

§ 22.36 Pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, a Member may be recognized for five minutes in opposition to an amendment which had been printed in the Record and debated by its proponent for five minutes, notwithstanding a prior allocation of time to that Member under a limitation on the pending proposition and all amendments thereto.

On July 25, 1974,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974 (H.R. 11500) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair overruled a point of order, as follows:

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. HOSMER: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Arizona has spoken for a minute and 20 seconds already.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under the rule, when the amendment has been printed in the Record, the author of the amendment gets 5 minutes in support of his amendment and an opponent gets 5 minutes in opposition to the amendment, regardless of a time limitation.

The Chair overrules the point of order.

—Recognition in Opposition Both to Amendment and to Substitute Printed in Record

§ 22.37 Where under a time limitation only five minutes of debate is available in opposition both to an amendment and to a substitute therefor printed in the Record, one Member cannot simultaneously be recognized for 10 minutes in opposition to both amendments, but must be separately recognized on each amendment, with preference of recognition being accorded to members of the committee reporting the bill.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 27, 1985,⁽²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1872 (Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1986):

Amendment offered by Mr. Markey: Insert the following new section at the

(a) Limitation of Funds Authorized for Fiscal Year 1986.—None of the funds appropriated pursuant to the authorizations of appropriations in this or any other Act may be used for the production of the 155-millimeter artillery-fired, atomic projectile. . . .

MR. [VIC] FAZIO [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment as a substitute for the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Fazio as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Markey: Insert the following new section at the end of title X (page 200, after line 4): . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment and the amendment to the amendment.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BADHAM [of California]: Mr. Chairman, at this time, I would ask a parliamentary inquiry of the Chair. . . .

My inquiry is that since there were two offerings, an amendment and an amendment to the amendment in the form of a substitute, would the opposition now be exercising its prerogative in using 10 minutes in opposition to both?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾ That is correct, except that the gentleman from New York rose in opposition to the Markey amendment. There would be 5 minutes of debate left in opposition to the Fazio substitute. . . .

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Chairman, I rose in opposition to both amendments, both the Markey amendment and the Fazio amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the gentleman can only rise in opposition to one amendment at a time, and when he rose, the Chair understood him to rise first in opposition to the Markey amendment. That leaves only 5 minutes in opposition to the Fazio substitute amendment.

Any Member wishing to rise in opposition to the Fazio substitute amendment may, and a member of the committee is recognized before other Members.

—Where Proponent of Amendment Did Not Claim Time Under Rule XXIII

§ 22.38 While under clause 6 of Rule XXIII, five minutes of debate in favor of an amendment and five minutes in opposition is permitted notwithstanding a limitation on debate where the amendment has been printed in the Record, if the proponent of the amendment offers it during his allocated time under the limitation and does not claim a separate five-minute recognition under the rule, then a Member opposing the amendment to whom time has been allocated under the limitation must consume that time and cannot claim a separate five minutes under the rule.

3. Marty Russo (Ill.).

On Mar. 2, 1976,⁽⁴⁾ the Chair ruled that, pursuant to Rule XXIII, clause 6, a separate ten minutes of debate on an amendment printed in the Record is in order only where the proponent of the amendment claims that time notwithstanding an imposed limitation; and where the amendment is offered and debated within the time allocated under the limitation, a separate five minutes in opposition is not available:

MR. [PHILIP H.] HAYES of Indiana: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hayes of Indiana: Page 39, immediately after line 12, insert the following new subsection:

“(c) Section 402(d) of the Act (30 U.S.C. 902(d)) is amended by inserting immediately before the period at the end thereof the following: ‘, including any individual who is or was employed in any aboveground mining operation.’ . . .

MR. [JOHN N.] ERLBORN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, since this amendment was one of the published amendments, 5 minutes in opposition to the amendment is available not counting against the limit?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman would be correct if debate on the amendment were outside of the limitation. . . .

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, may I have the 5 minutes, under the rule?

THE CHAIRMAN: It will be counted against the gentleman's time if the gentleman takes it at this time.

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, I understand there are 5 minutes in opposition that are available, under the rule; and I claim those 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: It is the Chair's understanding that at this point debate on the amendment is under the limitation. The gentleman could claim his 5 minutes under the rule if the amendment were offered, notwithstanding the limitation, but not at this time. . . .

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, I have 5 minutes, under the time limitation?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. ERLBORN: Without using that, am I not entitled to 5 minutes to oppose a published or printed amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: No, because the proponent of the amendment did not take his time under the rule. The gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Hayes) had 5 minutes reserved under the limitation of time. The Chair understands the gentleman from Indiana took his time under the limitation and not under the rule.

May Not Reserve or Allocate Time by Motion

§ 22.39 Under the five-minute rule, the time for debate may be fixed, but control of the time may not be allotted to certain Members by motion if a point of order is made.

5. Sam Gibbons (Fla.).

On May 11, 1949,⁽⁶⁾ Chairman Albert A. Gore, of Tennessee, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that where the Committee of the Whole fixes by consent the time for debate, the Chairman divides such time equally between Members seeking recognition. Mr. Brent Spence, of Kentucky, therefore made the following motion, which the Chairman ruled out of order:

MR. SPENCE: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 1 and all amendments thereto conclude at 3:30 and that the time be equally divided among those Members who asked for time and that the last 5 minutes be assigned to the committee.

MR. [FRANCIS H.] CASE [of South Dakota]: Mr. Chairman, the same point of order. The Committee of the Whole cannot allot time that way. That is in the discretion of the House of Representatives and not the committee. It must be by unanimous consent.

THE CHAIRMAN: The point of order is sustained.

MR. SPENCE: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 1 and all amendments thereto conclude at 3:30.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Kentucky.

The motion was agreed to.

§ 22.40 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill, the Chair indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that debate on all amendments to said amendment could be limited and allocated only by unanimous consent.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽⁷⁾ there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Harley O. Staggers, of West Virginia, made the following unanimous-consent request:

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that each amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered be considered for not more than 5 minutes on each side. . . .

The request was objected to by Mr. Robert D. Price, of Texas, and Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, then answered a parliamentary inquiry as to whether he could entertain a motion on the matter.

MR. [LAWRENCE G.] WILLIAMS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

Why cannot the Chair accept a motion from the chairman of the committee to limit debate on each amendment to 10 minutes?

7. 119 CONG. REC. 41711, 41712, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: A motion to control debate can neither divide the time nor allocate or reserve the time. A unanimous-consent request, if agreed to, can do that, but a motion to allocate and break up time is not entertainable.

Reserving or Yielding Time

§ 22.41 The Chair stated that he would not recognize Members for requests that time, allotted them under a limitation for debate on an amendment, be given to other Members; and that under such a limitation for debate, those who actually desired to utilize the time should have it equally divided among them.

On July 19, 1951,⁽⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion limiting debate on pending amendments to a time certain. Mr. Noah M. Mason, of Illinois, then inquired of Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, whether a Member who had reserved time, by indicating he wished to be recognized, could award or yield his time to another Member. The Chairman responded:

The Chair stated a few days ago he would not recognize anyone for the purpose of asking unanimous consent that his time be given to another Member. The Chair may say that it was the thought of the Chair that when Members are seeking to be recognized under a limitation of time those who actually desire to utilize the time should have the time equally divided among them.

Parliamentarian's Note: Under recent precedents, where time under a limitation is equally divided, a Member allocated time may reserve a portion or yield his time to another Member only by unanimous consent.

Use of Time Reserved Under Limitation

§ 22.42 When debate on a bill and all amendments thereto had been limited, a Member allotted time pursuant to the limitation was permitted by the Chair to use whatever part thereof he desired in support of each of the various amendments he might offer.

On July 22, 1958,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a request that debate close in 30 minutes on a pending bill and amendments thereto, the last five minutes to be reserved to the reporting committee. Chairman James J. Delaney, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa:

Mr. Chairman, I have three amendments and under the limitation of time

8. 97 CONG. REC. 8479, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

9. 104 CONG. REC. 14659-64, 85th Cong. 2d Sess.

I have 4 minutes. Is it possible to offer an amendment and reserve time following each amendment pending the disposition of the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman may take whatever time he desires on each amendment.

Unused Time Under an Allocation

§ 22.43 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on an amendment to a time certain and the time allocated by the Chair among those initially desiring to speak is not totally consumed, the Chair may either reallocate the remaining time among other Members in his discretion or may proceed again under the five-minute rule.

On Aug. 4, 1977,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration the National Energy Act (H.R. 8444) and had limited debate on an amendment when the following proceedings occurred:

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

The parliamentary inquiry is, Mr. Chairman, did the House not limit itself to debate until 2 o'clock?

10. 123 CONG. REC. 27021, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ The gentleman is correct.

MR. GARY A. MYERS: Under that limitation, I would like to ask unanimous consent to speak on the unclaimed time of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Whalen).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Pennsylvania may claim his own time. . . .

Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania desire to strike the requisite number of words and be recognized?

MR. GARY A. MYERS: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

MR. KAZEN: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. KAZEN: Supposing there are 20 of us who want to do the same thing.

THE CHAIRMAN: If there are 20 who want to do the same thing, and they can all do it before 2 o'clock, they will all be recognized, or if feasible, the Chair could divide the remaining time among other Members seeking recognition who were not included in the original limitation.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Gary A. Myers) has now been recognized.

11. Edward P. Boland (Mass.).

limitation on five-minute debate, and that limitation is vacated, he must reindicate his desire to speak in order to be recognized under any subsequent limitation which is imposed.

On Sept. 30, 1971,⁽¹²⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request that debate under the five-minute rule close at 2:30 p.m. Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, noted the Members standing and desiring to be heard under the limitation. Before the limitation had expired, Mr. Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky, stated that the limitation, requested by him, had been misstated, and he asked unanimous consent to vacate the limitation, which was agreed to. He then requested a new limitation, which was agreed to, to close debate only on his amendment and not on others.

When the time under the limitation expired, the Chairman answered an inquiry:

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Perkins) to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Brademas).

MR. [DURWARD G.] HALL [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I question whether all time has expired. I thought the distinguished Chairman read my name as one standing when time was limited.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair read the name of the gentleman from Missouri with regard to the first request. However, he was not standing at the time of the second request, which is the one under which we are now operating. However, there is still time if the gentleman wishes to be recognized. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri.

Where Committee Rises and Resumes Sitting

§ 22.45 Prior to rising for the day, the Committee of the Whole limited debate on a title of a bill and all amendments thereto to one hour and the Chair advised that upon again resolving into the Committee, Members would be recognized during the time limit under the five-minute rule.

On Aug. 2, 1966,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment title III of H.R. 14765, the Civil Rights Act of 1966. Prior to rising for the day, the Committee agreed to a request by Mr. Peter W. Rodino, Jr., of New Jersey, that all debate on the title and amendments thereto terminate in one hour. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that under the limitation, when the Committee again took up the bill on a following day, Members would be recognized under the five-minute rule.

Debate Limited on Motion To Strike—Perfecting Amendment Offered After Expiration of Limitation

§ 22.46 Where the Committee of the Whole had limited debate to a time certain on a motion to strike a portion of pending text, the Chair requested a Member to withhold offering a perfecting amendment to the text until the expiration of the limitation since the limitation did not apply to perfecting amendments which could be offered, debated, and voted upon prior to the vote on the motion to strike and since debate on the perfecting amendment, if offered during the limitation, would reduce time remaining under the limitation.

On May 24, 1977,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole having under consideration the International Security Assistance Act of 1977 (H.R. 6884), the following proceedings occurred:

14. 123 CONG. REC. 16172, 16175, 16176, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ When the Committee of the Whole House rose on Monday, May 2, 1977, the bill had been considered as having been read and open to amendment at any point, and pending was an amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Ichord).

Without objection, the Clerk will again report the amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Ichord: Page 8, line 17, strike out "$2,214,700,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$12,114,700,000"; on page 9, line 17, strike out "sections" and insert in lieu thereof "section"; strike out line 18 on page 9 and all that follows through line 2 on page 11; and in line 3 on page 11, strike out "534" and insert in lieu thereof "533". . . .

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we could determine how many more speakers we have.

I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto end at 1:15 p.m. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) has expired.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk which has been printed in the Record.

15. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

THE CHAIRMAN: Would the gentleman withhold his amendment until the limitation of time expires.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, will the amendment then be in order and may it be offered prior to the vote on the Ichord amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that the amendment will be in order as a perfecting amendment prior to the vote on the Ichord amendment.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, in that case, I will withhold the amendment at this time.

Amendment Adding New Section Not Covered by Limitation on Pending Section

§ 22.47 Where debate has been limited on a pending section and all amendments thereto and time allocated among those Members desiring to offer amendments to that section, the Chair may decline to recognize a Member to offer an amendment adding a new section and therefore not covered by the limitation, until perfecting amendments to the pending section have been disposed of under the limitation.

On June 26, 1979,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3930, the

16. 125 CONG. REC. 16679, 16680, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979, the Committee of the Whole was proceeding under a limitation on debate on section 3 and amendments thereto, when an amendment was offered by Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona:

Amendment offered by Mr. Udall: Page 8, after line 13 add the following new section and renumber the subsequent sections accordingly.

Sec. 4. The Secretary of Energy is hereby authorized to designate a proposed synthetic fuel or feedstock facility as a priority synthetic project

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, is this amendment to section 3 or section 4?

The copy I have indicates that it is to section 4, Mr. Chairman. Is that correct?

MR. UDALL: I had modified it to apply to section 3.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The Clerk will cease reading the amendment.

The Chair will advise the gentleman from Arizona that this amendment currently being read adds a new section 4, and is not covered by the limitation on time, and should not be offered at this time. . . .

MR. UDALL: I had intended—I had so instructed the Clerk to change this to an amendment to section 3, not section 4. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . The Chair will advise the gentleman from Arizona that he is within his rights to redraft the amendment as an amendment to section 3, but the Chair understood that is not the amendment currently being read.

17. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

MR. UDALL: I so offer it as an amendment to section 3.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment.

Motion To Strike Enacting Clause Offered During Time Limitation

§ 22.48 Where debate under the five-minute rule has been limited to terminate at a time certain, time consumed on a preferential motion, that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, comes out of the limitation and may prevent recognition of Members initially allotted time under the limitation.

On Sept. 18, 1979,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of the Department of Transportation appropriations for fiscal year 1980 (H.R. 4440) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Gerry E. Studds, of Massachusetts, responded to a parliamentary inquiry concerning time for debate. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [ROBERT] DUNCAN of Oregon: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto end at 1:55 p.m.

18. 125 CONG. REC. 25078, 25084, 25091, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous consent request was granted will be recognized for approximately 2 minutes. . . .

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Conte moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Massachusetts is recognized for five minutes in support of his motion. . . .

The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

The preferential motion was rejected.

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) and all amendments thereto has expired.

MR. JOHN L. BURTON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JOHN L. BURTON: Mr. Chairman, I believe my name was on the list and I was not recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired.

MR. JOHN L. BURTON: How did my time get eaten up, if I may ask?

THE CHAIRMAN: I will inform the gentleman that his time and that of several other Members on the list was consumed by the offering of the pref-erential motion by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

Debate and Vote on Motion To Strike Enacting Clause Take Precedence

§ 22.49 Debate on a preferential motion in Committee of the Whole to strike the enacting clause, and a vote on that motion, takes precedence over remaining debate on a pending amendment on which time has been limited and allocated; thus, where a Member offers a preferential motion to strike the enacting clause in order to obtain five minutes of debate on the pending amendment on which debate has been limited and allocated, the Chair must put the question on the preferential motion immediately after debate thereon, unless unanimous consent is given to combine that debate with time remaining under the allocation on the amendment.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 25, 1986,⁽¹⁹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 5052 (military construction appropriations for fiscal 1987):

^{19.} 132 CONG. REC. 15500-502, 99th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [W. G.] HEFNER [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments hereto end in 20 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was agreed to will be recognized for 2 minutes each. . . .

MR. [RONALD V.] DELLUMS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion.

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, I will not insist upon my motion that the Committee do now rise. I simply use this extraordinary tactic in order to gain some opportunity to speak on this terribly important matter. I think that we ought to limit debate only on issues that are noncontroversial

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums) has expired.

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, I still have 1 minute on the earlier request.

THE CHAIRMAN: The preferential motion takes preference over the 1 minute.

^{20.} William J. Hughes (N.J.).

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, I still have 1 minute after the preferential motion is voted up or down; is that not correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. Does the gentleman desire to take that now?

MR. DELLUMS: That is my request, and then I would logically conclude my discussion, Mr. Chairman, if I may.

THE CHAIRMAN: Without objection, the gentleman may proceed for 1 additional minute, on the preferential motion, in lieu of his 1 minute allocated on the pending amendment.

There was no objection.

Recognition To Close Debate Under Limitation

§ 22.50 The right to recognition to close debate under a limitation of debate on an amendment in Committee of the Whole belongs to the manager of the bill and not to the proponent of the amendment.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on July 21, 1982,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6030 (the military procurement authorization for fiscal year 1983):

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, may I ask, how many minutes do we have remaining?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ The gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) has 7 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Dicks) has 9½ minutes remaining.

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Chairman, I suggest that the gentleman from Washington consume his time because the Committee wants to reserve the final 7 minutes for a windup, as is the proper procedure.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Does the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Dicks) wish to use or yield additional time?

MR. [NORMAN D.] DICKS [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, is it not the proper procedure that the Member who offers the amendment gets the last portion of time to close debate?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman that the usual and customary procedure, and the procedure we are following, is for the Committee to have the prerogative and the right to close.

Chair Puts Question on Amendment After Debate Closed

§ 22.51 Where debate on a pending amendment has been closed instantly by motion, the Chair puts the question on the amendment and does not recognize Members who seek to debate the amendment further.

On Nov. 25, 1970,⁽³⁾ Mr. John C. Kluczynski, of Illinois, the manager of the pending bill in the Committee of the Whole, moved that all debate on the pending amendment close instantly. The Committee agreed to the motion by division vote. Mr. Andrew Jacobs, Jr., of Indiana, and Mr. Jonathan B. Bingham, of New York, then sought recognition to debate the amendment. Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, ruled that no further debate was in order:

MR. JACOBS: What about those of us who were on our feet when debate was choked off? Will we be recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: There was no count made of Members standing for time, and the motion of the gentleman from Illinois was to close debate, and that motion was agreed to.⁽⁴⁾

§ 23. Recognition for Particular Motions and Debate Thereon

This section discusses illustrative principles of recognition for various types of motions. The general subject of motions is treated comprehensively in Chapter 23, supra, and particular motions are discussed in detail in that chapter.

4. The manager of a bill has priority of recognition to move to close debate instantly on an amendment, even if other Members seek to debate it further or to offer amendments thereto; see § 21.30, supra.

As a general matter where a Member is recognized to offer a resolution, after the resolution is read, that Member must again be recognized for debate; and between the two recognitions, a proper motion may intervene after presentation of the resolution.⁽⁵⁾

Where two or more Members rise at the same time seeking recognition to offer motions or for debate, the Speaker inquires into their purpose in seeking recognition, and then under Rule XIV, clause 2, names the Member to speak first.⁽⁶⁾ The fact that the Chair asks a Member, “for what purpose does the gentleman rise” does not confer recognition on the Member to offer a motion.⁽⁷⁾

Dilatory motions are not entertained by the Chair, and the determination of whether a motion is dilatory is within the Chair’s discretion.⁽⁸⁾ The Chair has on occasion indicated a reluctance to hold motions to be dilatory,⁽⁹⁾ unless it was obvious that dilatory tactics were being used.⁽¹⁰⁾

Several motions discussed in this section are used in the Committee of the Whole. (Proceedings in the Committee of the Whole are covered in more detail in Chapter 19, supra.) For motions to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration or resumption of consideration of a bill, recognition is first accorded the manager of a bill.⁽¹¹⁾

A Member recognized to offer and debate an amendment may move that the Committee of the Whole rise,⁽¹²⁾ but a Member yielded time for general debate may not make the motion unless yielded to for that purpose.⁽¹³⁾

The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise is privileged and may be offered during the pendency of a motion to limit debate or immediately upon the adoption of that motion; similarly, the preferential motion that the Committee rise with the recommendation that the enacting or resolving clause be stricken may be offered while the motion to limit debate is pending.⁽¹⁴⁾

Other motions discussed in this section include the following motions used in the House.

11. See §23.27, infra; and see, generally, Ch. 19 §4, supra.
12. See 113 CONG. REC. 32694, 90th Cong. 1st Sess., Nov. 15, 1967.

14. See §23.31, infra.

A Member, if recognized for that purpose, may move to suspend the rules and pass a bill with amendments. The fact that the amendments have not been considered or adopted by a committee does not prevent their consideration.⁽¹⁵⁾ Recognition for a motion to suspend the rules is within the discretion of the Speaker. Thus, for example, the previously announced scheduling of a House bill under suspension does not preclude the consideration of a similar Senate bill in lieu thereof if recognition is granted by the Speaker.⁽¹⁶⁾

The Speaker may recognize any Member who signed a motion to discharge to call up that motion; and the proponents of a successful motion to discharge are entitled to prior recognition to debate the discharged bill.⁽¹⁷⁾

After the previous question is ordered on the passage of a bill or joint resolution, a motion to recommit is in order, and the Speaker gives preference in recognition for such purpose to a

Member who is opposed to the bill or joint resolution.⁽¹⁸⁾ In recognizing Members to move to recommit, the Speaker gives preference first to the ranking minority member of the committee reporting the bill, if opposed to the bill, and then to the remaining minority members of that committee in the order of their rank.⁽¹⁹⁾

A member of the minority has priority of recognition to offer a motion to recommit, even where the proposition has been discharged from committee and the chairman of the committee has controlled the time in opposition thereto.⁽²⁰⁾

Rule XI, clause 4(b)⁽¹⁾ now provides that the Committee on Rules shall not report any rule or order which would prevent the motion to recommit from being made as provided in clause 4 of Rule XVI, including a motion to recommit with instructions to report back an amendment otherwise in order (if offered by the Minority Leader or a designee), except with respect to a Senate bill or resolution for which the text of

What Constitutes Recognition

§ 23.1 The fact that the Speaker or Chairman asks a Member “for what purpose does the gentleman rise” does not confer recognition on the Member to offer a motion.

On Apr. 13, 1946,⁽³⁾ Mr. Dewey Short, of Missouri, sought recognition from Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, after the engrossment and third reading of the pending bill had been ordered. The Speaker inquired of Mr. Short “for what purpose does the gentleman from Missouri rise?” and Mr. Short stated that he was offering a motion to recommit the bill.

The Speaker recognized Mr. Edward E. Cox, of Georgia, to demand the reading of the engrossed copy of the bill. Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, made the point of order that Mr. Short had been recognized to offer a motion to recommit. The Speaker stated:

The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Short] was not recognized. The Chair asked the gentleman for what purpose he rose, and then recognized the gentleman from Georgia.

On June 26, 1951,⁽⁴⁾ Chairman Albert A. Gore, of Tennessee,

3. 92 CONG. REC. 3669, 79th Cong. 2d Sess.

4. 97 CONG. REC. 7174, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

ruled in the Committee of the Whole that his inquiry as to a Member’s purpose in seeking recognition did not confer recognition:

Mr. [Emanuel] Celler [of New York] rose.

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from New York rise?

MR. [HAROLD D.] COOLEY [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I move—

MR. CELLER: Mr. Chairman, was I not recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair inquired for what purpose the gentleman rose; that does not entail recognition.

§ 23.2 The mere making of a motion does not confer recognition, and where another Member has shown due diligence he may be recognized even though a motion has been made.

On Apr. 16, 1943,⁽⁵⁾ an amendment to a bill being considered in the Committee of the Whole was rejected on a division vote. Chairman William M. Whittington, of Mississippi, then ruled that it was not too late to demand tellers where an intervening motion that the Committee rise was made without recognition by the Chair:

THE CHAIRMAN: The amendment is rejected.

5. 89 CONG. REC. 3502, 78th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [MALCOLM C.] TARVER [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I ask for tellers.

MR. TARVER: Mr. Chairman, I raise the point of order that it is too late to demand tellers.

MR. TABER: I was on my feet, Mr. Chairman.

MR. TARVER: The Chair had announced the result of the vote, and a motion had been made that the Committee rise.

MR. TABER: The gentleman from Georgia had not been recognized by the Chair.

MR. TARVER: The Chair had announced the vote.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York demands tellers.

The gentleman from Georgia makes the point of order that the request comes too late. The Chair would say in deference to the gentleman from New York and the gentleman from Georgia that there had not been formal recognition of the gentleman from Georgia.

Tellers were ordered, and the Chair appointed Mr. Tarver and Mr. Taber to act as tellers.

§ 23.3 Recognition of a Member to object to a unanimous-consent request for the withdrawal of a motion in the Committee of the Whole (to strike out the enacting clause) does not extend recognition to speak in opposition to the motion.

On Mar. 1, 1950,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the pending bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. After debating his motion, Mr. Hoffman asked unanimous consent to withdraw his motion. Mr. Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, objected to withdrawal of the motion and claimed time in opposition to the motion at the same time that Mr. Carl Hinshaw, of California, rose in opposition to the motion.

6. 96 CONG. REC. 2598, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

Chairman Clark W. Thompson, of Texas, recognized Mr. Hinshaw since he was a member of the committee which had reported the bill.

Mr. Case then inquired whether he had not been recognized to speak. The Chairman responded:

The gentleman was recognized by the Chair to make an objection, but not to speak.

Speaker's Authority To Recognize

§ 23.4 Where two or more Members rise at the same time seeking recognition to offer motions or for debate, the Speaker inquires into their purpose in seeking recognition, and then under Rule XIV clause 2, names the Member to speak first.

On Apr. 26, 1933,⁽⁷⁾ the House was considering House Joint Resolution 157 (relating to the Saint Lawrence Seaway) pursuant to a special order (H. Res. 112) providing for consideration in the House and ordering the previous question on the joint resolution to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit. Pending was a motion to recommit with instructions, offered by Mr. James S. Parker, of New York, on Apr. 25 and coming over as unfinished business (the previous question having been ordered on the passage of the joint resolution). The previous question was ordered on the motion to recommit as follows:

Mr. [Bertrand H.] Snell [of New York] and Mr. [Sam] Rayburn [of Texas] rose.

MR. SNELL: Mr. Speaker, at the appropriate time I desire to be recognized against the motion to recommit. This is the unfinished business before the House.

MR. RAYBURN: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

MR. SNELL: Mr. Speaker, I am on my feet demanding recognition. The previous question has not been ordered.

7. 77 CONG. REC. 2413, 73d Cong. 1st Sess.

See Rule XIV clause 2, House Rules and Manual §753 (1995): "When two or more Members rise at once, the Speaker shall name the Member who is first to speak."

MR. [JOHN J.] O'CONNOR [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I certainly shall object to the establishment of any precedent of debating motions to recommit.

MR. SNELL: This is not a precedent. Motion to close debate by ordering the previous question has not been made. This is the unfinished business before the House.

MR. RAYBURN: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question. I think I have the right to make this motion.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on ordering the previous question on the motion to recommit.

MR. [ROBERT F.] RICH [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RICH: Mr. Speaker, is it proper procedure, when one Member has obtained recognition, for another Member to be recognized? The gentleman from New York [Mr. Snell] had the floor and was recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognized the gentleman from New York to ascertain for what purpose he rose.

MR. RICH: Is it proper procedure for the Chair now to recognize the gentleman from Texas?

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion to recommit.

The previous question was ordered on the motion to recommit, which was rejected.

Parliamentarian's Note: At the time of this precedent, a motion to recommit with instructions, offered after the previous question had been ordered on a bill or joint resolution to passage, was not debatable; Rule XVI, clause 4 was amended in the 92d Congress to specifically allow debate (five minutes for and five minutes against) on such a motion to recommit with instructions. Thus in the instant precedent the motion to recommit was not debatable regardless of whether the previous question was ordered thereon.

§ 23.5 Where a Member seeks recognition to call up District of Columbia business, privileged on District of Columbia Monday, and at the same time another Member seeks recognition to move to suspend the rules and agree to a bill, that motion made privileged by unanimous consent, it is within the discretion of the Speaker as to which of the two Members he will recognize.

On Aug. 27, 1962,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, moved to suspend the rules and pass Senate Joint Resolution 29, proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States. Mr. Thomas G. Abernethy, of Mississippi, made a point of order against such recognition on the ground that he wanted recognition to offer a District of Columbia bill and that pursuant to Rule XXIV clause 8 of the House rules, District of Columbia business was privileged. He alleged that the Speaker was permitted only to recognize for District of Columbia business. Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, stated that the Suspension Calendar had been transferred by unanimous consent to that day and contended that under the rules the Speaker had the power of recognition at his discretion.

8. 108 CONG. REC. 17654, 17655, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled as follows:

Several days ago on August 14 unanimous consent was obtained to transfer the consideration of business under suspension of the rules on Monday last until today. That does not prohibit the consideration of a privileged motion and a motion to suspend the rules today is a privileged motion. The matter is within the discretion of the Chair as to the matter of recognition.

§ 23.6 The Speaker may not be compelled by a motion under Rule XXV to recognize Members for scheduled "special orders" immediately upon completion of scheduled legislative business, but rather may continue to exercise his power of recognition under Rule XIV clause 2 to recognize other Members for unanimous-consent requests and permissible motions; thus, the Speaker has declined to recognize a Member who sought to invoke Rule XXV to interfere with the Speaker's power of recognition.

Rule XXV, which provides that "questions as to the priority of business shall be decided by a majority without debate," merely precludes debate on motions to go into Committee of the Whole, on questions of consideration, and on appeals from the Chair's decisions on priority of business, and should not be utilized to permit a motion directing the Speaker to recognize Members in a certain order or to otherwise establish an order of business. Thus, for example, on July 31, 1975,⁽⁹⁾ the Speaker⁽¹⁰⁾ refused to recognize a Member who sought to make a motion to direct recognition of Members for special orders.

MR. PHILLIP BURTON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order that a quorum is not present.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I would like to make the point of order to this effect: Under the new rules of the House, is it not true that once the House has proceeded to the closing business of the day, granting requests for absences and special orders, that it is no longer in order to make a point of order that a quorum is not present?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has not started to recognize Members for special orders yet. All the business on the Chair's desk has been completed. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the rules preclude a quorum at this point because personal requests have already been read from the desk. A leave of absence was granted to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Teague).

Under the new rules, Mr. Speaker, a quorum does not lie after this point of business in the day.

THE SPEAKER: If the Chair understands the gentleman's point of order, it relates to the fact, which is a new rule, not the rule we used to follow. The rule is that once a special order has started, the Member who has the special order and is speaking cannot be taken off his feet by a point of order of no quorum. However, there is nothing in the rules of which the Chair is aware that requires the Chair to begin to call a special order at any particular time.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I move under rule XXV that the House proceed to recognize the Members previously ordered to have special orders today, and on that I ask for a rollcall vote.

MR. [MICHAEL T.] BLOUIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, on that, I demand the yeas and nays.

9. 121 CONG. REC. 26249, 26251, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. Carl Albert (Okla.).

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 137, nays 202, not voting 95, as follows: . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, under rule XXV, I again renew my motion that the Chair proceed to the recognition of other Members who have previously been granted special orders for today.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Danielson).

MR. [GEORGE E.] DANIELSON [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, there is a motion pending.

Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 142, nays 205, not voting 87, as follows: . . .

Dilatory Motions

§ 23.7 Dilatory motions are not entertained by the Chair, and the determination of whether a motion is dilatory is within the Chair's discretion.

On May 16, 1938,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that the determination whether a motion is dilatory is within the discretion of the Chair:

MR. [JOHN J.] COCHRAN [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to submit a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. COCHRAN: . . . My parliamentary inquiry is whether a point of order would lie against the motion of a Member to strike out the title when, as a matter of fact, the Member was not in favor of striking out the title.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The present occupant of the Chair would have no way of reading a Member's mind or questioning his motives with reference to any amendment that he might offer. The Chair thinks that any Member who gained the floor to offer any permissible amendment would be in order and he would be entitled to the floor.

MR. COCHRAN: It was certainly a violation of the spirit of the rule when one offers an amendment to strike out a title and then in the first sentence after recognition says that he is not going to insist upon his motion and consumes 5 minutes that should be allowed in opposition to the title.

11. 83 CONG. REC. 6938, 75th Cong. 3d Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The rule interpreted otherwise would make it pretty hard on the occupant of the chair.

MR. [CASSIUS C.] DOWELL [of Iowa]: Where it becomes apparent to the Chair that a motion is made for the purpose of delay, then a point of order may be made and would be sustained, would it not?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The present occupant of the chair understands that the determination of whether a motion is dilatory is entirely within the discretion of the Chair.⁽¹²⁾

§ 23.8 The Speaker recognized a Member to move to adjourn notwithstanding a point of order that such motion was dilatory, and referred to the heavy responsibilities involved in holding a motion dilatory.

On June 5, 1946,⁽¹³⁾ there was a series of quorum calls and mo-

12. Rule XVI clause 10, House Rules and Manual §803 (1995) provides “No dilatory motion shall be entertained by the Speaker.”

Dilatory motions are expressly forbidden during consideration of reports from the Committee on Rules (Rule XI clause 4(b), House Rules and Manual §729(a) [1995]).

For an occasion where a motion to recommit was held dilatory under the “twenty-one day rule” in effect in the 89th Congress, see 111 CONG. REC. 18087, 89th Cong. 1st Sess., July 26, 1965.

13. 92 CONG. REC. 6352–56, 79th Cong. 2d Sess.

tions to adjourn, to delay reaching the Committee on Labor on Calendar Wednesday which intended to call up the federal employment practices bill. When a further point of no quorum was made, Mr. Dan R. McGehee, of Mississippi, made the point of order that the point of no quorum was dilatory. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, overruled the point of order, stating that a “point of no quorum is a question of very high privilege.”

After the yeas and nays had been had on a motion to dispense with further proceedings under a call of the House, Mr. L. Mendel Rivers, of South Carolina, moved that the House adjourn. Mr. Christian A. Herter, of Massachusetts, made a point of order against the motion on the ground the motion was dilatory. Due to the importance of the pending ruling by the Speaker, a call of the House ensued.

After debate on the Speaker’s power to hold motions dilatory, the Speaker ruled as follows:

. . . One of the greatest responsibilities any occupant of the Chair could assume would be to hold that motions are dilatory. However, that is not to say that the present occupant of the Chair will not, under certain circumstances, hold motions to be dilatory. In the weeks to come and for the remainder of this day the Chair will scrutinize very carefully motions that are made.

The Chair is going to put the motion to adjourn.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. Rivers].

§ 23.9 The Speaker, on a Calendar Wednesday, recognized the chairman of a committee to call up a bill in spite of repeated motions to adjourn, thereby inferentially holding such motions dilatory.

On Feb. 15, 1950,⁽¹⁴⁾ which was Calendar Wednesday, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, directed the Clerk to call the roll of committees and recognized the chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia to call up a bill, ignoring repeated motions to adjourn (in effect holding them dilatory):

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will call the committees.

The Clerk called the Committee on the District of Columbia.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not yield to the gentleman for a parliamentary inquiry at this time.

MR. [HOWARD W.] SMITH of Virginia: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk has called the Committee on the District of Columbia. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan].

MR. SMITH of Virginia: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn. That motion is always in order.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has recognized the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan].

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan] has been recognized.

MR. COLMER: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McMillan] has been recognized.

§ 23.10 A motion that the House adjourn will not be regarded as dilatory merely because the House has rejected such a motion an hour previously.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽¹⁵⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, overruled a point of order that a motion to adjourn was dilatory:

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Florida [Mr. Sikes] moves that the House do now adjourn.

MR. [VITO] MARCANTONIO [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a point of order on the motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

14. 96 CONG. REC. 1811, 1812, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

15. 96 CONG. REC. 2161, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. MARCANTONIO: Mr. Speaker, I submit the motion to adjourn is dilatory. While I recognize that intervening business has been transacted, such as voting on the motion to dispense with Calendar Wednesday business, it seems to me that the House had expressed its will on this matter about an hour ago and the House refused to adjourn. I think it is obvious to the Speaker that the House has refused to adjourn and the motion, therefore, is dilatory.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has already entertained the motion. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida.

§ 23.11 The Chair overruled the point of order that a motion to strike out the enacting clause of a bill was dilatory where the Member offering the motion stated he was opposed to the bill “in its present form.”

On Mar. 30, 1950,⁽¹⁶⁾ Chairman Oren Harris, of Arkansas, overruled a point of order that a motion was dilatory:

MR. [JAMES G.] FULTON [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Fulton moves that the Committee do now rise and that the bill be reported to the House with the enacting clause stricken.

MR. [FRANK B.] KEEFE [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

16. 96 CONG. REC. 4424, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. KEEFE: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order against the preferential motion that it is dilatory. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is not opposed to this bill and is not in good faith asking that the enacting clause be stricken out; he is advocating this bill vehemently and is simply taking this means to get 5 minutes time when many others of us have been waiting for 2 days trying to get time, but in vain.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to inquire of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Fulton] if he is opposed to the bill?

MR. FULTON: In its present form I would be opposed to it.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must accept the statement of the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

The Chair overrules the point of order and recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania in support of his preferential motion.⁽¹⁷⁾

§ 23.12 The Speaker announced that he would not hold a motion to be dilatory unless it was “obvious to everybody” that dilatory tactics were being used.

On July 25, 1949,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House was considering House Resolution

17. See also 95 CONG. REC. 5531, 81st Cong. 1st Sess., May 3, 1949 (a second motion that the committee rise and report back the bill with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken held not dilatory, where the first such motion was withdrawn).

18. 95 CONG. REC. 10095-97, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

276, making in order the consideration of H.R. 3199, the Federal Anti-Poll Tax Act. A series of roll calls intervened to prevent or delay the question being put on its adoption. After the previous question had been ordered on the resolution, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, entertained a motion by Mr. Robert L. F. Sikes, of Florida, that the House adjourn. The Speaker then made the following statement:

The Chair desires to make a statement. Since the present Speaker has occupied the chair he has yet to hold a motion to be dilatory, and will not until it becomes obvious to everybody that dilatory tactics are being indulged in and that a filibuster is being conducted.

Motions Relating to Quorum

§ 23.13 Where a motion that the House resolve into Committee of the Whole had been offered, and pending that motion a unanimous-consent request to limit general debate had been made, the Chair declined to entertain a point of order of no quorum, being proscribed by Rule XV clause 6(e) from recognition for that purpose until the pending question had been put to a vote (notwithstanding precedents to the contrary established prior to adoption of that rule).

During consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill for fiscal year 1978 (H.R. 9005) in the House on Sept. 16, 1977,⁽¹⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Madam Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 9005) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of said District for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and for other purposes, and pending that motion, Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate on the bill be limited to 1 hour, the time to be equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from California (Mr. Burgener) and myself.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Reserving the right to object, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is about to put the question, and the Chair has not yet put the question on the motion. Therefore, the point of order is out of order at this time.

MR. BAUMAN: Madam Speaker, Cannon's Precedents, volume VI, section 665, indicates that following a motion

19. 123 CONG. REC. 29601, 29602, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Barbara Jordan (Tex.).

to resolve into the Committee of the Whole, and pending a request for unanimous consent to fix control of the time for debate, a point of no quorum may be raised, and no business is in order until the presence of a quorum is ascertained.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would cite to the gentleman from Maryland the new rule, clause 6(e) of rule XV of the 95th Congress, that it shall not be in order to make or entertain a point of order that a quorum is not present unless the Speaker has put the pending motion or proposition to a vote. It is the ruling of the Chair, then, that the point of order is not in order at this time, inasmuch as the Chair has not put the question on the motion to resolve into Committee of the Whole.

Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Natcher)?

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Natcher). . . .

[The] motion was agreed to. . . .

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill H.R. 9005, with Mr. Fuqua in the chair.

§ 23.14 A point of order in the House that a quorum is not present only lies when the Speaker has put the pending proposition or motion to a vote, although the Speaker may recognize for a motion for a call of the House at any time within his discretion.

On Apr. 20, 1978,⁽¹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding a point of order that a quorum was not present. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [RICHARD L.] OTTINGER [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. OTTINGER: Mr. Speaker, it does not appear that there is a quorum on the floor of the House. Does a point of order lie at this time on that fact?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Not until the Chair puts the question on the motion to be offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Danielson). At that point, it would be in order, under the rules. The Chair is not going to recognize anybody prior to that motion.

The Chair is going to recognize the gentleman from California (Mr. Danielson). If anyone wants to object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present, that would indeed be in order.

§ 23.15 While a point of order of no quorum is not in order during debate in the House when the Speaker has not put a pending question to a vote, the Speaker retains the right to recognize any Member to move a call of the House, in his discretion under Rule XV, clause 6.

1. 124 CONG. REC. 10990, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Mar. 30, 1977,⁽²⁾ a resolution (H. Res. 445) providing for the consideration in the House as in the Committee of the Whole of another resolution (H. Res. 433, providing for the continuation of the Select Committee on Assassinations) was called up for immediate consideration following which a point of no quorum was made. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 445 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 445

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the resolution (H. Res. 433) to provide for the continuation of the Select Committee on Assassinations, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. [J. J.] PICKLE [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present. I move a call of the House.

2. 123 CONG. REC. 9554, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.
3. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman's point of order is not in order at this particular time.

MR. PICKLE: Mr. Speaker, I renew my point of order that a quorum is not present.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) to move a call of the House.

Motion To Suspend the Rules

§ 23.16 If recognized for that purpose, a Member may move to suspend the rules and pass a bill with amendments and the fact that the amendments have not been considered or adopted by a committee does not prevent their consideration.

On Apr. 8, 1975,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration in the House of the Older Americans Act (H.R. 3922), Speaker Pro Tempore John J. McFall, of California, responded to a parliamentary inquiry as indicated below:

MR. [JOHN] BRADEMAs [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3922) to amend the Older Americans Act of 1965 to extend the authorizations of appropriations contained in such act, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the

4. 121 CONG. REC. 9203, 9204, 9213, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Older Americans Amendments of 1975".

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Indiana, representing the Committee on Education and Labor, have the right to offer so-called committee amendments that have been discussed with only a few members but never formally acted upon by the Committee on Education and Labor, since this bill is being offered under suspension of the rules?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state, in answer to the parliamentary inquiry, that the gentleman has moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill in the form in which the bill was sent to the desk. So the answer to the gentleman's inquiry is: Yes, the motion is in order in the form in which it has been sent to the desk, with the amendments therein.

§ 23.17 Recognition for a motion to suspend the rules is within the discretion of the Speaker and the previously announced scheduling of a House bill under suspension does not preclude the consideration of a similar Senate bill in lieu thereof if recognition is granted by the Speaker.

On Mar. 16, 1964,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Chet Holifield, of California, moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill S. 2448, to amend the Atomic Energy Act. He moved to pass that bill instead of H.R. 9711, which had been scheduled for consideration under suspension of the rules and which dealt with the same subject matter. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that recognition to suspend the rules was within the discretion of the Speaker:

5. 110 CONG. REC. 5291, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [JOHN P.] SAYLOR [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. SAYLOR: Mr. Speaker, the House Calendar lists a bill to come up under suspension and it is a House bill. Does it not require unanimous consent to suspend the rules and take up a Senate bill?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Pennsylvania, under the rules of the House, the Speaker may recognize a Member on a motion to suspend the rules.

Is a second demanded?

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

There was no objection.⁽⁶⁾

The Committee on Rules has reported and the House has adopted resolutions authorizing the Speaker

§ 23.18 Pursuant to Rule XXVII clause 1, the Speaker may in his discretion decline to recognize a Member to move to suspend the rules.

On Mar. 5, 1974,⁽⁷⁾ a Member of the minority party attempted to gain recognition for a motion to suspend the rules:

REQUEST TO SUSPEND RULES
AND CONSIDER HOUSE RESOLUTION 807

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the rules be suspended and the House proceed to the consideration of the resolution, House Resolution 807, disapproving pay increases.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair will state that the gentleman from Iowa has not consulted the Chair and the Chair is not going to recognize the gentleman from Iowa for that purpose.

The Chair would like to state further that the request of the gentleman from Iowa violates the "Gross" rule whereby he has requested that notification of suspensions be given 24 hours in advance.

to recognize Members for motions to suspend the rules on days other than suspension calendar days. See, for example, H. Res. 422, 107 CONG. REC. 16562, 16563, 87th Cong. 1st Sess., Aug. 21, 1961.

For detailed treatment of recognition to move to suspend the rules, see Ch. 21, supra.

7. 120 CONG. REC. 5316, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.
8. Carl Albert (Okla.).

MR. GROSS: What kind of a rule is that?

THE SPEAKER: The Gross rule.

§ 23.19 In recognizing a Member to demand a second on a motion to suspend the rules (under a former rule), the Speaker gave preference to a member of the reporting committee who was opposed to the bill over another Member of the same party.

On Feb. 20, 1967,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled as follows, on recognition to demand a second on the motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill (H.R. 2) reported from the Committee on Armed Services:

THE SPEAKER: Is a second demanded?

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER: For what reason does the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Nedzi], a member of the committee, stand?

MR. [LUCIEN N.] NEDZI: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. YATES: The distinguished gentleman from Michigan is my good friend. Is it in order to inquire as to whether the gentleman from Michigan is opposed to the bill?

9. 113 CONG. REC. 3829, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. NEDZI: I will allay the gentleman's fears. He is.

MR. YATES: I will withdraw.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair had not reached that point yet. The Chair would have asked that question.

Is the gentleman from Michigan opposed to the bill?

MR. NEDZI: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman qualifies. Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

After the expiration of the 20 minutes of debate in favor of the motion, the Speaker then recognized Mr. Nedzi to control the 20 minutes against the motion.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Member demanding a second on the motion to suspend the rules was entitled to recognition for debate against the motion.⁽¹⁰⁾

Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from Rule XXVII in the 102d Congress (see H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991).

10. See 105 CONG. REC. 17600, 86th Cong. 1st Sess., Sept. 1, 1959.

For an occasion where the debate in opposition to the motion, allotted to the Member demanding the second, was transferred to another by unanimous consent, see §25.24, infra.

§ 23.20 Under clause 2 of Rule XXVII,⁽¹¹⁾ a Member opposed to a motion to suspend the rules is entitled to control 20 minutes of debate in opposition to the motion; ordinarily, the ranking minority member of the reporting committee controls the 20 minutes of debate unless he is challenged at the time the allocation is made and does not qualify as being opposed to the motion.

During consideration of the Equal Access Act (H.R. 5345) in the House on May 15, 1984,⁽¹²⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 5345) to provide that no Federal educational funds may be obligated or expended to any State or local educational agency which discriminates against any meetings of students in public secondary schools who wish to meet voluntarily for religious purposes.

11. House Rules and Manual §907 (1995). The provision providing for forty minutes of debate on a motion to suspend the rules was formerly contained in clause 3. Former clause 2 of Rule XXVII, requiring certain motions to suspend the rules to be seconded by a majority of tellers if demand was made, was repealed by H. Res. 5, 102d Cong. 1st Sess., Jan. 3, 1991.

12. 130 CONG. REC. 12214, 12215, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 5345

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Equal Access Act". . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ . . . The gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Perkins) will be recognized for 20 minutes and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. William F. Goodling, ranking minority member of Committee on Education and Labor] will be recognized for 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Perkins).

MR. PERKINS: Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 4 minutes. . . .

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. FISH: Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill. Do I have a right to the full 20 minutes on our side?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman from New York that his objection is not timely. The gentleman is too late. The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Goodling) controls the time.

MR. [GARY L.] ACKERMAN [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Pennsylvania oppose this bill? . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that any gentleman had the opportunity at the appropriate time to make the appropriate challenge. The Chair has ruled that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Goodling) controls the time and is recognized for 20 minutes.

§ 23.21 To control the time in opposition to a motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill, the Speaker recognizes a minority Member who is opposed to the bill, and if no minority member of the reporting committee qualifies to control the time in opposition, a minority Member who is opposed may be recognized.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on May 4, 1981,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of the Cash Discount Act (H.R. 3132):

MR. [FRANK] ANNUNZIO [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3132) to amend the Truth in Lending Act to encourage cash discounts, and for other purposes. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁵⁾ . . . The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

14. 127 CONG. REC. 8323, 8324, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

15. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

13. Wyche Fowler, Jr. (Ga.).

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALKER: May I inquire, Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) opposed to the bill?

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) opposed to the bill?

MR. [THOMAS B.] EVANS [Jr.] of Delaware: No; Mr. Speaker, I am not opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) opposed to the bill?

MR. WALKER: Yes; Mr. Speaker, I am.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) is entitled to the time that the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. Evans) would have had.

So the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio) will be recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) will be recognized for 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio).

Parliamentarian's Note: Representative Barney Frank, of Massachusetts, a majority party member of the Banking Committee, desired recognition to control the time in opposition, but a minority Member opposed is entitled to recognition over a majority Member even if on the committee.

§ 23.22 The Speaker accorded priority of recognition to demand a second on a motion to suspend the rules (under a former rule) to a minority member of the committee reporting the bill who qualified as being opposed to the motion.

On Sept. 20, 1976,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 14319 (the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [HARLEY O.] STAGGERS [of West Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 14319) to amend the Public Health Service Act and the Social Security Act to revise and improve the authorities under those acts for the regulation of clinical laboratories, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SHORT TITLE

Section 1. This Act may be cited as the "Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act of 1976". . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁷⁾ Is a second demanded?

MR. [STEVEN D.] SYMMS [of Idaho]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

MR. [TIM LEE] CARTER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

16. 122 CONG. REC. 31328, 31333, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

All three Members demanding a second were minority Members, with Mr. Carter ranking on the committee reporting the bill, Mr. Broyhill junior on that committee, and Mr. Symms not on the committee.

17. John J. McFall (Calif.).

MR. [JAMES T.] BROYHILL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is each of the gentlemen who request a second opposed to the bill?

MR. SYMMS: I am opposed to the bill, Mr. Speaker.

MR. BROYHILL: I am opposed to the bill, Mr. Speaker.

MR. CARTER: Mr. Speaker, so am I, in its present form.

MR. SYMMS: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. SYMMS: Mr. Speaker, did the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Carter) say that he is opposed to the bill?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Carter) did say he is opposed to the bill, in its present form.

MR. CARTER: Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my demand for a second.

MR. BROYHILL: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman from North Carolina opposed to the bill?

MR. BROYHILL: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, a second will be considered as ordered.

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: Prior to the 102d Congress, certain motions to suspend the rules were required to be seconded, if demanded, by a majority by tellers, but this requirement was eliminated from Rule XXVII in the 102d Congress (see H. Res. 5, Jan. 3, 1991).

Motion To Discharge—Who May Move

§ 23.23 The Speaker may recognize any Member who signed a motion to discharge to call up that motion, and points of order as to who shall control the bill if the motion is agreed to should be made when the question of consideration of the bill in the Committee of the Whole is moved.

On Oct. 12, 1942,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. Joseph A. Gavagan, of New York, who had signed a petition to discharge a bill from committee, moved the discharge of the bill and was recognized by Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, for 10 minutes on the motion. Mr. Sam Hobbs, of Alabama, made a point of order against the motion—partly on the ground that Mr. Gavagan did not have the authority to call up the motion to discharge.

The Speaker ruled:

The rule states that the Chair may recognize any Member who signed the petition to make the motion just made by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Gavagan], whom the Chair has recognized for that purpose.

18. 88 CONG. REC. 8066, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: Recognition in opposition to the motion to discharge is extended to members of the committee sought to be discharged in the order of rank.⁽¹⁹⁾ The proponents of a successful motion to discharge are entitled to prior recognition to debate the discharged bill.⁽²⁰⁾

Motion To Postpone

§ 23.24 A motion to postpone consideration of a measure being considered in the House is in order after the measure is under consideration but before the manager has been recognized to control debate thereon (the measure being "under debate" within the meaning of clause 4, Rule XVI, and the Member in charge not being taken from the floor).

On May 30, 1980,⁽¹⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 554 (supplemental Federal Trade Commission appropriation for fiscal year 1980) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the rule adopted a few moments ago, I call up the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 554) making an appropriation for the Federal Trade Commission for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1980, for consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

H.J. RES. 554

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sum is appropriated . . . for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1980. . . .

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Ashbrook moves to postpone further consideration of House Joint Resolution 554 until June 10, 1980.

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Speaker, I move that the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ashbrook) be laid on the table.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ The question is on the motion to table.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it. . . .

[T]he motion to table the motion to postpone consideration was agreed to.

tions except the motion to amend may be made in the House after consideration of a measure has begun and before the Member in charge has control of the floor. An amendment may not be offered until the Member in charge yields the floor for that purpose or the previous question is voted down.

Motion To Reconsider

§ 23.25 A motion to reconsider must be offered by a Member who voted on the prevailing side of the question to be reconsidered.

During consideration of House Resolution 660 (in the matter of Representative Charles H. Wilson) in the House on May 29, 1980,⁽³⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ALLEN E.] ERTEL [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I was in the House when the previous speaker . . . evidently brought in material which was not in the record before the committee, which in my judgment means there has been surprise to the defense in this case in the fact that the gentleman brought up evidence, which is a document from the State of California.

Mr. Speaker, it seems to me in fairness we are required to give the defendant or the accused in this case, whatever we want to call him, an opportunity to rebut that because, in fact, he did not have the opportunity of cross-examination and to see the document. We do not know the authenticity of that document.

Now, the defendant is faced with that fact. It seems to me in fairness we ought to continue these proceedings until he has an opportunity to examine the document and give him an opportunity to answer it in detail.

I would ask the Chair, is there any procedure where I can make a motion so that we can handle this in a fair and expeditious manner and give him the opportunity to respond to that and to get the evidence from California? . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ The only motion available that the Chair would know of, unless the gentleman from Florida would yield, would be the motion for reconsideration, if the gentleman voted on the prevailing side of the motion of the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot). That was a motion to postpone to a day certain, which was defeated.

MR. ERTEL: Mr. Speaker, I did vote on the prevailing side not to postpone. I would not have voted not to postpone, except for this what I consider to be a very unfair procedure.

I would make that motion, if I could get unanimous consent. I would request that.

Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote to postpone.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman moves to reconsider the vote on the motion to postpone.

Motion To Resolve Into Committee of the Whole

§ 23.26 Motions that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole for initial or further consideration of separate bills pursuant to separate special orders adopted by the House are of equal privilege, and the Speaker may exercise his discretionary power of recognition as to which bill shall be next eligible for consideration.

4. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Where the Committee of the Whole had risen following completion of general debate but prior to reading of a bill for amendment under the five-minute rule, the Speaker Pro Tempore indicated in response to parliamentary inquiries that he would exercise his power of recognition to permit consideration of another bill, rather than return to the bill under the five-minute rule. The proceedings of Sept. 22, 1982,⁽⁵⁾ were as follows:

MR. [WALTER B.] JONES of North Carolina: . . . I make a motion that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Bennett) having assumed the chair, Mr. Simon, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5543) to establish an ocean and coastal resources management and development fund and to require the Secretary of Commerce to provide to coastal States national ocean and resources management and development block grants from sums in the fund, had come to no resolution thereon.

MR. JONES of North Carolina: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Was it not proper that the bill should have been read for amendments while we were sitting at the Committee of the Whole?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁶⁾ The Committee has risen now, and the Chair does not know of any way of automatically going back at this point to do that. If the Committee of the Whole had proceeded to consider the bill for amendment, it would have conflicted with a determination made by the leadership as to the legislative schedule, so the House should not resume consideration of the bill anyway at this point. In other words, the leadership had indicated that we would have general debate only today. . . .

MR. JONES of North Carolina: . . . Would I have the privilege as the Chairman of this committee to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee once again?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair's understanding is that the leadership does not want to entertain that motion, which would conflict with the legislative schedule.

6. Charles E. Bennett (Fla.).

See Rule XXIII, clause 2 (adopted in the 98th Cong. 1st Sess., Jan. 3, 1983) for the process whereby the Speaker declares the House in Committee of the Whole pursuant to the terms of a special order.

5. 128 CONG. REC. 24690, 24691, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

Somebody has sent for the gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman), who will make a motion of equal privilege, to arrive, and he is undoubtedly on his way. The Chair would be glad to respond to any further conversation that the gentleman would want to have on this subject which would be in order, until the gentleman arrives.

MR. [JOEL] PRITCHARD [of Washington]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

Is it the ruling of the Chair that we cannot by unanimous consent go back into the Committee?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is following the wishes of the leadership and, therefore, would not recognize any Member for the purpose of moving that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for further consideration of the bill at this time.

What the gentleman might do, he might contact the Speaker, perhaps after the next matter is taken care of. But it should not be done at this point without the consent of the Speaker.

The gentleman from California (Mr. Waxman) has now arrived, and he is recognized.

MR. [HENRY A.] WAXMAN [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 6173) to amend the Public Health Service Act § 23.27 Recognition is first accorded the manager of a bill to move that consideration of a bill be resumed in Committee of the Whole.

The Committee of the Whole having risen and reported to the House that it had come to no conclusion on the bill⁽⁷⁾ under consideration therein, the Chair stated in response to parliamentary inquiries that the bill remained pending in the Committee of the Whole and that its consideration could be resumed when the manager of the bill moved to resolve into the Committee of the Whole for its further consideration, at a time to be determined by the leadership and the House when the House was in session. The proceedings of Nov. 3, 1977,⁽⁸⁾ were as follows:

MR. [LEO J.] RYAN [of California]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. RYAN: Mr. Speaker, I inquire, along with the gentleman from Connecticut, with regard to the status of [H.R. 9179]. We spent several hours yesterday and today on this legislation, and the purpose of my parliamentary inquiry is to find out where the bill stands and when and if at any time it will be brought up again. We ought to have a chance to bring this bill to the vote today. We are just about to ad-journal and we will come back on the 29th and for a couple of days then. Will there be the opportunity then for the leadership to bring this up again?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman from California that when a motion is made to go back into the Committee of the Whole, for further consideration of H.R. 9179, further action on that bill would take place. . . .

As the gentleman from California well knows, by previous order of the House the House will recess at 2:15 today. Following the recess, after 3 o'clock a motion to resolve into the Committee of the Whole would be in order. That would be after the recess takes place.

MR. RYAN: In the event it does not take place today, is it possible to take that legislation up tomorrow?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That would be a matter to be determined by the leadership and by the House.

MR. RYAN: And under the rules already adopted by this House for recess purposes, would it be possible to take that bill up during the time we are scheduled to come back, after the 29th of November?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Following the recess, is that what the gentleman has in mind?

MR. RYAN: Yes.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair could recognize the manager of the bill for that purpose.

Motions in Committee of the Whole: Motion To Limit Debate

§ 23.28 While it is customary for the Chair to recognize the manager of the pending bill to offer motions to limit debate, any Member may, pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, move to limit debate at the appropriate time in Committee of the Whole.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on July 31, 1975:⁽¹⁰⁾

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS of Ohio: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹¹⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. HAYS of Ohio: Would it be in order for a person not a member of the committee to move to close debate on whatever pending amendment there might be, and all amendments thereto, to this bill when we go into the Committee of the Whole?

THE SPEAKER: It is the practice and custom of the House that the Chair looks to the manager of the bill for motions relating to the management of the bill.

MR. HAYS of Ohio: If I made the motion—and I will make it more specific—would it be out of order or in violation of the rules?

THE SPEAKER: A proper motion could be entertained at the proper time.

MR. HAYS of Ohio: I am prepared to make such a motion and I will seek the proper time.

Order of Amendments

§ 23.29 When a general appropriation bill has been read, or considered as read, for amendment in its entirety, the Chair (after entertaining points of order) first entertains amendments which are not prohibited by clause 2(c) of Rule XXI, and then recognizes for amendments proposing limitations not contained or authorized in existing law pursuant to clause 2(d) of Rule XXI, subject to the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been agreed to.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 27, 1983,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 4139 (Department of Treasury and Postal Service appropriations for fiscal 1984):

MR. [CHRISTOPHER H.] SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order at this time to offer a change in the language that would not be considered under the House rules to be legislating on an appropriations bill?

12. 129 CONG. REC. 29630, 29631, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

13. Philip R. Sharp (Ind.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will first entertain any amendment to the bill which is not prohibited by clause 2(c), rule XXI, and will then entertain amendments proposing limitations pursuant to clause 2(d), rule XXI.

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

MR. [BRUCE A.] MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Smith of New Jersey: On page 49, immediately after line 2, add the following new section:

"Sec. 618. No funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to pay for an abortion, or the administrative expenses in connection with any health plan under the Federal employees health benefit program which provides any benefits or coverages for abortions. . . .

MR. MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be heard on my point of order. . . .

Mr. Chairman, my point of order is that this amendment constitutes a limitation on an appropriation and cannot be considered by the House prior to the consideration of a motion by the Committee to rise.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must indicate to the gentleman that no such preferential motion has yet been made.

The gentleman is correct that a motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted takes precedence over an amendment proposing a limitation.

MR. MORRISON of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, then I move that the committee do now rise. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . It would be more appropriate if a motion to rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as have been adopted, pursuant to clause 2(d), rule XXI were offered instead. . . .

MR. [EDWARD R.] ROYBAL [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with sundry amendments, with the recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that bill, as amended, do pass.

[The motion was rejected.]

MR. SMITH of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Smith of New Jersey: On page 49, immediately after line 2, add the following new section:

“Sec. 618. No funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to pay for an abortion. . . .

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Smith was the only Member seeking recognition to offer a limitation after the preferential motion was rejected and could have been preempted by a member of the Appropriations Committee or a more senior member offering an amendment since principles governing priority of recognition would remain applicable. A Member who has attempted to offer a limitation before the motion to rise and report is rejected is not guaranteed first recognition for a limitation amendment.

Motion To Rise

§ 23.30 The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise is privileged and may be offered during the pendency of a motion to limit debate or immediately upon the adoption of that motion.

The proceedings of Oct. 7, 1974, are discussed in § 23.31, infra.

Motions Relating to Enacting Clause—May Be Offered While Motion To Close or Limit Debate Pending

§ 23.31 The preferential motion under Rule XXIII, clause 7, that the Committee of the Whole rise with the recommendation that the enacting or resolving clause be stricken may be offered while the motion to limit debate is pending.

On Oct. 7, 1974,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of House Resolution 988 (to reform the structure, jurisdiction, and procedures of House committees):

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen), and all amendments thereto, conclude in 5 hours.

14. 120 CONG. REC. 34170, 34171, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ The question is on the motion.

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote. . . .

[Several parliamentary inquiries ensued at this point.]

MR. [DAVID T.] MARTIN of Nebraska: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Martin of Nebraska moves that the Committee rise and report the resolution H. Res. 988 to the House with the recommendation that the resolving clause be stricken out.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to ask the gentleman from Nebraska, is the gentleman opposed to this resolution?

MR. MARTIN of Nebraska: I am, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman qualifies to make the motion.

The gentleman from Nebraska is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his motion.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I wish to propound a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, my understanding of the situation is that the question that is now pending is on the motion that I made to limit debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen) and all amendments thereto.

My parliamentary inquiry is this: If that motion carries, my intention is to move that the Committee then rise.

Mr. Chairman, is there anything unparliamentary in that?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman's motion in that event would be in order.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Dingell moves the Committee do now rise.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell).

[After rejection of the motion, the Chair put the question on Mr. Martin's motion:]

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. Martin) to strike the resolving clause.

[The preferential motion was rejected.]

MR. [JOHN H.] DENT [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

[A]s I understand the motion, the motion is to limit the time to 5 hours on the issue itself, the Hansen amendment and all amendments thereto; is that true?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will now state the question.

The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) moves that debate on the Hansen amendment in the nature of a substitute, and all amendments thereto be limited to 5 hours. . . .

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen), and all amendments thereto, be limited to 5 hours, on which a recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

Parliamentarian's Note: While the provisions of clause 7 of Rule XXIII, relating to the privileged status of a motion to strike the enacting words, refer only to "bills," the motion has been applied in Committee of the Whole to a simple resolution, since it is the only motion available to enable a test vote on whether to proceed with consideration of a resolution during the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole, and since similar language in Rule XXIII, clause 6, permitting motions to limit debate on "bills" has consistently been construed to apply to simple resolutions being considered in Committee of the Whole.

§ 23.32 The motion to strike or recommend striking the enacting clause is preferential to the motion to close debate.

The proceedings of June 28, 1995,⁽¹⁶⁾ demonstrate that the motion to strike the enacting clause is preferential to the motion to close debate. The Committee of the Whole had under consideration H.R. 1868, the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act of 1996:

MR. [PORTER J.] GOSS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Goss amendment and all amendments thereto close immediately.

MR. [HAROLD L.] VOLKMER [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I have a preferential motion at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the preferential motion.

Mr. Volkmer moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

MR. VOLKMER: Mr. Chairman, the attempt by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. Goss] to limit debate on this very important amendment of the gentleman from California [Ms. Pelosi] to the gentleman's amendment, I do not think is appropriate at this time.

On July 13, 1995,⁽¹⁷⁾ a motion to limit debate was made during consideration of H.R. 1977, the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 1996, followed by a motion to recommend striking the enacting clause.

MR. [RALPH] REGULA [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I move to limit debate on title I and all amendments thereto to 90 minutes not including vote time.

MR. [DAVID R.] OBEY [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a privileged motion. I move that the Committee rise and report the bill back to the House with a recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

17. 141 CONG. REC. p. ____, 104th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Chairman, what is at issue here, in my view, is whether or not this House is going to be able to conduct the business at reasonable times in public view or whether we are going to be reduced to making virtually every major decision in subcommittees and on the floor at near midnight, with minimal public attention and minimal public understanding and minimum attention. . . .

MR. REGULA: Mr. Chairman, I oppose the motion.

I was not a party to the earlier negotiations. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Yates] and I discussed a possible agreement here that we would finish title I with time limits on the amendments that remain. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Obey].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

MR. OBEY: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 162, noes 236, not voting 36, as follows: . . .

On one occasion, when a preferential motion to close debate was before the Committee of the Whole, the Chair declined to recognize a Member to offer another privileged motion until the pending motion had been disposed of. On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽¹⁸⁾ Adam C. Powell, of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, offered the privileged motion that all debate close on the pending title of H.R. 2362, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, reported by his committee. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, advised Members that the motion to close debate was not debatable. Mrs. Edith S. Green, of Oregon, then sought recognition to offer a preferential motion. The Chairman ruled that since the preferential motion to close debate was before the Committee of the Whole, no Member could be recognized to offer another preferential motion until the pending motion was disposed of.

—Qualification To Offer: Opposition to Bill

§ 23.33 To obtain recognition to offer a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report a bill to the

18. 111 CONG. REC. 6098, 6099, 89th Cong. 1st Sess. See §23.31, supra, indicating that while a motion to limit debate is pending, the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken may be offered.

House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, a Member, if challenged, must qualify by stating that he is opposed to the bill.

On May 3, 1949,⁽¹⁹⁾ Mr. Hale Boggs, of Louisiana, offered the motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the pending bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Mr. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, made the point of order that Mr. Boggs was not opposed to the bill. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, inquired of Mr. Boggs whether he was opposed to the bill. When Mr. Boggs stated he was in favor of the bill, the Chairman ruled he did not qualify for recognition to offer the motion.

On May 6, 1950,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Boggs offered the motion that the Committee rise and report back the pending bill with the recommendation the enacting clause be stricken. Mr. John Taber, of New York, made the point of order that Mr. Boggs had not stated that he was opposed to the bill. Chairman Cooper inquired whether Mr. Boggs qualified and Mr. Boggs stated he was opposed to the bill, thereby qualifying to offer the motion.⁽¹⁾

—Two Members Recognized To Speak

§ 23.34 The Chair recognizes only two Members to speak on the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

The principle described above was illustrated on Dec. 18, 1975,⁽²⁾ in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Airport and Airway Development Act Amendments of 1975 (H.R. 9771):

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Conte moves that the Committee do now rise and report the

1. In recognizing a Member in opposition to the motion, which is debated five minutes for and five minutes against, the Chairman extends priority to a member of the committee handling the bill (see 96 CONG. REC. 2597, 81st Cong. 2d Sess., Mar. 1, 1950). For detailed discussion of the motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report back the bill with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, see §§ 77–79, infra, and Ch. 19, supra.

bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his amendment. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Anderson).

MR. [GLENN M.] ANDERSON of California: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's motion and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Anderson having used only a small portion of his time to speak against the motion, Mr. Garry E. Brown, of Michigan, sought recognition to speak against the motion. The Chair declined to recognize him, since only two Members may be recognized to speak on the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

The preferential motion was rejected.

—Ten-minute Debate

§ 23.35 Only ten minutes of debate, five for and five against, are permitted on a preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report a bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

During consideration of H.R. 12452 (the comprehensive employment and training amendments of 1978) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 9, 1978,⁽⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [RONALD V.] DELLUMS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Dellums moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out.

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, I do not seek this vehicle as a parliamentary tactic. I make it with deadly seriousness. . . .

MR. [RONALD A.] SARASIN [of Connecticut]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Sarasin) is recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. SARASIN: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums).

MR. [AUGUSTUS F.] HAWKINS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion.

4. 124 CONG. REC. 25248, 25249, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

5. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that all time for debate on the preferential motion has expired.

The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums).

The preferential motion was rejected.

Parliamentarian's Note: While Mr. Hawkins as manager of the bill would have been recognized first in opposition to the motion if he had sought recognition at the time Mr. Sarasin was recognized, he was not entitled to recognition after Mr. Sarasin had concluded.

—Preferential Motion and Debate Thereon Where Debate Time Has Been Limited

§ 23.36 A limitation of all debate time on a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain does not preclude the offering of a preferential motion to rise with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, nor debate thereon during time remaining under the limitation; and where the remaining time for debate on a bill and all amendments thereto is consumed by debate on a preferential motion, an amendment pending when the preferential motion was offered is voted on without further debate, if that amendment was not printed in the Record.

On Oct. 6, 1981,⁽⁶⁾ during consideration of H.R. 4560 (Labor, Health and Human Services appropriations for fiscal year 1982) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude not later than 5 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

MR. [THEODORE S.] WEISS [of New York]: . . . I wonder if the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Natcher) would not agree that a 6 o'clock time frame would be more appropriate?

MR. NATCHER: Mr. Chairman, I would accept the recommendation, and so move.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky? . . .

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The time will be limited to 6 o'clock. . . .

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Lott moves that the Committee do now rise and report the

6. 127 CONG. REC. 23361, 23362, 23396, 23397, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

7. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out. . . .

MR. WEISS: Mr. Chairman, at the time the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Natcher) requested unanimous consent that debate be terminated at 6 o'clock, we were given assurances that all the amendments that . . . any Member had to offer would be entertained. So I now raise the point of order that in fact the gentleman is proceeding out of the regular order that was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Lott) has offered a preferential motion which is in order and not precluded by the unanimous-consent agreement, and under the unanimous-consent agreement, the gentleman from Mississippi is recognized for 2½ minutes. . . .

MR. LOTT: Mr. Chairman, I take this time to make one brief point. This bill is over budget, whether it be the President's budget or the first concurrent resolution on the budget passed by this House. This bill is over budget whether you look at outlays or budget authority. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Natcher) is recognized for 2½ minutes.

MR. NATCHER: . . . When we started debate on this bill, the Members will recall that I said that at the proper time we would offer an amendment to take out of this bill $74 million in budget authority. We offered the amendment, and the $74 million was taken out. That put us in line with the section 302 target for discretionary budget authority. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired. The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Lott).

The preferential motion was rejected.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. Gregg).

MR. [JOSEPH M.] GAYDOS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. GAYDOS: Mr. Chairman, I am asking the Chair whether or not I have 5 minutes to respond to the amendment as offered by the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. Gregg).

THE CHAIRMAN: All time for debate on the bill and on the pending amendment has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. Gregg). . . .

So the amendment was rejected.

MR. [DONALD J.] PEASE [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman's amendment printed in the Record?

MR. PEASE: It is, Mr. Chairman. It is amendment No. 1.

[Mr. Pease was subsequently recognized to debate the amendment.]

Parliamentarian's Note: During debate on the preferential motion, there was discussion of a prospective motion to recommit. For discussion of the distinction between a motion to recommit pending a vote on a motion to strike the enacting clause, and the motion to recommit pending final passage, see § 15, supra.

§ 23.37 Debate on a preferential motion in Committee of the Whole to strike the enacting clause, and a vote on that motion, takes precedence over remaining debate on a pending amendment on which time has been limited and allocated; thus, where a Member offers a preferential motion to strike the enacting clause in order to obtain five minutes of debate on the pending amendment on which debate has been limited and allocated, the Chair must put the question on the preferential motion immediately after debate thereon, unless unanimous consent is given to combine that debate with time remaining under the allocation on the amendment.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 25, 1986,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of H.R. 5052 (military construction appropriations for fiscal 1987):

MR. [W. G.] HEFNER [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments hereto end in 20 minutes.

8. 132 CONG. REC. 15500-502, 99th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was agreed to will be recognized for 2 minutes each. . . .

MR. [RONALD V.] DELLUMS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion.

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, I will not insist upon my motion that the Committee do now rise. I simply use this extraordinary tactic in order to gain some opportunity to speak on this terribly important matter. I think that we ought to limit debate only on issues that are noncontroversial. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. Dellums) has expired.

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, I still have 1 minute on the earlier request.

THE CHAIRMAN: The preferential motion takes preference over the 1 minute.

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, I still have 1 minute after the preferential motion is voted up or down; is that not correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. Does the gentleman desire to take that now?

MR. DELLUMS: That is my request, and then I would logically conclude my discussion, Mr. Chairman, if I may.

9. William J. Hughes (N.J.).

THE CHAIRMAN: Without objection, the gentleman may proceed for 1 additional minute, on the preferential motion, in lieu of his 1 minute allocated on the pending amendment.

There was no objection.

—Where Debate Time Has Expired

§ 23.38 The 10 minutes of debate otherwise permitted on a preferential motion to recommend that the enacting clause be stricken is not available where all time for debate under the five-minute rule on a bill and all amendments thereto has expired.

On Apr. 9, 1976,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of the military procurement authorization bill (H.R. 12438) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the remainder of the bill, title VII and all amendments thereto, close in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: All time for debate has expired. . . .

MR. [TOM] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

10. 122 CONG. REC. 10245, 10246, 10249, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

11. John Brademas (Ind.).

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Harkin moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause of H.R. 12438 be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman's motion is not debatable, in that all time has expired.

The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin).

The preferential motion was rejected.

§ 23.39 When the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on the bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain, even a preferential motion to strike the enacting clause is not debatable if offered after the expiration of time for debate.

On Aug. 1, 1984,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6028 (Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare appropriations for fiscal 1985) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ All time has expired.

MR. [WILLIAM E.] DANNEMEYER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a preferential motion at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will state the motion.

12. 130 CONG. REC. 21869, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

13. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

The Chair will first advise the gentleman that it is not debatable at this point under the unanimous-consent agreement.

MR. DANNEMEYER: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Is it not true that on behalf of this motion this Member would have 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the bill and all amendments to the bill under the unanimous-consent agreement was to end at 1:30, unless amendments had been printed in the Record.

MR. DANNEMEYER: This is not an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the bill ended at 1:30, under the unanimous-consent agreement.

MR. DANNEMEYER: Maybe this Member does not understand, but the preferential motion takes precedence over the time limitation that has been agreed to; does it not?

THE CHAIRMAN: It could be offered, but there will be no debate on the preferential motion.

MR. DANNEMEYER: This Member would have no time on behalf of it?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman would not have any time under the unanimous-consent agreement.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

The time limitation was on the bill itself; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. WALKER: The preferential motion deals with a specific motion before the House which would be my understanding, would permit the gentleman

5 minutes of time to debate his motion. That is the pattern that I have understood we have used before when time limitations have been declared. Is this a change of policy on the part of the Chair?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the precedents of the House are that when the time limit is on the entire bill, that includes all motions thereto.

MR. WALKER: So that the Chair is ruling that this motion is a part of the debate on the bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

—Priority in Recognition of Members in Opposition

§ 23.40 The Chair normally recognizes the manager of a bill for five minutes if he rises in opposition to a preferential motion that the enacting clause be stricken, and no preference in recognition is granted to the minority.

An illustration of the proposition described above occurred on Apr. 23, 1975,⁽¹⁴⁾ in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Vietnam Humanitarian Assistance Act (H.R. 6096):

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

14. 121 CONG. REC. 11505, 11506, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. O'Neill moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill) in support of his preferential motion. . . .

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill).

MR. [PIERRE S.] DU PONT [IV, of Delaware]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DU PONT: Mr. Chairman, my parliamentary inquiry is this: Does the grant of time by the Chairman to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Morgan) preclude anyone on the minority side from rising in opposition to the preferential motion and being heard?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say that that is correct.

MR. DU PONT: Under the rules, is not time designated to the minority side?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that is not a prerogative of the minority on a preferential motion of this sort.

§ 23.41 The chairman of a committee managing a bill is entitled to recognition for debate in opposition to a motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the

15. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, over the minority manager of the bill.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 28, 1983,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ When the Committee of the Whole rose on Thursday, April 21, 1983, pending was the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute which is considered as an original resolution for the purpose of amendment. All time for debate on the text of the resolution had expired.

Are there further amendments?

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR. AU COIN

MR. [LES] AuCOIN [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. AuCoin moves that the committee do now rise and report the resolution back to the House with the recommendation that the resolving clause be stricken out.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Oregon (Mr. AuCoin) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion.

16. 129 CONG. REC. 10425, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin] [Chairman of Committee on Foreign Affairs]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion and ask for a vote.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) is recognized for 5 minutes in opposition to the preferential motion.

§ 23.42 Priority of recognition in opposition to a preferential motion to recommend that the enacting clause be stricken is accorded to a member of the committee reporting the bill.

During consideration of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1976 (H.R. 10498) in the Committee of the Whole on Sept. 15, 1976,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Wright moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion. . . .

MR. [MIKE] MCCORMACK [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the motion.

18. 122 CONG. REC. 30469, 30470, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

19. J. Edward Roush (Ind.).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman on the committee?

MR. MCCORMACK: No, I am not; but I rise in opposition to the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Rogers) seek recognition? . . .

MR. MCCORMACK: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Washington will state his point of order.

MR. MCCORMACK: Mr. Chairman, there is a motion on the floor. I rise in opposition to it.

As I understand, under the rules, one Member is allowed 5 minutes to speak in opposition to a motion like this.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that what the gentleman says is absolutely true.

However, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. Rogers, a member of the committee and manager of the bill] who is on his feet, if he seeks recognition in opposition to the preferential motion.

§ 23.43 Members of the committee managing the bill have priority of recognition for debate in opposition to a preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on May 5, 1988,⁽²⁰⁾ during

20. 134 CONG. REC. 9955, 100th Cong. 2d Sess.

consideration of the Department of Defense authorization for fiscal 1989 (H.R. 4264):

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Does any Member desire to rise in opposition to the preferential motion? Members of the committee have priority.

MR. [JOHN G.] ROWLAND of Connecticut: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Connecticut is recognized for 5 minutes.

—Motion Not Affected by Special Rule Prohibiting Pro Forma Amendments

§ 23.44 A special rule governing consideration of a bill in Committee of the Whole which prohibits the Chair from entertaining pro forma amendments for the purpose of debate does not preclude the offering of a preferential motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, since that motion is not a pro forma amendment and must be voted on (or withdrawn by unanimous consent).

On May 4, 1983,⁽²⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under

1. Kenneth J. Gray (Ill.).

2. 129 CONG. REC. 11072, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

consideration House Joint Resolution 13, calling for a freeze and reduction in nuclear weapons. House Joint Resolution 13 was being considered pursuant to a special rule agreed to on Mar. 16,⁽³⁾ and a special rule providing for additional procedures for consideration, including the prohibition of pro forma amendments offered for purposes of obtaining debate time, agreed to on May 4.⁽⁴⁾ A preferential motion was offered:

MR. [ELLIOTT H.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Levitas moves that the Committee rise and report the resolution back to the House with the recommendation that the resolving clause be stricken.

MR. [THOMAS J.] DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, my understanding of the rule is that there is a provision in the rule that prohibits motions of this sort for the purpose of debate time. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman it only prohibits pro forma amendments, not preferential motions such as the gentleman has offered.

3. H. Res. 138, 129 CONG. REC. 5666, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

Motions To Recommit, Commit, or Refer

§ 23.45 In recognizing Members to move to recommit, the Speaker gives preference first to the ranking minority member of the committee reporting the bill, if opposed to the bill, and then to the remaining minority members of that committee in the order of their rank.

On June 18, 1957,⁽⁶⁾ the House was considering H.R. 6127, the Civil Rights Act of 1957. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the order of recognition for a motion to recommit would be in the order of rank of minority members of the committee reporting the bill, the Committee on the Judiciary. When two minority members of the committee arose to offer the motion, the Speaker recognized the member higher in rank:

MR. [JOSEPH W.] MARTIN [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, on a motion to recommit, for over 20 years it has been the custom for the minority leader to select the Member who shall make that motion. The leader has selected a member of the committee who is absolutely opposed to the bill. My parliamentary inquiry is, does he have preference over someone who would move to recommit with instructions but who at the same time would not vote for the bill even if the motion to recommit should prevail? So I propound the inquiry whether a gentleman who is absolutely opposed to the bill, who led the fight for the jury trial amendment in the committee, would have preference over someone who would not vote for the bill even in the event a motion to recommit prevailed.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair in answer to that will ask the Clerk to read the holding of Mr. Speaker Champ Clark, which is found in volume 8 of Cannon's Precedents of the House of Representatives, section 2767.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Chair laid down this rule, from which he never intends to depart unless overruled by the House, that on a motion to recommit he will give preference to the gentleman at the head of the minority list, provided he qualifies, and then go down the list of the minority of the committee until it is gotten through with. And then if no one of them offer a motion to recommit the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Murdock], as the leader of the third party in the House. Of course he would have to qualify. The Chair will state it again. The present occupant of the chair laid down a rule here about a year ago that in making this preferential motion for recommitment the Speaker would recognize the top man on the minority of the committee if he qualified—that is, if he says he is opposed to the bill—and so on down to the end of the minority list of the committee.

6. 103 CONG. REC. 9516, 9517, 85th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. MARTIN: Will the Clerk continue the reading of the section? I think there is a little more to it than that.

THE SPEAKER: If the gentleman desires, the Clerk will read the entire quotation. The Clerk will continue to read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Then, if no gentleman on the committee wants to make the motion, the Speaker will recognize the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. Mann, because he is the leader of the minority. Then, in the next place, the Speaker would recognize the gentleman from Kansas, Mr. Murdock. But in this case, the gentleman from Kansas, Mr. Murdock, is on the Ways and Means Committee, which would bring him in ahead, under that rule, of the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. Mann.

MR. MARTIN: The Chair does not think that preference should be given to an individual who was going to make a motion to recommit and who was absolutely opposed to the bill?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is not qualified to answer a question like that. The Chair in response to the parliamentary inquiry of the gentleman from Massachusetts will say that the decision made by Mr. Speaker Champ Clark has never been overturned, and it has been upheld by 1 or 2 Speakers since that time, especially by Mr. Speaker Garner in 1932.

In looking over this list, the Chair has gone down the list and will make the decision when someone arises to make a motion to recommit. The Chair does not know entirely who is going to seek recognition.

MR. [RICHARD H.] POFF [of Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. POFF: I am, Mr. Speaker.

MR. [RUSSELL W.] KEENEY [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I also offer a motion to recommit, and I, too, am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: In this instance the Chair finds that no one has arisen who is a member of the minority of the Committee on the Judiciary until it comes down to the name of the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Poff]. He ranks the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Keeney] and is therefore senior. Under the rules and precedents of the House, the Chair therefore must recognize the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Poff].⁽⁷⁾

§ 23.46 In response to a parliamentary inquiry the Speaker stated that recognition to offer a motion to recommit is the prerogative of a Member opposed to the bill, that the Speaker will first look to minority members of the committee reporting the bill in their order of seniority on the committee, second to other Members of the minor-

7. Where recognition is required by rule or precedent to pass to the opposition, the Speaker inquires whether the Member seeking recognition is opposed in fact to the measure or motion. For general discussion of rights to recognition of the opposition after rejection of an essential motion, see §15, supra. For full treatment of recognition for the motion to recommit, see Ch. 23, supra.

ity and finally to majority Members opposed to the bill; thus, a minority Member opposed to a bill but not on the committee reporting it is entitled to recognition to offer a motion to recommit over a majority Member who is also a member of the committee.

On July 10, 1975,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8365 (Department of Transportation appropriations) in the House, the Speaker put the question on passage of the bill and then recognized Mr. William A. Steiger, of Wisconsin, a minority Member, to offer a motion to recommit. The proceedings were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁹⁾ The question is on the passage of the bill.

MR. STEIGER of Wisconsin: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. STEIGER of Wisconsin: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman qualifies. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not a member of the Committee on Appropriations. As I understand the rule, a member of the Committee on Appropriations must offer a motion to recommit.

The gentleman who offered the motion is not on the Committee on Appropriations.

THE SPEAKER: A member of the minority has priority over all the members of the majority, regardless of whether he is on the committee.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, may I continue with my statement on the point of order.

THE SPEAKER: You may.

MR. YATES: "Cannon's Precedents" states, Mr. Speaker, that if a motion is offered by a person other than a member of the committee, a member of the committee takes precedence in offering a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: A motion to recommit is the prerogative of the minority, and the Chair so rules and so answers the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, may I refer the attention of the Chair to page 311.

I am quoting from page 311 of "Cannon's Precedents."

A member of the committee reporting the measure and opposed to it is entitled to recognition to move to recommit over one not a member of the committee but otherwise qualified.

And, Mr. Speaker, it cites volume 8, page 2768.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair desires to call the attention of the gentleman on the question of the motion to "Deschler's Procedure" chapter 23, section 13. It provides that in recognizing Members who move to recommit, the Speaker gives preference to the minority Member, and these recent precedents are consistent with the one cited by the gentleman from Illinois.

8. 121 CONG. REC. 22014, 22015, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

9. Carl Albert (Okla.).

What the gentleman is saying is that because he is a member of the Committee on Appropriations, he is so entitled. The Chair has not gone over all the precedents, but the Chair can do it if the gentleman desires him to do so.

The rule is not only that a member of the minority on the Committee on Appropriations has preference over a majority member, but any Member from the minority is recognized by the Speaker over any Member of the majority, regardless of committee membership.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, if the Speaker will permit me to continue—

THE SPEAKER: The only exception is when no Member of the minority seeks to make a motion to recommit.

MR. YATES: Mr. Speaker, in that respect may I say that "Cannon's Precedents" is clear on that point; that where none of those speaking, seeking recognition, are members of the committee and otherwise equally qualified, the Speaker recognizes the Member from the minority over the majority.

But the point is, Mr. Speaker, that I am a member of the committee where the gentleman offering the motion to recommit on the minority side is not a member of the committee.

I suggest, therefore, that under the precedents, I should be recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that in order that there can be no mistake the Chair will ask the Clerk to read the following passage from the rules and manual of the House.

The Clerk read as follows (from section 788):

Recognition to offer the motion to recommit, whether in its simple form or with instructions, is the prerogative of a Member who is opposed to the bill (Speaker Martin, Mar. 29, 1954, p. 3692); and the Speaker looks first to minority members of the committee reporting the bill, in order of their rank on the committee (Speaker Garner, Jan. 6, 1932, p. 1396; Speaker Byrns, July 2, 1935, p. 10638), then to other Members on the minority side (Speaker Rayburn, Aug. 16, 1950, p. 12608). If no Member of the minority qualifies, a majority Member who is opposed to the bill may be recognized (Speaker Garner, Apr. 1, 1932, p. 7327).

THE SPEAKER: The Chair states that that definitely settles the question, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin to offer the motion to recommit.

The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steiger of Wisconsin moves to recommit the bill H.R. 8365 to the Committee on Appropriations.

§ 23.47 A minority member of a committee reporting a bill is entitled to recognition to offer a motion to recommit, if opposed to the bill, over a minority Member not on the committee, although the Speaker may have failed to notice the committee member seeking recognition at the time the noncommittee Member sought to offer a motion but before it was reported by the Clerk.

During consideration of the Department of Agriculture appropriation bill for fiscal 1976 (H.R. 8561) in the House on July 14, 1975,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹¹⁾ Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. ROUSSELOT: Yes, I am, Mr. Speaker.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT OFFERED BY MR. MICHEL

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Illinois is the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, I believe I was recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair did not see the gentleman from Illinois.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I was on my feet and I was standing right here. I had the motion at the desk. I was just standing here as a matter of courtesy.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair was at fault in that the Chair did not see the gentleman from Illinois because the gentleman from California was addressing the Chair and the Chair was looking in that direction.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

MR. ROUSSELOT: Mr. Speaker, I believe I was recognized and the Clerk was proceeding with the motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair did not see the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) who was entitled to recognition being the senior member on the Committee on Appropriations and entitled to recognition, and the motion to recommit had not been reported by the Clerk.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

§ 23.48 Until a Member desiring to offer a motion to recommit has had his motion read by the Clerk, he is not entitled to the floor so as to prevent another Member from seeking recognition to offer another recommittal motion.

During consideration of the State Department authorization bill (H.R. 3303) in the House on Apr. 24, 1979,⁽¹²⁾ it was demonstrated that the fact that the Chair has inquired of a Member seeking recognition to offer a motion to recommit whether he qualifies as being opposed to the bill does not confer recognition on that Member, where the Chair has not directed the Clerk to report the motion. The proceedings were as follows:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹³⁾ The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

10. 121 CONG. REC. 22620, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

11. Carl Albert (Okla.).

12. 125 CONG. REC. 8360, 8361, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

13. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the passage of the bill.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is aware that the gentleman is standing and the Chair intends to recognize the gentleman. . . .

Is there any member of the committee that desires to make a motion to recommit on the minority side? . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I have a motion at the desk.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the bill.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will—

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I was recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair under the precedents of the House, will recognize the gentleman from Michigan to make a motion if he qualifies. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, had not the Speaker said to the gentleman from Maryland, "Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?"

And the gentleman from Maryland was thus recognized.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair appreciates that the gentleman is opposed to the bill; but under the precedents of the House, the Clerk has not reported the motion. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: I make a point of order against recognizing the gentleman from Michigan or anyone else, because he did not rise in a timely fashion to make the motion. Once the Chair recognizes a Member, the precedents will support the fact that he has the right to offer the motion.

THE SPEAKER: On the point of order, the gentleman's motion has not been read yet; so the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Michigan, a senior member of the committee, who is standing. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM S.] BROOMFIELD [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. BROOMFIELD: Yes, I am, Mr. Speaker. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Broomfield moves to recommit the bill, H.R. 3363, to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman makes a point of order that the gentleman is not in order in making the motion, since another Member had already been recognized. The Chair has already conferred that recognition and had inquired whether or not the gentleman from Maryland was opposed.

THE SPEAKER: In the opinion of the Chair, until the motion has been read, the gentleman has not been recognized for that purpose.

MR. BAUMAN: Well, the gentleman did not yield to anyone else to offer a motion.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman had not been recognized for that purpose and consequently—the Chair asked the gentleman if he was in opposition. The gentleman replied. The gentleman was not then recognized for that purpose.

That is the statement and the opinion of the Chair. The Chair did not recognize the gentleman by directing the Clerk to report the motion. The Chair is trying to follow the precedents of the House.

Now, the Chair has ruled on the gentleman's point of order and the gentleman from Michigan is entitled to 5 minutes. The Chair so recognizes the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield).

§ 23.49 The ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations, who had voted in favor of the passage of a continuing appropriations bill after having stated his opposition to the bill in order to obtain recognition to offer an unsuccessful motion to recommit (without instructions), addressed the House on a following day to explain and to apologize for his failure to vote against the bill.

On Sept. 25, 1979,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 404 (continuing appropriations) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁵⁾ The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

14. 125 CONG. REC. 26152, 26153, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

15. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman qualify?

MR. CONTE: I do, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Conte moves to recommit the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 404) to the Committee on Appropriations.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion to recommit.

The motion to recommit was rejected.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the passage of the joint resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [GERALD B.] SOLOMON [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 208, noes 203, not voting 23, as follows: . . .

On Sept. 28, 1979,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Conte was recognized to make the following statement:

(Mr. Conte asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

16. 125 CONG. REC. 26810, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. CONTE: Mr. Speaker, on Tuesday, September 25, 1979, when the House considered House Joint Resolution 404, the fiscal year 1980 continuing resolution . . . I voted "aye." . . .

However, I should have voted "nay."

As the record of debate shows, I offered a motion to recommit House Joint Resolution 404 to the Committee on Appropriations.

The Speaker asked me if I qualified to offer the motion. As the ranking member of the Appropriations Committee I assumed I was qualified and so stated.

Upon further reflection and counseling with my friends and colleagues, I came to realize that the honorable, if not the technical, duty of a Member offering a motion to recommit is to vote against the bill on final passage.

Thus, I wish to take this occasion to apologize to the House for my error in not adhering to the strong expectation that an author of an unsuccessful motion to recommit will in turn vote "nay" on final passage.

§ 23.50 The previous question having been ordered on a simple resolution in the House, a motion to recommit with or without instructions is in order; it must be offered by a Member who is opposed to the resolution, and is not debatable.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on June 10, 1980:⁽¹⁷⁾

17. 126 CONG. REC. 13801, 13819, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁸⁾ The unfinished business is the further consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 660) in the matter of Representative Charles H. Wilson.

The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

Resolved,

(1) That Representative Charles H. Wilson be censured;

(2) That Representative Charles H. Wilson be denied the chair on any committee or subcommittee of the House of Representatives

MR. [CHARLES E.] BENNETT [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution, as amended.

The previous question was ordered.

MR. [PAUL N.] McCLOSKEY [Jr., of California]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the resolution?

MR. McCLOSKEY: Yes I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman qualifies.

The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. McCloskey moves to recommit the resolution (H. Res. 660) to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct with instructions to report the same to the House forthwith with the following amendment. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion to recommit offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. McCloskey). . . .

18. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 97, nays 308, answered “present” 4, not voting 24. . . .

§ 23.51 Where there was pending in the House under the hour rule a resolution and a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, the Chair indicated that an amendment to the committee amendment could be offered only if the manager yielded for that purpose or if the previous question were rejected, and that a motion to recommit with instructions containing a direct amendment could not be offered if the committee substitute were adopted (since it is not in order to further amend a measure already amended in its entirety).

On Mar. 22, 1983,⁽¹⁹⁾ after House Resolution 127 was called up for consideration in the House, Speaker Pro Tempore John F. Seiberling, of Ohio, responded to several parliamentary inquiries, as indicated below:

MR. [FRANK] ANNUNZIO [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on House Administration, I call up a privileged resolution (H. Res.

127), providing amounts from the contingent fund of the House for expenses of investigations and studies by standing and select committees of the House in the 1st session of the 98th Congress.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 127

Resolved, That there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House in accordance with this primary expense resolution not more than the amount specified in section 2 for investigations and studies by each committee named in such section

Committee amendment in the nature of a substitute: Strike out all after the resolving clause and insert: That there shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House in accordance with this primary expense resolution not more than the amount specified in section 2 for investigations and studies by each committee named in such section

Sec. 2. The committees and amounts referred to in the first section are: Select Committee on Aging, $1,316,057; Committee on Agriculture, $1,322,669; Committee on Armed Services, $1,212,273

MR. [WILLIAM E.] DANNEMEYER [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

If this Member from California would now offer an amendment to the total in this resolution . . . would that amendment now be in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would rule that the amendment would be in order if the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Annunzio) would yield to the gentleman from California

19. 129 CONG. REC. 6447, 6448, 6455, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. DANNEMEYER . . . What if we were successful in defeating the previous question with respect to this issue? If we did, would an amendment to reduce spending consistent with what I stated previously then be in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would advise the gentleman if the previous question were defeated a germane amendment to the committee amendment would be in order at that time. . . .

MR. DANNEMEYER: I have a further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

We have a motion to commit which is available at the conclusion of a matter of this type. Is the procedure under which this process is now considered by the floor such that the motion to commit can be used with instructions to reduce spending by a certain amount or is it a motion to recommit without instructions?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: If the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute is agreed to no further direct amendment could be made by a motion to recommit.

§ 23.52 The ten minutes of debate permitted on a motion to recommit with instructions by clause 4 of Rule XVI applies only to a bill or joint resolution and not to a simple resolution.

During consideration of House Resolution 1097 (relating to investigative funds for the Committee on the Judiciary) in the House on Mar. 29, 1976,⁽²⁰⁾ a motion to recommit was offered, as follows:

20. 122 CONG. REC. 8444, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁾ Is the gentleman opposed to the resolution?

MR. ASHBROOK: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Ashbrook moves that House Resolution 1097 be recommitted to the Committee on House Administration with instructions that said committee forthwith report back to the House said resolution with the following amendment, to wit: on page 2, line 11 of the resolution add the following new sentence: "Not to exceed $300,000 of the total amount provided by this resolution shall be used to carry out activities within the jurisdiction of the Committee on the Judiciary under the provisions of rule X, clause (M) (19) of the Rules of the House of Representatives.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Speaker, may I be recognized for 5 minutes?

THE SPEAKER: The rule regarding debate does not apply to a motion to recommit a resolution.

The question is on the motion to recommit.

§ 23.53 The Speaker has taken the floor to be recognized for five minutes pursuant to clause 4 of Rule XVI in opposition to a motion to recommit a bill with instructions.

On Dec. 18, 1979,⁽²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 5860 (authorizing loan guarantees to the Chrysler Corporation) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

2. 125 CONG. REC. 36838, 36840, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [J. WILLIAM] STANTON [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

MR. STANTON: I am, Mr. Speaker, in its present form.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Stanton moves to recommit the bill H.R. 5860 to the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs with instructions to report back the same forthwith with the following amendment: On page 23, after line 18, add the following new section: . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit. . . .

Today I rise as Tip O'Neill, the Congressman, not as a Democrat or a Republican, just as a fellow that has been in public life for 43 years. I have seen recessions and depressions, upturns and downturns. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion to recommit.

commit a concurrent resolution after the previous question has been ordered, pursuant to clause 1 of Rule XVII, must qualify by being opposed to the resolution (whether or not the concurrent resolution has been reported from committee).

On Nov. 28, 1979,⁽⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House during consideration of the second concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1980 (S. Con. Res. 53):

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ Pursuant to the order of the House of November 27, the previous question is considered as having been ordered.

MR. [DELBERT L.] LATTA [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is the gentleman opposed to the concurrent resolution?

MR. LATTA: I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the motion to commit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Latta moves to commit Senate Concurrent Resolution 53 to the Committee on the Budget with the following instructions: For fiscal year 1980, after excluding the National Defense and Veterans Affairs functions, reduce the remaining total amount of new budget authority and total amount of outlays by two percent The Committee on the Budget is further instructed to report S. Con. Res. 53 back to the House promptly with these changes.

5. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

§ 23.55 Where the previous question had been ordered on a privileged resolution electing minority Members to committees, a minority Member offered a motion to commit the resolution to a select committee to be appointed by the Speaker with instructions to report back forthwith with an amendment increasing the number of minority Members on the Committee on Ways and Means by two.

On Jan. 28, 1981,⁽⁶⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 45 (electing minority Members to standing committees) in the House, Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, of Illinois, offered the resolution and the proceedings that followed were as indicated below:

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 45), and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 45

Resolution designating membership on certain standing committees of the House

Resolved, That the following named Members, Delegates, and

6. 127 CONG. REC. 1142, 1144, 1146, 197th Cong. 1st Sess.

Resident Commissioner be, and they are hereby, elected to the following standing committees of the House of Representatives:

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁷⁾ The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume. . . .

I have no more requests for time, Mr. Speaker, but before moving the previous question, I would simply advise the membership of the House that the parliamentary situation is such that the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Lott), after the previous question has been ordered, will move to commit. That is a nondebatable motion, and there will be a vote immediately following which will give Members an opportunity to express themselves on the substitute which is embodied in the gentleman's motion.

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to commit.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Clerk will report the motion to commit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Lott moves to commit the resolution (H. Res. 45) to a select committee to be appointed by the Speaker and to be composed of nine members not more than five of whom shall be from the same political party, with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendment:

7. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

The following named Members . . . be, and they are hereby, elected to the following standing committees of the House of Representatives:

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS . . .

[T]he motion to commit was rejected.

Parliamentarian's Note: The motion to commit under clause 1 of Rule XVII is applicable to simple resolutions and may create a select committee with instructions to report back forthwith with a germane amendment. The Member offering the motion need not qualify as opposed where the resolution is offered from the floor as privileged and has not been reported from committee, and the minority party has no prior right to recognition in such a situation. As noted by Mr. Michel, a motion to commit is not debatable after the previous question has been ordered on a resolution, but is amendable unless the previous question is separately ordered thereon.

§ 23.56 It is the prerogative of the minority, prior to adoption of the rules, to offer a motion to commit the resolution adopting the rules; and instances have occurred where, the previous question having been ordered on a resolution adopting the rules of the House, the Minority Leader has offered a motion to commit the resolution to a select committee with instructions to report back to the House within a specified number of days with an amendment.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Jan. 3, 1983: ⁽⁸⁾

RULES OF THE HOUSE

THE SPEAKER: ⁽⁹⁾ The question is on ordering the previous question. . . .

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 249, nays 156, answered “present” 1, not voting 12, as follows: . . .

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to commit.

THE SPEAKER: Is the gentleman opposed to the resolution?

MR. MICHEL: Indeed I am, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The Clerk will report the motion to commit.

The Clerk read as follows:

8. 129 CONG. REC. 49–51, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
9. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Mr. Michel moves to commit the resolution, House Resolution 5, to a select committee to be appointed by the Speaker and to be composed of ten members, not more than six of whom shall be from the same political party, with instructions to report the same back to the House within two legislative days with only the following amendment: Strike clause "(5)" relating to restrictions on the offering of certain amendments to appropriations bills, and redesignate succeeding clauses accordingly. . . .

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to commit.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion to commit. . . .

So the motion to commit was rejected.

Similarly, in the 97th Congress,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Minority Leader offered a motion to commit the resolution to a select committee with instructions to report back to the House within seven calendar days with an amendment:

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to commit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Michel moves to commit the resolution (H. Res. 5) to a select committee to be appointed by the Speaker and to be composed of nine members, not more than five of whom shall be from the same political party, with instructions to report the same back to the House within 7 calendar days with the following amendment:

10. 127 CONG. REC. 98, 111-13, 97th Cong. 1st Sess., Jan. 5, 1981.

On page 10, after line 8, add the following:

(19) In rule X, clause 6(a) is amended by adding the following new subparagraph:

"(3) The membership of each committee (and of each subcommittee, task force or subunit thereof), shall reflect the ratio of majority to minority party members of the House at the beginning of this Congress. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to commit.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion to commit. . . .

So the motion to commit was rejected.

Parliamentarian's Note: On the opening day of the 63d Congress, a motion to commit the resolution adopting the rules to a select committee with instructions "to report back to the House a substitute therefor, together with the views and recommendations of the select committee, in substance as follows . . ." was held in order by Speaker Champ Clark.⁽¹²⁾ At the beginning of the 65th Congress, the motion to commit with instructions to report back forthwith with an amendment to the rules was offered and not challenged.⁽¹³⁾

11. Bill Alexander (Ark.).

12. See 8 Cannon's Precedents §2755.

13. See also the proceedings of Dec. 6, 1915, at the beginning of the 64th Congress.

Under modern practice, the motion to commit should not include instructions to report “forthwith” a rules change which would be immediately effective, particularly since the view is now held that, prior to adoption of the rules, a resolution to adopt the rules is not subject to amendment unless the previous question is voted down or the Member in control yields for that purpose.⁽¹⁴⁾ Generally, the defeat of the previous question is considered the only method by which the minority may offer an amendment to the rules proposed by the majority, although the question may depend upon the extent to which the Chair would rely upon House rules (such as Rule XVII, permitting the motion to commit with instructions to report back forthwith with an amendment) prior to adoption of the rules. It should also be noted that where a Member of the minority offers a motion to commit the resolution adopting the rules, such Member need not qualify as opposed to the resolution.⁽¹⁵⁾ bill or joint resolution (previously referred to committee) under clause 4 of Rule XVI is the prerogative of the minority party if opposed to the bill, recognition to offer a motion to refer under clause 1 of Rule XVII after the previous question has been moved or ordered on a resolution (not previously referred to committee) does not depend on party affiliation or upon opposition to the resolution.

During consideration of House Resolution 1042 (directing the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate the unauthorized publication of the report of the Select Committee on Intelligence) in the House on Feb. 19, 1976,⁽¹⁶⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: I rise to a question involving the privileges of the House, and I offer a privileged resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

16. 122 CONG. REC. 3914–21, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

H. RES. 1042

Resolution requiring that the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct inquire into the circumstances leading to the public publication of a report containing classified material prepared by the House Select Committee on Intelligence

Whereas the February 16, 1976, issue of the Village Voice, a New York City newspaper, contains the partial text of a report or a preliminary report prepared by the Select Committee on Intelligence of the House, pursuant to H. Res. 591, which relates to the foreign activities of the intelligence agencies of the United States and which contains sensitive classified information . . . Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct be and it is hereby authorized and directed to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the publication of the text and of any part of the report of the Select Committee on Intelligence, and to report back to the House in a timely fashion its findings and recommendations thereon.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ The gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

MR. STRATTON: I yield for the purposes of debate only to the distinguished majority leader, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill). . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, some of the Members have been curious as to why the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) has the floor at this time and why the resolution is privileged.

It is privileged because he believes that the rules of the House and the processes of the integrity of the House have been transgressed.

I believe that Mr. Stratton's motion to usurp the normal procedure is transgressing on the rights of all our membership here, and especially the rights of the members of the Rules Committee which normally would have jurisdiction over this issue. We should demand the normal course. We should not just say, "Here, we will send this to the Ethics Committee and the Ethics Committee will make an investigation, because we are going to bypass the Committee on Rules." That is exactly what Mr. Stratton desires. I want the Members to know that when the time comes, after the hour provided to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton) is over, and after that gentleman has moved the previous question, that I will rise, and I will expect that the Speaker will recognize me and I will then move, at that time, that, pursuant to clause 1 of rule XVII, that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Rules. . . .

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time and I move the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to rule XVII, clause 1, I move to refer the resolution to the Committee on Rules.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Maryland will state the point of order.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the gentleman's motion comes too late. The Chair has already put the previous question and it has been moved.

17. Carl Albert (Okla.).

THE SPEAKER: The motion to refer a resolution is in order after the previous question is ordered under clause 1, rule XVII. . . .

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Massachusetts, the distinguished majority leader, has offered, in effect, a motion to recommit the original resolution. Is it not true that under the practices and procedures of this House one who is opposed to the motion and who is on the minority side of the aisle is entitled to control of the motion to recommit? Would I not be entitled to preference over the gentleman from Massachusetts in offering a motion to recommit which is, in effect, what the gentleman from Massachusetts has offered?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is referring to the procedure under rule XVI. In this rather unique situation, the resolution has not been before a committee and the House technically cannot recommit a resolution that has never been previously referred to committee. This is a motion to commit or refer under rule XVII and not a motion to recommit under clause 4, rule XVI.⁽¹⁸⁾

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

The question this gentleman would like to put is when a question of privilege is before the House, is a motion to refer which would, in effect, avoid a final vote on the question of privilege, in order prior to a vote on the question of privilege itself?

THE SPEAKER: It is. The remedy of the House is to vote down, if the House is in opposition, to vote down the motion of the gentleman from Massachusetts.

The question is on the motion to refer offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill).

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 172, nays 219, answered “present” 2, not voting 39, as follows: . . .

So the motion was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Parliamentarian's Note: If the Majority Leader had offered the motion to refer under clause 1 of Rule XVII when the previous question was moved but before it was ordered, the motion to refer would itself have been debatable as well as amendable.

Under Rule XXIII, clause 7,⁽¹⁹⁾ when a bill is reported from the Committee of the Whole with an adverse recommendation, a motion to refer the bill to any committee with or without instructions is in order pending a vote on the motion to strike the enacting clause in the House.

Right of recognition to offer a motion to recommit pending final passage, which is the prerogative of the minority if opposed, should be distinguished from the right of recognition for a motion to refer under Rule XXIII clause 7 pending a vote in the House on a motion to strike out the enacting clause. In the latter case, a Member seeking recognition need not be opposed to the bill, since the motion to refer in this case is a measure designed to avert final adverse disposition of the bill. As stated by Speaker Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts, on May 19, 1924 (see 8 Cannon's Precedents §2629), "apparently the provision for a motion to refer was inserted so that the friends of the original bill might avert its permanent death by referring it again to the committee, where it could again be considered in the light of the action of the House." By the same reasoning, Speaker Gillett pointed out, rejection of the motion to refer should not give the right of recognition to sponsors of the bill, but to one supporting the motion to strike the enacting clause.

§ 23.58 A motion to refer (where the previous question has not been ordered on the pending proposition) is debatable for one hour, controlled by the Member offering the motion.

During consideration of House Resolution 142 (to expel Charles C. Diggs, Jr.) in the House on Mar. 1, 1979,⁽²⁰⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of the privileges of the House, and I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 142) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H.R. 142

Resolved, That Charles C. Diggs, Jr., a Representative from the Thirtieth District of Michigan, is hereby expelled from the House of Representatives.

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion. The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Wright moves to refer House Resolution 142 to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁾ The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright) is recognized for 1 hour.

§ 23.59 Pursuant to clause 4 of Rule XVI, a motion to refer takes precedence over a motion to amend and the Chair recognizes the Member seeking to offer the preferential motion before the less preferential motion is read.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Aug. 13,

20. 125 CONG. REC. 3746, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

1. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

1982,⁽²⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 560 (waiving certain points of order against H.R. 6957, Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1983). The previous question having been rejected, an amendment to the resolution was offered, then ruled out of order as not germane.

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, in view of the ruling of the Chair,⁽³⁾ I have a substitute rule at the desk.

MR. [LEO C.] ZEFERETTI [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

MR. LOTT: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. LOTT: Mr. Speaker, should not the substitute rule be read first, before the preferential motion?

THE SPEAKER: A preferential motion to refer takes precedence over the motion to amend, as ascertained by the Chair's inquiry "for what purpose did the gentleman rise?"

The Clerk will report the preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Zeferetti moves to refer House Resolution 560 to the Committee on Rules.

2. 128 CONG. REC. 20977, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.
3. An amendment in the nature of a substitute previously offered by Mr. Lott was ruled out of order as not germane.
4. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

§ 23.60 The motion to refer a resolution offered as a question of the privileges of the House, which is in order pending the demand for the previous question or after the previous question is ordered, is not subject to debate; and a Member offering the motion need not qualify as stating his opposition to the resolution since it has not been reported from committee but has been offered as an original proposition on the floor of the House.

On Apr. 28, 1983,⁽⁵⁾ the House had under consideration a resolution,⁽⁶⁾ presented as a question of the privileges of the House, of refusal to comply with a subpoena duces tecum issued by a U.S. District Court served on the Clerk for the production of records in his custody (documents of a select committee from a prior Congress).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁷⁾ The gentleman from Washington (Mr. Foley) is recognized for 1 hour. . . .

[After debate:]

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington]: . . . Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

5. 129 CONG. REC. 10417, 10423, 10424, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
6. H. Res. 176, concerning privileges of the House related to investigative records of the Select Committee on Aging.
7. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

MR. [F. JAMES] SENSENBRENNER [Jr., of Wisconsin]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to refer.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Sensenbrenner moves to refer the resolution to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to refer.

There was no objection.

[The motion to refer was rejected, the previous question was ordered, the resolution agreed to.]

§ 23.61 When a resolution is offered as a question of privilege and is debatable under the hour rule, a motion to refer is in order before debate begins and is debatable for one hour under the control of the offeror of the motion.

On Mar. 4, 1985,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 97 (to seat Richard D. McIntyre as a Member from Indiana) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege.

Mr. Speaker, I send to the desk a privileged resolution (H. Res. 97) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

8. 131 CONG. REC. 4277, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

H. RES. 97

Whereas a certificate of election to the House of Representatives always carries with it the presumption that the State election procedures have been timely, regular, and fairly implemented; and . . .

Whereas the presumption of the validity and regularity of the certificate of election held by Richard D. McIntyre has not been overcome by any substantial evidence or claim of irregularity: Now, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker is hereby authorized and directed to administer the oath of office to the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Richard D. McIntyre.

Resolved, That the question of the final right of Mr. McIntyre to a seat in the 99th Congress is referred to the Committee on House Administration.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: ⁽⁹⁾ The gentleman states a valid question of privilege.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Alexander).

MR. [WILLIAM V.] ALEXANDER [of Arkansas]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the resolution be referred to the Committee on House Administration.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is recognized.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, for what period of time am I recognized?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is entitled to 1 hour under that motion, during which time the gentleman from Arkansas controls the time.

9. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, does the minority wish time on the motion?

MR. MICHEL: Yes.

MR. ALEXANDER: Mr. Speaker, I would yield 30 minutes for purposes of debate only, to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

Motions To Instruct Conferees

§ 23.62 A member of the minority is first entitled to recognition for a motion to instruct conferees, on a bill being sent to conference, other factors influencing recognition being equal.

On Oct. 31, 1939,⁽¹⁰⁾ a resolution asking for a conference on a bill with Senate amendments was offered and agreed to. Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, the ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, with jurisdiction over the bill, and Mr. James A. Shanley, of Connecticut, a majority member of the committee, arose simultaneously to offer a motion to instruct the conferees on the bill.

Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that Mr. Fish was entitled to prior recognition for the motion if he so desired.⁽¹¹⁾
