§ 70.9 On one occasion, a Member was allowed by unanimous consent to speak out of order during the call of the Private Calendar.

On Aug. 30, 1960,⁽⁵⁾ during the call of the Private Calendar, S. 3429, to award a gold medal to Robert Frost, was called up and Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, moved to strike out the last word. Speaker Pro Tempore Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, ruled that he could not be recognized for that purpose. Mr. Hoffman then asked unanimous consent to speak out of order. There was no objection, and Mr. Hoffman was recognized to deliver some remarks on the bill.

§ 70.10 Omnibus private bills are considered under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, and the Chair does not recognize for extensions of time.

On Mar. 17, 1936,⁽⁶⁾ the House as in the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment 74th Cong. 1st Sess., May 7, 1935, for the prohibition against unanimous-consent requests to make statements.

omnibus private bills under the five-minute rule. Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, refused to recognize a Member for an extension of time:

The time of the gentleman from Minnesota has expired.

MR. [THEODORE] CHRISTIANSON [of Minnesota]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 5 additional minutes.

THE SPEAKER: On the previous section of this bill the Chair put a unanimous-consent request for an extension of time. The attention of the Chair has since been called to a ruling by the author of the present Private Calendar rule, who was presiding at the last session on this calendar. This rule was proposed for the purpose of expediting business. Upon reflection, the Chair does not think he should recognize Members for the purpose of requesting an extension of time.

—Motion To Strike Enacting Clause

§ 70.11 A motion to strike out the enacting clause is in order during the consideration of omnibus private bills and is debatable under the five-minute rule, for two five-minute speeches.

On Mar. 17, 1936,⁽⁷⁾ during the consideration of an omnibus private bill in the House as in the

7. 80 CONG. REC. 3894, 3895, 74th Cong. 2d Sess.

Committee of the Whole, Mr. Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, moved to strike out the enacting clause. Mr. Fred Biermann, of Iowa, made a point of order against the offering of the motion, on the ground that only certain amendments and no pro forma amendments could be offered to omnibus private bills (under Rule XXIV clause 6). Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ruled as follows:

The motion to strike out the enacting clause is not an amendment in the sense contemplated by the rule. The Chair is of the opinion that the motion is in order and the gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

The Chair also read Rule XXIII clause 7, describing the motion to strike the enacting clause, as support for his ruling.

Nonamendable Proposition Being Considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole by Unanimous Consent

§ 70.12 While a joint resolution called up under the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act is not subject to substantive amendment under section 8(d)(5)(B) of that Act, pro forma amendments for the purpose of debate under the five-minute rule are permitted where the resolution is being considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole by unanimous consent.

During proceedings on Nov. 2, 1977,⁽⁸⁾ the Speaker Pro Tempore⁽⁹⁾ responded to inquiries concerning conditions under which Members would be recognized during consideration of House Joint Resolution 621, approving a presidential decision with regard to an Alaska natural gas transportation system. The Chair noted, in the course of responding to inquiries, that, while debate in the House as in the Committee of the Whole proceeds under the five-minute rule, a Member who has already been recognized for five minutes may be recognized again by unanimous consent only.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The unfinished business of the House is the further consideration of the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 621) approving the Presidential decision on an Alaska natural gas transportation system, and for other purposes, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

Without objection, the Clerk will again report the joint resolution.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

H.J. RES. 621

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United

8. 123 CONG. REC. 36613, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

States of America in Congress assembled, That the House of Representatives and Senate approve the Presidential decision on an Alaska natural gas transportation system submitted to the Congress on September 22, 1977, and find that any environmental impact statements prepared relative to such system and submitted with the President's decision are in compliance with the Natural Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. UDALL: Mr. Speaker, am I correct in assuming that the joint resolution before us has been laid before the House, but is not amendable?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

MR. UDALL: Am I further correct, Mr. Speaker, in assuming that under the procedure by which we are operating, the only way for a Member to gain time is to make a pro forma motion to strike the necessary number of words?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct.

It is the Chair's understanding that those who have already offered pro forma amendments on the joint resolution may do so again only by unanimous consent.

§ 70.13 Rejection of the motion for the previous question on a measure being considered in the House which is not subject to amendment (under the rules of the House or under statutory provisions enacted under the rulemaking power of the House) does not open the measure to amendment but only extends the time for debate thereon.

On Nov. 2, 1977,⁽¹⁰⁾ the House as in the Committee of the Whole had under consideration a joint resolution, called up under the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act, which was not subject to substantive amendment under section 8(d)(5)(B) of that Act. The proceedings were as follows:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ The unfinished business of the House is the further consideration of the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 621) approving the Presidential decision on an Alaska natural gas transportation system, and for other purposes, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. . . .

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, am I correct in assuming that the joint resolution before us has been laid before the House, but is not amendable?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct. . . .

MR. [JOHN P.] MURTHA [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MURTHA: Would an amendment be in order if the previous question were not ordered?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will have to state that an amendment would not be in order. Under the statute, the joint resolution is not amendable. The only effect would be to extend debate.

§ 71. Effect of Special Rules and Unanimous-consent Agreements

The House may vary the period for debate in an infinite variety of ways. By unanimous consent or special rule, the House can lengthen debate, abbreviate it, divide its control between “proponents and opponents,” Members representing committees, or named individuals.

Speakers have declined to recognize requests to extend time on special-order speeches (beyond one hour) or one-minute speeches. There is also a reluctance to recognize for extensions of time under rules—such as the discharge rule—which have carefully structured debate steps.

Special rules and unanimous-consent agreements may also provide that a certain period of debate in the House be controlled by the proponents and opponents of a measure. When time in the House is thus distributed and controlled, the Members in charge may yield time to other Members, who are not entitled to be recognized for a full hour.⁽¹²⁾

Privileged Resolutions

§ 71.1 A special rule may provide that a privileged resolution be considered in the House, with more than one hour of debate.

On May 2, 1933,⁽¹³⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 125, making in order the consideration in the House of House Resolution 124, also reported by the Committee on Rules, and providing for the consideration of certain Senate amendments. House Resolution 125 read as follows:

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the House shall proceed to the consideration of House Resolution 124, and all points of order against said resolution shall be waived. That after general debate, which shall be confined to the resolution and shall continue not to exceed 5 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Rules, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution to its adoption or rejection.

§ 71.2 A resolution amending the rules of the House, eligible for consideration in the House as privileged business and subject to one hour of debate was, pursuant to a special rule, considered in the Committee of the Whole and debated for two hours.

On Apr. 3, 1968,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, called up by direction of the Committee on Rules House Resolution 1119 providing for the consideration, in the Committee of the Whole, of another resolution reported from the Committee on Rules:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 1099) amending H. Res. 418, Ninetieth Congress, to continue the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct as a permanent standing committee of the House of Representatives, and for other purposes. After general debate, which shall be confined to the resolution and continue not to exceed two hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, the resolution shall be read for amendment under the five-minute rule.

14. 114 CONG. REC. 8776, 8777, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

Mr. H. Allen Smith, of California, explained the rationale for, and effect of, the resolution:

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. . . .

The parliamentary situation today is this: As I mentioned, the Rules Committee reported House Resolution 418 creating the committee. The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct reported to the Rules Committee, which retained original jurisdiction. The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct reported the resolution which is before us, H. Res. 1099, which will continue the committee and establish a code of ethics for the House. The resolution could have come to the floor of the House without a rule, which would have limited debate to 1 hour, 30 minutes on each side, and a vote would then be taken up or down on the resolution.

But the Rules Committee felt the members of the committee should have an opportunity to be heard, with the result that we have reported a separate resolution providing for 2 hours of general debate, 1 hour on each side, and the resolution will be open for amendment. Had we just reported the resolution, it would be tantamount to a closed rule under which amendments could not be offered. The Rules Committee does not like to report closed rules as a general practice.

Parliamentarian's Note: Without the special rule, the resolution would have been privileged for consideration in the House, under Rule XI clause 22, and would have been considered under the general rules of the House, the Member in charge controlling an hour of debate, with the right to move the previous question.⁽¹⁵⁾ Although the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct had recommended that H. Res. 1099 be adopted, the Rules Committee reported the resolution to the House, not the Standards Committee as indicated by Mr. Smith.

Committee on Rules may be extended by unanimous consent.

On June 21, 1972,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., of Massachusetts, had offered House Resolution 996, from the Committee on Rules, providing for the consideration of H.R. 14370, the State and Local Assistance Act of 1972. He asked unanimous consent for extension of the one hour of debate permitted on the resolution, and the request was objected to:

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that I have so many requests for time, I ask unanimous consent that discussion on the rule be extended 30 minutes, with 15 minutes given to the gentleman from California (Mr. Smith) and 15 minutes to myself.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ The gentleman from Massachusetts asked unanimous consent that time for debate on the rule be extended an additional 30 minutes, the time to be equally divided between the gentleman from Massachusetts and the gentleman from California.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, my attention was elsewhere when the request was made. Do I correctly understand that the request is to extend the time on the rule?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is correct.

MR. COLMER: For how long?

THE SPEAKER: For an additional 30 minutes for debate on the rule.

MR. COLMER: Equally divided, Mr. Speaker, between whom?

MR. O'NEILL: The reason why I am asking this is that the gentleman would like to have 10 minutes.

MR. COLMER: I understand the reason why the gentleman is doing it.

Mr. Speaker, under my reservation, if I am in order, between whom is the gentleman going to divide the time?

MR. O'NEILL: I asked unanimous consent for 30 minutes, with 15 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Smith) and 15 minutes to myself.

The reason I asked for this is that the gentleman, as chairman of the committee, asked for 10 minutes. I allotted five members opposed to the bill 3 minutes apiece. The gentleman was not satisfied with 3 minutes and is insisting upon 10. In order to satisfy him, as chairman of the Rules Committee, I have made this request.

MR. COLMER: Mr. Speaker, on the basis of the statement of the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill) I am unwilling to set a precedent here in order that I may be heard for additional time. Therefore, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, under the circumstances, since there is an objection, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Colmer).

Member recognized to call it up, but such debate may be extended beyond one hour by unanimous consent; on one occasion, the House agreed to a unanimous-consent request to extend for 30 minutes the debate on a privileged resolution reported from the Rules Committee in the House, to be controlled by the Member who had called it up, with the assurance that one half the additional time would be yielded to the minority.

On July 14, 1977,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred when a resolution⁽¹⁹⁾ amending the rules was called up in the House:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 658 and ask for its immediate consideration.

MR. [TED] WEISS [of New York]: . . . Mr. Speaker, at this time I ask unanimous consent that the time for debate on this matter be extended for an additional 1 hour, the time to be controlled by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would assume the usual delegation of one-half the time to the minority?

MR. WEISS: Of course. That is intended. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

MR. [RONALD M.] MOTTLE [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

MR. WEISS: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that time for debate be extended for an additional half hour, the time to be divided 15 minutes on each side.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The proceedings of July 29, 1977,⁽¹⁾ relating to House consideration of House Resolution 727 (providing for consideration of H.R. 8444, the National Energy Act of 1977) were as follows:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 727 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 727

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move . . . that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 8444) to establish a comprehensive national energy policy. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁾ The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Anderson), and pending that, I yield myself such time as I may consume. . . .

MR. [JOHN B.] ANDERSON of Illinois: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent at this time that in addition to the 1 hour of debate provided for in this resolution, House Resolution 727, the time for debate be extended for an additional 30 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, there is some precedent for this. Before the Chair puts the request, I would like to state very briefly that there is some precedent on very important resolutions for an extension of the normal amount of time that is used for debate. Just a couple of weeks ago the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) made a similar request at the time we were considering a resolution for the Select Committee on Intelligence.

Very frankly, I have had more requests for time on this rule from my side of the aisle than I can accommodate within the 30 minutes that has been allotted to the minority. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the time for debate on this resolution be extended for 30 minutes.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois? . . .

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that an additional 15 minutes will be allotted to each side.

§ 71.6 By unanimous consent, debate on a resolution of censure reported from the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct was extended to two hours (and the chairman of the committee then yielded one-half hour to the ranking minority member of the committee, and one hour to the Member proposed to be censured).

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 660

Resolved,

(1) That Representative Charles H. Wilson be censured

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ . . . The gentleman from Florida (Mr. Bennett) is recognized for 1 hour.

MR. BENNETT: Mr. Speaker, in view of the complexities of these proceedings and the need for ample time for all parties, I ask unanimous consent that the ordinary hour that is allotted in these matters be extended for another hour. . . .

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 2 hours. . . .

MR. BENNETT: . . . Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield one-half hour to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Spence), ranking minority member of the committee. For purposes of debate only I yield 1 hour to the gentleman from California (Mr. Charles H. Wilson), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Resolutions of Disapproval —Curtailing Debate

§ 71.7 By unanimous consent, debate on resolutions disapproving reorganization plans has been limited to less than the 10 hours which was allowed under the Reorganization Act of 1949, providing for consideration of such plans.

On July 1, 1959,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole considered for two hours of general debate, as provided by a unanimous-consent agreement, Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1959.

On July 19, 1961, the House agreed to a unanimous-consent request that general debate in the Committee of the Whole on House Resolution 328, disapproving Reorganization Plan No. 5 of 1961, be limited to five hours.⁽⁶⁾ After some debate had been had on the resolution, the House limited by unanimous consent further debate on the resolution to 30 minutes, to be equally divided by the Member moving the consideration of the resolution and the ranking minority member of the Committee on Government Operations.⁽⁷⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: The Reorganization Act of 1949, Public Law No. 81-109, provided that on a resolution disapproving a reorganization plan, there be debate "not to exceed ten hours," equally divided between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. The statute was enacted as an exercise of the rulemaking power of both Houses, with full recognition of either House to change such rules at any time.⁽⁸⁾ bate on certain resolutions of disapproval be fixed at a lesser number of hours than the 10 hours permitted under the procedure outlined for considering such resolutions under a public law.

On Mar. 21, 1955,⁽⁹⁾ Mr. Carl Vinson, of Georgia, announced he would call up House Resolution 170, disapproving the disposal of certain rubber facilities. The House agreed to his unanimous-consent request on the duration of time for debate:

MR. VINSON: Mr. Speaker, I desire to announce to the House that tomorrow I will call up a privileged resolution (H. Res. 170) relating to the disposition of the synthetic rubber facilities.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate on House Resolution 170 be fixed at 6 hours, 3 hours to be controlled by the author of the resolution, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Patman], and 3 hours by myself as chairman of the Committee on Armed Services.

On the following day, Mar. 22, the House agreed to a unanimous-consent request for the duration of debate on House Resolution 171, a similar resolution:

MR. VINSON: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate on House Resolution 171 be fixed at 2 hours tomorrow, 1 hour to be controlled by the author of the resolution, the gentleman from California [Mr. Doyle], and 1 hour by myself, chairman of the Committee on the Armed Services.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.⁽¹¹⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: Congress had provided, in Public Law No. 83-205, a procedure for considering resolutions disposing of synthetic rubber facilities. The law provided that on such a resolution being considered on the floor there be not to exceed 10 hours of debate, equally divided between those favoring and those opposing the resolution.⁽¹²⁾

Bills Considered "Under the General Rules of the House"

§ 71.9 Where consideration of a bill "under the general rules of the House" has been agreed to, the bill may be called up pursuant to the agreement and then by unanimous consent considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

On Apr. 1, 1969,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. L. Mendel Rivers, of South Carolina,

10. Sam Rayburn (Tex.).

11. 101 CONG. REC. 3437, 84th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Pub. L. 83-205, 67 Stat. 416.

13. 115 CONG. REC. 8136, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

made a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a bill on the Union Calendar:

Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the unanimous-consent agreement of March 27, 1969, I call up for immediate consideration the bill (H.R. 9329) [special pay for naval officers qualified for nuclear submarine duty] . . . and ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole.

On Mar. 27, Mr. Rivers had asked unanimous consent that it be in order to consider "under the general rules of the House" on Tuesday or Wednesday of the following week the bill H.R. 9328.⁽¹⁴⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: The effect of considering a Union Calendar bill "under the general rules of the House" would have been to require general debate in Committee of the Whole with each Member seeking recognition entitled to one hour, followed by reading for amendment under the five-minute rule.

Union Calendar Bills

§ 71.10 A special rule may provide that a Union Calendar bill be considered in the House, with more than one hour of general debate.

On Mar. 21, 1933,⁽¹⁵⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 61, providing for the consideration of H.R. 3835, a bill on the Union Calendar providing agricultural relief, in the House:

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the House shall proceed to the consideration of H.R. 3835, and any points of order against said bill or any provisions contained therein are hereby waived. That after general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed 4 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the Chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Agriculture, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

Similarly, the House adopted on Apr. 22, 1933, House Resolution 111, for the consideration in the House of H.R. 5081, a bill on the Union Calendar:

Resolved, That immediately upon adoption of this resolution the House shall proceed to the consideration of H.R. 5081, and all points of order against said bill shall be considered as waived. That after general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed 6 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Military Affairs, it shall be in order for the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs by direction of that committee to offer amendments to any part of the bill. If there be no such amendments offered by the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, then the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.⁽¹⁶⁾

§ 71.11 Bills requiring consideration in the Committee of the Whole are considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole under the five-minute rule when unanimous consent is granted for their immediate consideration, but when consent is granted for their immediate consideration in the House, debate is under the hour rule and amendments are only in order if the Member controlling the time yields for that purpose.

On Apr. 11, 1974,⁽¹⁷⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, responded to an inquiry regarding the consideration of amendments in the House as in Committee of the Whole:

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota? . . .

MR. [RICHARD W.] MALLARY [of Vermont]: Mr. Speaker, if a bill is brought up under a unanimous-consent request and considered in the House at this time, would any amendment be in order?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that since the gentleman is asking that it be considered in the House, the gentleman will then have control of the time.

Omnibus Private Bills

§ 71.12 During the consideration of an omnibus private bill the Chair refused to recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests to extend the time for debate.

On July 20, 1937,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House was considering bills on the Omnibus Private Calendar. Mr. Alfred F. Beiter, of New York, was speaking for five minutes in opposition to an amendment which had been offered and asked unanimous consent to address the House for an additional minute when his time expired. Speaker

18. 81 CONG. REC. 7293-95, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that such a request could not be made, the rule limiting each side to five minutes' debate.⁽¹⁹⁾

Impeachment Proposals

§ 71.13 The House may consider impeachment resolutions and articles of impeachment under unanimous-consent agreements fixing time for debate at a certain number of hours, to be equally divided and controlled.

On Feb. 24, 1933, Mr. Thomas D. McKeown, of Oklahoma, reported from the Committee on the Judiciary a report recommending against the impeachment of Judge Louderback (the minority of the committee were prepared to offer a substitute for the resolution in order to impeach and adopt articles). The House agreed to consider the resolution pursuant to the following unanimous-consent request:

Debate to be limited to two hours, to be controlled by the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. McKeown], that at the end of that time the previous question shall be considered as ordered, with 19. For the rule on consideration of omnibus private bills, see Rule XXIV clause 6 and comments thereto, House Rules and Manual §§ 893-895 (1995).

the privilege, however, of a substitute resolution being offered⁽²⁰⁾

On Mar. 2, 1936, Mr. Hatton W. Sumners, of Texas, called up at the direction of the Committee on the Judiciary a resolution and articles of impeachment against Judge Ritter. The House agreed to the following unanimous-consent request for debate thereon:

The gentleman from Texas [Mr. Sumners] asks unanimous consent that debate on this resolution be continued for 4½ hours, 2½ hours to be controlled by himself and 2 hours by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Hancock]; and at the expiration of the time the previous question shall be considered as ordered. . . .⁽¹⁾

Motions To Suspend Rules

§ 71.14 Although the 20 minutes of debate allowed on each side of a motion to suspend the rules may be extended by unanimous consent, the Chair does not normally entertain such a request.⁽²⁾

20. 76 CONG. REC. 4913–25, 72d Cong. 2d Sess. The House adopted the substitute, offered by Mr. Fiorello H. LaGuardia (N.Y.), and impeached Judge Louderback.

On Mar. 3, 1960,⁽³⁾ the House agreed to a unanimous-consent request to extend debate on a motion to suspend the rules to one hour and 20 minutes.

On July 23, 1956,⁽⁴⁾ the House was conducting debate on a motion to suspend the rules and pass a bill. When time had expired, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that he would object to a unanimous-consent request that time on the motion be extended:

MR. [WILLIAM M.] MCCULLOCH [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I should like to renew the request of the gentleman from New York previously made to extend time of debate on this important matter for 20 minutes, 10 minutes on each side. I think it is very important that we have that additional time for debate.

I ask unanimous consent that time be extended to 20 minutes for debate on this bill.

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I join in that request.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair does not join in that request, because the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Rayburn] is going to object, if nobody else does.

MR. [USHER L.] BURDICK [of North Dakota]: I object, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: According to the rules of the House, 20 minutes of debate are permitted on each side.

4. 102 CONG. REC. 14075, 84th Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 71.15 The House, under a motion to suspend the rules, passed a resolution extending the time for debate to four hours on a motion to suspend the rules and fixing control of debate on such motion.

On Sept. 20, 1943,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, moved to suspend the rules and pass House Resolution 302, which was agreed to by the House:

Resolved, That the time for debate on a motion to suspend the rules and pass House Concurrent Resolution 25 shall be extended to 4 hours, such time to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs; and said motion to suspend the rules shall be the continuing order of business of the House until finally disposed of.

Parliamentarian's Note: House Concurrent Resolution 25, reported by the Committee on Foreign Affairs, related to participation in world peace.

§ 71.16 A demand for a second on a motion to suspend the rules (under the rule in effect before 1991) was inapplicable where the House had previously adopted a resolution fixing control of debate on such motion and requiring uninterrupted consideration of such motion.

On Sept. 20, 1943,⁽⁶⁾ the House passed a motion to suspend the rules and pass House Resolution 302, which provided four hours of debate, to be equally divided and controlled by two Members, on a motion to suspend the rules and pass a concurrent resolution and which provided that said motion to suspend the rules "shall be the continuing order of business of the House until finally disposed of."

Following the adoption of the motion, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. Sol Bloom, of New York, to move to suspend the rules and pass the concurrent resolution. Mr. Charles A. Eaton, of New Jersey, demanded a second on the motion and the Speaker indicated that the procedure under which the motion to suspend was being considered did not contemplate the demanding of a second:

MR. EATON: Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

MR. BLOOM: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that a second may be considered as ordered.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

6. 89 CONG. REC. 5655, 78th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOFFMAN: May a second be demanded by one who is not opposed to the resolution?

THE SPEAKER: That was practically cured by the resolution just passed, which provides that the time shall be in control of the gentleman from New York [Mr. Bloom] and the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. Eaton]. The formality was gone through.

Parliamentarian's Note: Normally the Member demanding a second on a motion to suspend the rules was entitled to recognition for the 20 minutes of debate in opposition to the motion. Here, the time for debate on the motion had been extended and placed in the control of two specified Members. Furthermore, H. Res. 302 made the question of consideration (by way of a second) inapplicable, by making the motion to suspend the rules a "continuing order of business until finally disposed of."

Motions To Discharge Committee

§ 71.17 On a motion to discharge a committee, debate is limited to 20 minutes, and the Speaker does not recognize unanimous-consent requests to extend the time.

On Aug. 14, 1950,⁽⁷⁾ Mr. George P. Miller, of California, called up a petition to discharge the Committee on Rules from further consideration of House Resolution 667, providing for the consideration of H.R. 8195, a bill to rescind an order of the Postmaster General. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that he would recognize Mr. Miller for 10 minutes on the motion and Edward E. Cox, of Georgia, the Chairman of the Committee on Rules, for 10 minutes in opposition to the motion. Mr. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, inquired how the minority could gain some time for debate on the motion, and the Speaker stated that allocation of the 20 minutes was in the discretion of Mr. Miller and Mr. Cox.

7. 96 CONG. REC. 12441, 12442, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

Mr. Martin then asked unanimous consent that the minority be given one hour on the motion. The Speaker stated that under the rules he could not entertain the request.

Conference Reports

§ 71.18 A special rule may provide that there be more than one hour of debate, in the House, on a conference report.

On Feb. 8, 1938,⁽⁸⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 416, providing for four hours of debate on a conference report (normally considered under the hour rule):

8. 83 CONG. REC. 1645, 75th Cong. 3d Sess.

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the House shall proceed to the consideration of the conference report on the bill H.R. 8505, an act to provide for the conservation of national soil resources and to provide an adequate and balanced flow of agricultural commodities in interstate and foreign commerce, and for other purposes; that all points of order against said conference report are hereby waived; and that after debate on said conference report, which may continue not to exceed 4 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Agriculture, the previous question shall be considered as ordered on agreeing to the conference report.

§ 71.19 Debate on a conference report was, by unanimous consent, extended to two hours.

On Dec. 19, 1969,⁽⁹⁾ Mr. Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, asked unanimous consent that when the conference report on H.R. 13270, the Tax Reform Act of 1969, was called up, there be an additional hour—a total of two hours—to consider the conference report. There was no objection to the request.⁽¹⁰⁾

Special-order Speeches

§ 71.20 Where a Member has used an hour for a special-order speech, he is not permitted, even by unanimous consent, to secure additional time.

On June 11, 1969,⁽¹¹⁾ Mrs. Edith S. Green, of Oregon, had consumed an hour for a special-order speech. She requested additional time and Speaker Pro Tempore Ken Hechler, of West Virginia, declined to recognize her for that purpose:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPOR: The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

MRS. GREEN of Oregon: Mr. Speaker is it in order for me to ask unanimous consent that I may continue for an additional 10 minutes?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPOR: The Chair will advise the gentlewoman that under clause 2, rule 14, such a request cannot be entertained. However, the Chair can recognize other Members who wish to request a special order.⁽¹²⁾

Termination of Debate Prior to Fixed Time

§ 71.21 Where the House by unanimous consent fixed the

11. 115 CONG. REC. 15440, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

12. The Speaker also declines to recognize for unanimous-consent requests for additional time on one-minute speeches (see § 73.10, infra).

time and control of debate and ordered the previous question at the conclusion of said debate, the Speaker ruled that it was not necessary for the Members in charge to use or yield the full time agreed upon.

On Mar. 11, 1941,⁽¹³⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 131 under the terms of a unanimous-consent request providing two hours of debate and dividing control of debate between Mr. Sol Bloom, of New York, and Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, and providing that at the conclusion of said debate the previous question be considered as ordered. Mr. Bloom asked for a vote on the resolution when he and Mr. Fish had used or yielded all the time they desired, and Mr. Martin J. Kennedy, of New York, objected on the ground that the unanimous-consent agreement was not being complied with since all the time provided had not been consumed. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled as follows:

THE SPEAKER: The unanimous-consent request agreed to yesterday left control of the time in the hands of the gentleman from New York [Mr. Bloom] and the gentleman from New York [Mr. Fish]. At any time those gentlemen do not desire to yield further time, compliance with the request has been had.

Effect of Ordering of Previous Question

§ 71.22 The House by unanimous consent vacated the ordering of the previous question in order to permit further debate.

On Aug. 26, 1960,⁽¹⁴⁾ the House was considering Senate amendments reported from conference in disagreement on H.R. 12619, making appropriations for the mutual security program. Mr. Silvio O. Conte, of Massachusetts, arose to object to a motion to concur with an amendment to a Senate amendment, but Mr. Otto E. Passman, of Louisiana, moved the previous question on the motion (without debate), which was ordered without objection. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, advised Mr. Conte that no further debate was in order.

A call of the House was ordered, and the House then agreed to a unanimous-consent request by Mr. Passman that "the action of the House by which the previous question was ordered be vacated," in order to permit debate on the motion.

13. 87 CONG. REC. 2177, 2178, 77th Cong. 1st Sess.

14. 106 CONG. REC. 17869, 17870, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 71.23 The previous question having been ordered on a motion to send a bill to conference under Rule XX clause 1, further debate may be had on the motion only by unanimous consent.

On July 9, 1970,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Thomas E. Morgan, of Pennsylvania, moved to take H.R. 15628 from the Speaker's table with the Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to a conference. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. Morgan for one hour and Mr. Morgan immediately moved the previous question, which was ordered by the House on a recorded vote.

Mr. Morgan then propounded a unanimous-consent request for debate on the motion notwithstanding the fact that the previous question had been ordered, but the request was objected to:

MR. MORGAN: Mr. Speaker, notwithstanding the fact that the previous question has been ordered on my motion to go to conference, I ask unanimous consent that there now be 1 hour of debate, one-half to be controlled by myself and one-half by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Riegle) who has announced that he will propose a motion to instruct the conferees.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

15. 116 CONG. REC. 23524, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [DURWARD G.] HALL [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I object.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Morgan).

The motion was agreed to.

§ 71.24 Further debate on a measure on which the previous question has been ordered and the yeas and nays ordered on final passage may be had only by unanimous consent.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 341 (waiver of law pursuant to Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act) in the House on Dec. 8, 1981,⁽¹⁶⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker, having resumed the Chair, Mr. Fuqua, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 341) providing for a waiver of law pursuant to the Alaskan Natural Gas Transportation Act, had directed him to report the joint resolution back to the House, with the recommendation that the joint resolution do pass.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the joint resolution.

16. 127 CONG. REC. 30003, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read a third time.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the passage of the joint resolution. . . .

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [TOM] CORCORAN [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

THE SPEAKER: Pursuant to clause 5 of rule I, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The vote will be taken tomorrow, Wednesday, December 9, 1981.

MR. [RICHARD L.] OTTINGER [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when this is considered tomorrow, there be 10 minutes allotted for debate immediately prior to the vote, 5 minutes to be allotted to the proponents and 5 minutes allotted to the opponents.

My reason for doing this is that there was no opportunity for Members who may be voting tomorrow, who are not here, to hear the principal arguments, and I think, in fairness, at least 5 minutes on each side ought to be allotted.

MR. [EUGENE] JOHNSTON [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE SPEAKER: Objection is heard.

§ 71.25 The House having voted to reconsider a motion on which the previous question had been ordered when first voted upon, debate on the motion is in order by unanimous consent only.

During consideration of House Resolution 660 (in the matter of Representative Charles H. Wilson) in the House on May 29, 1980,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ALLEN E.] ERTEL [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I was in the House when the previous speaker . . . evidently brought in material which was not in the record before the committee, which in my judgment means there has been surprise to the defense in this case in the fact that the gentleman brought up evidence, which is a document from the State of California. . . .

I would ask the Chair, is there any procedure where I can make a motion, so that we can handle this in a fair and expeditious manner and give him the opportunity to respond to that and to get the evidence from California? . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁹⁾ The only motion available that the Chair would know of, unless the gentleman from Florida would yield, would be the motion for reconsideration, if the gentleman voted on the prevailing side of the motion of the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot). That was a motion to postpone to a day certain, which was defeated.

MR. ERTEL: . . . Mr. Speaker, I move to reconsider the vote to postpone. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

18. 126 CONG. REC. 12663-65, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

19. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Mr. Speaker, does a motion to reconsider admit of debate?

THE SPEAKER: There is no debate on this reconsideration motion, since the previous question was ordered on the motion to postpone. . . .

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Ertel moves that the House reconsider the vote on the motion to postpone to a day certain. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by Mr. Ertel to reconsider the vote on the motion offered by Mr. Rousselot to postpone consideration. . . .

So the motion to reconsider the vote on the motion to postpone was agreed to. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot) to postpone to June 10.

MR. [WYCHE] FOWLER [Jr., of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask unanimous consent from this body for 10 minutes, to be equally divided between the opposition and the majority party, to debate the motion now before us by the gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot). . . .

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the 10 minutes' debate?

The Chair hears none.

The gentleman from California (Mr. Rousselot) is recognized for 5 minutes, and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Fowler) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Parliamentarian's Note: The above precedent represents the modern practice. Earlier precedents⁽²⁰⁾ supported the view that 20. See 5 Hinds' Precedents §§5491, 5492.

“when a vote taken under the operation of the previous question is reconsidered, the main question stands divested of the previous question, and may be debated and amended without reconsideration of the motion for the previous question.” In current practice, separate reconsideration of the motion for the previous question would be required for debate and amendment.

Conference Reports

§ 71.26 Following the adoption of a conference report without debate, the House agreed, by unanimous consent, to permit 40 minutes' debate to appear in the Record preceding the adoption of the report.

On May 22, 1968,⁽¹⁾ Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, called up the conference report on S. 5, the Consumer Credit Protection Act, and asked unanimous-consent that the statement of the managers be read in lieu of the report and that reading of the statement be dispensed with. There being no objection, and Mr. Patman not seeking recognition for debate, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that the question was on the conference report, and the report was agreed to without debate.

Mr. Patman thereafter asked unanimous consent to vacate the proceedings by which the report was adopted, there having been no debate; the request was objected to. The House then agreed to a unanimous-consent request by Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma:

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that 40 minutes of debate may be had on this matter, to be equally divided between the gentleman from Texas and the gentleman from New Jersey, and that it appear in the Record prior to the adoption of the conference report.

The Speaker then stated, in response to parliamentary inquiries, that the agreement to permit discussion, the conference report having been agreed to, did not reopen the report to permit the making of motions thereon, such as the motion to recommit, the adoption of which would alter the prior action of the House in agreeing to the report.

§ 71.27 While debate on a conference report is limited to one hour⁽²⁾ to be equally divided between majority and minority parties,⁽³⁾ the House

2. See Rule XIV clause 2, House Rules and Manual § 758 (1995).

3. See Rule XXVIII clause 2, House Rules and Manual § 912a (1995).

may, by unanimous consent, either extend that time or permit debate by “special order” on the conference report prior to actual consideration thereof; thus, on one occasion, by unanimous consent, two Members, the chairman and ranking minority member of the House conferees, were permitted “special orders” of one hour each to debate a conference report following adoption of a resolution making in order the consideration of the report but prior to actual consideration of the report.

On Mar. 26, 1975,⁽⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House relative to consideration of the conference report on H.R. 2166, the Tax Reduction Act of 1975:

MR. [SPARK M.] MATSUNAGA [of Hawaii]: Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman).

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2166, TAX
REDUCTION ACT OF 1975

Mr. [Al] Ullman [of Oregon] submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 2166) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 . . . to increase the investment credit and the surtax exemption, and for other purposes:

4. 121 CONG. REC. 8899, 8900, 8916, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. 94-120)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2166) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 . . . having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Tax Reduction Act of 1975”. . . .

MR. ULLMAN: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that upon the adoption of the rule I be granted a 60-minute special order.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, we have in the rules of the House an adequate rule for the consideration of conference reports I have no way of knowing, nor does any Member in this Chamber know, who will control the time during a special order, except the gentleman from Oregon, whether questions, once raised, will be answered, or whether or not debate will deteriorate into partisan debate.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is very effectively but improperly stating the rules. The minority has 30 minutes and the majority has 30 minutes on the conference report.

5. Carl Albert (Okla.).

MR. BAUMAN: I am talking about the lack of protection contained in the request for the 1-hour special order that was just made by the gentleman from Oregon.

THE SPEAKER: Any Member of the House may make a request for a special order.

MR. BAUMAN: I withdraw my reservation of objection.

MR. [HERMAN T.] SCHNEEBELI [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I also ask for a 60-minute special order following that of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman).

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

§ 72. Closing Debate; Senate Cloture

In the House, secondary motions—to lay on the table or for the previous question—can be used to cut off debate.⁽⁶⁾ Debate can, of course, be limited or closed by unanimous consent. When the House is operating “as in the Committee of the Whole,” both the motion for the previous question and the motion to limit debate can be utilized.

In contrast to the House, where the hour rule limits debate, Members of the Senate may retain the floor for indefinite periods of time, unless the Senate limits debate either by unanimous consent or by invoking cloture.⁽⁷⁾ Thus, a Senator may retain the floor for extremely long periods of time, engaging in a “filibuster” to prevent Senate action on a measure.⁽⁸⁾ On June 12 and 13, 1935, Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, in a remarkable demonstration of physical endurance, set a new record in the Senate when he spoke continuously for 15½ hours in favor of the Gore amendment to the proposed extension of the National Industrial Recovery Act. But the amendment was finally tabled. Again, in 1953, a prolonged debate took place on the so-called tidelands offshore oil bill. It began Apr. 1 and ended May 5. The debate lasted for 35 days, one of the longest on record. During this debate Senator Wayne Morse, of Oregon, established a new record for the longest single speech. On Apr. 24 and 25 he spoke for 22 hours and 26 minutes.⁽⁹⁾

Previous Question; Used Before Adoption of Rules

§ 72.1 The Member controlling debate on a proposition in the House may move the previous question and cut off further debate.

On Jan. 4, 1965,⁽¹⁰⁾ at the convening of the 89th Congress and before the adoption of the rules, Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, offered a resolution and after some debate moved the previous question:

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 2) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. RES. 2

Resolved, That the Speaker is hereby authorized and directed to administer the oath of office to the gentleman from New York, Mr. Richard L. Ottinger.

10. 111 CONG. REC. 20, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, again this is a resolution involving a Member whose certificate of election in due form is on file in the Office of the Clerk. I ask for the adoption of the resolution.

MR. [JAMES C.] CLEVELAND [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

MR. ALBERT: I yield for a parliamentary inquiry.

MR. CLEVELAND: If this resolution is adopted, will it be impossible for me to offer my own resolution pertaining to the same subject matter, either as an amendment or a substitute?

THE SPEAKER: If the resolution is agreed to, it will not be in order for the gentleman to offer a substitute resolution or an amendment, particularly if the previous question is ordered.

MR. CLEVELAND: Is it now in order, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: Not unless the gentleman from Oklahoma yields to the gentleman for that purpose. . . .

MR. CLEVELAND: Will the gentleman from Oklahoma yield for that purpose?

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, I yield for a question and a very brief statement. I do not yield for a speech.

MR. CLEVELAND: May I inquire if the gentleman will yield so that I may ask for unanimous consent that certain remarks of mine pertaining to this matter be incorporated in the Record?

MR. ALBERT: No, Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

MR. [THOMAS G.] ABERNETHY [of Mississippi]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman from Oklahoma yield to the gentleman from Mississippi for the purpose of submitting a parliamentary inquiry?

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.⁽¹¹⁾

Moving the Previous Question

§ 72.2 The motion for the previous question is not debatable.

On Jan. 3, 1949,⁽¹²⁾ at the convening of the 81st Congress, the House was considering House Resolution 5, amending the rules of the House. Mr. Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, who had offered the resolution, moved the previous question. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, sought recognition to offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute and objected that he had a "right to be heard." Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, held that the previous question was not debatable.

On Sept. 13, 1965,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, moved that the Journal be approved as read and moved the previous question on the motion. Mr. Durward G. Hall, of Missouri, stated a parliamentary inquiry:

Is not debate in order on this motion inasmuch as under [the House rules] there has been no debate on ordering the previous question?

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Chair will state that the motion on the previous question is not debatable. The question is on ordering the previous question on the motion to approve the Journal.⁽¹⁵⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Hall's reference was to clause 3 (now clause 2) of Rule XXVII, providing 40 minutes' debate after the previous question has been ordered, if the proposition on which the motion has been made is debatable but has not been debated.⁽¹⁶⁾

14. John W. McCormack (Mass.).

15. See Rule XVI clause 4, House Rules and Manual § 782 (1995): "When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lay on the table, for the previous question (which motions shall be decided without debate)."

16. See Rule XXVII clause 2, House Rules and Manual § 907 (1995).

The debate comes after and not before the previous question itself is ordered, the motion itself not being debatable. See 111 CONG. REC. 23602-06, 89th Cong. 1st Sess., where Speaker McCormack held, after the previous question was ordered, that Mr. Hall then had the right to demand 40 minutes' debate.

Use of Previous Question Where Debate Limited by Unanimous Consent

§ 72.3 Where the House by unanimous consent fixed the time and control of debate, it was held that the Members in control were not required to consume or to yield all the time provided for.

On Mar. 11, 1941,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 131 under the terms of a unanimous-consent agreement providing two hours of debate and dividing control of debate between Mr. Sol Bloom, of New York, and Mr. Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, and providing that the previous question be considered as ordered at the conclusion of debate. Mr. Bloom asked for a vote prior to the expiration of the two hours' time, and Mr. Martin J. Kennedy, of New York, objected on the ground that the unanimous-consent agreement was not being complied with in that the previous question had been demanded prematurely. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that the Members in control were not required to consume or to yield all the time provided.

17. 87 CONG. REC. 2177, 2178, 77th Cong. 1st Sess.

Vacating the Previous Question

§ 72.4 The House by unanimous consent vacated the ordering of the previous question in order to permit further debate.

On Aug. 26, 1960,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House was considering Senate amendments reported from conference in disagreement on H.R. 12619, making appropriations for the mutual security program. Mr. Silvio O. Conte, of Massachusetts, arose to object to a motion to concur with an amendment in a Senate amendment, and Mr. Otto E. Passman, of Louisiana, moved the previous question on the motion, which was ordered without objection. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, advised Mr. Conte that no further debate was in order.

A call of the House was ordered, and the House then agreed to a unanimous-consent request by Mr. Passman that "the action of the House by which the previous question was ordered be vacated." Mr. Passman then yielded two minutes of debate to Mr. Conte.

On Oct. 3, 1989,⁽¹⁹⁾ the House had under consideration a motion to dispose of an amendment in disagreement. Time for debate on the motion was divided equally among the majority and minority managers (both of whom supported the motion), and a Member opposed.⁽²⁰⁾

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Madam Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Yates moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 153 and concur therein with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed by said amendment, insert the following: "Provided, That—

A. None of the funds authorized to be appropriated for the National Endowment for the Arts or the National Endowment for the Humanities may be used to promote . . . materials which in the judgment of the National Endowment for the Arts or the National Endowment for the Humanities may be considered obscene. . . ."

MR. [DANA] ROHRBACHER [of California]: Madam Speaker, I would ask to be recognized in opposition to the motion for 20 minutes.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The Chair will inquire is the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Regula] opposed to the motion?

MR. [RALPH] REGULA [of Ohio]: No, I am not, Madam Speaker.

ceedings relating to H.R. 2788, Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations for 1990.)

20. For discussion of so allocating debate time, see § 26, supra.

1. Patricia Schroeder (Colo.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Then the gentleman from California [Mr. Rohrabacher], who is opposed to the motion, would be entitled to 20 minutes.

The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Regula], then, would have 20 minutes, the gentleman from California [Mr. Rohrabacher] would have 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Yates] would have 20 minutes on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Yates]. . . .

MR. YATES: . . . Madam Speaker, I move the previous question.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Illinois moves the previous question on this motion. Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

All those in favor of the gentleman's motion will say "aye," those opposed say "no." The gentleman's amendment is hereby agreed to.

The Clerk will designate the next amendment in disagreement. . . .

MR. ROHRABACHER: Madam Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Did I not have 1 minute of debate left?

MR. YATES: Madam Speaker, the gentleman was on his feet and he knew that the Chair proposed the question. He made no effort to ask for any kind of a rollcall. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman's motion for the previous question was not in order unless the gentleman from California yielded back his time. . . .

MR. YATES: I misunderstood the gentleman. I thought the gentleman had used up his time. I am sorry if I cut the gentleman off. I did not mean to do that. I have no reason to do that. . . .

MR. ROHRABACHER: . . . I would just like 1 minute's worth of time.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from California is recognized for 1 minute and the previous action of the House in disposing of the motion is vacated.

Effect of Motion To Table

§ 72.5 The adoption of the non-debatable motion to lay a resolution on the table results in the final adverse disposition of the resolution and closes further debate.

On Dec. 14, 1970,⁽²⁾ the previous question was moved on House Resolution 1306, asserting the privileges of the House in printing and publishing a report of the Committee on Internal Security. Mr. Louis Stokes, of Ohio, then offered the preferential motion to lay the resolution on the table. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [ALBERT W.] WATSON [of South Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, if the motion to table prevails, there can be no further consideration at all of this matter. Is that not correct? Does it not apply the clincher?

THE SPEAKER: If the motion to table is agreed to, then the resolution is tabled.

2. 116 CONG. REC. 41372, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. WATSON: Then that ends it. All right.

Parliamentarian's Note: The motion to lay on the table takes precedence over the previous question and may be used to close all debate and adversely dispose of a proposition.⁽³⁾

Effect of Special Rule

§ 72.6 When the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole reports a bill to the House pursuant to a resolution providing that the previous question shall be considered as ordered, further debate in the House is thereby precluded.

On Aug. 31, 1960,⁽⁴⁾ there being no amendments to S. 2917 being considered in the Committee of the Whole, the Committee rose and the bill was reported back to the House. Pursuant to the resolution under which the bill was being considered, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the previous question was ordered. In response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. H. Carl Andersen, of Minnesota, the Speaker stated that the previous question having been ordered by the resolution, no further debate or amendments were in order.

Parliamentarian's Note: Resolutions reported from the Committee on Rules, providing for the consideration of a bill in Committee of the Whole, typically provide that the previous question is ordered to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit, when the Committee rises.

Closing Debate in House as in Committee of the Whole § 72.7 Debate in the House as in the Committee of the Whole may be closed by ordering the previous question.

On July 28, 1969,⁽⁵⁾ H.R. 9553, amending the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act, was being considered under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. John Dowdy, of Texas, moved the previous question on the bill to final passage and Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the effect of that motion:

MR. [PHILLIP] BURTON of California: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

5. 115 CONG. REC. 20855, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. BURTON of California: Mr. Speaker, is the motion before us to close debate or will there be a vote subsequent to the pending motion so that those of us who want a rollcall on this matter can obtain a rollcall vote.

THE SPEAKER: The pending question is on ordering the previous question.

MR. BURTON of California: This is to close debate and not on the passage of the matter? Will this be our last opportunity to receive a rollcall on this matter?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the question on the passage of the bill will come later, if the previous question is ordered.

§ 72.8 In the House as in the Committee of the Whole, a motion to close debate on an amendment is in order.

On June 26, 1973,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, called up House Joint Resolution 636, making continuing appropriations for fiscal 1974 and asked unanimous consent that the resolution be considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, to which request the House agreed.

During debate on the resolution under the five-minute rule, Mr. Mahon moved "that all debate on the pending amendment and amendments thereto close in 20 minutes." Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, put the question on the motion and it was agreed to by a recorded vote.

6. 119 CONG. REC. 21305-07, 21314, 21315, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: Although it was formerly the practice to read bills considered in the House as in the Committee of the Whole by sections for amendment, such bills are now considered as read and open for amendment at any point. Debate may be closed by ordering the previous question.⁽⁷⁾

On Jan. 22, 1930,⁽⁸⁾ the House was considering under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole a section of a bill for amendment. Mr. George S. Graham, of Pennsylvania, moved that all debate on the pending section and amendments thereto close in 10 minutes. Speaker Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, put the question on the motion and it was agreed to.

§ 73. One-minute, Special-order Speeches, and Morning Hour methods whereby a Member by unanimous consent may debate a subject on the floor, after or before the legislative business of the day. Neither procedure is specifically provided for in the standing rules other than the prohibition in clause 6 of Rule XV against points of no quorum during special-order speeches, but their use is permitted by long-standing custom of the House.⁽⁹⁾

The one-minute speech is entertained by unanimous consent after the approval of the Journal but before legislative business.⁽¹⁰⁾ Such speeches are—both by tradition and the Speaker's recognition policy—limited to one minute, although the Speaker may in his discretion and by unanimous consent entertain a request for a longer one; but a Member may deliver only one such speech.⁽¹¹⁾ Rec-

A Member recognized for a one-minute speech may not yield to another to make a motion (see §30.30, supra) or ask for the unanimous-consent consideration of a bill (see §10.13, supra).

ognition for such speeches is entirely in the discretion of the Speaker, who may forego the procedure.⁽¹²⁾

Special orders are requested, either in advance or on the day in question, to address the House on a certain day at the conclusion of all legislative business.⁽¹³⁾ Such speeches may not exceed one hour, even by unanimous consent.⁽¹⁴⁾

While the House customarily does not consider legislation after the Speaker has begun to recognize Members for special-order speeches, there is no House rule prohibiting consideration of legislative business at any time the House is in session; thus, for example, the Speaker has recognized a Member between special-order speeches to request consideration of a House concurrent resolution by unanimous consent.⁽¹⁵⁾ The Speaker may announce that he will recognize for special-order speeches but that the House “may return to legislative business.”

Where no legislative business is scheduled for the day, Members may be recognized for longer than one minute, see §73.3, infra.

Beginning in the second session of the 103d Congress, the House by unanimous consent agreed (without prejudice to the Speaker’s ultimate power of recognition) to convene 90 minutes early on Mondays and Tuesdays for morning-hour debate.⁽¹⁶⁾ On May 12, 1995,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House extended and modified this order, changing morning-hour debates on Tuesdays after May 14 of each year in the following manner: (1) the House convenes one hour early (rather than 90 minutes); (2) time for debate is limited to 25 minutes for each party; and (3) in no event is morning-hour debate to continue beyond 10 minutes before the House is to convene.

Also in the 103d Congress,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House agreed by unanimous consent to conduct, at a time designated by the Speaker, “Oxford-style” debates: structured debate on a mutually agreeable topic announced by the Speaker, with four participants from each party in a format announced by the Speaker.

Generally

§ 73.1 The custom of permitting one-minute speeches in the House is regarded as beneficial to the democratic processes of the House, and timely requests therefor are seldom refused.

On July 22, 1968,⁽¹⁹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, speaking from the floor, discussed with minority Members of the House the use and practice of “one-minute” speeches before the legislative business of the day:

MR. McCORMACK: I call the 1-minute period “dynamic democracy.” I hesitate to take away the privilege of a Member as to speaking during that period and it has become a custom and a practice of the House. I think it is a very good thing to adhere to that custom and practice.

It is only on rare occasions that Members have not been recognized for that purpose. . . .

MR. [LESLIE C.] ARENDS [of Illinois]: You said that this might be “dynamic democracy.” I would rather it would be started when we have the time rather than be started at noon.

MR. MCCORMACK: It is an integral part of the procedure of the House and I like to adhere to it. Very seldom have I said to Members that I will accept only unanimous-consent requests for extensions of remarks. I hesitate to do it. I think every Member realizes that I am trying to protect their rights.

Chair’s Discretion Over One-minute Speeches

§ 73.2 While the Chair’s calculation of time under the “one-minute rule” is not subject to challenge, the Chair endeavors to recognize majority and then minority Members by allocating time in a nonpartisan manner.

The following exchange occurred in the House on Aug. 4, 1982:⁽²⁰⁾

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

[C]an the Chair tell me how long 1 minute is?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Does the gentleman request additional time?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I am just inquiring. We have had several long speeches here this morning. I thought that we were limited in the 1-minute time frame to 1 minute each. . . .

I am making a parliamentary inquiry of the Chair as to whether or not

20. 128 CONG. REC. 19319, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

1. Cecil Heftel (Ha.).

that is the rule of the House that is supposed to be obeyed.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It is, by precedent, and since the Chair wants to be fair, the Chair would like to extend to the gentleman and his side of the aisle any additional 1-minute speeches that they require immediately. Would the gentleman like to use it now?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, I thank the Chair. I think there are a number of Members who are waiting yet to speak, and I would certainly yield such time as I might consume to Members on the Republican side who have yet to speak so that everyone has an opportunity to speak this morning.

I thank the Chair.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will recognize them after recognizing Members on the right side of the aisle, and the Chair will in fairness extend to them as much time under the 1-minute rule as they need.

§ 73.3 Recognition for one-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Speaker; and his evaluation of the time consumed is a matter for the Chair and is not subject to challenge or question by a parliamentary inquiry.

On May 9, 1972,⁽²⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [DONALD W.] RIEGLE [Jr., of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

2. 118 CONG. REC. 16288, 92d Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. RIEGLE: Mr. Speaker, I have observed different speakers being given very different lengths of time to speak under the 1-minute rule.

I just noticed, for example, the gentleman from California who was given approximately half the time that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Devine) and several other speakers were given today. I object to that and I think if we are going to use the 1-minute rule, let us use it fairly.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the Chair is trying to enforce the 1-minute rule. That is not a parliamentary inquiry and the gentleman was out of order in making it.

§ 73.4 The Speaker refused to recognize Members to proceed for one minute on the second Monday of the month where a motion to discharge was in order under Rule XXVII clause 4 (now clause 3); however, he announced that he would make a single exception to permit a Member to proceed for one minute for the purpose of announcing to the House the death of a sitting Member.

On Aug. 10, 1970,⁽³⁾ a motion to discharge the Committee on the Judiciary from further consideration of House Joint Resolution 264, amending the Constitution relative to equal rights for men and women, was in order under Rule XXVII clause 4 (now clause 3). Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, made the following announcement on recognition for one-minute speeches:

3. 116 CONG. REC. 27994, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

The Chair would like to announce that the Chair is not going to recognize Members for the usual 1-minute speeches at this time, due to the situation with respect to the rules that exist in relation to the consideration of a constitutional amendment, with one exception: and that is that the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Corbett) to announce the death of our late and beloved colleague and friend, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Watkins).

§ 73.5 Recognition for one-minute speeches is within the discretion of the Speaker and he sometimes foregoes that procedure in the hope of expediting the business of the House.

On June 17, 1970,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. William V. Alexander, Jr., of Arkansas, asked unanimous consent to address the House for one minute and to revise and extend his remarks, after legislative business had been conducted. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, reserved the right to object and referred to the

4. 116 CONG. REC. 20245, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

Speaker's announcement, earlier in the day, that he would not recognize for one-minute speeches, in order to expedite the pending business. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, responded from the chair.

MR. GROSS: . . . Mr. Speaker, when the session opened this morning the Speaker—very providently, I thought—in the interest of getting on with the legislative business, precluded 1-minute speeches. However, I am not at all certain that it was done for the purpose of expediting the legislation, but rather to prevent 1-minute speeches on the resolution just passed.

Mr. Speaker, I am not going to object in this instance, but I know of no reason why political speeches such as we have heard from two of the preceding speakers should further delay the legislative process at this time.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Iowa that earlier in the day the Chair did make the statement that the Chair would not entertain unanimous-consent requests for 1 minute speeches to be delivered until later on in the day.

I am sure that the gentleman from Iowa clearly understood that statement on the part of the Speaker. At that particular time the Chair stated that the Chair would recognize Members for unanimous-consent requests to extend their remarks in the Record or unanimous-consent requests to speak for 1 minute with the understanding that they would not take their time but would yield back their time.

I think the Chair clearly indicated that the Chair would recognize Members for that purpose at a later time during the day. As far as the Chair is concerned the custom of the 1-minute speech procedure is adhered to as much as possible because the Chair thinks it is a very healthy custom.

The Chair had the intent, after the disposition of the voting rights bill, to recognize Members for 1-minute speeches or further unanimous-consent requests if they desired to do so.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.⁽⁵⁾

§ 73.6 While one-minute speeches are normally entertained at the beginning of the legislative day, immediately following the approval of the Journal, the Speaker has on occasion recognized Members to proceed for one minute after business has been completed.

On Oct. 15, 1969,⁽⁶⁾ after legislative business had been conducted, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. William E. Brock, 3d, of Tennessee, for one minute. Mr. Brock criticized unnamed Members for following double standards as to the right of free speech and dissent. Mr. Arnold Olsen, of Montana, then attempted to rise to a question of personal privilege, based on Mr. Brock's remarks, and stated that Mr. Brock's address was entitled to a response of one minute. Speaker McCormack stated that under the circumstances he would grant that right and by unanimous consent recognized Mr. Olsen for one minute.

Parliamentarian's Note: Words uttered in debate do not raise a question of personal privilege, but instead of ruling on that point the Speaker recognized Mr. Olsen for a one-minute speech to reply to the remark he considered derogatory.

Restrictions on One-minute Speeches

§ 73.7 The Speaker reminded Members of the policy of some years that when there is a legislative program for the day, so-called one-minute speeches that contain more than 300 words would be put in the Record after the business of the day or in the appendix of the Record.

On Jan. 17, 1949,⁽⁷⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, made the following announcement, shortly after the convening of the 81st

7. 95 CONG. REC. 403, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

Congress, on the use and reporting of "one-minute" speeches before the legislative business of the day:

The Chair desires to make an announcement.

It has been the policy for some years now that when there is a legislative program for the day the so-called 1-minute speeches that contain more than 300 words will be put in the Record after the business of the day or in the Appendix of the Record. The Chair trusts that Members will regard this agreement that we have had for quite a while.⁽⁸⁾

8. For the evolution of the rule announced by the Speaker, see the following line of precedents: 91 CONG. REC. 1788, 79th Cong. 1st Sess., Mar. 6, 1945; 91 CONG. Parliamentarian's Note: The regulation on this subject promulgated by the Joint Committee on Printing (governing House proceedings printed in the Record) reads as follows:

1. Extensions of Remarks in the daily Congressional Record.—When the House has granted leave to print (1) a newspaper or magazine article, or (2) any other matter not germane to the proceedings, it shall be published under Extensions of Remarks. This rule shall not apply to quotations which form part of a speech of a Member, or to an authorized extension of his own remarks: Provided, That no address, speech, or article delivered or released subsequently to the sine die adjournment of a session of Congress may be printed in the Congressional Record. One-minute speeches delivered during the morning business of Congress shall not exceed 300 words. Statements exceeding this will be printed following the business of the day.⁽⁹⁾

§ 73.8 The Speaker stated that when the House meets and Members are recognized to extend remarks or to proceed for one minute and then

House and revise and extend his remarks, he may not without further consent include in those remarks extraneous matter, such as a speech made by another person. 92 CONG. REC. 129, 79th Cong. 2d Sess., Jan. 18, 1946.

9. This admonition reflected current policy of the joint committee as recently as Feb. 25, 1997.

a point of order of no quorum is made signalling the start of legislative business, it is not proper to recommence recognition to extend remarks and for one-minute speeches.

On Mar. 7, 1941,⁽¹⁰⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, made the following statement on recognition for nonlegislative matters at the beginning of the day:

Let the Chair make a statement. When the House meets and Members are recognized to extend their remarks or to proceed for 1 minute and all who are on the floor and so desire have been recognized, and then a point of no quorum is made in order to start the business of legislation for the day, the Chair thinks it is hardly proper to begin all over again in recognizing Members to extend their own remarks or to proceed for 1 minute, but the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Gifford].

§ 73.9 Members may not address the House for one-minute speeches more than once before the business of the day.

On Jan. 25, 1956,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, recognized Mr. J. Arthur Younger, of California, before the commencement of legislative business for the day, to make a one-minute speech on the subject of military figures criticizing "principles of government." Mr. Daniel J. Flood, of Pennsylvania, was later recognized for a one-minute speech on the same subject, and mentioned Mr. Younger's remarks. Mr. Younger sought recognition and the Speaker ruled as follows:

(Mr. Flood asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. FLOOD: Mr. Speaker, in further reference to the controversy in connection with General Ridgeway I must take diametric opposition to the gentleman from California [Mr. Younger]. . . .

MR. YOUNGER: Mr. Speaker, may I have the privilege of addressing the House, my name having been mentioned?

THE SPEAKER: No; not without unanimous consent of the House.

MR. YOUNGER: Then, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent—

THE SPEAKER: The Chair cannot recognize Members to speak for 1 minute more than once before the business of the day has been dispensed with. That has been the policy heretofore.⁽¹²⁾ for unanimous-consent requests to proceed for longer than one minute before the business of the day.

Extension of One-minute Speeches

On June 11, 1963,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Paul C. Jones, of Missouri, had the floor for a one-minute speech prior to the legislative business of the day and yielded to Mr. James C. Fulton, of Pennsylvania. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, interrupted Mr. Fulton to state that Mr. Jones' one minute had expired, and Mr. Fulton asked unanimous consent that Mr. Jones be given one additional minute.

The Speaker ruled that such a request was not in order and refused to recognize Mr. Fulton for the request.⁽¹⁴⁾

§ 73.11 The Speaker, with the unanimous consent of the House, permitted a Member to proceed for five minutes, during that part of the session when he would normally have recognized only for one-minute speeches, to refute a newspaper charge of improper conduct (in lieu of recognizing for one hour on a question of personal privilege).

On June 29, 1962,⁽¹⁵⁾ before the commencement of legislative business, and during the period when one-minute speeches were normally entertained, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, recognized Mr. H. Carl Andersen, of Minnesota, for a unanimous-consent request to proceed for five minutes and to revise and extend his remarks. There was no objection. Mr. Andersen discussed newspaper charges of improper conduct.

Parliamentarian's Note: Mr. Andersen had requested, before the opening of the session, that he be recognized on a point of personal privilege. Since the House had a busy schedule, the Speaker suggested that the business of the House could be expedited if Mr. Andersen would simply ask to proceed for five minutes rather than to take an hour under a point of personal privilege.⁽¹⁶⁾

Special-order Speeches; When Permitted

§ 73.12 Special orders of Members to address the House must follow the conclusion of the legislative program of the day, and the Speaker decides when the legislative program of the day has been completed.

On June 3, 1937,⁽¹⁷⁾ after Mr. John J. O'Connor, of New York, called up on behalf of the Committee on Rules a privileged resolution providing a special order, a point of order was made that there were some special orders on the calendar for Members to address the House, and the calendar did not indicate that privileged business was to precede those special orders. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, overruled the point of order and stated that under the new practice, special orders were to follow legislative business, including any privileged matters brought up by the House leadership or by the Committee on Rules.⁽¹⁸⁾

On Jan. 5, 1939,⁽¹⁹⁾ shortly after the convening of the 76th Congress, Majority Leader Rayburn made the following announcement:

Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, in order that there may be no misunderstanding may I say that last year the policy was adopted that when unanimous-consent requests were preferred that a Member might speak on a day certain it was always understood that he would speak after the disposition of matters on the Speaker's table and following the legislative program of that day, if there was any such program. Whether or not there will be a legislative program on Monday I do not know, but I doubt it. However, I want it understood that it will be the custom this year that when a Member requests time to speak this condition is coupled with his request.

§ 73.13 The Speaker may in his discretion, recognize for special orders when no legislative business is available for consideration with the understanding that further business, if ready for presentation, may follow.

On Dec. 14, 1971,⁽²⁰⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, made after object to all unanimous-consent requests to address the House unless the special orders should come after the conclusion of the legislative program of the day.

an announcement concerning recognition by the Chair for special-order speeches before the conclusion of remaining legislative business:

The Chair would like to advise the Members that in order to get as much accomplished as we can, and in view of the fact that we have no legislative business ready at this moment, we will call special orders, and after they are completed declare a recess, unless legislative business is in order.

The Chair in making this announcement will state that we are not setting this as a precedent, but that we are calling special orders today, and then going back to the legislative business, if any, after recessing if necessary.⁽¹⁾

§ 73.14 Requests to proceed "for one additional minute," while not entertained by the Chair at the beginning of the day, are permissible when business has been concluded (the request constituting, in substance, a request for a special order).

Before the inception of the policy that special-order speeches follow the legislative business of the day, it was held that a motion to correct the reference of a bill took precedence over a special order to address the House for a specified time after the reading and approval of the Journal. 78 CONG. REC. 2425, 2426, 73d Cong. 2d Sess., Feb. 12, 1934.

On June 13, 1963,⁽²⁾ after legislative business had been concluded for the day and there being no special orders scheduled, Mr. Ezekiel C. Gathings, of Arkansas, obtained unanimous consent to address the House for one minute and to revise and extend his remarks. At the expiration of the one minute, Mr. Gathings requested unanimous consent to proceed for an additional minute. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated that if there was no objection, the business being disposed of, the gentleman could proceed.

At the conclusion of Mr. Gathings' additional minute, Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, asked unanimous consent that Mr. Gathings be allowed to proceed for one additional minute. The Speaker entertained the request and made the following statement:

The Chair will state that the Chair is permitting this request although the Chair does not consider this is to be the 1-minute period such as we have before proceeding with the regular business of the House.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

Duration of Special-order Speeches

§ 73.15 Special orders to address the House at the conclusion of the business of the day are limited to one hour per Member; and when a Member has used one hour, the Chair declines to recognize him for extensions of time or for an additional special order.

On Feb. 9, 1966,⁽³⁾ Mr. Joseph Y. Resnick, of New York, who already had scheduled a special order for the day, asked unanimous consent that he have an additional special order to address the House for 15 minutes at the close of legislative business. Speaker Pro Tempore Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, declined to recognize him for that purpose, stating as follows:

The Chair would advise the gentleman that pursuant to the practice of the House, Members are limited to a 1-hour special order per day. The Chair would be glad to entertain a request for a special order for a later day.⁽⁴⁾

3. 112 CONG. REC. 2794, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

4. A Member may consume an hour for a special order and then be yielded time by the next Member with a special order; see 114 CONG. REC. 14265-71, 90th Cong. 2d Sess., May 21, 1968.

§ 73.16 By unanimous consent, a Member may be recognized for a one-hour speech to precede other special-order speeches already scheduled by the House.

On July 31, 1973,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. David R. Obey, of Wisconsin, asked unanimous consent that he be allowed to proceed for one hour preceding the special orders scheduled for the day. There was no objection to the request.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Speaker normally will not entertain such a request without advance consent from all Members whose special orders would be affected.

Extension of Special-order Speeches

§ 73.17 A Member recognized under a special order in the House may have his time for debate extended by unanimous consent, but a motion to that effect is not in order.

On June 13, 1972,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Jack F. Kemp, of New York, was recognized to speak for 10 minutes on a special order. At the conclusion of the 10 minutes, Mr. Charles S.

6. 118 CONG. REC. 20681, 92d Cong. 2d Sess.

Gubser, of California, asked unanimous consent that Mr. Kemp be given an additional 10 minutes. Mr. William D. Ford, of Michigan, objected to the request, and Mr. John E. Hunt, of New Jersey, moved that Mr. Kemp be given 10 minutes additional time. Speaker Pro Tempore William J. Randall, of Missouri, ruled that the motion was not in order:

The Chair will have to state that a motion to that effect is not in order at this time. Other special orders have previously been granted, and the Chair will state that the motion is not in order.

Parliamentarian's Note: An extension of time for debate under a special order, even though by unanimous consent, is technically not possible where the extension would extend the time beyond one hour. The Chair would not normally entertain a request which would permit debate in violation of the hour rule.

§ 73.18 When additional time to speak under a special order was requested, the Speaker advised the Member that other Members were also waiting to be recognized on special orders.

On June 23, 1964,⁽⁷⁾ Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, was addressing the House, at the conclusion of business, on a special order and asked unanimous consent to proceed for five additional minutes. Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, advised him that there were three other special orders following Mr. Patman. Mr. Patman withdrew his request.

7. 110 CONG. REC. 14719, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

Interruption of Special-order Speech

§ 73.19 A motion to suspend the rules may be entertained while another Member controls the floor for a “special-order speech” if the Member with the floor voluntarily yields the floor for that purpose.

On Oct. 2, 1973,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. J. J. Pickle, of Texas, had the floor for one hour for a special-order speech. He had consumed 31 minutes when he suspended temporarily to allow Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, to move to suspend the rules and pass the bill, Senate Joint Resolution 160, to extend laws on the payment of interest on savings deposits. After disposition of the motion to suspend the rules, Mr. Pickle was again recognized by Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, to consume his remaining 29 minutes.

Postponement of Special-order Speeches

§ 73.20 The Speaker announced that Members would not be recognized for special orders, which were transferred to the following day by unanimous consent, due to the death of a Senator.

On Jan. 20, 1958,⁽⁹⁾ following the death of Senator Matthew M. Nelly, of West Virginia, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, made an announcement on the disposition of special orders.

The Chair will state to those Members who have special orders for today, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. Bailey], the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Patman], and the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. Gathings] that we will not have any special orders today. So they may govern themselves accordingly.

Special orders were then transferred by unanimous consent:

MR. [CARL] ALBERT [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all special orders entered for today may be transferred to tomorrow.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

9. 104 CONG. REC. 670, 674, 85th Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 73.21 Special orders to address the House, totaling more than 21 hours, were requested for a certain day but were later withdrawn at the request of the Majority Leader, who suggested that they be again requested when the Members desiring the time were on the floor.

On Oct. 8, 1969,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Michael J. Harrington, of Massachusetts, made a series of requests for certain Members to address the House on Oct. 14, 1969, following legislative business; the special orders requested for that day totaled 21 hours and 45 minutes. Mr. Durward G. Hall, of Missouri, reserved the right to object and inquired whether legislative business for Oct. 14 could not be expected to total more than three hours. Majority Leader Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, responded that it was entirely possible that legislative business could consume more than three hours on Oct. 14.

Mr. Hall then objected to any special orders over the first 12 hours requested for Oct. 14. All the special orders requested were then withdrawn at the request of Mr. Albert:

Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that there has been objection and that some of the special orders will be necessarily stricken and Members who are not here now are involved, I would request the gentleman from Massachusetts not to make the request tonight, in order that it might be made tomorrow when those concerned are present.

Parliamentarian's Note: Most of the Members for whom special orders were requested were opponents of the Vietnam war. Their announced intention was to use the special orders to keep the House in session throughout the night to dramatize the war protest scheduled to begin in major cities of the nation, including Washington, on Oct. 14, 1969.

§ 73.22 The Speaker announced the procedure whereby (and the time at which) Members would be recognized to make speeches up to one minute in length.

On Jan. 23, 1975,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, made the following statement:

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

THE SPEAKER: May the Chair state, particularly for the benefit of new Members, that we generally open the proceedings, after the prayer and disposition of the Journal and things which are immediately on the Speaker's desk, by recognizing Members for individual requests and for speeches up to 1 minute.

11. 121 CONG. REC. 1163, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Chair habitually and regularly starts at the extreme right and goes all the way around; then comes back and starts over. If Members want to be heard, the Chair wants to take them in that order. So, Members will be recognized in the order from the first seat to the Speaker's right to the last seat on the Speaker's left, and then the process will be repeated, if other Members come in.

§ 73.23 While debate on a conference report is limited to one hour⁽¹²⁾ to be equally divided between majority and minority parties,⁽¹³⁾ the House may, by unanimous consent, either extend that time or permit debate by "special order" on the conference report prior to actual consideration thereof; thus, on one occasion, by unanimous consent, two Members, the chairman and ranking minority member of the House conferees, were permitted "special orders" of one hour each to debate a conference report following adoption of a resolution making in order the consideration of the report but prior to actual consideration of the report.

On Mar. 26, 1975,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House relative to consideration of the conference report on H.R. 2166, the Tax Reduction Act of 1975:

MR. [SPARK M.] MATSUNAGA [of Hawaii]: Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman).

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2166, TAX
REDUCTION ACT OF 1975

Mr. [Al] Ullman [of Oregon] submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 2166) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 . . . to increase the investment credit and the surtax exemption, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. 94-

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2166) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 . . . having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Tax Reduction Act of 1975”. . . .

MR. ULLMAN: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that upon the adoption of the rule I be granted a 60-minute special order.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, we have in the rules of the House an adequate rule for the consideration of conference reports. . . . I have no way of knowing, nor does any Member in this Chamber know, who will control the time during a special order, except the gentleman from Oregon, whether questions, once raised, will be answered, or whether or not debate will deteriorate into partisan debate.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman is very effectively but improperly stating the rules. The minority has 30 minutes and the majority has 30 minutes on the conference report.

MR. BAUMAN: I am talking about the lack of protection contained in the request for the 1-hour special order that was just made by the gentleman from Oregon.

THE SPEAKER: Any Member of the House may make a request for a special order.

MR. BAUMAN: I withdraw my reservation of objection.

MR. [HERMAN T.] SCHNEEBELI [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I also ask for a 60-minute special order following that of the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman).

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Recognition and Limitation of Time for Special-order Speeches; “Oxford-style” Debates

§ 73.24 Pursuant to several unanimous-consent requests, the House agreed to a 90-day trial period from February 23 through May 23, 1994, [subsequently extended on several occasions] and agreed on a format of recognition and limitation of time for each party for special-order speeches, including periodic “Oxford style” structured debates and morning-hour debates; the Speaker then announced the applicable guidelines for recognition during such speeches and debate.

The following unanimous-consent request was agreed to on Feb. 11, 1994:⁽¹⁶⁾

MR. [RICHARD A.] GEPHARDT [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, following my unanimous-consent request to put in place an agreed upon format for recognitions to address the House during a 90-day trial period beginning February 23, 1994, including a morning hour debate, an Oxford style debate and a restriction on special order speeches, the Speaker will announce his guidelines for recognition. In so doing it is stipulated that the establishment of this format for recognition by the Speaker is without prejudice to the Speaker's ultimate power of recognition under clause 1, rule XIV should circumstances so warrant.

15. Carl Albert (Okla.).

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the special orders previously granted by the House to address the House on dates through May 23, 1994 be vacated;

Further that during the period beginning February 23, 1994 and for 90 days thereafter, on Mondays and Tuesdays of each week the House convene 90 minutes earlier than the time otherwise established by order of the House solely for the purpose of conducting morning hour debates to be followed by a recess declared by the Speaker pursuant to clause 12, rule I under the following conditions:

(1) Prayer by the Chaplain, approval of the Journal and the pledge of allegiance to the flag to be postponed until the resumption of the House session following the completion of morning hour debate;

(2) Debate to be limited not to exceed 30 minutes allocated to each party, with initial and subsequent recognition alternating daily between parties to be conferred by the Speaker only pursuant to lists submitted by the majority leader and minority leaders respectively (no Member on such lists to be permitted to address the House for longer than 5 minutes except for the majority leader and minority leader respectively);

Further, that on (every third) Wednesday, beginning on a day to be designated by the Speaker and mutually agreed upon by the majority leader and minority leader, it shall be in order, at a time to be determined by the Speaker, for the Speaker to recognize the majority leader and minority leader (or their designees), jointly, for a period of not to exceed 2 hours, for the purpose of holding a structured debate. The topic of the debate, when mutually agreed upon by the majority leader and minority leader, shall be announced by the Speaker. The format of the debate, which shall allow for participation by four Members of the majority party and four from the minority party in the House, chosen by their respective party leaders, with specified times for presentations and rebuttals by all participants, and periods of questioning of each Member by others participating, shall be announced to the House by the Speaker.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

Subsequently, the Speaker announced the following guidelines for implementation of the unanimous-consent agreement:

THE SPEAKER: With respect to special orders to address the House for up to 1 hour at the conclusion of legislative business or on days when no legislative business is scheduled, the Chair announced that:

First, Tuesdays, following legislative business, there will be an unlimited period of special orders not extending beyond midnight, with recognition for 5-minute and then for longer special orders alternating between the parties and with initial recognition, for longer special orders, rotating on a daily basis between the parties, and with the first hour of recognition on each side reserved to the House leadership—majority leader and whip and minority leader or their designee;

Second, on Mondays, Wednesdays, except those Wednesdays when Oxford style debates are in order, Thursdays and Fridays, the Chair will recognize Members from each party for up to 2 hours of special order debate at the conclusion of legislative business and 5-minute special orders, or when no legislative business is scheduled, not extending beyond midnight, again with initial recognition alternating between the parties on a daily basis and with the allocation of time within each 2-hour period, or short period if prorated to end by midnight, to be determined by a list submitted to the Chair by the House leadership, majority leader and whip and minority leader or designees, respectively, and with the first hour of recognition on each side reserved to the House leadership, majority leader and whip and minority leader or their designees. Members will be limited to signing up for all such special orders no earlier than 1 week prior to the special order, and additional guidelines may be established for such sign-ups by the majority and minority leaders, respectively. One-minute speeches on those days both prior to and at the conclusion of legislative business shall be at the discretion of the Speaker;

Third, pursuant to clause 9(b)(1) of rule I, during this trial period the television cameras will not pan the Chamber, but a crawl indicating morning hour or that the House has completed its legislative business and is proceeding with special order speeches will appear on the screen. Other television camera adaptations during this period may be announced by the Chair;

Fourth, special orders to extend beyond the 4-hour period may be permitted at the discretion of the Chair with advance consultation between the leaderships and notification to the House.

Parliamentarian's Note: On subsequent occasions, the House extended the above unanimous-consent agreement.⁽¹⁸⁾ On May 12, 1995, the House extended the agreement by unanimous consent, but changed the Tuesday morning hour to 9 a.m.

MR. [RICHARD K.] ARMEY [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the order of the House of January 4, 1995, relating to morning hour debates be continued through the adjournment of the 2d session of the 104th Congress sine die, except that on Tuesdays the House shall convene for such debate 1 hour earlier than the time otherwise established by order of the House rather than 90 minutes earlier; and the time for such debates shall be limited to 25 minutes allocated to each party rather than 30 minutes to each; but in no event shall such debates continue beyond the time that falls 10 minutes before the appointed hour for the resumption of legislative business, and with the understanding that the format for recognition for special order speeches first instituted on February 23, 1994, be continued for the same period. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Meetings of the leadership following the February 11 proceedings produced further guidelines for implementation of the special order and morning-hour procedures. The guidelines provided, among other matters, for alternation of recognition between the parties, and for procedures whereby Members sign up in advance for special orders, the majority in the Majority Leader's office and the minority in the cloakroom, the lists to be approved on the floor. For the Oxford-style debates, each leader would designate four participants for the debate every third Wednesday, to be held on a mutually agreeable topic announced by the Speaker. Guidelines for the morning hour on every Monday and Tuesday also provided for allocation of time and for the procedure of signing up with the party leaders.⁽¹⁹⁾

§ 74. In General; Effect of Special Rules

The Committee of the Whole considers propositions on the Union Calendar and other propositions made in order under that procedure by unanimous consent or by special rule.⁽²⁰⁾ The procedure in the Committee of the Whole is provided for in part by Rule XXIII.⁽¹⁾ In addition, where applicable, the rules and procedures of the House are observed in the Committee of the Whole.⁽²⁾ Rule XXIII clause 5 provides that there first be general debate, then amendment under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole.⁽³⁾ The duration of time for general debate is usually governed by a special rule, reported by the Committee on Rules and entertained in the House before resolving into Committee, or by a unanimous-consent request, providing a certain number of hours for general debate. The rule may also provide that debate proceed for a day or more.⁽⁴⁾

The time for general debate provided for by the House can be “yielded back” by the managers, but the Committee of the Whole cannot extend the time fixed by the order of the House. The House, of course, can curtail or even extend the debate in the Committee.⁽⁵⁾ If not fixed by special rule, general debate may be limited by unanimous consent before it begins or by motion or unanimous consent in the House after it commences.⁽⁶⁾ The Members in control of the time for general debate may decline to consume all the time allotted by a special rule.

A special rule may restrict the operation of the five-minute rule by permitting only specified amendments or no amendments to be offered to the bill.⁽⁷⁾ The five-minute rule is also abrogated by a motion or unanimous-consent agreement that debate on amendments be limited; in that situation the Chairman, in his discretion and with the consent of the Committee, distributes the time among Members.⁽⁸⁾

After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and continue not to exceed two days to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary and the ranking minority member thereof, the bill shall be considered as having been read and open at any point for amendment under the five-minute rule. . . .⁽¹⁰⁾

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill H.R. 10132, a bill to protect the integrity and institutions of the United States through a system of selective compulsory military training and service. That after general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and continue not to exceed 2 days, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Military Affairs, the bill shall be read for amendment under the 5-minute rule. . . .⁽¹¹⁾

Counting of Time by Chair

§ 74.1 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole counts the allotted time for debate and announces the expiration thereof.

On Dec. 17, 1970,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. John Conyers, Jr., of Michigan, was yielded a certain number of minutes for general debate in the Committee of the Whole by the Member in charge. At the expiration of said time, Chairman James C. Corman, of California, announced that Mr. Conyers' time had expired and declined to entertain a request by Mr. Conyers for additional time, the time being under the control of the Members in charge.

§ 74.2 Where there was a discrepancy in the times shown on the clocks in the House Chamber, the Chair stated he would rely on the clock on the north wall in deciding when time had expired.

^{12.} 116 CONG. REC. 42222, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

On Feb. 10, 1964,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole had agreed to a unanimous-consent limitation on debate, but the clocks in the House Chamber differed as to the time. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, stated that he would rely on the clock on the north wall in deciding when time had expired.

Duration of Debate Fixed by House

§ 74.3 In the consideration of the general appropriation bill of 1951, containing numerous appropriations for the various agencies of the government, the House agreed by unanimous consent to provide two hours' general debate in the Committee of the Whole on each chapter as it was read.

On Apr. 3, 1950,⁽¹⁴⁾ Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, moved to resolve into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of H.R. 7786, the general appropriation bill of 1951, and made the following unanimous-consent request on the control of time for debate, which was agreed to by the House:

Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; and pending that I ask unanimous consent that time for general debate be equally divided, one-half to be controlled by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Taber] and one-half by myself; that debate be confined to the bill; and that following the reading of the first chapter of the bill, not to exceed 2 hours general debate be had before the reading of each subsequent chapter, one-half to be controlled by the chairman and one-half by the ranking minority member of the subcommittee in charge of the chapter.

Parliamentarian's Note: In prior years there had been 11 separate appropriation bills for the various government agencies. In 1951 they were consolidated into one bill.

Effect of House Rules

§ 74.4 Although under a special rule a Member may have control of more than one hour of general debate on a bill in the Committee of the Whole, he may not, under the general rules of the House, himself consume more than one hour, but may be yielded time by another Member controlling time.

On June 21, 1971,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, was in control of four hours of general debate in the Committee of the Whole on H.R. 1, the social security amendments of 1971, pursuant to House Resolution 487, making in order the consideration of the bill and dividing control of eight hours of general debate.

Mr. Mills asked unanimous consent for an extension of time for his remarks:

I cannot yield myself more than an hour, so, Mr. Chairman, I will ask unanimous consent to proceed for 5 additional minutes, only for the purpose of answering questions.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ To whom shall the time be charged?

MR. [JOHN W.] BYRNES of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Mills).

[Mr. Mills was recognized for five minutes.]

§ 74.5 The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request that it be in order to consider a Union Calendar bill under the general rules of the House, limiting debate in the Committee of the Whole to one hour (to be followed by reading for amendment under the five-minute rule).

On Sept. 7, 1959,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House agreed to the following request by Mr. Armistead I. Selden, Jr., of Alabama, to consider a Union Calendar bill in the Committee of the Whole under the rules of the House:

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it may be in order to consider under the general rules of the House the bill (H.R. 9069) to provide standards for the issuance of passports, and for other purposes; that general debate continue for not to exceed 1 hour, one-half to be controlled by myself and one-half controlled by the ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Parliamentarian's Note: Without the adoption of the request as stated, the unanimous-consent consideration of a bill on the Union Calendar would either be under the five-minute rule in the House as in the Committee of the Whole without general debate or would be "in the House" under the hour rule if stated in that form.⁽¹⁸⁾ that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for one hour's debate to be followed by reading for amendment under the five-minute rule on a Senate concurrent resolution on the House Calendar.

On June 22, 1965,⁽¹⁹⁾ the House agreed to the following unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a Senate concurrent resolution on the House Calendar:

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 36 expressing the sense of the Congress with respect to the 20th anniversary of the United Nations during International Cooperation Year, and for other purposes, and that general debate thereon be limited to 1 hour, one-half hour to be controlled by myself and one-half hour to be controlled by the gentlewoman from Ohio [Mrs. Bolton].

The House agreed to the request.

Special Rule for Debate

§ 74.7 The Committee on Rules may report out a special rule fixing time for debate on a bill at a certain number of days instead of hours.

19. 111 CONG. REC. 14400, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

On Sept. 3, 1940,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois, called up, at the direction of the Committee on Rules, House Resolution 586, which provided for two days of debate on H.R. 10132, a bill to protect the integrity and institutions of the United States through a system of selective compulsory military training and service.

Speaker Pro Tempore Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, overruled a point of order against the resolution:

MR. [VITO] MARCANTONIO [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARCANTONIO: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the resolution is contrary to the unwritten law of the House. It has been the universal practice, custom, and tradition of the House to have debate fixed by hours. This resolution fixes general debate by days. This is entirely meaningless, because a day may be terminated by a motion that the Committee rise or by adjournment, and for that reason I press my point of order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is prepared to rule. The gentleman from New York makes the point of order that the resolution is contrary to the unwritten rules of the House in that general debate is fixed by days instead of hours.

In the first place, the point of order comes too late.

In the second place, this is a resolution reported by the Committee on Rules to change the rules of the House, which is permissible on anything except that which is prohibited by the Constitution.

The point of order is overruled.

§ 74.8 Where debate on a bill is fixed by special rule at one day, the term "one day" means one legislative day as terminated by adjournment.

On Aug. 17, 1949, the House adopted House Resolution 327, providing for debate not to exceed one day on H.R. 5895, furnishing military assistance to foreign nations. When the House had resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of the bill, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the meaning of the term "one day."⁽¹⁾

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule general debate will be equally divided and will not exceed one day.

MR. [JOSEPH P.] O'HARA of Minnesota: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. O'HARA of Minnesota: What is meant by the term "one day"?

THE CHAIRMAN: The term means one legislative day as terminated by adjournment, from now until the time the House adjourns.

20. 86 CONG. REC. 11358-60, 76th Cong. 3d Sess.

1. 95 CONG. REC. 11666, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 74.9 Where a bill is considered in the Committee of the Whole under a resolution providing for not to exceed two days of debate, the Committee of the Whole determines the completion of one day of general debate when, after there has been general debate on the bill, the Committee rises and the House then adjourns.

On Feb. 17, 1955,⁽²⁾ Chairman Richard W. Bolling, of Missouri, answered a parliamentary inquiry on how the completion of a day is determined, under a special order fixing debate at two days in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GROSS: The resolution which we adopted this afternoon provides that after the adoption of the resolution general debate shall start and shall be confined to the bill and shall continue for not to exceed 2 days. My question is, Starting debate at 4:15 in the afternoon, as we did today [after] the adoption of the resolution, does that constitute a legislative day?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would answer the gentleman that this would be a matter for the committee to decide. The present occupant of the chair understands that the day is not divided by the House or by the committee.

2. 101 CONG. REC. 1688, 84th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. GROSS: Then this would or would not be called a legislative day so far as general debate upon this bill is concerned?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is the understanding of the Chair that when the Committee of the Whole rises after concluding debate on this subject today that would constitute 1 day.

Limiting Debate Time Provided by Special Rule

§ 74.10 Where the Committee of the Whole rose, after consuming a portion of the three hours' time prescribed by a special rule for debate, the House agreed by unanimous consent that when the Committee should resume consideration of the bill, the debate be further limited to 30 minutes.

On June 27, 1968,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole had arisen after consuming a portion of the three hours of general debate on S. 1166 (Gas Pipeline Safety Act), which time was provided for in House Resolution 1215. The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request further limiting debate in the Committee of the Whole on the bill:

MR. [HARLEY O.] STAGGERS [of West Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the Committee of the Whole continues the consideration of the bill (S. 1166) to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to prescribe safety standards for the transportation of natural and other gas by pipeline, and for other purposes, that the time for general debate be limited to 30 minutes with 15 minutes for the minority and 15 minutes for the majority side.

3. 114 CONG. REC. 19105, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

§ 74.11 Where the Committee of the Whole is proceeding in general debate on a bill pursuant to a special rule adopted by the House, a motion in the Committee that such debate be closed instantly is not in order.

On Sept. 25, 1951,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate on H.R. 39, the Marketing Facilities Act. Chairman Lindley Beckworth, of Texas, stated that under the special rule adopted by the House for consideration of the bill, Mr. Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, had 30 minutes of debate and Mr. Clifford R. Hope, of Kansas, 30 minutes. Mr. Paul W. Shafer, of Michigan, made a point of order and then withdrew it, but also moved that debate be closed “now” and that “we vote on the bill.” The Chairman ruled that the motion was not in order.

4. John W. McCormack (Mass.).

5. 97 CONG. REC. 12084, 12089, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

Closing General Debate and Limiting Five-minute Debate on Bill Being Considered in Committee of the Whole § 74.12 The House may adopt a special order from the Committee on Rules providing that a bill be considered as read for amendment in the Committee of the Whole and providing that five-minute debate be limited.

On Apr. 17, 1936,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. John J. O'Connor, of New York, of the Committee on Rules, offered a resolution providing a special order of business and explained its effect on five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. O'CONNOR: Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution 489.

The Clerk read as follows:

HOUSE RESOLUTION 489

Resolved, That immediately upon the adoption of this resolution the House shall resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of H.R. 11563, a bill declaring an emergency in the housing condition in the District of Columbia. . . . General debate on said bill shall be considered as closed, and the bill shall be considered as having been read the second time. Amendments may be offered to any section of the bill, but debate under the 5-minute rule shall be closed within one hour and a half. . . .

MR. O'CONNOR: . . . Mr. Speaker, this is a rule for the consideration of the District of Columbia rent bill. The bill has been debated for 3 whole days. There was an obvious filibuster carried on against it, and it was thought best to bring in a rule to bring the matter to an issue.

This rule is not strictly a gag rule. There has been more debate on this bill than on any other ordinary bill. So debate has not been gagged.

All this rule does is to provide for an hour and a half of debate on amendments, and that the debate shall then close. That same result could be accomplished by a motion in the Committee of the Whole at any time, when debate could be shut off. The rule is in that respect more liberal than the general rules. It is true that the rule provides that the bill shall be considered as having been read the second time. The bill has been read in full the first time before the filibuster, and the waiver of reading the bill a second time denies no one any rights.

Under the rule the House automatically resolves itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and amendments are then in order to any part of the bill. Debate on these amendments must close within an hour and a half, but that does not cut off the offering of any amendment to the bill. There is no gag in the rule. A gag rule prevents or limits amendments. The rule is simply an attempt to expedite the business of the House. It does not go into the merits of the measure, but simply provides that, after due consideration, this House must function and that no filibustering can be permitted to interfere with the orderly, expeditious, and respectable conduct of the proceedings in this House.

§ 74.13 The Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request limiting five-minute debate to a certain number of minutes of debate on each of the seven remaining titles of a bill.

On July 24, 1974,⁽⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole resumed further consideration of H.R. 11500, the Surface Mining and Reclamation Act of 1974. Chairman Neal Smith, of Iowa, explained the parliamentary situation:

Before the Committee rose on yesterday, it had agreed that the remainder of the substitute committee amendment titles II through VIII, inclusive, would be considered as read and open to amendment at any point.

The Committee further agreed that the time for debate under the 5-minute rule would be limited to not to exceed 3 hours and allocated time to titles II through VIII as follows: 50 minutes for title II, 20 minutes for title III, 50 minutes for title IV, 5 minutes for title V, 5 minutes for title VI, 40 minutes for title VII, and 10 minutes for title VIII.

7. 120 CONG. REC. 25009, 25010, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

In an attempt to be consistent with the unanimous-consent agreement entered into on yesterday, the Chair will endeavor to recognize all Members who wish to offer or debate amendments to title II during the 50 minutes of time for debate on that title.

If Members who have printed their amendments to title II in the Record would agree to offer those amendments during the 50-minute period and to be recognized for the allotted time, the Chair will recognize both Committee and non-Committee members for that purpose.

Members who have caused amendments to title II to be printed in the Record, however, are protected under clause 6, rule XXIII, and will be permitted to debate for 5 minutes any such amendment which they might offer to title II at the conclusion of the 50 minutes of debate thereon.

The Chair will now compile a list of those Members seeking recognition to offer or debate amendments to title II and will allocate 50 minutes for debate accordingly.

The Chair will give preference where possible to those Members who have amendments to offer to title II.

Members who were standing at the time of the determination of the time allocation will be recognized for 1 minute and 20 seconds each.

MR. [WILLIAM M.] KETCHUM [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. KETCHUM: Mr. Chairman, I note that the time is approximately 6:30 p.m., and it is my understanding that the Committee will rise at 7 o'clock p.m., tonight.

Does that mean now that the Members who have not been recognized in these next 30 minutes will be continued to be recognized tomorrow when we resume debate on this great issue?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that time will remain on this title. The gentleman is correct.

§ 74.14 The House agreed by unanimous consent that there be 30 additional minutes of debate in the Committee of the Whole on a specified amendment to a bill being considered under a rule prohibiting pro forma amendments.

On Apr. 20, 1955,⁽⁸⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 211, providing for consideration of H.R. 4644, to increase the salaries of postal employees and for other purposes. The resolution provided that only specified amendments could be offered and that no amendments could be offered to said amendments. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that under the special rule only two five-minute speeches would be permitted on each specified amendment, five minutes in favor and five minutes against.

Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, propounded a unanimous-consent request to extend the time for debate on one such amendment:

Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a unanimous-consent request. The point has been raised that there will be only 10 minutes of debate on this very controversial amendment on the pay question, which is to be found at page 82 of the bill. I should like to state frankly that I did not notice that. I believe that we should provide time for pro forma amendments, to any amendment that is offered. It was not my purpose to restrict the debate in this way. This was not called to my attention until this morning.

After consultation with the minority, I ask unanimous consent that debate under the 5-minute rule on the amendment which will be offered at page 82 of the bill relating to the pay schedule, be extended for 30 additional minutes, which will provide 40 minutes of debate. . . .

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia that the time for debate on the amendment which the gentleman identified be extended 30 minutes?

MR. [LEO E.] ALLEN of Illinois: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, who will have control of the time under that procedure?

THE SPEAKER: It will be up to the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole to recognize Members under the 5-minute rule.

MR. [JOSEPH W.] MARTIN [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, and I am not going to object, I think we can have assurance that both sides will be equally recognized in the 30 minutes.

MR. SMITH of Virginia: I assume everybody will be fair.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

§ 74.15 When a committee amendment is being considered under a "closed" rule prohibiting amendments thereto, only two five-minute speeches are in order, pro forma amendments are not permitted and a third Member may be recognized only by unanimous consent.

An illustration of the proposition described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 8, 1977,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of the Tax Reduction and Simplification Act of 1977 (H.R. 3477). The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [WILLIAM M.] KETCHUM [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the committee amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair will state that only two 5-minute speeches are in order under the rule absent unanimous consent.

MR. KETCHUM: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to speak in favor of the amendment.

9. 123 CONG. REC. 6632, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. Tom Bevill (Ala.).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: If a special rule provides that only designated amendments may be offered, but does not restrict the amending of such amendments, Members can be recognized to offer pro forma and substantive amendments to the designated amendments under the five-minute rule.

§ 74.16 General debate in the Committee of the Whole having been set by a special rule adopted by the House, may not be extended beyond that time in Committee of the Whole even by unanimous consent.

On Feb. 22, 1980,⁽¹¹⁾ it was demonstrated that the Committee of the Whole cannot by unanimous consent directly change a rule adopted by the House. The proceedings were as follows:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The time of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Fascell) has expired.

MR. [TOM] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman in the well be given an additional 3 minutes.

11. 126 CONG. REC. 3564, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

12. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that all time has expired under the rule. The Committee of the Whole cannot change the rule adopted by the House.

§ 74.17 Where only certain amendments are made in order in Committee of the Whole pursuant to a "modified closed" rule, and those amendments are disposed of or are not offered, no further debate is in order except by unanimous consent.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 350 (proposing an amendment to the Constitution altering federal budget procedures) in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 1, 1982,⁽¹³⁾ the Chair responded to several parliamentary inquiries, as indicated below:

MR. [PETER W.] RODINO [Jr., of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

[I]n view of the fact that the Alexander amendment has been voted down, what is the status now of the joint resolution, House Joint Resolution 350?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Chair will state that under the rule the gentleman from New York (Mr. Conable) has the opportunity to offer his amendment.

MR. RODINO: I have a further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. In

13. 128 CONG. REC. 27254, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

14. Edward P. Boland (Mass.).

the event that the gentleman from New York (Mr. Conable) declines to take his time, what will be the status of those who were in opposition and who had intended to speak in opposition to House Joint Resolution 350?

THE CHAIRMAN: No further amendment is in order, and the Committee will rise if the gentleman from New York (Mr. Conable) does not offer his amendment.

MR. RODINO: Mr. Chairman, would it then be in order to make a unanimous consent request?

THE CHAIRMAN: The answer is, yes, but it must be by unanimous consent.

MR. RODINO: Mr. Chairman, I then ask unanimous consent that in the event the gentleman from New York (Mr. Conable), the author of House Joint Resolution 350, declines to take his time, the majority leader and the Speaker, who had requested time of the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, be allowed 10 minutes, and that the other side be allowed 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

MR. [CARROLL] CAMPBELL [Jr., of South Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

Does the gentleman from New York (Mr. Conable) wish to offer an amendment?

MR. [BARBER B.] CONABLE [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I elect not to offer my amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Parliamentarian's Note: In the above circumstances, a preferential motion, that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the resolution to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, made for the purpose of obtaining time for debate, would not be in order after disposition of the Alexander amendment if Mr. Conable did not seek recognition to offer the only other amendment made in order since the preferential motion is not in order where the stage of amendment is passed.

§ 74.18 Where the House has adopted a special rule limiting debate on an amendment in Committee of the Whole and equally dividing the time between the proponent and an opponent, the Committee of the Whole may, by unanimous consent, allocate some of the opposition time to the proponent where no Member has claimed time in opposition.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 3, 1983,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1718 (emergency appropriations for fiscal 1983):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ Pursuant to House Resolution 113, the gentleman

15. 129 CONG. REC. 3939, 3943, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

16. David E. Bonior (Mich.).

from New Jersey (Mr. Howard) will be recognized for 15 minutes, and a Member opposed to the amendment will be recognized for the other 15 minutes.

Is there a Member opposed who wishes to control that time?

No Member has responded, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Howard) for 15 minutes.

MR. [M. G. (GENE)] SNYDER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SNYDER: The Chairman, since no one has risen in opposition, would it be permissible to ask unanimous consent to transfer 5 minutes of the opposition time to the gentleman from New Jersey?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under unanimous consent, yes.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Chairman, I make that request.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Committee of the Whole may not by unanimous consent extend time for debate set by the House, but may reallocate time where there is no opposition.

Enacting Clause Where Pro Forma Amendments Prohibited

§ 74.19 A special rule governing consideration of a bill

in Committee of the Whole which prohibits the Chair from entertaining pro forma amendments for the purpose of debate does not preclude the offering of a preferential motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, since that motion is not a pro forma amendment and must be voted on (or withdrawn by unanimous consent).

On May 4, 1983,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration House Joint Resolution 13, calling for a freeze and reduction in nuclear weapons. House Joint Resolution 13 was being considered pursuant to a special rule agreed to on Mar. 16,⁽¹⁸⁾ and a special rule providing for additional procedures for consideration, including the prohibition of pro forma amendments offered for purposes of obtaining debate time, agreed to on May 4.⁽¹⁹⁾ A preferential motion was offered:

MR. [ELLIOTT H.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

17. 129 CONG. REC. 11072, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

18. H. Res. 138, 129 CONG. REC. 5666, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

19. H. Res. 179, 129 CONG. REC. 11037, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Levitas moves that the Committee rise and report the resolution back to the House with the recommendation that the resolving clause be stricken.

MR. [THOMAS J.] DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, my understanding of the rule is that there is a provision in the rule that prohibits motions of this sort for the purpose of debate time. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman it only prohibits pro forma amendments, not preferential motions such as the gentleman has offered.

§ 75. General Debate

On most bills considered in the Committee of the Whole, a special rule reported from the Committee on Rules and adopted by the House provides for a certain number of hours of general debate, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the reporting committee.⁽¹⁾ If no special rule provides for the duration of general debate, the House may agree by unanimous consent to limit such debate.⁽²⁾ And where the House has fixed the time for general debate, the Committee may not, even by unanimous consent, extend such time.⁽³⁾

If neither a special rule nor a unanimous-consent agreement has provided for the duration of general debate in the Committee, the debate proceeds under the hour rule, each Member being recognized for one hour, and is unlimited until the Committee or the House acts to close the debate.⁽⁴⁾

General Debate Under the Hour Rule

§ 75.1 Absent an agreement in the House limiting the time for general debate in the Committee of the Whole, debate in the Committee is under the hour rule.

On July 28, 1969,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. John Dowdy, of Texas, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of H.R. 9553, amending the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act, in the House as in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Brock Adams, of Washington, reserved the right to object and propounded a parliamentary inquiry:

If the gentleman from Washington should object to the request and we should go into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of this bill, then what would be the time requirements? Would there be 1 hour of debate to be divided between the opposition and the proponents?

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ The Chair will state that if the unanimous-consent request is objected to, under the rules a motion will be in order to go into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and the gentleman from Texas would control 1 hour, unless the time is fixed by unanimous consent prior to going into the Committee of the Whole.⁽⁷⁾

§ 75.2 General debate in the Committee of the Whole when considering District of Columbia business is under the hour rule and is otherwise unlimited unless the House provides otherwise.

On May 12, 1941,⁽⁸⁾ the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of District of Columbia legislation pending on the Union Calendar. Since no time for debate had been fixed, Chairman William M. Whittington, of Mississippi, recognized five Members successively for an hour's debate each.

On July 28, 1969,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that should a bill called up by the Committee on the District of Columbia, pending on the Union Calendar, be considered in the Committee of the Whole, debate in the Committee would be under the hour rule and unlimited absent an agreement in the House limiting general debate in the Committee.⁽¹⁰⁾

§ 75.3 Where the time for general debate in Committee of the Whole has not been fixed, the Chair may recognize a Member under the hour rule and then decline to recognize any other Member until that hour is exhausted.

On July 27, 1937,⁽¹¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering, under general debate, H.R. 7730, to authorize the President to appoint administrative assistants. No time had been fixed in the House for the length of general debate. Mr. John Taber, of New York, had the floor under the hour rule and Mr. Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, sought recognition, which was refused by Chairman Wright Patman, of Texas, Mr. Taber declining to yield or relinquish his time. The Chairman then answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [EARL C.] MICHENER [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHENER: Under the rules of the House, when we go into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, as we have in this instance, without fixing the time for debate, am I correct in saying that anyone recognized by the Chair is recognized for an hour, and has the Chair the discretion of recognizing certain individuals and then permitting those individuals to yield their time to other individuals, to the exclusion of other Members who are seeking recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: That has been the practice.

§ 75.4 When the House resolves itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of an appropriation bill without fixing the time for debate, the Member first recognized is entitled to an hour and may yield such portions of that time as he desires, and after that hour another Member is recognized for an hour.

On Mar. 24, 1947,⁽¹²⁾ Mr. Frank B. Keefe, of Wisconsin, moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of H.R. 2700, an appropriation bill. He proposed a unanimous-consent agreement for time for general debate on the bill, and Mr. John J. Rooney, of New York, objected to the request.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, then answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition and time for debate in the Committee of the Whole, where the time and control of debate have not been fixed:

12. 93 CONG. REC. 2464, 2465, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. KEEFE: Mr. Speaker, do I understand that on the adoption of the motion to go into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union that there will be 1 hour for general debate for each side?

THE SPEAKER: Under the rule, whoever is first recognized is entitled to 1 hour and, of course, the Member can yield such portions of that time as he wishes. . . .

MR. ROONEY: Mr. Speaker, is it understood that the minority is to have an equal division of the time for debate this afternoon?

THE SPEAKER: After the first hour has been used by the majority, the minority then can have 1 hour under the rule.⁽¹³⁾

One-hour Limitation on General Debate

§ 75.5 Although a Member may have control of time for general debate in the Committee of the Whole, he may not consume more than one hour, except by unanimous consent.

On July 22, 1958,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, was in control of time for debate on an appropriations bill. Chairman James J. Delaney, of New York, advised him that he had consumed one hour. Mr. Cannon stated he wished to consume the remainder of his time, and the Chairman asked whether there was objection to Mr. Cannon proceeding for one additional minute. Mr. Donald W. Nicholson, of Massachusetts, objected to the request.

On Mar. 6, 1962,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. J. Vaughan Gary, of Virginia, was in control of time for general debate on an appropriations bill. When Chairman W. Homer Thornberry, of Texas, advised him that he had consumed one hour of his time, he asked and was given permission to proceed for five additional minutes.⁽¹⁶⁾

§ 75.6 Where debate in the Committee of the Whole was proceeding under the hour rule and the Member with the floor had yielded the balance of his time to another, the Chair declined to recognize for a unanimous-consent request that the latter Member be permitted additional time.

On Mar. 24, 1947,⁽¹⁷⁾ general debate was proceeding under the hour rule in the Committee of the Whole on H.R. 2700, the Department of Labor and Federal Security Agency appropriation bill. Mr. John J. Rooney, of New York, who had the floor, yielded the balance of his time to Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, who asked unanimous consent for additional time. Chairman Clifford R. Hope, of Kansas, ruled that the request was not in order:

MRS. NORTON: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 10 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair regrets that the request is not in order at this time, as the time is under the control of the gentleman from New York and is restricted under the rules of the House.

MRS. NORTON: Is it not possible to get that additional time by unanimous consent? I have known it to be done in many, many other cases.

THE CHAIRMAN: That would be true under the 5-minute rule, but we are proceeding now in general debate, and under the rules of the House that is not permitted.

Parliamentarian's Note: No limits on debate having been set by the House, Mrs. Norton could have consumed the remainder of Mr. Rooney's time and then sought recognition for one hour in her own right.

17. 93 CONG. REC. 2476, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

Where Time Fixed by House

§ 75.7 Time for general debate in the Committee of the Whole having been fixed by the House, the Committee of the Whole may not, even by unanimous consent, extend it.

On June 23, 1959,⁽¹⁸⁾ Chairman Clark W. Thompson, of Texas, declined to recognize for a unanimous-consent request to extend time for debate in the Committee of the Whole, the House having fixed the time:

MR. [CHARLES A.] VANIK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a consent request?

MR. [HOWARD W.] SMITH of Virginia: I yield.

MR. VANIK: I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Virginia may be permitted to proceed for 10 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The time has been fixed in the House. The gentleman's request is not in order.

The gentleman from Virginia will proceed.

Effect of Special Rule

§ 75.8 Where the House pursuant to a special rule has divided the control of general debate in the Committee of the Whole between the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee which reported the bill, it is not in order for a Member to whom time has been yielded to ask unanimous consent for additional time, although the Members in control may yield additional time.

On Dec. 17, 1970,⁽¹⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate on H.R. 19446, the Emergency School Aid Act of 1970, pursuant to House Resolution 1307, dividing control of general debate between the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Education and Labor. Mr. John Conyers, Jr., of Michigan, who had been yielded time in debate, asked unanimous consent for additional time when his yielded time had expired. Chairman James C. Corman, of California, indicated that such a request was not in order:

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from Michigan has expired.

MR. CONYERS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 2 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Michigan that the time is under the control of the managers of the bill, the gentleman from California (Mr. Bell) and the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Perkins).

MR. [ALPHONZO] BELL of California: Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman from Michigan 2 additional minutes.

Various Examples of Unanimous-consent Agreements

§ 75.9 The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request providing that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a concurrent resolution on the House Calendar and providing that there be one hour of general debate (one-half hour on each side).

On June 22, 1965,⁽²⁰⁾ the House agreed to a unanimous-consent request for the consideration of a Senate concurrent resolution on the House Calendar:

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the reconsideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 36 expressing the sense of the Congress with respect to the 20th anniversary of the United Nations during International Cooperation Year, and for other purposes, and that general debate thereon be limited to 1 hour, one-half hour to be controlled by myself and one-half hour to be controlled by the gentlewoman from Ohio [Mrs. Bolton].

THE SPEAKER: ⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

§ 75.10 In the consideration of the general appropriation bill of 1951, containing all the appropriations for the various agencies of the government, it was agreed in the House by unanimous consent that: (1) general debate in the Committee of the Whole be equally divided between the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations; and (2) following the reading of the first chapter of the bill for amendment, not to exceed two hours' general debate be had before the reading of each subsequent chapter, one-half to be controlled by the chairman and one-half by the ranking minority member of the subcommittee in charge of the chapter.

On Apr. 3, 1950,⁽²⁾ Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, moved to resolve into Committee of the Whole for consideration of the general appropriation bill of 1951 and made the following unanimous-consent request on the control of time for debate, which was agreed to by the House:

Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 7786) making appropriations for the support of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1951, and for other purposes; and pending that I ask unanimous consent that time for general debate be equally divided, one-half to be controlled by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Taber] and one-half by myself; that debate be confined to the bill; and that following the reading of the first chapter of the bill, not to exceed 2 hours general debate be had before the reading of the subsequent chapter, one-half to be controlled by the chairman and one-half by the ranking minority member of the subcommittee in charge of the chapter.

Parliamentarian's Note: In prior years there had been 11 separate appropriation bills for the various government agencies. In 1951 they were consolidated into one bill.

Time Used for Parliamentary Inquiry

§ 75.11 Where a Member to whom time has been yielded for general debate poses a parliamentary inquiry, the time consumed to answer the inquiry is deducted from his time for debate.

On Sept. 25, 1975,⁽³⁾ the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole responded to a parliamentary inquiry, as follows:

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Buchanan).

(Mr. Buchanan asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. [JOHN] BUCHANAN [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BUCHANAN: May I ask whether the making of this parliamentary inquiry is taken out of my time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that it will be taken out of the gentleman's time.

Relevancy of General Debate

§ 75.12 Where a special rule provided for the chairman of the Committee on International Relations to designate Members to equally divide and control two extra hours of general debate on a bill in Committee of the Whole, the chairman of said committee informed the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole of his designation of himself, another member of the majority party and two members of the minority party to control one-half hour each; and the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole advised that such debate was not required by the rule to be confined to any particular issue, but to the bill as a whole.

On July 31, 1978,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Clement J. Zablocki, of Wisconsin, the chairman of the Committee on International Relations, made a statement as to the division of control of time for debate pursuant to a special rule providing for two extra hours of debate on H.R. 12514, foreign aid authorizations for fiscal 1979. The intent behind requesting the extra hours had been to afford debate directed at the Turkish arms embargo issue, but the rule properly omitted any reference to the scope of debate, other than the requirement that all general debate be confined to the bill.

MR. ZABLOCKI: Mr. Chairman, under the rule, it is my understanding that the 1 hour for general debate on the entire bill, that that hour is equally divided between myself and the ranking minority member, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield).

Then the 2 hours that the rule provides for the Greek-Turkey-Cyprus issue, that there be 1 hour in support of lifting the embargo and 1 hour in opposition, and that the hour in support would be divided between myself and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield), and those in opposition to lifting the embargo would be managed by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Fascell) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The Chair will respond to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) that the Chair has been informed that the gentleman from Wisconsin has designated the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Fascell) for 1 hour, and also the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski) for 1 hour. The rule, of course, does not confine any such debate to the embargo issue alone.

Limiting Debate Under Statutory Schemes

§ 75.13 Pursuant to section 21(b) of the Federal Trade Commission Improvements Act, a motion to limit debate on a concurrent resolution disapproving an FTC regulation in Committee of the Whole is privileged and is not debatable, and is in order pending the motion that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole to consider the concurrent resolution.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on May 26, 1982,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of a motion that the House resolve into the Committee of the Whole to consider Senate Concurrent Resolution 60 (disapproving Federal Trade Commission regulations regarding the sale of used motor vehicles):

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the provisions of section 21(b) of Public Law 96-252, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 60) disapproving the Federal Trade Commission trade regulation rule relating to the sale regulation rule relating to the sale of used motor vehicles; and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I move that general debate on the Senate concurrent resolution be limited not to exceed 2 hours, 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Florio) and 1 hour to be controlled by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Lee). . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁸⁾ The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) made the motion that the debate be limited to 2 hours. . . .

The Chair will state that the motion to limit debate is not debatable.

8. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

MR. [TOBY] MOFFETT [of Connecticut]: I cannot yield, Mr. Speaker?

THE SPEAKER: The motion is pending. . . .

The Chair will put the question.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) to limit the debate to 2 hours. . . .

[The motion was agreed to.]

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House.

The motion was agreed to.

Parliamentarian's Note: A motion to resolve into Committee of the Whole for consideration of a concurrent resolution disapproving an agency action is highly privileged and may be offered before the third day on which its report thereon is available since, Rule XI, the requirement of class 2(l)(6) of that rule that committee reports be available to Members for three days is not applicable to a measure disapproving a decision by a government.⁽⁹⁾

§ 76. — Closing General Debate

Rule XXIII provides that general debate in the Committee of

Although it would not be in order by motion in the House to close the debate prior to the expiration of the time previously fixed by the House, a unanimous-consent agreement may so provide, either in the House or in the Committee itself.⁽¹³⁾

Where the managers of a bill agree between themselves to close general debate prior to the time fixed by the House, they may yield back their remaining time without obtaining unanimous consent.⁽¹⁴⁾

Agreement of Managers To Terminate General Debate

§ 76.1 Where a bill is being considered in the Committee of the Whole under a rule specifying the time for general debate, the managers of the bill need not use all of the prescribed time but may agree among themselves to terminate further general debate and begin consideration of the bill under the five-minute rule; such an agreement is between the managers and is not an agreement of the Committee of the Whole.

On Sept. 26, 1966,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole was proceeding with general debate on H.R. 15111, Economic Opportunity Act Amendments, pursuant to House Resolution 923, providing eight hours of debate. The managers of the bill were Mr. Sam M. Gibbons, of Florida, and Mr. Albert H. Quie, of Minnesota. Chairman Jack B. Brooks, of Texas, indicated that the managers could agree between themselves not to use all of the allotted time and that such an agreement was not for the Committee of the Whole to decide but for the managers to decide:

MR. GIBBONS: Mr. Chairman, do I understand we have reached an agreement now that on both sides we will yield back time to where we only have 2 hours of general debate tomorrow? That has been done, as I understand it. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: In reply to the request of the gentleman from Florida, I think it would be fair to state the agreement as to yielding time is between you and the gentleman from Minnesota.

MR. GIBBONS: Then, of course, the only other question is to get unanimous consent to come in at 11 o'clock tomorrow.

THE CHAIRMAN: As to any agreement as to when the House comes back tomorrow, that will be settled, of course, when the Committee rises.

MR. GIBBONS: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

§ 76.2 Where managers of a bill being considered in the Committee of the Whole agree not to use all the time for general debate permitted under the rule, the Chair takes cognizance of the agreement and may announce it to the Committee.

On Sept. 27, 1966,⁽¹⁷⁾ the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole for the further consideration of H.R. 15111, Economic Opportunity Act Amendments, whose consideration had been discontinued on the prior day. Prior to the Committee's rising on the prior day, the managers of the bill, Mr. Sam M. Gibbons, of Florida, and Mr. Albert H. Quie, of Minnesota, had indicated they would not use all of the eight hours of debate allotted to them under the special order, but would yield back some of their time (see § 76.1, supra). Accordingly, Chairman Jack B. Brooks, of Texas, made the following announcement:

When the Committee rose on yesterday, the gentleman from New York [Mr. Powell] had 3 hours and 12 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Ayres] had 2 hours and 29 minutes remaining.

Before the Committee rose, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. Gibbons] and the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Quie] had agreed to limit further general debate to 4 hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the majority and the minority.

Accordingly, the Chair will recognize the gentleman from New York [Mr. Powell] for 2 hours, and the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Quie] for 2 hours.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Closing General Debate by Motion in the House

§ 76.3 In the House, a motion to fix general debate on an appropriation bill prior to resolving into the Committee of the Whole is not in order, but after there has been debate in the Committee of the Whole and the Committee rises, the motion is in order.

On Feb. 18, 1947,⁽¹⁸⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the motion in the House to fix debate in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 1968) making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1947, and for other purposes; and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon] and myself.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

MR. [VITO] MARCANTONIO [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, is this the bill that contains the cuts of appropriations for OPA?

MR. TABER: Yes.

MR. MARCANTONIO: Then I object, Mr. Speaker.

MR. TABER: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. TABER: The House may go into the Committee of the Whole and later, after debate has occurred, rise, and then a motion would be in order to close debate; but otherwise a motion would not be in order at this time to close?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from New York states the situation accurately. The House must first go into Committee and have general debate, and then rise and fix the time of debate by vote.

§ 76.4 The House can close debate on a bill by motion at any time after debate has been had in the Committee of the Whole even though the effect of adopting the motion to close debate would be to deprive Members of the time allotted to them.

On May 17, 1934,⁽¹⁹⁾ general debate had been had in the Committee of the Whole on a bill and the Committee rose. Mr. Vincent L. Palmisano, of Maryland, moved that the House resolve again into the Committee and moved that debate on the bill close instanter. Speaker Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, overruled a point of order against the motion:

MR. PALMISANO: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 4548) to provide old-age securities for persons over 60 years of age residing in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, and pending that motion I move that debate upon the bill do now close, and on that I demand the previous question.

MR. [THOMAS L.] BLANTON [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the motion is out of order because time has already been allotted in the committee to certain gentlemen whose full time has not expired.

THE SPEAKER: The House can close debate at any time after debate has been had in the Committee of the Whole.

§ 76.5 After two hours of general debate in the Committee of the Whole, the Committee rose; pending a motion to resolve again into the Committee of the Whole, the House adopted a motion that general debate close instant.

On July 27, 1937,⁽²⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate, under the hour rule, on H.R. 7730, to authorize the President to appoint six administrative assistants. No time had been fixed for general debate. The Committee rose after two hours of such debate. Mr. J. W. Robinson, of Utah, then moved that the House resolve itself again into the Committee and also moved, pending that motion, that all debate on the bill close, on which motion he moved the previous question. The House adopted the motion:

MR. ROBINSON of Utah: Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole

20. 81 CONG. REC. 7680-97, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 7730) to authorize the President to appoint not to exceed six administrative assistants; and pending that motion, I move that all debate on the bill do now close, and on that I move the previous question.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁾ The gentleman from Utah moves that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H.R. 7730; and pending that motion, the gentleman from Utah moves that all debate on the bill do now close. Upon that he moves the previous question.

The question is, Shall the previous question be ordered?

The previous question was ordered.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Utah that all debate on the bill H.R. 7730 do now close.

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 255, nays 79, answered “present” 1, not voting 96. . . .

Closing General Debate by Unanimous Consent

§ 76.6 The House agreed by unanimous consent to dispense with general debate on an appropriation bill in the Committee of the Whole.

1. William B. Bankhead (Ala.).

On July 5, 1945,⁽²⁾ the House agreed to a unanimous-consent request by Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, dispensing with general debate on a bill in the Committee of the Whole:

Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 3649), making appropriations for war agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1946, and for other purposes; and pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to dispense with general debate in the Committee of the Whole.

In response to parliamentary inquiries, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that under a procedure allowing no general debate, points of order against paragraphs in the bill should be made when the relevant paragraph was read for amendment in the Committee of the Whole.

Parliamentarian's Note: A motion to dispense with general debate would not have been in order, since a motion to limit debate may not be made in the House until general debate has commenced in the Committee of the Whole.

§ 76.7 Where the Committee of the Whole rose, after consuming a portion of the time prescribed by the House for general debate, the House agreed by unanimous consent that when the Committee should resume consideration of the bill, the debate be further limited.

On June 27, 1968,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole had risen after consuming a portion of the three hours of general debate on S. 1166 (Gas Pipeline Safety Act), which time was provided for in House Resolution 1215. The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request further limiting debate in the Committee of the Whole on the bill:

MR. [HARLEY O.] STAGGERS [of West Virginia]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the Committee of the Whole continues the consideration of the bill (S. 1166) to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to prescribe safety standards for the transportation of natural and other gas by pipeline, and for other purposes, that the time for general debate be limited to 30 minutes with 15 minutes for the minority and 15 minutes for the majority side.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

4. John W. McCormack (Mass.).

on a privileged appropriation bill, the House, by unanimous consent, agreed that general debate close at a time certain and that at the conclusion of general debate the Committee rise.

On Apr. 9, 1963,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Albert Thomas, of Texas, moved that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole and made a unanimous-consent request on the time for general debate, which request was agreed to by the House:

Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill H.R. 5517, making supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1963, and for other purposes; and, pending that motion, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that general debate on the bill be concluded not later than 5 p.m. today, one-half of the time to be controlled by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Bow], and one-half by myself, and that at the conclusion of general debate today the Committee will rise. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁶⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

THE SPEAKER: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Thomas].

5. 109 CONG. REC. 6044, 6045, 88th Cong. 1st Sess.

6. John W. McCormack (Mass.).

The motion was agreed to.

Effect of Special Rule

§ 76.9 Where the Committee of the Whole is proceeding in general debate on a bill pursuant to a special rule adopted by the House, a motion in the Committee that such debate be closed instantly is not in order.

On Sept. 25, 1951,⁽⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate on H.R. 39, the Marketing Facilities Act. Chairman Lindley Beckworth, of Texas, stated that under the special rule adopted by the House for consideration of the bill, Mr. Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, had 30 minutes of debate and Mr. Clifford R. Hope, of Kansas, 30 minutes. Mr. Paul W. Shafer, of Michigan, made a point of order and then withdrew it, but also moved that debate be closed "now" and that "we vote on the bill." The Chairman ruled that the motion was not in order.

Unanimous Consent in Committee To Truncate Debate

§ 76.10 The House having fixed time for debate on a bill in the Committee of the Whole, it was held that the Committee of the Whole could by unanimous consent further limit such debate as it desired.

7. 97 CONG. REC. 12084, 12089, 82d Cong. 1st Sess.

On July 5, 1939,⁽⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate on a bill, the House having fixed time for debate at two hours, to be divided by two Members. Chairman Lawrence Lewis, of Colorado, stated that the Committee of the Whole could by unanimous consent further limit the time for general debate:

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is entitled to an hour and the gentleman from New York [Mr. Bloom] is entitled to an hour.

MR. [SOL] BLOOM: I understand that. The gentleman is entitled to an hour and I am entitled to an hour, but I am asking the gentleman if we cannot agree on less time so we can get through with this bill. If the gentleman desires to use his full hour, then he does not want to agree on time. That is up to him.

MR. [ANDREW C.] SCHIFFLER [of West Virginia]: But we cannot agree at this time.

MR. [CASSIUS C.] DOWELL [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, that agreement should have been made in the House instead of in Committee of the Whole. We are now under the rule. That is a rule of the House and the time should have been fixed in the House before the House went into Committee.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Committee can limit time by unanimous consent if it so desires.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

MR. [FRANK E.] HOOK [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

Motion That the Committee Rise

§ 76.11 When the House has limited general debate to a time certain and provided for the Committee of the Whole to rise at the expiration of that time, the Chairman of the Committee announces the arrival of the time and the Committee rises without a motion being made.

On Apr. 9, 1963,⁽⁹⁾ the House agreed to a motion by Mr. Albert Thomas, of Texas, that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for the consideration of a bill and agreed to his unanimous-consent request that debate conclude at a time certain, at which time the Committee would rise. When the appointed time arrived in the Committee, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, announced that the Committee rise under the previous order, and the Committee rose accordingly, without a motion being made to that effect.

§ 76.12 The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise (thereby cutting off debate) is not debatable and is always within the discretion of the Member handling the bill before the Committee.

On June 16, 1948,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. Walter G. Andrews, of New York, was handling the consideration of H.R. 6401 in the Committee of the Whole. He moved that the Committee rise, and Chairman Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, ruled that the motion was within Mr. Andrews' discretion:

MR. ANDREWS of New York: Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that two or three Members who have time are not here, I move that the Committee do now rise.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Andrews].

MR. [GEORGE A.] SMATHERS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be heard on that.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not a debatable motion. It is always within the discretion of the gentleman handling the bill to move that the Committee rise.

§ 76.13 A Member may not in time yielded him for general debate move that the Committee of the Whole rise, nor may he yield to another for such motion.

10. 94 CONG. REC. 8521, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽¹¹⁾ Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, moved, in time yielded him in the Committee of the Whole by Mr. Adam C. Powell, Jr., of New York, for general debate, that the Committee rise. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, ruled that the motion was not in order, since Mr. Powell had control of the time and since he had not yielded time to Mr. Smith for the making of the motion. Mr. Hugo S. Sims, Jr., of South Carolina, was then yielded time for debate by Mr. Powell and yielded to Mr. Smith who again moved that the Committee rise, stating he had "some time of my own." The Chairman ruled that the motion was not in order, since Mr. Sims was yielded time for general debate and could not yield to Mr. Smith for the making of the motion.

On appeal, the Chairman's ruling was sustained.⁽¹²⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: When the House has vested control of general debate in the Committee of the Whole in the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee reporting a bill, their control of general debate may not be abrogated by another Member moving that the Committee rise—unless they yield for that purpose.

§ 77. Five-minute Debate

Debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is provided for by Rule XXIII clause 5:

When general debate is closed by order of the House, any Member shall be allowed five minutes to explain any amendment he may offer, after which the Member who shall first obtain the floor shall be allowed to speak five minutes in opposition to it, and there shall be no further debate thereon, but the same privilege of debate shall be allowed in favor of and against any amendment that may be offered to an amendment; and neither an amendment nor an amendment to an amendment shall be withdrawn by the mover thereof unless by the unanimous consent of the committee.⁽¹³⁾

13. House Rules and Manual § 870 (1995). See also id. at §§ 872, 873 for the five-minute rule and pro forma amendments.

A special rule adopted by the House for the consideration of a bill may alter the normal effect of the five-minute rule. For example, a special rule permitting only committee or designated amendments to be offered requires that there be only two five-minute speeches on each such amendment without extension of time or pro forma amendments.⁽¹⁴⁾

The pro forma amendment, such as moving to “strike the last word” or to strike “the requisite number of words,” although technically an amendment, is used for purposes of debate or explanation under the five-minute rule where it is not intended by the mover to offer a substantive amendment. A Member who has debated an amendment may offer or speak in opposition to a pro forma amendment, and a Member who has offered an amendment may speak in opposition to a pro forma amendment thereto, without violating the prohibition against speaking twice on the same amendment.⁽¹⁵⁾ But a Member may not twice offer pro forma amendments to gain extensions of time on the same amendment.⁽¹⁶⁾ rule is the motion to rise and report back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, which motion is accorded preference under Rule XXIII clause 7:

A motion to strike out the enacting clause of a bill shall have precedence of a motion to amend, and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection.⁽¹⁷⁾

This motion is not in order until the first section of the bill has been read.⁽¹⁸⁾ It has precedence over a pending amendment and may be offered again after substantive amendment of the bill; but if challenged, the Member making the motion must qualify as being opposed to the bill.⁽¹⁹⁾ Only two five-minute speeches are permitted by way of debate.⁽²⁰⁾ The motion is not in order after debate on a bill has expired under a limitation.⁽¹⁾

In General

§ 77.1 When an amendment is offered in the Committee of the Whole, there may be five minutes of debate in favor of such amendment and five minutes in opposition thereto, but if no Member rises to oppose the amendment, the Chair may recognize Members under the five-minute rule to offer perfecting amendments to the pending amendment.

On Mar. 9, 1935,⁽²⁾ an amendment had been offered and debated for five minutes by the offeror. When no Member rose to seek recognition for five minutes in opposition to the amendment, Chairman Emanuel Celler, of New York, recognized Mr. Jesse P. Wolcott, of Michigan, to offer a perfecting amendment. Mr. T. Alan Goldsborough, of Maryland, interrupted the reading of the amendment and stated that he wanted to be recognized on the original amendment. Mr. Wolcott objected to the interruption, and the Chair ruled that Mr. Wolcott was entitled to be heard on his amendment without interruption.

§ 77.2 A Member who has offered an amendment and spoken thereon is not precluded from recognition to speak to a proposed amendment to his amendment.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽³⁾ Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, ruled as to whether a Member, Augustus F. Hawkins, of California, who had offered an amendment and spoken thereon, was precluded from speaking on an amendment to his amendment:

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CAREY: Mr. Chairman, I have no wish to foreclose the right of my colleague from California to be heard, but I believe he has already spoken on the floor for 10 minutes in support of his amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Since the time the gentleman from California addressed the Committee with regard to the Hawkins amendment, another amendment has been offered, which is an amendment to the Hawkins amendment, and the gentleman from California has not yet spoken on that.

MR. CAREY: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my point of order.

§ 77.3 A Member recognized under the five-minute rule may extend his debate time only by unanimous consent, and a motion to that effect is not in order.

On Apr. 28, 1976,⁽⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of House Concurrent Resolution 611, the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1977:

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. Leggett) has expired.

MR. [ROBERT L.] LEGGETT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to proceed for 3 additional minutes.

5. Gillis W. Long (La.).

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California? . . .

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Objection is heard.

MR. LEGGETT: Mr. Chairman, I move that I be given 2 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: That motion is not in order. The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. Leggett) has expired.

Pro Forma Amendments

§ 77.4 While a Member may not speak twice on the same amendment, he may speak in opposition to a pending amendment and subsequently offer a pro forma amendment and debate the latter.

On June 30, 1955,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. James P. Richards, of South Carolina, was managing a bill under consideration in the Committee of the Whole. He had spoken in opposition to a pending amendment and had then gained the floor by offering a pro forma amendment. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, objected that Mr. Richards could not speak twice on the same amendment. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, ruled that Mr. Richards properly had the floor and could offer a pro forma amendment, gaining time for debate, where he had already spoken in opposition to the pending amendment.

6. 101 CONG. REC. 9614, 84th Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 77.5 While a Member may not be recognized to speak twice on the same amendment, he may rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment and accomplish that result.

On July 20, 1951,⁽⁷⁾ Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition to debate amendments in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [JESSE P.] WOLCOTT [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, is it in order for a Member to talk twice on the same amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: A Member may rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment and accomplish that result, if he desires to do so.

§ 77.6 While the rules forbid a Member speaking twice on an amendment offered under the five-minute rule, he may speak on the amendment and later in opposition to a pro forma amendment offered during the pendency of the original amendment.

On Mar. 13, 1942,⁽⁸⁾ Chairman Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, recognized, during five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, to speak in opposition to a pro forma amendment. Mr. Frank E. Hook, of Michigan, objected that a Member could not speak twice on the same amendment and that Mr. Dirksen had already spoken on the pending amendment. The Chairman ruled that Mr. Dirksen could speak on the pro forma amendment although he had already spoken to the pending substantive amendment.⁽⁹⁾

§ 77.7 Where there was pending in the Committee of the Whole an amendment and a substitute therefor, the Chair stated, in response to parliamentary inquiries: (1) that the Member offering the substitute could debate it for five minutes and could subsequently be recognized to speak for or against the original amendment; and (2)

9. For the prohibition against one Member speaking twice to the same question, see Rule XIV clause 6, House Rules and Manual § 762 (1995). For amendment under the five-minute rule, permitting a Member to speak only once on an amendment, see Rule XXIII clause 5(a), House Rules and Manual § 870 (1995). Pro forma amendments are discussed id. at § 873.

that a Member recognized to speak on a pending amendment later might offer a pro forma amendment and thereby be entitled to a second five minutes of debate.

On July 28, 1970,⁽¹⁰⁾ an amendment and a substitute therefor were pending to a bill being considered under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, responded to parliamentary inquiries on recognition of Members for amendments and substitute amendments:

MR. [WILLIAM H.] HARSHA [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. HARSHA: How many times is a Member permitted to speak on his own amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Ohio inquires as to how many times a Member may speak on his own amendment. The answer to that is he may speak one time to his amendment.

MR. HARSHA: The author of the amendment is asking for additional time, and some of the rest of us have not had any time.

MR. [B. F.] SISK [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my request and yield back the remainder of my time.

MR. [HAROLD R.] COLLIER [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

10. 116 CONG. REC. 26027, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. COLLIER: Is that rule not also applicable to any other Member of the House, once he has spoken on an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. [JAMES C.] CLEVELAND [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. CLEVELAND: Am I not correct in stating that when the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Schwengel) offered his amendment, he spoke on it; and am I not correct that when the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Reuss) offered an amendment the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Schwengel) offered a substitute. Would not the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Schwengel) be allowed to speak for 5 minutes for or against the Reuss amendment, as well as in support of his own substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. CLEVELAND: I thank the Chairman.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WAGGONNER: Under the rules of the House cannot a Member move to strike the last word and be considered on the same amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. WAGGONNER: And under those conditions a man could speak twice, could he not?

THE CHAIRMAN: Possibly. If a Member were to speak one time in opposition to an amendment subsequently he could move to strike the last word and he would be entitled to be recognized.

Restrictions on Pro Forma Amendments

§ 77.8 During debate on an amendment under the five-minute rule, a Member who has been recognized for five minutes on a pro forma amendment cannot thereafter gain additional time by offering a second pro forma amendment.

On Mar. 25, 1965,⁽¹¹⁾ an amendment was under discussion under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, sustained a point of order against a Member's offering a second pro forma amendment on the same amendment:

MR. [CHARLES E.] GOODELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, in the process of hearings one of the things which became apparent to many of us on the subcommittee considering this legislation was that the allocation formula, although superficially attractive, was extremely discriminatory as to certain parts of the country. . . .

11. 111 CONG. REC. 6002, 6003, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York is recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. [ADAM C.] POWELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. POWELL: Did not the gentleman from New York get permission just a few minutes ago to speak for 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. POWELL: I make the point of order, then, that he is out of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The point of order is sustained.

§ 77.9 A Member, having been recognized under the five-minute rule to debate his amendment and then having secured an extra five minutes by unanimous consent, may not further extend his time by moving to strike out the last word.

On Aug. 17, 1966,⁽¹²⁾ the House was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 13228, the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act. Mr. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., of Massachusetts, offered an amendment and debated it for five minutes. At the expiration of his five minutes, Chairman Emilio Q. Daddario, of Connecticut, advised him of that fact, and Mr. O'Neill gained unanimous consent to further proceed for five minutes. At the expiration of that time, Mr. O'Neill offered a pro forma amendment and the Chair ruled that he was not entitled to further recognition to gain debate time by amending his own amendment.

§ 77.10 A Member recognized for five minutes on a pro forma amendment may not extend his time by offering a substantive amendment without being recognized by the Chair for that purpose.

On July 28, 1965,⁽¹³⁾ Chairman Leo W. O'Brien, of New York, recognized Mr. William H. Ayres, of Ohio, the ranking minority member of the Committee on Education and Labor which had reported the bill under discussion, on a pro forma amendment. The Chair ruled that Mr. Ayres was not then recognized to offer a substantive amendment:

MR. AYRES: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for an additional 5 minutes. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I am most gratified at the assurance of Chairman Powell that a complete committee investigation of National Labor Relations Board election procedures will be held. Mr. Powell's House floor statement to me, just prior to a vote on the repeal of section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, means that we can now delve into a part of labor relations that could have great impact on the establishment of a good climate for labor-industry relations. . . .

12. 112 CONG. REC. 19662-64, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

In order to have a cooling-off period, Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has not recognized the gentleman for that purpose.

Does any other Member offer an amendment at this time?

Motion To Strike Enacting Clause

§ 77.11 In the Committee of the Whole, on a motion to rise and report a recommendation to strike out the enacting clause, only two five-minute speeches are permitted, and the Chair declines to recognize for a pro forma amendment.

On Aug. 1, 1957,⁽¹⁴⁾ after Mr. Earl Wilson, of Indiana, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report back the pending bill with the recommendation the enacting clause be stricken, Mr. Leon H. Gavin, of Pennsylvania, sought to gain recognition on a motion to strike out the last word. Chairman Richard W. Bolling, of Missouri, declined to recognize him for that purpose. After two five-minute speeches had been had on the motion, Mr. Gavin again sought recognition to debate the motion, and the Chairman ruled that no further debate could be had.

§ 77.12 On a motion to strike out the enacting clause in the Committee of the Whole, only two five-minute speeches are permitted, notwithstanding the fact that the second Member, recognized in opposition to the motion, actually spoke in favor thereof.

On Mar. 18, 1960,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Paul C. Jones, of Missouri, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the pending bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Mr. Jones was recognized for five minutes' debate in support of the motion. Mr. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi, rose in opposition to the motion and consumed his five minutes, actually speaking in favor of the motion. Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, then made a point of order, which was overruled by Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania:

Mr. Chairman, a point of order. I seek recognition in opposition to the amendment on the ground that the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. Colmer] did not talk against the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The 5 minutes for the preferential motion and the 5 minutes against the motion have expired.

§ 77.13 On a motion to strike out the enacting clause offered in the Committee of the Whole, only two five-minute speeches are permitted and the Chair declines to recognize a request for an extension of that time.

On July 18, 1951,⁽¹⁶⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report back the pending bill with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. He then asked unanimous consent to revise and extend his remarks and to proceed for five additional minutes. Mr. Brent Spence, of Kentucky, objected to the request. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, ruled as follows on the request:

The gentleman may revise and extend his remarks, without objection, but he may not proceed for an additional 5 minutes on a motion to strike out the enacting clause.⁽¹⁷⁾

§ 77.14 A motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report a bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken takes precedence over a pending amendment to the bill which has not been debated; such motion is debatable for 10 minutes (five on each side), and following disposition of such motion 10 minutes of debate (five on each side) is permitted on the pending amendment.

On Oct. 17, 1945,⁽¹⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule an amendment (not yet debated) to a bill when a motion to rise with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken was made. Chairman Graham A. Barden, of North Carolina, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the precedence and effect of the motion when an amendment was pending:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Hoffman moves that the Committee rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out.

MR. [JOHN W.] MCCORMACK [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MCCORMACK: My understanding is that on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan there may be 10 minutes of debate, 5 minutes for and 5 minutes against, and that if the motion is defeated the 10 minutes of debate on the amendment still remain to be used. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

§ 77.15 A Member offering a motion in the Committee of the Whole to strike out the enacting clause of a bill may yield part of the five minutes available to him to another to make a comment while he has the floor and remains on his feet.

On Sept. 27, 1945,⁽¹⁹⁾ Chairman Aime J. Forand, of Rhode Island,

19. 91 CONG. REC. 9095, 79th Cong. 1st Sess.

ruled as follows on the yielding of time under the five-minute rule:

MR. [ANDREW J.] MAY [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. May moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill, H.R. 2948, back forthwith to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out.

MR. MAY: Mr. Chairman, I yield my 5 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina, if I may.

MR. [ROBERT] RAMSPECK [of Georgia]: The gentleman cannot do that, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: He can yield time while he is holding the floor.

MR. MAY: I yield part of my time, then, to the gentleman from North Carolina.

§ 77.16 Where a bill has been amended subsequent to the rejection of a motion to strike out the enacting clause, a second such motion is in order and is debatable under the five-minute rule notwithstanding a limitation of remaining debate on the bill.

On May 9, 1947,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report a bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, after a previous such motion had been offered before the bill had been amended, and after a limitation on debate had been agreed to. Chairman Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, overruled points of order against the motion:

MR. HOFFMAN: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Hoffman moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

MR. [PETE] JARMAN [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order against the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JARMAN: Mr. Chairman, that motion has already been made and was voted down once.

THE CHAIRMAN: There have been several amendments adopted on the bill, it has been changed since that motion was previously acted on. The Chair overrules the point of order.

MR. [JOHN M.] VORYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. VORYS: Mr. Chairman, debate is limited on the bill by action of the committee.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan has offered a preferential motion which is in order in spite of the agreement on closing debate.

§ 77.17 The preferential motion to strike the enacting clause may be offered, debated for five minutes, and then, by unanimous consent, withdrawn.

On Oct. 7, 1965,⁽¹⁾ Mr. Thomas M. Pelly, of Washington, offered a motion in the Committee of the Whole to strike the enacting clause and gained five minutes' time for debate thereon, although a limitation on debate had been previously agreed to. After debate on the motion, Mr. Pelly withdrew the motion by unanimous consent.

§ 77.18 The Chair recognizes only two Members to speak on the preferential motion that the Committee rise and report with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

On Dec. 18, 1975,⁽²⁾ during consideration of the Airport and Airway Development Act Amendments of 1975 (H.R. 9771) in the Committee of the Whole, the proceedings described above were as follows:

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Conte moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

2. 121 CONG. REC. 41799, 41800, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his amendment. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Anderson).

MR. [GLENN M.] ANDERSON of California: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the gentleman's motion and yield back the balance of my time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

The preferential motion was rejected.

Parliamentarian's Note: Since Mr. Anderson utilized only a small fraction of his time to speak against the preferential motion, Mr. Garry Brown, of Michigan, sought recognition to speak against the motion. The Chair declined to recognize him, since only two Members may be recognized to speak on the motion.

Effect of Special Rule Limiting Amendments

§ 77.19 When a bill is being considered under a closed rule permitting only committee amendments and no amendments thereto, only two five-minute speeches on an amendment are in order, one in support and one in opposition.

3. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

On May 18, 1960,⁽⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 5, the Foreign Investment Tax Act of 1960, reported by the Committee on Ways and Means, pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 468, permitting only amendments offered at the direction of that committee. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that only five minutes for and five minutes against an amendment were in order.

§ 77.20 When a committee amendment is being considered under a closed rule prohibiting amendments thereto, only two five-minute speeches are in order, pro forma amendments are not permitted and a third Member may be recognized only by unanimous consent.

An illustration of the proposition described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 8, 1977,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of the Tax Reduction and Simplification Act of 1977 (H.R. 3477). The proceedings were as follows:

5. 123 CONG. REC. 6632, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [WILLIAM M.] KETCHUM [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the committee amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The Chair will state that only two 5-minute speeches are in order under the rule absent unanimous consent.

MR. KETCHUM: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to speak in favor of the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

§ 77.21 Where a bill is being considered under a special rule permitting only committee amendments and prohibiting amendments thereto, a second Member rising to support the committee amendment cannot be recognized.

On Sept. 3, 1959,⁽⁷⁾ Chairman William Pat Jennings, of Virginia, stated that to the pending bill, H.R. 9035, no amendments were in order under the special rule adopted by the House except amendments offered by the Committee on Public Works. Mr. Frank J. Becker, of New York, was recognized for five minutes to support the second committee amendment offered. At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Toby Morris, of Oklahoma, sought recognition in support of the amendment. Chairman Jennings declined to recognize Mr. Morris for that purpose:

6. Tom Bevill (Ala.).

7. 105 CONG. REC. 17987-89, 86th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Chair will state to the gentleman that only 5 minutes is permitted in support of the amendment and 5 minutes in opposition. Five minutes has been consumed in support of the amendment. Therefore, the Chair cannot recognize the gentleman at this time.⁽⁸⁾

§ 77.22 Where a bill is being considered under a special rule which permits only committee amendments to title I, only the text of a designated concurrent resolution as an amendment to title II, and one motion to strike out title III, and prohibits amend-

REC. 4829-34, 84th Cong. 1st Sess., Apr. 20, 1955 (no pro forma amendments permitted).

ments to said amendments, five minutes of debate in support of and five minutes in opposition to each amendment are in order.

On Oct. 10, 1972,⁽⁹⁾ the House adopted House Resolution 1149, called up by Mr. John A. Young, of Texas, from the Committee on Rules, which provided for the consideration of a bill and limited the amendments that could be offered thereto:

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 16810) to provide for a temporary increase in the public debt limit. . . . [T]he bill shall be considered as having been read for amendment. No amendment shall be in order to said bill except (1) amendments offered by direction of the Committee on Ways and Means to title I of the bill; (2) an amendment containing the text or a portion of the text of H. Con. Res. 713 if offered as an amendment in the nature of a substitute to title II of the bill H.R. 16810; and (3) an amendment proposing to strike out title III of the bill; and said amendments shall be in order, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, but shall not be subject to amendment. . . .

After general debate on the bill in the Committee of the Whole,

9. 118 CONG. REC. 34583, 34584, 92d Cong. 2d Sess.

Chairman Thomas G. Abernethy, of Mississippi, inquired whether any of the permitted amendments would be offered. Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, offered the designated amendment to title II of the bill and was recognized for five minutes in favor of it. The Chair then recognized Mr. Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, for five minutes in opposition to the amendment. The amendment was rejected, no further amendments were offered, and the Committee rose.⁽¹⁰⁾

Debate on Two or More Amendments Considered En Bloc

§ 77.23 A Member offering two amendments may, with the consent of the Committee of the Whole, have them considered together, but such consent does not permit the Member to debate the measure for two five-minute periods.

On Mar. 5, 1937,⁽¹¹⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment under the five-minute rule an appropriation bill, Mr. Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, asked unanimous consent that two amendments he was offering, both applicable to the same page, be considered together. There was no objection to the request.

Mr. Dirksen then stated he assumed that he was entitled to proceed for 10 minutes, having two amendments. Chairman Schuyler Otis Bland, of Virginia, stated that Mr. Dirksen was entitled to only five minutes.

§ 77.24 Where amending language is offered to several paragraphs of a bill as one amendment, only five minutes of debate is permitted for the amendment and five minutes against.

On July 20, 1942,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Fritz G. Lanham, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the time for debate on an amendment:

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the bill has been concluded. Are there any committee amendments to be offered to the bill?

MR. [ROBERT L.] DOUGHTON [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a committee amendment which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendment offered by Mr. Doughton: Page 14, line 6, strike out "32 percent" and insert in lieu thereof "22 percent."

12. 88 CONG. REC. 6385, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

Page 18, line 24, strike out "$22,900" and insert in lieu thereof "$22,800."

MR. [JERE] COOPER [of Tennessee]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. COOPER: It is correct, is it not, that as this is offered as one amendment under the rule, under which the bill is being considered only 5 minutes' debate is allowed for the amendment and 5 minutes against?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

§ 77.25 Where consideration en bloc is granted, by unanimous consent, of several amendments which had been printed in the Record, the proponent is entitled only to a total of five minutes of debate on the amendments.

On July 25, 1974,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of the Surface Mining

13. 120 CONG. REC. 25224, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

Control and Reclamation Act of 1974⁽¹⁴⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, the proposition stated above was demonstrated. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: . . . I offer . . . my amendments Nos. 121, 127, 118, and 142 to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, and I ask unanimous consent that all of these amendments be considered en bloc and considered as read and printed in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

MR. HOSMER: Mr. Chairman, I make the additional unanimous-consent request that instead of the 25 minutes to which I might be entitled because of the application of rule XXIII, consisting of 5 minutes for each one of these amendments, notwithstanding that rule, I be recognized only for 5 minutes in toto.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that 5 minutes on his amendments considered en bloc is all the time the gentleman is entitled to in any event.

Reintroduced Amendments

§ 77.26 Upon reintroduction of an amendment which has, by unanimous consent, been withdrawn in the Committee of the Whole, the Member is entitled to debate his amendment for a second five-minute period.

15. Neal Smith (Iowa).

On May 3, 1956,⁽¹⁶⁾ Chairman J. Percy Priest, of Tennessee, stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that a Member who reoffers an amendment he has withdrawn in the Committee of the Whole by unanimous consent is again entitled to debate the amendment for five minutes:

MR. [NOAH M.] MASON [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MASON: Under the rules of the House does a man get two 5-minute discussions on the same amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman withdrew his amendment, and it has been offered again. The gentleman from Maine is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his amendment.

Yielding Under Five-minute Rule

§ 77.27 A Member recognized in the Committee of the Whole to debate an amendment may yield to another for debate if he so desires.

On June 22, 1945,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering a House joint resolution under the five-minute rule. Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, recognized for five minutes Mr. Forest A. Harness, of Indiana, who then yielded to Mr. Fred L. Crawford, of Michigan, who had just consumed five minutes in debate. Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, made a point of order and inquired whether one Member could yield another Member his time under the five-minute rule. The Chairman overruled the point of order and stated:

16. 102 CONG. REC. 7439, 84th Cong. 2d Sess.

17. 91 CONG. REC. 6548, 79th Cong. 1st Sess.

Any Member can yield to another Member, or decline to yield, as he desires.

Parliamentarian's Note: A Member who offers the preferential motion to strike the enacting clause may yield to another, but may not yield his full five minutes (see § 77.15, supra); in this instance, Mr. Crawford had just consumed five minutes and Mr. Harness yielded to him to complete his remarks. Mr. Harness remained standing while Mr. Crawford completed his speech.

§ 77.28 A Member recognized to strike out the last word under the five-minute rule may yield to another Member, even if the latter has just spoken.

On Mar. 21, 1960,⁽¹⁸⁾ Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, ruled that a Member recognized on a pro forma amendment under the five-minute rule could yield to another Member:

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from New York has expired.

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 5 additional minutes.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: I object, Mr. Chairman.

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. Celler].

MR. CELLER: I thank the gentleman.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Just a minute. I make a point of order on this.

MR. CELLER: Mr. Chairman, deprivation of the State's ballot is wrong.

MR. YATES: Mr. Chairman, I am entitled to yield to the gentleman from New York.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Illinois was recognized, and he yielded to the gentleman from New York. The gentleman from New York is continuing in order.

§ 77.29 A Member recognized under the five-minute rule may not yield to another Member to offer an amendment, as it is within the power of the Chair to recognize each Member to offer amendments.

On Apr. 19, 1973,⁽¹⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering a bill for amendment under the five-minute rule. Chairman Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, refused to allow a Member with the floor to yield to another to offer an amendment:

19. 119 CONG. REC. 13240, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. DON H. CLAUSEN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk. However, at this time I want to yield to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bingham) who has another appointment, so that he may offer his amendment at this time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from California (Mr. Don H. Clausen) he cannot yield for that purpose. If the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bingham) were here, the Chair would recognize him.

§ 77.30 Under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole the Member handling a bill has preference in recognition for debate but the power of recognition remains with the Chair and the Member cannot, in contravention of this rule, “yield” himself time for debate.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽²⁰⁾ Adam C. Powell, of New York, was the Member in charge of debate on H.R. 2362, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, which was being considered for amendment under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole. Mr. Powell arose and stated “I yield myself 5 minutes.” Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated as follows:

20. 111 CONG. REC. 6113, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

The gentleman cannot yield himself 5 minutes. The Chair assumes he moves to strike out the last word.

Mr. Melvin R. Laird, of Wisconsin, objected that Mr. Powell had not moved to strike out the last word, and so moved himself. The Chairman first recognized Mr. Powell for the motion, as manager of the bill and Chairman on the Committee on Education and Labor.

Reading Papers

§ 77.31 A decision of the Committee of the Whole to permit a Member to read a letter means that the Member may read the letter within the five minutes allotted to him, and does not necessarily permit him to read the entire letter.

On June 26, 1952,⁽¹⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 8210, the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1952, Mr. Clinton D. McKinnon, of California, was recognized on a pro forma amendment and began reading a statement by Governor Arnall on a previously adopted amendment to the bill. Mr. Jesse P. Wolcott, of Michigan, objected to the reading. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, put the question to the Committee, which voted to permit Mr. McKinnon to read the letter.

1. 98 CONG. REC. 8175, 8176, 82d Cong. 2d Sess.

While Mr. McKinnon was reading the letter, Chairman Mills interrupted him and stated that his five minutes had expired. Mr. Herman P. Eberharter, of Pennsylvania, made the point of order that the vote by the Committee permitted Mr. McKinnon to read the entire letter; the Chairman overruled the point of order:

MR. EBERHARTER: Mr. Chairman, the House decided by a teller vote to permit the reading of this letter. I submit that the letter should be read in its entirety; that is the point of order I make.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not the decision made by the Committee. The Committee made the decision that the gentleman could read the letter within the time allotted to the gentleman of 5 minutes.

MR. EBERHARTER: I did not hear it so stated when the motion was put, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question put to the Committee had nothing whatsoever to do with the time to be consumed by the gentleman from California. The Chair recognized the gentleman from California for 5 minutes; the question arose as to whether or not he could within that 5 minutes time read extraneous papers.

The point of order is overruled.⁽²⁾

Debate on Appeals

§ 77.32 An appeal in the Committee of the Whole is debatable under the five-minute rule and such debate is confined to the appeal.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 4453, the Federal Fair Employment Practice Act. Mr. Adam C. Powell, Jr., of New York, who had the floor, yielded one minute of debate to Mr. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia. Mr. Smith delivered some remarks on the lateness of the session and then moved that the Committee rise. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, ruled that Mr. Smith could not so move, having been recognized for debate only. Mr. Smith appealed the Chair's ruling.

In response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. John E. Rankin, of

2. See Rule XXX, House Rules and Manual §§915–917 (1995), for the former rule prohibiting the reading of papers, over objection, without the consent of the House. For discussion of Rule XXX, see §§80 et seq., infra.
3. 96 CONG. REC. 2178, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

Mississippi, the Chairman stated that debate on the appeal was under the five-minute rule. Mr. Rankin debated the appeal, and Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, made a point of order against Mr. Rankin's remarks on the ground he was not confining himself to the subject of the appeal. The Chairman sustained the point of order.

Vacating Proceedings To Permit Debate

§ 77.33 By unanimous consent, the proceedings in the Committee of the Whole by which an amendment was adopted were vacated and the Chair asked a second time if any Member desired to debate it.

On Mar. 27, 1947,⁽⁴⁾ a committee amendment was offered in the Committee of the Whole. Chairman Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, inquired whether any Member desired to debate the amendment, and when no Member so indicated, the Chair put the question on the amendment. The Committee of the Whole then vacated the proceedings by unanimous consent in order to permit further debate:

MR. [JOHN W.] MCCORMACK [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

4. 93 CONG. REC. 2773, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MCCORMACK: My point of order is that the amendment has apparently been adopted and, as I see it, there has to be unanimous consent to have the action vacated in order that further proceedings may be had.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. The amendment was agreed to.

MR. MCCORMACK: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the proceedings by which the amendment was adopted be vacated so that we can go along in an orderly way.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will again invite anyone who desires to do so to speak on the committee amendment.

Debate on Points of Order

§ 77.34 Debate on points of order against an amendment is within the discretion of the Chair and does not come out of debate time on the merits of the amendment under the five-minute rule; thus, the proponent of an amendment against which a point of order has been reserved does not reserve a portion of his time under the five-minute rule to oppose any points of order if made, as separate debate time is permitted on points of order at the discretion of the Chair.

During consideration of H.R. 7014, the Energy Conservation and Oil Policy Act of 1975, on Aug. 1, 1975,⁽⁵⁾ the proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ Are there further amendments to title III?

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Brown of Ohio: Strike out Title III, as amended, and reinsert all except for Section 301, as amended.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order against the amendment.

MR. [BOB] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I also reserve a point of order.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, the thrust of this amendment is to strike from the bill the provisions of the Staggers pricing amendment, section 301, by revising title III to strike the whole title and to reinsert all in the title, except section 301.

Mr. Chairman, may I speak on the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has been recognized for 5 minutes, so the gentleman may proceed.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, may I reserve 2 minutes of my time to speak on the points of order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will recognize the gentleman to speak on the points of order at the appropriate time.

5. 121 CONG. REC. 26945, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

6. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I have not yet made the point of order. I reserved it.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Ohio to speak on the gentleman's amendment for 5 minutes. Then the gentlemen who reserved the points of order may press them or they may not.

Where Pro Forma Amendment Is in Third Degree

§ 77.35 Where a "modified closed rule" provides that a designated amendment may be offered as a new title to a bill and, with the exception of committee amendments thereto, only one designated amendment to that amendment may be offered, only two five-minute speeches are permitted on that amendment since a pro forma amendment thereto would be in the third degree (and a pro forma amendment to the original amendment inserting a new title is specifically prohibited by the rule), and further debate may be had only by unanimous consent.

On Dec. 18, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 9771, the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1975:

7. 121 CONG. REC. 41788-90, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [GLENN M.] ANDERSON of California: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Anderson of California to the amendment offered by Mr. Ullman: In proposed section 301, strike out subsections (b) and (c) and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to obligations incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act. . . .

MR. [SAM] GIBBONS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I will be brief. I have made my talk already. . . .

MR. [ALPHONZO] BELL [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from California.

MR. [JAMES C.] CORMAN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

I will not make the objection, but I only reserve a point of order to get a ruling from the Chair, because I want some time also.

MR. GIBBONS: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. GIBBONS: Mr. Chairman, as I understood the rule granted by the Ways and Means Committee, there was only one amendment, and the time under the rule was limited to 5 minutes on each side, and that pro forma amendments or any other amendments are out of order. That is the way I understand the rule.

THE CHAIRMAN: The rule is a rather complex rule, and if the gentleman will permit the Chair to review this matter, the Chair will respond.

Without objection, the gentleman from California (Mr. Bell) is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection. . . .

MR. GIBBONS: Mr. Chairman, I insist on regular order.

THE CHAIRMAN: Regular order is demanded.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Anderson) to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Ullman).

Debate Under Reservation of Objection

§ 77.36 On one occasion, where a Member reserved the right to object to another Member's unanimous-consent request to revise and extend his remarks in the Record, debate proceeded under the reservation of objection rather than under the five-minute rule; the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole suggested that extensions of time for debate under the five-minute rule be accomplished by unanimous consent rather than by reservation of objection to the unanimous-consent request.

On June 4, 1975,⁽⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Voting Rights Act extension (H.R. 6219):

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Hawaii (Mr. Matsunaga).

MR. [SPARK M.] MATSUNAGA [of Hawaii]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 6219; however, there are certain questions which I would like to have answered relative to title II, as well as title III.

I would like for the purpose of establishing legislative history to engage in colloquy with the gentleman from California, the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, Mr. Edwards.

To begin with, in both titles II and III of H.R. 6219 coverage depends on their servicing the voting age population who are members of single language minority groups. Although the bill defines minority, the term "single language minority" is not defined.

What is the meaning of "single language minority"? Does it mean, for instance, that the minority must have a common single language?

(Mr. Edwards of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. MATSUNAGA: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may revise and extend my remarks.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Hawaii?

9. 121 CONG. REC. 16887-89, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

MR. [ROBERT] MCCLORY [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object to the unanimous-consent request, I think that it is appropriate that the committee hear the debate on this subject. If we are making legislative history with respect to some matter that is not actually orally debated on the floor of the House, it seems to me that it is not going to be worth much to the Supreme Court or any other body that is going to interpret what we are doing here today.

I do not want any secret, unwritten history with regard to the extension of the Voting Rights Act. I want to know what we are doing.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Illinois reserves the right to object to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Hawaii to revise and extend his remarks, and makes the point that there should be debate on that subject rather than extension to achieve a legislative history.

MR. MATSUNAGA: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for 3 additional minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Hawaii?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. MCCLORY: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me on that point?

MR. MATSUNAGA: I will yield to the gentleman as soon as the gentleman has finished.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the committee is now operating under the prior reservation of objection of the gentleman from Illinois. The time of the gentleman from Hawaii has expired.

MR. McCLORY: Mr. Chairman, further reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the gentleman where in the legislation is there provision for this bailout with regard to the subgroups of a single-language minority group such as Asian Americans? Will the gentleman point that out in the bill? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair desires to state that this is an unusual procedure to continue with colloquy under the reservation of objection during the 5-minute rule. The gentleman who last had the floor in his own right was the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from California (Mr. Edwards).

If the chairman of the subcommittee desires to continue this discussion, the Chair would recommend that the gentleman ask unanimous consent to proceed for some additional time.

MR. EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may be allowed to proceed for an additional 30 seconds so that we may finish this discussion.

Parliamentarian's Note: An attempt to develop a legislative history by inserting an apparent colloquy in the Record by unanimous consent is improper, since the purpose of the request is to permit a Member to insert only such materials as do not affect the statement of another Member; a colloquy during proceedings under the five-minute rule must be presented to all Members of the Committee of the Whole.

Effect of Adoption of Amendment in Nature of Substitute

§ 77.37 Where an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill has been adopted in Committee of the Whole, the stage of amendments is passed and further amendments, including pro forma amendments for debate, are not in order; but on one occasion, when the Committee of the Whole had adopted an amendment in the nature of a substitute, the Chair, by unanimous consent, vacated that action to allow a Member to offer a pro forma amendment.

On May 13, 1977,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of the Intergovernmental Antirecession Assistance Act of 1977 (H.R. 6810) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ Are there further amendments?

Hearing none, the question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, the committee rises.

11. 123 CONG. REC. 14622, 14625, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Elizabeth Holtzman (N.Y.).

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Madam Chairman, I was seeking recognition by the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that the Chair had put the question on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. There were no further amendments and, under the rule, the committee rises.

MR. [L. H.] FOUNTAIN [of North Carolina]: Madam Chairman, I would like to say that I was standing and was prepared to make a statement about an amendment which I was going to offer but can no longer offer because I was not recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: Without objection, the Chair will vacate the proceedings so as to permit the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Fountain) to make a statement.

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Fountain) is recognized for 5 minutes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Are there further amendments? If not, the question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Debate on Divisible Amendment

§ 77.38 Where the question has been put on the first portion of a divisible amendment, further debate on the remaining portion may be had under the five-minute rule before the Chair puts the question thereon.

On Aug. 4, 1983,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 2230 (Civil Rights Commission Act of 1983):

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

(b) Section 104(c) of the Civil Rights Act of 1957 (42 U.S.C. 1975c(c)) is amended

MR. [F. JAMES] SENSENBRENNER [Jr., of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, pursuant to the rule, I demand a division of the question. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ . . . The Chair would propose to put the question first only on the date change, and then on the remainder of the amendment which constitutes in effect one proposition.

MR. SENSENBRENNER: That is fine, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question now is on that portion of the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Edwards) dealing with the date change from "1998" to "1988." . . .

13. 129 CONG. REC. 23134, 23142, 23143, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

14. Morris K. Udall (Ariz.).

So that portion of the amendment dealing with the date change from "1998" to "1988" was agreed to. . . .

MR. [ELLIOTT H.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

I understand the vote that was just taken was on the first part of a divided question. My inquiry is: Is it in order at this time for there to be any further debate on the second portion of the question that has been divided?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that further debate would be in order under the 5-minute rule until the Chair puts the question.

Debate After Adoption of Substitute

§ 77.39 Under the five-minute rule, no debate may intervene after a substitute for an amendment has been adopted and before the vote on the amendment, as amended, except by unanimous consent (since the amendment has been amended in its entirety and no further amendments including pro forma amendments are in order).

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 18, 1983,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3231, the

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁶⁾ The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Bonker), as amended, as a substitute for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Roth), as amended. . . .

So the amendment, as amended, offered as a substitute for the amendment, as amended, was agreed to. . . .

MR. [EDWIN V. W.] ZSCHAU [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, the gentleman from California (Mr. Zschau) is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Effect of Time Limitation on Right to Recognition

§ 77.40 In the Committee of the Whole the Member in charge of the bill having spoken on an amendment may speak again on the amendment following adoption of a motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule, where time is allocated by the Chair and the five-minute rule is abrogated.

On June 25, 1952,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Brent Spence, of Kentucky, manager of a bill being considered in the Committee of the Whole, moved that all debate on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto conclude at a certain time, and the motion was agreed to. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, then answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Under this limitation is the chairman of the committee, who has already spoken once on this amendment, entitled to be heard again under the rule?

THE CHAIRMAN: The chairman of the committee could rise in opposition to a pro forma amendment and be recognized again.

§ 78. — Closing and Limiting Debate

Rule XXIII clause 6 provides a privileged motion for closing five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole:

The committee may, by the vote of a majority of the members present, at any time after the five minutes' debate has begun upon proposed amendments to any section or paragraph of a bill, close all debate upon such section or paragraph or, at its election, upon the pending amendments only (which motion shall be decided without debate); but this shall not preclude further amendment, to be decided without debate. However, if debate is closed on any section or paragraph under this clause before there has been debate on any amendment which any Member shall have caused to be printed in the Congressional Record after the reporting of the bill by the committee but at least one day prior to floor consideration of such amendment, the Member who caused such amendment to be printed in the Record shall be given five minutes in which to explain such amendment, after which the first person to obtain the floor shall be given five minutes in opposition to it, and there shall be no further debate thereon; but such time for debate shall not be allowed when the offering of such amendment is dilatory. Material placed in the Record pursuant to this provision shall indicate the full text of the proposed amendment, the name of the proponent Member, the number of the bill to which it will be offered and the point in the bill or amendment thereto where the amendment is intended to be offered, and shall appear in a portion of the Record designated for that purpose.⁽¹⁸⁾

Although the House may by unanimous consent limit five-minute debate in Committee of the Whole, the motion or unanimous-consent request is ordinarily made in the Committee.⁽¹⁹⁾ The 18. House Rules and Manual §874 (1995). The clause preserving five-minute debate regardless of a limitation for an amendment which has been printed in the Record was added to the rule by H. Res. 5 in the 92d Congress.

19. See §§ 78.1, 78.2, 78.39, infra. A dated precedent, at 5 Hinds' Precedents §5229, indicates that the mo-motion, which is not debatable, is privileged, but is not in order until the portion of the bill to which it applies has been read and debated.⁽²⁰⁾ By unanimous consent, time under the five-minute rule may be limited before the relevant portion of the bill is read, or before there has been debate thereon.⁽¹⁾

Although a motion to close debate is not in order to change the effect of a prior motion to close debate, the House or the Committee may by unanimous consent vacate, rescind, or extend a limitation.⁽²⁾

tion under Rule XXIII clause 6 may be offered in the House.

- 20. See §§ 78.5–78.9, infra, for the privilege of the motion and §§ 78.58, 78.59, infra, for the precedence of the motion to strike the enacting clause over the motion to close debate.

For the nondebatability of the motion, see §§ 78.16, 78.17, infra.

For the proper time of offering the motion, see §§ 78.5, 78.26–78.31, infra (after reading of relevant portion of bill); §§ 78.21–78.25, infra (after some debate has been had).

- 1. See §§ 78.93–78.95, infra.

To permit a request to limit debate on an entire bill prior to completion of its reading for amendment would allow amendments under the limitation only to that portion of the bill which has been read and, if the limitation were reached, would require subsequent reading of the remainder of the bill without further debate on any amendments.

- 2. See §§ 78.81–78.88, infra.

Debate may be closed instantly by motion or unanimous-consent request; and it may be limited either to a certain number of minutes or to a fixed time by the clock.⁽³⁾

The motion may not include a reservation or allocation of time under the limitation, but time may be reserved under a unanimous-consent request to limit debate.⁽⁴⁾

Another method in which debate may be suspended in the Committee of the Whole is the motion to rise, which is highly privileged.⁽⁵⁾

MR. HAYS of Ohio: Would it be in order for a person not a member of the committee to move to close debate on whatever pending amendment there might be, and all amendments thereto, to this bill when we go into the Committee of the Whole?

THE SPEAKER: It is the practice and custom of the House that the Chair looks to the manager of the bill for motions relating to the management of the bill.

MR. HAYS of Ohio: If I made the motion—and I will make it more specific—would it be out of order or in violation of the rules?

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Jeffords: Page 331, after line 10, add the following:

TITLE VI—ENERGY LABELING AND EFFICIENCY STANDARDS FOR BEVERAGE CONTAINERS

DEFINITIONS AND COVERAGE

Sec. 601.—For purposes of this part—

Privilege of Motion

§ 78.5 A motion to close debate on a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto is privileged when made after the amendment has been read and debated.

On Aug. 16, 1967,⁽¹³⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, overruled a point of order against a motion to limit debate on a bill and amendments thereto, after a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute had been read and debated:

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I now move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude at 5 minutes to 4. . . .

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a further point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HAYS: Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding that a motion may be made to close debate on an amendment. But this motion is to close debate on the bill and all amendments thereto.

13. 113 CONG. REC. 22754, 22755, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: It happens that the Committee of the Whole is considering an amendment which is a committee amendment, and the motion made by the gentleman from New York under the circumstances is in order.

§ 78.6 The pendency of an amendment to a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute does not preclude a motion to limit debate on the substitute and all amendments thereto.

On Aug. 16, 1967,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, moved to limit debate on a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto while an amendment to the substitute was pending, and Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, overruled a point of order against the motion:

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. HAYS: Mr. Chairman, the point of order is that there is an amendment pending, the point of order being can we have another motion intervene to close debate?

Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the gentleman's motion is out of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Chair will have to overrule

14. 113 CONG. REC. 22754, 22755, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

the gentleman's point of order because a motion may be made on the amendment, or to close debate, at any time after debate has been had on the pending amendment.

§ 78.7 The motion to limit debate on the pending portion of a bill and all amendments thereto is in order while an amendment is pending.

On June 21, 1973,⁽¹⁵⁾ while an amendment was pending in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Augustus F. Hawkins, of California, moved that debate on the bill and amendments thereto close at a certain time. Chairman Robert C. Eckhardt, of Texas, then answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [JOHN T.] MYERS [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MYERS: Mr. Chairman, there is one motion pending before the motion made by the gentleman from California. Is this a substitute motion?

THE CHAIRMAN: There is an amendment pending, but the motion of the gentleman from California is in order at this time.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Hawkins) that all debate on the bill and all pending amendments thereto close at 11 p.m.

The motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Texas that all debate on this amendment and the section do now close.

MR. [CHARLES L.] UNDERHILL [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. UNDERHILL: The Chairman had already recognized the gentleman from Alabama, and he has the floor and can not be taken off the floor.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair overrules the point of order. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Texas.

The question was taken and the motion was agreed to.

MR. [ALLEN T.] TREADWAY [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. TREADWAY: Does the adoption of that vote foreclose debate on any other part of this section?

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion closes debate on the pending paragraph.

MR. TREADWAY: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet asking recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion of the gentleman from Texas is . . . a privileged motion after debate has been had on the paragraph.

§ 78.9 During the five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole, the Member managing the bill is entitled to prior recognition to move to close debate on a pending amendment over other Members who desire to debate the amendment or to offer amendments thereto.

On Nov. 25, 1970,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting five-minute debate on H.R. 19504, which was being handled by Mr. John C. Kluczynski, of Illinois. Mr. Kluczynski was recognized by Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, to move that all debate on the pending amendment immediately close. The motion was adopted; Mr. Jonathan B. Bingham, of New York, attempted to offer an amendment and Mr. Andrew Jacobs, Jr., of Indiana, attempted to debate the amendment on which debate had been closed. The Chairman stated:

17. 116 CONG. REC. 38990, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

The Chair had not recognized the gentleman from New York or the gentleman from Indiana. The Chair had recognized the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Kluczynski). The gentleman from Indiana misunderstood the Chair had recognized him. The Chair had to recognize the gentleman from Illinois as chairman of the subcommittee.⁽¹⁸⁾

§ 78.10 Although any Member may move, or request unanimous consent, to limit debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, the manager of the bill has the prior right to recognition for such purpose.

MR. [THEODORE S.] WEISS [of New York]: Objection, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Chairman, I move—

MR. [ROMANO L.] MAZZOLI [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I should be recognized as the floor manager.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Mazzoli).

MR. MAZZOLI: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MAZZOLI: Mr. Chairman, I believe under the rule, the gentleman from Kentucky, the floor manager, is entitled to be heard and to be recognized on matters limiting debate.

Let me just respectfully suggest to my friend, the gentleman from California, the House has made it clear we are not going to protract the debate tonight. . . .

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Chairman, if I might reclaim my time, I indulged the gentleman from Texas and asked him to withdraw his motion on the pretext that I would make a motion, as I have the ability to do under the rule, that debate on this amendment shall end in a half hour. Since I had the gentleman agree to withdraw it, I feel bound that I will then continue with this motion, and I so move.

MR. MAZZOLI: Mr. Chairman, can the gentleman say 45 minutes? I understand 45 minutes will be enough.

THE CHAIRMAN: If the gentleman from Kentucky has no motion, the gentleman from California is entitled to make his motion. Does the gentleman offer a motion?

MR. LUNGREN: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I move that debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright) be concluded at 7:30.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Lungren).

The motion was agreed to.

§ 78.11 Under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole, the subcommittee chairman who is managing the bill is entitled to prior recognition to move to limit debate over a Member seeking recognition to offer a pro forma amendment.

The Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 7797 (the Foreign Assistance and related agencies appropriations, 1978) under the five-minute rule on June 22, 1977,⁽¹⁾ when the following proceedings occurred:

1. 123 CONG. REC. 20288, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

MR. [JONATHAN B.] BINGHAM [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I was on my feet seeking recognition.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ For what purpose does the gentleman from Maryland rise?

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask unanimous consent for a limitation on the debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: Will the gentleman make his request.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto cease in 10 minutes.

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto cease in 10 minutes.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Chairman, my understanding is that the Chairman recognized the gentleman from New York (Mr. Bingham) and he was half-way down the aisle.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair saw both gentlemen at the same time, and he did recognize the gentleman from Maryland because the Chair had to, by custom and rule, I believe, recognize the chairman of the subcommittee. . . .

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Long).

The motion was agreed to.

§ 78.12 The Chair may recognize the manager of a bill to request a limit on debate on a pending portion of the bill before recognizing a Member to offer an amendment thereto.

On Dec. 4, 1979,⁽³⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission Authorization bill (H.R. 2608):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ Is there any further debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Harris)? If not, the question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Harris).

The amendment was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will indicate that we believe there is one additional amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez).

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, then I would ask unanimous consent that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto close at 4:15.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

2. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

3. 125 CONG. REC. 34516, 34518, 34519, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

4. Leon E. Panetta (Calif.).

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous consent request was granted will be recognized for 10 seconds each.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez).

MR. [HENRY B.] GONZALEZ [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Gonzalez: Page 11, after line 15, add the following new title:

TITLE IV—PROTECTION FOR INSPECTORS

Sec. 401. Section 1114 of Title 18, United States Code is amended by inserting “any construction inspector or quality assurance inspector on any Nuclear Regulatory Commission licensed project,” after “Department of Justice.”.

After debate on a point of order, Mr. Gonzalez made a parliamentary inquiry:

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Gonzalez) is recognized for 40 seconds.

MR. GONZALEZ: Mr. Chairman, I would like now to interpose my parliamentary inquiry with regard to the time allotted me. . . .

Why should I be limited to a motion that was made subsequent to the knowledge that I had a pending amendment to offer?

Had I known that I would come under that limitation on a subsequent motion, though I had not been recognized for the purpose of amendment, because the gentleman from Arizona was recognized anticipatorily on a motion I had no knowledge was going to be made. If I had known, I would have objected to the unanimous-consent request, because I wanted the opportunity to offer the amendment and be given at least 5 minutes, that is the customary time allotted a Member.

Let me say this, in order to avoid any kind of an argument. How much net time will I have to present this amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has 1 minute and 20 seconds on his amendment. . . .

With regard to the parliamentary inquiry, the Chair would indicate that he first recognized the chairman, the gentleman from Arizona as manager of the bill, that the gentleman made a unanimous-consent agreement with regard to limitation of time and that there was no objection.

Therefore, the gentleman is recognized for 1 minute and 20 seconds on his amendment.

Interruption of Member by Proposal To Limit Debate

§ 78.13 A Member having the floor in debate on his amendment may not be interrupted without his consent by a motion to close debate in a specified time.

On Aug. 21, 1940,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. John C. Schafer, of Wisconsin, offered an amendment under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole and was recognized for five minutes:

5. 86 CONG. REC. 10698, 76th Cong. 3d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The gentleman from Wisconsin is recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. SCHAFFER of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman—

MR. [HENRY B.] STEAGALL [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this section and all amendments thereto close in 5 minutes.

MR. [JESSE P.] WOLCOTT [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. STEAGALL: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this section—

MR. SCHAFFER of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SCHAFFER of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman, I did not yield to the gentleman from Alabama to submit a unanimous-consent request or to make a motion. I have some rights here under the rules of the House. I demand the regular order, and that is that I be permitted to continue without interruption.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes, but there is a motion before the House.

MR. SCHAFFER of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order against that motion. I did not yield for the gentleman to make a motion. I had the floor. The gentleman did not ask me to yield and I did not yield. I have some rights under the rules of the House and I ask that they be respected by the gentleman who has interrupted even though he is chairman of the important committee in charge of the pending legislation.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Wisconsin is recognized for 5 minutes.

§ 78.14 A motion to limit debate on an amendment, while privileged, cannot deprive another Member of the floor.

On Mar. 12, 1964,⁽⁷⁾ a Member with the floor on his amendment under the five-minute rule declined to yield to another Member to move to limit debate:

MR. [GLEN C.] CUNNINGHAM [of Nebraska]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of my amendment.

MR. [JAMES H.] MORRISON [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a unanimous-consent request?

MR. CUNNINGHAM: For a unanimous-consent request I yield; yes.

MR. MORRISON: I wonder if we can agree that all debate on the amendment and all other amendments to title II end in 20 minutes.

MR. CUNNINGHAM: Mr. Chairman, I do not yield for that purpose. That would come out of my time.

MR. MORRISON: After consideration of the gentleman's amendment, could all debate on all amendments end in 20 minutes?

MR. [AUGUST E.] JOHANSEN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. [PAUL C.] JONES of Missouri: I object.

6. Abe Murdock (Utah).

7. 110 CONG. REC. 5118, 5119, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ Objection is heard.

MR. MORRISON: Mr. Chairman, I move that be done.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Nebraska has the floor. Does the gentleman from Nebraska yield to the gentleman from Louisiana?

MR. CUNNINGHAM: No, because I wish to make a statement. Following my statement the gentleman can be recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Nebraska is recognized for 5 minutes.

§ 78.15 Time consumed in disposing of unanimous-consent requests or motions to limit debate on an amendment in the Committee of the Whole is charged to the Member who had been recognized under the five-minute rule and who had yielded for that purpose.

On June 1, 1972,⁽⁹⁾ Chairman Robert N. Giaimo, of Connecticut, ruled on whether time for interruptions for which a Member with the floor under the five-minute rule yielded, would be taken out of that Member's time:

MR. [WILLIAM V.] CHAPPELL [Jr., of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. . . .

MR. [HARLEY O.] STAGGERS [of West Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman yield to me?

8. Chet Holifield (Calif.).

9. 118 CONG. REC. 19476, 92d Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. CHAPPELL: I yield to the gentleman from West Virginia.

MR. STAGGERS: I have asked the gentleman from Florida to yield to me in order to ascertain if we could set a limit of debate on this amendment.

Having heard the amendment read, it is a very simple amendment, and it can be read again if needed.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from West Virginia?

MR. [DURWARD G.] HALL [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. STAGGERS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from West Virginia?

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Chairman, is this coming out of the gentleman's time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that that is correct.

Motion Not Debatable

§ 78.16 A motion to close debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is not debatable.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽¹⁰⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that a motion to close debate under the five-minute rule is non-debatable:

10. 111 CONG. REC. 6098, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [ADAM C.] POWELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this title and all amendments thereto close now. . . .

MRS. [EDITH S.] GREEN of Oregon: Mr. Chairman . . . I rise in opposition to this motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from New York [Mr. Powell] withdraw his motion?

MR. POWELL: I do not, Mr. Chairman.

MR. [ROBERT P.] GRIFFIN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GRIFFIN: Mr. Chairman, I understand the chairman of the full committee to move that debate on title II be cut off at this time. Was that the motion by the gentleman from New York?

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion, as the Chair understood it, was that all debate on section 202 of title II close.

The question is on the motion of the gentleman from New York.

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman—

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Mississippi rise?

MR. COLMER: Mr. Chairman, do I understand the ruling of the Chair to be that a motion to close debate is not debatable?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.⁽¹¹⁾

11. See also 75 CONG. REC. 11453, 72d Cong. 1st Sess., May 27, 1932; and § 78.17 A motion to fix the closing of debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole is not debatable.

On Mar. 30, 1950,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Oren Harris, of Arkansas, responded as follows to a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [JOHN] KEE [of West Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on title I and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes.

MR. [COMPTON I.] WHITE of Idaho: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WHITE of Idaho: I would like to know if this motion is debatable.

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion is not debatable.

Similarly, Chairman Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, ruled on Jan.

75 CONG. REC. 2749, 72d Cong. 1st Sess., Jan. 26, 1932.

For the basis of the ruling, see Rule XXIII clause 6, House Rules and Manual §874 (1995): "The committee may, by the vote of a majority of the members present, at any time after the five minutes' debate has begun upon proposed amendments to any section or paragraph of a bill, close all debate upon such section or paragraph or, at its election, upon the pending amendments only (which motion shall be decided without debate)."

12. 96 CONG. REC. 4423, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

19, 1944,⁽¹³⁾ that a motion that “all debate on section 2 and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes” was not debatable.

On Jan. 26, 1932, Mr. James P. Buchanan, of Texas, moved, in the Committee of the Whole, that all debate on a pending amendment and on a pending section close instantly. Chairman John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled that the motion was privileged and not debatable.⁽¹⁴⁾ § 78.18 The motion to close debate is not subject to debate.

An illustration of the principle described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole on June 5, 1975,⁽¹⁵⁾ as follows:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the committee amendment and all amendments thereto conclude at 5:15 o'clock.

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ The motion is not debatable.

15. 121 CONG. REC. 17187, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.
16. Bob Wilson (Calif.).

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan.

The motion was agreed to.

§ 78.19 A motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole is not subject to debate.

On May 18, 1977,⁽¹⁷⁾ during debate in the Committee of the Whole on the Federal Employees' Political Activities Act of 1977 (H.R. 10), Mr. William Clay, of Missouri, made the following motion:

MR. CLAY: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 9 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ . . . Does the Chair understand the gentleman's motion to be that all debate on the committee amendment and all amendments thereto cease at 9 o'clock?

MR. CLAY: And the bill is a part of the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is the bill. . . .

MR. [DANIEL R.] GLICKMAN [of Kansas]: Mr. Chairman, under this type of motion is it true that no Member of the body is allowed to speak for or against the motion?

I would like to speak against the motion. Is that possible?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the motion is not debatable.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Clay).

17. 123 CONG. REC. 15418, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.
18. James R. Mann (S.C.).

§ 78.20 A motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole is not subject to debate.

During consideration of the foreign aid authorization bill (H.R. 12514) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 1, 1978,⁽¹⁹⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendments and all amendments thereto conclude at 4:30. . . .

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, is the motion now before the House debatable?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ The Chair will advise the gentleman that it is not.

Time for Motion To Close Debate

§ 78.21 A motion to close five-minute debate in the Committee of the Whole is in order after some debate has been had on the pending proposition.

On Feb. 27, 1931,⁽¹⁾ Mr. James S. Parker, of New York, moved to close debate in the Committee of the Whole after some debate had been had under the five-minute rule. Chairman William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, overruled a point of order against the motion:

19. 124 CONG. REC. 23716, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

20. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

1. 74 CONG. REC. 6300, 71st Cong. 3d Sess.

MR. PARKER: There is no reason why amendments can not be offered to the bill. There is no reason why Members should not offer as many amendments as they choose. Mr. Chairman, I make the motion that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York moves that all debate on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes.

MR. [GEORGE] HUDDLESTON [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that this is an attempt in the committee to fix time for the future, which is in violation of the rules of the House.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that, under the rules of the House, after any quota of debate has been had on one amendment it is then the privilege of the committee to close debate. . . .

Paragraph 6 of Rule XXIII provides:

The committee may, by the vote of a majority of the members present, at any time after the five minutes' debate has begun upon proposed amendments to any section or paragraph of a bill, close all debate upon such section or paragraph or, at its election, upon the pending amendments only (which motion shall be decided without debate); but this shall not preclude further amendment, to be decided without debate.

MR. HUDDLESTON: Of course, I understand that, but the point I am making is that this is not a motion to close debate but it is a motion to fix time. That is what the motion is.

THE CHAIRMAN: The present occupant of the chair cannot follow the argument of the gentleman. It seems to the Chair, with due respect, that the gentleman's point is a distinction without a difference.⁽²⁾

§ 78.22 A motion to close debate on a section of or an amendment to a bill in the Committee of the Whole is not in order until there has been some debate on the section or amendment.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽³⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated that a motion to close debate on a section in the Committee of the Whole was not in order until some debate had been had thereon:

The Clerk read as follows:

STATE PLANS

Sec. 203. (a) Any State which desires to receive grants under this title shall submit to the Commissioner a State plan, in such detail as the Commissioner deems necessary, which—

(1) designates a State agency which shall, either directly or

2. The Chair may entertain a motion to close debate before debate has been had where no point of order is made against the motion. See 114 CONG. REC. 22094, 22095, 90th Cong. 2d Sess., July 18, 1968.
3. 111 CONG. REC. 6100, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

through arrangements with other State or local public agencies, act as the sole agency for administration of the State plan. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from New York, the chairman of the committee, rise?

MR. [ADAM C.] POWELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 203 of title II—

THE CHAIRMAN: If the gentleman will permit, the Chair will advise the chairman of the committee that motion is not in order until there is debate on the section.

On the same day,⁽⁴⁾ Chairman Bolling sustained a point of order by Mrs. Edith S. Green, of Oregon, against a motion offered by Mr. Powell to close debate on a section, which motion had been offered immediately after the section had been read and before any debate had occurred thereon.⁽⁵⁾

On July 9, 1965,⁽⁶⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled as follows on the proper time to offer a motion to close debate on an amendment:

MR. [BASIL L.] WHITENER [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

4. Id. at pp. 6097, 6098.
5. See also 111 CONG. REC. 6104, 89th Cong. 1st Sess., Mar. 26, 1965; and 82 CONG. REC. 1809, 75th Cong. 2d Sess., Dec. 17, 1937.
6. 111 CONG. REC. 16233, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

Amendment offered by Mr. Whitener: On page 14 after line 6 strike all of section 4 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Sec. 4. (a) To assure that the right of citizens of the United States to vote. . . .

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a unanimous-consent request?

MR. WHITENER: I yield to the gentleman.

MR. CELLER: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto end in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. CELLER: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto end in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will have to advise the gentleman that no such motion is in order until the gentleman from North Carolina has been heard on his amendment. The gentleman from North Carolina is recognized for 5 minutes.

On Mar. 21, 1930,⁽⁷⁾ Chairman Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, ruled that a motion to close debate on an amendment was in order after one speech of five minutes had been had on the amendment.⁽⁸⁾

7. 72 CONG. REC. 5858, 71st Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 78.23 The motion to close debate in the Committee of the Whole is in order after one five-minute speech.

On Mar. 26, 1965, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, answered a parliamentary inquiry as follows:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Mr. Chairman, under the Rules of the House would it be possible or permissible to move to close debate on the whole bill until each section has been read?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the practices and precedents of the House the bill is being read by sections. A motion is in order to close debate on each section after it has been read and debated.

MR. HALLECK: How much debate on each section is required to be had?

THE CHAIRMAN: At least 5 minutes.⁽⁹⁾

§ 78.24 After debate, however brief, the motion to close debate under the five-minute rule is in order.

On Apr. 8, 1964,⁽¹⁰⁾ Chairman Phillip M. Landrum, of Georgia, 1967; and 93 CONG. REC. 2557, 80th Cong. 1st Sess., Mar. 25, 1947.

10. 110 CONG. REC. 7298, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

overruled a point of order against a motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule:

MR. [HAROLD D.] COOLEY [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and on this bill close by 6 o'clock.

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: As I understand it, that motion is not in order until the first speech has been made in support of the amendment and then a 5-minute speech in opposition to it.

MR. [CARL] ALBERT [of Oklahoma]: He just made the 5-minute speech.

THE CHAIRMAN: There has been debate on this amendment already. The motion is in order.

MR. [CHARLES B.] HOEVEN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOEVEN: Mr. Chairman, has the entire bill been read?

THE CHAIRMAN: The entire bill has been read, and there has been debate on this amendment.

MR. [RALPH F.] BEERMANN [of Nebraska]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BEERMANN: As I understand it, one speaker may speak for the amendment and one against it. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That has been done.

MR. BEERMANN: So far only the author of the amendment has spoken for it. Three minutes were granted additionally by the majority leader and 3 minutes were requested by the minority leader. There has been no 5-minute debate against the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: There has been debate on the amendment, the Chair advises the gentleman, and the motion of the gentleman from North Carolina is in order.

—What Qualifies as “Debate” To Permit Clause 6 Motion

§ 78.25 The motion to close debate under the five-minute rule is in order after one speech, even though the Member making the speech, after gaining recognition to strike out the last word, obtains consent to speak out of order.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽¹¹⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that a motion to close debate under the five-minute rule on an entire bill could not be offered until the last section of the bill had been read and debated for at least five minutes. The Clerk then read the last section of the pending bill, and Mr. George W. Andrews, of Alabama, gained recognition by moving to strike out the last word. He asked and was given permission to speak out of order and delivered remarks not related to the pending bill.

Following Mr. Andrews' remarks, Mr. Adam C. Powell, of New York, moved that all debate on the final section close instantly, and the Chairman stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that the motion was properly offered:

MR. POWELL: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this section close now.

MR. [ALBERT H.] QUIE [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. QUIE: The gentleman who has just spoken, spoke out of order. Therefore, there was no debate on the bill. Therefore, I ask if it is possible to strike out the last word.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman obtained the 5 minutes by the motion to strike out the last word. Therefore, there has been debate on this section.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York.

The motion was agreed to.

Motion To Close Debate in Order Only on Matter Read

§ 78.26 A motion to close debate on a bill in the Committee of the Whole is not in order until the bill has been completely read.

On June 29, 1949,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Hale Boggs, of Louisiana, sustained a point of order against a motion to close debate on a bill because the motion was offered before the bill had been read:

12. 95 CONG. REC. 8652, 8653, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [BRENT] SPENCE [of Kentucky]: Then Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude at 5 minutes past 5, the remainder of the bill to be considered as read and be open to amendment at any point.

MR. [T. MILLET] HAND [of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HAND: The motion is not in order. The gentleman from Kentucky does not have the floor.

MR. [SAM] RAYBURN [of Texas]: The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. Whittington] yielded to the gentleman from Kentucky.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Mississippi yielded and the gentleman from Kentucky is not out of order.

MR. [FRANK B.] KEEFE [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the motion because the bill has not yet been read in its entirety.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must sustain the point of order because the remainder of the bill has not been read.

§ 78.27 A motion to close debate on a bill and amendments thereto is not in order until the bill has been completely read.

On July 22, 1965,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Adam C. Powell, of New York, moved that all debate on the pending bill and amendments thereto close at 5 p.m. Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, stated that the motion was not in order, the bill not having been fully read. When Mr. Powell made a unanimous-consent request to close debate on the bill, it was objected to.

13. 111 CONG. REC. 17932, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

On May 18, 1966,⁽¹⁴⁾ Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that it was in order by unanimous consent, but not by motion, to close debate on a bill and all remaining amendments thereto, the bill not having been read.

§ 78.28 Until the last section of a bill being read by sections has been read, a motion to close debate on the entire bill is not in order.

On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽¹⁵⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, answered a parliamentary inquiry on whether a motion to close debate on a bill can be offered before the entire bill has been read or debated:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

14. 112 CONG. REC. 10911, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

15. 111 CONG. REC. 6104, 6105, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Mr. Chairman, under the rules of the House would it be possible or permissible to move to close debate on the whole bill until each section has been read?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the practices and precedents of the House the bill is being read by sections. A motion is in order to close debate on each section after it has been read and debated.

§ 78.29 When a bill is being read for amendment by titles or by sections, debate under the five-minute rule on the portion of the bill which has been read and debated may be closed by motion, but on titles or sections that have not been read, debate may only be closed by unanimous consent.

On Feb. 8, 1964,⁽¹⁶⁾ Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, answered parliamentary inquiries on closing debate under the five-minute rule:

MR. [WILLIAM M.] MCCULLOCH [of Ohio]: I should like to ask, Mr. Chairman, if the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union can now effect binding action as to time on the titles of the bill which we have not reached?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would inform the gentleman from Ohio that that could be done only by unanimous consent.

16. 110 CONG. REC. 2614, 2615, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [CARL] ALBERT [of Oklahoma]: And cannot it be done in Committee of the Whole, Mr. Chairman?

THE CHAIRMAN: It can be done in Committee of the Whole. It would also depend in a measure on the nature of the request. . . .

MR. ALBERT: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate on title VII on Monday next be limited to 2 hours and that the debate on the remainder of the bill be limited to 2 hours, making a total of 4 hours.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, and I am just one ordinary Member of this House, but I do have certain rights as one ordinary Member of the House, if I understand what was agreed upon originally, I am willing to abide by that agreement. . . .

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

MR. COLMER: I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

MR. HAYS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to propound a parliamentary inquiry. If the unanimous-consent request of the majority leader should be objected to, would not the majority leader or the chairman of the committee have a right to move that that be set and that the debate be ended at a specified time on Monday?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would say a motion to limit debate would be in order after there has been debate on the title.

Parliamentarian's Note: The bill under consideration, H.R. 7152, the Civil Rights Act of 1963, was being read for amendment by titles instead of by sections, pursuant to House Resolution 616 from the Committee on Rules making in order its consideration.

On Mar. 25, 1965,⁽¹⁷⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, answered inquiries on a motion to limit debate which had been agreed to:

THE CHAIRMAN: All time on section 2 has expired. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Quie].

MR. [ROBERT P.] GRIFFIN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. GRIFFIN: The Chair said "on section 2." It was my understanding that the chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor said "title I." Am I incorrect?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair put the motion on section 2, which contains a title I.

MR. GRIFFIN: So the debate is closed at 6 o'clock on section 2, but not on the remainder of title I?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. [ADAM C.] POWELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman—

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

MR. POWELL: I should like for the Clerk to repeat my request.

17. 111 CONG. REC. 6016, 6020, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman may have made another request than that, but since the other sections of this title have not been read, and since no unanimous-consent request has been made that they be considered as read, no motion could have been in order on anything except that which was read. That was section 2.

MR. POWELL: I beg to state, Mr. Chairman, that the motion I offered was on all amendments and debate on title I, and there was no point of order raised against it.

THE CHAIRMAN: There may have been a misunderstanding, but the Chair knows how he put the motion, and he knows he could not have put the other motion at that time. The other sections of that title had not been read, nor had unanimous consent been requested that they be considered as read. It does happen that section 2 contains a different title I. That is the motion which the Chairman put.

MR. POWELL: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. POWELL: Is it possible for the Chairman to put the motion as made?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair stated the motion as the Chair at that time understood it. There was no correction of the Chair's statement of the motion. The motion stands as stated. That was what the Committee voted on.

§ 78.30 Where the Committee of the Whole has by unanimous consent dispensed with further reading of a bill for amendment, a motion to fix the time for debate on the remainder of the bill and amendments thereto is in order after there has been debate.

On Apr. 25, 1947,⁽¹⁸⁾ Chairman Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, overruled a point of order against a motion to close debate, under the five-minute rule, on a bill:

MR. [ROBERT F.] JONES of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto, and amendments, be limited to 40 minutes.

MR. [FRANCIS E.] WALTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WALTER: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the motion may eliminate the possibility of debate on an amendment or amendments to amendments; therefore, until it is determined how many amendments there are the motion is subject to a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will be constrained to overrule the point of order because by unanimous consent the further reading of the bill was waived.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Jones].

The motion was agreed to.

§ 78.31 Where a special rule provided for the reading of a bill in its entirety, and not by sections, it was held in order following debate under the five-minute rule to move to close debate on the bill and all amendments thereto.

¹⁸ 93 CONG. REC. 4100, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

On Aug. 22, 1935,⁽¹⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting five-minute debate on H.R. 8455, relative to public works, pursuant to House Resolution 349, providing that the bill "in its entirety shall be read for amendment." Mr. Jack Nichols, of Oklahoma, moved to close debate on the entire bill and amendments thereto, and Chairman Claude A. Fuller, of Arkansas, overruled a point of order against the motion.

MR. NICHOLS: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. Nichols] moves that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes.

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against that motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will hear the gentleman.

MR. TABER: Mr. Chairman, such a motion is only in order when a bill is being read by sections and after an amendment has been offered. The motion is not in order at this stage.

THE CHAIRMAN: The rule provided for the reading of the entire bill, and the Chair holds that the motion of the gentleman from Oklahoma is in order.

§ 78.32 A motion under Rule XXIII clause 6 to close debate on a bill and all amendments thereto is not in order until the reading of the bill has been completed.

The proposition stated above was demonstrated on June 21, 1974,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of H.R. 15472 (agriculture, environmental, and consumer appropriations for fiscal year 1975) in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [JAMIE L.] WHITTEN [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto close at 5:30.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi?

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto close at 5:30.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the committee must complete the reading of the bill before such a motion could be entertained.

MR. WHITTEN: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the bill be dispensed with, and that it be printed in the Record and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi?

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

The Clerk will read.

§ 78.33 The Chair may decline to entertain a unanimous-consent request that all debate on a pending measure be limited, in advance of completion of reading of that measure in its entirety and in the absence of a unanimous-consent agreement to consider the measure as having been read.

On July 16, 1975,⁽²⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 591 (establishing a Select Committee on Intelligence) in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Richard Bolling, of Missouri, made a unanimous-consent request, as follows:

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the necessary number of words. . . . I am going to ask unanimous consent that the resolution be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

2. 121 CONG. REC. 23112, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

3. Frank E. Evans (Colo.).

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, then I can only ask unanimous consent that all debate on the resolution and all amendments thereto close at 2:30.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman should be advised that that request cannot be made until the resolution has been read.

§ 78.34 A motion to close all debate on a bill and all amendments thereto under the five-minute rule is not in order when the bill has not been completely read; such motion may be made only with respect to that portion which has been read and on which there has been debate.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 4, 1975,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of the Voting Rights Act Extension (H.R. 6219):

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I believe we have an agreement to vote on the final passage of the bill at 6:30 and with a time limitation on certain amendments that remain, so I ask unanimous consent at this time that the bill be considered as read in full and open to amendment at any point.

4. 121 CONG. REC. 16899, 16901, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. [JAMES P.] JOHNSON of Colorado: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I so move.

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion is not in order. Only title II could be closed at this time by a motion.

§ 78.35 Where the Committee of the Whole was considering a bill pursuant to a special rule making in order a motion to strike out a title thereof and insert a new text to be read by section for amendment, the Chair stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that a motion would be in order to close debate under the five-minute rule on a section of said amendment which had been read for amendment.

On July 26, 1977,⁽⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration the Agriculture Act of 1977 (H.R. 7171), when the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ Pursuant to the rule, it shall be in order to consider an amendment striking out title XII and inserting in lieu thereof the text of the bill H.R. 7940, which shall be considered as original text for the purpose of amendment and shall be read for amendment by sections. . . .

The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE XII—FOOD STAMPS

Sec. 1201. The Food Stamp Act of 1964, as amended, is amended as follows:

(a) New sections 18 and 19 are added as follows: . . .

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of title XII be dispensed with, that it be considered as read, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

MR. [STEVEN D.] SYMMS [of Idaho]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Foley) explain to the Members of the House just what the parliamentary procedure is here.

MR. FOLEY: If the gentleman will yield, Mr. Chairman, the parliamentary situation is that the title which was about to be read is the title of the original bill, H.R. 7171. It is a truncated food stamp title, and it would be my purpose at the time we conclude the reading or the waiving of the reading to offer a substitute in lieu of title XII, which will be the text of H.R. 7940, which is made in order as a substitute by the rule that the House has previously adopted.

In the event that that substitute is then offered, the substitute would be read by section. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: If this particular request is granted then there would be no curtailment of the reading of the substitute amendment by section and time could not be limited on any section or amendments thereto except by unanimous consent? . . .

MR. FOLEY: If the gentleman from Maryland will permit me to continue . . . the gentleman is correct in that if the substitute is before the committee, it would be in order to move to cut off the debate but by section by section and not on the whole title.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) that that is correct.

§ 78.36 By unanimous consent, a bill under consideration in the Committee of the Whole may be considered as read and open for amendment at any point; but until a bill has been read in full or its reading dispensed with by unanimous consent, a motion to limit debate on the bill (and amendments thereto) is not in order.

On June 27, 1979,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriation bill for fiscal 1980 (H.R. 4389):

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the balance of the bill be considered as read, open to amendment at any point, and further, Mr. Chairman, that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto end at 8 o'clock.

8. 125 CONG. REC. 17013, 17014, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky? . . .

MR. NATCHER: Mr. Chairman, I would . . . like to propound a parliamentary inquiry.

As I understand it, under the rules of the House, it requires a unanimous-consent request to open the bill for amendment at any point; am I correct in that?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. NATCHER: Mr. Chairman, it requires unanimous consent before the time of 8 or 8:30 could be fixed? A motion would not be in order at this time? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that a motion would not be in order until the bill is read.

§ 78.37 Clause 6 of Rule XXIII permits the Committee of the Whole by motion to limit debate on the pending portion of a bill (and on all amendments thereto) or just on a pending amendment (and all amendments thereto), but does not permit a motion to limit and allocate separate time for debate on perfecting amendments not yet offered; unanimous consent is required to limit or allocate debate time on such amendments.

9. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

During consideration of the nuclear freeze resolution (H.J. Res. 13) in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 16, 1983,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate close at 11:30 on the resolve clause and all amendments pending thereto. . . .

MR. PHILIP M. CRANE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, under the provisions of the motion just made, does this mean again that one of the 11 amendments that are pending on the resolution could theoretically consume the entire time until 11:30?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ The answer is yes, but the Chair would remind the gentleman that the committee could separately adopt a limitation of debate on any amendment that was pending if there were a unanimous-consent request and no objection, or if there were a motion so adopted.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) to limit debate on the resolve clause and all amendments thereto to 11:30 p.m. . . .

[The motion was rejected.]

MR. [ALBERT A.] GORE [Jr., of Tennessee]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate be limited to 6 minutes on each amendment, divided equally for and against.

MR. [THOMAS F.] HARTNETT [of South Carolina]: I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. GORE: Mr. Chairman, I move that debate be limited to 6 minutes per amendment, divided equally for and against.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not an appropriate motion and is not in order.

MR. GORE: Mr. Chairman, would the motion be in order if those amendments protected under the rule received 5 minutes for and against?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is not appropriate or proper to limit and allocate time for debate on amendments not yet offered.

Parliamentarian's Note: As indicated in the Chair's remarks above, the Committee of the Whole, pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XXIII, may by motion limit debate on a pending committee amendment in the nature of a substitute (considered as having been read as original text) and on all amendments thereto to a time certain, and may then, by subsequent unanimous consent or motions, separately limit debate on each perfecting amendment after it has been offered.

§ 78.38 Pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XXIII, the Committee of the Whole may, by motion, limit debate to a time certain on a pending committee amendment in the nature of a substitute (once it has been considered as having been read) and on all amendments which might be offered thereto, since the original amendment is pending and has been read in its entirety, but may not separately by motion limit debate or allocate time thereon on perfecting amendments not yet offered.

On Mar. 16, 1983,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13, the nuclear freeze resolution, in the Committee of the Whole, a motion to close debate on all amendments resulted in the following parliamentary inquiries:

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate end at a quarter to 12 on this amendment and all amendments thereto and on all amendments to the resolve clause.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The gentleman moves that debate on this amendment and all amendments to the text following the resolve clause end at a quarter to 12.

The Chair would inquire of the gentleman, does his motion cover all amendments to the text following the resolve clause?

MR. ZABLOCKI: All amendments. . . .

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: In line with my parliamentary inquiry, I did not think we had even completed debate on the Levitas amendment, and the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs is now asking that we dispense with all further debate and vote on amendments by a quarter to 12, many of which have not even been considered, amendments which have great value. Some of the best amendments that could be offered here in this body tonight have not even been offered and considered.

My parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman, is, is that in order at this point before we have even dispensed with the amendment pending before us?

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion is in order since the underlying committee substitute to the text has been considered as read in its entirety and is pending.

MR. [DANIEL E.] LUNGREN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LUNGREN: Mr. Chairman, is this not the same motion that was suggested by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Gore) a few minutes ago and ruled out of order by the Chair?

THE CHAIRMAN: No. The Chair would advise the gentleman it is a different limitation motion on a text which is pending and all amendments thereto, and does not allocate time.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) to limit debate on this amendment and all amendments to the resolving clause to 11:45 p.m.

[The motion was rejected.]

The motion by Mr. Gore and ruling thereon, referred to by Mr. Lungren, were as follows:⁽¹⁴⁾

12. 129 CONG. REC. 5803, 5804, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

13. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

14. 129 CONG. REC. 5796, 98th Cong. 1st Sess., Mar. 16, 1983.

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Gore) rise?

MR. [ALBERT A.] GORE [Jr., of Tennessee]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate be limited to 6 minutes on each amendment, divided equally for and against.

MR. [THOMAS F.] HARTNETT [of South Carolina]: I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. GORE: Mr. Chairman, I move that debate be limited to 6 minutes per amendment, divided equally for and against.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not an appropriate motion and is not in order.

MR. GORE: Mr. Chairman, would the motion be in order if those amendments protected under the rule received 5 minutes for and against?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is not appropriate or proper to limit and allocate time for debate on amendments not yet offered.

Closing Debate Instantly or After Stated Time

§ 78.39 A motion to close debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole may be made to close debate instantly or after a stated time.

On Feb. 27, 1931,⁽¹⁵⁾ after some debate had been had on an amendment in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. James S. Parker, of New York, moved that all debate on the amendment and amendments thereto close in 15 minutes. Mr. George Huddleston, of Alabama, made a point of order against the motion and Chairman William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, ruled that the motion could be made, pursuant to Rule XXIII, at any time after five minutes' debate has begun. Mr. Huddleston then contended that the motion was not to close debate under the rule but to fix time. The Chairman stated that there was no difference between the motions as to their coming within the rule:

MR. HUDDLESTON: May I call this to the attention of the Chair? This is not a motion to close debate but it is a motion to fix time, which is a very different thing. I do not question the right of the gentleman to move to close debate now, but you can not move to fix time in the future.

THE CHAIRMAN: Paragraph 6 of Rule XXIII provides:

The committee may, by the vote of a majority of the members present, at any time after the five minutes' debate has begun upon proposed amendments to any section or paragraph of a bill, close all debate upon such section or paragraph or, at its election, upon the pending amendments only (which motion shall be decided without debate); but this shall not preclude further amendment, to be decided without debate.

MR. HUDDLESTON: Of course, I understand that, but the point I am making is that this is not a motion to close debate but it is a motion to fix time. That is what the motion is.

15. 74 CONG. REC. 6300, 71st Cong. 3d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The present occupant of the chair can not follow the argument of the gentleman. It seems to the Chair, with due respect, that the gentleman's point is a distinction without a difference.

MR. [C. WILLIAM] RAMSEYER [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. RAMSEYER: Is the motion to close debate directed to the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York or to the amendment to the amendment now pending?

THE CHAIRMAN: There is pending before the committee at the present time one amendment in the nature of a substitute.

MR. RAMSEYER: That is the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Parker]?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes. The motion the gentleman makes is to close debate on the amendment and all amendments thereto in 15 minutes. That is the motion. The Chair will state that there is only one amendment pending before the committee at the present time, and that is an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

MR. HUDDLESTON: I call the Chair's attention to the fact that the motion is to close debate in 15 minutes and not to close it now.

THE CHAIRMAN: It is the general practice, long established and well recognized in the committee to entertain a motion to either close the debate instantaneously or after any stated time for debate.

§ 78.40 The Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request that all debate on the pending bill and all amendments thereto terminate by a time certain on the following day.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of the Panama Canal Act of 1979 (H.R. 111) in the Committee of the Whole, the following unanimous-consent request was agreed to:

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on H.R. 111 and all amendments thereto conclude at 1 p.m. tomorrow. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy)?

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: The form of Mr. Murphy's initial request was to cut off debate and amendments at a time certain, a unanimous-consent request which is not in order in Committee of the Whole where it would abrogate the rights of Members under special rules adopted by the House to offer amendments. Thus the request as restated affected only debate time.

Extending Debate Beyond Limitation

§ 78.41 The House, before resolving itself into the Committee of the Whole for the further consideration of a bill, agreed by unanimous consent to extend debate under the five-minute rule to two minutes on each side on the amendments remaining undisposed of at the desk where all debate time on the bill had expired.

16. 125 CONG. REC. 15775, 15776, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

On May 11, 1961,⁽¹⁸⁾ the House, with Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, presiding, agreed to a limitation on debate on certain amendments at the Clerk's desk to be considered in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [HAROLD D.] COOLEY [of North Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, in view of the extraordinary situation in which the House found itself on yesterday, I ask unanimous consent that when the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2010, that each of the authors of the two pending amendments now on the Speaker's desk may be given 2 minutes to present their amendments and that the committee be given 2 minutes in opposition.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. COOLEY: I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

MR. GROSS: What happens to the allocation of other time other than on the amendments?

MR. COOLEY: We have no other time.

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, how many amendments does this request cover?

MR. COOLEY: I understand there are only two amendments now at the desk.

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Committee of the Whole had risen on the prior day before 4:15 p.m., which was the hour appointed by a unanimous-consent agreement for the closing of debate on the bill and all amendments thereto. By so rising, the Committee had allowed the time to expire and there was no time left on the following day, May 11.

§ 78.42 A time limitation on debate imposed by the Committee of the Whole, pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, may be rescinded or modified only by unanimous consent; and a unanimous consent request to extend debate time on an amendment may not be entertained while there is pending a demand for a recorded vote on that amendment.

During consideration of the Energy Conservation and Oil Policy Act of 1975 (H.R. 7014) in the

18. 107 CONG. REC. 7869, 87th Cong. 1st Sess.

Committee of the Whole on Sept. 17, 1975,⁽¹⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ When the Committee rose on Friday, August 1, 1975, all time for debate on title III of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto had expired and there was pending the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown) to title III on which a recorded vote had been requested by the gentleman from Ohio.

Without objection, the Clerk will again read the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown).

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Brown of Ohio: Strike out sections 301, 302, 303.

Renumber the succeeding sections of title III accordingly. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . . The parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman is, Would it be in order at this point while the vote is pending to ask unanimous consent of the House that 2 minutes may be granted on either side of the aisle for a discussion at this point of the pending vote?

THE CHAIRMAN: Such a request would be in order only if the gentleman first withdrew his request for a recorded vote. . . .

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, then I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my request for a recorded vote at this point.

THE CHAIRMAN: That does not require unanimous consent. The gentleman withdraws his request for a recorded vote.

Does the gentleman now ask unanimous consent for debate time? . . .

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that 1 minute be granted to the Democratic side in the hands of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell) and 1 minute to the Republican side to be in the hands of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Brown).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Extending Time Under Limitation

§ 78.43 Where the Committee of the Whole has fixed the time for debate on amendments, such time may be extended only by unanimous consent.

On Aug. 18, 1949,⁽¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a request that all debate on pending amendments close in one hour. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, then advised Members that since 30 Members wished to speak, each would be entitled to two minutes. Mr. Cecil F. White, of California, inquired whether it would be in order to move that the time be extended in view of the fact that so many Members had requested time. The Chairman responded that such an extension would require unanimous consent, debate already having been limited.

§ 78.44 The House can, by unanimous consent, agree to an extension of time for debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole after such debate has been limited, but a motion to that effect is not in order.

On May 10, 1961,⁽²⁾ the Committee of the Whole rose before the hour had arrived when further debate on a bill and amendments thereto would expire pursuant to a unanimous-consent limitation. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that when the Committee resumed consideration of the bill on the following day, no time would be left, the time having expired.

The Speaker stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, that extension of the time for debate could be accomplished by unanimous consent, but only by unanimous consent.

2. 107 CONG. REC. 7725, 7727, 7728, 87th Cong. 1st Sess.

When Mr. Alfred E. Santangelo, of New York, submitted such a request, for 25 additional minutes of debate on the following day, the request was objected to. Mr. Santangelo then made a motion to that effect, and the Speaker ruled that such a motion was not in order.

§ 78.45 The House, by unanimous consent, agreed to an extension of time for debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, where the Committee had previously agreed to terminate debate at a certain time on the preceding day.

On May 11, 1961,⁽³⁾ the House agreed to the following unanimous-consent request:

MR. [HAROLD D.] COOLEY [of North Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, in view of the extraordinary situation in which the House found itself on yesterday, I ask unanimous consent that when the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2010, that each of the authors of the two pending amendments now on the Speaker's desk may be given 2 minutes to present their amendments and that the committee be given 2 minutes in opposition.

3. 107 CONG. REC. 7869, 87th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. COOLEY: I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

MR. GROSS: What happens to the allocation of other time other than on the amendments?

MR. COOLEY: We have no other time.

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, how many amendments does this request cover?

MR. COOLEY: I understand there are only two amendments now at the desk.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁴⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

The "extraordinary situation" referred to was the fact that on the prior day the Committee had risen before 4:15 p.m., without concluding consideration of the bill and amendments thereto, after the Committee had agreed to a limitation that all debate on the bill and amendments thereto close at 4:15. Speaker Rayburn had stated, after the Committee had risen, that no time would remain for debate when the Committee resumed consideration of the bill, since 4:15 would have passed.⁽⁵⁾ mous consent, limited debate on an amendment, the Chair declines to recognize for a motion to extend the time for the debate but a unanimous-consent request to extend or allot the time may be entertained.

On June 11, 1968,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Daniel J. Flood, of Pennsylvania, was recognized under the five-minute rule and yielded to Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, who submitted a unanimous-consent request to close debate at a time certain, which request was agreed to. Chairman James G. O'Hara, of Michigan, advised Mr. Flood that the time consumed by making the request came out of his time, since he had yielded. Mr. Flood then moved that debate be extended to close in 30 minutes and the Chairman stated that such a motion was not in order.

In response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Melvin R. Laird, of Wisconsin, the Chairman stated that he would entertain a unanimous-consent request for an extension of time for Mr. Flood.

§ 78.47 The Committee of the Whole, by unanimous consent, extended the time previously fixed for debate under the five-minute rule.

6. 114 CONG. REC. 16699, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion to close all debate on a pending section and amendments thereto at 8:05 p.m. A preferential motion and teller votes consumed much of the time under the limitation, and the Committee then agreed by unanimous consent to extend the time previously agreed upon:

MR. [JOHN N.] ERLBORN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if I would be in order now to ask for unanimous consent to extend the time limitation to 25 minutes after eight, in view of the fact that so much time has been taken up by the preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair will put the request of the gentleman.

MR. ERLBORN: I make that unanimous consent request.

MR. [CHARLES S.] JOELSON [of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. [CARL] ALBERT [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the order limiting the time to 8:05 p.m. be vacated, and that all time on this section be closed at 8:45 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

§ 78.48 Although all time for debate on a title had expired,

7. 113 CONG. REC. 32691-94, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

8. John J. Rooney (N.Y.).

the Chair advised that a unanimous-consent request would be entertained for a Member to speak for five minutes in explanation of an amendment.

On Oct. 7, 1965,⁽⁹⁾ Mr. Thomas M. Pelly, of Washington, offered an amendment to a title of a bill after debate had expired under a limitation of debate on the title and amendments thereto. Mr. Samuel S. Stratton, of New York, inquired whether it would be in order for him to ask unanimous consent that Mr. Pelly be allowed to speak for five minutes in support of a "very important amendment." Chairman Phillip M. Landrum, of Georgia, responded that if the request was made he would put the request to the Committee. The request was made and objected to.

§ 78.49 Although only two five-minute speeches are permitted on an amendment printed in the Congressional Record after a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule has expired, the Chair may in his discretion entertain a unanimous-consent request to extend the time for debate on the amendment, or enter his own objection by refusing to entertain such a request.

9. 111 CONG. REC. 26306, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 27, 1979,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of the Housing and Urban Development and independent agencies appropriation bill (H.R. 4394):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ When the Committee of the Whole rose on Friday, June 22, 1979, the remainder of the bill beginning on line 10, page 15, had been considered as having been read and open to amendment at any point, and all time for debate on the bill and all amendments thereto had expired.

Are there any further amendments?

Amendment offered by Mr. Nelson: On page 24, line 23, strike "$6,854,924,000", and insert in lieu thereof "$6,169,924,000".

THE CHAIRMAN: Did the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Nelson) have this amendment printed in the Record?

MR. [BILL] NELSON [of Florida]: I did, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: Then the gentleman qualifies. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Nelson). . . .

The time of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Nelson) has expired.

MR. [BOB] TRAXLER [of Michigan]: I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman be given 2 additional minutes.

10. 125 CONG. REC. 16965-67, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

11. Elliott H. Levitas (Ga.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under the rules, 5 minutes is all the gentleman is entitled to.

MR. [EDWARD P.] BOLAND [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. . . .

MR. [TIMOTHY E.] WIRTH [of Colorado]: At the time there was a request for time of the gentleman from Florida, the Chair reported that we were under the 5-minute rule. I wondered how that jibed with the grant of additional time for the gentleman from Massachusetts.

THE CHAIRMAN: By unanimous consent the House can extend time.

MR. WIRTH: Had not the request been made for unanimous consent that the gentleman be allowed 2 additional minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair did not share in the unanimous-consent request at that time.

MR. WIRTH: I thank the Chairman.

I wanted to rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman can do that only by unanimous consent.

MR. WIRTH: I thank the Chairman.

Offering Amendments After Expiration of Debate Time

§ 78.50 The adoption of a motion to close debate on a section and all amendments thereto does not prevent Members from offering amendments to the pending proposition after the stated time has expired, but no debate may be had on such amendments.

On Jan. 5, 1932,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina, ruled that the adoption of a motion to close debate on a section and all amendments thereto did not preclude the offering of further but nondebatable amendments:

MR. [HENRY B.] STEAGALL [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this section and all amendments thereto do now close.

The motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the adoption of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maine.

The question was taken, and on a division (demanded by Mr. Stafford) there were—ayes 13, noes 130.

So the amendment was rejected.

MR. [LAFAYETTE L.] PATTERSON [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment and desire to be heard on it.

MR. [WILLIAM F.] STEVENSON [of South Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the motion was to close debate on this section and on all amendments. There will be another section read in a moment, and I direct the Chair's attention to the fact that debate on this section has been closed.

THE CHAIRMAN: But that does not prevent the gentleman from Alabama from offering an amendment to this section and having it voted upon by the committee.

The gentleman from Alabama is recognized for the purpose of offering an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

Timekeeping

§ 78.51 Where the Committee of the Whole fixes the time for debate on an amendment at 20 minutes, such time is counted as 20 minutes of debate and not 20 minutes by the clock.

On Feb. 8, 1950,⁽¹³⁾ after the Committee of the Whole had agreed to fix debate on an amendment at 20 minutes, and points of order and other matters had intervened, Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, answered a parliamentary inquiry and overruled a point of order on the counting of the time:

MR. [THOMAS J.] MURRAY of Tennessee: Mr. Chairman, how much more time remains?

THE CHAIRMAN: There are 6 minutes remaining.

MR. [DONALD W.] NICHOLSON [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order. I raise the point of order that 20 minutes ago we voted to close debate. The 20 minutes have gone.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair advises the gentleman that the 20 minutes for debate have not been used. The Chair will watch the matter closely.

Parliamentarian's Note: If the limitation had provided that debate close at a certain time, exactly 20 minutes away (i.e., 4:00 p.m.), time for purposes other than debate would have been charged against the remaining time.⁽¹⁴⁾

Demand That Motion Be in Writing

§ 78.52 A motion to limit debate must, pursuant to Rule XVI clause 1, be reduced to writing upon the demand of any Member.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Samuel L. Devine, of Ohio, offered, in the Committee of the Whole, a motion that debate on an amendment in the nature of a substitute and on all amendments thereto close at a certain time. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, inquired whether that motion did not have to be in writing. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, responded that the motion had to be in writing if Mr. Gross insisted upon it. Mr. Gross so insisted.⁽¹⁶⁾

14. See § 79, infra, for a full discussion of the effect of different types of limitations on five-minute debate, and the computation of time thereunder.

15. 119 CONG. REC. 41712, 41713, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

16. Rule XVI clause 1, House Rules and Manual § 775 (1995), provides that every motion made and entertained shall be reduced to writing on the demand of any Member.

Motion To Rise During Five-minute Debate

§ 78.53 A motion that the Committee of the Whole rise is of high privilege, and may be offered by a Member who holds the floor by virtue of having offered an amendment.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Paul C. Jones, of Missouri, was recognized under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole to offer an amendment. He then inquired of Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, whether it would be in order for him to move that the Committee rise. The Chairman responded that the motion was highly privileged and could be made by Mr. Jones.⁽¹⁸⁾ § 78.54 A simple motion to rise made in the Committee of the Whole is not debatable.

On Apr. 8, 1964,⁽¹⁹⁾ Chairman Phillip M. Landrum, of Georgia, 18. See also 116 CONG. REC. 25628, 91st Cong. 2d Sess., July 23, 1970 (motion to rise is highly privileged and can be offered any time when the proponent secures the floor in his own right during the five-minute rule).

19. 110 CONG. REC. 7298, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

advised Mr. Ben F. Jensen, of Iowa, who had moved that the Committee of the Whole rise, that the motion was not debatable.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. Jensen].

MR. JENSEN: Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise out of further respect for one of the greatest Americans, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. Jensen].

MR. JENSEN: Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers. It is disgraceful to have this sort of thing going on while General MacArthur is lying here in the Capitol.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will inform the gentleman that a vote on his motion is being taken. He is not recognized to make a speech.

§ 78.55 The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise (thereby cutting off debate at that time) is not debatable and is always within the discretion of the Member handling the bill before the Committee.

On June 16, 1948,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Walter G. Andrews, of New York, was handling the consideration of H.R. 6401 in the Committee of the Whole. He moved that the Committee rise, and Chairman Francis

20. 94 CONG. REC. 8521, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

H. Case, of South Dakota, ruled that the motion was within Mr. Andrews' discretion:

MR. ANDREWS of New York: Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that two or three Members who have time are not here, I move that the Committee do now rise.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Andrews].

MR. [GEORGE A.] SMATHERS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be heard on that.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not a debatable motion. It is always within the discretion of the gentleman handling the bill to move that the Committee rise.

§ 78.56 The motion that the Committee of the Whole rise is privileged and may be offered during the pendency of a motion to limit debate or immediately upon the adoption of that motion.

On Oct. 7, 1974,⁽¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of House Resolution 988 (to reform the structure, jurisdiction, and procedures of House committees):

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gen-

1. 120 CONG. REC. 34170, 34171, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

tlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen), and all amendments thereto, conclude in 5 hours.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ The question is on the motion.

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote. . . .

[Several parliamentary inquiries ensued at this point.]

MR. [DAVID T.] MARTIN of Nebraska: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Martin of Nebraska moves that the Committee rise and report the resolution H. Res. 988 to the House with the recommendation that the resolving clause be stricken out.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to ask the gentleman from Nebraska, is the gentleman opposed to this resolution?

MR. MARTIN of Nebraska: I am, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman qualifies to make the motion.

The gentleman from Nebraska is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his motion.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I wish to propound a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, my understanding of the situation is that the question that is now pending is on the motion that I made to limit debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen) and all amendments thereto.

My parliamentary inquiry is this: If that motion carries, my intention is to move that the Committee then rise.

Mr. Chairman, is there anything unparliamentary in that?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman's motion in that event would be in order.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Dingell moves the Committee do now rise.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell).

[After rejection of the motion, the Chair put the question on Mr. Martin's motion:]

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. Martin) to strike the resolving clause.

[The preferential motion was rejected.]

MR. [JOHN H.] DENT [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

[A]s I understand the motion, the motion is to limit the time to 5 hours on the issue itself, the Hansen amendment and all amendments thereto; is that true?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will now state the question.

The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Bolling) moves that debate on the Hansen amendment in the nature of a substitute, and all amendments thereto be limited to 5 hours. . . .

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr.

2. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

Bolling) that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen), and all amendments thereto, be limited to 5 hours, on which a recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

Resuming Debate When Committee Resumes Consideration

§ 78.57 Where time for debate has been fixed on an amendment in the Committee of the Whole and the Committee rises before the time expires, debate continues when the Committee resumes its deliberations (if time was not set by the clock).

On June 16, 1948,⁽³⁾ Chairman Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, answered parliamentary inquiries on the procedure where the Committee of the Whole rises before a certain amount of time, agreed to by the Committee, has expired for debate on an amendment:

MR. [WALTER G.] ANDREWS of New York: Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that two or three Members who have time are not here, I move that the Committee do now rise.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Andrews].

3. 94 CONG. REC. 8521, 80th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [GEORGE A.] SMATHERS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I would like to be heard on that.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not a debatable motion. It is always within the discretion of the gentleman handling the bill to move that the Committee rise.

MR. [VITO] MARCANTONIO [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MARCANTONIO: Mr. Chairman, under the arrangement entered into limiting debate on this amendment, will the Members who were scheduled to be recognized be recognized when the Committee resumes its deliberations?

THE CHAIRMAN: They will be recognized, if the Committee should vote to rise, when the Committee meets again.

MR. ANDREWS of New York: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ANDREWS of New York: My understanding is that all those gentlemen whose names are on the list will be recognized immediately tomorrow.

THE CHAIRMAN: The statement of the gentleman from New York is correct.

Parliamentarian's Note: The agreement in question provided that debate on the amendment close in 50 minutes. If the agreement had provided that debate close at a certain time, by the clock, and the Committee rose to resume after that time had arrived, no time would be left for debate on the amendment.

Motion To Close Debate as Related to Motion To Strike Enacting Clause

§ 78.58 A timely motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report a bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out under Rule XXIII clause 7 takes precedence over a motion to limit debate under Rule XXIII clause 6.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽⁴⁾ Mr. Samuel L. Devine, of Ohio, offered a motion in the Committee of the Whole to close debate on a pending amendment and on amendments thereto to a time certain. Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, then demanded that the motion be put in writing. Immediately following that demand, Mr. Phillip M. Landrum, of Georgia, offered the preferential motion that the Committee rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, and was recognized by Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, for five minutes on that motion.

Chairman Bolling stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Devine that the motion to strike the enacting clause took precedence over the motion to limit debate. After the motion to strike was disposed of, the question recurred on the motion to limit debate.

4. 119 CONG. REC. 41712, 41713, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

—Enacting Clause Preferential

§ 78.59 The motion to strike or recommend striking the enacting clause is preferential to the motion to close debate.

The proceedings of June 28, 1995,⁽⁵⁾ demonstrate that the motion to strike the enacting clause is preferential to the motion to close debate. The Committee of the Whole had under consideration H.R. 1868, the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act of 1996:

MR. [PORTER J.] GOSS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Goss amendment and all amendments thereto close immediately.

MR. [HAROLD L.] VOLKMER [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I have a preferential motion at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the preferential motion.

Mr. Volkmer moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

5. 141 CONG. REC. p. ____, 104th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. VOLKMER: Mr. Chairman, the attempt by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. Goss] to limit debate on this very important amendment of the gentleman from California [Ms. Pelosi] to the gentleman's amendment, I do not think is appropriate at this time.

On July 13, 1995,⁽⁶⁾ a motion to limit debate was made during consideration of H.R. 1977, the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 1996, followed by a motion to recommend striking the enacting clause.

MR. [RALPH] REGULA [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I move to limit debate on title I and all amendments thereto to 90 minutes not including vote time.

MR. [DAVID R.] OBEY [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a privileged motion. I move that the Committee rise and report the bill back to the House with a recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

Mr. Chairman, what is at issue here, in my view, is whether or not this House is going to be able to conduct the business at reasonable times in public view or whether we are going to be reduced to making virtually every major decision in subcommittees and on the floor at near midnight, with minimal public attention and minimal public understanding and minimum attention. . . .

MR. REGULA: Mr. Chairman, I oppose the motion.

I was not a party to the earlier negotiations. The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Yates] and I discussed a possible agreement here that we would finish title I with time limits on the amendments that remain. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Obey].

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

MR. OBEY: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 162, noes 236, not voting 36, as follows: . . .

On one occasion, when a preferential motion to close debate was before the Committee of the Whole, the Chair declined to recognize a Member to offer another privileged motion until the pending motion had been disposed of. On Mar. 26, 1965,⁽⁷⁾ Adam C. Powell, of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, offered the privileged motion that all debate close on the pending title of H.R. 2362, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, reported

7. 111 CONG. REC. 6098, 6099, 89th Cong. 1st Sess. See §23.31, supra, indicating that while a motion to limit debate is pending, the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken may be offered.

6. 141 CONG. REC. p. ____, 104th Cong. 1st Sess.

by his committee. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, advised Members that the motion to close debate was not debatable. Mrs. Edith S. Green, of Oregon, then sought recognition to offer a preferential motion. The Chairman ruled that since the preferential motion to close debate was before the Committee of the Whole, no Member could be recognized to offer another preferential motion until the pending motion was disposed of.

Effect of Limitation on Pro Forma Motion To Strike the Last Word

§ 78.60 By unanimous consent, debate under the five-minute rule on possible amendments to be offered by two designated Members (one as a substitute for the other) and on all amendments thereto was limited and equally divided between proponents and opponents prior to the offering of those amendments; and where debate has been so limited and allocated on amendments to the pending section of the bill, a Member may not obtain time by moving to strike out the last word unless there is no amendment pending (debate having been limited on amendments but not on the section).

During consideration of the Legal Services Corporation Act Amendments of 1981 (H.R. 3480) in the Committee of the Whole on June 18, 1981,⁽⁸⁾ the following unanimous-consent requests resulted in a discussion, as indicated below:

MR. [ROBERT W.] KASTENMEIER [of Wisconsin] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that section 11 be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

MR. KASTENMEIER: . . . I ask unanimous consent all debate on amendments to section 11 do not exceed more than 20 minutes, one-half to be controlled by the proponents of the amendment and one-half by the opponents of the amendment, excepting in the case of the so-called alien amendments to be offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum), in which case the debate on those amendments do not exceed 40 minutes, those amendments and all amendments thereto on the question of aliens.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: A point of clarification from the standpoint of the Chair. Is the gentleman suggesting to limit debate on each amendment to section 11 and on any amendment thereto to 20 minutes, the time to be divided equally between the proponents and the opponents, and 40 minutes on the amendments being offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) and the possible substitute therefor of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) and all amendments thereto?

8. 127 CONG. REC. 12958, 12959, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

9. Bruce F. Vento (Minn.).

MR. KASTENMEIER: Yes. The request of 40 minutes pertains to both amendments, that is to say that they may be offered in tandem, but that the total amount of time allocated to the subject represented by those two amendments not exceed 40 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: And all amendments thereto.

MR. KASTENMEIER: Yes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would point out to the Members that are discussing this, that the request addresses itself to each amendment and any amendment thereto, inclusive. . . .

The unanimous-consent request has been modified to 1 hour of debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) and the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) and all amendments thereto, 1 hour.

Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier)?

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I have a couple of questions.

Under the proposal would we be prevented from offering motions to strike the requisite number of words in order to engage in debate that might not be directly related to the amendment? . . .

MR. KASTENMEIER: I would have to ask the Chairman if that would entitle the speaker to time other than that allocated under this request.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: If an amendment to section 11 were pending, under this request, a motion to strike the last word would not be in order, since time would be allocated. . . .

The unanimous-consent request does not go to the section itself, but only goes to substantive amendments if offered; so it would be possible, if there are no other amendments pending, at the right time, to be recognized as the Chair has permitted to strike the requisite number of words.

Control of Time Under Limitation

§ 78.61 A motion to close debate under the five-minute rule is not in order if it includes a provision for division of time between the proponents and opponents of the pending amendment.

On May 24, 1967,⁽¹⁰⁾ Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, sustained a point of order against a motion to close debate which divided the time under the limitation:

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the so-called Quie amendments and all amendments thereto close within 1 hour and 30 minutes, the time to be equally divided.

MR. [PORTER] HARDY [Jr., of Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HARDY: It is proper to move that time be equally divided between two Members?

THE CHAIRMAN: No, the motion is not in order.

MR. HARDY: Then, I make a point of order against the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair sustains the point of order.⁽¹¹⁾

§ 78.62 The Committee of the Whole, by unanimous consent, limited debate to 30 minutes on a pending motion to strike and provided that the time should be controlled equally by the managers of the bill.

On Aug. 4, 1966,⁽¹²⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 14765, the Civil Rights Act of 1966, the Committee agreed to a unanimous-consent request on the time and control of debate on a motion to strike a pending title:

MR. [CARL] ALBERT [of Oklahoma]: The unanimous-consent request is that when the Committee resumes consideration of the bill, H.R. 14765, after the recess tonight the first order of business shall be after 30 minutes of debate a vote on the Moore amendment to strike out title IV and, in the event that amendment is defeated, the Committee shall then continue the consideration of title IV.

MR. [JOHN BELL] WILLIAMS [of Mississippi]: Do I understand that the gentleman dropped that portion in which he provided for a division of time equally between the proponents and opponents?

MR. ALBERT: No. That is included. Fifteen minutes shall be under the control of the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. Rodino] and 15 minutes under the control of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch]. I think it is well understood that they will yield the time to both proponents and opponents of the Moore amendment.

MR. WILLIAMS: By gentleman's agreement?

MR. ALBERT: Yes.

MR. WILLIAMS: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my reservation.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

§ 78.63 By unanimous consent, the Committee of the Whole

13. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

provided for two hours of debate on a pending amendment (abrogating the five-minute rule) and vested control of such time in the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee that had reported the bill.

On July 8, 1965,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment the Civil Rights Act of 1965, H.R. 6400. Mr. William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, offered an amendment, and the Committee agreed to the following unanimous-consent request for the time of debate and control thereof on the amendment:

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the so-called McCulloch substitute and all amendments thereto be limited to 2 hours, and that such time be equally divided and controlled by myself and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch].

Parliamentarian's Note: The McCulloch amendment, was made in order by House Resolution 440 as a substitute for the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. Where such a unanimous-consent agreement for control of time for debate on an amendment has been fixed, the proponent is first recognized for debate.

14. 111 CONG. REC. 16036-38, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

—Allocating Time

§ 78.64 Where all time for debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto is limited and, by unanimous consent, placed in control of the proponent of the amendment and the chairman of the committee (in opposition), the Chair first recognizes the proponent of the amendment under the limitation.

On July 9, 1965,⁽¹⁵⁾ the unfinished business in the Committee of the Whole was H.R. 6400, the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, made the following statement on the order of recognition, the Committee having limited, on the prior day, time for debate on a pending amendment:

When the Committee rose on yesterday, there was pending the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch] as a substitute for the committee amendment.

It was agreed that all time for debate on the so-called McCulloch substitute and all amendments thereto would be limited to 2 hours, such time to be equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Celler] and the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch]. Under the unanimous-consent agreement, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. McCulloch] in support of his amendment.

15. 111 CONG. REC. 16207, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: The time limitation coupled with the unanimous-consent agreement on control of time abrogated the five-minute rule. Under the agreement, the two Members controlling debate could yield for debate or for amendments. Amendments could also be offered by Members not yielded time, after the expiration of the time limitation, but without debate on such amendments.⁽¹⁶⁾

§ 78.65 Debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto pending in the Committee of the Whole may be limited to a time certain by motion; and the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may divide remaining debate time equally between two Members following such limitation.

On July 26, 1984,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of the Education Amendments of 1984 (H.R. 11) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair divided the remaining time for debate equally between the chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor and the proponent of the pending amendment. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment, all amendments thereto and all substitutes, close at 2 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

MR. [DAN R.] COATS [of Indiana]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding, and I am not sure, I just want to check, I think a perfecting amendment is going to be offered, and I just want to check to see if that is the case. If that is the case, I would have to object to that unanimous-consent request.

MR. PERKINS: Then, Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Coats amendment, all substitutes and all amendments thereto, be concluded at 2 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Kentucky. . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will proceed to divide the time.

Since there are so many Members seeking recognition, the Chair at this time will divide the time equally between the chairman, Mr. Perkins, and the gentleman from Indiana, Mr.

18. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

Coats, 10 minutes each, and they will yield time as they see fit.

Parliamentarian's Note: During the above proceedings, the Chairman also ruled that a parliamentary inquiry relating to a pending motion occurring after the Chairman has announced the results of a voice vote does not constitute such intervening business as to preclude the right of a Member to demand a recorded vote on the pending motion. After the result of the voice vote was announced in the above instance (that a majority favored the motion), a parliamentary inquiry was made:⁽¹⁹⁾

MR. [WILLIAM F.] GOODLING [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

I want to make sure the motion was talking only about this portion of this bill.

MR. PERKINS: . . . This does not include the Goodling amendment, the funding of the school programs.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: I want to get a record vote.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: This motion referred to the Coats amendment and all amendments thereto.

MR. WALKER: That is right, and I want a record vote on the ruling of the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Those in favor of taking this by recorded vote. . . .

MR. [RICHARD J.] DURBIN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. DURBIN: Is it my understanding there was intervening business between the vote which was taken orally, the parliamentary inquiry made by the gentleman?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The intervening business was a parliamentary inquiry that was related to the motion, and no independent business has been taken up.

MR. DURBIN: As a further parliamentary inquiry of the Chair, does not this parliamentary inquiry and interruption preclude the gentleman from Pennsylvania's right to ask for a recorded vote?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: No; it is related to the status of the vote, and of the motion.

§ 78.66 A motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule on a pending amendment in the Committee of the Whole is not in order if it includes a provision for division of time between two Members, since debate time can be allocated between Members only by unanimous consent; but where debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto has been limited to a time certain, the Chair may exercise his discretion and allocate the remaining time between two Members and may indicate which Member may close the debate.

19. 130 CONG. REC. 21249, 21250, 98th Cong. 2d Sess., July 26, 1984.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 2, 1984,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of the Department of Interior Appropriations Act of 1985 (H.R. 5973):

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all time on the Conte amendment and all amendments thereto with the exception of the Ottinger amendment end at 3:30, the time to be equally divided between the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) and the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Ratchford).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ The Chair will remind the gentleman that time cannot be allocated between sides or between Members except by unanimous consent. . . .

But the motion only to limit debate is in order. . . .

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: If the gentleman's motion passes I will not object to the unanimous-consent request at that time to divide the time.

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . The motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Yates) is to end all debate on the Conte amendment and all amendments thereto except the Ottinger amendment at 3:30.

MR. YATES: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Yates).

[The motion was agreed to.]

MR. YATES: Mr. Chairman, the time has been limited to 3:30. I ask unanimous consent that the time be expanded to permit 10 minutes on each side, with those favoring the Conte amendment to be controlled by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) and those favoring the Ratchford amendment to be controlled by the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Ratchford).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois.

MR. [MARTY] RUSSO [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

The Chair now intends to allocate 6 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) and 6 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Ratchford).

The Chair intends that the debate will end with Mr. Ratchford.

Reservation of Time Under Limitation

§ 78.67 A motion to limit debate on an amendment in the Committee of the Whole under Rule XXIII clause 6, may not include a reservation of time for any purpose, such reservation depriving the Chair of his power of recognition.

On May 9, 1973,⁽²⁾ Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, in control of the bill pending before the Committee of the Whole, moved as follows:

I move that all debate conclude in 20 minutes on this amendment only, and all amendments thereto, and that the last 5 minutes be reserved.

Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa, made a point of order against the motion and Chairman Otis G. Pike, of New York, sustained it, ruling that the last part of the motion (reserving time) was not in order.⁽³⁾ § 78.68 Under the five-minute rule, debate may be fixed but control of the time may not be allotted by motion if a point of order is made.

On May 11, 1949,⁽⁴⁾ Chairman Albert A. Gore, of Tennessee, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that where the Committee of the Whole fixes by unanimous consent the time for debate, the Chairman ordinarily divides such time equally among Members seeking recognition. Mr. Brent Spence, of Kentucky, therefore made the following motion which the Chairman ruled out of order:

MR. SPENCE: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 1 and all amendments thereto conclude at 3:30 and that the time be equally divided among those Members who asked for time and that the last 5 minutes be assigned to the committee.

MR. [FRANCIS H.] CASE of South Dakota: Mr. Chairman, the same point of order. The Committee of the Whole cannot allot time that way. That is in the discretion of the House of Representatives and not the committee. It must be by unanimous consent.

THE CHAIRMAN: The point of order is sustained.

MR. SPENCE: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 1 and all amendments thereto conclude at 3:30.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Kentucky.

The motion was agreed to.⁽⁵⁾

§ 78.69 The Committee of the Whole may, by unanimous consent, limit further debate on an amendment and reserve part of the time to the reporting committee.

On June 9, 1960,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Overton Brooks, of Louisiana, asked

5. Control of time under a time limitation may be effected either by motion, where no point of order is made (see § 22.39, supra), or by unanimous consent (see § 22.26, supra).

unanimous consent that further debate on the pending amendment (the only amendment to be offered to the bill) and on amendments thereto close in 10 minutes, with five minutes to be allowed to each side, the last five minutes to the chairman of the reporting committee. Mr. Leonard G. Wolf, of Iowa, made a point of order and questioned whether time could be divided that way. Chairman Edwin E. Willis, of Louisiana, stated that time could be so divided by unanimous consent. There was no objection to the request.⁽⁷⁾

§ 78.70 Where a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute was being read by titles as an original bill for amendment, the Committee of the Whole agreed, by unanimous consent, that: (1) the remainder of the committee amendment be considered as read and open to amendment at any point; (2) all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude in 3 hours plus additional time claimed upon offering of amendments printed in the Record; and (3) designated portions of the 3 hours be allotted to each remaining title of the committee amendment.

During consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974⁽⁸⁾ in the Committee of the Whole on July 23, 1974,⁽⁹⁾ the unanimous-consent agreement stated above was proposed as follows:

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent as the first that the remainder of the bill, titles II through VIII in their entirety be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open for amendment at any point.

Second, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on all the bill, including all titles and all amendments, close after 3 hours of debate tomorrow, that time not to include time out for roll-calls or quorum calls.

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, would the gentleman also include in that request, excluding time for offering and debate of any posted amendments which have not been offered?

Under those circumstances, I would not offer more than my 10 and I think Mr. Hechler would have to make the same gentleman's agreement for his.

MR. UDALL: We will accept the word of the gentleman from California that he will abide by that.

I will ask the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. Hechler) if he will also abide by that gentleman's agreement?

8. H.R. 11500.

9. 120 CONG. REC. 24621, 24622, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [KEN] HECHLER of West Virginia: Yes, I certainly will.

MR. HOSMER: Will the gentleman's request for unanimous consent be agreed to on printing under clause 6, rule XXIII?

MR. UDALL: The Parliamentarian tells me we do not need that as part of the unanimous-consent request.

MR. HOSMER: Mr. Chairman, further reserving the right to object, now that we have had our gentleman's agreement, nevertheless when the expiration of the 3 hours have occurred and there are one or more amendments of myself or the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. Hechler) still pending, I would like to ask that notwithstanding, they would be in order.

MR. UDALL: I think that is clear under the rules; but in order to make it perfectly clear, I add to the request that at the conclusion of 3 hours of debate it shall be in order under clause 6 of rule XXIII for any Members having posted amendments to call up their amendments claimed under the 5-minute rule. . . .

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: The amendments I have referred to are not published in the Record. Would they be included?

MR. UDALL: No; but as I said earlier, we will protect the gentleman on that.

The final part of my request is that the 3-hour time referred to be divided as follows:

Title II not to exceed 60 minutes. . . .

Title VII not to exceed 30 minutes.

Title VIII not to exceed 10 minutes. . . .

MR. [TEN] RONCALIO of Wyoming: Could we have 40 minutes instead of 30 minutes on title VII?

MR. UDALL: Yes. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I would amend my request by taking 10 minutes off title II and adding 10 minutes to title VII. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection.

§ 78.71 A motion to close debate and reserve time is not in order.

On June 5, 1975,⁽¹¹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the committee amendment and all amendments thereto conclude at 5:15 o'clock, and that the last 5 minutes be reserved for me.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

MR. [J. J.] PICKLE [of Texas]: I object, Mr. Chairman.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the committee amendment and all amendments thereto conclude at 5:15 o'clock, with the last 5 minutes reserved for me.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state the gentleman cannot reserve time under his motion.

During consideration of the State Department authorization for fiscal year 1977 (H.R. 13179) in the Committee of the Whole on June 18, 1976,⁽¹³⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 2:30, and that 10 minutes of the 30 minutes may be allotted to the amendment to be offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Crane), 5 minutes of that time to be allotted to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Crane) and 5 minutes of the time to be allotted in opposition to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Chair will advise the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Morgan) that it is not in order to allocate time within such a motion.

Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania, therefore, wish to restate his motion?

MR. MORGAN: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 2:30, with the understanding that 5 minutes be allotted to the gentleman from Illinois on behalf of his amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

all amendments thereto can be reserved only by unanimous consent, and a motion including a reservation of time within a limitation of debate is not in order.

On Sept. 15, 1976,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1976 (H.R. 10498) in the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

MR. [PAUL G.] ROGERS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Waxman-Maguire amendment and on the Dingell amendment terminate at 1:25, and that the last 10 minutes be reserved for the chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ The Chair will state to the gentleman that he cannot reserve time under a motion. That can be done only by a unanimous-consent request.

MR. ROGERS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Waxman-Maguire amendment and on the Dingell amendment end at 1:25, and that the last 10 minutes be reserved for the chairman of the subcommittee.

Where Time Is Limited by Minutes, Not Clock; Reserving Time limitation to a time certain on the clock, the Chair may permit Members to reserve time until an amendment to an amendment has been disposed of so as to speak on the main amendment.

On Oct. 3, 1975,⁽¹⁷⁾ the proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my request and now I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Brown amendment and all amendments thereto end in 20 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

MR. [PETER A.] PEYSER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee, if this is going to be ending in 20 minutes and we have a vote on the Symms amendment, as I understand it, does that time for the vote go into the 20 minutes?

MR. FOLEY: No. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield. I asked unanimous consent that all debate on the Brown amendment and all amendments thereto end in 20 minutes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington that all debate will end on the Brown amendment in the nature of a substitute and the Symms amendment and all amendments thereto in 20 minutes?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McCormack).

MR. [MIKE] MCCORMACK [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve my time in order to speak on the Brown of California amendment after the vote on the Symms amendment. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser).

MR. PEYSER: Mr. Chairman, I reserve my time until after the vote on the Symms amendment. . . .

MR. FOLEY: Is it correct that approximately 2½ minutes remain of debate under the limitation previously adopted, and that following that a vote will occur on the Brown amendment in the nature of a substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman states the question correctly. The gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser) has 1¼ minutes, and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McCormack) has 1¼ minutes. Then a vote will occur on the Brown amendment.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser).

Parliamentarian's Note: Where time is limited by the clock, a Member attempting to reserve time may be preempted by votes, quorum calls, etc., which come out of the time remaining. Therefore, the Chair, to protect Members' right to speak, might refuse to permit a reservation of time.

Setting Time by Clock

§ 78.75 A request or motion to close debate at a time certain under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole should specify that the debate cease at a certain time, and not that the Committee vote at a certain time, since the Chair cannot control time consumed by quorum calls and votes on other intervening motions.

On June 29, 1977,⁽¹⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [GEORGE E.] SHIPLEY [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that we vote on this amendment at 1:15 p.m. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, I believe the gentleman's request was that we vote on this amendment at 1:15. I do not believe that that request is in order.

A request to limit all debate on this amendment would be in order, but not that a vote be ordered at a certain time. It is not provided in the rules, Mr. Chairman. . . .

MR. SHIPLEY: Mr. Chairman, would it be possible to set it at a time certain, that time to be 1 p.m.? . . .

19. 123 CONG. REC. 21383, 21384, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. John M. Murphy (N.Y.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would state to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Shipley) that the Chair cannot guarantee a 1 o'clock time certain because of the possibility of a quorum call or other extension of debate. . . .

MR. SHIPLEY: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my unanimous-consent request.

Mr. Chairman, let me renew the request in this way, since we are trying to get all of the Members on the floor before we vote, I would ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment end at 1 o'clock, no later than 1 o'clock. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. SHIPLEY: Mr. Chairman, I move that 1:15 p.m. be used as a time certain to end the debate on this amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

§ 78.76 A unanimous-consent request or motion to close debate under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole should limit debate time either by the clock or to a number of minutes of debate, and not by setting a time certain for voting, since the Chair cannot control motions or points of order which might intervene at that time.

During consideration of H.R. 4102 (Universal Telephone Preservation Act of 1983) in the Committee of the Whole on Nov. 10, 1983,⁽¹⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [TIMOTHY E.] WIRTH [of Colorado]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that we vote on the Tauke amendment at 6:30 and that the 30 minutes will be allocated with the first 10 minutes on our side, the next 5 minutes to your side, 10, and then you close with the final 5.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁾ Is the unanimous-consent request for debate time only, excluding voting time?

MR. WIRTH: We will then vote at 6:30 on the Tauke amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair cannot entertain a request for a vote at a time certain. The Chair will entertain a motion for the debate time to terminate.

MR. WIRTH: The debate time on the Tauke amendment would terminate at 6:30.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: As the Chair understands it, the gentleman is asking for 30 additional minutes for debate on the amendment and all amendments thereto, with 20 minutes going to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Wirth) and 10 minutes going to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Broyhill)?

MR. WIRTH: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado?

Chair's Discretion in Limiting Debate

§ 78.77 Where a bill was being read for amendment by titles instead of by sections, the Chair declined to entertain a unanimous-consent request to limit debate on just one section within that title where such an agreement would be difficult to enforce.

On Sept. 15, 1976,⁽³⁾ during consideration of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1976 (H.R. 10498) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the so-called Dingell-Broyhill amendment and the Waxman-Maguire amendment and all amendments thereto, and on section 203(b) end at 1:20 o'clock p.m. with the last 10 minutes being reserved by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Rogers).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ May the Chair suggest to the gentleman from Michigan that because the entire title is open to amendment at any point, he limit his request to the pending amendments.

MR. DINGELL: My unanimous-consent request is to the two pending amendments and to section 203.

3. 122 CONG. REC. 30464, 30465, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.
4. J. Edward Roush (Ind.).

THE CHAIRMAN: Permit the Chair to state to the gentleman from Michigan that the Chair has some difficulty with that portion of the request because he is limiting debate on a section when the entire title is open to amendment. If the gentleman could limit his request to his amendment and the substitute, and amendments thereto, it would make the limitation of time more manageable.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Dingell-Broyhill amendment and the Waxman-Maguire amendment, the two amendments now pending, and all amendments thereto terminate at 20 minutes after 1.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

MR. [DAVID E.] SATTERFIELD [of Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

§ 78.78 Where there was pending an amendment and a substitute therefor, the Chair declined to entertain a unanimous-consent request that debate end 10 minutes after another Member "has had an opportunity to offer" a further substitute, where the offering of such substitute might be precluded by the adoption of the pending substitute.

During consideration of the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979 (H.R. 3930) in the Committee of the Whole on June 26,

1979,⁽⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I offer amendments as a substitute for the amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. Michel as a substitute for the amendments offered by Mr. Wright of Texas: On page 5, line 2, strike out the period after "section" and insert in lieu thereof "and at least 2,000,000 barrels per day crude oil equivalent of synthetic fuels"

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I see only about five or six Members standing. I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Wright amendment and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

MR. [JAMES M.] JEFFORDS [of Vermont]: Reserving the right to object, the gentleman knows I have a substitute which I think ought to be considered . . . and I just cannot agree to 15 minutes unless I am sure I am going to have 5 minutes myself in order to be able to explain the substitute.

MR. MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Wright amendment and all amendments thereto close 10 minutes after the gentleman has had an opportunity to offer his substitute amendment.

5. 125 CONG. REC. 16670, 16672, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

6. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman that in the event the amendment offered as a substitute by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel) were adopted, no other substitute would be in order and the request would be unworkable.

Reconsideration of Vote To Close Debate

§ 78.79 Where the Committee of the Whole has, by motion, agreed to limit debate on a pending amendment, a motion to reconsider its action is not in order since the motion to reconsider does not lie in Committee of the Whole.

On May 24, 1967,⁽⁷⁾ after the Committee of the Whole had adopted a motion limiting debate, Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, stated that a motion to reconsider that action would not be in order in the Committee:

MR. [ROMAN C.] PUCINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Illinois will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. PUCINSKI: Mr. Chairman, is a motion to reconsider the last motion in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr.

Pucinski] that such motion is not in order in the Committee of the Whole.

§ 78.80 The motion to reconsider a limitation on debate is not in order in Committee of the Whole.

While a unanimous-consent agreement may be subject to a motion to reconsider in the House,⁽⁸⁾ the motion to reconsider is not in order in Committee of the Whole. This principle is illustrated in the proceedings of Oct. 5, 1981,⁽⁹⁾ relating to H.R. 3112, to extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965:

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment close in 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair will inquire of the gentleman from California whether his unanimous-consent request includes this amendment and all amendments thereto.

MR. EDWARDS of California: Just on this amendment, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Just on this amendment.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will first allocate the time

8. 8 Cannon's Precedents § 2794.

9. 127 CONG. REC. 23154, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

10. Dennis E. Eckart (Ohio).

7. 113 CONG. REC. 13824, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

among all Members seeking recognition on this amendment.

The Chair has observed the following Members standing: The gentleman from California (Mr. Edwards), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hyde) . . . and the gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. Fenwick).

MR. [HENRY J.] HYDE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HYDE: Mr. Chairman, I have three Members who want to speak on this side. . . .

I was assuming 5 minutes apiece, 15 minutes total. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will point out to the gentleman from Illinois that the Chair merely allocated the time among those Members who rose by the time that the unanimous-consent request was granted.

MR. HYDE: Mr. Chairman, having voted on the prevailing side, I move to reconsider the vote by which we limited this to 15 minutes. I have three Members who want to talk on this side.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: A motion to reconsider is not in order.

The Chair would suggest to the gentleman from Illinois that those who merely wish to speak for a short time could allocate the remainder of their time to another Member by unanimous consent.

Vacating or Rescinding a Time Limitation

§ 78.81 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole indicated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that whether the House could rescind a time limitation (on the five-minute rule) imposed by the Committee of the Whole was a matter for the Speaker, and not the Chairman, to determine.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽¹¹⁾ the Committee of the Whole had agreed to a motion limiting five-minute debate. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated that the question whether the House could rescind that limitation would be a question for the Speaker and not for the Chairman:

MR. [JOHN] BUCHANAN [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BUCHANAN: Mr. Chairman, should a motion be offered that the committee do now rise, and that motion would be accepted by the Committee, would it be possible then in the House for time to be extended or for the earlier motion limiting time to be rescinded?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Alabama that the gentleman is asking the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole to rule on a matter that would come before the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

11. 119 CONG. REC. 41731, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. BUCHANAN: The Chairman cannot answer that according to the rules of the House?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Chair is not in a position to answer for the Speaker.

Parliamentarian's Note: A motion in the House to extend debate beyond a limitation agreed to in the Committee would not be privileged, but the House could rescind a limitation by unanimous consent, by special rule, or under suspension of the rules. The Committee could only rescind or modify a limitation by unanimous consent, the motion to reconsider not being in order in the Committee.⁽¹²⁾

§ 78.82 Where debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto had been limited to a time certain, the Committee of the Whole, by unanimous consent, vacated the limitation and then agreed to limit debate on an amendment to the pending amendment.

On Sept. 30, 1971,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request propounded by Mr. Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky, to close debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto at 2:30 p.m. Following a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Perkins stated that he had intended the limitation to apply only to his own perfecting amendment to the amendment, and not to other perfecting amendments to be offered to the pending amendment. He therefore asked unanimous consent to vacate the unanimous-consent limitation previously agreed to. This request was granted, and he restated his proposal, which was agreed to.

12. See § 78.79, supra.

13. 117 CONG. REC. 34289, 34290, 92d Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 78.83 Instance where the Committee of the Whole, by unanimous consent, limited debate under the five-minute rule to "15 minutes on each amendment"; it later, by motion, curtailed all debate to "40 minutes to the bill and all amendments thereto."

On Oct. 14, 1966,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request by Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, that debate under the five-minute rule be limited not to exceed 15 minutes on each amendment which might be offered to the pending bill (the bill having been considered as read).

Later in the debate, when it appeared that there were 23 amendments remaining to the bill, the Committee agreed to a motion by Mr. Patman to close all debate on the bill and amendments thereto in 40 minutes.

14. 112 CONG. REC. 26968, 26976, 26977, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 78.84 The Chair advised that only by unanimous consent could the Committee of the Whole rescind an agreement it had previously reached limiting debate on an amendment.

On Aug. 5, 1966,⁽¹⁵⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the power of the Committee of the Whole to rescind a limitation:

MR. [JOHN BELL] WILLIAMS [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, I do have a legitimate parliamentary inquiry if the other was not. Would it be in order to make a unanimous-consent request at this time that the action of the House in voting to limit debate be vacated?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that a unanimous consent is in order.

MR. WILLIAMS: If such a request is in order, I make the request.

MR. [PETER W.] RODINO [Jr., of New Jersey]: I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from North Carolina has the floor.

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

15. 112 CONG. REC. 18416, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. DICKINSON: Mr. Chairman, if I understand correctly, we were granted 2 hours in which to submit amendments. One hour and 45 minutes has been used up. We have 15 minutes remaining. Did the Chair just rule that would be inappropriate, and this Committee would be unable to reconsider, the fixing of this time? Was that the ruling of the Chair?

THE CHAIRMAN: A motion to reconsider is not in order in the Committee of the Whole.

§ 78.85 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on a paragraph of a bill and all amendments thereto, it may on the succeeding day by unanimous consent vacate such agreement.

On Mar. 11, 1942,⁽¹⁶⁾ Chairman Alfred L. Bulwinkle, of North Carolina, advised Mr. J. Buell Snyder, of Pennsylvania, that he had on the previous day submitted a unanimous-consent request, which was agreed to by the Committee of the Whole, that debate on a paragraph and amendments thereto close in 15 minutes. The Chairman stated however that the unanimous-consent limitation reached on the prior day could be vacated by unanimous consent, and the Committee so agreed.

§ 78.86 The Chair advised that by unanimous consent the

16. 88 CONG. REC. 2269, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

Committee of the Whole could rescind an agreement it had previously reached limiting debate on an amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto, and could impose other limitations.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽¹⁷⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that the Committee could by unanimous consent rescind a time limitation formerly agreed to:

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Then, Mr. Chairman, one further parliamentary inquiry:

Would it be in order for me at this time to ask unanimous consent that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto be open until midnight? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: If the Chair understands the gentleman, the gentleman is proposing by unanimous consent that the Committee of the Whole rescind its previous agreement?

MR. DERWINSKI: That is exactly right, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: And the gentleman is proposing that the Committee of the Whole enter into a new agreement which would provide for no further debate at midnight?

MR. DERWINSKI: Well, Mr. Chairman, the real intent is to provide that we vote on amendments after some explanation of their content so we are not voting in the blind. This is not a proper parliamentary statement, but it is a statement of the facts before us.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will try to state the unanimous-consent request which I understand the gentleman is seeking to make.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski) seeks unanimous consent to rescind the agreement heretofore entered into by the Committee of the Whole and to provide that all debate on the Staggers amendment and all amendments thereto close at midnight tonight.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

§ 78.87 The Committee of the Whole having limited time for debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto, that limitation can be rescinded only by unanimous consent.

An illustration of the proposition stated above can be seen in the proceedings of the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 6096⁽¹⁸⁾ on Apr. 23, 1975:⁽¹⁹⁾

MR. [BOB] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

18. Vietnam Humanitarian Evacuation Assistance Act.

19. 121 CONG. REC. 11507, 11508, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

17. 119 CONG. REC. 41743, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

Amendment offered by Mr. Eckhardt as a substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Edgar: strike all after enacting clauses and add:

Sec. 2. There is authorized to be appropriated to the President for the fiscal year 1975 not to exceed $150,000,000 to be used, notwithstanding any other provision of law, on such terms and conditions as the President may deem appropriate for humanitarian assistance to an evacuation program from South Vietnam. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM J.] RANDALL [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the understanding was the debate on the substitute and all amendments thereto would end at 4 o'clock and the hour of 4 o'clock has arrived. What is the parliamentary situation?

THE CHAIRMAN: The parliamentary situation is, as the Chair understands it, as follows:

A substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas for the amendment in the nature of a substitute can be read but cannot be debated.

If there are amendments to the substitute offered by the gentleman from Texas they will be reported by the Clerk but they will not be debated and they will be disposed of as soon as they are reported by the Clerk. . . .

MR. [PETER A.] PEYSER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order to ask unanimous consent that the proposer of this substitute amendment could have 5 minutes of time, because what we are dealing with obviously is a major change and could he by unanimous consent of the House have 5 minutes time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that by unanimous consent and by unanimous consent only could that be done.

MR. PEYSER: Mr. Chairman, I would like to make a unanimous-consent request that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Eckhardt) have 5 minutes in order to explain his amendment, because it will undoubtedly take that much time.

MR. [MICHAEL T.] BLOUIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

(Several other Members objected.)

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

Extensions of Allotted Time

§ 78.88 Where debate on an amendment has been limited to a time certain, and the time equally divided by the Chair among those Members desiring to speak, the Chair declined to entertain a unanimous-consent request to give one of those allotted time a larger share.⁽²⁰⁾

Procedure Where Language of Limitation is Disputed

§ 78.89 Where a Member disagreed with the Chair's interpretation of a motion to limit debate, the Chair indicated that the Member could verify the Chair's interpretation by consulting the notes of the reporters of debates.

²⁰. See §79.50, infra.

On June 13, 1947,⁽¹⁾ Mr. George E. MacKinnon, of Minnesota, made a point of order against the interpretation by Chairman Thomas A. Jenkins, of Ohio, of a request for unanimous consent to close debate which had been agreed to. Mr. MacKinnon contended that the Chair misread the agreement as limiting debate on a section and on amendments thereto, when the agreement purportedly applied only to the section and not to amendments thereto. The Chair answered parliamentary inquiries on the matter of disagreement as to the provisions of a limitation on debate:

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman cannot be right in his observation, for the motion was not to limit debate on the bill but only to that section which had been read.

MR. MACKINNON: I mean on the section. The motion was only to limit time of debate on the section. The words "and amendments thereto" were not included.

I make that point of order. May we have it checked?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will overrule the point of order because the motion was made to close all debate with reference to any amendments to section 202. The question now is on section 203, which the Clerk is reading.

MR. MACKINNON: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MACKINNON: What will be the situation if the Chair is in error in the Chair's recollection according to the record?

THE CHAIRMAN: We will have to decide that when we come to it.

MR. MACKINNON: I thank the Chairman.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOFFMAN: May we have a copy of that part of the record?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman may secure that from the reporters.

The Clerk will report the committee amendment.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Chair did in fact interpret the limitation correctly.⁽²⁾

§ 78.90 When the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole understood that a motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule did not contain a reservation of time to the committee handling the bill, the time was divided without reservation.

On May 9, 1963,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion to limit debate and Chairman John W. Davis, of Georgia, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the terms and effect of the limitation:

MR. [EDWIN E.] WILLIS [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, I observed only a few Members standing. I ask unanimous consent that all time on this amendment and all amendments thereto close in 15 minutes, the last 5 minutes to be reserved for the opposition.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. WILLIS: Mr. Chairman, I so move.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Louisiana.

The motion was agreed to.

MR. WILLIS: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WILLIS: Mr. Chairman, I ask for a clarification of the motion just voted on. The time was limited to 15 minutes, but was the last 5 minutes reserved to the committee?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair did not understand that the motion included the reservation of the last 5 minutes to the committee. The Chair therefore rules that the motion agreed to by the committee simply limits the time to 15 minutes without that reservation.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Chair may refuse to entertain a motion to limit debate with a reservation of time, that motion not being in order; and the Chair could object to, as could any Member, or refuse to entertain a unanimous-consent request which includes a reservation of time.

§ 78.91 The Committee of the Whole having agreed that debate on an amendment be limited to five minutes and the Chair having misinterpreted the agreement as limiting debate on the amendment and all amendments thereto, the Chair later apologized to the Committee and to a Member who was denied the privilege of debate on his amendment to the amendment through the misinterpretation.

On May 3, 1946, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, made the following statement and apology relative to an agreement, previously agreed to by the Committee, to close debate:

The Chair desires to make a statement.

Earlier today, immediately upon the House resolving itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the present bill, H.R. 6065, the chairman of the subcommittee handling the bill propounded a unanimous-consent request which the Chair endeavored to understand. The Chair, in attempting to understand the unanimous-consent request, failed, however, to understand that request as it was transcribed by the official reporter. The Chair has before him the transcript of the record as taken by the official reporter, of the request made by the gentleman from Michigan. The request of the gentleman from Michigan was that all debate on the pending amendment close in 5 minutes. The Chair misunderstood the gentleman so that when the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Vorys] offered an amendment to his amendment, the gentleman from Ohio, instead of being recognized for the 5 minutes to which he was entitled, was barred by the Chair from speaking in support of his amendment to the amendment.

The Chair wishes to apologize to the Committee and to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Vorys] for making a most unintentional misinterpretation of the request of the gentleman from Michigan. The Chair trusts the apology of the Chair may be accepted both by the gentleman from Ohio and the Committee.⁽⁴⁾

Chair's Role in Interpreting or Enforcing Time Limitations

§ 78.92 Where the Committee of the Whole has, by unanimous consent, limited five-minute debate on a pending title and the remaining time

4. 92 CONG. REC. 4418, 79th Cong. 2d Sess. For the proceedings referred to by the Chair, see id. at pp. 4404–06.

A limitation may be vacated, extended, or rescinded by unanimous consent (see §§ 78.81–78.88, supra).

has been allocated among those Members desiring to speak, the Chair has declined to entertain a unanimous-consent request to close debate prior to calling each name on his list of Members to be recognized under the time limitation.

On Nov. 3, 1971,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole had agreed upon a time limitation on five-minute debate, and Chairman James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, had prepared a list of those Members desiring to speak under the limitation. In response to a parliamentary inquiry, he stated that he would not entertain a unanimous-consent request to further close debate and preclude Members on the list from speaking:

MR. [JOHN N.] ERLNBORN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ERLNBORN: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order to ask unanimous consent that we pass to the next item if there are no further amendments to this title?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would have to advise the gentleman that the committee has already determined that there be a limitation on debate. Those Members who were standing and seeking recognition at the time are entitled to recognition if they wish to use their time and it is their privilege to do so.

Opening Bill for Amendment, Dispensing With Reading, Limiting Debate

§ 78.93 The Committee of the Whole may, by unanimous consent, limit debate on all amendments to a pending bill, but such a request should include the condition that the remainder of the bill be considered as read and open to amendment at any point.

On May 18, 1972,⁽⁶⁾ a unanimous-consent request to limit five-minute debate was propounded and then modified in the Committee of the Whole, with Chairman Thomas G. Abernethy, of Mississippi, presiding:

MR. [JOHN J.] ROONEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendments and any further amendments thereto, as well as any other amendments to the bill, close in 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair advises the gentleman that his request is not in order inasmuch as the remainder of the bill has not yet been read.

MR. ROONEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill be considered as read, printed in the Record at this point and that all debate on the pending amendments and any further amendments thereto, as well as any further amendments to the bill, shall close in 5 minutes.

MR. [ANDREW J.] JACOBS [Jr., of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

MR. ROONEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I should like to amend my request by extending the time to 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent that the bill be considered as read, printed in the Record at this point, and that debate on the pending amendments and all amendments to the bill close in 10 minutes.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

§ 78.94 Debate on a bill and all amendments thereto was, by unanimous consent, limited prior to the conclusion of the reading of the bill.

On Sept. 12, 1968,⁽⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request propounded by Mr. George H. Mahon, of Texas, that all debate on the pending bill and all amendments thereto close in 30 minutes, before the entire reading of the bill had been concluded.

§ 78.95 Debate on a bill and all amendments thereto may be limited by unanimous consent prior to the complete reading of the bill.

7. 114 CONG. REC. 26566, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

On May 18, 1966,⁽⁸⁾ Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that debate on a bill, prior to its reading, could be limited by unanimous consent:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: The gentleman from Texas asked that the bill be considered as read. I do not know whether that request was acted upon or not.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection was heard on that request.

MR. HALLECK: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Under the rules of the House, would it then be possible to limit debate unless the bill has been considered as read?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under a unanimous-consent agreement it would be possible, and the Chair understands that the gentleman from Texas is trying to get an unanimous-consent agreement.⁽⁹⁾

§ 78.96 By unanimous consent, the Committee of the Whole

8. 112 CONG. REC. 10911, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

9. See also 114 CONG. REC. 26566, 90th Cong. 2d Sess., Sept. 12, 1968.

agreed that, on a general appropriations bill considered as read and open to amendment at any point, debate under the five-minute rule should terminate at a time certain, with 30 minutes of the time remaining for debate to be allowed on a particular amendment and to be equally divided and controlled.

On Sept. 22, 1983,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 3913 (the Departments of Labor and Health and Human Services appropriations for fiscal year 1984):

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, at this time I would ask unanimous consent that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude not later than 3:30. . . .

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, the motion does not, however, include the 30 minutes for the abortion debate that I thought the gentleman from Illinois was assured of? . . .

MR. NATCHER: The gentleman is correct.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask that debate conclude not later than 3:30 with 30 minutes of the time to be allocated to the amendment pertaining to abortion. . . .

10. 129 CONG. REC. 25407, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [LES] AU COIN [of Oregon]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, I want to be sure I understand what the gentleman just said. My understanding is that in that 30 minutes the time will be divided equally between those who agree with Mr. Hyde and those who agree with the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. AuCoin)? . . .

MR. NATCHER: . . . The gentleman (Mr. AuCoin) is correct. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Limiting Debate on Amendment in Nature of Substitute

§ 78.97 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill, the Chair indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that motions to limit debate on each amendment to said amendment could only be made after the amendment was offered and could not include an allocation of time.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽¹²⁾ there was pending in the Committee of the Whole an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that only by unanimous consent could time be limited and allocated on each amendment to be offered to the amendment in the nature of a substitute. He then answered a further inquiry on a motion to limit debate:

11. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

12. 119 CONG. REC. 41712, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [LAWRENCE] WILLIAMS [Jr., of New Jersey]: Would a motion to limit debate on each amendment to 10 minutes be in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: That would be in order.

MR. WILLIAMS: Then, in that case, I would like to say to my esteemed colleague—

THE CHAIRMAN: On individual amendments. A motion to limit debate on individual amendments to 10 minutes with no allocation of the 10 minutes would be in order.

MR. WILLIAMS: But it has to be made on each individual amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: It has to be offered to each individual amendment after each amendment is offered.

§ 78.98 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill, the Chair indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that a motion to close all debate on the said amendment and all amendments thereto would be in order.

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽¹³⁾ there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill in the Committee of the Whole. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to parliamentary inquiries that: (1) debate on amendments to the substitute could be limited and allocated only by unanimous consent; and (2) that motions to limit debate to a certain amount of time on each amendment to be offered could be made only after each amendment was offered and could not include an allocation of time.

The Chair answered a further inquiry:

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman.

A motion would be in order to end all debate on all amendments pending at 7 o'clock?

THE CHAIRMAN: Such a motion to end all debate on the Staggers amendment and all amendments thereto at an hour certain would be in order.

MR. O'NEILL: I thank the Chairman.

After further discussion, the Chair answered an inquiry on the same subject:

MR. [SAMUEL L.] DEVINE [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DEVINE: Mr. Chairman, my parliamentary inquiry is this: Is a motion now in order to say that the House will vote on the bill and all amendments thereto by a time certain?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that a motion to limit debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. Staggers) and all amendments thereto, to a time certain, would be in order.

MR. DEVINE: Mr. Chairman, I therefore will make that motion.

Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from West Virginia (Mr. Staggers) and all amendments thereto, close at 5:30 p.m. today.

Variations on Unanimous Consent To Limit Debate

§ 78.99 By unanimous consent, the Committee of the Whole agreed at the beginning of general debate to limit and divide control of time for debate on any amendments to be offered by designated Members to certain paragraphs (or to amendments thereto).

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on July 23, 1981,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of the energy and water development appropriations for fiscal 1982 (H.R. 4144):

MR. [TOM] BEVILL [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the debate on the amendments by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Pritchard) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Edgar) in title I to the paragraph entitled "Construction, General" on page 2, be limited to 2 hours, one-half of the time to be controlled equally by the gentleman from Washington and one-half by myself.

14. 127 CONG. REC. 16983, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

MR. BEVILL: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the debate on the amendments by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Coughlin) in title III to the paragraph entitled "Energy Supply, Research and Development Activities" on page 16, be limited to 2 hours, one-half of the time to be controlled equally by the gentleman from Pennsylvania and one-half by myself.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

Curtailing Previously Limited Time

§ 78.100 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto, a further limitation may be imposed only by unanimous consent and not by motion.

On Oct. 8, 1974,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of House Resolution

15. Anthony C. Beilenson (Calif.).

16. 120 CONG. REC. 34459, 34460, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

988 (to reform the structure, jurisdiction, and procedures of House committees), Richard Bolling, of Missouri, was recognized and made the following statement:

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I have been talked to and have talked to a great number of Members on both sides of the aisle. There is a substantial amount of time left under the agreement voted yesterday. I believe the time is in the order of 2 hours and 15 minutes. . . .

Most of the Members with whom I have discussed this matter would like to cut back that amount of time.

Now, there is no attempt in any request that I make to limit the right of Members with noticed amendments to offer their noticed amendments. . . . I propose to ask by unanimous consent that the debate on amendments, not including those noticed under the rule, be limited to 30 minutes on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington and all amendments thereto.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard. . . .

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, would it be proper to make my unanimous-consent request as a motion?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to inform the gentleman that such a motion would not be in order at this time.

17. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

Parliamentarian's Note: In this instance, a motion to further limit debate on each amendment as it was offered to the pending amendment in the nature of a substitute would have been in order, but it would not be in order by motion to change the overall limitation imposed by the Committee on the amendment and all amendments thereto.

Motion To Require a Certain Amount of Debate

§ 78.101 A motion to require a certain amount of debate on an amendment under the five-minute rule is not in order in the Committee of the Whole.

On June 18, 1959,⁽¹⁸⁾ Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, ruled as follows:

MR. [BARRATT] O'HARA of Illinois: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. O'Hara of Illinois: On page 10, strike out all of lines 14, 15, and 16, and renumber the paragraphs. . . .

MR. O'HARA of Illinois: . . . I earnestly urge the adoption of my amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. O'Hara].

18. 105 CONG. REC. 11302, 11303, 86th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. O'HARA of Illinois: Mr. Chairman, I think this matter is very important and certainly I believe there should be more time given to the discussion than just taking a vote now.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair did not observe anyone standing.

MR. O'HARA of Illinois: Mr. Chairman, I move that one-half hour be given to discussing my amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman's motion is not in order. . . .

The time of the gentleman from Iowa has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. O'Hara].

The amendment was agreed to.

§ 79. — Effect of Limitation; Distribution of Remaining Time

Where a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule is agreed to, the Chair usually notes the names of those Members who indicate their desire to speak by standing, and equally divides the time among those Members.⁽¹⁹⁾ Such distribution is, however, in the discretion of the Chair, and he may recognize a Member for a full five minutes.⁽²⁰⁾

The Committee may provide by unanimous consent that time on 19. See § 22, supra (recognition under a limitation on five-minute debate).

20. See § 79.46, infra.

amendments be limited and controlled, and that the Members in charge control and distribute the time under the limitation.⁽¹⁾

If debate is closed instantly, no further debate is in order for any purpose (including the preferential motion that the enacting clause be stricken if the limitation is on the entire bill) and further amendments may be offered but not debated⁽²⁾ unless they have been printed in the Congressional Record.

If debate is limited to a time certain (e.g., 5 p.m.), time runs for all purposes, including the taking of votes, reading amendments, quorum calls, and debating the preferential motion to strike the enacting clause.⁽³⁾ If the Committee rises before the expiration of such a limitation, and does not resume consideration before the time certain arrives, no further time for debate remains.⁽⁴⁾

If debate on an amendment or portion of a bill is limited to a fixed period for debate (e.g., 20 minutes), time runs only for debate and not for votes, quorum calls, reading amendments, or offering and debating the preferential motion to strike the enact-

4. See § 79.128, infra.

ing clause.⁽⁵⁾ But if time is limited to a fixed period on the entire bill and all amendments thereto, the time for the preferential motion does consume time under the limitation.⁽⁶⁾

Whether the expiration of a limitation precludes debate on an amendment yet to be offered depends on whether the amendment comes within the scope of the limitation, which may apply to an amendment, a section, a paragraph, a title, or the entire bill, and also to amendments to each of those.⁽⁷⁾

The expiration of a limitation does not apply to amendments which have been printed, pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, in the Congressional Record at least one day prior to their consideration.⁽⁸⁾ Amendments which are covered by the limitation may be offered after the expiration thereof, but may not be debated.⁽⁹⁾

Debate Closed Instantly

§ 79.1 Where debate on a pending amendment has been closed instantly by motion, the Chair puts the question on the amendment and does not recognize Members who seek to debate the amendment further.

On Nov. 25, 1970,⁽¹⁰⁾ Mr. John C. Kluczynski, of Illinois, the manager of the pending bill in the Committee of the Whole, moved that all debate on the pending amendment close instantly. The Committee agreed to the motion by division vote. Mr. Andrew Jacobs, Jr., of Indiana, and Mr. Jonathan B. Bingham, of New York, then sought recognition to debate the amendment. Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, ruled that no further debate was in order:

MR. JACOBS: What about those of us who were on our feet when debate was choked off? Will we be recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: There was no count made of Members standing for time, and the motion of the gentleman from Illinois was to close debate, and that motion was agreed to.⁽¹¹⁾

Running of Time Under Limitation to Time Certain

§ 79.2 Where the Committee of the Whole has agreed to close debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto at a time certain, the Chair attempts to divide the time equally between Members desiring recognition; but where part of the fixed time is consumed by votes, it may not be possible for the Chair to reach each Member on the list before the time expires.

On Aug. 7, 1964,⁽¹²⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion offered by Mr. Phillip M. Landrum, of Georgia, that debate under the five-minute rule on an amendment in the nature of a substitute and amendments thereto close at 6:30 p.m. Before the time expired, various teller votes intervened and prevented all the Members who were noted by the Chair and who desired recognition under the limitation from being heard before the time expired. Chairman Albert Rains, of Alabama, answered an inquiry on that subject as follows:

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired for debate on the amendments.

MR. [CHARLES E.] GOODELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry. I was standing on my feet when the original time limitation was made. There are others here who were standing on their feet. Everybody had 2 minutes. Do I understand now, since time has elapsed, that we are prevented from even taking the 2 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Committee voted to close all debate at 6:30 and that most of the time was taken up by the ordering of teller votes. There were many Members who did not get to be recognized who were standing on their feet.

On Oct. 7, 1965,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion that debate on a title of a bill and amendments thereto close at 8:20 p.m. Mr. William C. Cramer, of Florida, offered an amendment and debated it, and a division vote and teller vote consumed the time. Chairman Phillip M. Landrum, of Georgia, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that Members who had indicated their desire to speak when the limitation was agreed to could not be recognized for further debate, the time for votes having consumed the time under the limitation.

§ 79.3 Time consumed by teller votes comes out of a limitation of time for debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto where that debate has been limited to a time certain.

On Nov. 30, 1971,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion by Mr. Wayne L. Hays, of Ohio, that all debate on an amendment and amendments thereto end at 7 o'clock p.m. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the effect of teller votes on such a time limitation:

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: If there is a teller vote on the Bingham amendment, or any subsequent amendment, would those teller votes come out of the time limitation at 7 o'clock?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state in response to the parliamentary inquiry of the gentleman from Ohio that the time limitation has been fixed at 7 o'clock and all time used comes out of that time limitation.

§ 79.4 Where time for debate is limited to a certain hour rather than a number of minutes of debate time, the time taken by teller votes is counted as time out of the time allowed for debate.

14. 117 CONG. REC. 43406, 92d Cong. 1st Sess.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to the following motion to close debate offered by Mr. John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts:

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the McConnell amendment and all amendments thereto close at 2:30 a.m.

Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, then answered a parliamentary inquiry on the counting of time under the limitation:

MR. [FRANCIS H.] CASE of South Dakota: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: The limitation on time fixed the time at a precise hour rather than so many minutes. The effect of teller votes, then, is simply to take time out of the time allowed for debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: Of course, it comes out of the time.

§ 79.5 After time for debate has been fixed to a certain hour by motion, time for parliamentary inquiries, rereading of amendments, and the like, is taken from the time remaining, thus cutting the time for debate apportioned to Members who have not yet spoken.

15. 96 CONG. REC. 2240-46, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

On Jan. 23, 1962,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole had agreed to a motion that debate under the five-minute rule close at 5:30 p.m. on an amendment and amendments thereto. Mr. Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., of Maryland, offered an amendment and was recognized. Mr. Hale Boggs, of Louisiana, then made a unanimous-consent request and Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the consumption of time under the limitation:

MR. BOGGS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment may be reread by the Clerk.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object is this coming out of the gentleman's time?

THE CHAIRMAN: It is coming out of the time allotted for general debate which closes at 5:30 p.m. There will be a loss of time to succeeding Members.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

MR. GROSS: Yes; I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Maryland is recognized.

§ 79.6 In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Chair indicated that a limitation of time for debate on a bill and all amendments thereto at a time certain would preclude any debate thereafter except on amendments printed in the Record, while time consumed by votes and quorum calls is not counted where the limitation is on the number of minutes of debate and not by the clock.

16. 108 CONG. REC. 769, 773, 774, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

During consideration of H.R. 6096, the Vietnam Humanitarian and Evacuation Assistance Act, in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 23, 1975,⁽¹⁷⁾ the proceedings relative to limiting debate were as follows:

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: . . . It is my intention at this time to seek a time limit on the debate if I can obtain the permission of the House.

Mr. Chairman, I move that the debate on the bill and all amendments thereto be concluded at 11:30.

MR. [PAUL S.] SARBANES [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ This motion is not a debatable question. . . .

MR. [BOB] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ECKHARDT: Mr. Chairman, do I understand correctly that when such a motion is passed setting a time certain for conclusion of the debate, that regardless of the situation which may exist in the House debate is absolutely cut off and amendments must proceed without presentation of any argument, whereas if a time is provided as for instance an hour and a half, then when the Chair establishes time for each Member, that time is not cut off at any specific hour?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has stated the case properly, with the exception that even under the pending motion those amendments which have previously been printed in the Record would get the time allotted to them under the basic House rules.

§ 79.7 Where all debate on a bill and all amendments thereto has been limited to a time certain, time consumed by votes comes out of the time remaining for debate.

On Dec. 17, 1975,⁽¹⁹⁾ an example of the principle stated above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the Regional Rail Reorganization Act amendments (H.R. 10979). The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [FRED B.] ROONEY [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude at 5 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Rooney).

18. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

19. 121 CONG. REC. 41386, 41389, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Skubitz) there were—ayes 61, noes 37.

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device and there were—ayes 258, noes 161, answered “present” 1, not voting 14, as follows: . . .

MR. [PETER A.] PEYSER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. PEYSER: Mr. Chairman, does the time of the vote go against the 5 o'clock deadline?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that it does, yes.

MR. PEYSER: In other words, Mr. Chairman, if we have another vote we would then cut 15 more minutes out of that time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct, yes.

§ 79.8 A limitation of debate to a time certain terminates all debate at that time notwithstanding reallocations of allotted time which remain unused when debate expires.

During consideration of the Vocational Educational Act amendments (H.R. 12835) in the Committee of the Whole on May 11, 1976,⁽¹⁾ a motion to limit debate was offered as follows:

1. 122 CONG. REC. 13416, 13427, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on title III and all amendments thereto close at 4:50 p.m.

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Conlan).

MR. [JOHN B.] CONLAN [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, I have time. Five minutes were allowed.

THE CHAIRMAN: The time was set certain and, unfortunately, the time has expired.

—Argument on Point of Order

§ 79.9 Where debate under the five-minute rule has been limited to a time certain, debate consumed for argument on a point of order comes out of all the time under the limitation (and not only out of the time of the Member whose amendment was the subject of the point of order), and reduces the time allotted to each Member who had indicated a desire to speak under the limitation.

On Apr. 26, 1978,⁽³⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8494, the Public Disclosure of Lobbying Act of

2. B. F. Sisk (Calif.).

3. 124 CONG. REC. 11641–43, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

1978, a limitation on debate was agreed to:

MR. [GEORGE E.] DANIELSON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto be terminated at the hour of 7:30 o'clock p.m. tonight.

[The motion was agreed to.]

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Gary A. Myers: Page 39, insert the following after line 7:

(8) If any lobbying communication was made on the floor of the House of Representatives or adjoining rooms thereof, or on the floor of the Senate or adjoining rooms thereof, a statement that such lobbying communication was made. . . .

MR. DANIELSON: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that this amendment is not germane to the bill. The bill calls for disclosure of lobbying activities under the terms of expenditure and the like, and related lobbying activities as to influencing the conduct and disposition of legislation. This has to do with activities within the Capitol Building and is not necessarily within the purview of the bill. . . .

MR. GARY A. MYERS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to point out that the amendment is more narrowly drafted than the amendment which I offered last year. It only requires an item of disclosure by those individuals who otherwise would have to be reporting. . . . In last year's amendment there was a point of order raised about the invasion of the House rules. It would seem to me that article I, section 5 of the Constitution clearly states that:

. . . each House may determine the rules of its proceedings.

Numerous precedents have held that the power to make rules is not impaired by rules of previous Congresses or by laws passed by previous Congresses. So that this amendment in no way adds to or impairs the rules of the House. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The Chair will notify the members of the committee that time taken from the allotted time for the discussion of the point of order was not allotted to the gentleman from Pennsylvania but will come out of the general time and will reduce everyone's time to 5 minutes each.

Are there further amendments?

Running of Time Under Fixed-period Limitation

§ 79.10 Where the Committee of the Whole limits debate under the five-minute rule to a fixed period of debate time, time consumed by voting is not counted against this limitation.

On Feb. 10, 1964,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, propounded a unanimous-consent request that all debate on the pending title and amendments thereto conclude in two hours. Chairman

4. Lloyd Meeds (Wash.).

5. 110 CONG. REC. 2705, 2706, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the effect of interruptions on such a limitation:

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: If the limit is 2 hours, would that 2 hours include teller votes or division votes, or matters of that sort, or would it be actually 2 hours of debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: If the unanimous-consent agreement is that there be 2 hours' debate, division votes would not be taken out of the 2 hours.

§ 79.11 Where debate has been limited "to 30 minutes," time is counted only during debate, not during quorum calls.

On Aug. 4, 1966,⁽⁶⁾ Majority Leader Carl Albert, of Oklahoma, propounded a unanimous-consent request that debate on a pending motion to strike a title of a bill be limited to 30 minutes. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the effect of a quorum call on time under the limitation:

MR. [DURWARD G.] HALL [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, is my understanding correct that the unanimous-consent request propounded by the distinguished majority leader would preclude a quorum call prior to the first order of business and the 30 minutes before the vote?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will reply to the gentleman that if there is no quorum present any Member at any time can make a point of order. In other words, it will not preclude a quorum call.

MR. HALL: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. Would that time come out of the 30 minutes allotted for debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: It would not.

§ 79.12 Time consumed by a quorum call does not come out of a limitation of time for debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto where that limitation specifies minutes of debate rather than a time certain by the clock.

On Nov. 9, 1971,⁽⁷⁾ Chairman William L. Hungate, of Missouri, answered a parliamentary inquiry on whether time for a quorum call would come out of the time for debate under a limitation:

MR. [WILLIAM R.] POAGE [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Dow amendment in the nature of a substitute, the Kyl substitute amendment, and all amendments thereto close in 20 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Poage).

The motion was agreed to.

MR. [JOHN G.] DOW [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

6. 112 CONG. REC. 18207, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

7. 117 CONG. REC. 40060, 40061, 92d Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will count.

MR. DOW: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DOW: Mr. Chairman, if there is a rollcall will this come out of the time limitation?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state in response to the inquiry of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Dow) that the motion that was agreed to, that was offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Poage) was for 20 minutes of debate, and the Chair will advise the gentleman from New York that there will be 20 minutes allotted for debate.

§ 79.13 In answer to a parliamentary inquiry, the Chair indicated that when debate is limited to “60 minutes,” the time consumed for purposes other than debate is not counted as part of the time.

On May 26, 1966,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Adam C. Powell, of New York, made a unanimous-consent request that debate on a pending amendment be limited to “60 minutes.” Mr. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, propounded a parliamentary inquiry whether that limitation would be a specific number of minutes or to a given time on the clock. Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, responded that the language of the limitation meant one hour of debate (to exclude time for purposes other than debate).

8. 112 CONG. REC. 11608, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

When a quorum call was had during the limitation, the time consumed thereby was not taken out of the remaining time for debate.⁽⁹⁾

§ 79.14 Where time for debate is limited without reference to a time certain, the time consumed by the reading of amendments is not taken from that remaining for debate.

On Oct. 3, 1969,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion by Mr. L. Mendel Rivers, of South Carolina, that all debate on a title and amendments thereto close in 15 minutes. Under the limitation, Mr. John B. Anderson, of Illinois, offered a perfecting amendment to the title, and it was read by the Clerk. During the reading, Mr. Harold R. Collier, of Illinois, inquired whether the reading of the amendment was charged against the time under the limitation. Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, responded that the time for the reading would not be charged against the limited time.

10. 115 CONG. REC. 28459, 28460, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 79.15 Where the Committee of the Whole has agreed to a limitation for debate on a pending amendment and the limitation specified minutes of debate rather than a time certain, time consumed by votes does not come out of the time under the limitation.

On Sept. 28, 1976,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 15 (the Public Disclosure of Lobbying Act of 1976), the Chair responded to parliamentary inquiries regarding a limitation on debate time, as indicated below:

MR. [WALTER] FLOWERS [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto be limited to 30 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Flowers). . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the motion was agreed to will each be recognized for a fraction over 2 minutes.

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

11. 122 CONG. REC. 33081, 33082, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

12. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ASHBROOK: Mr. Chairman, the way the motion was stated, would the time for votes be taken out of the 30 minutes, or will there be 30 minutes of debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the time consumed by votes would be excluded from the time allotted.

MR. ASHBROOK: So, Mr. Chairman, the time for votes, if we would have votes, would not come out of the 30 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

§ 79.16 When debate under the five-minute rule has been limited to a certain amount of time for debate, time is counted only during debate and not during quorum calls and recorded votes, unless otherwise stipulated in the request to limit debate.

During consideration of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (H.R. 1614) in the Committee of the Whole on Feb. 1, 1978,⁽¹³⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I will revise the unanimous-consent request.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that when we convene tomorrow, all debate on H.R. 1614 and all amendments and substitutes thereto end after 3 hours of debate.

13. 124 CONG. REC. 1827, 1828, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, may I inquire of the Chairman of the committee: Does that include quorum calls and rollcall votes?

MR. MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, we did not set 3 o'clock tomorrow as the time to terminate the debate. We said we would have 3 hours of debate. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to make an inquiry of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy).

Assuming that the unanimous-consent request for 3 hours is approved, ordinarily the time for quorum calls and rollcall votes would not be deducted from the 3 hours of debate unless that is the intention of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy). The unanimous-consent request for 3 hours would cover debate time only, and it would not take into consideration the time consumed for quorum calls and rollcall votes.

That would be the ordinary procedure, unless the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy) would like to stipulate that those be included in the 3 hours.

MR. MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I would like to stipulate in the unanimous-consent request that any time allocated to quorum calls or to rollcalls not be included in the 3 hours.

Time on Enacting Clause

§ 79.17 After debate on a bill and all amendments thereto

14. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

had been limited to 10 minutes and five had been consumed, a preferential motion to strike the enacting clause consumed the remaining time and prevented recognition of a member of the committee handling the bill to speak against the pending amendment or against the motion to strike the enacting clause.

On Mar. 28, 1958,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion, offered by Mr. George P. Miller, of California, the manager of the pending bill, that all debate on the bill and amendments thereto close in 10 minutes. After five minutes of debate following the limitation agreement, Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered the motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, stated in response to parliamentary inquiries that the time for the motion would come out of remaining time on the bill:

MR. HOFFMAN: If my motion is defeated can there be further debate on the pending amendment, since time for debate has been limited?

15. 104 CONG. REC. 5701, 5702, 85th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair informs the gentleman that all debate will be concluded in 5 minutes.

MR. [ALBERT P.] MORANO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman yield for a parliamentary inquiry? It will come out of his time.

MR. HOFFMAN: Will the Chair inform me how much time I have?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman has 4 minutes remaining.

MR. HOFFMAN: I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Connecticut.

MR. MORANO: As I understand, Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Michigan moves to strike out the enacting clause.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is the pending motion.

MR. MORANO: Do the rules of the House not provide that there may be 5 minutes debate in opposition to strike the enacting clause?

THE CHAIRMAN: That would be the case ordinarily, but in this particular instance the Committee adopted a motion closing all debate on the bill in 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Hoffman].

§ 79.18 The 10 minutes of debate on a motion to strike the enacting clause in the Committee of the Whole is not taken from the time fixed for debate on an amendment previously offered, where the time was not fixed by the clock.

On Apr. 28, 1953,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to limit debate on a pending amendment, the time thereto to expire after a fixed number of minutes (not to expire at a specified time on the clock). Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered the preferential motion to strike the enacting clause and debated it, as did a Member in opposition to the motion. After the 10 minutes on the motion expired, Chairman J. Harry McGregor, of Ohio, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the time left to debate the pending amendment:

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Hoffman of Michigan moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. . . .

[After 10 minutes debate on the motion.]

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from Missouri has expired. All time has expired.

MR. [HERMAN P.] EBERHARTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. EBERHARTER: The time on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan is not taken out of the time already allotted for debate on this subject?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct. All debate on the preferential motion has expired, but not all debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas.

§ 79.19 When time for debate on an amendment is limited to a time certain, the 10 minutes permitted for debate on a preferential motion that the Committee rise and report with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken comes out of the time remaining under the limitation and reduces the time which may be allocated to Members wishing to speak.

On May 6, 1970,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion that all debate on a pending amendment and amendments thereto close at a time certain, 5 o'clock. During debate under the limitation, Mr. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., of Massachusetts, offered the preferential motion that the Committee rise and report back the bill with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that regardless of the allocation by the Chair of time remaining under the limitation, the motion could be debated for 10 minutes, five in favor of and five against the motion.

The Chairman then answered a further parliamentary inquiry on the charging of the time on the motion to the time remaining under the limitation:

MR. [ROBERT L.] LEGGETT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LEGGETT: Mr. Chairman, considering the fact that a time limitation has now been set in relation to today at 5 o'clock, does the time of the debate on the motion that we have already heard, come out of the time on the amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: The time will come out of the time of those who are participating in debate.

MR. LEGGETT: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry. If we choose to rise right now and come back tomorrow, then would there be any time limitation on debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: There would be no further debate.

The time was set at 5 o'clock.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. O'Neill).

The motion was rejected.

§ 79.20 When because of a limitation of debate on a paragraph or section a Member is unable to obtain time during the stage of amendments, he may offer a motion to strike out the enacting clause and thus secure time for debate, if he is opposed to the bill.

On Mar. 13, 1942,⁽¹⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole had agreed to limit debate on a paragraph of the pending bill and amendments thereto. When the time expired, Mr. Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, offered the motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. He indicated he would withdraw the motion after it was discussed, or expect the House to vote it down. Chairman Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, recognized Mr. May for five minutes.

Mr. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, then made a point of order against recognition of Mr. May for that purpose, stating that the offering of the motion merely to secure time for debate should not abrogate the right of the Committee to close debate when it chose. The Chairman overruled the point of order.

When Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, made the point of order that Mr. May had not qualified to offer the motion by stating he was opposed to the bill, Mr. May assured the Chairman that he was opposed to the bill in its present form.⁽¹⁹⁾

§ 79.21 Where a bill has been amended subsequent to the rejection of a motion to strike out the enacting clause, a second such motion

^{19.} See also 91 CONG. REC. 5149, 79th Cong. 1st Sess., May 26, 1945; and 86 CONG. REC. 1883, 76th Cong. 3d Sess., Feb. 23, 1940. For argument opposing such use of the motion, see 88 CONG. REC. 2441, 2442, 77th Cong. 2d Sess., Mar. 13, 1942; and 86 CONG. REC. 2017-19, 76th Cong. 3d Sess., Feb. 26, 1940.

A Member offering the motion or opposing the motion may discuss the entire bill, the motion opening the bill up for discussion (see § 38, supra).

The Member making the motion, if challenged, must qualify by stating he is opposed to the bill (see 104 CONG. REC. 3443, 85th Cong. 2d Sess., Mar. 5, 1958), and to obtain recognition in opposition to the motion a Member must qualify by stating he is opposed to the motion (see 97 CONG. REC. 8539, 82d Cong. 1st Sess., July 20, 1951). When no member of the reporting committee seeks recognition in opposition to the motion, the Chair may recognize a Member from the opposite party of the Member making the motion (see 101 CONG. REC. 12997, 84th Cong. 1st Sess., Aug. 2, 1955).

is in order and is debatable notwithstanding a limitation of unexpired debate on the bill.

On May 9, 1947,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan, offered a motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report a bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, after a previous such motion had been offered before the bill had been amended, and after a limitation on debate had been agreed to. Chairman Francis H. Case, of South Dakota, overruled points of order against the motion:

MR. HOFFMAN: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Hoffman moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

MR. [PETE] JARMAN [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order against the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JARMAN: Mr. Chairman, that motion has already been made and was voted down once.

THE CHAIRMAN: There have been several amendments adopted on the bill, it has been changed since that motion was previously acted on. The Chair overrules the point of order.

20. 93 CONG. REC. 4974, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JOHN M.] VORYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. VORYS: Mr. Chairman, debate is limited on the bill by action of the committee.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan has offered a preferential motion which is in order in spite of the agreement on closing debate.

§ 79.22 A preferential motion to strike the enacting clause is not debatable after all time for debate on the bill and amendments thereto has expired.

On July 9, 1965,⁽¹⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering the Voting Rights Act of 1965, H.R. 6400, Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, ruled that a motion to strike the enacting clause was not debatable, all time having expired on the bill and amendments thereto:

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired.

MR. GERALD R. FORD [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I was on the list, but the time has expired. I have a preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate is concluded even with a preferential motion. The agreement was that all debate would conclude at 7:20 p.m. The hour is now 7:20 p.m. There is no further time.

1. 111 CONG. REC. 16280, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

The question is on the committee amendment, as amended.

§ 79.23 A motion having been adopted in the Committee of the Whole to close debate instantly on a bill, a preferential motion that the Committee rise and report back to the House a recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken is not debatable.

On June 11, 1959,⁽²⁾ Mr. Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, moved and the Committee of the Whole agreed to close all debate on the pending bill and on all amendments thereto. Chairman Joseph L. Evins, of Tennessee, then ruled that a preferential motion on the bill was not debatable since debate on the bill had been closed:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN of Michigan: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair must inform the gentleman from Michigan that the motion is not debatable.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: Is this a Senate bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: This is a House bill.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: This is a Senate bill and the Chair holds that it is not debatable at this time?

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the bill has been ordered closed.

MR. HOFFMAN of Michigan: This is not on the bill. This is on a motion to strike out the enacting clause on the ground that the first amendment has been denied to the minority here, the right of free speech in debate, and this being the greatest deliberative body in the world and the accusation having been made the other day that the minority was intimidated, or the majority was being intimidated.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan is a very beloved and very distinguished and very able parliamentarian, but the majority have ruled and ordered that all debate is concluded at this time.

§ 79.24 Where all debate on a bill and all amendments thereto has been limited and there remains less than 10 minutes, a Member offering the preferential motion that the Committee rise and report with a recommendation to strike the enacting clause, is entitled to one-half of the time remaining and a Member in opposition to the motion is recognized for the other half.

On June 19, 1975,⁽³⁾ during consideration of the Energy Conservation and Conversion Act of 1975 (H.R. 6860) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [AL] ULLMAN [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent

2. 105 CONG. REC. 10560, 10561, 86th Cong. 1st Sess.

3. 121 CONG. REC. 19785-87, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

that all debate on the bill and all amendments cease in 2 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rule, the Chairman has the right at this time to recognize one Member on each side. The Chair will do that. All debate on the bill is limited to 2 minutes. The Chair would be unable to recognize 40 or 50 Members for 1 second or 2 seconds.

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER of Wisconsin: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Steiger of Wisconsin moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. . . .

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Why, on a motion which the gentleman from Wisconsin made, is he not allowed 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to state to the gentleman from California that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto is limited to two minutes. . . .

MR. ROUSSELOT: But he has 5 minutes on a preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has been fixed on the bill, and all amendments thereto, and the time was 2 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Phillip Burton) for 1 minute in opposition to the preferential motion.

§ 79.25 Despite a limitation of time for debate on the remaining portion of a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain and the subsequent allocation of less than five minutes time to each Member seeking recognition, a full 10 minutes' debate, five for and five against, may still be demanded on a preferential motion that the Committee rise and report with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

During debate in the Committee of the Whole on an appropriation for public works for water and power development and energy research (H.R. 8122) on June 24, 1975,⁽⁵⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOE L.] EVINS of Tennessee: Mr. Chairman, I now move that all debate on the remaining portion of the bill and all amendments thereto conclude in 30 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. Evins). . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the motion was made will be recognized for 40 seconds each. . . .

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

5. 121 CONG. REC. 20618, 20619, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

6. Richard H. Ichord (Mo.).

Mr. Conte moves that the committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) for 5 minutes. . . .

MR. [EDWARD P.] BOLAND [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the preferential motion.

(By unanimous consent, Messrs. Perkins, James V. Stanton, Moakley, and Burke of Massachusetts yielded their time to Mr. Boland). . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman has expired.

The Chair will advise the gentleman from Massachusetts, Mr. Boland, that the Chair will now put the question on the preferential motion, and after that time the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) for the remainder of the time.

The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte).

The preferential motion was rejected.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Boland) for 2 additional minutes.

§ 79.26 The 10 minutes of debate otherwise permitted on a preferential motion to recommend that the enacting clause be stricken is not available where all time for debate under the five-minute rule on a bill and all amendments thereto has expired.

On Apr. 9, 1976,⁽⁷⁾ during consideration of the military procurement authorization bill (H.R. 12438) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the remainder of the bill, title VII and all amendments thereto, close in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: All time for debate has expired. . . .

MR. [TOM] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Harkin moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause of H.R. 12438 be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman's motion is not debatable, in that all time has expired.

The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin).

The preferential motion was rejected.

§ 79.27 When the Committee of the Whole has limited debate on the bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain, even a preferential motion to strike the enacting clause is not debatable if offered after the expiration of time for debate.

On Aug. 1, 1984,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6028 (Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations for fiscal 1985) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ All time has expired.

MR. [WILLIAM E.] DANNEMEYER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a preferential motion at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will state the motion.

The Chair will first advise the gentleman that it is not debatable at this point under the unanimous-consent agreement.

MR. DANNEMEYER: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Is it not true that on behalf of this motion this Member would have 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the bill and all amendments to the bill under the unanimous-consent agreement was to end at 1:30, unless amendments had been printed in the Record.

MR. DANNEMEYER: This is not an amendment.

9. 130 CONG. REC. 21869, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

10. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

THE CHAIRMAN: All debate on the bill ended at 1:30, under the unanimous-consent agreement.

MR. DANNEMEYER: Maybe this Member does not understand, but the preferential motion takes precedence over the time limitation that has been agreed to; does it not?

THE CHAIRMAN: It could be offered, but there will be no debate on the preferential motion.

MR. DANNEMEYER: This Member would have no time on behalf of it?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman would not have any time under the unanimous-consent agreement.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

The time limitation was on the bill itself; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. WALKER: The preferential motion deals with a specific motion before the House which would be my understanding, would permit the gentleman 5 minutes of time to debate his motion. That is the pattern that I have understood we have used before when time limitations have been declared. Is this a change of policy on the part of the Chair?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the precedents of the House are that when the time limit is on the entire bill, that includes all motions thereto.

MR. WALKER: So that the Chair is ruling that this motion is a part of the debate on the bill?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

Where Enacting Clause Debate Uses All Time Remaining

§ 79.28 A limitation of all debate time on a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain does not preclude the offering of a preferential motion to rise with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken, nor debate thereon during time remaining under the limitation; and where the remaining time for debate on a bill and all amendments thereto is consumed by debate on a preferential motion, an amendment pending when the preferential motion was offered is voted on without further debate, if that amendment was not printed in the Record.

On Oct. 6, 1981,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 4560 (Labor, Health and Human Services appropriations for fiscal year 1982) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude not later than 5 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

MR. [THEODORE S.] WEISS [of New York]: . . . I wonder if the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Natcher) would not agree that a 6 o'clock time frame would be more appropriate?

MR. NATCHER: Mr. Chairman, I would accept the recommendation, and so move.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The time will be limited to 6 o'clock. . . .

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Lott moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out. . . .

MR. WEISS: Mr. Chairman, at the time the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Natcher) requested unanimous consent that debate be terminated at 6 o'clock, we were given assurances that all the amendments that . . . any Member had to offer would be entertained. So I now raise the point of order that in fact the gentleman is proceeding out of the regular order that was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Lott) has offered a preferential motion which is in order and not precluded by the unanimous-consent agreement, and under the unanimous-consent agreement, the gentleman from Mississippi is recognized for 2½ minutes. . . .

MR. [JOSEPH M.] GAYDOS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order.

11. 127 CONG. REC. 23361, 23362, 23396, 23397, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

12. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. GAYDOS: Mr. Chairman, I am asking the Chair whether or not I have 5 minutes to respond to the amendment as offered by the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. Gregg).

THE CHAIRMAN: All time for debate on the bill and on the pending amendment has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. Gregg). . . .

So the amendment was rejected.

MR. [DONALD J.] PEASE [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is the gentleman's amendment printed in the Record?

MR. PEASE: It is, Mr. Chairman. It is amendment No. 1.

[Mr. Pease was subsequently recognized to debate the amendment.]

Parliamentarian's Note: During debate on the preferential motion, there was discussion of a prospective motion to recommit. For discussion of the distinction between a motion to recommit pending a vote on a motion to strike the enacting clause, and the motion to recommit pending final passage, see § 15, supra.

Applicability of Limitation to Particular Measures

§ 79.29 The closing of debate on a section of a bill and all amendments thereto does not apply to an amendment offered as a new section.

On June 30, 1939,⁽¹³⁾ Chairman Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, ruled that the adoption of a motion to close debate on a section did not preclude offering a new section with debate thereon:

MR. [JAMES E.] VAN ZANDT [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Van Zandt: Page 9, line 14, insert:

“ARMING OF AMERICAN MERCHANT VESSELS PROHIBITED

“Sec. 9. Whenever the President shall have issued a proclamation under the authority of section 1, it shall thereafter be unlawful, until such proclamation is revoked, for any American vessel engaged in commerce with any belligerent state, named in such proclamation, to be armed, except small arms and ammunition therefor which the President may deem necessary and shall publicly designate for the preservation of discipline aboard such vessels.”

MR. LUTHER A. JOHNSON [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I call the attention of the Chair to the fact that debate has expired on section 9 by unanimous consent.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair invites the attention of the gentleman to the fact that section 9 has been eliminated. This is a new section.

Similarly, Chairman Emanuel Celler, of New York, ruled as follows on Mar. 12, 1935:⁽¹⁴⁾

13. 84 CONG. REC. 8500, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

14. 79 CONG. REC. 3478, 74th Cong. 1st Sess. See also 78 CONG. REC. 9397,

MR. [HENRY] ELLENBOGEN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment by Mr. Ellenbogen: Page 15, after line 15, insert a new section, as follows:

“Sec. 29. Any loan insured under the National Housing Act shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed 6 percent per annum, inclusive of all charges.”

MR. ELLENBOGEN: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 3 minutes.

MR. [HENRY B.] STEAGALL [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, all debate has been closed.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say to the gentleman from Alabama that his request covered section 27 and all amendments thereto.

MR. STEAGALL: Mr. Chairman, a motion was made and carried, as I understood, closing debate on this section and all amendments thereto.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Ellenbogen] has offered an amendment adding a new section, and is entitled to recognition for 5 minutes.

§ 79.30 Under a limitation of time for debate on a paragraph and all amendments thereto, a Member may not offer a second amendment until the pending amendment is disposed of.

73d Cong. 2d Sess., May 23, 1934; 75 CONG. REC. 4887, 72d Cong. 1st Sess., Feb. 27, 1932; and 72 CONG. REC. 7640, 71st Cong. 2d Sess., Apr. 24, 1930.

On June 29, 1959,⁽¹⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request that debate on the pending paragraph and amendments thereto close in 15 minutes. Mr. Joel T. Broyhill, of Virginia, inquired when he could offer another amendment to the paragraph. Chairman Paul J. Kilday, of Texas, responded that he could so offer it after the pending amendment was disposed of.

§ 79.31 A limitation on debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole on a section of a bill and all amendments thereto does not affect debate on an amendment adding a new section to the bill.

On Aug. 1, 1979,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of the Emergency Energy Conservation Act of 1979 (S. 1030), the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on Section 3 and all amendments thereto end at 4 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell). . . .

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 247, noes 164, not voting 23, as follows. . . .

Amendment offered by Mr. Tauke:
Page 50, after line 2, insert the following new section: . . .

MR. [JOHN N.] ERLBORN [of Illinois]: I have a point of order, Mr. Chairman.

I understood we were operating under a time limit.

THE CHAIRMAN: Will the gentleman restate his point of order?

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, the point of order is that I understood that the House voted a time limit.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman that the time limitation agreement involves debate on section 3. This is a new section.

Status of "Amendments at the Desk" Under Limitation

§ 79.32 Where all time for debate in Committee of the Whole on a bill and all amendments thereto is limited to a time certain, the Chair may in his discretion continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule, rather than allocate the remaining time among all Members desiring to speak or between two Members, subject to subsequent limitations on time ordered by the Committee of the Whole on separate amendments when offered.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of the military procurement authorization for fiscal 1983 (H.R. 6030) on July 29, 1982:⁽¹⁸⁾

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, we are now in our seventh day of the authorization bill. . . .

I therefore move that the debate on the bill and all amendments thereto conclude at 2 p.m. . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

MR. PRICE: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we could resolve this and compromise and make it 3 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ The gentleman from Illinois is asking unanimous consent that debate be concluded at 3 o'clock as opposed to 2 o'clock. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I do so to ask the Chairman whether or not, under the procedure that he is adopting here, we are going to have all amendments protected that have been at the desk and have been awaiting consideration. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair expects that we will continue under the 5-minute rule, and all amendments are protected. . . .

MR. WALKER: . . . I am trying to find out how many of the amendments already at the desk are going to be permitted to be called here under the 2 o'clock or 3 o'clock time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman understands, though, that the Committee has every right to limit debate on any amendment which is pending? . . .

18. 128 CONG. REC. 18569, 18570, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

19. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

The Chair hears no objection. . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Would it be in order to propose that the time between now and 3 o'clock be controlled one-half by the Chairman and one-half by the ranking minority Member?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would make the observation that that would be very difficult with all the amendments which may be offered.

MR. STRATTON: Then in what way are Members who want to discuss various amendments protected on the opportunity to speak in favor or against them?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman would be protected under the 5-minute rule unless there is a further limitation.

Parliamentarian's Note: Where a limitation on the entire bill is agreed to far in advance of the expiration of time (in the instant case 4 or 5 hours later) the Chair will normally proceed under the five-minute rule subject to subsequent limitations or allocations of time.

Pro Forma Amendments During Allocated Time

§ 79.33 By unanimous consent, debate under the five-minute rule on possible amendments to be offered by two designated Members (one as a substitute for the other) and on all amendments thereto was limited and equally divided between proponents and opponents prior to the offering of those amendments; and where debate has been so limited and allocated on amendments to the pending section of the bill, a Member may not obtain time by moving to strike out the last word unless there is no amendment pending (debate having been limited on amendments but not on the section).

During consideration of the Legal Services Corporation Act Amendments of 1981 (H.R. 3480) in the Committee of the Whole on June 18, 1981,⁽²⁰⁾ the following unanimous-consent requests resulted in a discussion, as indicated below:

MR. [ROBERT W.] KASTENMEIER [of Wisconsin] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that section 11 be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

MR. KASTENMEIER: . . . I ask unanimous consent all debate on amendments to section 11 do not exceed more than 20 minutes, one-half to be controlled by the proponents of the amendment and one-half by the opponents of the amendment, excepting in the case of the so-called alien amendments to be offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum), in which case the debate on those amendments do not exceed 40 minutes, those amendments and all amendments thereto on the question of aliens.

20. 127 CONG. REC. 12958, 12959, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: A point of clarification from the standpoint of the Chair. Is the gentleman suggesting to limit debate on each amendment to section 11 and on any amendment thereto to 20 minutes, the time to be divided equally between the proponents and the opponents, and 40 minutes on the amendments being offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) and the possible substitute therefor of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) and all amendments thereto?

MR. KASTENMEIER: Yes. The request of 40 minutes pertains to both amendments, that is to say that they may be offered in tandem, but that the total amount of time allocated to the subject represented by those two amendments not exceed 40 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: And all amendments thereto.

MR. KASTENMEIER: Yes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would point out to the Members that are discussing this, that the request addresses itself to each amendment and any amendment thereto, inclusive. . . .

The unanimous-consent request has been modified to 1 hour of debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Kazen) and the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) and all amendments thereto, 1 hour.

Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Kastenmeier)?

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I have a couple of questions.

Under the proposal would we be prevented from offering motions to strike the requisite number of words in order to engage in debate that might not be directly related to the amendment? . . .

MR. KASTENMEIER: I would have to ask the Chairman if that would entitle the speaker to time other than that allocated under this request.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: If an amendment to section 11 were pending, under this request, a motion to strike the last word would not be in order, since time would be allocated. . . .

The unanimous-consent request does not go to the section itself, but only goes to substantive amendments if offered; so it would be possible, if there are no other amendments pending, at the right time, to be recognized as the Chair has permitted to strike the requisite number of words.

Limitation on Resolving Clause, Not on Preamble

§ 79.34 Where the text of a joint resolution (all after the resolving clause) is open to amendment at any point, a motion to limit debate thereon and on all amendments thereto to a time certain: (1) does not include debate on amendments to the preamble, which has not been read for amendment; (2) does not include debate on an amendment in the nature of a substitute to be offered to the text and preamble at the end of the amendment process pursuant to a special rule; (3) cannot include separate allocations of time on amendments to amendments not yet offered (only by unanimous consent or separate motion when the amendments are pending); (4) would permit the Chair in his discretion to continue under the five-minute rule rather than allocate the lengthy amount of remaining time, with printed amendments guaranteed 10 minutes' debate at the expiration of time; and (5) would include time consumed by votes and quorum calls.

On Apr. 21, 1983,⁽²⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to several parliamentary inquiries regarding a motion to limit debate:

2. 129 CONG. REC. 9347, 9348, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the text of House Joint Resolution 13 and all amendments thereto close at 3:30 p.m.

MR. [ELLIOTT H.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Chairman, as I understand the motion of the gentleman from Wisconsin, all debate on House Joint Resolution 13 and all amendments thereto will end at 3:30 today?

MR. ZABLOCKI: Mr. Chairman, my motion only covers the resolving clause. It does not include the preamble, the whereas clauses, or the substitute if the gentleman intends to offer it.

MR. LEVITAS: . . . What would be the status of amendments printed in the Record with respect to the resolving clause, and, also, how would the time be allocated with respect to amendments pending between now and 3:30 p.m.?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The Chair will advise the gentleman from Georgia that, with respect to the amendments printed in the Record which have not been offered before 3:30, the proponents of the amendment would be entitled to offer those amendments after 3:30, and 5 minutes would be allotted for the proponent of the amendment and 5 minutes would be allocated to an opponent of the amendment.

With respect to the time between now and 3:30, if the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) is agreed to, the Chair would have discretion as to how to allot the time.

3. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

MR. [TRENT] LOTT [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

I would like to inquire if it would be possible for the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs to amend his motion, to put some amendment in there with regard to these perfecting amendments or the amendments to amendments that are being offered that wind up tying up a good portion of the time and in fact delaying the debate on the amendments that are the crucial amendments.

Could the gentleman offer a change in that or some suggestion?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman from Mississippi that that would not be appropriate in the form of a motion but only by a unanimous-consent request. . . .

MR. [JAMES A.] COURTER [of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, my parliamentary inquiry is with regard to exactly what the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) covers.

The gentleman from Wisconsin indicated in language which I did not hear that it in fact excluded some clauses or some sections of the resolutions.

Would the Chair state what this motion includes and what it does not include, and I think we would be satisfied.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from New Jersey that the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) has moved that debate on the resolving clause and all amendments thereto cease at 3:30. That would cover all amendments to the resolving clause except those that have been printed in the Record and which have not been offered prior to 3:30.

MR. COURTER: . . . Those amendments that we have proffered so far, the pending amendments, are they on the resolving clause?

THE CHAIRMAN: The amendments which are now being considered are amendments to the resolving clause.

MR. COURTER: So the result of the gentleman's motion is, basically, to cut off debate at 3:30 on any amendments that are not printed in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN: With respect to the amendments to the resolving clause. That does not cover the amendments to the preamble or the substitute which the gentleman from Michigan may offer, which is protected by the rule. . . .

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, would the Chair define what amendments are to the resolving clause?

THE CHAIRMAN: Any amendments which relate to the resolving portion of the joint resolution.

MR. STRATTON: Suppose there is the addition of a section. Is that an amendment to the resolving clause?

THE CHAIRMAN: That would be an amendment to the resolving clause.

MR. STRATTON: Mr. Chairman, how does the Chair propose to allocate the time on individual amendments?

We have to know how many amendments are pending in order for this thing to become other than just a rat race where someone hardly has time to read the amendment, as I understand it.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would intend, at least for a time, to proceed under the 5-minute rule, in expectation that Members who have amendments to offer would do so in accordance with the 5-minute rule.

MR. [WILLIAM] CARNEY [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

I would like to know if the Chair would consider the time necessary for rollcall votes would be taken out, or would that be part of the limitation to 3:30?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the motion as offered, all time would cease at 3:30. So the time for rollcall votes would be covered by the 3:30 limitation.

Pro Forma Amendments After Closing of All Debate on Bill

§ 79.35 When debate on a bill is limited by unanimous consent prior to the reading thereof, and, after the time for debate expires, the remainder of the bill is read, pro forma amendments are not debatable.

On Sept. 12, 1968,⁽⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed by unanimous consent to limit debate on a bill and amendments thereto before the bill had been completely read.

When the limitation expired, Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, directed the Clerk to read the remainder of the bill. Mr. John E. Moss, Jr., of California, sought recognition to move to strike the last word, and the Chairman ruled that he could not be recognized for that purpose, all debate having been concluded.

§ 79.36 Where a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule on an amendment and all amendments thereto has expired, no further debate is in order and a Member may not gain time for debate by offering a pro forma amendment "to strike the last word."

On Aug. 2, 1978,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole had under consideration the foreign aid authorization bill (H.R. 12514) when the following exchange occurred:

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto end at 4 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki).

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from California (Mr. Lagomarsino) rise?

MR. [ROBERT J.] LAGOMARSINO [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

4. 114 CONG. REC. 26574, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

5. 124 CONG. REC. 23947, 23954, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

6. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will inform the gentleman that no further debate is in order at this time.

Applicability of Limitation on Amendment and Amendments Thereto

§ 79.37 A motion to close all debate on a pending amendment and amendments thereto includes all amendments to the pending amendment not yet offered or at the desk.

On Aug. 13, 1959,⁽⁷⁾ Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the application of a motion to close debate on an amendment and amendments thereto:

MR. [GRAHAM A.] BARDEN [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment and all amendments thereto close at 4 o'clock. . . .

MR. [EDWIN E.] WILLIS [of Louisiana]: My parliamentary inquiry is this: Would the suggested time of closure of debate on all pending amendments—I seek an interpretation of “all pending amendments.” Does that include amendments on the desk?

MR. BARDEN: Pending amendment and all amendments thereto.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair may say that the pending amendment is the Landrum-Griffin bill. Amendments thereto are the amendments that are on the desk which have not yet been offered.

7. 105 CONG. REC. 15850, 86th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. TABER: And that would include any other amendments which may hereafter be offered?

THE CHAIRMAN: That would include all amendments.

§ 79.38 Where the Committee of the Whole limits debate on a substitute and all amendments thereto, such limitation does not apply to amendments which may be offered to the original amendment.

On Sept. 29, 1965,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. B. F. Sisk, of California, propounded a unanimous-consent request to limit five-minute debate to a certain time on a substitute amendment and amendments thereto, offered to an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the pending bill. Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that if perfecting amendments to the amendment in the nature of a substitute were offered, such amendments would not be subject to the limitation:

THE CHAIRMAN: The House is in Committee of the Whole House on the

8. 111 CONG. REC. 25426, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H.R. 4644.

When the Committee rose there was pending a substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from California [Mr. Sisk] for the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Multer].

MR. SISK: Mr. Chairman, I rise to make a unanimous-consent request.

Mr. Chairman, in order to expedite the business of the House—and after some 3 days of debate it seems to me the time has come to move along—I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Sisk amendment and all amendments thereto close in 20 minutes. It is my understanding that there is one amendment at the desk to be offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Craley] and as part of my unanimous-consent request, I ask unanimous consent that 3 minutes of that time be reserved to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Craley]. . . .

MR. [ABRAHAM J.] MULTER: Mr. Chairman, there is an amendment to be offered to the Multer amendment. Would that come out of the time reserved for the closing of debate on the Sisk amendment, if that is offered—in other words, if someone offers an amendment to the Multer amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from New York that as the Chair understood the request of the gentleman from California, it was that all debate on the Sisk substitute and all amendments thereto close in 20 minutes and that, therefore, would not preclude the offering of any amendments to the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York.

§ 79.39 A limitation of debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto does not, following the disposition of the amendment, proscribe offering and debating further amendments to the pending section of a bill.

On May 4, 1966,⁽⁹⁾ Mr. John E. Fogarty, of Rhode Island, pro-pounded a unanimous-consent request that debate under the five-minute rule be limited on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto. In response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Frank T. Bow, of Ohio, who intended to offer an amendment to the pending section should the pending amendment thereto fail, Chairman Frank Thompson, Jr., of New Jersey, stated that the limitation applied only to the pending amendment and amendments thereto and did not preclude offering and debating further amendments to the pending section.

§ 79.40 A substitute offered to a pending committee amendment is considered an amendment for the purpose of a debate limitation imposed on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto.

⁹ 112 CONG. REC. 9829, 9830, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Aug. 5, 1970,⁽¹⁰⁾ Chairman Pro Tempore Neal Smith, of Iowa, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the effect of a limitation on debate:

MR. [WILLIAM R.] POAGE [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto close at 4 o'clock.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas.

The motion was agreed to.

MR. [JOE D.] WAGGONNER [Jr., of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. WAGGONNER: Do I correctly understand that we are closing debate at 4 o'clock on the Lowenstein amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: On all amendments pending.

MR. WAGGONNER: Mr. Chairman, was not the Findley motion offered as a substitute, rather than an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: It was a substitute amendment.

MR. WAGGONNER: Then debate will not close at 4 o'clock, will it?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: There is a committee amendment pending. The limitation of debate applies to the committee amendment and all amendments thereto, including the substitute and amendment thereto.

§ 79.41 Where there was pending an amendment proposing to strike out an entire section of text and insert new language, and a substitute for that amendment, the Chair indicated in response to a series of parliamentary inquiries that: (1) termination of debate on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto at a time certain would preclude further debate on amendments offered to the amendment or substitute but not printed in that form in the Record pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6; (2) rejection of the amendment as amended would permit further amendments to the pending section and debate thereon; (3) adoption of an amendment changing the entire section would preclude further amendment to that section—and amendments printed in the Record could not be offered to that section.

10. 116 CONG. REC. 27466, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

During consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974⁽¹¹⁾ in the Committee of the Whole on July 22, 1974,⁽¹²⁾ the Chair responded to several parliamentary inquiries, as indicated below:

11. H.R. 11500.

12. 120 CONG. REC. 24459, 24460, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending Hosmer amendment and the Mink substitute for that amendment and all perfecting amendments to either close at 40 minutes past 4 o'clock.

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. HOSMER: Mr. Chairman, does that mean all these gentlemen who have any amendments that pertain to section 201 either by way of amendment to the Mink substitute or by way of amendment to my substitute or by way of amendment to the language in the bill itself are preemptorily cut off in 40 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: As far as further amendments to section 201 of the committee bill is concerned, that depends on the committee's disposition of the Hosmer amendment. . . .

MR. [KEN] HECHLER of West Virginia: Supposing there are several votes in the process that we discovered the other day, this would effectively cut off all debate, such as we had three rollcalls or quorum calls.

THE CHAIRMAN: The time will be set by the clock. The Chair thinks the motion is clear. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM M.] KETCHUM [of California]: What effect would this motion have on those individuals who under the rules or who have published their amendments in the Record, is that going to close them off? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: That depends on the form of the amendment printed in the Record and on the disposition of the substitute amendment of the gentleman from Hawaii (Mrs. Mink) and the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Hosmer). . . .

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object for the purpose of making a parliamentary inquiry, as I understand there are a number of us who do have amendments to the bill itself or which are appropriate to the substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from Hawaii or the gentleman from California.

Now, what is the ruling of the Chair with regard to the limitation of time on section 201? Are those amendments published in the Record foreclosed from the 5-minute rule by reason of the debate here, or foreclosed by expiration of the time under the clock, if the time does expire from even offering an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: If section 201 of the bill is later open to amendment due to adverse disposition of the Mink substitute and the Hosmer amendment, then those rights would obtain; but those rights would be foreclosed if no further amendments to section 201 were in order. . . .

MR. DINGELL: I am of the impression that what the Chair is saying is that if the Mink amendment is adopted or if the Hosmer amendment is adopted that Members will not be protected by the provisions of the rule affording them 5 minutes to discuss or offer amendments, even if they are published in the Record in compliance with the rule?

13. Neal Smith (Iowa).

THE CHAIRMAN: If further amendments to section 201 are not in order, then amendments cannot be submitted under which 5 minutes would otherwise be allowed. . . .

MR. DINGELL: The provisions of the rule relating to 5 minutes of time for a Member where he has published his amendment in the Record in appropriate fashion will not be protected if either the Mink amendment or the amendment to the amendment of Mr. Hosmer is adopted; am I correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: If the substitute is adopted to the Hosmer amendment and then the Hosmer amendment as amended by the substitute is adopted, further amendments to section 201 could not be offered. Therefore, there would be no further amendments appropriate. . . .

MR. DINGELL: Then I understand the ruling to be further that the rule relating to a Member getting 5 minutes on an amendment does not apply to the substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Hawaii (Mrs. Mink) or the gentleman from California (Mr. Hosmer), even previous to the time that those amendments are adopted, am I correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That would be true if they were not printed in the Record as amendments to the substitute. . . .

MR. HOSMER: Does that mean if either amendment, the Hosmer or the Mink substitute, is adopted, that is it as far as section 201 is concerned, even if somebody had placed his amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: If the Hosmer amendment is not adopted as amended by the Mink substitute, then further amendments to section 201 will be in order. . . .

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, is it not true that if, under the gentleman's motion, an amendment—I am now giving a hypothetical situation—the Mink substitute for that portion of the Hosmer amendment were to prevail, and the Hosmer amendment would be defeated, is it not true that the rest of that section which the Mink substitute does not pertain to would be proper to amend at any point?

THE CHAIRMAN: If the entire section has been amended, further amendments to that section would not be in order.

MR. HAYS: Not if the Hosmer substitute were defeated, it would not be true, would it? Just to section 201?

THE CHAIRMAN: If the Mink substitute is adopted, the vote would then recur on the Hosmer amendment since it is a substitute for the entire amendment. If the Hosmer amendment were then adopted, section 201 would not be open to amendment.

MR. HAYS: Yes, section 201 only. Not all of title II?

THE CHAIRMAN: Not the rest of title II; just section 201.

§ 79.42 A limitation of debate under the five-minute rule on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto includes debate on any substitute for the amendment that might subsequently be offered.

During consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze) in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 21, 1983,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ When the Committee rose on Wednesday, April 20, 1983, pending was an amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Carney) and an amendment to the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Solarz). Debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Carney) and all amendments thereto had been limited to 10 minutes.

The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Broomfield) for 5 minutes each. . . .

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I have a substitute for the pending amendment, the pending amendment and the amendment thereto.

MR. [WILLIAM] CARNEY [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CARNEY: Mr. Chairman, if the substitute is offered, I would like to know what that does to the standing agreement on the 5-minute debate between the gentleman from New York (Mr. Solarz) and myself.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the previously agreed to time will still apply with respect to the two pending amendments, including the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York.

14. 129 CONG. REC. 9341, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

15. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

MR. CARNEY: And will the substitute then be open to normal 5-minute rule procedures? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The substitute, if offered, will be subject to the same 10-minute limitation since the limitation was on the Carney amendment and all amendments thereto.

Chair's Distribution of Time

§ 79.43 Where the Committee of the Whole has agreed to close debate on a title of a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain, the Chair endeavors to recognize as many Members as possible prior thereto, and after the time fixed has arrived will recognize Members only to offer amendments which will be voted on without debate.

On Feb. 10, 1964,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion by Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, that debate on the pending title of a bill and amendments thereto close at 1 o'clock p.m. Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition under and after the expiration of the limitation:

MR. [RICHARD H.] POFF [of Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from Mississippi yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

16. 110 CONG. REC. 2706, 2719, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [WILLIAM M.] COLMER [of Mississippi]: I yield, very briefly.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. POFF: Mr. Chairman, in light of the limitation on time may I inquire what amendments will be voted upon when the time expires? I have two amendments at the desk which I may or may not offer, depending upon developments. I would like to be advised whether I will be recognized to offer the amendments and if so when that time will occur.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Virginia that up to 1 o'clock the Chair will undertake to recognize such Members as he can. After 1 o'clock the Chair will recognize those Members desiring to offer amendments and the question on each amendment will be put immediately without debate.

MR. POFF: I thank the Chair.⁽¹⁷⁾

§ 79.44 Where the Committee of the Whole agrees to terminate debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto to a time certain, the Chair generally divides the time equally among Members who indicate a desire to speak and may decline to apportion the time solely among Members who have amendments.

17. A Member who has previously debated an amendment may speak again under a limitation thereon. See 113 CONG. REC. 17762, 90th Cong. 1st Sess., June 28, 1967; and 113 CONG. REC. 15903, 90th Cong. 1st Sess., June 15, 1967.

On Jan. 23, 1962,⁽¹⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a limitation of debate under the five-minute rule (on an amendment and amendments thereto). Mr. John M. Ashbrook, of Ohio, inquired whether the Chair would divide the remaining time among those Members having amendments to offer, and Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, responded that the time would be equally divided among all Members desiring to speak.⁽¹⁹⁾

§ 79.45 While a limitation of debate in the Committee of the Whole on a pending amendment and on all amendments thereto normally abrogates the five-minute rule, the Chair may, in his discretion, announce his intention to recognize each Member offering an amendment for five minutes where it is apparent that all Members who might offer amendments are not in the Chamber at the time the limitation is imposed.

18. 108 CONG. REC. 769, 773, 774, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.
19. But see § 79.49, infra (Chair may in his discretion recognize only Members with amendments and others opposed thereto).

On Dec. 14, 1973,⁽²⁰⁾ Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill, a motion to close all debate on that amendment and all amendments thereto at a time certain would be in order.

The Chairman answered a further parliamentary inquiry on recognition by the Chair should five-minute debate be limited:

MR. [JAMES T.] BROYHILL of North Carolina: Mr. Chairman, my parliamentary inquiry is this: If the time is limited, would only those Members who are presently standing and would be listed—would they be the only Members who could be recognized either to propose an amendment or to oppose an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state any motion that the Chair can conceive of would involve enough time so that the Chair would feel that he could reserve that right to recognize Members under the 5-minute rule.

The Chair will explain that if needed.

The gentleman is talking about limiting debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute, and all amendments thereto?

MR. BROYHILL of North Carolina: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chairman would presume that there will be a substantial block of amendments, and the Chair would feel that the Chair should not fail to protect the Members who are not in the Chamber at the moment who might have amendments that they sought to offer.⁽¹⁾

§ 79.46 Where the Committee of the Whole fixed debate at an hour and a half, the Chair did not note the names of the Members seeking recognition and divide the time at less than five minutes each, as is the practice when a shorter period is fixed.

On Feb. 22, 1950,⁽²⁾ Mr. John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, moved that debate close on pending amendments at 2:30 a.m. and the Committee of the Whole agreed thereto. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, then answered a parliamentary inquiry on division of the time:

MR. [JACOB K.] JAVITS [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, is the Chair disposed to divide the time in view of the fact that it has been limited, and to announce the Members who will be recognized?

THE CHAIRMAN: In view of the fact that one hour and a half remains for debate, and since it was impossible for the Chair to determine the number of Members who were on their feet, I believe it is advisable to follow the strict rule [five minutes for each Member recognized].

§ 79.47 After time for debate under the five-minute rule has been fixed by motion, and the Chair announces the list of Members to be recognized, the Chair does not recognize in his own right a Member not on the list.

On Jan. 23, 1962,⁽³⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to limit debate under the five-minute rule to a certain hour. Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, noted the names of the Members who wished to be recognized under the limitation and announced the list of those Members. He then answered a parliamentary inquiry on recognition under the limitation:

MR. [BEN F.] JENSEN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. JENSEN: How much time will be allowed in support of this amendment?

3. 108 CONG. REC. 769, 774, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The time has been allocated under the motion to limit debate.

MR. JENSEN: Will I have any time in support of the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: Not unless the gentleman's name is on the list.⁽⁴⁾

§ 79.48 Where the Committee of the Whole fixes the time for debate on a substitute amendment, the Chair in counting those seeking recognition may in his discretion and without objection allot a portion of the time to the committee reporting the bill.

On Feb. 8, 1950,⁽⁵⁾ the Committee of the Whole fixed time for debate on amendments to a committee substitute. Chairman Chet Holifield, of California, then stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, that the Chair could recognize the same committee member in opposition to each amendment offered where no other member of the committee sought such recognition:

MR. [FRANCIS H.] CASE of South Dakota: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: Under what precedent or ruling is the Chair recognizing a certain member of the committee for 1 minute in opposition to each amendment being offered? That was not included in the motion. Had it been included in the motion, it would have been subject to a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair is trying to be fair in the conduct of the committee, and the only gentleman that has arisen on the opposite side has been the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Murray]. There was no point of order raised at the time that I announced that I would recognize the committee for 1 minute in rebuttal to each amendment.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: But the gentleman from South Dakota got up at the time the Chair proposed to recognize the gentleman from Tennessee a second time. Obviously, when the committee avails itself of the opportunity to make a motion to limit debate it, in a sense, is closing debate, and unless it does seek to limit time and is successful in so doing, in principle it forfeits that courtesy. The Members who have proposed amendments here have been waiting all afternoon to be heard, and if the committee adopted the procedure of seeking to close debate on 20 minutes' notice, with 10 amendments pending, it would seem as a matter of courtesy that the committee should restrain itself to one member of the committee who might have been on his feet, but to recognize one gentleman a succession of times seems entirely out of keeping with the spirit of closing debate.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chairman, in the list of names, also read the name of the committee. If the Chair was so inclined, the Chair could recognize two Members for 5 minutes each on amendments, on each side, and that would preclude the others from having any voice in the amendments that are pending, or in the debate.

MR. CASE of South Dakota: That, of course, is true, the Chair could do that. But, ordinarily, under the precedents always followed in the House, when time is closed on amendments, the time is divided among those who are seeking to offer amendments, and unless the motion specifically reserves time to the committee, it has been the precedent to divide the time among those who are seeking to offer amendments.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair feels that the committee is entitled to a rebuttal on any amendment that is offered, and has so announced, and there was no point of order made at the time. The Chair sustains its present position.

§ 79.49 Where debate on a bill and all amendments thereto is limited to a time certain, the five-minute rule is abrogated, and the Chair may choose either to allocate the time among those Members standing and desiring to speak, or choose to recognize only Members wishing to offer amendments and to oppose amendments.

On May 6, 1970,⁽⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion, offered by Mr. L. Mendel Rivers, of South Carolina, that all debate on the pending bill and amendments thereto close at a certain hour. Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, stated his intention to recognize under the time limitation Members offering and opposing amendments, rather than to divide time among all Members indicating their desire to speak:

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Under the limitation of debate imposed by the House, a moment ago, is there any restriction on those Members who will be permitted to speak on amendments, either for or against, between now and 7 o'clock?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will endeavor to divide the time equally among the proponents and the opponents of those who have amendments.

§ 79.50 Where debate on an amendment has been limited to a time certain, and the time equally divided by the Chair among those Members desiring to speak, the Chair declined to entertain a unanimous-consent request to extend the time of one Member.

6. 116 CONG. REC. 14465, 14466, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

On Mar. 31, 1971,⁽⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion by Mr. Charles W. Whalen, Jr., of Ohio, that debate on an amendment and amendments thereto close at 6 p.m. Mr. Whalen was recognized in support of his amendment and when his time had expired asked unanimous consent to proceed for two additional minutes. Chairman Edward P. Boland, of Massachusetts, declined to entertain the request and advised Mr. Whalen that the time had been fixed.

Parliamentarian's Note: Time under a limitation may be extended by a unanimous-consent request to vacate the limitation, if the Chair entertains that request.

§ 79.51 Where debate has been limited on a pending title and all amendments thereto and the Chair has divided the remaining time among Members desiring to offer amendments or to speak, a Member not allocated time may not speak in opposition to an amendment; thus, such a time limitation imposed in Committee of the Whole abrogates the right of a Member under Rule XXIII clause 5 to speak for five minutes in opposition to an offered amendment.

On July 25, 1974,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974 (H.R. 11500), the Chair made a statement and responded to a parliamentary inquiry regarding debate on amendments offered to the pending title of the bill. The proceedings were as follows:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ When the Committee rose on yesterday, titles II through VIII inclusive were subject to amendment at any point, and there was pending an amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Hosmer) to title II of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. Before recognizing the gentleman from California, the Chair will state for the information of the Committee of the Whole that there are 42 minutes remaining out of 50 minutes debate allocated to title II under the unanimous consent agreement of Tuesday, July 23.

Before the Chair recognizes the gentleman from California, the Chair will reiterate his announcement of yesterday that if listed Members who have printed their amendments to title II in the Record would agree to offer those amendments during the 42-minute period, and to be recognized for 1 minute and 20 seconds, the Chair will recognize both committee and noncommittee members for that purpose.

8. 120 CONG. REC. 25214, 25217, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

9. Neal Smith (Iowa).

The Chair will request that Members who have amendments printed in the Record and who insist upon 5 minutes for debate defer offering those amendments until the conclusion of the 42 remaining minutes.

MR. [JOHN H.] ROUSSELOT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. ROUSSELOT: In this time frame, when somebody might object or support the amendment, how does he get time to do it? He does not?

THE CHAIRMAN: Not unless he is on the list.

MR. ROUSSELOT: In other words, if anyone wants to oppose the amendment, he has no time; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: Not unless the gentleman is on the list announced by the Chair.

§ 79.52 Where debate under the five-minute rule has been limited on a pending portion of a bill and the Committee of the Whole is about to rise on motion, the Chair may, in his discretion, defer his allocation of that time until the Committee resumes consideration of the bill on a subsequent day.

On Sept. 11, 1978,⁽¹⁰⁾ during consideration of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 (H.R. 11280) in the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

10. 124 CONG. REC. 28800, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: . . . Mr. Chairman, we have had a long and difficult day . . . the hour is late, and I am not sure we can be productive much longer. We do have a number of important amendments left.

Mr. Chairman, I am going to make a unanimous-consent request in just a moment, and if it is agreed to, at that point I would move that the Committee rise. . . .

Mr. Chairman, my unanimous-consent request is that the remaining time for debate on title VII, and all amendments thereto—that is the title we are now considering—be limited to a total of 2 hours. . . .

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I do so [to] make inquiry on parliamentary procedure. It is normal parliamentary procedure upon such a request for Members to stand and request time. Is it the Chairman's intent that the time to be divided be divided tonight?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ The Chair would advise the gentleman that the Chair would not intend to divide the time tonight, but that subject will be taken up at the time we reconvene in connection with this bill.

Significance of Members Standing To Be Noted

§ 79.53 In allocating time under a limitation on debate on an amendment under the five-minute rule, the Chair divides the time among all Members standing when the limitation is agreed to, not just those standing when the request or motion is first stated.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 22, 1983,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3329 (Department of Transportation appropriations for fiscal 1984):

MR. [WILLIAM] LEHMAN of Florida: Would the Chair count how many want to speak?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The Chair has only seen one person rise who has not yet spoken, unless the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Coughlin) is also seeking recognition.

MR. LEHMAN of Florida: Mr. Chairman, there is one at this time on this side.

MR. [LAWRENCE] COUGHLIN [of Pennsylvania]: How about 3:30?

MR. LEHMAN of Florida: 3:25.

MR. COUGHLIN: 3:25 it is.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Florida that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close at 3:25?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: It is so ordered, and the Chair saw standing at the time the limitation was agreed to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Lehman) . . . the gentlemen from California, Mr. Fazio, Mr. Coelho, and Mr. Dixon.

13. Philip R. Sharp (Ind.).

MR. COUGHLIN: Mr. Chairman, under my reservation, I do not think that is a proper count.

MR. [JULIAN C.] DIXON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, will the minority leader on this issue yield?

I had no intention of speaking. As we looked around the room—

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair heard no objection to the request.

MR. COUGHLIN: I reserved the right to object, Mr. Chairman.

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, regular order.

The unanimous-consent request was made, opportunity was given for objection, and no objection was heard. The Chair waited to see if there was objection, and agreement was reached.

MR. COUGHLIN: I object, Mr. Chairman.

MR. WRIGHT: Debate was limited on the amendment. The gentleman's objection comes too late.

THE CHAIRMAN: The majority leader is correct. The regular order is to proceed, and those standing when the request was agreed to, their names have been taken down and the time will be allocated among them.

MR. [DANIEL E.] LUNGREN [of California]: I have a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. . . .

At the time the reservation was expressed, was there not an understanding, at least implicit, that those who rose were the ones who intended to speak, and that being the case, should it not be limited to the people who rose at that time, rather than the additional three or four people who rose after the time that the limit was placed?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will have to indicate that the Chair has no control over that. The Chair was asked how many wished to speak and how many were standing prior to the request. The gentleman from California was the only person standing. However, when the request was put, others began to rise and take an interest in the issue, including the author of the amendment.

Reserving Time Under Limitation

§ 79.54 An agreement to limit debate in the Committee of the Whole abrogates the five-minute rule and the Member holding the floor at the time the agreement is entered into may not reserve any part of the five minutes for debate under the limitation (unless such reservation was stated as part of the agreement).

On Sept. 19, 1967,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Harley O. Staggers, of West Virginia, offered a pro forma amendment under the five-minute rule and was recognized for five minutes. He then propounded a unanimous-consent agreement to limit debate on the pending amendment and amendments thereto to 20 minutes. The request was agreed to, and Mr. Staggers stated he would reserve the balance of his time.

Under the limitation, Mr. Staggers was recognized for one and one-half minutes by Chairman Jack B. Brooks, of Texas, but Mr. Staggers contended he was entitled to more time, having reserved the time he had not used when he had been recognized for five minutes. The Chairman stated that he was only entitled to the one and one-half minutes:

. . . The gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. Staggers] is recognized for 1½ minutes.

MR. STAGGERS: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from West Virginia had been recognized prior to the time the motion for the limitation of debate had been made, the gentleman had been recognized for 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Chair understood that the limitation as to time was made prior to the expiration of the gentleman's 5 minutes, for which the gentleman was recognized, which was when the gentleman made the motion that all debate on this amendment cease after 20 minutes' time.

MR. STAGGERS: That is correct, Mr. Chairman, but I had been recognized for 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman was among those standing, and was included among those who were standing; in addition to the gentleman 13 other Members were standing, so that there were 14 Members who were entitled to a minute and a half.

MR. STAGGERS: Mr. Chairman, I will do the best I can in a minute and a half.

§ 79.55 The Chair indicated that he would permit a Member to use a portion of his time under a limitation on one amendment and reserve the remainder of his time for further debate on another amendment yet to be offered.

On July 3, 1968,⁽¹⁵⁾ Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, indicated that Members recognized under a limitation of debate could use part of their allotted time on one amendment and part on another by reserving time:

MR. [CHET] HOLIFIELD [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I understand that there are at least two amendments which are major amendments, one being as to section 17, and the other on section 22.

Section 17 is now being considered in the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. McCarthy].

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that that amendment is now pending.

MR. HOLIFIELD: Those gentlemen who wish to speak on that amendment must speak at this time, and they will be precluded from speaking on the section 22 amendment; is that correct?

15. 114 CONG. REC. 19914, 90th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that if they so speak on the McCarthy amendment, that is correct.

MR. HOLIFIELD: I thank the Chairman.

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. GROSS: That would be true if they exhaust their time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that that is correct.

MR. GROSS: And only in the event that they exhaust their time will they not be permitted to speak on another matter?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that that is correct.⁽¹⁶⁾

§ 79.56 After time for debate under the five-minute rule has been fixed by motion, the remaining time is divided equally among those Members indicating a desire to speak; but when the parliamentary situation warrants it, the Chair may allow a Member, when recognized, to use a portion of his allotted time and reserve the balance.

On Feb. 28, 1962,⁽¹⁷⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion to limit debate on an amendment and amendments thereto to an hour certain. Chairman George H. Mahon, of Texas, indicated he would recognize the Members who indicated they wished to speak under the limitation (he divided the remaining time at two minutes per Member). The Chairman then overruled a point of order against a Member's reserving a portion of his time:

MR. [ADAM C.] POWELL [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. Cramer].

MR. [H. R.] GROSS [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

The gentleman exhausted his time on the previous amendment, did he not? I demand the regular order.

THE CHAIRMAN: Each Member was allocated 2 minutes.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Chairman, did not the gentleman from New York use his time in response to a previous amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say to the gentleman from Iowa that the gentleman from New York did not use his full 2 minutes.

17. 108 CONG. REC. 3069, 3070, 87th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. GROSS: How much time does the gentleman have remaining?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York has 1½ minutes remaining.

§ 79.57 Where time for debate on amendments has been limited and equally divided among those desiring to speak, the Chair may in his discretion insist that each Member utilize or yield back his full time when recognized and may permit a portion to be reserved only by unanimous consent.

During consideration of H.R. 10760 (Black Lung Benefits Reform Act of 1976) in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 2, 1976,⁽¹⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN H.] DENT [of Pennsylvania]: . . . I . . . ask unanimous consent to end all debate on amendments in 1 hour's time.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania that all debate cease in 1 hour on the committee amendment and all amendments thereto?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. DENT: As a point of information, Mr. Chairman, would the Chair establish the time basis.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman that it is 1 hour of time on the committee amendment and all amendments thereto. . . .

The Chair will state, for the gentleman's information, that there are 12 speakers who were standing at the time the request was made, and there is only 1 hour allotted, each speaker will have 5 minutes, and that is all. . . .

MR. [GARY] MYERS of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, in utilization of the 5-minute allotment will the speakers be allowed to divide it up into different periods and reserve time back and forth?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that by unanimous consent, Members may do that, yes. . . .

MR. MYERS of Pennsylvania: The Chairman is then saying, it takes unanimous consent to reserve time for later usage?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each. If the gentleman from Pennsylvania wishes to reserve a portion of his five minutes then it requires unanimous consent to do so.

§ 79.58 Where debate has been limited under the five-minute rule to a time certain and the Chair has allocated the remaining time among those Members desiring to speak, the Chair may require that Members wishing to reserve a portion of their allocated time may do so only by unanimous consent.

consideration H.R. 12835 (the Vocational Education Act amendments) when a motion to limit debate was offered as follows:

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on title III and all amendments thereto close at 4:50 p.m.

The motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ Members standing at the time the motion was made will each be recognized for approximately a minute and a quarter.

MR. [ALBERT H.] QUIE [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. QUIE: Mr. Chairman, would it be in order for a Member to divide his minute and a quarter into parts if he wishes to speak on more than one amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman might make that request by unanimous consent.

§ 79.59 The allocation of time pursuant to a limitation under the five-minute rule is within the discretion of the Chair, who may refuse to permit Members to whom time has been allotted to split their time except by unanimous consent.

MR. [GEORGE E.] DANIELSON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto be terminated at the hour of 7:30 o'clock p.m. tonight.

[The motion was agreed to.]

MR. [THOMAS N.] KINDNESS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Kindness: On page 31, line 18, insert . . . before the comma the following language: "or to the membership of an organization". . . .

MR. DANIELSON: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ At this time the Chair will advise Members that even if they have 5 minutes, they may address themselves only to one amendment. They will not be able to split their time except by unanimous consent.

MR. DANIELSON: Between amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 6:30.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Price).

The motion was agreed to. . . .

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Gary A. Myers: Page 35, line 10, strike out "and". . . .

MR. GARY A. MYERS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I be allotted one-half my time at this time and reserve the balance for another amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

MR. [RICHARD H.] ICHORD [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment pending at the desk, which I will offer in the event that the amendment of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Findley) to the substitute amendment of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) fails.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that I may reserve my time for the discussion of that amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

MR. [STEPHEN J.] SOLARZ [of New York]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, if the Findley amendment is defeated and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Ichord) offers his amendment, at that point, after he makes his remarks, will there be time for other Members to speak on the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will inform the gentleman that any other Member or Members will be permitted to speak only if a unanimous-consent request is made and granted.

MR. SOLARZ: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I do not intend to object, but I would join in the gen-

There was no objection.

Reserving Time To Debate Amendments Not Yet Pending

§ 79.62 Notwithstanding a limitation of debate under the five-minute rule, an amendment printed in the Record in the proper form will be guaranteed 10 minutes of debate thereon.

On Sept. 11, 1978,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 (H.R. 11280) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to an inquiry regarding the effect of a limitation of debate on amendments printed in the Record:

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: . . . Mr. Chairman, we have had a long and difficult day . . . the hour is late, and I am not sure we can be productive much longer. We do have a number of important amendments left.

Mr. Chairman, I am going to make a unanimous-consent request in just a moment, and if it is agreed to, at that point I would move that the Committee rise. . . .

Mr. Chairman, my unanimous-consent request is that the remaining time for debate on title VII, and all amendments thereto—that is the title we are now considering—be limited to a total of 2 hours. . . .

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, as I understand it, there will be two substitutes posed, and a number of Members have amendments in the Record. They are, of course, amendments to the bill and not to the substitutes. I wonder if the Chair could tell me how we could protect the amendments which are now filed so that they would be in order and have time under the proposal that the gentleman suggests, to either of the substitutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ The Chair advises the gentleman that the amendments which have been printed in the Record would be protected under our rules.

MR. FRENZEL: Will we be able to make the amendments to the substitute, Mr. Chairman?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes. If they can be redrafted to pertain to the substitute, and placed in the Record, the answer is in the affirmative.

MR. FRENZEL: I thank the Chair.

Additional Debate Time Beyond Original Cutoff

§ 79.63 The Committee of the Whole may by unanimous consent permit additional debate on an amendment prior to its being offered, notwithstanding a previous limitation on debate under the five-minute rule on all amendments to the bill.

9. George E. Danielson (Calif.).

On Oct. 4, 1983,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred in Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 2379 (National Park System Protection and Resources Management Act of 1983):

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I wonder if we could have agreement on putting a time limitation on discussions on this amendment and all other amendments to this bill of 4:15?

I make that as a unanimous-consent request.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

MR. [MANUEL] LUJAN [Jr., of New Mexico]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LUJAN: Mr. Chairman, we undoubtedly will have a vote on this bill which will take us beyond 4:15, and I was wondering if it would be in order, by a unanimous-consent request, that we could change that 4:15 time so that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Murphy) would have time to offer his amendment after the vote on this amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: By unanimous consent, he can obtain time to debate his amendment. . . .

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that following the vote on the pending Hansen amendment the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Brown) have 3 minutes and some member in opposition have 3 minutes for debate; and that the same request be extended to the amendment of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Murphy).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection.

Chair's Discretion in Allocating Time

§ 79.64 A limitation of debate on a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain abrogates in effect the five-minute rule, and decisions regarding the division of time and the order of recognition of those Members desiring to speak are largely within the discretion of the Chair, who may decline to recognize Members more than one time under the limitation and may refuse to permit Members to divide their allotted time so as to speak to several of the amendments which are to be offered.

10. 129 CONG. REC. 27099, 27102, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

11. Carl D. Perkins (Ky.).

On May 6, 1970,⁽¹²⁾ after the Committee of the Whole had agreed to close debate on a pending bill and amendments thereto at a certain hour, Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, answered a parliamentary inquiry on whether he would, under his discretion, allow Members to speak more than once or to allot their time under the limitation:

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. STRATTON: Under the limitation of debate, is it permissible for a Member to speak twice within his allotted time either for or against two specific amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will recognize the gentleman for one time in support of or in opposition to an amendment.

MR. STRATTON: But not more than once?

THE CHAIRMAN: No; not more than once.

§ 79.65 While the Chair normally allocates time for debate among those standing at the time a motion to limit debate is adopted, the Chair may refrain from doing so where several hours of debate remain under the limitation and where it would be premature to deviate from the five-minute rule by dividing all remaining time just among Members who are then present.

On Oct. 7, 1974,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of H. Res. 988 (to reform the structure, jurisdiction, and procedures of House committees), the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry as follows:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen), and all amendments thereto, conclude in 5 hours.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ The question is on the motion.

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote. . . .

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have a . . . parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding that when time is limited under the rules of the House, the Chair normally recognizes those Members standing and allocates time. I pose the question to the Chair whether that would or would not be the procedure for as long as we would proceed, for as long as a period of 5 hours?

12. 116 CONG. REC. 14467, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

13. 120 CONG. REC. 34170, 34171, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

14. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman that those amendments pending and those that would be offered would, of course, be considered. As far as the Members standing on the request that is now before the committee, it would seem to the Chair that it would be premature to recognize the Members standing when there are a number of Members not present at this time who would like to be heard.

MR. [FRANK] THOMPSON [Jr. of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. THOMPSON of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I did not understand the Chair's answer to the parliamentary inquiry by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. O'Hara). Is it my understanding that notwithstanding that 5 hours under the gentleman's motion would dispose of the Hansen and Martin substitutes, in addition thereto for those amendments which have been printed in the Record will there be time to debate them allowed?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman from New Jersey that the proponents of all amendments printed in the Record that have not been reached during the 5-hour period will be recognized under the rules of the House for 5 minutes in support of their amendments. They would be protected.

MR. THOMPSON of New Jersey: How about time in opposition?

THE CHAIRMAN: And 5 minutes in opposition. The gentleman is correct.

§ 79.66 A limitation on time for debate on a pending amendment and all amendments thereto in effect abrogates the five-minute rule and the Chair, at his discretion, may allocate time to all Members desiring to speak, whether or not they have previously spoken on the amendment; and where time for debate has been limited and the time remaining allocated to those Members wishing to speak, an extension of time for debate by unanimous consent would increase the time allotted to individual Members but would not allow additional Members to seek recognition.

On Oct. 1, 1975,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense appropriation bill (H.R. 9861) in the Committee of the Whole, the proceedings described above occurred as follows:

MR. [GEORGE H.] MAHON [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I had misjudged before the desire of the House at an earlier time to try to limit debate to 30 minutes. I want to be sure that no one is denied the opportunity to speak. I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto conclude in 15 minutes.

15. 121 CONG. REC. 31074, 31075, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. [BURT L.] TALCOTT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, may I inquire whether or not the Members who have already spoken on this amendment may speak again during limited time?

THE CHAIRMAN: When time is limited, Members are permitted to speak again under the allocation of time.

MR. TALCOTT: And they can yield their time to other Members?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is a unanimous-consent request. . . .

MR. [BARRY] GOLDWATER [Jr., of California]: . . . I ask unanimous consent that the time be extended another 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

MR. [ANDREW J.] HINSHAW [of California]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, if we were to accede to the unanimous-consent request, would that open the door for additional Members to stand up to seek additional time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has already announced his allocation of time.

§ 79.67 Where time for debate is limited to a specific number of minutes rather than a limitation to a time certain on the clock, the Chair may permit Members to reserve time until an amendment to an amendment has been disposed of so as to speak on the main amendment.

On Oct. 3, 1975,⁽¹⁷⁾ the proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my request and now I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Brown amendment and all amendments thereto end in 20 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

MR. [PETER A.] PEYSER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee, if this is going to be ending in 20 minutes and we have a vote on the Symms amendment, as I understand it, does that time for the vote go into the 20 minutes?

MR. FOLEY: No. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield. I asked unanimous consent that all debate on the Brown amendment and all amendments thereto end in 20 minutes. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington that all debate will end on the Brown amendment in the nature of a substitute and the Symms amendment and all amendments thereto in 20 minutes?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McCormack).

17. 121 CONG. REC. 31602-04, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

18. William L. Hungate (Mo.).

MR. [MIKE] McCORMACK [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, I reserve my time in order to speak on the Brown of California amendment after the vote on the Symms amendment. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser).

MR. PEYSER: Mr. Chairman, I reserve my time until after the vote on the Symms amendment. . . .

MR. FOLEY: Is it correct that approximately 2½ minutes remain of debate under the limitation previously adopted, and that following that a vote will occur on the Brown amendment in the nature of a substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman states the question correctly. The gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser) has 1¼ minutes, and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McCormack) has 1¼ minutes. Then a vote will occur on the Brown amendment.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser).

Parliamentarian's Note: Where time is limited by the clock, a Member attempting to reserve time may be preempted by votes, quorum calls, etc., which come out of the time remaining. Therefore, the Chair, to protect Members' right to speak, might refuse to permit a reservation of time.

§ 79.68 A limitation of debate on a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain in effect abrogates the five-minute rule; and decisions regarding the division of the remaining time and the order of recognition of those Members desiring to speak are largely within the discretion of the Chair, who may defer recognition of listed Members whose amendments have been printed in the Record and who are therefore guaranteed five minutes notwithstanding the limitation.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on June 4, 1975,⁽¹⁹⁾ during consideration of the Voting Rights Act Extension (H.R. 6219):

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto terminate at 6:45 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California.

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: With the permission of the Committee, the Chair will briefly state the situation.

There are a number of Members who do not have amendments that were placed in the Record, and the Chair feels that he must try to protect them somewhat, so he proposes to go to a number of Members on the list so they will at least get some time. The time allotted will be less than a minute.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. de la Garza).

19. 121 CONG. REC. 16899, 16901, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

§ 79.69 Where the Committee of the Whole agrees to limit debate on a pending amendment, the five-minute rule is abrogated and the Chair allocates the remaining time among those Members standing at the time the limitation is agreed to, and not among those Members who stand after the allocation of time is announced.

On May 4, 1977,⁽¹⁾ the situation described above occurred in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: I am trying to be reasonable about this.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Dornan) and the amendment offered as a substitute by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Buchanan), and all amendments thereto, close in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was granted will be recognized for 50 seconds each. . . .

MR. [PARREN J.] MITCHELL of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, was the limitation set on debate a time period of 10 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct. The time limitation is 10 minutes.

MR. MITCHELL of Maryland: Ten minutes. And may I ask the Chairman, how many Members were standing? I figured there were roughly 120 Members standing.

THE CHAIRMAN: At the time the unanimous-consent request for limitation of debate was agreed to the Chair saw 14 Members on their feet. That observation was made at the time the request for limitation was agreed to, and not later on. The Chair saw 14 Members standing at the time the request for limitation was agreed to, and under the precedents the Chair has discretion to divide the remaining time only among those Members

MR. [RONALD V.] DELLUMS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DELLUMS: Mr. Chairman, would the Chair announce the names of the Members who were standing? The gentleman from California was standing at the time of the agreement to the limitation. This gentleman from California was on his feet, and I do not recall hearing my name announced.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair named each Member he saw standing at the time the unanimous-consent agreement for a time limitation was agreed to. . . .

The Chair will once again read the names of the Members who were seen standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was agreed to.

2. Elliott Levitas (Ga.).

§ 79.70 Where the Committee of the Whole has limited to 5 minutes the remaining time for debate on an amendment, the five-minute rule is in effect abrogated and the Chair may in his discretion recognize two Members to equally control the time in support of and in opposition to the amendment, granting priority of recognition to control the time in opposition to a member of the committee handling the bill; but where no committee member seeks recognition for that purpose, the Chair may recognize any Member to control the time.

On June 22, 1977,⁽³⁾ during consideration of H.R. 7797 (the foreign assistance and related agencies appropriation bill for fiscal 1978) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair made an announcement regarding debate under the five-minute rule. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and any amendments thereto close in 5 minutes.

The motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ Let the Chair make this announcement. There is no

3. 123 CONG. REC. 20291, 20292, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.
4. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

way that the Chair can divide 5 minutes among all who wish to speak. Therefore, under the prerogative of the Chair, the Chair will recognize one proponent and one opponent each for 2½ minutes.

The Chair at this time recognizes the proponent, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Wolff). . . .

Is there any member of the committee who wishes to be recognized in opposition to the amendment?

If not, the Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) as an opponent of the amendment.

§ 79.71 Adoption of a motion to limit debate in Committee of the Whole abrogates the five-minute rule, and the allocation of the remaining time is within the discretion of the Chair, who may divide the time between the majority and minority manager of the bill rather than among all Members indicating a desire to speak.

On Apr. 1, 1976,⁽⁵⁾ during consideration of H.R. 12406 (the Federal Election Campaign Act amendments of 1976) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [WAYNE L.] HAYS of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto finish at 3 p.m.

5. 122 CONG. REC. 9088, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Hays).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Hays of Ohio) there were—ayes 93, noes 48. . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: With the permission of the Committee, the Chair would like to make a brief statement.

The Committee has just limited the time on this amendment and all amendments thereto to 3 o'clock. The gentleman from California (Mr. Phillip Burton) had been recognized for 5 minutes. That will leave approximately 6 minutes to be allocated.

The precedents provide under chapter 29, section 31, of Deschler's Procedures that the Chair has discretion in distributing the time. Due to the obvious impossibility of satisfying all Members the Chair proposes to allocate 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Hays) and 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Wiggins), whereby they may yield time.

The Chair now recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Phillip Burton).

§ 79.72 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute for a bill and the permissible degree of amendments thereto, the Chair indicated in response to parliamentary inquiries: (1) that a motion to limit debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto was in order although the bill itself had not been read; (2) that amendments printed in the Record would be debatable for 10 minutes notwithstanding the limitation; and (3) that all Members would be allocated equal time under the limitation regardless of committee membership but that Members seeking to offer amendments could be first recognized.

6. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

The proceedings in the Committee of the Whole relating to consideration of H.R. 13367 (a bill to amend and extend the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972) on June 10, 1976,⁽⁷⁾ were as follows:

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Brooks amendment and all amendments thereto end by 6 p.m. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: . . . I do not remember the bill being open at any point to amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ The motion of the gentleman from New York, as the Chair understood it, was that all debate on the Brooks amendment and all amendments thereto end at 6 p.m.

MR. BAUMAN: So that the motion is in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The motion is in order. It is limited to the Brooks amendment and amendments thereto.

7. 122 CONG. REC. 17380, 17381, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

8. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

MR. [CLARENCE D.] LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LONG of Maryland: Mr. Chairman, of course I believe it is understood that this does not apply to any amendments that are printed in the Congressional Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under the rules of the House, it does not apply to those amendments. . . .

MR. [J. J.] PICKLE [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. PICKLE: Mr. Chairman, under the proposed time limitation, would the Chair tend to recognize a Member who is not a member of the committee? For instance, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Adams) has an important amendment, and if he is not recognized within the time limitation, would the chairman of the committee let the gentleman be recognized?

MR. [JACK] BROOKS [of Texas]: I do not have control of the time. I think the answer, obviously, is that he will be recognized.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under limitation of time committee members no longer have priority in seeking recognition. Time is equally allocated.

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the motion was made will be recognized for approximately 1 minute and 55 seconds each.

§ 79.73 Where debate has been limited to a time certain and the Chair has divided the remaining time among those desiring to speak, the Chair may, in his discretion, entertain a parliamentary inquiry without deducting the time from that allocated to the Member raising the inquiry.

On June 18, 1976,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 13179 (the State Department authorization for fiscal year 1977) when a time limitation on debate was agreed to, following which several parliamentary inquiries were directed to the Chair. The proceedings were as indicated below:

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 2:30. . . .

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Biester).

MR. [EDWARD G.] BIESTER [Jr., of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BIESTER: Mr. Chairman, so far we have been discussing only one of the five remaining amendments that the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole informed the chairman of the

9. 122 CONG. REC. 19251, 19254, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

10. John Brademas (Ind.).

Committee on International Relations that were at the desk.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: That is correct.

MR. BIESTER: I am wondering what the plans of the Chair are with respect to allocating time to those Members who wish to speak on the various other amendments.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that Members will have to use the time that is allotted to them prior to 2:30 p.m. to debate any of the amendments that remain, under the unanimous-consent request that was granted earlier.

MR. BIESTER: Since I have engaged in this parliamentary inquiry, I presume that my time has about expired; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that the gentleman's parliamentary inquiry will not come out of his time.

§ 79.74 Where debate under the five-minute rule is limited to three hours of debate, the Chair may determine that any allocation of the time at that point is premature, and continue to recognize Members for five minutes.

On Feb. 1, 1978,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1614 (the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to inquiries regarding allocation of time for debate, as follows:

11. 124 CONG. REC. 1827, 1828, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I will revise the unanimous-consent request.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that when we convene tomorrow, all debate on H.R. 1614 and all amendments and substitutes thereto end after 3 hours of debate. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM A.] STEIGER [of Wisconsin]: . . . If we were to agree to this procedure tonight, what Members are going to be recognized tomorrow? Will it be those Members who are standing, the majority leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright), the gentleman from Illinois, and a few others? There are four or five Members standing, and I am one of those standing. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair would like to advise the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Steiger) that regardless of the time fixed, we would proceed under the 5-minute rule at the outset.

MR. STEIGER: Regardless of the time fixed, we proceed under the 5-minute rule?

THE CHAIRMAN: We will proceed under the 5-minute rule. The Chair would like to advise the gentleman that it would be premature for the Chair to allocate time at this point.

§ 79.75 Priority of recognition under a limitation of time for debate under the five-minute rule is in the complete discretion of the Chair, who may disregard committee seniority and consider amendment sponsorship.

On June 26, 1979,⁽¹³⁾ it was demonstrated that where the Committee of the Whole has agreed to a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule on a section of a bill and all amendments thereto, distribution of the time under the limitation is within the discretion of the Chair. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [WILLIAM S.] MOORHEAD of Pennsylvania: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto cease at 6:40 p.m. . . .

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 209, noes 183, answered “present” 1, not voting 41, as follows: . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Chair will attempt to explain the situation.

The Committee has just voted to end all debate on section 3 and all amendments thereto at 6:40. The Chair in a moment is going to ask those Members wishing to speak between now and then to stand. The Chair will advise Members that he will attempt, once that list is determined, to recognize first those Members on the list with amendments which are not protected by having been printed in the Record. . . .

13. 125 CONG. REC. 16677, 16678, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

Under consideration was H.R. 3930, the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979.

14. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, did I understand the Chair correctly that Members who are protected by having their amendments printed in the Record will not be recognized until the time has run so that those Members will only have 5 minutes to present their amendments, but that other Members will be recognized first for the amendments which are not printed in the Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: Those Members who are recognized prior to the expiration of time have approximately 20 seconds to present their amendments. Those Members whose amendments are printed in the Record will have a guaranteed 5 minutes after time has expired. . . .

The Chair will now recognize those Members who wish to offer amendments which have not been printed in the Record.

The Chair will advise Members he will recognize listed Members in opposition to the amendments also for 20 seconds. . . .

MR. [RICHARD] KELLY [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, is it not regular order that the Members of the Committee with amendments be given preference and recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman once the limitation of time has been agreed to and time divided, that priority of recognition is within the complete discretion of the Chair.

§ 79.76 Where the Committee of the Whole has, by unanimous consent, permitted four designated amendments to be offered to a title of a bill which has been passed in the reading for amendment, and has limited time on those amendments to a time certain, the Chair may, in his discretion, allocate in advance a portion of that time among the proponent and opponent of those amendments and then allocate the remaining time among other Members desiring to speak.

On Jan. 29, 1980, the Committee of the Whole, having under consideration H.R. 4788, the Water Resources Development Act, had by unanimous consent agreed to allow four specified amendments to be offered to a title of the bill that had been passed in the reading for amendment.

Mr. Ray Roberts, of Texas, subsequently asked unanimous consent that debate on the title and amendments end at a time certain:⁽¹⁵⁾

MR. ROBERTS: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on title III and all amendments thereto end at 4:40.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ Does the gentleman from Texas wish to allocate any portion of that time under his unanimous-consent request, consistent with

15. 126 CONG. REC. 993, 994, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

16. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

the discussion that took place previously?

MR. ROBERTS: Five minutes only. I think there is enough to go around. I will not use my 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Roberts)?

MR. [ROBERT W.] EDGAR [of Pennsylvania]: Reserving the right to object, in our colloquy we had suggested that the gentleman from Montana be given at least a minimum of 5 minutes and the gentleman from Washington be given 5 minutes. I would have no objection to that.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Roberts) so revise his unanimous-consent request?

MR. ROBERTS: I do, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Roberts) as revised? . . .

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has discretion to allocate time under the unanimous-consent request. In addition to the allocation which has been requested of 5 minutes for the gentleman from Montana and 5 minutes for the gentleman from Washington, the Chair in the exercise of that discretion will allocate a total of 10 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Edgar) on the basis that he is offering three amendments, and will allocate the balance of the time to those Members who are standing.

Members standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was agreed to will be recognized for 40 seconds each, with the possible loss of time if there are any recorded votes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Edgar) for 10 minutes.

§ 79.77 Debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto pending in the Committee of the Whole may be limited to a time certain by motion; and the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may divide remaining debate time equally between two Members following such limitation.

On July 26, 1984,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of the Education Amendments of 1984 (H.R. 11) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair divided the remaining time for debate equally between the chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor and the proponent of the pending amendment. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [CARL D.] PERKINS [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending amendment, all amendments thereto and all substitutes, close at 2 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

MR. [DAN R.] COATS [of Indiana]: Reserving the right to object, Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding, and I am not sure, I just want to check, I think a perfecting amendment is going to be offered, and I just want to check to see if that is the case. If that is the case, I would have to object to that unanimous-consent request.

MR. PERKINS: Then, Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the Coats amendment, all substitutes and all amendments thereto, be concluded at 2 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Kentucky. . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will proceed to divide the time.

Since there are so many Members seeking recognition, the Chair at this time will divide the time equally between the chairman, Mr. Perkins, and the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Coats, 10 minutes each, and they will yield time as they see fit.

Parliamentarian's Note: During the above proceedings, the Chairman also ruled that a parliamentary inquiry relating to a pending motion occurring after the Chairman has announced the results of a voice vote does not constitute such intervening business as to preclude the right of a Member to demand a recorded vote on the pending motion. After the result of the voice vote was announced in the above instance (that a majority favored the motion), a parliamentary inquiry was made:⁽¹⁹⁾

MR. [WILLIAM F.] GOODLING [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

17. 130 CONG. REC. 21249, 21250, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

18. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).

19. 130 CONG. REC. 21249, 21250, 98th Cong. 2d Sess., July 26, 1984.

I want to make sure the motion was talking only about this portion of this bill.

MR. PERKINS: . . . This does not include the Goodling amendment, the funding of the school programs.

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: I want to get a record vote.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: This motion referred to the Coats amendment and all amendments thereto.

MR. WALKER: That is right, and I want a record vote on the ruling of the Chair.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Those in favor of taking this by recorded vote. . . .

MR. [RICHARD J.] DURBIN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. DURBIN: Is it my understanding there was intervening business between the vote which was taken orally, the parliamentary inquiry made by the gentleman?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The intervening business was a parliamentary inquiry that was related to the motion, and no independent business has been taken up.

MR. DURBIN: As a further parliamentary inquiry of the Chair, does not this parliamentary inquiry and interruption preclude the gentleman from Pennsylvania's right to ask for a recorded vote?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: No; it is related to the status of the vote, and of the motion.

§ 79.78 Following an agreement to limit debate on an amendment and an amendment thereto to a time certain, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may exercise his discretion and allot the remaining time in three equal parts; in this case time was controlled by the offeror of the amendment (Brown), the offeror of the amendment to the amendment (Leach) and the floor manager of the bill (Zablocki).

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 13, 1983,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze):

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: . . . I ask unanimous consent that debate close at 6:05.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

MR. [JACK] KEMP [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

MR. ZABLOCKI: 6:15?

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The unanimous-consent request is agreed to and debate is limited to 6:15.

20. 129 CONG. REC. 8425, 8426, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

1. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

The Chair is going to exercise discretion and allot the time in three equal parts to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Leach), the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Brown) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) and, of course, those Members can yield for purposes of debate.

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GINGRICH: Mr. Chairman, if I may express my ignorance for a moment, is it, in fact, the prerogative of the Chair in that sort of unanimous-consent request to then design whatever system seems workable?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes, it is. The Chair has exercised its discretion in light of the circumstances and allocates 6 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Leach); 6 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Brown); and 6 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki).

§ 79.79 Where debate under the five-minute rule on a bill and all amendments thereto has been limited by motion to a time certain (with approximately 90 minutes remaining) the Chair may in his discretion continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule, according priority to members of the committee reporting the bill, instead of allocating time between proponents and opponents or among all Members standing, where it cannot be determined what amendments will be offered.

On July 29, 1983,⁽²⁾ during consideration of the International Monetary Fund Authorization (H.R. 2957) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to several parliamentary inquiries regarding recognition following agreement to a motion to limit debate to a time certain:

MR. [FERNAND J.] ST GERMAIN [of Rhode Island]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill, H.R. 2957, be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Rhode Island?

There was no objection.

The text of title IV and title V is as follows:

TITLE IV—INTERNATIONAL LENDING SUPERVISION

Sec. 401. This title may be cited as the "International Lending Supervision Act of 1983". . . .

MR. ST GERMAIN: I have a motion, Mr. Chairman. . . .

I now move that all debate on the bill, H.R. 2957, and all amendments thereto, cease at 12 o'clock noon. . . .

MR. [ED] BETHUNE [of Arkansas]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

2. 129 CONG. REC. 21649, 21650, 21659, 21660, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Chairman, the parliamentary inquiry is for the Chair to please state the process by which we will do our business from now until the time is cut off. . . .

MR. [STEPHEN L.] NEAL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, would it not be in order at this time to ask that the time be divided between the proponents and the opponents of this measure, since there is a limitation on the time?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The Chair believes not, because the time has been limited on the entire bill. It would be very difficult to allocate time to any one particular party or two parties when the Chair has no knowledge of the amendments that will be offered.

MR. NEAL: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. NEAL: Mr. Chairman, is it not true that members of the committee should be given preference in terms of recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is true. At the time the gentleman from Pennsylvania was recognized, he was the only one seeking recognition.

Chair Allocates Limited Time, Not Proponent of Amendment

§ 79.80 Where debate is limited on an amendment in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair divides the remaining time among all Members desiring to speak at the time

3. Donald J. Pease (Ohio).

the limitation was agreed to, and not merely among those Members mentioned by a Member as having wished to be recognized prior to the limitation.

The proceedings in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 5, 1981,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3112 (to extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965) were as follows:

MR. [DON] EDWARDS of California: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment close in 15 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ The Chair will inquire of the gentleman from California whether his unanimous-consent request includes this amendment and all amendments thereto.

MR. EDWARDS of California: Just on this amendment, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Just on this amendment.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: For what purpose does the gentleman from Louisiana seek recognition?

MR. [W. HENSON] MOORE [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will first allocate the time

4. 127 CONG. REC. 23154, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

5. Dennis E. Eckart (Ohio).

among all Members seeking recognition on this amendment.

The Chair has observed the following Members standing: The gentleman from California (Mr. Edwards), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hyde) . . . and the gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. Fenwick).

MR. [HENRY J.] HYDE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HYDE: Mr. Chairman, I have three Members who want to speak on this side. That is the gentleman from Louisiana, the gentleman from Michigan, and the gentlewoman from New Jersey.

I was assuming 5 minutes apiece, 15 minutes total.

Are we talking about a whole slew of Members who want to talk now?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will point out to the gentleman from Illinois that the Chair merely allocated the time among those Members who rose by the time that the unanimous-consent request was granted.

Where Division of Time by Unanimous Consent Was Objected to, Chair Used His Discretion

§ 79.81 A motion to limit debate under the five-minute rule on a pending amendment in the Committee of the Whole is not in order if it includes a provision for division of time between two Members, since debate time can be allocated between Members only by unanimous consent; but where debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto has been limited to a time certain, the Chair may exercise his discretion and allocate the remaining time between two Members and may indicate which Member may close the debate.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 2, 1984,⁽⁶⁾ during consideration of the Department of Interior Appropriations Act of 1985 (H.R. 5973):

MR. [SIDNEY R.] YATES [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all time on the Conte amendment and all amendments thereto with the exception of the Ottinger amendment end at 3:30, the time to be equally divided between the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) and the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Ratchford).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ The Chair will remind the gentleman that time cannot be allocated between sides or between Members except by unanimous consent. . . .

But the motion only to limit debate is in order. . . .

MR. [BILL] FRENZEL [of Minnesota]: If the gentleman's motion passes I will not object to the unanimous-consent request at that time to divide the time.

6. 130 CONG. REC. 22180, 22181, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

7. Richard A. Gephardt (Mo.).

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . The motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Yates) is to end all debate on the Conte amendment and all amendments thereto except the Ottinger amendment at 3:30.

MR. YATES: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Yates).

[The motion was agreed to.]

MR. YATES: Mr. Chairman, the time has been limited to 3:30. I ask unanimous consent that the time be expanded to permit 10 minutes on each side, with those favoring the Conte amendment to be controlled by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) and those favoring the Ratchford amendment to be controlled by the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Ratchford).

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois.

MR. [MARTY] RUSSO [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I object.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

The Chair now intends to allocate 6 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Conte) and 6 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Ratchford).

The Chair intends that the debate will end with Mr. Ratchford.

Procedure Where Control of Time Set by Unanimous Consent

§ 79.82 The Committee of the Whole may by unanimous consent limit the time for debate under the five-minute rule and provide for the time to be controlled and divided between the majority and minority sides.

On May 26, 1966,⁽⁸⁾ Adam C. Powell, of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor which had reported the bill under discussion under the five-minute rule in the Committee of the Whole, asked unanimous consent that debate on a pending amendment be limited to 60 minutes, 30 minutes on each side (majority and minority), to be equally divided and controlled by the proponent of the amendment and the subcommittee chairman handling the bill.

The request was agreed to.

On May 10, 1966,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a request limiting five-minute debate and dividing the control of the time between the majority and minority Members in charge of the bill:

MR. [CARL] ALBERT [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Chairman, for the purpose of clarification, would it be in order for the gentleman from Tennessee to ask unanimous consent that debate on this amendment be confined to 20 minutes

8. 112 CONG. REC. 11608, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

9. Id. at p. 10232.

on each side, the 20 minutes on this side to be controlled by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Evins] and the 20 minutes on the Republican side by the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Jonas]?

MR. [JOSEPH L.] EVINS: Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished majority leader for the suggestion and now make the unanimous-consent request accordingly.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.⁽¹¹⁾

§ 79.83 Where the Committee of the Whole has by unanimous consent fixed debate on an amendment to two hours and divided control of the time between the proponent of the amendment and the chairman of the committee, the two Members controlling debate may yield time as in general debate, and Members may offer and debate amendments in the time yielded them.

On July 9, 1965,⁽¹²⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 6400, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, pursuant to a unanimous-consent agreement fix-

10. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

11. See also 111 CONG. REC. 16227, 16228, 89th Cong. 1st Sess., July 9, 1965.

ing debate on the pending amendment at two hours and dividing control of the time between Mr. William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, the proponent of the amendment, and Emanuel Celler, of New York, Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary. Mr. McCulloch, who had the floor, yielded to Mr. Robert McClory, of Illinois, who offered an amendment and was recognized by Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, for five minutes.

The Chairman stated, in response to a parliamentary inquiry by Mr. Celler that the two Members in control could, under the unanimous-consent agreement, yield time to other Members and that Members yielded to could offer amendments.

§ 79.84 Where by unanimous consent the final portion of debate under a limitation has been reserved to the manager of the bill, and that Member has also consumed five minutes in opposition to a preferential motion to strike the enacting clause, he is nevertheless recognized again where all other time under the limitation has been preempted by debate on the preferential motion.

During consideration of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1976 (H.R. 10498) in the Committee of the Whole on Sept. 15, 1976,⁽¹³⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [PAUL G.] ROGERS [of Florida]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate on the Waxman-Maguire amendment and the Dingell amendment, and all amendments thereto, conclude at 1:30 . . . and that the last 10 minutes be reserved for myself.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was made will be recognized for 30 seconds each. . . .

MR. [JAMES C.] WRIGHT [Jr., of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Wright moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion. . . .

MR. ROGERS: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Florida (Mr. Rogers) is recognized for 5 minutes in opposition to the preferential motion. . . .

13. 122 CONG. REC. 30466, 30469-71, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

14. J. Edward Roush (Ind.).

The time of the gentleman has expired. . . .

The question is on the preferential motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright).

The preferential motion was rejected.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Rogers) for the balance of the time.

MR. [JAMES T.] BROYHILL [of North Carolina]: Mr. Chairman, did the Chair not mean to recognize the gentleman from North Carolina?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from North Carolina that the Chair is operating under the limitation which was imposed by the unanimous-consent request. There are two key points that come into play at this time, the limitation of the time and the reservation of time to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Rogers) of the last 10 minutes. The gentleman from Florida will not get the full 10 minutes because the time will have expired at 1:30.

The Chair again recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Rogers).

§ 79.85 Although a motion to limit debate on a pending amendment is in order in the Committee of the Whole, such a motion may not allocate the time proposed under the limitation or vary the order of recognition to close debate under the limitation.

During consideration of the Defense Savings Act of 1988 (H.R. 4481) in the Committee of the Whole on July 12, 1988,⁽¹⁵⁾ the following exchange occurred:

MR. [WILLIAM L.] DICKINSON [of Alabama]: I think that the rule provides a division of time of all those standing and who want to speak. But if it would be proper, Mr. Chairman, I would so move that limitation of time would be within 30 minutes of the present time, the time to be divided equally by the proponents and opponents and that the gentleman from Texas, the author of the amendment, be allowed to close debate.

MR. [DENNIS M.] HERTEL [of Michigan]: . . . I have no problem with the gentleman closing debate. I just do not know if it is proper to put it in a motion. I have no objection to him being the last person to speak. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁶⁾ The gentleman . . . has made a motion. He has moved. But the gentleman should make a unanimous-consent request to allocate time.

MR. DICKINSON: Mr. Chairman, I would ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close within 30 minutes, that the 30 minutes be divided half and half between the proponents and the opponents and that the gentleman from Texas be allowed to close.

MR. [G. V.] MONTGOMERY [of Mississippi]: Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I agree with the gentleman's first part with respect to 30 minutes but over the years the House procedure is I believe, and I will have the Chair correct me if I am wrong, that when an amendment is offered and the chairman of the committee objects to that amendment, that he has the right to close debate. Is that proper?

THE CHAIRMAN: Normally when the Committee of the Whole divides the time on an amendment the person handling the bill, the chairman, has the right to end the debate. That is normal.

There has been a unanimous-consent request to alter that, which can be done, to permit the gentleman from Texas to close the debate.

Special Rule May Permit Time Allocation by Motion

§ 79.86 A special rule agreed to by the House for consideration of a bill permitted motions by the chairman of the committee reporting the bill to include the allocation of time in any motion to limit debate, and to consider the remainder of the bill or any titles thereof read and open to amendment.

On Dec. 9, 1981,⁽¹⁷⁾ Mr. Anthony C. Beilenson, of California, called up House Resolution 291 (providing for consideration of H.R. 3566, International Security and Development Assistance authorizations for fiscal 1982 and 1983) in the House:

MR. BEILENSEN: Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I

15. 134 CONG. REC. 17767, 100th Cong. 2d Sess.

16. Harold L. Volkmer (Mo.).

17. 127 CONG. REC. 30193, 97th Cong. 1st Sess.

call up House Resolution 291 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 291

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 3566) to authorize appropriations for the fiscal years 1982 and 1983 for international security and development assistance and for the Peace Corps, and for other purposes, the first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. . . . After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed one hour, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule by titles instead of by sections, and each title shall be considered as having been read. It shall be in order at any time while the bill is being considered for amendment under the five-minute rule for the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs to move to limit debate on the pending portion of the bill and to provide in said motion for the allocation of time under the limitation on the pending portion of the bill, or on amendments, or on amendments to amendments, thereto. It shall also be in order at any time while the bill is being considered for amendment under the five-minute rule for the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs to move that the remainder of the bill, or any title thereof, be considered as having been read and open to amendment. At the conclusion of the consideration of the bill for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

Where All Debate on Pending Amendment Is Limited, Enacting Clause Still Debatable

§ 79.87 During consideration of an amendment in the Committee of the Whole, where time for debate thereon has been fixed and control vested in two Members, the motion that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken is in order and privileged and the Member making the motion as well as the Member rising in opposition thereto are entitled to recognition for five minutes.

On July 9, 1965,⁽¹⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole was conducting debate on an amendment pursuant to a unanimous-consent agreement limiting debate on the amendment and amendments thereto to two hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary which reported the bill (Emanuel Celler, of New York, and William M. McCulloch, of Ohio, respectively). The bill under consideration was H.R. 6400, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and the amendment was the "McCulloch substitute." During debate under the unanimous-consent agreement, Mr. Albert W. Watson, of South Carolina, offered the preferential motion that the Committee of the Whole rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, entertained the motion and recognized Mr. Watson for five minutes in favor of the motion and Mr. William T. Cahill, of New Jersey, for five minutes against the motion.

18. 111 CONG. REC. 16227, 16228, 89th Cong. 1st Sess.

Parliamentarian's Note: Since the limitation previously agreed to was not on the bill and not by the clock, the time consumed in debating the motion was not charged to the time remaining under the limitation.

§ 79.88 Where debate has been closed on all amendments to a bill, but not on the bill itself, the preferential motion to strike the enacting clause is debatable for 10 minutes, five to a side.

During consideration of the military procurement authorization (H.R. 6674) in the Committee of the Whole on May 20, 1975,⁽¹⁹⁾ the proposition described above was demonstrated as follows:

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto, and on further amendments to the bill, end in 20 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁰⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois.

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman has expired. [All time has expired.]

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, I only offer this motion in order to obtain time since I was not able to receive any time from the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Harkin) who offered what he claimed to be the Bauman amendment. I have read his amendment very carefully. It is not the same amendment which I offered to the National Science Foundation authorization bill. . . .

MR. [TOM] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the preferential motion.

19. 121 CONG. REC. 15458, 15465, 15466, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).

I thank the gentleman from Maryland for giving me an opportunity to expand a little bit more on some of these ridiculous spending programs that waste the taxpayers' dollars. . . . If we pass this routine authorization bill for the Defense Department of $32 billion in the usual manner, we will have to answer to our constituents if we choose to be honest about it.

§ 79.89 Where all time for debate on a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute (being read as an original bill for amendment pursuant to a special rule) and all amendments thereto has been terminated, a preferential motion that the Committee rise with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out is debatable for 10 minutes since the preferential motion applies to the bill and all debate on the bill has not been closed.

On June 20, 1975,⁽¹⁾ during debate in the Committee of the Whole pertaining to the Energy Research and Development Administration authorization for fiscal year 1976 (H.R. 3474), and after a motion to terminate that debate had been agreed to, the preferential motion described above was offered. The proceedings were as follows:

1. 121 CONG. REC. 19966, 19970, 19971, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [JOHN] YOUNG of Texas: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto terminate at 4 o'clock p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN: G5(2) The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Young). . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: All time has expired. . . .

MR. [TOM] HARKIN [of Iowa]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Harkin moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . The gentleman is recognized for 5 minutes.

§ 79.90 A Member who has been recognized under a time limitation on an amendment in Committee of the Whole may offer a preferential motion (that the Committee rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken out) and be recognized for five minutes to debate the motion.

During consideration of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act

2. J. Edward Roush (Ind.).

for fiscal year 1978 (H.R. 6689) in the Committee of the Whole on May 4, 1977,⁽³⁾ Mr. Dante B. Fascell, of Florida, was granted a unanimous-consent request limiting debate, as follows:

MR. FASCELL: . . . Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Dornan) and the amendment offered as a substitute by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Buchanan), and all amendments thereto, close in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was granted will be recognized for 50 seconds each. . . .

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Dornan) for 50 seconds.

MR. [ROBERT K.] DORNAN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer a preferential motion.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman from California (Mr. Dornan) have such a motion?

MR. DORNAN: Yes, I do, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Dornan). Is there such a motion at the desk?

MR. DORNAN: Mr. Chairman, the motion is offered to get time for debate,

3. 123 CONG. REC. 13413, 13414, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

4. Elliott Levitas (Ga.).

providing 5 more minutes on each side, and this is to try to wipe out this part of the bill. The motion is to strike all after the enacting clause. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I have my motion in writing.

Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Dornan moves that the Committee do now rise and report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that the enacting clause be stricken.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from California (Mr. Dornan) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his preferential motion.

§ 79.91 Where debate in Committee of the Whole on an amendment has been limited to a number of minutes of debate (rather than to a time certain), time consumed debating a preferential motion does not reduce the time remaining under the limitation.

During consideration of the Treasury Department and Postal Service appropriation bill for fiscal year 1981 (H.R. 7593) in the Committee of the Whole on Aug. 20, 1980,⁽⁵⁾ the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry concerning debate time as follows:

MR. [TOM] STEED [of Oklahoma]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto end in 15 minutes.

5. 126 CONG. REC. 22173-76, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Steed).

The motion was agreed to.

PREFERENTIAL MOTION OFFERED BY MR. BAUMAN

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a preferential motion.

MR. [PETER A.] PEYSER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. PEYSER: Mr. Chairman, does the time for the preferential motion come out of the 15 minutes that we have just agreed to?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair informs the gentleman that it does not come out of the preferential motion.

Disposition of Unused Time

§ 79.92 While a motion to limit debate on a portion of a bill and all amendments thereto was pending, the Chair advised that in the event the motion carried: (1) the Chair would first recognize those Members standing, each for five minutes, then any other Members seeking recognition, also for five minutes, until the time expired or there were no other requests for recognition; and (2) if requests for recognition did not consume the time set, the Chair would direct the Clerk to read.

On Aug. 1, 1966,⁽⁷⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering under the five-minute rule H.R. 14765, the Civil Rights Act of 1966, Mr. Emanuel Celler, of New York, moved that all debate on title I and amendments thereto close in one and one-half hours. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, then answered a parliamentary inquiry stated by Mr. Gerald R. Ford, of Michigan, on the order of recognition should the motion be agreed to:

MR. GERALD R. FORD: Mr. Chairman, I notice that there are relatively only a few standing. How will the Chair determine under that process those who will be eligible to speak? The lack of those standing does not necessarily mean that Members will not wish to speak.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that if the time is fixed at 1½ hours and there are no other gentlemen to be recognized or who desire to be heard, the Chair will proceed to ask the Clerk to read the next title.

If, however, there are 1½ hours, each Member standing now will be recognized for 5 minutes.

MR. GERALD R. FORD: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman. If

6. Richardson Preyer (N.C.).

7. 112 CONG. REC. 17759, 17760, 89th Cong. 2d Sess.

there are not a sufficient number of Members standing at the present time, will the Chair proceed under the 5-minute rule during the 1½ hours?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will see to it that each of those Members now standing will be recognized in an orderly fashion. If there are others desiring to speak within the time limitation, the Chair will then recognize them. Those now standing will receive a priority from the Chair.⁽⁸⁾

§ 79.93 Where the Committee of the Whole agrees to terminate all debate on an amendment at a certain time, the Chair divides the time remaining among those Members who indicate a desire to speak; and if free time remains after these Members have been recognized, the Chair may recognize Members who have not spoken to the amendment or Members who were recognized for less than five minutes under the limitation of time.

8. See also 116 CONG. REC. 25809, 25810, 91st Cong. 2d Sess., July 27, 1970 (where time limitation on amendment and amendments thereto, time divided among Members wishing to speak, Chair indicated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that he would put the question on the amendments prior to the designated hour if all those Members listed had not consumed their allotted time and if there were no further requests to speak).

On Mar. 17, 1960,⁽⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a request that all debate on the pending amendment close at 3:50 p.m. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, recognized under the limitation Members who had indicated they wished to speak. When those Members had spoken, time still remained and the Chairman recognized for debate Members who were not standing seeking recognition when the limitation was agreed to. The Chair answered a parliamentary inquiry:

MR. [JAMES C.] DAVIS of Georgia: Was not the time fixed for this debate, and was not the time limited to those who were standing on their feet seeking recognition?

THE CHAIRMAN: The time was fixed at 3:50. The Chair made a list of the names of those Members who indicated they desired to speak. However, the thing that governs is the time that was fixed in the unanimous-consent request made by the gentleman from New York, but because the time has not arrived when debate will end, the Chair will recognize those Members who seek recognition.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DAVIS of Georgia: Does that limitation then of 2 minutes apply to me, or could I have some of this additional time?

9. 106 CONG. REC. 5911, 5914, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes, the gentleman could be recognized again if he sought recognition.

Amendments Offered After Debate Time Expires

§ 79.94 Where all time expires for debate on a paragraph of a bill and on amendments thereto, further amendments to the paragraph may be offered but are not debatable.

On June 29, 1959,⁽¹⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request to limit debate on the pending paragraph and amendments thereto. In response to parliamentary inquiries, Chairman Paul J. Kilday, of Texas, stated that when all time had expired pursuant to that agreement, further amendments could be offered but not debated:

MR. [JOEL T.] BROYHILL [of Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, when could I offer this other amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: To this paragraph?

MR. BROYHILL: Yes.

THE CHAIRMAN: After the disposition of the pending amendment. The Chair would point out that under the arrangement made, the gentleman might find himself in the position of not being permitted to debate the other amendment.⁽¹¹⁾ § 79.95 Members may offer amendments to a title, after a time limitation for debate on the title and all amendments thereto has expired, and such amendments may be reported and voted on, but not debated.

On May 21, 1959,⁽¹²⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion closing debate on a pending title and on amendments thereto at 3:35 p.m. Chairman Francis E. Walter, of Pennsylvania, answered parliamentary inquiries on the effect of the limitation on the offering of further amendments to the title:

MR. [JOHN] TABER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. TABER: Is it not a fact that an amendment may be offered after debate has concluded? Any one has a right to offer an amendment even after debate has concluded.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Member may offer an amendment after time for debate has expired; and the amendment may be reported and voted on, but it may not be debated.

(where time expires on section and amendments thereto, Chair may still recognize Members to offer amendments, which will be voted upon without debate).

12. 105 CONG. REC. 8828-31, 86th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: Suppose a Member has an amendment which might or might not be offered depending on the action taken on the pending amendment and he had informed the Chair of the situation, could not his time be allotted to him after the pending amendment is disposed of?

THE CHAIRMAN: If debate goes beyond 3:35, then, of course, he could not be recognized for debate.

MR. HALLECK: I understand, but if he was standing and was one of those who would be entitled to part of the time allotted, could not the Chair, under the circumstances, refrain from recognizing him until such time as the pending amendment were disposed of?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has no way of telling for what purpose a Member rises, certainly not until he stated the purpose for which he sought recognition.

§ 79.96 Where time for debate on an amendment and amendments thereto has expired, the Chair may still recognize Members to offer amendments, but not for further debate.

On Feb. 10, 1964,⁽¹³⁾ the Committee of the Whole voted to close debate on a title of a pending bill and on all amendments thereto.

Chairman Eugene J. Keogh, of New York, responded to a later parliamentary inquiry as follows:

13. 110 CONG. REC. 2706, 88th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [RICHARD H.] POFF [of Virginia]: Mr. Chairman, in light of the limitation on time may I inquire what amendments will be voted upon when the time expires? I have two amendments at the desk which I may or may not offer, depending upon developments. I would like to be advised whether I will be recognized to offer the amendments and if so when that time will occur.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Virginia that up to 1 o'clock the Chair will undertake to recognize such Members as he can. After 1 o'clock the Chair will recognize those Members desiring to offer amendments and the question on each amendment will be put immediately without debate.⁽¹⁴⁾

§ 79.97 After time set under a limitation on a bill and amendments thereto has expired, further amendments may be offered but not debated.

On July 18, 1968,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Wayne L. Hays, of Ohio, offered an amendment after all time had expired, time having been limited on the bill and all amendments thereto. In response to his parliamentary inquiry, Chairman Charles M. Price, of Illinois, stated that the amendment was not debatable.

§ 79.98 The expiration of time for debate on a pending amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto does not preclude the offering of a substitute and amendments to the substitute, which are voted upon, after being read, without debate.

On Apr. 23, 1975,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of the Vietnam Humanitarian and Evacuation Assistance Act (H.R. 6096) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman Otis G. Pike, of New York, responded to several inquiries relating to the offering and debating of amendments:

MR. [BOB] ECKHARDT [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Eckhardt as a substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Edgar: strike all after enacting clauses and add:

Sec. 2. There is authorized to be appropriated to the President for the fiscal year 1975 not to exceed $150,000,000 to be used, notwithstanding any other provision of law, on such terms and conditions as the President may deem appropriate for humanitarian assistance to an evacuation program from South Vietnam. . . .

MR. [ROBERT W.] EDGAR [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that this is a substitute amendment for my amendment in the nature of a substitute and it would not be in order at this time.

THE CHAIRMAN: A substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute would be in order at this time. . . .

MR. [WILLIAM J.] RANDALL [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the understanding was the debate on the substitute and all amendments thereto would end at 4 o'clock and the hour of 4 o'clock has arrived. What is the parliamentary situation?

THE CHAIRMAN: The parliamentary situation is, as the Chair understands it, as follows:

A substitute amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas for the amendment in the nature of a substitute can be read but cannot be debated.

If there are amendments to the substitute offered by the gentleman from Texas they will be reported by the Clerk but they will not be debated and they will be disposed of as soon as they are reported by the Clerk. . . .

MS. [ELIZABETH] HOLTZMAN [of New York]: Would the Chair further elaborate; is this substitute amendment by the gentleman from Texas open to further amendment in time?

THE CHAIRMAN: As each amendment is disposed of, other amendments would be in order, but they may not be debated. . . .

MR. [DONALD W.] RIEGLE [Jr., of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, if I understood our time limit earlier when we set the 4 o'clock time limit and when Members were standing at the time and were given time, it was on the basis that we would consider the amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto by 4 o'clock.

As I understand it, when we got to 4 o'clock, can the Chair tell me why the proceedings passed 4 o'clock?

THE CHAIRMAN: The committee is proceeding past 4 o'clock because the limitation was on debate. Members wishing to offer amendments to the amendment in the nature of a substitute cannot be cut off from offering their amendments. The debate has ended. . . .

MR. RIEGLE: Does that mean that those offering amendments are restricted to those who were on their feet at the time we set the time limit, or not?

THE CHAIRMAN: No. As long as the amendment in the nature of a substitute is pending, amendments to that amendment in the nature of a substitute may be offered. . . .

MR. RIEGLE: Is the Chairman saying that amendments now can be offered really indefinitely by any Member of the House who wishes to so offer them.

THE CHAIRMAN: As long as the amendments are in order, they may be offered.

§ 79.99 The expiration of a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole does not prohibit the offering of further amendments, but such amendments are not subject to debate if not printed in the Congressional Record.

On June 14, 1979,⁽¹⁷⁾ during consideration of H.R. 4388, the energy and water appropriation bill for fiscal year 1980, the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole:

MR. [TOM] BEVILL [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, as I understand it, we are scheduled to adjourn at 5:30 this evening.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on these amendments and all amendments thereto conclude in 2 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Johnson) to the amendments offered by the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Dodd). . . .

[The amendment to the amendments was agreed to.]

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment as a substitute for the amendment, as amended.

THE CHAIRMAN: For what purpose does the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bevill) seek recognition?

MR. BEVILL: Mr. Chairman, on the amendment, as amended, I ask for a rollcall vote.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair has not yet put the question on the amendment, as amended.

17. 125 CONG. REC. 14993, 14994, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

18. Philip R. Sharp (Ind.).

MR. BEVILL: I ask for a vote then. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair had recognized the gentleman from Michigan and asked him for what purpose he sought recognition. The gentleman indicated that he had an amendment.

MR. [MIKE] MCCORMACK [of Washington]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MCCORMACK: Mr. Chairman, when the gentleman from Alabama, the chairman of the subcommittee, requested an agreement to end debate, there was no objection on the amendment and amendments thereto. At that point the vote was put.

I suggest to the Chair that it is in order now to vote on the amendment.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment I desire to offer as a substitute at this time.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will indicate to the gentleman from Washington that we are operating under a time limit; however, that does not exclude the possibility of offering an amendment as a substitute, though no debate will be in order in the absence of a unanimous-consent request.

Therefore, the Clerk will read the amendment.

§ 79.100 Where the Committee of the Whole rises immediately after having limited debate under the five-minute rule on the pending bill, the Chair allocates time under the limitation among those Members present when the Committee of the Whole reconvenes on that bill, but a Member who has printed an amendment in the Record is entitled to five minutes notwithstanding the allocation, and may be recognized to offer the amendment after the limitation has expired.

During consideration of H.R. 3000 (Department of Energy authorization bill) in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 24, 1979,⁽¹⁹⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 3000, with Mr. Studds, Chairman pro tempore, in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽²⁰⁾ When the Committee of the Whole rose on Tuesday, October 18, title VIII was open to amendment at any point.

Pending was an amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. Peyser).

It was also agreed that all time for debate on the bill and all amendments thereto would be limited to 15 minutes. At this point, the Chair would like to ascertain those Members wishing to be recognized in the allocation of the remaining 15 minutes of debate.

MR. [JAMES A.] COURTER [of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

19. 125 CONG. REC. 29384, 29385, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

20. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. COURTER: Mr. Chairman, there are, I believe, two Members, perhaps even three, who have amendments printed in the Record, printed I believe last week. Under the rules, are we given 5 minutes despite the fact that we use up the 15 minutes that are left for debate?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman that at the conclusion of the allocated time of 15 minutes remaining those Members with amendments printed in the Record—and the Chair believes there are three of them—will be entitled to 5 minutes in support of these amendments.

MR. COURTER: I thank the Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: Members standing at the time the motion was agreed to, amongst whom the time will be allocated, will be recognized for approximately 50 seconds each.

Debate on Amendments to Amendments Printed in Record

§ 79.101 Where all debate has been limited on an amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto, only amendments and amendments to amendments which have been printed in the Record may be debated, and other amendments may be offered and voted upon without debate.

During consideration of the Federal Employees' Political Activities Act of 1977 (H.R. 10) in the Committee of the Whole on June 7, 1977,⁽¹⁾ the Chair responded to inquiries regarding debate on amendments:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽²⁾ When the Committee rose on Wednesday, May 18, 1977, the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute was considered as having been read and open for amendment at any point. Pursuant to a motion to limit debate in the Committee of the Whole, all time for debate on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto had expired. . . .

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: . . . If there is an amendment covered by clause 6, rule XXIII, and this is then subject to an amendment, is an additional 10 minutes debate time granted to the proponent of that amendment and in opposition thereto?

THE CHAIRMAN: Proper amendments to an amendment will be in order. If the amendment to the amendment has been printed in the Record, there will be 5 minutes allowed to the proponent of the amendment and 5 minutes to the opponent of the amendment.

MR. DERWINSKI: It must have been printed in the Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: It must have been printed in the Record. However, proper amendments to the amendment may be offered, even though they have not been printed in the Record, but there will be no debate time allotted to such amendments to the amendment.

1. 123 CONG. REC. 17700, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.
2. James R. Mann (S.C.).

§ 79.102 After the expiration of a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule, an amendment which has been printed in the Record may be offered and debated, five minutes for and five minutes against, and an amendment to the amendment may be offered but may not be debated unless it has also been printed in the Record.

On Apr. 28, 1983,⁽³⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair, in response to parliamentary inquiries, indicated the procedures to be followed in offering and debating amendments pursuant to the expiration of a debate limitation under the five-minute rule:

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Siljander).

MR. [JAMES A.] COURTER [of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁴⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

3. 129 CONG. REC. 10428, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

4. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

MR. COURTER: The parliamentary inquiry to the Chair is whether the gentleman can offer an amendment to the amendment if same has not been printed in the Record?

THE CHAIRMAN: The answer to the gentleman is "Yes."

MR. COURTER: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman.

What type of time now are we dealing with? I understand the proponent of the amendment utilized or yielded back his 5 minutes. Then the gentleman has an amendment to the amendment. Is he given 5 minutes and then an additional 5 minutes to those who oppose the amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that under the limitation previously agreed to, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Siljander) in offering the amendment, since it was printed in the Record, had 5 minutes to support his amendment for debate purposes.

The Chair will now recognize the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) in opposition for 5 minutes.

If the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. Leach) or someone else offers an amendment to the amendment, which is not printed in the Record, there is no time available for debate on that amendment.

Amendments Printed in Record

§ 79.103 Where all debate in the Committee of the Whole on a bill and on amendments thereto has been terminated, a Member offering an amendment which has been printed in the Record on a preceding day may nevertheless, pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, debate that amendment for five minutes, and another Member opposing the amendment may then speak for five minutes.

On Aug. 2, 1973,⁽⁵⁾ Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the right of Members with amendments printed in the Record to debate them for five minutes, after the Committee had agreed to a unanimous-consent agreement closing all debate on the pending bill and amendments thereto at a time certain:

MR. [JOHN] DELLENBACK [of Oregon]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DELLENBACK: May I ask whether under the rules of the House for every amendment that has been published in the Record is it not true the sponsor has 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

At the expiration of the time agreed to, the Chair made an announcement and the following procedure ensued for printed amendments:⁽⁶⁾

5. 119 CONG. REC. 27712, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

6. Id. at p. 27715.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair desires to announce at this time that all time under the limitation has expired. This does not apply to those Members who had their amendments previously printed in the Record. Those Members whom the Chair observed standing who have amendments, those amendments will be reported and voted upon.

Are there amendments from the members of the committee who were standing at the time the limitation was set? If not, the Chair recognizes the Members who have had their amendments printed in the Record.

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows: . . .

MR. [SAM] STEIGER of Arizona: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. STEIGER of Arizona: Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding that the proponent of the amendment is entitled to be recognized for 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. STEIGER of Arizona: And also any Member opposing the amendment is entitled to 5 minutes?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.⁽⁷⁾

7. See also 118 CONG. REC. 10771-74, 92d Cong. 2d Sess., Mar. 29, 1972 (debate on all amendments to a pending bill having been closed, the Chair inquired of Members whether amendments then offered had been printed in the Record, the Members answered in the affirmative, and the Chair recognized for five minutes against and in support of the amendments).

Parliamentarian's Note: Rule XXIII clause 6, provides that the right of five-minute debate is preserved for an amendment printed in the Record "at least one day prior to floor consideration of such amendment." The rule has been construed to protect Members printing amendments in the Record dated the day prior to such consideration, although such an edition of the Record is not usually available until the morning of the following day (the day of consideration).

§ 79.104 Notwithstanding a limitation of debate on a pending title of a bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain and the allocation of the remaining time by the Chair, a Member who had inserted the text of his amendment in the Record is entitled, under Rule XXIII clause 6, to be recognized for five minutes upon offering that amendment during the limitation.

On Apr. 19, 1973,⁽⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request, offered by Mr. James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, that all debate on the pending title and amendments, being considered under the five-minute rule, close at a certain time. Chairman Morris K. Udall, of Arizona, allotted the remaining time to Members seeking recognition, each Member being entitled to 45 seconds.

8. 119 CONG. REC. 13253, 13254, 93d Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. Thomas F. Railsback, of Illinois, was recognized and offered an amendment. At the conclusion of 45 seconds, the Chairman stated that his time had expired. Mr. Railsback objected that he had printed his amendment in the Congressional Record prior to floor consideration thereof, and was therefore entitled to debate his amendment for five minutes pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6. The Chairman, who had not been aware the amendment was printed in the Record, ruled that Mr. Railsback was entitled to five minutes.⁽⁹⁾

9. Rule XXIII clause 6, was amended in the 92d Congress to allow five minutes, regardless of a limitation, on an amendment printed in the Record. See House Rules and Manual § 874 (1995).

The Chair, in response to a parliamentary inquiry, has declined to rule in advance upon the applicability of Rule XXIII clause 6 (permitting 10 minutes of debate on amendments printed in the Record notwithstanding a limitation of time under the five-minute rule) to an amendment not yet offered from the floor. See 117 CONG. REC. 39089, 92d Cong. 1st Sess., Nov. 3, 1971.

§ 79.105 Where all debate in Committee of the Whole on a bill and all amendments thereto has been terminated, a Member offering an amendment which has been printed in the Record on a preceding day may nevertheless, pursuant to Rule XXIII, clause 6, debate that amendment for five minutes, and another Member opposing the amendment may then speak for five minutes.

During consideration of the agriculture, environment, and consumer appropriation bill⁽¹⁰⁾ in the Committee of the Whole on June 21, 1974,⁽¹¹⁾ Chairman Sam Gibbons, of Florida, indicated the procedure for offering amendments after time for all debate had expired, as follows:

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state the parliamentary situation as it is now. Under a unanimous-consent agreement entered into earlier, all time for debate on amendments and on this bill has expired. The Chair will recognize no one to debate on an amendment or the bill unless that Member has had his amendment published in the Record in advance.

Is there anyone who falls into that category?

MR. [LIONEL] VAN DEERLIN [of California]: Mr. Chairman, there is at least one Member.

10. H.R. 15472.

11. 120 CONG. REC. 20616, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentleman seek recognition?

MR. VAN DEERLIN: Yes, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: And the gentleman's amendment has been printed in the Record?

MR. VAN DEERLIN: Yes, at page H5504.

Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The portion of the bill to which the amendment relates is as follows:

Sec. 511: Except as provided in existing law, funds provided in this Act shall be available only for the purposes for which they are appropriated.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Van Deerlin: On page 52, after line 11, insert a new Section 513:

"No funds contained in this appropriation act shall be available for the promotion or advertising of tobacco or any tobacco products in foreign nations."

§ 79.106 Where the Committee of the Whole had separately limited debate on the remaining titles of a committee amendment in the nature of a substitute which was open to amendment at any point, the Chair indicated that he would give preference in recognition to all Members who had amendments to the title being debated, and that Members who had printed amendments in the Record should offer them at the conclusion of debate under the limitation on that title.

The proceedings of July 24, 1974, relating to H.R. 11500, the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974, are discussed in § 79.131, infra.

§ 79.107 Amendments printed in the Record pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6 to a pending amendment in the nature of a substitute or to a substitute therefor may be debated for 10 minutes if offered following the expiration of all time for debate on the pending amendment and all amendments thereto.

During consideration of H. Res. 988 (to reform the structure, jurisdiction, and procedures of House committees) in the Committee of the Whole on Oct. 7, 1974,⁽¹²⁾ the Chair responded to parliamentary inquiries concerning debate allowed for amendments printed in the Record. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [RICHARD] BOLLING [of Missouri]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentlewoman from Washington (Mrs. Hansen), and all amendments thereto, conclude in 5 hours.

12. 120 CONG. REC. 34170, 34171, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The question is on the motion.

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

MR. BOLLING: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

MR. [JAMES G.] O'HARA [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Chairman, if the motion were to be agreed on, what effect would that have on amendments that have been printed in the Record under the rule?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that amendments printed in the Record would be protected.

MR. O'HARA: A further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman, Would there be time for debate guaranteed to those amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman's statement is correct; they would be protected. . . .

MR. [FRANK] THOMPSON [Jr.] of New Jersey: Mr. Chairman, I did not understand the Chair's answer to the parliamentary inquiry by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. O'Hara). Is it my understanding that notwithstanding that 5 hours under the gentleman's motion would dispose of the Hansen and Martin substitutes in addition thereto for those amendments which have been printed in the Record will there be time to debate them allowed?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to advise the gentleman from New Jersey that the proponents of all amendments printed in the Record that have not been reached during the 5-hour period will be recognized under the rules of the House for 5 minutes in support of their amendments. They would be protected.

13. William H. Natcher (Ky.).

MR. THOMPSON of New Jersey: How about time in opposition?

THE CHAIRMAN: And 5 minutes in opposition. The gentleman is correct.

§ 79.108 Upon the expiration of time for debate on a bill and all amendments thereto, only those amendments which have been printed in the Record pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6 may be debated, while other amendments may be offered and voted upon without debate.

On Dec. 11, 1974,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 17234 (to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair responded to a parliamentary inquiry, as follows:

MR. [THOMAS E.] MORGAN [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I now move that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto cease at 7 o'clock.

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ All time has expired. . . .

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, will those Members who have amendments at the desk have a minute for time to present their amendments?

THE CHAIRMAN: Those Members who have amendments at the desk may present their amendments. Those who have amendments which were printed in the Record will be recognized for 5 minutes in support of their amendments.

§ 79.109 Pursuant to Rule XXIII clause 6, a Member may be recognized for five minutes in opposition to an amendment which had been printed in the Record and debated by its proponent for five minutes, notwithstanding a prior allocation of time to that Member under a limitation on the pending proposition and all amendments thereto.

On July 25, 1974,⁽¹⁶⁾ during consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974 (H.R. 11500) in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair overruled a point of order, as follows:

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

MR. [CRAIG] HOSMER [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. HOSMER: Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Arizona has spoken for a minute and 20 seconds already.

14. 120 CONG. REC. 39165, 39170, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

15. Melvin Price (Ill.).

16. 120 CONG. REC. 25221, 25222, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

17. Neal Smith (Iowa).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under the rule, when the amendment has been printed in the Record, the author of the amendment gets 5 minutes in support of his amendment and an opponent gets 5 minutes in opposition to the amendment, regardless of a time limitation.

The Chair overrules the point of order.

To Qualify for Five Minutes,
Form of Offered Amendment
Must Be Identical to That Printed

§ 79.110 While Rule XXIII clause 6 permits any Member who has printed an amendment in the Record five minutes of debate thereon notwithstanding any limitation imposed by the Committee of the Whole, the amendment must be offered in the precise form in which it was printed in the Record to guarantee its proponent time for debate, and an amendment printed in the Record to be offered to original text is not protected by the rule when offered in different form as an amendment to a pending substitute.

On July 25, 1974,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of

18. 120 CONG. REC. 25230, 25232, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

1974 (H.R. 11500) in the Committee of the Whole, the principle described above was demonstrated as follows:

MR. [JOHN F.] SEIBERLING [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Seiberling to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute: Section 401, page 250, line 5 through page 251, line 5, strike subsection (d) and (e), substitute the following new subsections, and renumber the remaining subsection accordingly:

(d) All operators of coal mining operations which are subject to this Act shall, not later than 60 days following the end of the calendar year 1975 and each calendar year thereafter, pay a reclamation fee to the Secretary equal in amount to $2.50 per ton of coal mined by the operator during the preceding calendar year.

MR. [JOSEPH M.] MCDADE [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment offered as a substitute for the amendment to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

MR. SEIBERLING: Mr. Chairman, a point of order. . . .

Mr. Chairman, this is a third degree amendment on an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁹⁾ This is an amendment to the substitute.

MR. SEIBERLING: It is an amendment to the substitute, which is an amendment to my amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not in the third degree.

19. Neal Smith (Iowa).

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. McDade to the amendment offered by Mr. Ruppe as a substitute for the amendment offered by Mr. Seiberling to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute: Page 249, strike out lines 15 through 16 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

(3) appropriations made to the fund, or amounts credited to the fund, under subsection (d). . . .

MR. MCDADE (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with and that it be printed in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman from Pennsylvania that the time has been set. The gentleman is not on the list.

MR. MCDADE: Mr. Chairman, may I say that I have this amendment printed in the Record. It has been printed for about 10 days.

THE CHAIRMAN: This is an amendment drafted as an amendment to the Ruppe substitute, whereas the amendment which the gentleman caused to be printed in the Record was drafted as an amendment to the committee amendment.

(By unanimous consent Mr. [Edwin D.] Eshleman [of Pennsylvania] yielded his time to the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. McDade.)

§ 79.111 To be guaranteed five minutes of debate on an amendment printed in the Record under clause 6 of Rule XXIII notwithstanding a limitation of debate, the published amendment must indicate the portion of the bill or amendment (or both) to which it could be offered, and debate will not be permitted if the amendment is offered to a proposition not identified in the Record.

On Sept. 28, 1976,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of H.R. 15 (the Public Disclosure of Lobbying Act of 1976), the Chair responded to parliamentary inquiries regarding time for debate on amendments previously printed in the Record, notwithstanding a limitation of debate. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [WALTER] FLOWERS [of Alabama]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto be limited to 30 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Flowers). . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

MR. [ABNER J.] MIKVA [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, if any Member has had an amendment to the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the Record, that Member, would, of course, be protected by the rule and would be allowed to speak for 5 minutes?

20. 122 CONG. REC. 33081, 33082, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

1. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

THE CHAIRMAN: If the amendment had been printed in the proper form, the gentleman is correct.

MR. [THOMAS N.] KINDNESS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. KINDNESS: Mr. Chairman, to clarify the previous parliamentary inquiry, if an amendment was published in the Record as an amendment to be offered to H.R. 15 and not as an amendment to the substitute, I take it that the Member offering the amendment would not be protected at this stage of the proceedings?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

§ 79.112 The guarantee of 10 minutes of debate on amendments printed in the Record inures to an amendment offered as a substitute for another amendment, rather than as an original amendment as originally intended, if offered in the precise form printed; thus, although an amendment printed in the Record to assure debate time under clause 6 of Rule XXIII was not drafted as a substitute for another amendment, the Chair indicated that 10 minutes of debate would be permitted on the amendment if offered as a substitute at the precise point in the bill as previously stated in the Record.

During consideration of the Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979 (H.R. 3930) in the Committee of the Whole on June 26, 1979,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred relative to the offering of an amendment by Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona:

Amendment offered by Mr. Udall: Page 8, after line 13 add the following new subsection and renumber the subsequent sections accordingly:

(g)(1) The Secretary of Energy is hereby authorized to designate a proposed synthetic fuel or feedstock facility as a priority synthetic project. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: . . . I wish to make a point of order, Mr. Chairman, the amendment which I had offered and had printed in the Record would be an appropriate substitute amendment for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Udall). Under the time limitation, if I understand correctly, I have 5 minutes to offer that amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ That is correct if offered in the proper form.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: But if this amendment is not amended by my amendment and succeeds, then I may be precluded from offering that amendment; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: It would be difficult for the Chair to rule on that without

2. 125 CONG. REC. 16681, 16682, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

3. Gerry E. Studds (Mass.).

having seen the gentleman's amendment.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: The question I would put to the Chair as a parliamentary inquiry is: Does, then, my amendment become appropriate to this amendment and give me the right to 5 minutes to discuss my amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: If the gentleman were to offer his amendment as a substitute for this amendment in the form printed in the Record, he would, indeed, have the 5 minutes guaranteed to him under the rule.

§ 79.113 Where all time for debate on a bill and all amendments thereto has expired, only those amendments printed in the Record under the rule may be debated.

On Apr. 23, 1975,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of H.R. 6096⁽⁵⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, the Chair made the following statement regarding debate on amendments:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁶⁾ The Chair would like to state the parliamentary situation as best he can as follows: There is no additional time for debate, except in the case of those amendments which have been printed in the Record as to which the proponents will have 5 minutes and the opponents will have 5 minutes.

Members seeking recognition for amendments which have not been

5. The Vietnam Humanitarian and Evacuation Assistance Act.
6. Otis G. Pike (N.Y.).

printed in the Record will be recognized. Their amendments will be read and they will be voted on.

§ 79.114 A limitation of time for debate abrogates the five-minute rule and allocation of the time remaining to Members seeking recognition is within the discretion of the Chair, except that Members who had caused amendments to be printed in the Record under Rule XXIII clause 6 would receive the full five minutes.

On June 26, 1975,⁽⁷⁾ an illustration of the proposition described above was demonstrated in the Committee of the Whole, as follows:

MR. [NEAL] SMITH of Iowa: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto cease in 60 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁸⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will further add that all Members who were standing at the time the limitation of debate was made will be recognized for approximately 2 minutes each. . . .

7. 121 CONG. REC. 20951, 20957, 94th Cong. 1st Sess. Under consideration was H.R. 8121, the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary and related agencies appropriation bill for fiscal year 1976.

MR. [ROBERT F.] DRINAN [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, will the time be allotted according to the three amendments now pending at the desk?

THE CHAIRMAN: All Members who were listed, who were standing at the time the limitation of time was granted, will be accorded the same amount of time.

MR. DRINAN: Mr. Chairman, will the time be limited with regard to the amendments offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Heinz) so that the other Members who have filed amendments will also have a certain amount of time?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Heinz) will be recognized, and then all other Members will be allotted 2 minutes, except for such amendments as were printed in the Congressional Record. Every Member who has an amendment that was printed in the Congressional Record will be guaranteed a full 5 minutes.

§ 79.115 An amendment printed in the Record at least one day prior to its consideration in Committee of the Whole may be debated five minutes for and five minutes against, regardless of a limitation imposed on five-minute debate by the Committee.

In the Committee of the Whole on Feb. 1, 1978,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1614 (the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments), the following exchange occurred:

MR. [JOHN M.] MURPHY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I will revise the unanimous-consent request.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that when we convene tomorrow, all debate on H.R. 1614 and all amendments and substitutes thereto end after 3 hours of debate. . . .

MR. [DAVID C.] TREEN [of Louisiana]: Mr. Chairman, if the unanimous-consent request is granted, will all amendments that are in the Record as of tonight have the protection of the 5-minute rule, including any amendments that are put in the Record tonight?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair would like to advise the gentleman that his inquiry is correct. They would be protected; all amendments placed in the Record tonight would be protected.

MR. TREEN: And each would have 5 minutes for presentation; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that the gentleman is correct; 5 minutes would be allotted to each side.

ation of that portion of the bill to which the limitation applies, are nevertheless debatable for 10 minutes when consideration resumes on the following day.

On Mar. 15, 1978,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 50 (the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1978) in the Committee of the Whole, Chairman William H. Natcher, of Kentucky, responded to parliamentary inquiries as to the effect a limitation on debate would have to amendments printed in the Record. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [AUGUSTUS F.] HAWKINS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on title I and all amendments thereto terminate at 5:45 p.m. . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, am I correct in my understanding that at the conclusion of the 45 minutes of debate that is remaining any amendments that have been printed in the Record prior to this date allow the Member to have 5 minutes of discussion today and 5 minutes for the opposition?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Maryland is correct.

11. 124 CONG. REC. 7044, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. BAUMAN: Further, Mr. Chairman, if a motion were made for the Committee to rise at that time, those amendments would still be under the limitation tomorrow?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. BAUMAN: Further, Mr. Chairman, would amendments printed in the Record tonight to title I also be in order tomorrow?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is again correct.

Pro Forma Amendments Printed in Record

§ 79.117 A Member who has printed a “pro forma” amendment (to strike the last three words) in the Record is entitled to five minutes on the amendment despite the expiration of a limitation on debate; and the amendment must be voted on unless withdrawn by unanimous consent.

On Oct. 24, 1979,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3000 (the Department of Energy authorization bill) in the Committee of the Whole, the following occurred:

MR. [JAMES A.] COURTER [of New Jersey]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Courter: On page 79 at the end of title VIII: Strike out the last three words.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

(Mr. Dingell asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ Without objection, the pro forma amendment of the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Courter) is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

Five Minutes in Support Inures Only to Member Placing Amendment in Record

§ 79.118 Pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XXIII, only the Member causing an amendment to be printed in the Congressional Record is entitled to five minutes upon offering the amendment in Committee of the Whole notwithstanding a limitation on time for debate under the five-minute rule.

On Nov. 12, 1980,⁽¹⁴⁾ during consideration of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (S. 885), the Committee of the Whole having limited time for debate under the five-minute rule on the bill and all amendments thereto to a time certain, the Chairman stated that he would first recognize Members who did not have amendments printed in the Record for three minutes each, and would then recognize Members with amendments printed in the Record for five minutes (to which they were entitled under clause 6 of Rule XXIII). The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [MANUEL] LUJAN [Jr., of New Mexico]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the bill and the amendment in the nature of a substitute and all amendments thereto cease at 5:30...

The motion was agreed to. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ Members standing at the time the unanimous-consent request was agreed to will be recognized for 3 minutes each, unless the Member has an amendment printed in the Record, in which case he or she is protected. . . .

MR. [EDWARD J.] MARKEY [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Markey: Page 27, line 10, strike "may" and insert therefor "shall".

15. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

The Chair then initially recognized Mr. Markey for five minutes, but subsequently stated, having noted that the amendment was printed in the Record under the name of Mr. James Weaver, of Oregon:

THE CHAIRMAN: Will the gentleman suspend for just a moment, please?

The Chair would like to advise the gentleman that the Chair was incorrect originally, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Markey) has 3 minutes under the rule in support of his amendment.

Form of Amendment Offered Must Conform to That Printed

§ 79.119 To be guaranteed the right to five minutes on an amendment printed in the Record notwithstanding a limitation on debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole, the Member causing the amendment to be printed must offer the amendment exactly as it was printed in the Record.

During consideration of S. 885 (Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act of 1980) in the Committee of the Whole on Nov. 14, 1980,⁽¹⁶⁾ an amendment was offered by Mr. James Weaver, of Oregon, as follows:

16. 126 CONG. REC. 29613, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

Amendment offered by Mr. Weaver: Page 11, lines 24–25, strike “appointed” and insert “elected”;

Page 12, line 2, after “Council.”, insert “All references in this Act to the appointment of the members of such Council shall be deemed to mean the election of the members of such Council under applicable state law.”.

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. DINGELL: Mr. Chairman, the rule provides that the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Weaver) is recognized for 5 minutes if his amendment has been printed in the Record. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. DINGELL: That rule requires, as I understand it, that the amendment printed in the Record and the amendment which is offered be identical in every word and particular. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

Upon assurance by Mr. Weaver that the amendment was identical to that appearing in the Record, the Chair recognized Mr. Weaver for five minutes.

Points of Order After Expiration of Limitation

§ 79.120 The Chair may hear argument on a point of order against an amendment although all debate under the five-minute rule on the pending paragraph and all amendments thereto has been closed.

On Mar. 29, 1966,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. Elford A. Cederberg, of Michigan, offered an amendment to a paragraph, after all time for debate on the paragraph and amendments thereto had expired under a unanimous-consent limitation of time. Mr. Joseph L. Evins, of Tennessee, made a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it constituted legislation in an appropriation bill. Chairman James G. O'Hara, of Michigan, allowed Mr. Cederberg to be heard briefly on the point of order despite the expiration of the limitation.⁽¹⁹⁾

Reallocation of Time

§ 79.121 Where time for debate under the five-minute rule was, by unanimous consent, extended beyond that previously fixed, the Chair reallocated the additional time among those Members who had requested time under

19. Debate on a point of order is always in the Chair's discretion (see §67.3, supra).

the original limitation but had not been reached.

On Nov. 15, 1967,⁽²⁰⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a motion to close debate under the five-minute rule at 8:05 p.m. When the time under the limitation was largely consumed by teller votes and preferential motions, the Committee agreed by unanimous consent to extend the time to 8:45 p.m. Chairman John J. Rooney, of New York, stated in response to parliamentary inquiries that he would reallocate the extended time only among those Members originally on the list to be recognized under the limitation:

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his point of order.

MR. ASHBROOK: Under the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Oklahoma, the previous order was vacated. Does that mean the allocation of time under that was also vacated?

THE CHAIRMAN: Yes. The Chair then allocated the additional 30 minutes among the Members on the list he had before him.

MR. ASHBROOK: What about Members who were not in that previous listing?

THE CHAIRMAN: They may not be recognized. The Chair is attempting to do what he has been trying to do since the first limitation of time was proposed, and that is to dispose of the amendments at the desk.

20. 113 CONG. REC. 32691-94, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [ALBERT H.] QUIE [of Minnesota]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. QUIE: If a Member has an amendment at the desk but his name is not on the list, he will not be precluded from offering his amendment; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: No. There is no question about that. If a Member's name is not on the list, he will not have any time, but his amendment will be voted on.⁽¹⁾

Parliamentarian's Note: The Chair in his discretion could have allocated time under the new limitation to Members who were not listed under the original allocation.

§ 79.122 Where debate under the five-minute rule has been limited to a time certain and remaining time has been reduced by a rollcall, the Chair may reallocate the remaining time among the remaining Members to whom time had been initially allocated and may first recognize Members on that list who desire to offer amendments.

On Apr. 26, 1978,⁽²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 8494, the Public Disclosure of Lobbying Act of 1978, a motion to limit debate to a time certain was agreed to:

MR. [GEORGE E.] DANIELSON [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this bill and all amendments thereto be terminated at the hour of 7:30 o'clock p.m. tonight.

[The motion was agreed to.]

MR. [THOMAS N.] KINDNESS [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Kindness: On page 32, line 5, strike "or".

On page 32, line 16, insert "or" after the semicolon. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kindness).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Kindness) there were—ayes 16, noes 22. . . .

MR. KINDNESS: Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 207, noes 188, not voting 39, as follows: . . .

So the amendment was agreed to. . . .

3. Lloyd Meeds (Wash.).

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that under the motion setting a limitation of time previously entered into, all debate will terminate in 10 minutes.

The parliamentary situation is that there are nine Members remaining to be recognized, and there are approximately 9 minutes left. Each Member listed will be recognized for approximately 1 minute.

The Chair will first ask if there are Members on the list who have amendments to be offered.

If not, the Chair will first recognize the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. McClory).

§ 79.123 When no Members stand to indicate their desire to be recognized under a limitation on five-minute debate when the limitation is agreed to, the Chair allows debate to proceed under the five-minute rule; but the Committee of the Whole may subsequently by unanimous consent allow the time remaining under the limitation to be divided among Members indicating a desire to speak.

On May 19, 1978,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of the Alaska National Interest Conservation Lands Act of 1978 (H.R. 39) in the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

MR. [MORRIS K.] UDALL [of Arizona]: . . . Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the pending Udall substitute and all amendments thereto end at 11:15 a.m. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I change my unanimous-consent request to 12 o'clock noon.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. GARY A. MYERS [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, at the time the debate was limited, there was no assigning of time to individuals. Is that procedure in accordance with normal practice?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state that at the time the debate was limited, no one was standing. Therefore, we proceeded under the regular 5-minute rule.

MR. GARY A. MYERS: . . . Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remaining time be divided by those who are presently standing and make a request for time to speak during the remaining period.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

§ 79.124 Where time has been limited for debate under the five-minute rule in Committee of the Whole, the Chair may continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule and then as the expiration time approaches allocate the remaining time among Members seeking to offer amendments not printed in the Congressional Record, and Members opposing such amendments.

On June 27, 1979,⁽⁶⁾ it was demonstrated that where a limitation on debate abrogated the five-minute rule and the ordinary criteria for priority of recognition, the Chair could extend priority of recognition under a limitation to Members seeking to offer amendments not printed in the Record, before recognizing members of the reporting committee. The proceedings during consideration of H.R. 4389 (the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations) in the Committee of the Whole were as follows:

MR. [WILLIAM H.] NATCHER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the balance of the bill be considered as read, open to amendment at any point, and that all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto close at 8:30 p.m.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would like to make an announcement. We have less than 45 minutes of the allocated time. The Chair would like for all those Members who have amendments which are not printed in the Record—not printed in the Record—to please rise and remain standing so that the Chair can get the names of the Members and try to recognize them for the offering of their amendments.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. Miller) for approximately 3 minutes.

MR. [ROBERT H.] MICHEL [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MICHEL: Mr. Chairman, is it not normal practice to recognize members of the committee before we recognize other Members?

THE CHAIRMAN: Not when a time limitation has been imposed. That rule does not apply, but the Chair will try to protect all the Members who do not have amendments printed in the Record.

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CONTE: If some member of the committee opposes one of these amendments, may that Member rise and speak against an amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: Certainly.

§ 79.125 Where debate has been limited to a time certain on an amendment and all amendments thereto, the Chairman may utilize his discretion in allocating debate time and continue to recognize Members under the five-minute rule; but he may choose at a later time to divide any remaining debate time among those Members standing and reserve some time for the committee to conclude debate.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Nov. 2, 1983,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of the Department of Defense appropriations for fiscal year 1984 (H.R. 4185):

MR. [JOSEPH P.] ADDABBO [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close at 2 o'clock. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ Is there objection to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Addabbo) . . . ?

There was no objection.

MR. [SAMUEL S.] STRATTON [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Under the unanimous-consent agreement, does that mean only those who were standing at the time the agreement was entered into may enter into the debate?

THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will continue to allow time under the 5-minute rule.⁽¹⁰⁾

8. 129 CONG. REC. 30504, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.
9. Abraham Kazen, Jr. (Tex.).
10. Approximately 90 minutes of time for debate remained at this point.

With about 30 minutes remaining under the limitation, the Chair⁽¹¹⁾ stated:⁽¹²⁾

The Chair recognizes that there are more Members rising that wish to participate in the debate than time will permit.

The Chair has the discretion of dividing the time among Members who wish to participate in the debate, and the Chair would also make a request that those who have already entered into the debate not seek further time.

Those Members who wish to participate in the debate will please rise.

The Chair will reserve 2 minutes for the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Edwards) to conclude the debate.

Members standing will be recognized for 1½ minutes each.

Reallocating Controlled Time by Unanimous Consent

§ 79.126 Where the House has adopted a special rule limiting debate on an amendment in Committee of the Whole and equally dividing the time between the proponent and an opponent, the Committee of the Whole may, by unanimous consent, allocate some of the opposition time to the proponent where no Member has claimed time in opposition.

11. Dan Rostenkowski (Ill.).
12. 129 CONG. REC. 30512, 98th Cong. 1st Sess., Nov. 2, 1983.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Mar. 3, 1983,⁽¹³⁾ during consideration of H.R. 1718 (emergency appropriations for fiscal 1983):

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁴⁾ Pursuant to House Resolution 113, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Howard) will be recognized for 15 minutes, and a Member opposed to the amendment will be recognized for the other 15 minutes.

Is there a Member opposed who wishes to control that time?

No Member has responded, and the Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Howard) for 15 minutes.

MR. [M. G. (GENE)] SNYDER [of Kentucky]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SNYDER: The Chairman, since no one has risen in opposition, would it be permissible to ask unanimous consent to transfer 5 minutes of the opposition time to the gentleman from New Jersey?

THE CHAIRMAN: Under unanimous consent, yes.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Chairman, I make that request.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Committee of the Whole may not

13. 129 CONG. REC. 3939, 3943, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

14. David E. Bonior (Mich.).

by unanimous consent extend time for debate set by the House, but may reallocate time where there is no opposition.

Effect of Limitation Where Committee Rises for the Day

§ 79.127 The Chair stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that where all debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto has been limited to a time certain (i.e., 5 p.m.) and the Committee of the Whole rises before that time without having completed action on the amendment, no time would be considered as remaining when the Committee, on a later day, again resumed consideration of the amendment.

On May 6, 1970,⁽¹⁵⁾ Chairman Daniel D. Rostenkowski, of Illinois, answered parliamentary inquiries on the effect of a limitation of debate under the five-minute rule:

MR. [ROBERT L.] LEGGETT [of California]: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. LEGGETT: Mr. Chairman, considering the fact that a time limitation has now been set in relation to today at 5 o'clock, does the time of the debate on the motion that we have already heard, come out of the time on the amendments?

15. 116 CONG. REC. 14452, 91st Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The time will come out of the time of those who are participating in debate.

MR. LEGGETT: Mr. Chairman, a further parliamentary inquiry. If we choose to rise right now and come back tomorrow, then would there be any time limitation on debate?

THE CHAIRMAN: There would be no further debate.

The time was set at 5 o'clock.

§ 79.128 Where the Committee of the Whole has agreed by unanimous consent that all debate under the five-minute rule on a bill and amendments thereto close at 4:15 p.m., and the Committee rises before that time without having completed action on all amendments, no time is considered as remaining when the House resolves back into the Committee of the Whole for the further consideration of the bill on the following day.

On May 10, 1961,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Committee of the Whole had agreed to a unanimous-consent request that all debate on the pending bill and amendments thereto close at 4:15 p.m. The Committee rose before consideration of all amendments to the bill had been completed, and before 4:15. In the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, answered a parliamentary inquiry on the effect of the limitation:

16. 107 CONG. REC. 7725, 7727, 7728, 87th Cong. 1st Sess.

MR. [CHARLES A.] HALLECK [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HALLECK: While the Committee of the Whole was considering the bill H.R. 2010, a unanimous consent request was granted to limit all debate on the bill and all amendments thereto to 4:15 this afternoon. In the meantime, the Committee has risen. My parliamentary inquiry is, in view of the fact the time limit was set at 4:15, which is some 25 minutes from now, does not that mean that debate tomorrow will be limited to 25 minutes?

THE SPEAKER: It means, unless there is another consent agreement, that there will not be any more debate.

MR. HALLECK: There will be no more debate?

THE SPEAKER: Not unless there is an agreement to extend the time.

Parliamentarian's Note: If the limitation had provided for a fixed period, such as a certain number of minutes of debate, the number of minutes not consumed would have remained on the following day. On the day following the precedent discussed above, the House agreed by unanimous consent, before resolving itself into the Committee of the Whole, to allow two minutes in favor of each amendment to be offered and two minutes in opposition.⁽¹⁷⁾

§ 79.129 The House agreed to a unanimous-consent request that further debate on a bill and amendments thereto close in one hour, half to be consumed on the present day and half when the Committee resumed its sitting on the following day.

On June 22, 1960,⁽¹⁸⁾ the Committee of the Whole agreed to a unanimous-consent request propounded by Mr. Harold D. Cooley, of North Carolina, to close debate on a bill and amendments thereto:

. . . The unanimous consent request was that debate be fixed at 1 hour on the bill, and all amendments thereto, and that we consume 30 minutes of that hour this afternoon and reserve 30 minutes to be used tomorrow. That means the Committee will rise at approximately 5 minutes after 6.

§ 79.130 Prior to rising for the day, the Committee of the Whole limited debate on a title of a bill and all amendments thereto to one hour of debate, and the Chair advised that upon again resolving into the Committee, Members would be recognized within the time limit under the five-minute rule.

18. 106 CONG. REC. 13874, 86th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Aug. 2, 1966,⁽¹⁹⁾ the Committee of the Whole was considering for amendment title III of H.R. 14765, the Civil Rights Act of 1966. Prior to rising for the day, the Committee agreed to a request by Mr. Peter W. Rodino, Jr., of New Jersey, that all debate on the title and amendments thereto terminate in one hour. Chairman Richard Bolling, of Missouri, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that when the Committee again took up the bill on a following day, Members would be recognized subject to the limitation under the five-minute rule.

§ 79.131 Where the Committee of the Whole rises prior to completion of debate which has been limited to a designated number of minutes rather than by the clock, time for debate remains under the limitation when the Committee resumes consideration at a subsequent time.

When consideration of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1974⁽²⁰⁾ resumed in the Committee of the Whole on July 24, 1974,⁽¹⁾ Chairman Neal Smith, of Iowa, made an explanatory statement of the pending situation as follows:

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H.R. 11500, with Mr. Smith of Iowa in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will attempt to explain the situation.

Before the Committee rose on yesterday, it had agreed that the remainder of the substitute committee amendment titles II through VIII, inclusive, would be considered as read and open to amendment at any point.

The Committee further agreed that the time for debate under the 5-minute rule would be limited to not to exceed 3 hours and allocated time to titles II through VIII as follows: 50 minutes for title II, 20 minutes for title III, 50 minutes for title IV, 5 minutes for title V, 5 minutes for title VI, 40 minutes for title VII, and 10 minutes for title VIII.

In an attempt to be consistent with the unanimous-consent agreement entered into on yesterday, the Chair will endeavor to recognize all Members who wish to offer or debate amendments to title II during the 50 minutes of time for debate on that title.

If Members who have printed their amendments to title II in the Record would agree to offer those amendments during the 50-minute period and to be recognized for the allotted time, the Chair will recognize both Committee and non-Committee members for that purpose.

Members who have caused amendments to title II to be printed in the Record, however, are protected under clause 6, rule XXIII, and will be permitted to debate for 5 minutes any such amendment which they might offer to title II at the conclusion of the 50 minutes of debate thereon.

The Chair will now compile a list of those Members seeking recognition to offer or debate amendments to title II and will allocate 50 minutes for debate accordingly.

The Chair will give preference where possible to those Members who have amendments to offer to title II.

Members who were standing at the time of the determination of the time allocation will be recognized for 1 minute and 20 seconds each.

Transferring Allocated Time

§ 79.132 Where time for debate on an amendment and all amendments thereto has been limited and the time remaining has been allocated by the Chairman to Members seeking recognition, a Member may, by unanimous consent yield his time to another Member but a motion to that effect is not in order.

On June 25, 1975,⁽²⁾ during consideration of the Departments of

20. H.R. 11500.

1. 120 CONG. REC. 25009, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

2. 121 CONG. REC. 20839, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare appropriations for fiscal year 1976 (H.R. 8069) in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Daniel J. Flood, of Pennsylvania, made a motion as follows:

MR. FLOOD: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close . . . in 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽³⁾ The gentleman from Pennsylvania moves that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto close in 10 minutes.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania. . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

THE CHAIRMAN: Members standing at the time the motion was made will be recognized for approximately one-half minute each.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. Downey).

MR. [THOMAS J.] DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to yield my time to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey). . . .

MR. [JOHN M.] ASHBROOK [of Ohio]: Mr. Chairman, I object to any yielding.

THE CHAIRMAN: Objection is heard.

The gentleman from New York will be given the opportunity to speak for 30 seconds.

MR. DOWNEY of New York: Mr. Chairman, I move that my time be given to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Obey).

THE CHAIRMAN: That is an improper motion. The Chair would suggest that

3. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

the gentleman from New York might yield for a question to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

MR. [DAVID R.] OBEY [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. DOWNEY of New York: I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Transferring Unused Debate Time to Another Amendment

§ 79.133 By unanimous consent, remaining debate fixed at a time certain on an amendment in the nature of a substitute may be converted to minutes of debate and reserved to follow disposition of a pending perfecting amendment not covered by the limitation.

On Apr. 13, 1983,⁽⁴⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 13 (nuclear weapons freeze) in the Committee of the Whole, the following exchange occurred:

MR. [HENRY J.] HYDE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, would a unanimous-consent request be in order that the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Levitas) move his perfecting amendment and a unanimous-consent request that the same limitation on debate that prevailed before his motion obtain following it? Could that be done by unanimous consent?

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The Chair is unclear as to the nature of the gentleman's inquiry.

4. 129 CONG. REC. 8402-04, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

5. Matthew F. McHugh (N.Y.).

MR. HYDE: I think what the chairman has said is that if the gentleman from Georgia's motion is granted or his request is granted, the limitation that has been set on debate would no longer prevail; is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that the limitation of debate applies only to debate on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Levitas) which is now pending.

MR. HYDE: I am asking the Chair if he made another motion asking unanimous consent that the same limitation on debate that has previously been entered apply, would that be in order?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman could ask unanimous consent for a limitation on the perfecting amendment. . . .

MR. [ELLIOTT H.] LEVITAS [of Georgia]: Mr. Chairman, I offer a perfecting amendment. . . .

Mr. Chairman, I will seek recognition for debate on the amendment if I may ask a parliamentary inquiry before I do.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. LEVITAS: My parliamentary inquiry is this. The perfecting amendment which I have just offered is now available for debate under the 5-minute rule without any time constraints?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. LEVITAS: The time limitation that was originally agreed to for termination of debate on the pending substitute to end at 3 o'clock, that was the focus of the time limitation.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman is correct.

MR. LEVITAS: My parliamentary inquiry is this: Would it be in order to request unanimous consent to preserve the time of those Members who had time allocated to them under the original limitation so that their time would be preserved at the conclusion of the disposition of the pending amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman or any other Member could request unanimous consent for that purpose.

MR. LEVITAS: A further parliamentary inquiry: Would it be in order after this amendment is explained to seek a time limitation on debate of the pending amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: That would be in order.

MR. LEVITAS: Well, under the circumstances, Mr. Chairman, I will make a unanimous-consent request that after the question is put on the pending amendment, that the time remaining under the original time limitation on the substitute will be made available to the Members who have such time allocated to them.

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

MR. [C. W. BILL] YOUNG of Florida: I make a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. YOUNG of Florida: Those of us who had time under the original reservation no longer have that time, and would be precluded by this unanimous-consent request from debating the perfecting amendment, which is an entirely different issue than the substitute was. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would ask the gentleman from Georgia whether it is his intent under the unanimous-consent request that the time allocated to those who have not yet been recognized under the limitation of time be the time originally allocated to them by other Members or a pro rata reduction of the time that is now remaining before 3 o'clock, the time originally set?

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I would hope that since the substitute and the so-called perfecting amendment to House Joint Resolution 13 are practically identical, certainly in substance, that we could limit the time to 15 minutes after the gentleman from Georgia's 5-minute allocated time for explaining his amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that—

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that there is now pending a unanimous-consent request by the gentleman from Georgia to permit the Members who have not spoken under the limitation of time their allocated time as originally allocated on the amendment in the nature of a substitute. . . .

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Effect of Debate on Amendment Pending When Limitation Imposed

§ 79.134 Where a motion to limit debate has been made and agreed to following the offering of an amendment but prior to recognition of its proponent, the Chair may nevertheless allocate five minutes to the proponent and in his discretion divide the remaining time among other Members.

A limitation on time for debate, in effect, abrogates the five-minute rule. On one occasion, a Member who had offered an amendment but had not been recognized to debate the amendment was recognized, in the exercise of discretion by the Chair, for five minutes. The proceedings of Oct. 9, 1975,⁽⁶⁾ in the Committee of the Whole, were as follows:

MRS. [LEONOR K.] SULLIVAN [of Missouri] (during the reading): Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that title IV be considered as read, printed in the Record, and open to amendment at any point.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁷⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

MRS. SULLIVAN: Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate on the pending amendment to title IV and all amendments thereto be limited to 10 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would prefer to wait until the amendment has been offered.

MR. [PAUL N.] MCCLOSKEY [Jr., of California]: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

6. 121 CONG. REC. 32600, 94th Cong. 1st Sess.

7. Neal Smith (Iowa).

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. McCloskey: On page 77 at line 18 add a new section as follows:

"Sec. 407. The United States hereby consents to the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice with respect to any claim or controversy arising as a result of the enactment or the implementation of this Act.

THE CHAIRMAN: Does the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. Sullivan) move to limit debate on this title and all amendments thereto to 10 minutes?

MRS. SULLIVAN: I do, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. Sullivan).

The motion was agreed to.

MR. MCCLOSKEY: Mr. Chairman, may I ask if I will have 5 minutes to explain my amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from California is correct, he will have 5 minutes.

Ordering of Amendments Under Limitation

§ 79.135 Where the Committee of the Whole had limited debate to a time certain on a motion to strike a portion of pending text, the Chair requested a Member to withhold offering a perfecting amendment to the text until the expiration of the limitation since the limitation did not apply to perfecting amendments which could be offered, debated, and voted upon prior to the vote on the motion to strike and since debate on the perfecting amendment, if offered during the limitation, would reduce time remaining under the limitation.

On May 24, 1977,⁽⁸⁾ during consideration of the International Security Assistance Act of 1977 (H.R. 6884) in the Committee of the Whole, the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁹⁾ When the Committee of the Whole House rose on Monday, May 2, 1977, the bill had been considered as having been read and open to amendment at any point, and pending was an amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Ichord).

Without objection, the Clerk will again report the amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Ichord: Page 8, line 17, strike out "$2,214,700,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$12,114,700,000". . . .

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: . . . I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto end at 1:15 p.m. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

8. 123 CONG. REC. 16172, 16175, 16176, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

9. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

There was no objection. . . .

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk which has been printed in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN: Would the gentleman withhold his amendment until the limitation of time expires.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, will the amendment then be in order and may it be offered prior to the vote on the Ichord amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that the amendment will be in order as a perfecting amendment prior to the vote on the Ichord amendment.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, in that case, I will withhold the amendment at this time.

§ 79.136 Where there was pending an amendment in the nature of a substitute, a substitute therefor and an amendment to the substitute, and debate had been limited on the substitute and all amendments thereto but not on the original amendment or amendments thereto, the Chair indicated that: (1) further amendments to the substitute or modifications of the substitute by unanimous consent must await disposition of the pending amendment to the substitute; (2) amendments to the original amendment could be offered and debated under the five-minute rule and would be voted on before amendments to the substitute; (3) amendments to the substitute could be offered and voted upon without debate unless printed in the Record pursuant to clause 6 of Rule XXIII; and (4) the question would not be put on the substitute until all perfecting amendments to it and to the original amendment were disposed of.

During consideration of the Natural Gas Emergency Act of 1976 (H.R. 9464) in the Committee of the Whole on Feb. 5, 1976,⁽¹⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [JOHN D.] DINGELL [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I rise to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on the Smith amendment and all amendments thereto terminate immediately upon the conclusion of consideration of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Eckhardt).

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹¹⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, as I understood it, the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell)

10. 122 CONG. REC. 2646-48, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

11. Richard Bolling (Mo.).

was that all debate on the Smith substitute amendment cease after the disposition of the Eckhardt amendment. The Eckhardt amendment would be the pending business then, and immediately after the determination of the Eckhardt amendment, we would vote on the Smith amendment. Is that not correct? . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Let the Chair add this: the Chair has said it once, and would like to say it again. Before we vote on the Smith substitute, amendments to the Krueger amendment are debatable if offered.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: I understand that, Mr. Chairman. My questions were with reference only to how we get to the Smith amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: The point that the Chair is trying to make, regardless of what agreements are reached, is that until the Krueger amendment is finally perfected to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Chair cannot put the question on the Smith substitute. . . .

There has been no limitation of debate on the Krueger amendment or amendments thereto. The basic parliamentary situation is that we have a substitute amendment for the amendment in the nature of a substitute, the Krueger amendment. Both of those are subject to amendment, but both must be perfected before the Chair can put the question on the substitute for the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: With respect to the unanimous-consent request of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell), the Eckhardt amendment is still to be voted upon, and then there are to be no other amendments to the Smith amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: There is to be no further debate on such amendments. . . .

MR. BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, if my time still applies, I would like to ask the Chair to state the circumstances. If I may, before the Chair does that, I would like to ask the question this way: As the situation stands at this moment, the Krueger amendment is still perfectable by amendments under the normal course of time, and there is no limitation on the Krueger amendment.

The Smith amendment, however, can be perfected only by the vote on the Eckhardt amendment, and then if there are other amendments to the Smith amendment there is no debate time remaining on those amendments.

Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: Unless they are printed in the Record.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: And if they are printed in the Record, the debate time is 5 minutes per side pro and con. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. BROWN of Ohio: And they must be printed as amendments to the Smith amendment. Is that correct?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct. . . .

MR. [ROBERT] KRUEGER [of Texas]: . . . Mr. Chairman, my question is this: We will vote first on the Eckhardt amendment to the Smith substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is right.

MR. KRUEGER: Following that, there will then be a vote without further debate on the Smith substitute, or no?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair cannot say, because if there were amendments printed in the Record, there can be both an amendment offered and debate on the amendment. If there were no amendments that were qualified for debate by being printed in the Record, they could not be offered and voted on without debate.

But if they are offered to the Krueger amendment in the nature of a substitute, they would both be considered and would be debatable under the 5-minute rule.

MR. KRUEGER: Mr. Chairman, does the 5-minute rule apply also to any possible amendments to the Smith substitute?

THE CHAIRMAN: The 5-minute rule applies only to amendments to the Smith amendment which has been printed in the Record. Other amendments to the Smith amendment do not have debate time; they are just voted on.

§ 79.137 Where debate has been limited on a pending section and all amendments thereto and time allocated among those Members desiring to offer amendments to that section, the Chair may decline to recognize a Member to offer an amendment adding a new section and therefore not covered by the limitation, until perfecting amendments to the pending section have been disposed of under the limitation.

On June 26, 1979,⁽¹²⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3930, the

12. 125 CONG. REC. 16679, 16680, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

Defense Production Act Amendments of 1979, the Committee of the Whole was proceeding under a limitation on debate on section 3 and amendments thereto, when an amendment was offered by Mr. Morris K. Udall, of Arizona:

Amendment offered by Mr. Udall: Page 8, after line 13 add the following new section and renumber the subsequent sections accordingly.

Sec. 4. The Secretary of Energy is hereby authorized to designate a proposed synthetic fuel or feedstock facility as a priority synthetic project. . . .

MR. [CLARENCE J.] BROWN of Ohio: Mr. Chairman, is this amendment to section 3 or section 4? . . .

The copy I have indicates that it is to section 4, Mr. Chairman. Is that correct?

MR. UDALL: I had modified it to apply to section 3.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹³⁾ The Clerk will cease reading the amendment.

The Chair will advise the gentleman from Arizona that this amendment currently being read adds a new section 4, and is not covered by the limitation on time, and should not be offered at this time. . . .

MR. UDALL: I had intended—I had so instructed the Clerk to change this to an amendment to section 3, not section 4. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: . . . The Chair will advise the gentleman from Arizona that he is within his rights to redraft the amendment as an amendment to section 3, but the Chair understood that is not the amendment currently being read.

13. Gerry E. Studts (Mass.).

MR. UDALL: I so offer it as an amendment to section 3.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Clerk will report the amendment.

Where Debate Limitation Is on Motion To Strike

§ 79.138 Where the Committee of the Whole had limited debate to a time certain on a motion to strike a portion of pending text, the Chair requested a Member to withhold offering a perfecting amendment to the text until the expiration of the limitation since the limitation did not apply to perfecting amendments which could be offered, debated, and voted upon prior to the vote on the motion to strike and since debate on the perfecting amendment, if offered during the limitation, would reduce time remaining under the limitation.

On May 24, 1977,⁽¹⁴⁾ the Committee of the Whole having under consideration the International Security Assistance Act of 1977 (H.R. 6884), the following proceedings occurred:

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁵⁾ When the Committee of the Whole House rose on

14. 123 CONG. REC. 16172, 16175, 16176, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

15. Don Fuqua (Fla.).

Monday, May 2, 1977, the bill had been considered as having been read and open to amendment at any point, and pending was an amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Ichord).

Without objection, the Clerk will again report the amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Ichord: Page 8, line 17, strike out "$2,214,700,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$12,114,700,000"; on page 9, line 17, strike out "sections" and insert in lieu thereof "section"; strike out line 18 on page 9 and all that follows through line 2 on page 11; and in line 3 on page 11, strike out "534" and insert in lieu thereof "533". . . .

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: Mr. Chairman, I wonder if we could determine how many more speakers we have.

I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment and all amendments thereto end at 1:15 p.m. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection. . . .

THE CHAIRMAN: The time of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) has expired.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk which has been printed in the Record.

THE CHAIRMAN: Would the gentleman withhold his amendment until the limitation of time expires.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, will the amendment then be in order and may it be offered prior to the vote on the Ichord amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will advise the gentleman that the amendment will be in order as a perfecting amendment prior to the vote on the Ichord amendment.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, in that case, I will withhold the amendment at this time.

Protected Amendment Offered During Allocated Time

§ 79.139 While under clause 6 of Rule XXIII, five minutes of debate in favor of an amendment and five minutes in opposition is permitted notwithstanding a limitation on debate where the amendment has been printed in the Record, if the proponent of the amendment offers it during his allocated time under the limitation and does not claim a separate five-minute recognition under the rule, then a Member opposing the amendment to whom time has been allocated under the limitation must consume that time and cannot claim a separate five minutes under the rule.

On Mar. 2, 1976,⁽¹⁶⁾ the Chair ruled that, pursuant to Rule XXIII, clause 6, a separate ten minutes of debate on an amendment printed in the Record is in order only where the proponent of the amendment claims that time notwithstanding an imposed limitation; and where the amendment is offered and debated within the time allocated under the limitation, a separate five minutes in opposition is not available:

16. 122 CONG. REC. 4994, 4995, 94th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [PHILIP H.] HAYES of Indiana: Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hayes of Indiana: Page 39, immediately after line 12, insert the following new subsection:

“(c) Section 402(d) of the Act (30 U.S.C. 902(d)) is amended by inserting immediately before the period at the end thereof the following: ‘, including any individual who is or was employed in any aboveground mining operation.’ . . .

MR. [JOHN N.] ERLBORN [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁷⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, since this amendment was one of the published amendments, 5 minutes in opposition to the amendment is available not counting against the limit?

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman would be correct if debate on the amendment were outside of the limitation. . . .

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, may I have the 5 minutes, under the rule?

THE CHAIRMAN: It will be counted against the gentleman's time if the gentleman takes it at this time.

17. Sam Gibbons (Fla.).

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, I understand there are 5 minutes in opposition that are available, under the rule; and I claim those 5 minutes.

THE CHAIRMAN: It is the Chair's understanding that at this point debate on the amendment is under the limitation. The gentleman could claim his 5 minutes under the rule if the amendment were offered, notwithstanding the limitation, but not at this time. . . .

MR. ERLBORN: Mr. Chairman, I have 5 minutes, under the time limitation?

THE CHAIRMAN: That is correct.

MR. ERLBORN: Without using that, am I not entitled to 5 minutes to oppose a published or printed amendment?

THE CHAIRMAN: No, because the proponent of the amendment did not take his time under the rule. The gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Hayes) had 5 minutes reserved under the limitation of time. The Chair understands the gentleman from Indiana took his time under the limitation and not under the rule.

J. READING PAPERS AND DISPLAYING EXHIBITS

§ 80. In General

Until it was rewritten in the 103d Congress,⁽¹⁸⁾ Rule XXX required the consent of the House or the Committee of the Whole for the reading of papers if objection was made:

When the reading of a paper other than one upon which the House is called to give a final vote is demanded, and the same is objected to by any Member, it shall be determined without debate by a vote of the House.⁽¹⁹⁾

Rule XXX now states:⁽²⁰⁾

18. See H. Res. 5, 103d Cong. 1st Sess., Jan. 5, 1993.
19. House Rules and Manual §915 (1991). For parliamentary law on reading papers, see Jefferson's Manual, House Rules and Manual §§ 432–436 (1995).
20. House Rules and Manual §915 (1995).

When the use of any exhibit in debate is objected to by any Member, it shall be determined without debate by a vote of the House.

Under the former rule, the consent of the House was only required for the reading of papers on which a Member was not called to vote. The reading of messages, and bills and resolutions which had been called up for consideration, were governed by other rules and practices which are not discussed in this division. Committee reports which were not to be voted upon could be read in debate, but the consent of the House was required if objection was made.⁽¹⁾ If a report presented facts

1. See 5 Hinds' Precedents §§ 5292, 5293. Similarly, the statement accompanying a report may be read and conclusions without accompanying a legislative proposition, it was read to the House if acted upon.⁽²⁾

The requirement of unanimous consent applied to all documents not subject to a vote, including a Member's own written speech.⁽³⁾

Where a Member sought to challenge the reading of a paper by another, the proper procedure was to object to the reading rather than to raise a point of order. The House and not the Chair decided whether the reading was proper,⁽⁴⁾ if the contents of the document were otherwise in order under the rules of the House.

However, a point of order could and may be made against disorderly language contained in a document being read.⁽⁵⁾ only with leave of the House. 5 Hinds' Precedents §§ 5261, 5262; and 8 Cannon's Precedents § 2606.

2. See 2 Hinds' Precedents § 1364 and 4 Hinds' Precedents § 4663.
3. See § 80.5, infra.
4. See § 80.1, infra.
5. See § 83.5, infra. As to relevancy, specific consent of the House to read a paper waived that particular objection; see § 80.2, infra.

Certain papers cannot be read at all and are subject to a point of order in the first instance, such as reports of Senate proceedings (see § 83.3, infra) and reports of executive sessions of House committees (see § 83.4, infra).

Procedures Under Former Rule XXX: Objections to Reading

§ 80.1 The proper procedure for challenging the reading of a paper under Rule XXX was not by a point of order but by voicing objection thereto, and calling for a vote on the reading by the House.

On Feb. 27, 1946,⁽⁶⁾ Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, made a point of order against the reading in debate of a document by Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi. Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, stated that the proper procedure under Rule XXX of the House rules was a vote by the House on permission to read, after objection had been made to the reading:

6. 92 CONG. REC. 1729, 79th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. MARCANTONIO: The gentleman from Mississippi is reading from a document and pamphlet. It is out of order and cannot be done except by obtaining the consent of the House. . . .

I [ask] for a ruling on my point of order.

THE SPEAKER: If the gentleman from Mississippi is reading from something that the House does not want to hear, it is entirely within the power of the House to decide the question, not the gentleman from New York.

MR. MARCANTONIO: Does he not have to have consent to read a document?

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Mississippi is speaking to his motion, and that gives him a rather wide latitude. If the gentleman is reading something the House does not want to hear, then the House has its remedy.

MR. [ADOLPH J.] SABATH [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. SABATH: Mr. Speaker, is it not the duty of the Speaker to pass on the point of order or to pass on whether the gentleman is speaking in order or not? I think it is up to the Speaker. The gentleman here has been reading from Foster or Thomas, or whatever the man's name is, something he has written or said some years ago, today or yesterday, trying to make the House believe that I have had something to do with the articles that Foster has written.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair did not have the specific rule before him when he answered the inquiry of the gentleman from New York [Mr. Marcantonio].

Rule XXX states:

When the reading of a paper other than one upon which the House is called to give a final vote is demanded, and the same is objected to by any Member, it shall be determined without debate by a vote of the House.

MR. MARCANTONIO: Mr. Speaker, that bears out my contention and I definitely object.

THE SPEAKER: Does the gentleman object?

MR. MARCANTONIO: I do, Mr. Speaker. I object to the dragging of an irrelevant red herring into this discussion.

THE SPEAKER: The question is: Shall the gentleman be permitted to proceed to read the paper from which he is now reading?

The question was taken; and the House decided that Mr. Rankin be permitted to proceed with the reading.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Mississippi will proceed in order.

Relevancy Not Required Where Permission To Read Is Given

§ 80.2 Where unanimous consent is granted for the reading of a letter in debate, and no reservation of objection is made as to the contents of the letter, a subsequent objection may not be made that the letter is irrelevant to the pending subject.

On July 28, 1939,⁽⁷⁾ Chairman Virgil M. Chapman, of Kentucky, ruled that where unanimous consent was granted for the reading of a letter, a subsequent point of order that the letter was not pertinent to the pending subject came too late:

MR. [ABE] MURDOCK of Utah (interrupting the reading of the letter): Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Hoffman] did not get consent to proceed out of order, and when he asked that the letter be read, I assumed it was pertinent to the debate here on the pending bill. I now make the point of order that it is not.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan obtained unanimous consent that the letter be read, and stated the name of the person who wrote the letter. The point of order is overruled.

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, he did not state the purport or intent of the letter.

THE CHAIRMAN: All the gentleman from Michigan said was that it was a letter written by a former Member from New York, Mr. O'Conner, and asked unanimous consent that it be read by the Clerk. That unanimous consent was granted.

MR. MURDOCK of Utah: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

7. 84 CONG. REC. 10368, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MURDOCK of Utah: Does not a Member have the right to assume that when a unanimous-consent request is made to have a letter read, that the letter is pertinent to the debate being carried on at the time on the floor?

THE CHAIRMAN: Any member of the Committee had the right, when the request was made, to reserve the right to object and to interrogate the gentleman from Michigan as to the contents of the letter.

Reading Parliamentary Rules

§ 80.3 It is in order in debate on a point of order to read a parliamentary rule relevant thereto without obtaining the consent of the House.

On July 16, 1935,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, in debating a point of order read one of the standing rules of the United States Senate. Mr. Vito Marcantonio, of New York, objected to the reading of the rule on the grounds that Mr. Blanton could not read from any document or from any other papers. Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, overruled the objection and stated that the reading of the rule was for the "information of the Chair."⁽⁹⁾

8. 79 CONG. REC. 11262, 74th Cong. 1st Sess.

9. See also 8 Cannon's Precedents §§ 2507, 2508.

Reading Letters§ 80.4 There is no rule requiring a Member to give the name of the person who signed the letter he is reading under permission to address the House.

On Oct. 15, 1942,⁽¹⁰⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore Schuyler Otis Bland, of Virginia, ruled in response to a point of order that no House rule required a Member who reads a letter during debate to name the writer thereof:

MR. [HERMAN P.] EBERHARTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that these quotations cannot be inserted in the Record over an objection when they do not contain the names of the persons alleged to have written them.

MR. [EARL] WILSON [of Indiana]: Mr. Speaker, I would like to be heard on the point of order. Every letter from which I am quoting is signed by the Government employee writing the letter.

MR. EBERHARTER: Is it the intention of the gentleman to put the name of the person writing the letter in the Record?

MR. WILSON: It is not.

MR. EBERHARTER: Then I object, unless the gentleman is willing to put the names of the authors of the letters in the Record.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair does not understand that there is a unanimous-consent request pending. There was a request made a short time ago for the insertion of certain papers in the Record. The Chair asked if there was objection, or stated "Without objection, it is so ordered" and there was no objection. There is no unanimous-consent request now pending.

10. 88 CONG. REC. 8236, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. EBERHARTER: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the gentleman is out of order when he reads a purported letter without naming the person who is supposed to have written the letter.

MR. WILSON: Mr. Speaker, I want to be heard on the point of order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair does not know of any such rule requiring a Member who is reading to state by whom the letter was written.

MR. EBERHARTER: Mr. Speaker, on that point of order, if the Chair has not finally ruled, my understanding is that it is a violation of the rules of the House to read anything which is purported to come from another source without indicating the particular source from which it came.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair does not know of any such rule.

Reading Speeches§ 80.5 If objection was made to the reading of a paper, even though it be the Member's own speech, the question was put to the House for determination.

On May 23, 1935,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee,

11. 79 CONG. REC. 8094, 74th Cong. 1st Sess.

ruled that if an objection were made a Member could not even read his own remarks to the House without permission of the House:

THE SPEAKER: Is there objection to the resolution being read in the time of the gentleman from Minnesota?

MR. [JOHN J.] O'CONNOR [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I object to the reading of the resolution.

MR. [HAROLD] KNUTSON [of Minnesota]: Then I shall read it myself.

MR. O'CONNOR: The gentleman cannot do that except by unanimous consent.

MR. KNUTSON: I can certainly read it myself, I submit to the Speaker.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman cannot read the resolution without the consent of the House.

MR. KNUTSON: I am going to read it as a part of my remarks. It would be an extraordinary ruling—

MR. [HAMILTON] FISH [Jr., of New York]: Mr. Speaker, this is the gentleman's own writing.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman cannot even read his own speech if anyone objects, according to the precedents.

MR. [JOSEPH W.] MARTIN [Jr.] of Massachusetts: Is that going to be the ruling of the Chair?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will not seek to enforce the rule unless the demand is made. When demand is made, the Chair must enforce the rules of the House.

On July 18, 1935,⁽¹²⁾ Chairman William M. Whittington, of Mis-

12. Id. at p. 11423.

issippi, ruled that where a Member objected to another Member's reading his own speech, the question must be put to the Committee of the Whole for a vote:

MR. [WILLIAM D.] MCFARLANE [of Texas]: Mr. Chairman, I raise the further point of order. The gentleman is reading his speech, and I want the House to pass on whether we have got to listen to such remarks.

MR. [BERTRAND H.] SNELL [of New York]: I make the point of order that that question was raised several days ago, and the House made the decision itself.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Texas objects to the gentleman from New York reading his speech. The gentleman from New York [Mr. Snell] makes the point that the House passed on this very question. The Chair is of the opinion that the House, on the occasion referred to, passed on a specific case and not generally. The question is, Will the Committee permit the gentleman from New York to continue reading his speech?

The question was taken; and the Committee decided to allow the gentleman from New York [Mr. Reed] to proceed.

Thereupon Mr. Reed completed his speech, and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.⁽¹³⁾

13. See Jefferson's Manual, House Rules and Manual §434 (1995): "A Member has not a right even to read his own speech, committed to writing, without leave. This also is to prevent an abuse of time, and therefore is not refused but where that is intended."

Yielding Time to Member To Read Paper

§ 80.6 A Member with the floor who yields time to another to read a paper does not necessarily lose his right to the floor.

On Apr. 25, 1947, Chairman Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, ruled that the Member with the floor could yield to another for the reading of a paper, not to be voted upon, without losing his right to the floor:⁽¹⁴⁾

MRS. [HELEN GAHAGAN] DOUGLAS [of California]: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. [JOHN J.] ROONEY [of New York]: I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

MRS. DOUGLAS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to read from a statement made by the Secretary of the Interior.

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HOFFMAN: The gentleman from New York has yielded the floor.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from New York still has the floor. He is standing at attention, with the gentlewoman beside him.

MRS. DOUGLAS: Mr. Chairman, I wish to quote a statement made by the Secretary of the Interior which clearly states what has been done in this bill.

14. 93 CONG. REC. 4086, 4087, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

—Permission To Read Paper Does Not Extend Time

§ 80.7 Where any Member objected to the reading in debate of a paper on which the House was not called to vote (and no point of order lay against the reading of the paper because of its content under other rules or precedents), the Chair put the question pursuant to Rule XXX whether the paper might be read; but the consent of the House for the Member to read the paper, once granted, only permitted the Member seeking such permission to read as much of the paper as possible in the time yielded or allotted to that Member, and did not necessarily grant permission to read or insert the entire document.

On Mar. 1, 1979,⁽¹⁵⁾ during consideration of House Resolution 142 (to expel Charles C. Diggs, Jr.) in the House, the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of the privileges of the House, and I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 142) and ask for its immediate consideration.

15. 125 CONG. REC. 3746–48, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Clerk read the resolution as follows:

H. RES. 142

Resolved, That Charles C. Diggs, Jr., a Representative from the Thirteenth District of Michigan, is hereby expelled from the House of Representatives. . . .

MR. [M. CALDWELL] BUTLER [of Virginia]: . . . I will tell you . . . that I have read the testimony of Charles Diggs under oath before the court and in my opinion he affirmatively stated and admitted sufficient acts to constitute grounds for his expulsion today. . . .

Bear in mind, I have not read the entire record. I make no representation about that. I only deal with what the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Diggs) had to say on the charges against him. There are 29. My time is limited. I will only deal with samples, but I represent that these are fair samples. . . .

MR. [PARREN J.] MITCHELL of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, the Member in the well is going to attempt to read from a transcript in a trial. Ordinarily, I would have no objection to that if this body had constituted itself as a body to try Mr. Diggs. It has not done so. I have strenuous objections to reading any portion of that transcript when this body is not so constituted to receive that information. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁶⁾ The gentleman objects to the reading?

MR. MITCHELL of Maryland: Yes, I do, Mr. Speaker; any portion of the transcript, whether it is printed in the Record or not, I do not care. I object to its being read before this body as presently constituted.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Virginia can continue to debate, but he cannot continue to read without the permission of the House.

MR. BUTLER: Mr. Speaker, may I have the permission of the House to read from the transcript?

MR. MITCHELL of Maryland: Mr. Speaker, I object to granting permission for the reading of the transcript.

THE SPEAKER: The question is: Shall the gentleman from Virginia be permitted to read the document? The question is on that matter.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Maryland demands the yeas and nays.

Those in favor of taking this by the yeas and nays will arise.

In the opinion of the Chair, a sufficient number have arisen. The yeas and nays will be ordered. . . .

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: Mr. Speaker, I am confused as to what an "aye" vote and a "no" vote would mean. Would the Chair explain it to the Members?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that an "aye" vote would permit the document to be read, and a "no" vote would not permit the document to be read. . . .

The question comes now—and a sufficient number of Members have risen for the ordering of the yeas and nays—as to whether or not the gentleman from Virginia shall be allowed to read that document from the Court at this time in this proceeding. Under normal circumstances, the Chair rules that the objection was in order, so the question comes to a vote without debate. . . .

MR. [LESTER L.] WOLFF [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, does the motion mean that the entire proceedings must be read, or is it confined to selected portions the gentleman wants to read?

THE SPEAKER: The Chair will state that the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Butler) has a prepared document, and he has been allotted 8 minutes by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Wright). He could read as much of the document as he has within those 8 minutes.

Use of Video in Floor Debate

§ 80.8 A Member having been denied permission to utilize a Betamax video telecasting machine on the floor of the House during a special order to communicate statements made by non-Members of the House, informed the House of the Speaker's denial of his request (which was based upon precedents prohibiting non-Members from participating in debate).

On Feb. 11, 1980,⁽¹⁷⁾ Guy Vander Jagt, of Michigan, was recognized in the House and made a statement as indicated below:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Vander Jagt) is recognized for 60 minutes.

(Mr. Vander Jagt asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. VANDER JAGT: . . . The National Republican Congressional Committee, of which I am chairman, and the National Republican Committee have prepared a nationwide television advertising campaign which addresses these three issues and presents Republican solutions to these problems which the people feel so acutely.

Madam Speaker, I have taken this special order and requested of the Speaker permission to bring a Betamax onto the floor so that our colleagues would be able to see exactly what these commercials are saying. The Speaker did not see fit to grant that request but scripts of the commercials are at the desk. . . .

§ 81. Voting on Permission To Read Papers

Rule XXX, which formerly required unanimous consent for the reading of papers if objection was made, has been rewritten to apply to the use of exhibits rather than the reading of papers.⁽¹⁸⁾ Procedures under the former rule were as follows: where objection was made to the reading of a paper in debate, the question was put on the reading by the Speaker or Chairman.⁽¹⁹⁾ The question was 18. See the discussion in § 80, supra.

19. See § 81.1, infra.

put without debate,⁽²⁰⁾ and could be determined in the same manner as any other proposition before the House or Committee of the Whole.⁽¹⁾

Time consumed on the objection and on the vote to permit reading was not taken out of the time of the Member attempting to read,⁽²⁾ but permission to read did not entitle the Member to more time than originally allotted.⁽³⁾

—Voting; Debate

§ 81.2 Where objection was made to the reading of a paper, the House decided the question by majority vote and not by unanimous consent.

On Oct. 24, 1945,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, made a point of order against the reading of papers in debate by Mr. Hugh De Lacy, of Washington, and asserted that “A Member who has the floor has to get unanimous consent to read.”

Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that a vote of the House was required on an objection to such reading, and put the question to the House for a majority vote.⁽⁶⁾

mined without debate by a vote of the House.⁽⁷⁾

§ 81.4 The House could by voice or division vote permit a Member to continue reading a paper after objection had been made.

On Feb. 27, 1946, objection was made to the reading by Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, of a document expressing the political doctrine of William Z. Foster.⁽⁸⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that whether the paper could be read was for the House to decide, and put the question to the House, as follows:

The question is: Shall the gentleman be permitted to proceed to read the paper from which he is now reading?

The question was taken; and the House decided that Mr. Rankin be permitted to proceed with the reading.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Mississippi will proceed in order.

gia, ruled that where objection was made to a Member's reading his own address from a manuscript, the question must be put to the House:

MR. [JOHN C.] SCHAFER of Wisconsin: Regular order, Mr. Speaker. The gentleman is out of order. Under the rules of the House, the gentleman is not supposed to read from a manuscript. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the gentleman is out of order under the rules of the House and is not supposed to read his remarks in the well of the House. I ask for a ruling.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair has been provided with a copy of the rules of the House and refers to rule XXX, which reads:

When the reading of a paper other than one upon which the House is called to give a final vote is demanded, and the same is objected to by any Member, it shall be determined without debate by a vote of the House. . . .

The Chair is of the opinion that under this rule the question of whether or not the gentleman from Washington shall be permitted to proceed to read his own remarks must be submitted to the House.

The question is on permitting the gentleman from Washington to proceed to read his own remarks.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Schafer of Wisconsin) there were—ayes 15, noes 3.

—Charging of Time on Vote

§ 81.5 Where objection was made to the reading of a paper, the time consumed in voting on the question was not taken out of the time of the Member attempting to read.

On Jan. 25, 1939,⁽¹⁰⁾ objection was made by Mr. John C. Schafer, of Wisconsin, to the reading in debate of a manuscript by Mr. Knute Hill, of Washington. Speaker Pro Tempore Stephen Pace, of Georgia, ruled that the question must be put to the House. Mr. Hill inquired whether time consumed on the objection and on the vote was to be taken out of his time and the Speaker Pro Tempore responded that it would not.

On Mar. 25, 1937,⁽¹¹⁾ Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that unanimous consent granted to Mr. Ralph E. Church, of Illinois, to revise and extend his remarks did not include permission to read such extraneous matter in debate. During debate on the point of order, Mr. Church stated, "Mr. Speaker, I do not want this taken out of my time." The Speaker responded, "This will not be taken out of the gentleman's time."

—Permission To Read Did Not Affect Allotted Time

§ 81.6 Where a Member was permitted by vote of the Committee of the Whole to read a letter, he could read it only within the five minutes allotted him and did not necessarily have the right to read the entire letter.

On June 26, 1952,⁽¹²⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering amendments, under the five-minute rule, to the pending bill, Mr. Clinton D. McKinnon, of California, moved to strike out the last word. He then began reading a statement by Governor Arnall, of Georgia, on the subject of price control ceilings, a subject covered by the pending bill, H.R. 8210, the Defense Production Act Amendments.

Mr. Jesse P. Wolcott, of Michigan, objected to the reading of the statement, and the House by teller vote permitted Mr. McKinnon to proceed with the reading of the letter in question. Mr. McKinnon commenced reading the letter, and Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, of Arkansas, ruled that he could read only for five minutes.

MR. [HERMAN P.] EBERHARTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

12. 98 CONG. REC. 8175, 8176, 82d Cong. 2d Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. EBERHARTER: Mr. Chairman, the House decided by a teller vote to permit the reading of this letter. I submit that the letter should be read in its entirety; that is the point of order I make.

THE CHAIRMAN: That is not the decision made by the Committee. The Committee made the decision that the gentleman could read the letter within the time allotted to the gentleman of 5 minutes.

MR. EBERHARTER: I did not hear it so stated when the motion was put, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question put to the Committee had nothing whatsoever to do with the time to be consumed by the gentleman from California. The Chair recognized the gentleman from California for 5 minutes; the question arose as to whether or not he could within that 5 minutes time read extraneous papers.

The point of order is overruled.

§ 81.7 Formerly under Rule XXX, a Member could read a paper upon which the House would not vote only by permission of the House, if any Member objected to that reading; and where a Member objected to another Member's reading of her own written speech, the Chair put the question to the House for a determination without debate.

On Dec. 19, 1974,⁽¹³⁾ the principle stated above was demonstrated in the House, as follows:

MR. [DAVID T.] MARTIN of Nebraska: Mr. Speaker, a point of order. I object to the gentlewoman in the well reading her remarks because she did not ask unanimous consent before she started to read her remarks, and that is according to Jefferson's Manual.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹⁴⁾ The question is: May the gentlewoman from New York read her remarks?

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

THE SPEAKER: The gentlewoman from New York may proceed.

§ 82. Motions; Unanimous-consent Procedures

Rule XXX, which formerly required unanimous consent for the reading of papers if objection was made, has been rewritten to apply to the use of exhibits rather than the reading of papers.⁽¹⁵⁾ Procedures under the former rule were as follows: where objection was made to a reading, the Speaker on his own initiative ordinarily put the vote on the question of whether the reading should be permitted (see § 81, supra). Alter-

15. See the discussion in § 80, supra.

natively, a Member could make the privileged motion that the Member with the floor be permitted to read or to continue reading.⁽¹⁶⁾

Unanimous consent could be granted for the reading of papers⁽¹⁷⁾ and if granted precluded a further point of order that the paper was irrelevant.⁽¹⁸⁾

Procedures Under Former Rule
XXX: Motions

§ 82.1 Where objection was made to the reading of a paper it was in order to move that the Member be permitted to read it, either in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

On Feb. 10, 1931,⁽¹⁹⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 16969, the Navy appropriation bill, Mr. Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, asked unanimous consent to read in debate various resolutions submitted by the American Legion. Mr. Elliott W. Sproul, of Illinois, objected to such reading and Chairman Frederick R. Lehlbach, of New Jersey,

16. See § 82.1, infra.

17. See §§ 82.3–82.5, infra.

18. See § 82.5, infra.

19. 74 CONG. REC. 4544, 71st Cong. 3d Sess.

stated that such objection could be made in the Committee of the Whole:

To read a paper in the House or in the Committee when the House is in the Committee of the Whole . . . he must obtain the consent of either the House or the Committee.

Mr. William P. Connery, Jr., of Massachusetts, then moved that Mr. Blanton be permitted to read the paper: “Mr. Chairman, I move that the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Blanton] be allowed to read the resolutions to which he referred.” Mr. Connery made the motion to “see what the sentiment of the House is on not reading American Legion resolutions.”

The Chairman put the question on the motion and it was rejected.

On July 15, 1932,⁽²⁰⁾ Mr. Allen T. Treadway, of Massachusetts, asked unanimous consent to read in debate from a statement made to the Senate conferees on the pending conference report on H.R. 9642, a relief bill.

Mr. Edgar Howard, of Nebraska, objected to the reading of the statement on the grounds that “under the rules of the House the gentleman may not read an outside statement if there is objection to it.” Mr. Treadway then stated that he would therefore read the statement as his own statement. Mr. Howard also objected to that procedure, and Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, ruled that Mr. Howard was not entitled to read the document over objection.

20. 75 CONG. REC. 15490, 15491, 72d Cong. 1st Sess.

Mr. William H. Stafford, of Wisconsin, then made the following motion:

Mr. Speaker, I move that the gentleman from Massachusetts be permitted to read the paper.

The Speaker put the question, and the House agreed to the motion to permit Mr. Treadway to read the statement in debate.

Reading of Documents by Clerk

§ 82.2 A Member may by unanimous consent during time yielded him in the Committee of the Whole have a letter read by the Clerk.

On July 28, 1939,⁽¹⁾ Mr. Ulysses S. Guyer, of Kansas, who had the floor in the Committee of the Whole, yielded five minutes' debate to Mr. Clare E. Hoffman, of Michigan. Mr. Hoffman immediately made a unanimous-consent request:

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent, before I proceed, that the Clerk may read a letter written by the former chairman of the Rules Committee, Mr. John J. O'Connor, to the Vice President of the United States.

1. 84 CONG. REC. 10368, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

The request was granted.

§ 82.3 The House granted unanimous consent that the Clerk read the remarks of a Member suffering from poor eyesight.

On Apr. 16, 1942,⁽²⁾ the House granted the following unanimous-consent request:

MR. [JOSEPH B.] SHANNON [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk be permitted to read my address, as I cannot see very well. First, I just want to say that this is an address on the subject of war by a real peace man. I have never been for war in my life and I am not for war now if it could be avoided. I refer in this speech to two men who served in this House, a Benton and a Benton. Both Bentons to whom I refer served in the House, and one of them served for 30 years in the Senate.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, the Clerk will read the address of the gentleman from Missouri.

§ 82.4 The Speaker took the floor during debate in Committee of the Whole to obtain unanimous consent for the reading by the Clerk of a personal letter from the President expressing views as to a bill then under consideration.

2. 88 CONG. REC. 3510, 77th Cong. 2d Sess.

On Nov. 20, 1969,⁽³⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering H.R. 14580, the Foreign Assistance Act of 1969, Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, moved to strike the last word and then submitted a unanimous-consent request:

Mr. Chairman, I have just received a letter from President Nixon. I understand the minority leader also received a letter. I received it a few minutes ago. It relates to the bill pending before the House. I would like to have the contents of the letter read to the House so that the Members will have in mind the views expressed by the President in his letter to me.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the Clerk be authorized to read the letter of the President of the United States.

There was no objection to the request, and the letter was read.

§ 82.5 Where unanimous consent is granted for the reading of a letter in debate, and no reservation of objection is made with respect to the contents of the letter, a point of order may not subsequently be made that the letter is irrelevant to the pending subject.

3. 115 CONG. REC. 35192, 91st Cong. 1st Sess.

On July 28, 1939,⁽⁴⁾ Chairman Virgil M. Chapman, of Kentucky, ruled that where unanimous consent was granted for the reading of a letter, a subsequent point of order that the letter was not pertinent to the pending subject came too late:

MR. [ABE] MURDOCK of Utah (interrupting the reading of the letter): Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Hoffman] did not get consent to proceed out of order, and when he asked that the letter be read, I assumed it was pertinent to the debate here on the pending bill. I now make the point of order that it is not.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman from Michigan obtained unanimous consent that the letter be read, and stated the name of the person who wrote the letter. The point of order is overruled.

MR. [EMANUEL] CELLER [of New York]: Mr. Chairman, he did not state the purport or intent of the letter.

THE CHAIRMAN: All the gentleman from Michigan said was that it was a letter written by a former Member from New York, Mr. O'Connor, and asked unanimous consent that it be read by the Clerk. That unanimous consent was granted.

MR. MURDOCK of Utah: Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MURDOCK of Utah: Does not a Member have the right to assume that when a unanimous-consent request is made to have a letter read, that the letter is pertinent to the debate being carried on at the time on the floor?

4. 84 CONG. REC. 10368, 76th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE CHAIRMAN: Any member of the Committee had the right, when the request was made, to reserve the right to object and to interrogate the gentleman from Michigan as to the contents of the letter.

Effect of Permission To Revise and Extend

§ 82.6 Permission to a Member to extend his remarks and include therein extraneous matter did not authorize him to read the extraneous matter in debate without the consent of the House.

On Mar. 25, 1937,⁽⁵⁾ Mr. Ralph E. Church, of Illinois, was granted unanimous consent to revise and extend his remarks and “to include therein excerpts from a certain letter of six paragraphs, extracts from court proceedings and press comments thereon.”

When Mr. Church began to read a newspaper editorial in debate, Mr. Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, made a point of order against the reading and Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, ruled that the unanimous-consent permission to revise and extend did not include permission to read extraneous matter in debate:

5. 81 CONG. REC. 2784–88, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

The Chair is of the opinion the gentleman would probably have a right to extend his own remarks, but he would not have a right to read them now without the special permission of the House. [The Speaker also cited Rule XXX of the House rules, requiring a vote of the House where objection is raised to the reading of a paper.]

Unanimous Consent To Read in Committee

§ 82.7 Under the former practice, a Member yielded time for debate in the Committee of the Whole could read certain letters and telegrams with the consent of the Committee.

On Apr. 18, 1944,⁽⁶⁾ Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, of Washington, stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry that the Committee of the Whole could grant permission to read certain papers:

MR. [CLARE E.] HOFFMAN [of Michigan]: Mr. Chairman, I desire to revise and extend my own remarks at this point in the Record. I suppose permission to include letters, telegrams, and so forth, including a couple of letters from Drew Pearson, I would have to obtain in the House. . . .

If I did not extend my remarks, I suppose I could read those letters, could I not?

THE CHAIRMAN: If time were yielded to the gentleman from Michigan, he could read them with the consent of the Committee.

6. 90 CONG. REC. 3558, 78th Cong. 2d Sess.

§ 83. Certain Readings Prohibited

Rulings under the former version of Rule XXX,⁽⁷⁾ which required a vote by the House on the reading of papers where objection was made, indicated that the rule did not apply to papers containing language subject to a point of order in the House. For example, a Member could not refer to Senators or to Senate proceedings and therefore could not read letters from Senators or reports of Senate proceedings.⁽⁸⁾ Some rulings based on former Rule XXX are still valid under other lines of precedents. Thus a Member may not read documents impugning the integrity of other Members,⁽⁹⁾ or reports of House committee executive proceedings not formally reported to the House.⁽¹⁰⁾

Papers containing prohibited references or disorderly language

7. Rule XXX, which formerly required unanimous consent for the reading of papers if objection was made, has been rewritten to apply to the display of exhibits rather than the reading of papers. See the discussion in §80, supra.
8. See §§ 83.2, 83.3, infra.
9. See § 83.5, infra.
10. See § 83.4, infra.

are not challenged by an objection but by a point of order or demand that they be taken down. The Speaker then rules whether the words in question are in order.⁽¹¹⁾

Discharge Petition Signatures

§ 83.1 Under the version of the Discharge Rule which was applicable before the 103d Congress, while a Member had the right to look at a discharge petition, he did not have the right to read to the House the names signed on such petition.

On Mar. 15, 1946,⁽¹²⁾ Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, ruled that while a Member had a right to examine a discharge petition on the floor of the House, he did not have the right to read the names contained thereon in debate:

MR. [JOHN J.] COCHRAN [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will state it.

MR. COCHRAN: As I understand the rules of the House, it is not permissible to give out anything contained in a petition on the Clerk's desk until the petition has the required number of signers. Then it automatically is printed in the Record with the signatures thereon.

11. See §§ 48–52, supra.
12. 92 CONG. REC. 2329, 79th Cong. 2d Sess.

THE SPEAKER: It is certainly a violation of the rules to do that.

MR. [JOHN E.] RANKIN [of Mississippi]: I have not given out anything. Do not get excited. I merely asked for the petition. I have a right to look at it, as a Member of the House.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman has the right to look at it but he does not have the right to read any of the names on the petition.

Communications from Senators

§ 83.2 It is not in order in debate for a Member to read a letter from a member of the Senate.

On May 25, 1937,⁽¹³⁾ while the Committee of the Whole was considering House Joint Resolution 361, for relief appropriations, Mr. Alfred F. Beiter, of New York, stated his intention to read from letters he had from members of the Senate, stating their sympathy.

Chairman John J. O'Connor, of New York, made a point of order, on his own responsibility, against "the reading of a letter from a member of another body."

Reference to Senate Proceedings

§ 83.3 It has been held not in order to read the proceedings of the Senate or the remarks of a Senator, whether printed in the Congressional Record or reported elsewhere.

13. 81 CONG. REC. 5013, 75th Cong. 1st Sess.

On May 11, 1932,⁽¹⁴⁾ Mr. Fred A. Britten, of Illinois, called the attention of the House to an extract from the Congressional Record of Senate proceedings. Mr. Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, made the point of order that it was a violation of the rules of the House to refer to any proceedings of the Senate or any speeches made in the Senate in House debate. Mr. Charles L. Underhill, of Massachusetts, objected that "there is no rule that prevents a Member from reading from the Record any matter published therein."

Chairman Gordon Browning, of Tennessee, ruled that a Member of the House could not in any way in debate on the floor of the House comment on the actions, speeches, or proceedings of a Senator or of the Senate itself. In response to a question by Mr. Underhill, the Chairman stated that the rules also prohibited a Member from reading from the Record matter published therein by the Senate.

Mr. Britten then attempted to quote from newspaper reports of the Senate speech to which he had referred, and the Chairman ruled that Mr. Britten could not refer to newspaper reports of Senate proceedings.

14. 75 CONG. REC. 10019, 72d Cong. 1st Sess.

Additional debate on the subject occurred, and the Chairman reiterated his ruling that under the rules a Member of the House could not read extracts from the Congressional Record of Senate proceedings. Mr. Britten entered an appeal from the decision of the Chair, but then withdrew his appeal after the then Speaker of the House, Mr. William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, took the floor to support the correctness of the ruling of the Chair.

On Feb. 20, 1933,⁽¹⁵⁾ Mr. Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, indicated his intention to quote from a speech made by a Senator in the Senate and printed in the Congressional Record. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, made the point of order that Mr. Rainey could not so refer to a member of the Senate. Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, sustained the point of order and ruled that "A Member of the House could not refer to a Senator and quote what he said."⁽¹⁶⁾

16. For more detailed discussion of the prohibition against referring in de-

Executive Session Committee Proceedings

§ 83.4 If a committee has not voted to make the proceedings of an executive session public, it is not in order in debate to read or quote from the minutes thereof.

On Apr. 5, 1967,⁽¹⁷⁾ during debate on a resolution funding the Committee on Science and Astronautics, Mr. Joe D. Waggoner, Jr., of Louisiana, a member of the committee, began referring to proceedings of the committee and quoting dialogue from a session thereof. Mr. John W. Wydler, of New York, whose words were being quoted, stated a point of order that quotation in debate of minutes of an executive committee session was improper.

Speaker John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, ruled as follows:

The Chair would like to inquire of either the gentleman from Louisiana or the gentleman from Texas whether the gentleman from Louisiana is reading from the executive session record? . . .

MR. [OLIN E.] TEAGUE of Texas: Mr. Speaker, it is my remembrance that what he is quoting was what took place at an executive session.

bate to the Senate or to individual Senators, see § 44, supra.

For Senate references to House proceedings, see § 46, supra.

17. 113 CONG. REC. 8411, 8412, 90th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would like to make the further inquiry as to whether or not the members in the executive session voted to make public what took place in the executive session?

MR. TEAGUE of Texas: It is my memory that we did not vote on that and it was not discussed.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would suggest to the gentleman from Louisiana that he refrain from referring to what took place in the executive session.

Papers Impugning Members

§ 83.5 It is not in order in debate to read papers impugning the motives or attacking the personality of other Members.

On June 16, 1947,⁽¹⁸⁾ Mr. Chet Holifield, of California, read in the House a telegram from the Southern Conference on Human Welfare. Mr. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, made a point of order against certain words in the telegram and demanded that they be taken down: "We completely repudiate the lies and half-truths of the report that was issued and consider it un-American."

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, ruled that the words objected to, referring to the Committee on Un-American Activities, were unparliamentary,

18. 93 CONG. REC. 7065, 80th Cong. 1st Sess.

since they "reflect upon the character and integrity of the membership of a committee." The words were stricken by motion from the Congressional Record.⁽¹⁹⁾

§ 83.6 Clause 1 of Rule XIV, requiring Members to "avoid personality" during debate, prohibits references in debate to newspaper accounts used in support of a Member's personal criticism of a sitting Member in a way which would be unparliamentary if uttered on the floor as the Member's own words; and the prohibition against reading in debate of press accounts which are personally critical of a sitting Member does not constitute "censorship" of the press by the House, but rather is consistent with House rules which preclude debate or insertions in the Record which engage in "personality."

19. For detailed discussion of improper references to other Members in debate, see §§ 53 et seq., supra.

Where a Member reads a paper by consent of the House, he is not thereby entitled to read language which is in itself disorderly. Such a reference is subject to the demand that words in debate be taken down and is subject to a ruling by the Speaker (see §§ 61-66, supra).

On Feb. 25, 1985,⁽²⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Gingrich) is recognized for 60 minutes.

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: Mr. Speaker, I am going to insert in the Record today and read into the Record several editorials, one from the Atlanta Journal and Constitution yesterday, Sunday, February 24, and one this morning from the Wall Street Journal, both of them talking about the tragic situation in which the Democratic leadership has blocked Mr. McIntyre of Indiana from being seated. . . .

Yet twice the House has voted to deny McIntyre the seat while it investigates. . . .

The technicalities aside, the case is interesting for what it says about the Congress. . . . In the second vote only five Democrats dared abandon O'Neill and the leadership.

Georgia's Democrats went right along with the herd, in defiance of basic decency. . . . A few Republicans near each election try to remind voters that the Democrats' first vote will be for O'Neill and that vote signals bondage. This year it meant the abandonment of fairness. . . .

MS. [MARY ROSE] OAKAR [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, parliamentary inquiry. . . .

MR. GINGRICH: Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman has not asked me to yield, and I was in fact making an inquiry myself to the Chair. I was asking the Chair to rule in this sort of setting if one is reporting to the House on the written opinion of a columnist in which the columnist has said very strong things, is it appropriate for the House to be informed of this and, if so, what is the correct procedure?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The ruling of the Chair is that the gentleman should not read into the Record things which would clearly be outside the rules of this House. . . .

MR. GINGRICH: Let me continue to ask the Chair, because I am a little confused, in other words, if a columnist writing in the largest newspaper in the State of Georgia says very strong things about his concern about the House's behavior, would the House in effect censor a report of that concern?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: No; the House does not censor any report of that kind. The gentleman does take the responsibility, however, for words uttered on the floor, and he is certainly capable of leaving out those items which he knows would be outside the rules of this House. . . .

MR. GINGRICH: If I may continue a moment to ask the gentleman, if we are in a situation where in the view of some people, such as Mr. Williams of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, very strong things are legitimately being said, and this is obviously his viewpoint, what is the appropriate manner in which to report his language to the House?

That is not me saying these things; he is saying these things.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman knows the rules of the House, I am certain, and he can take

20. 131 CONG. REC. 3344-46, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

1. Sam B. Hall, Jr. (Tex.).

out or delete any thing that he knows would violate the rules of this House if spoken from the floor.

MR. GINGRICH: Under the Rules of the House . . . if one were to only utter the words on the floor that were appropriate, but were to then insert the item in the Record, is the Record then edited by the House? That is, if it was put in as an extension of remarks or put in under general leave?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: As the gentleman knows, there are precedents where a question of privilege can be raised about certain things inserted in the Record, and those could be raised if the gentleman attempts to insert them into the Record, or not. . . .

As the gentleman knows, words spoken on the floor of the House can be objected to.

The following exchange took place on Feb. 27, 1985:⁽²⁾

MR. [THOMAS S.] FOLEY [of Washington]: . . . I came to the floor [to] suggest that it is important that we have a balanced opportunity to discuss these issues. . . . I simply think it is important that we observe the rules of the House in the course of debate, and I think the two gentlemen, Mr. Walker and Mr. Gingrich, know that it is not permissible under long-standing rules of the House and interpretations of the Parliamentarians . . . to read into the Record statements that would be inappropriate if made by a Member directly. . . .

I just wanted to make the point that these gentlemen in the well and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Walker) know the rules very well. They are very skilled at them and they know that it is inappropriate to use a newspaper article, however widely published, to violate the rules of the House.

§ 83.7 In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Chair indicated that a question of the privileges of the House could be raised against the insertion in the Record of a press account using language personally offensive against a sitting Member, whether uttered by a former Member or anyone else.

The proceedings of Feb. 25, 1985, relating to newspaper articles sought to be inserted in the Record by Mr. Newton L. Gingrich, of Georgia, are discussed in § 83.6, supra.

§ 84. Use of Exhibits

Rule XXX, as amended in the 103d Congress,⁽³⁾ states:

When the use of any exhibit in debate is objected to by any Member, it shall be determined without debate by a vote of the House.

The use of exhibits in debate requires the consent of the House if

3. House Rules and Manual §915 (1995).

objection is made.⁽⁴⁾ However, where Members supporting certain legislation use relevant exhibits in debate for the information of other Members, objection is rarely made to the display.⁽⁵⁾ But a Member may not have distributed on the floor copies of a bill marked with his own interpretations of its effect and support.⁽⁶⁾ The Chair controls the positioning of an exhibit in the well or along the side aisles, in order that his view of the floor or the Members' view of the rostrum is not obstructed.

In one instance, the Speaker ordered removed from the lobby a placard posted by a Member which impugned the motives of Members.⁽⁷⁾ hibits in debate, the question is put to a vote in the House or the Committee of the Whole.

On June 21, 1937,⁽⁸⁾ Mr. Maury Maverick, of Texas, made a point of order against the display on the floor of the House of an object by Mr. Robert F. Rich, of Pennsylvania. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, put the question on the display to the House:

MR. MAVERICK: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the gentleman has no right to display a liquor bottle in the House of Representatives.

MR. RICH: Mr. Speaker, this is Government rum, presented to me by Secretary Ickes.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman will suspend. The gentleman from Texas makes the point of order that the gentleman from Pennsylvania has no right to exhibit the bottle without permission of the House. The point of order is well taken. . . .

As many as are in favor of granting the gentleman from Pennsylvania the right to exhibit the bottle which he now holds in his hand will say "aye" and those opposed will say "no."

The vote was taken and the Speaker announced that the ayes have it, and the permission is granted.

On Aug. 5, 1949,⁽⁹⁾ the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, Howard W. Smith, of Virginia, put the question as to the display of a chart to the Committee for a decision:

MR. [OREN] HARRIS [of Arkansas]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word, and ask unanimous consent to proceed for five additional minutes. . . .

MR. [EUGENE D.] O'SULLIVAN [of Nebraska]: Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

THE CHAIRMAN: The gentleman will state it.

MR. O'SULLIVAN: Mr. Chairman, is it in order for an exhibit to be presented to the Committee of the Whole or to the House of Representatives? As I read the rules it is not in order to do so, unless the permission of the Committee of the Whole or of the House is first obtained.

THE CHAIRMAN: If the gentleman from Nebraska objects to the use of the exhibit, the Chair will put the question to the Committee of the Whole. Does the gentleman object?

MR. O'SULLIVAN: I object, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: The question is: Shall the use of the exhibit be permitted?

The question was agreed to.⁽¹⁰⁾

§ 84.2 A Member used an exhibit while engaged in debate in the Committee of the Whole without objection.

sidering H.R. 15202, to temporarily increase the public debt limit, Mr. Wright Patman, of Texas, was characterizing the actions of the banking industry in raising interest rates as "a loaded dice game." During his remarks, he displayed, without objection, a pair of oversized dice. The following exchange occurred between Mr. Patman and Mr. H. R. Gross, of Iowa:

MR. GROSS: Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. PATMAN: Yes, I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

MR. GROSS: Mr. Chairman, I just walked in. Is the gentleman trying to convert the House Chamber into a gambling establishment with those dice here?

MR. PATMAN: No, I am trying to convert them against a gambling establishment, that is, the Federal Reserve establishment. These are Federal Reserve dice. If you roll them, they will roll 7 or 11 every time. Try them.

Use of Exhibits To Explain Legislation

§ 84.3 After objection was made, the Committee of the Whole voted to permit a Member to display a chart in explanation of a legislative proposition.

On Aug. 5, 1949,⁽¹²⁾ when objection was made to a request by a

12. 95 CONG. REC. 10859, 81st Cong. 1st Sess.

Member to display a chart explaining the provisions of H.R. 1758, amending the Natural Gas Act, the Committee of the Whole voted to permit the exhibit.

§ 84.4 The House by unanimous consent permitted the Committee on Science and Astronautics to use models and exhibits in the Committee of the Whole during debate on a bill.

On Aug. 1, 1963,⁽¹³⁾ a unanimous-consent request was granted for the Committee on Science and Astronautics to use exhibits and models on the floor:

MR. [OLIN E.] TEAGUE of Texas: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the committee may be permitted to use certain models and exhibits on the floor this afternoon to better present the information that we will try to present to the House.

There was no objection to the request.

During debate on the pending bill, H.R. 7500, to authorize appropriations to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, members of the committee referred to the models and exhibits.⁽¹⁴⁾ consideration, Members may display charts without requesting permission, where no objection is made to the display.

On Mar. 12, 1974,⁽¹⁵⁾ the House was considering House Resolution 963, providing for the consideration of H.R. 69, the Elementary and Secondary Education Amendments of 1974. Mr. Peter A. Peyser, of New York, referred to a chart which was being displayed before the House and which continued to be displayed and referred to after the resolution had been adopted and the Committee of the Whole was conducting general debate on the bill. (The bill contained complex funding formulas suited to graphic description.)⁽¹⁶⁾

Displays Impugning Members

§ 84.6 Under authority granted him by House rule, the Speaker ordered removed from the Speaker's lobby a placard posted by a Member containing language which might have been ruled disorderly had it been uttered on the House floor.

15. 120 CONG. REC. 6269, 93d Cong. 2d Sess.

16. Id. at p. 6279 (see the remarks of Mr. Carl D. Perkins [Ky.]).

On June 5, 1930, the House discussed the action of the Speaker in ordering removed from the Speaker's lobby placards posted by a Member criticizing the action of House conferees on a particular bill (H.R. 2667, a tariff bill).⁽¹⁷⁾

Speaker Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, stated that he ordered removed the placard under his authority granted by Rule I clause 3, empowering him to exercise control over the corridors and passages and unappropriated rooms in the House side of the Capitol. The Speaker also stated that "the Chair was of the opinion that at least two of the sentences in that document were sentences which, if pronounced on the floor of the House, would have been subject to being taken down, and were not in order, and, by analogy, the Chair thinks it is even more improper to have such publications posted where no one can criticize them."

The Speaker read the following objectionable language of the placard:

3. The House conferees, in violation of the gentleman's agreement and in disregard of the positive mandate of the House, voted lumber used by the farmers on the dutiable list and polls and ties used by the public utilities on the free list.

17. 72 CONG. REC. 10122, 10123, 71st Cong. 2d Sess.

4. The conferees are the servants of the House, not its masters. Will the Members by their votes condone the violation of the gentleman's agreement and the disregard of the positive mandate of the House on the part of its conferees.

The Speaker stated that the truth or falsity of the document was not material; he added that whether the document cast doubt upon the worthiness of the motives of the conferees was relevant to his decision.⁽¹⁸⁾

Distribution of Bills Edited With Interpretation

§ 84.7 It is not in order for a Member to have distributed on the floor of the House copies of a bill marked with his own interpretations of its provisions.

On Aug. 16, 1935,⁽¹⁹⁾ Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ruled that a Member could not distribute in the Chamber copies

18. Rule I clause 3, House Rules and Manual §623 (1995) provides: "He [the Speaker] shall have general control, except as provided by rule or law, of the Hall of the House, and of the corridors and passages and the disposal of the unappropriated rooms in that part of the Capitol assigned to the use of the House, until further order."

19. 79 CONG. REC. 13433, 74th Cong. 1st Sess.

of a bill marked with his own interpretation thereof, and instructed the House pages not to distribute any such documents:

MR. [CLAUDE A.] FULLER [of Arkansas]: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry. I just sent a page for the bill under consideration, H.R. 9100, and received the copy which I have in my hand. At the top of the bill, pasted onto it is a pink slip, and on that pink slip in typewriting are the words:

Bituminous-coal bill as amended and reprinted—controversial phases largely eliminated. Two-thirds of tonnage output operators favor bill and more than 95 percent of labor.

My inquiry is to know whether it is proper for anybody to paste such a thing as that on a document of the House and whether it is proper for it to be circulated in the House. This is the first time in my experience that I have ever seen any advertisement on an official document or bill pending in the House. I rise for the purpose of ascertaining how it came there and whether or not it is proper to be on this bill.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has no information on the subject. Where did the gentleman get his copy of the bill?

MR. FULLER: From a page. I send this copy to the desk so that the Speaker may examine it.

MR. [J. BUELL] SNYDER [of Pennsylvania]: I can tell the gentleman how that came there.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman may state.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. Speaker, I had so many of these bills sent to my office, and with my secretarial help we wrote those words on that pink slip and pasted the slip on the bill. That is how that happens to be there. I sent copies of these bills with the slip on them to those interested and sent some of them to the desk back here, to be handed out upon request. It is altogether fitting and proper that I should do so. . . .

THE SPEAKER: The Chair knows of no rule or authority for inserting a statement like that to which the gentleman has called attention on a bill, and the Chair instructs the pages of the House not to distribute any more bills carrying this sort of inscription to Members on the floor of the House.

Proper Time To Use Displays

§ 84.8 The Member having the floor in Committee of the Whole may display charts or exhibits by permission of the Committee, but if objection is made, the question is put, without debate, as to whether such Member should be permitted to use displays; but exhibits are only to be displayed during the debate, and the Chair can direct their removal when they are not being utilized.

On Sept. 20, 1977,⁽²⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 6796 (the ²⁰ 123 CONG. REC. 29927, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

Energy Research and Development appropriations):

MR. [OLIN E.] TEAGUE [of Texas]: Madam Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. TEAGUE: Madam Chairman, I am not going to have a lot to say, but I do not care to have what I do have to say distracted by a bunch of charts here. I think the gentleman from California should not bring those in. I ask the Chair if that is not proper.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair would advise the gentleman from Texas that if he does object to the demonstrations or displays before the committee, he may do so. If he does object, the Chair would then put the question as to whether the Member having the floor should be permitted to use displays.

MR. TEAGUE: Madam Chairman, I object to them until the gentleman is ready to speak. Then, I will ask unanimous consent that he be permitted to bring them in.

MR. [GEORGE E.] BROWN [Jr.] of California: Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

MR. TEAGUE: I yield.

MR. BROWN of California: Madam Chairman, I want to do whatever the chairman thinks is fair. I want to point out that these charts were prepared for the purpose of assisting a number of speakers. We would be happy to put them all together and have them brought out one by one as the speakers prefer. I will not be able to use them, but others will.

MR. TEAGUE: I think it is proper, as they come to the charts, to use them.

1. Barbara Jordan (Tex.).

I will not object to that, but I do think that if other people are making speeches, the charts should not be there.

MR. BROWN of California: I will be happy to accede to the gentleman's objection.

THE CHAIRMAN: That, the Chair thinks, resolves the question.

§ 84.9 While Members are permitted to use exhibits such as charts during debate (subject to the permission of the House under Rule XXX), the Speaker may under Rule I direct the removal of a chart from the well if not being utilized during debate.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Apr. 1, 1982:⁽²⁾

(Mr. Gregg asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. [JUDD] GREGG [of New Hampshire]: Mr. Speaker, with the Congress having allegedly been in session now for approximately 4 months and about to go on recess for the month of April, I felt that we should review the "report card" of the liberal leadership of this Congress. So it has been prepared here on this chart. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ If there are no other Members who will use the chart in the well at this time during 1-minute speeches, it will be removed until such time as it is needed.

The Chair recognized the Republican leader, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Michel).

2. 128 CONG. REC. 6303, 6304, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.

3. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

§ 84.10 The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may direct the removal from the well of charts and other displays if not currently being utilized in debate.

During consideration of the first concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1983 (H. Con. Res. 345) in Committee of the Whole on May 25, 1982,⁽⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [LEON E.] PANETTA [of California]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽⁵⁾ The gentleman from California (Mr. Panetta) is recognized, but first the charts will be removed.

MR. PANETTA: Please, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIRMAN: Perhaps from the laughter, it might be worth having the Chair remind the Members that charts are always brought forward for a particular speaker. They are present entirely at the sufferance of the Committee.⁽⁶⁾

4. 128 CONG. REC. 11752, 97th Cong. 2d Sess.
5. Richard Bolling (Mo.).
6. See §84.9, supra, where the Speaker pursuant to his general authority under Rule I, directed the removal from the well of a chart that was not being utilized at the time. Under Rule XXX, the House or Committee of the Whole controls the use of displays during debate, upon the objection of any Member.

Displays Should Not Detract From Good Order and Decorum

§ 84.11 Recognition is within the discretion of the Chair, who may deny a Member recognition to speak under the “one-minute rule” in order to uphold order and decorum in the House as required under clause 2 of Rule I; thus, the Speaker inquired of a Member in the well seeking recognition, as to his purpose in utilizing an object for demonstration in debate, and then denied that Member recognition pursuant to his authority under clause 2 of Rule XIV, when he determined that the object might subject the House to ridicule.

On Aug. 27, 1980,⁽⁷⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁸⁾ The Chair would ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Shuster) what he intends to do with the doll. The Chair is not going to allow the Congress to be held up to ridicule and will object to any such exhibit being used in debate.

MR. [E. G.] SHUSTER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, if I may respond, I simply want to introduce this duck as

7. 126 CONG. REC. 23456, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.
8. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

a symbol of the lameduck session that I want to speak to.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair is of the opinion the Member would be holding the House up to ridicule and would ask the gentleman to make the speech without utilizing the apparatus or the doll or anything of that nature.

MR. SHUSTER: Mr. Speaker, this is certainly not the intention.

THE SPEAKER: That is the way the Chair feels about it and the Chair so rules.

(Mr. Shuster asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Parliamentarian's Note: The original transcript shows that the Speaker first inquired as to Mr. Shuster's purpose and then denied him recognition, and that Mr. Shuster was then recognized for one minute. Thus, the Speaker was exercising his power of recognition, and was not unilaterally preventing the use of a demonstration during debate, which would be a matter to be determined by a vote of the House, under Rule XXX.

§ 84.12 Where the Speaker, pursuant to his authority and responsibility to preserve decorum in debate under clause 2 of Rule I, had informally requested a Member not to wear a mask in debate, that Member utilized the mask as a display while mentioning the Speaker's admonition.

On Oct. 6, 1983,⁽⁹⁾ during consideration of H.R. 3958 (water resources development appropriations for fiscal 1984) in the House, the following occurred:

MR. [SILVIO O.] CONTE [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. Conte asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

MR. CONTE: Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment. I was going to start out this debate today by wearing this pig mask because I think it is the only way we can properly describe this bill.

But I was asked by my dear friend the Speaker not to wear it, and I am not going to put it on. But I wish I could wear it.

Because all this amendment would do is trim a little of the fat. If this amendment is adopted it will not keep anyone from bringing the bacon back home.

Parliamentarian's Note: The Speaker may deny recognition or continued recognition when an improper display is utilized. A different question would be raised by a Member's use of a politically provocative display which is not inherently disruptive or demeaning. In such a case the House, on objection of a Member, would decide the issue.

9. 129 CONG. REC. 27629, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

§ 84.13 The Speaker's responsibility under clause 2 of Rule I to preserve decorum during debate in the House requires that he not permit exhibits to be utilized in debate which would be demeaning to the House, and the Chair may inquire as to the Member's intentions before conferring recognition.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on Mar. 21, 1984:⁽¹⁰⁾

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 minute, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER:⁽¹¹⁾ What has the gentleman got in his hand?

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, this is a demonstration of what I have. I am not certain I am going to be able to use it under the rules.

THE SPEAKER: If the gentleman does not think so, why is he trying?

MR. WALKER: I will explain that in my speech, but I certainly would not want to violate the rules.

THE SPEAKER: Without objection, the Speaker recognizes the gentleman and will be watching carefully.

MR. WALKER: I thank the Speaker, and I know that the Speaker always watches very carefully everything that I do. . . .

Mr. Speaker, we have to be amused by an article in this morning's Washington Post, but I am pleased to see that two of my distinguished colleagues have gone on record supporting one of the major industries in my congressional district.

If we take everything they had to say, fold it between two pieces of bread, slap on a little mustard, we have the biggest bologna sandwich in history. The Lebanon bologna industry in my district is going to be forever grateful.

Mr. Speaker, what I have here is a real live Lebanon bologna, and I noticed in the rules, in reading the rules, that I probably would not be able to show that. What we are allowed to show on this floor is "verbal bologna" but not real bologna.

. . . Mr. Speaker, I did not violate the rules. I kept it in the bag.

Parliamentarian's Note: Reference to certain debate in the House as "baloney" has never been ruled unparliamentary, but to characterize all House debate as such might be ruled out as demeaning to the House.

§ 84.14 Prior to a special-order speech in which several Members intended to use photographic exhibits of missing children, the Chair reminded all Members to address the Chair and to avoid direct references to the television audience.

On Apr. 2, 1985,⁽¹²⁾ the Speaker Pro Tempore made an announcement, as follows:

10. 130 CONG. REC. 6187, 6188, 98th Cong. 2d Sess.

11. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

12. 131 CONG. REC. 7221, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ The Chair will ask that all Members who wish to exhibit pictures to address the Chair and avoid direct references to the television audience.

Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. Edwards) is recognized for 60 minutes.

MR. [MICKEY] EDWARDS of Oklahoma: Mr. Speaker, last summer I began a project to use the televised proceedings of the House of Representatives to help find some of the 160,000 children who each year are reported kidnaped either by strangers or by a parent who does not have custody.

§ 84.15 During a special-order speech, a Member on one occasion utilized cartoon caricatures as an exhibit to ridicule the Administration, particularly statements made by the Secretary of the Interior.

The following proceedings occurred in the House on June 2, 1987,⁽¹⁴⁾ during the period designated for special-order speeches:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York [Mr. Scheuer] is recognized for 60 minutes.

MRS. [PATRICIA] SCHROEDER [of Colorado]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. [JAMES H.] SCHEUER [of New York]: Of course, I would be happy to yield to the gentlewoman from Colorado.

MRS. SCHROEDER: Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman to explain some of the [exhibits] that the gentleman has down there. I can tell the gentleman from New York has worked very hard on this.

I take it that right beside the gentleman he has these [figures of] cats wearing hats and glasses and then the fish. The gentleman does not have a hat on the fish, but my understanding is that it is just as dangerous to the fish.

MR. SCHEUER: There is a hat on the fish, but it is a plastic hat and it sticks very close to its scales.

MRS. SCHROEDER: Oh, I see. So the gentleman is pointing out that the first thing we would have to do is start catching all these animals. . . .

Parliamentarian's Note: The display of exhibits in debate is always subject to the will of the House and any Member may object by requesting the Chair to put the question of propriety to the House. In particular instances, a question may arise as to whether the Chair should take the initiative and deny recognition for breaches of decorum.⁽¹⁶⁾ The exhibit here consisted of large photographs of animals dressed up in sunglasses, straw hats, and the like, and was intended to ridicule a statement by the Secretary of the Interior that depletion of the ozone layer could be countered by such protective devices. Especially since it was probably aimed at the television audience during special orders, it was arguably such breach of decorum as the Chair has the authority under Rule I, clause 2, to prevent.

§ 84.16 In response to a parliamentary inquiry, the Chair rendered an anticipatory ruling that he would utilize his authority under Rule I, clause 2, to prevent the display of exhibits in the Chamber during debate which might disrupt order or impair decorum in the Chamber, without ruling that the exhibits were necessarily obscene or offensive.

On Sept. 13, 1989,⁽¹⁷⁾ it was demonstrated that the Chair may in his discretion make an anticipatory ruling that the exhibition of certain materials during debate should be precluded as disruptive of decorum. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [ROBERT S.] WALKER [of Pennsylvania]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁸⁾ The gentleman will state it.

17. 135 CONG. REC. 20362, 101st Cong. 1st Sess.

18. George E. Brown, Jr. (Calif.).

MR. WALKER: Mr. Speaker, we are in the process of discussing certain artworks which have been paid for by taxpayers' money. What would be the ruling of the Chair should those particular artworks be brought on the floor for display as a part of the debate? Can the Chair tell me that?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would respond that it would be the intention of the Chair under rule I to prevent any activity which would disrupt the decorum of the Chamber and he would rule such action to be a disruption of the proper decorum of the Chamber.

MR. WALKER: I have a further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

So, in other words, the material that we are talking about is so bad that it would disrupt the decorum of the House if this were displayed and so, therefore, the Chair would have to rule against that display, is that correct?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would rule as the Chair has already stated.

Various Types of Displays

§ 84.17 On one occasion, a Member utilized dismantled weapons as an exhibit during debate.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole on Apr. 23, 1985,⁽¹⁹⁾ during consideration of House Joint Resolution 239 (appropriations for aid to Nicaragua):

MR. [NEWT] GINGRICH [of Georgia]: . . . I want to specifically pick up on the arguments of an earlier speaker, the gentleman from Arkansas, who in a sense was asking what are these votes in Nicaragua really all about.

19. 131 CONG. REC. 9024, 99th Cong. 1st Sess.

There are a number of ostrich Democrats who would have us believe that there is no danger from Nicaragua. . . .

Let me offer the physical proof of the Soviet-Cuban-Nicaraguan Communist offensive in El Salvador and Honduras. Let me say in advance to my colleagues, these exhibits are all harmless but they have been harmful. These exhibits are authenticated captured weapons from El Salvador. They are on loan from the El Salvadoran Government to the U.S. Defense Department. They have been dismantled. They meet every kind of rule of safety.

Parliamentarian's Note: Under Rule XXX, the Committee of the Whole or the House may, on demand of any Member, vote to permit a Member to utilize an exhibit during debate. In this instance, the Speaker had denied use of the Speaker's Lobby for the exhibition of the dismantled weapons, in accordance with his consistent policy; the Speaker could have precluded their display during debate in order to preserve decorum if he believed the display to pose a problem.

—Badges as Exhibits

§ 84.18 Clause 1 of Rule XIV, requiring Members desiring to “speak or deliver any matter to the House” to rise and address the Speaker to be recognized, proscribes, in effect, the wearing of badges by Members to communicate messages; thus, the Speaker, exercising his authority to preserve order and decorum, has advised Members that the wearing of badges is inappropriate under the rules of the House.

20. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The following statement was made by the Speaker⁽²⁰⁾ during proceedings on Apr. 15, 1986:⁽¹⁾

All Members wearing yellow badges should be advised that they are inappropriate under the rules of the House.

The badges in question urged support of military assistance to the Nicaraguan Contras. In recent years, some Members and staff have worn various badges on the floor to convey political messages to their colleagues and to the TV audience. Under the definition of decorum and debate in clause 1 of Rule XIV, a Member must first seek recognition and then speak his message, or use exhibits as provided in Rule XXX subject to approval of the House if objection is made.

K. SECRET SESSIONS

§ 85. In General

Secret sessions of the House, while authorized by Rule XXIX, are rarely invoked in current practice. Such sessions have been utilized where Members wished to refer to or utilize classified national security information or intelligence-related information in debate.

Rule XXIX permits a motion that the House hold a secret session. The motion is in order if the Speaker determines that the Member making it qualifies—that the Member has information of a secret nature which he wishes to impart to his colleagues in the House.

The motion is not debatable, is not in order in Committee of the Whole, and if agreed to, requires the House to undertake certain procedures—the clearing of the galleries, closing down the televised and broadcast coverage of the proceedings, insuring the secrecy of the proceedings—before commencing the debate. The vote on the motion for a secret session is subject to a rollcall vote but is not required by the rule.

Standing committees of the House are permitted to hold executive sessions pursuant to Rule XI, clauses 2(g) and 2(k) where national security matter is under discussion or where evidence or testimony is being elicited which is potentially incriminating or defamatory. The Select Committee on Intelligence has specific procedures for closing sessions, which are set forth in Rule XLVIII. Conference committees may meet behind closed doors pursuant to Rule XXVIII, but a vote of the House is required to permit House managers at a conference to invoke or agree to this procedure. A motion that a conference committee meeting be closed to the public, privileged under Rule XXVIII, clause 6(a), is debatable under the hour rule.

Recognition To Move for Secret Session

§ 85.1 The Speaker has declined to recognize a Member to move pursuant to Rule XXIX that the House resolve itself into a secret session where the motion had not been reduced to writing; and a Member who has been recognized for five minutes where the House is proceeding in the House as in the Committee of the Whole, and who is declined recognition to offer a motion during such five minutes, is entitled to use or to yield the remainder of his time.

On Mar. 30, 1977,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I move to strike the last word. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I would move, under the terms of rule XXIX of the House of Representatives, that we resolve ourselves into a secret session, that we exclude the press and the people in the galleries, and that we be permitted, as Members of the House who have to vote on this, to know what this secret information is that they will not reveal to us here in public on the floor today. . . .

THE SPEAKER:⁽³⁾ Is the gentleman's motion in writing?

MR. BAUMAN: The gentleman would be glad to reduce it to writing.

THE SPEAKER: In the meantime the Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Stokes).

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Maryland still have time?

THE SPEAKER: Yes.

MR. BAUMAN: That being the case, the gentleman from Maryland, Mr. Speaker, would like to say—

THE SPEAKER: The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Ohio.

MR. BAUMAN: Does the gentleman from Maryland still have time remaining in his 5 minutes? . . .

THE SPEAKER: The answer is in the affirmative. The gentleman has time in which to write out his motion.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I asked whether I had time to speak.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair begs the gentleman's pardon. The gentleman has time remaining.

MR. BAUMAN: The gentleman is going to use his time, Mr. Speaker, with the sufferance of the Speaker of the House.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman).

Secret Session Requires Preparation

§ 85.2 Pending a vote on a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session pursuant to Rule XXIX, the Speaker announced that should the motion be adopted, a motion to adjourn would be entertained due to the announced schedule and due to the elaborate precautions and arrangements necessary for a secret session.

The proceedings of the House on Mar. 30, 1977,⁽⁴⁾ relating to the motion described above were as follows:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: I renew my motion.

4. 123 CONG. REC. 9576, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁵⁾ The Chair hears the gentleman from Maryland and the Clerk will read the motion.

MOTION OFFERED BY MR. BAUMAN

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves under rule XXIX that the House resolve itself into secret session.

THE SPEAKER: The Chair would like to make the following statement:

There has been a motion made by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman). If the motion would prevail, in view of the fact that the Chair has said at an earlier date yesterday that we would be through at 5:30 this afternoon, and in view of the precautions that must be taken, the clearing of the galleries, the clearing of the Press Galleries, the proper placement of officers and employees that are necessary in order to protect the House of Representatives, that should the motion prevail that then a motion would be entertained to adjourn the House until 11 o'clock a.m. tomorrow.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Bauman) there were—ayes 76, noes 97.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. . . .

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 185, nays 226, not voting 21. . . .

5. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

Motion for Secret Session Rejected

§ 85.3 On one occasion, the Speaker entertained a motion under Rule XXIX that the House resolve itself into secret session, although made by a Member who did not assert that he had a secret communication to make to the House, where no point of order was raised that the Member making the motion was merely soliciting such information from the chairman of the Select Committee on Intelligence, who did not himself wish to communicate it to the House; the House rejected the motion that the House resolve itself into a secret session.

During the proceedings of the House on Mar. 30, 1977,⁽⁶⁾ the situation described above developed as follows:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I move to strike the last word. . . .

If, indeed, Mr. Speaker, the members of this committee have this information which they feel would warrant the continuation, they have the duty to reveal that to the House now.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I would move, under the terms of rule XXIX of the House of Representatives, that we resolve ourselves into a secret session, that we exclude the press and the people in the galleries, and that we be permitted, as Members of the House who have to vote on this, to know what this secret information is that they will not reveal to us here in public on the floor today. . . .

6. 123 CONG. REC. 9575, 9576, 95th Cong. 1st Sess.

THE SPEAKER:⁽⁷⁾ The Chair [asks] the gentleman from Maryland whether he will yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Stokes), the chairman of the committee.

MR. BAUMAN: Yes, I will yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

MR. [LOUIS] STOKES [of Ohio]: Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

In reply to the Speaker's question, this committee did consider undertaking a secret, private briefing of the House.

After a great deal of deliberation as to the unwieldy aspects of being able to contain highly sensitive materials and communications, this committee decided that it would be too unwieldy a procedure and would, in all probability rebound against the committee, and we decided against such action at that time.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, let me say that this Member was not invited to any secret briefing. There was a secret meeting held with the select committee and the Committee on Rules with no notice at all given in an effort to get them to get this resolution to the floor. But if there are secrets, we all should be told. . . .

I renew my motion. . . .

7. Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr. (Mass.).

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves under rule XXIX that the House resolve itself into secret session.

THE SPEAKER:. . .The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman).

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Bauman) there were—ayes 76, noes 97.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. . . .

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 185, nays 226, not voting 21. . . .

Motion Must Be Made in House Not in Committee of the Whole

§ 85.4 The House and not the Committee of the Whole decides whether the Committee may sit in executive session; and a parliamentary inquiry concerning the procedures whereby the House may act on a request for such a session should be addressed to the Speaker and not the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole.

On May 9, 1950,⁽⁸⁾ Chairman Michael J. Mansfield, of Montana, responded to a parliamentary inquiry relating to the procedure for holding an executive session as follows:

8. 96 CONG. REC. 6746, 81st Cong. 2d Sess.

MR. [ERRETT P.] SCRIVNER [of Kansas]: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would submit a parliamentary inquiry as to whether or not an executive session could be held and, if so, what procedure would be necessary to bring that to pass before we are asked to vote upon the $350,000,000 additional.

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will state to the gentleman from Kansas that the Committee of the Whole would have no control over that. That would be a matter for the House itself to decide.

MR. SCRIVNER: I understand that, of course, and raised the question for information of the Members. Since it is a matter for the House to determine, as a further parliamentary inquiry, what would be the method followed to take that action?

THE CHAIRMAN: The Chair will say to the gentleman from Kansas that a parliamentary inquiry of that sort should be addressed to the Speaker rather than the chairman.

Parliamentarian's Note: Where a Member in Committee of the Whole raises a question as to whether the House might sit in executive session, the Chair will entertain a motion that the Committee rise. A resolution would then be offered in the House providing that "during further consideration of the bill, the Committee would be cleared of all persons except Members and authorized officers and employees and all proceedings of the Committee would be kept secret until otherwise ordered by the House. After a determination as to those employees deemed essential to the proceedings, the Speaker at the appropriate time would issue a statement for purposes of clearing the galleries and locking the doors.

§ 85.5 Under Rule XXIX, providing for secret sessions of the House, a motion to go into secret session may be made only in the House and not in the Committee of the Whole, and the Member making the motion must qualify by asserting that he himself has a secret communication to make to the House.

During the proceedings of the House on June 6, 1978,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore Abner J. Mikva, of Illinois, responded to a parliamentary inquiry as follows:

MR. [FORTNEY H.] STARK [of California]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. STARK: Mr. Speaker, is a motion for the House to go into executive session in order at any time?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: It is not in order in the Committee of the

9. 124 CONG. REC. 16376, 95th Cong. 2d Sess.

Whole, the Chair will inform the gentleman.

MR. STARK: It is in order in the full House, is it?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will read the rule. It reads as follows:

RULE XXIX

SECRET SESSION

Whenever confidential communications are received from the President of the United States, or whenever the Speaker or any Member shall inform the House that he has communications which he believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons except the Members and officers thereof, and so continue during the reading of such communications, the debates and proceedings thereon, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

The Chair will emphasize that the rule requires that a Member assert that he himself has a secret communication to make for his motion to be in order.

Parliamentarian's Note: Pending was a special rule providing for consideration of H.R. 12240, the intelligence authorizations bill. H.R. 12240 authorized appropriations for intelligence activities of the United States government, not in a specified amount but rather by incorporating figures contained in a classified annex to the committee report. The report on the bill contained no cost estimate as to the authorization but referred to the figures contained in the classified annex available only to Members as designated. No waiver of the cost-estimate rule was necessary to allow consideration of the bill, since Rule XLVIII authorizes and directs the Select Committee on Intelligence to keep secret classified information obtained from the executive branch unless otherwise authorized by the House. (Rule XLVIII, being a more specific and more recently adopted rule, renders Rule XIII clause 7 inapplicable.) The Committee on Armed Services, in Part II of the report, merely incorporated by reference the Intelligence Committee estimate contained in the secret annex.

H.R. 12240 stated in part:⁽¹⁰⁾

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Intelligence and Intelligence-Related Program Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1979".

TITLE I—INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES

Sec. 101. (a) Funds are hereby authorized to be appropriated for fiscal year 1979 for the conduct of the intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the following departments, agencies, and other elements of the United States Government:

(1) The Central Intelligence Agency and the Director of Central Intelligence.

¹⁰ 124 CONG. REC. 16386, 95th Cong. 2d Sess., June 6, 1978.

(2) The Department of Defense. . . .

(b) A classified annex to the report prepared by the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives to accompany this Act shall be deemed to reflect the final action of the Congress with respect to the authorization of funds for fiscal year 1979 for intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the United States Government, including specific amounts for activities specified in subsection (a).

§ 85.6 Upon the conclusion of general debate on a bill in Committee of the Whole, a Member offered a pro forma amendment to announce that he would at the conclusion of his remarks move that the Committee rise, and then offer in the House a motion, pursuant to Rule XXIX, that the House resolve itself into secret session to discuss confidential communications related to the bill under consideration in Committee of the Whole.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹¹⁾ during consideration of the Panama Canal Act of 1979 (H.R. 111) in the Committee of the Whole, Mr. Robert E. Bauman, of Maryland, after being recognized for a motion to strike the last word, made an announcement as indicated below:

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 111) to provide for the operation and maintenance of the Panama Canal and to provide for the exercise of the rights and performance of the duties of the United States provided in the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977, with Mr. Foley in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

THE CHAIRMAN:⁽¹²⁾ When the Committee rose on Monday, May 21, 1979, all time for general debate had expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries now printed in the reported bill shall be considered by title as an original bill for the purpose of amendment, and each title shall be considered as having been read. . . .

The Clerk will designate section 1.

Section 1 reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

Section 1. Short Title.—This Act may be cited as the “Panama Canal Act of 1979”.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I take this time to inform the Committee of the Whole House that it will be my intention at the conclusion of the brief time that I will take here, to move that the Committee rise, and, assuming that is agreed to, I will move, under rule XXIX of the House, that the House meet in secret session.

12. Thomas S. Foley (Wash.).

I understand from the Parliamentarian that passage of the motion would allow us 1 hour of debate to be divided between the gentleman from New York and myself, during which time all of us, and I have discussed this with the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy), as well as with the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Hubbard), would be able to present to the House certain facts which we are not able to communicate to the House in public because of the classified nature and the source of the information.

Motion for Secret Session Not Debatable

§ 85.7 A motion that the House resolve itself into secret session must be made in the House and not in Committee of the Whole and is not debatable; in the 96th Congress, the House adopted by voice vote a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session pursuant to Rule XXIX (the first such occasion since 1830) where the Member offering the motion had ensured the Speaker that he had confidential communications to make to the House as required by that rule.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹³⁾ Mr. Robert E. Bauman, of Maryland, having informed the Committee of the Whole of his intention to make a motion under Rule XXIX in the House, made the motion as follows:

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. That the galleries of the House Chamber be cleared of all persons and that the House Chamber be cleared of all persons except the Members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the House and who subscribe to the notarized oath of confidentiality.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁴⁾ The Chair will state that the motion is not debatable. Absent unanimous consent to debate the motion, the question will be put upon the motion.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman).

The motion was agreed to.

Clearing Galleries and Limiting Floor Access

§ 85.8 The Speaker Pro Tempore announced, after the House had adopted a motion

13. 125 CONG. REC. 15711, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

14. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

to resolve itself into secret session and before the secret session commenced, that the galleries would be cleared of all persons, that the Chamber would be cleared of all persons except Members and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor was essential to the functioning of the secret session, and that all proceedings in the secret session must be kept secret until otherwise ordered by the House.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹⁵⁾ the House adopted by voice vote a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session pursuant to Rule XXIX (the first such occasion since 1830) where the Member offering the motion had ensured the Speaker that he had confidential communications to make to the House as required by that rule. The proceedings were as follows:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. . . .

The motion was agreed to.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁶⁾ The Chair will make a statement.

15. 125 CONG. REC. 15711-13, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

16. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

The Chair desires to read to the Members the contents of rule XXIX of the rules of the House of Representatives.

Rule XXIX reads as follows:

RULE XXIX

SECRET SESSION

Whenever confidential communications are received from the President of the United States, or whenever the Speaker or any Member shall inform the House that he has communications which he believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons except the Members and officers thereof, and so continue during the reading of such communications, the debates and proceedings thereon, unless otherwise ordered by the House. . . .

According to the rule of the House, the Chair is now going to order that the galleries of the House Chamber shall be cleared of all persons and the House Chamber shall be cleared of all persons except the Members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the secret session of the House. All proceedings in the House during such consideration shall be kept secret until otherwise ordered by the House.⁽¹⁷⁾

The Chair is going to declare a recess long enough for this order to be carried out.

Parliamentarian's Note: A list of the employees signing the oath of 17. For further discussion of the Speaker's directions to officers and employees on this date, see §85.12, infra.

secrecy and present in the secret session was compiled and retained by the Journal Clerk.

It would have been appropriate to require a rollcall vote on resolving into secret session (since executive sessions of committees require a rollcall vote).

Guidelines for Conducting Secret Session

§ 85.9 After a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session has been agreed to, the Chair may explain the operation of the rule and respond to parliamentary inquiries before the secret session commences; on one such occasion, before declaring a recess in order to clear the Chamber and galleries for a secret session of the House, the Speaker Pro Tempore stated in response to parliamentary inquiries that (1) the proceedings of the House in secret session would not be recorded by the television system; (2) after the presentation of the material considered confidential in secret session, the House could vote in secret session to remove the injunction of secrecy from the proceedings; (3) the material to be presented in the secret session was not required by Rule XXIX or the precedents relating thereto to be relevant to any particular legislation; (4) the Speaker had afforded the officers of the House with guidelines as to which employees were to be considered essential to the functioning of the secret session, but that during the session only those employees so designated and sworn could enter the Chamber; (5) Members could come and go at will during the session; (6) Members would be prohibited from divulging information presented in the secret session without the consent of the House; (7) a record of attendance of Members would not be kept, except through a call of the House, since Members were expected to be trusted with honor and integrity; (8) members of committees which might be meeting (having received permission to sit under the five-minute rule and perhaps under the impression that the House was proceeding in Committee of the Whole) would be sufficiently notified of the secret session by the bells and lights indicating a recess and the reconvening of the House; (9) the admitted House employees (but not Members) must sign an oath to preserve inviolable secrecy (similar to the Senate oath for secret sessions), violation of which was punishable by the House, but that statutes applying exclusively to the executive branch, requiring appropriate clearances to receive information classified by the executive branch, did not apply to Members of Congress and only to employees of the legislative branch where such statutes were generally applicable beyond the executive branch; and (10) no rule of the House required clearance of House Members or employees under procedures applied by the executive branch for access to classified information, but that Members and employees of the House were subject to standards of conduct and disciplinary procedures under House rules.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹⁸⁾ during consideration of the Panama

18. 125 CONG. REC. 15711-13, 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

Canal Act of 1979 (H.R. 111), the following proceedings occurred:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. . . .

The motion was agreed to. . . .

MR. [JACK] HIGHTOWER [of Texas]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ The gentleman will state it.

MR. HIGHTOWER: What will be the action of the Chair in regard to the television proceedings?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The television will not be recording the proceedings of the House during the time of the secret session.

MS. [ELIZABETH] HOLTZMAN [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentlewoman will state it.

MS. HOLTZMAN: In the Chair's reading of his order and reading the rule he mentioned that the House can order otherwise with respect to the secrecy of the proceedings. Is it my understanding then that should, during the debate or after the debate, the Members of the House determine that the material was not, in fact, confidential, is it then in order, or when is it in order, assuming that to be the case, for the proceedings to be then made public or the Journal kept of the debate then made public?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The precedents which the Chair has read

19. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

this morning indicate that following the presentation of that material considered secret or confidential or of such nature that it ought to be heard in secret session, the House may at that time, by its own motion, in secret session decide that there is no reason to observe further secrecy with respect to the material involved. Having heard the material and determined the nature thereof, it will be up to the Members of the House as to whether they would observe additional and future secrecy with respect thereto.

MS. HOLTZMAN: I thank the Speaker.

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DERWINSKI: The Chair did not address himself to the question of the relevancy of the material to the legislation before the House. What is the determination or the precedents involved regarding the relevancy of presumed secret testimony to the legislative matter before us?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will state that there is no requirement whatsoever in the precedents of the House, such materials having been received, that the material be relevant to any legislation, since the rule would include messages from the President of the United States that bear upon no pending legislation. It is not the opinion of the Chair that the material to be revealed in this session necessarily has any bearing whatever upon the legislation which otherwise would have been under consideration in the Committee of the Whole. It simply is a recognition of the right of the gentleman from Maryland and other Members present at the secret session to divulge such information as they desire to our colleagues, the Members of the House. The Members have voted to grant them that privilege. It does not necessarily bear in any way tangentially or otherwise upon the legislation previously before the House or any other legislation.

MR. DERWINSKI: I thank the Speaker.

MR. [FRANK] HORTON [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. HORTON: The Chair announced that Members of the House are permitted to be present and also officers to be designated by the Speaker. Will the Speaker specifically designate those employees to remain on the floor?

The second inquiry is with regard to access to the floor. What about going and coming on the floor, will the doors be manned in order to prevent unauthorized persons from entering the Chamber?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will attempt to answer both questions.

First, with respect to those official staff persons whose presence on the floor of the House is essential to the operation of the House, the Chair already has, pursuant to authority conferred upon him in the motion, delivered to the officers of the House sufficient guidelines with regard to that question.

On the second question, with respect to the rights of Members to go and come, that question should be answered in the affirmative. Members may go and come at will.

MR. HORTON: What about others? They would have to be cleared before they could come in, other than Members?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman is correct. Others would have to be designated and sworn before they could enter the Chamber.

MR. [PAUL N.] MCCLOSKEY [Jr., of California]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. MCCLOSKEY: Mr. Speaker, I understand that we will receive in this Chamber information that will be labeled either "confidential" or "secret" or "top secret" under any Executive order which applies only to members of the executive branch. Therefore, it would not be a crime, for example, for a Member of this body to reveal information classified in the executive branch unless it came under the statute.

I am wondering what would be the rules of the House with respect to a Member of this body who might, after hearing in this secret session information perhaps classified "secret" or "top secret" if that Member should, following this session, divulge that information to the press or to third persons not authorized to receive that information. It seems to me that under the rules of the House we would violate those rules as individual Members should we reveal classified information.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair feels that the same rule should prevail which prevails in executive sessions of committees of the House. The Chair does not wish to prejudge the nature or the import of the information to be revealed because the Chair is not privy to that knowledge.

The Chair believes that the Members of the House possess sufficient honor that they will do the right thing in determining, after having heard the information, whether or not its sanctity should be preserved or it should be revealed at the will of the Members. The Chair trusts the Members of the House to make the right decision.

MR. MCCLOSKEY: I thank the Chair.

MR. [ROBERT N.] GIAIMO [of Connecticut]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. GIAIMO: Mr. Speaker, under those circumstances should not attendance be kept as to whether or not a Member actually is in the Chamber or not, because there are some of us—and I feel very strongly about this kind of session because I have found out in the past through experience that I usually learn just as much outside a secret session as I do in it, and the information, if I find out the information outside of this session—I do not want to be gagged by the fact that I may or may not have been in this session at the time. It seems to me that the Chair ought to have attendance of Members.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would observe that the gentleman from Connecticut or any other Member might have the privilege, if he or she so desires, to move a call of the House, and thereby could ascertain the presence of Members. Beyond that, the Chair is not of the disposition to impose upon the Members of the House any rule beyond those rules which are expressly written in the rules of the House. The Chair is of the disposition to trust implicitly the honor and the integrity of the Members of the U.S. House of Representatives.

MR. [CARROLL] CAMPBELL [Jr., of South Carolina]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. CAMPBELL: Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact that a number of the committees have received permission to sit under the 5-minute rule, I wonder if the Chair is taking steps to notify these committees of the pending proceedings.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will respond, as the gentleman would understand, of course, that we are not now under the 5-minute rule and will not be proceeding under the 5-minute rule after we resume following the recess which the Chair will very presently declare.

The Chair would presume that the bells signaling the recess and the bells signaling the resumption of the convening of the House would be sufficient notice to warrant knowledge on the part of those who might be in committee sessions or elsewhere on Capitol Hill.

MR. CAMPBELL: I thank the Chair.

MR. [BILL D.] BURLISON [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. BURLISON: Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding from the conversation I have heard thus far that there will be classified information presented to the body; confidential, secret, top secret. Is that a fair statement?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: In response to the gentleman's question, the Chair is not in a position to characterize the nature, the character, the quality, or the veracity of the information which will be divulged. The Chair is not privy to that knowledge.

MR. BURLISON: A further parliamentary inquiry: Do the rules of the House not require that in those instances where classified material is to be received, that the reporters and the staff members and the officers of the House who may be present other than Members of the House be cleared for that classified information?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is going to read to the gentleman an oath which employees and officers of the House are required to sign:

I do solemnly swear that I will preserve inviolable secrecy on all confidential business of the House of Representatives that may come to my knowledge until especially absolved therefrom, so help me God.

Every employee and officer of the House will be expected to sign this oath if permitted to be privy to the session. Members of the House will not be requested nor required to sign such an oath.

MR. BURLISON: Mr. Speaker, my parliamentary inquiry is whether the rules of the House require, in such a session, that the reporters and the staff members and others have the requisite clearances to be present and to conduct the business.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will respond to the gentleman's request in the following manner: Members of the U.S. House of Representatives are not members of the executive branch of Government, who may be bound by laws exclusively applicable to members of the executive branch of Government.

The Chair will state again that Members of the House, after hearing the nature of this information, whatever it may be, must judge on their own or as ordered by the House as to whether it is of sufficient import or secret in character to require continued silence. On previous occasions, the Chair discovers on reading the precedents, Members of the House, having heard information thus divulged, usually have voted to allow that information to become known publicly.

MR. BURLISON: Is the Speaker saying that the rules of the House do not require that the staff, House officers, and others be cleared to receive the information? My parliamentary inquiry is whether there is such a House rule.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: There is no such House rule, the Chair will respond.

MR. [THOMAS J.] DOWNEY [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. DOWNEY: Mr. Speaker, if I understand the ruling of the Chair then, the employees of the House of Representatives coming into the session will be privy to receive information secret, top secret, classified, that is so designated by U.S. statute. What concerns me, Mr. Speaker, is that we have no rule governing classification of House employees with respect to the receiving of secret information. That is not a rule just of the executive branch; that is United States statutory law with respect to who can receive and under what circumstances classified, secret, and top secret information.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The employees of the House, the Chair will advise the gentleman, are subject to applicable provisions of law and to the disciplinary action of the House, and the special rule for them requires that secrecy of the proceedings be maintained until absolved from that responsibility by the House.

The Members of the House, in context, are also subject to the disciplinary rules of the House with respect to the Standards of Official Conduct Committee and under the Constitution.

Transcript of Proceedings Remains Secret Until Otherwise Ordered

§ 85.10 The Speaker declared a recess in order to make preparations for a secret session of the House and at the conclusion of the recess the House resolved itself into secret session (the proceedings of which were not printed in the Congressional Record of this date, since the House refused in secret session to remove the injunction of secrecy); when the House had concluded the secret session, having voted not to release the transcripts of that session, the Speaker declared that the injunction of secrecy remained and that he would refer the transcripts to the appropriate committees for their evaluation and ask them to report to the House as to the ultimate disposition thereof to be made.

On June 20, 1979,⁽²⁰⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The Chair declares a recess.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 20 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

SECRET SESSION OF THE HOUSE

At 12 o'clock and 38 minutes, the House proceeded to meet in secret session.

(House proceedings held in secret session.)

At 2 o'clock and 11 minutes, the House dissolved its proceeding being held in secret session.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at 2 o'clock and 30 minutes p.m.

THE SPEAKER:⁽²⁾ The Chair will make the following statement:

The Chair would remind the Members that the House has not at this point voted to remove the injunction of secrecy and that Members are bound not to release or to make public any of the transcript of the closed session until further order of the House.

To enable the House to evaluate the transcript of the secret session, the Chair will refer the transcript to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries for their report thereon as soon as possible. The committees' report will remain executive session record of those committees for examination by the Members and ultimate disposition by the House.

The Chair further would state that he would believe that the item could go to the Committee on Rules and the House could go back into a secret session for a time allotted before making the transcript public record.⁽³⁾

§ 85.11 By unanimous consent, the transcript of the proceedings of the House on a previous day in executive session was printed in the Congressional Record, with revisions and deletions made by Members who participated in the debate, which revisions and deletions were mutually agreeable to the chairmen of the committees to which the Speaker had on that previous day referred the transcript of the secret session for a report to the House on needed secrecy.

In the July 17, 1979, edition of the Congressional Record⁽⁴⁾ by unanimous consent, the transcript of proceedings of the secret session of the House on June 20, 1979, with certain omissions, was printed:

MR. [EDWARD P.] BOLAND [of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the transcript of the proceedings of the House and the secret session held on June 20, 1979, be printed in today's edition of the Congressional Record, with the revisions and deletions made in that transcript by Members who participated in that debate, and which are mutually agreeable to the chairmen of the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

SECRET SESSION OF THE HOUSE

The secret session of the House met at 12:38 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wright).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Members will take their seats. Officers and employees of the House designated to remain will come to the pages' desk and sign the oath of secrecy.

4. 125 CONG. REC. 19049 et seq., 96th Cong. 1st Sess.

5. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

The procedures for review of the transcript prior to its publication were outlined as follows:⁽⁶⁾

MR. BOLAND: Mr. Speaker, the procedures followed by the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence in considering the transcript of the secret session of the House on June 20 are as follows:

Upon receipt of the transcript from the Speaker, the committee identified areas which involved classified intelligence sources and methods and other classified material. The committee then consulted with representatives from the Department of Defense, Central Intelligence Agency, Department of State and the Department of Justice and noted each item suggested by any of the above as involving classified matter. The committee then made recommendations concerning each item so noted to the Speaker.

Thereafter, the committee was called in to resolve the differences between its approach and the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries to which the transcript had also been referred. The committee did this and prepared a revised transcript embodying the recommendations of both committees and reflective of such other revisions and extensions as were suggested by individual Members involved in the debate.

It is my understanding that the completed transcript which is provided to the House today represents a careful, yet critical revision of the transcript to exclude only that material which was genuinely sensitive. I believe that the resulting document fairly represents the debate that occurred during the closed session of the House while protecting essential national security information. I want to thank the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, chaired by the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy) and for all the Members who participated in the debate and whose perusal and agreement was necessary to resolve the matters associated with this transcript and the charge given to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence by the House.

Oath of Secrecy

§ 85.12 At the convening of a secret session of the House, the Speaker directed all officers and employees designated by him as essential to the proceedings to come to the pages' desk and sign an oath of secrecy.

In the transcript of the proceedings of the June 20, 1979, secret session of the House, inserted in the Congressional Record on July 17, 1979,⁽⁷⁾ it is shown that the Speaker Pro Tempore⁽⁸⁾ made the following announcement:

The secret session of the House met at 12:38 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wright).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Members will take their seats. Officers and employees of the House designated to remain will come to the pages' desk and sign the oath of secrecy. That includes any committee staff designated by the chairman of the committee in writing who are to remain in the Chamber.

Hour Rule of Debate Applies

§ 85.13 At the convening of a secret session of the House, the Speaker recognized the Member who had offered the motion for a secret session for one hour of debate, and advised that Member that the normal rules of the House would apply during such debate and that no motions would be in order unless he yielded for such purpose.

On June 20, 1979,⁽⁹⁾ Speaker Pro Tempore James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas, responded to several inquiries regarding procedures in a secret session of the House, as follows:

The secret session of the House met at 12:38 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wright).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: Members will take their seats. . . .

The Chair is going to recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bau-man) for 1 hour, during which time the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) may yield to such others as he deems desirable.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, are motions in order during the 1 hour in the sense that motions are in order in the Committee of the Whole? Are any motions in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will respond to the gentleman that the House is in the House. This is not the Committee of the Whole House. The House is prepared to take such action as under the rules it might otherwise take.

MR. BAUMAN: If the gentleman does not yield for any motions, however, then they would not be in order?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: That is correct.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, I would yield 30 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Murphy) for the purposes of debate only.

Speaker Judges Whether Proponent Qualifies To Move for Secret Session

§ 85.14 Where the House has resolved itself into secret session pursuant to a motion under Rule XXIX, upon a finding by the Speaker that the Member making the motion has confidential communications to make as required by the rule, it is not in order to make a point of order in the secret session that the material in question must be produced to the Members in advance to determine whether secret or confidential communications are involved.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹⁰⁾ during proceedings in a secret session in the House, the Speaker ruled that a certain point of order would not be in order:

The secret session of the House met at 12:38 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wright).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹¹⁾ Members will take their seats. . . .

The Chair is going to recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) for 1 hour, during which time the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) may yield to such others as he deems desirable. . . .

MS. [ELIZABETH] HOLTZMAN [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I have a point of order.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentlewoman will state her point of order.

MS. HOLTZMAN: Mr. Speaker, I understand that the nature of this secret session is to receive material claimed to be secret or confidential. In order for us to determine such for the materials that we receive, it would seem to me to be in order to require the person presenting the material claimed to be secret or confidential to identify the material claimed to be secret or confidential when it is being presented for purposes ultimately for the House to make a decision as to whether in fact these are confidential or secret materials.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would respond that the commentary of the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. Holtzman) is not truly in the nature of a point of order and that a point of order will not lie in that regard.

Speaker Determines Which Employees Are Essential

§ 85.15 During a secret session of the House the Chair overruled a point of order that employees of the House who were not elected officers or Members were present, where the Chair had designated essential employees whose presence was essential pursuant to the motion for a secret session, which included the provision that the Chamber be cleared of all persons except Members and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance was essential to the functioning of the House, and who had subscribed to the oath of secrecy.

During a secret session of the House on June 20, 1979,⁽¹²⁾ the Chair responded to a point of order, as indicated below:

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹³⁾ The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Burlison). The gentleman will state the point of order.

MR. [BILL D.] BURLISON [of Missouri]: I will state my point of order that the House is not in compliance with rule XXIX, the secret session section under which we are now convened. That is a very brief section with two sentences, I think. Let me read that and specify my point of order.

Whenever confidential communications are received from the President of the United States, or whenever the Speaker or any Member shall inform the House that he has communications which he believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons except the Members and officers thereof, and so continue during the reading of such communications, the debates and proceedings thereon, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

Mr. Speaker, my point of order is that from my observation there are a number of people on the floor who are not Members or officers of the House.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will respond to the gentleman's point of order. The motion made by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) and agreed to by a vote of the Members of the House, included the provision that the galleries of the House Chamber be cleared of all persons except the Members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the House, and who have subscribed to the notarized oath of confidentiality. The Chair has taken steps to assure that this requirement be observed and that that restriction apply.

The Chair believes that any persons so designated by the Chair fulfill the broad and generic description of officers as specified in rule XXIX and as required in the motion.

Making Proceedings Public

§ 85.16 The Member recognized to control one hour of debate during a secret session of the House offered a privileged motion to make public the proceedings of the secret session, which motion was, after separate debate, withdrawn; such motion, as noted by the Speaker, is debatable for one hour, within narrow limits.

During the secret session of the House on June 20, 1979,⁽¹⁴⁾ the following proceedings occurred:

The secret session of the House met at 12:38 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wright).

14. 125 CONG. REC. 19049, 19057, 19058, 96th Cong. 1st Sess., July 17, 1979 (transcript of June 20, 1979, secret session).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁵⁾ Members will take their seats. . . .

The Chair is going to recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) for 1 hour, during which time the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) may yield to such others as he deems desirable. . . .

After debate, Mr. Bauman made the following motion:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that the proceedings of this Secret Session be made public.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) is recognized for 1 hour. The motion is debatable within narrow limits. . . .

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: . . . We are in a very, very sensitive position. Most of this conversation today on this debate was extremely interesting. I would not say it was classified. Certainly the gentleman from Texas, Mr. Wright's beautiful speech was not classified. But I do think that we ought to table this matter, send it to the Committee on Intelligence, let them look it over, and let the proper authorities from downtown look over what was classified. . . .

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, frankly, I made this motion simply because I understood somebody on the other side was going to make it. I do not feel strongly attached to it. Nothing new was said here but now we are told it must remain secret. Does the gentleman from Maryland require unanimous consent to withdraw the motion?

15. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman can withdraw the motion.

MR. BAUMAN: The gentleman withdraws the motion.

Hour Rule Applies

§ 85.17 The Speaker took the floor pending a motion, made in a secret session of the House to make public the proceedings of the secret session, to speak in opposition to the motion on the grounds that the transcript should be reviewed by the Select Committee on Intelligence to determine whether the transcript could be made public with appropriate deletions, and that the House could determine to reveal the transcript if necessary in another secret session based on such review and on review by other Members who would have access thereto; the Speaker declared his intention to offer a motion to table the motion at the conclusion of debate thereon.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹⁶⁾ during a secret session of the House, the following proceedings occurred:

The secret session of the House met at 12:38 p.m. and was called to order

16. 125 CONG. REC. 19049, 19057, 19058, 96th Cong. 1st Sess., July 17, 1979 (transcript of June 20, 1979, secret session).

by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wright).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁷⁾ Members will take their seats. . . .

The Chair is going to recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) for 1 hour, during which time the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) may yield to such others as he deems desirable. . . .

After debate, Mr. Bauman made the following motion:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that the proceedings of this Secret Session be made public.

THE SPEAKER: The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) is recognized for 1 hour. The motion is debatable within narrow limits.

MR. [THOMAS P.] O'NEILL [Jr., of Massachusetts]: Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

MR. BAUMAN: For purposes of debate only, I yield 5 minutes to the Speaker.

MR. O'NEILL: Mr. Speaker, we could very well be setting a precedent here today. When was it—1830—the last time that the House went into a secret session like this? I have seen rules of this House not used for many, many years, and suddenly some bright young luminary discovers one, and it becomes a common practice. I do not say that in criticism. I respect the ability of the gentleman. But it becomes a common practice.

There are those of us who would like to reveal everything that was said or everything that is known about the Panamanian Government. . . .

17. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

We are in a very, very sensitive position. . . . I do think that we ought to table this matter, send it to the Committee on Intelligence, let them look it over, and let the proper authorities from downtown look over what was classified. Let them strike or delete what is classified. Then let us report to this body, and let us again, if necessary in secret session go in and accept it and reveal to the American public that which we know does not hurt the U.S. Government or hurt the individual who may have said it on the floor. I think we are doing something in fairness to our own Government. . . .

MR. [JOHN J.] RHODES [of Arizona]: . . . I agree with the Speaker. . . . It would be my hope that a committee of the House, the Intelligence Committee if the Speaker so says, would look at the transcript and expunge whatever matters might be that sensitive or classified, and then at the appropriate time a motion be made for the remainder of the debate to be published and made public to the American people.

MR. O'NEILL: . . . The document would be ready in print for the Members of the House, for the committee for their evaluation, for the evaluation of the members of the committee. I think we could very well protect everybody. If there are things that have to be deleted, they would be deleted, and then bring it back to the House and, if necessary, have a secret session, or if not necessary, if they want to debate something that was stricken from the record, we could go into secret session. If they do not want to go into secret session at that time, we could release it on the floor of the House. . . .

Mr. Speaker, I hope the Chair will take cognizance of the fact that when the gentleman's time has expired at the end of the hour, or when he yields his time, I would move to table this motion and would hope to be recognized for that motion.

Motion To Dissolve Secret Session

§ 85.18 At the conclusion of debate in a secret session of the House, the Member who had controlled the debate therein offered a motion that the secret session be dissolved, which was agreed to.

On June 20, 1979,⁽¹⁸⁾ a secret session of the House was terminated as indicated below:

The secret session of the House met at 12:38 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Wright).

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁹⁾ Members will take their seats. . . .

The Chair is going to recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) for 1 hour, during which time the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman) may yield to such others as he deems desirable. . . .

After debate, Mr. Bauman offered a motion, as follows:

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: . . . Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

18. 125 CONG. REC. 19049, 19059, 96th Cong. 1st Sess., July 17, 1979 (transcript of June 20, 1979, secret session).

19. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Bauman moves that the Secret Session be dissolved.

The motion was agreed to.

Where Motion for Secret Session Was Challenged by Point of Order

§ 85.19 A Member who asserts to the Speaker that he is properly in possession of confidential communications which he believes should be shared with the House qualifies to make a privileged motion for a secret session of the House pursuant to Rule XXIX; thus, a point of order against a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session to consider confidential information which four Members had advised the Speaker Pro Tempore they wished to communicate to the House, on the grounds that the material in question was in fact in the possession of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and not in the possession of the Members, was overruled, since the Speaker must rely on the assurance of a Member that he has confidential communications to make to the House, and since the Speaker Pro Tempore was aware that the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence had authorized the material in question to be used in a secret session of the House if ordered.

On Feb. 25, 1980,⁽²⁰⁾ during consideration of a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session pursuant to Rule XXIX, Mr. Thomas R. Harkin, of Iowa, raised the point of order that the proponent of the motion had not qualified to offer the motion under the rule, in that he had not shown that he had a secret communication to make to the House, independently of secret information in the possession of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I move that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Derwinski moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session, that the galleries of the House Chambers be cleared of all persons and that the House Chamber be cleared of all persons except the members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the House and

20. 126 CONG. REC. 3618-20, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

1. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

who subscribe to the notarized oath of confidentiality. . . .

MR. HARKIN: Mr. Speaker, I raise a point of order against the motion by the gentleman from Illinois that the House resolve itself into secret session. I base my point of order on the reading of rule 29 and subsequent interpretations thereof. The rule clearly states that—

Whenever the Speaker or any Member shall inform the House that he has communications which he believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons, except the officers and Members thereof, and so continue during the reading of such communications, the debates and proceedings thereof, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

A correct reading of this rule clearly indicates that the Member making the motion for a secret session must inform the House that “he has communications” and that this means that the Member shall assert that he has certain material which he believes ought to be kept secret.

On June 6, 1978, the Speaker pro tem, in response to a question raised by a Member in the House, declared:

A Member seeking to offer the motion that the House resolve itself into secret session must qualify, as provided by the rule, by asserting that he himself has a secret communication to make to the House.

Clearly, the gentleman from Illinois making the motion now put to the Chair does not in fact have such communications, but is in fact asserting that such communications are held by a duly authorized committee of the House of Representatives. Last year when a similar motion was made that the House resolve itself into secret session, a point of order would not have lain against the maker of the motion because at that time the maker of the motion asserted that he did in fact have communications in his possession of a secret nature which he decided to communicate to the House. No such assertion is now being made by the gentleman from Illinois who is making the present motion. In this case, the appropriate body to make such a request would be a motion from the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives which does in fact have such communications and not the gentleman from Illinois. . . .

In further support of my point of order, I was pointing out that under this rule, under rule XXIX, which clearly states that the Member must in fact assert that he has those communications, it is clear that the reasons therefor are because the House is not as equipped to deal with these types of secret documents as are the proper intelligence communities of the Government or the duly authorized committees of the House of Representatives.

Secret intelligence must be evaluated by those in the intelligence community, with other factors taken into account, and with the proper analytical tools which they uniquely [possess]. On the other hand, the House is not so equipped. Future debates on foreign aid, on military preparedness, or on a host of other matters could be jeopardized if this motion is carried or deemed worthy of a secret session, so that one factor of intelligence favoring one point of view or another could be brought to the floor. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is prepared to rule.

The gentleman from Iowa makes a point of order against the motion on the ground that any Member moving to resolve the House into a secret session must needs qualify as provided by the rule by asserting that he has a secret communication to make to the House.

Now, the Chair is in receipt of a letter signed by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski), and in addition, the gentleman from California (Mr. Lagomarsino); the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Young); and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Bauman); all asserting that they have communications to make to the House which they believe ought to be kept secret for the present.

Now, the gentleman therefore qualifies, and particularly with regard to the statement he has just made to the Chair and to the House to make a motion for a secret session under rule XXIX.

The Chair is not in a position to evaluate the accuracy of the information which the gentleman seeks to communicate, but the Chair will rely; and I think this is a central, unwritten but nevertheless cardinal important rule stated from time to time by Speakers, at least beginning with Speaker Rayburn and probably before, on the integrity of any Member and his or her verbal or written assurances.

As the Speaker, Mr. Rayburn, once said on an occasion when a Member's integrity was questioned, the Chair always takes the word of a Member. . . .

MR. HARKIN: . . . Mr. Speaker, would it be appropriate for the Speaker to inquire of the maker whether or not such communications are now held by the person moving that we now resolve into secret session?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would respond to the gentleman from Iowa that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski) has in writing and just now and very publicly given those assurances to the Speaker.

The Chair does not feel that it is necessary under the rule for the gentleman to carry in his possession at the moment copies of secret documents in order to qualify.

The Chair is also aware in this instance that the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence has determined that confidential materials within its control may be considered during a secret session, if indeed such a session were to be ordered by the House.

Under all those circumstances, the Chair believes that the gentleman from Illinois qualifies to make the motion which he has made, and overrules the point of order by the gentleman from Iowa.

MR. [THEODORE S.] WEISS [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Is the Speaker stating that even though the confidential communication is a communication which is in the possession of the Committee on Intelligence of this House that that qualifies as a confidential communication personally held by the Member making the motion?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will respond that the gentleman from Illinois, along with other Members already has asserted that he possesses knowledge of what is contained in those documents and perhaps additional knowledge independent of those specific documents which he considers of such a nature that it should be heard in secret by the House.

Now, the House is not legally obliged to adopt the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois, but the Chair believes under all the precedents that exist, and admittedly they are rare, that the gentleman from Illinois fully qualifies to make the motion that he has made, and the Chair will entertain the motion. . . .

The gentleman from New York has presented a hypothetical instance on which the Chair does not have to rule. . . .

The Chair will respond to the gentleman from New York by saying that if the gentleman from New York were to state to the Chair that he was properly in possession of secret information, which he thought should be shared with the House in a secret session, the Chair would respect the gentleman's integrity and would entertain the motion to resolve into a secret session if made by the gentleman from New York under those circumstances.

MR. WEISS: Mr. Speaker, I have a further parliamentary inquiry.

If it then turned out, upon further presentation, that the only document or information that I had was nothing independently gained or transmitted, but simply the document which I had received from the Committee on Intelligence, would I have violated the requirements of rule XXIX?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair is not going to rule on that hypothetical question at this time.

The Chair would simply observe that under the rules any Member of the House who asserts that he is properly in possession of such information and desires to share it with the House in a secret session, believing that it may have a direct bearing upon legislation pending in the House, would have the right to offer that motion.

Committee Authorization for Member To Move for Secret Session

§ 85.20 The House adopted a privileged motion, pursuant to Rule XXIX, that the House resolve itself into secret session to receive confidential communications (consisting of classified information in the possession of the Committee on Foreign Affairs and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, which those committees had authorized to be used in a secret session of the House if ordered).

On Feb. 25, 1980,⁽²⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I move that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽³⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

2. 126 CONG. REC. 3618-22, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.
3. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

Mr. Derwinski moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session, that the galleries of the House Chambers be cleared of all persons and that the House Chamber be cleared of all persons except the members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the House and who subscribe to the notarized oath of confidentiality. . . .

MR. DERWINSKI: . . . I would point out to the Speaker that the information contained that would be presented to the House in the appropriate documents . . . [has] been cleared, it is my understanding, by the appropriate committee.

I myself sat through a session of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, which the same basic information was provided to that committee.

I have subsequently studied the secret documents to verify my recollection of the practicality of that information and the need for further secrecy.

Therefore, it is from that practical point of view in spirit that I made the motion. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion that the House resolve itself into secret session offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

MR. [BILL D.] BURLISON [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 290, nays 74, not voting 69, as follows: . . .

So the motion was agreed to.

Special Circumstances Surrounding Disclosure of Intelligence-related Materials

§ 85.21 The Speaker Pro Tempore stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry, pending a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session to consider confidential material within the possession of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence (which that committee had authorized to be used in such secret session), that clause 7(b) of Rule XLVIII, requiring special procedures to be followed by that committee with regard to the public disclosure of materials within the committee's possession which the executive branch desires be kept secret, did not prohibit the House from determining in secret session that the material in question should be released; the Speaker Pro Tempore suggested, however, that it would be inappropriate for the House to remove the injunction of secrecy before the Permanent Select Committee and the Committee on Foreign Affairs, with concurrent jurisdiction over some of the materials, had the opportunity to review the transcript of the secret session and to make appropriate recommendations to the House.

On Feb. 25, 1980,⁽⁴⁾ proceedings in the House relative to a motion that the House resolve itself into secret session were as follows:

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I move that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁵⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Derwinski moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session, that the galleries of the House Chambers be cleared of all persons and that the House Chamber be cleared of all persons except the members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the House and who subscribe to the notarized oath of confidentiality. . . .

MR. [BILL D.] BURLISON [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. . . .

Mr. Speaker, with respect to the secret session motion, at the time of the secret session of the House on June 20 of last year, a Member inquired of the Chair the manner in which confidential material heard in secret session under the provisions of rule XXIX might be released publicly.

4. 126 CONG. REC. 3618-22, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

5. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

The Chair responded, and I quote:

Following the presentation of that material considered secret or confidential or of such nature that it ought to be heard in secret session, the House may at that time on its own motion in secret session decide that there is no reason to observe further secrecy with respect to the material involved.

Mr. Speaker, would not such procedure if employed here be in violation of clause 7(b) of rule XLVIII of the House, which provides for disclosure of intelligence information in the possession of the Select Committee on Intelligence under very specific procedures, including recommendations by the committee, notification of the President and procedures for further action by the House?

And I might add, Mr. Speaker, that the information that we are considering did get here pursuant to rule XLVIII of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Burlison) has inquired whether any action of the House to release publicly the transcript of the secret session would violate clause 7(b) of rule XLVIII, since classified materials within the possession of the Select Committee on Intelligence may have been discussed, and since that rule requires certain procedures to be followed by the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence relative to the public disclosure of such materials. Rule XLVIII places restrictions on the Select Committee on Intelligence and only with respect to the public disclosure of classified information in the possession of that committee, and it does not prevent the House from determining to release any matter properly presented to it in secret session pursuant to rule XXIX.

Clause 7(c)(2) acknowledges the existence of other House procedures for release of information, since prohibiting any Member gaining access to classified materials within the Select Committee's control from disclosing such information, except in a secret session of the House. The Chair would further point out that the Select Committee on Intelligence, by a proper vote, with a quorum present, determined to allow executive session materials of the committee to be used in the secret session.

The Chair does not feel, however, that if the motion is agreed to it would be appropriate for the House at this time to remove the injunction of secrecy from these proceedings until the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and the Committee on Foreign Affairs has had the opportunity to review the transcript and make appropriate recommendations as to which, if any, of the materials presented should be released. It would be within the spirit of rule XLVIII for prior consultation with the executive branch to take place before any House decision on public release.

Recent Example of Procedures Used in Conducting Secret Session

§ 85.22 The House having adopted a motion to resolve into secret session, the Speaker Pro Tempore announced (1) that the galleries would be cleared of all persons and the Chamber would be cleared of all persons except Members and those employees and officers specified by the Speaker whose attendance was essential to the functioning of the House; (2) that those employees and officers would be required to sign an oath of secrecy; (3) that all proceedings in the secret session would be kept secret until otherwise ordered by the House; and (4) that the Speaker would declare a recess, of approximately 15 minutes duration (without the ringing of bells to indicate the termination of the recess) in order to carry out the Chair's order.

Prior to holding a secret session of the House on Feb. 25, 1980, the Speaker Pro Tempore made a statement regarding the procedures to be followed for conducting such a session:⁽⁶⁾

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I move that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁷⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

6. 126 CONG. REC. 3618-22, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

7. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

Mr. Derwinski moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session, that the galleries of the House Chambers be cleared of all persons and that the House Chamber be cleared of all persons except the members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the House and who subscribe to the notarized oath of confidentiality. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion that the House resolve itself into secret session offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski). . . .

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 290, nays 74, not voting 69, as follows: . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair desires to make a statement.

The Chair desires to read to the Members the contents of rule XXIX of the Rules of the House of Representatives. Rule XXIX reads as follows:

Whenever confidential communications are received from the President of the United States, or whenever the Speaker or any Member shall inform the House that he has communications which he believes ought to be kept secret for the present, the House shall be cleared of all persons except the Members and officers thereof, and so continue during the reading of such communications, the debates, and proceedings thereon, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

According to the rule of the House, the Chair is going to order that the galleries and the House Chamber shall be cleared of all persons except the Members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the secret session of the House.

Every employee and officer present in the Chamber during the secret session, pursuant to the Speaker's order, will sign an oath of secrecy which is at the page's desk to the Chair's right.

All proceedings in the House during such consideration shall be kept secret until otherwise ordered by the House.

Very presently the Chair is going to declare a recess long enough for this order to be carried out. The Chair will observe at this time that on the last occasion when this procedure was followed the recess consumed approximately 15 minutes. Bells will ring declaring the recess. No bells will ring in announcing the resumption, and the Chair would advise the Members that it probably will be approximately 15 minutes after the recess.

§ 85.23 The House having adopted a motion to resolve into secret session, the Speaker Pro Tempore stated in response to parliamentary inquiries that: (1) the television cameras would be turned off during the secret session; (2) that any Member releasing any contents of the secret session if the House had not removed the injunction of secrecy would be subject to the discipline of the House; and (3) that the House would have to determine whether disciplinary action should be taken against Members releasing information in the secret session which had theretofore been made public; following the secret session, the Speaker Pro Tempore reminded Members that the House had not yet voted to remove the injunction of secrecy from proceedings in the secret session and that Members were bound not to release or make public any of the transcript thereof until further order of the House, which had referred the transcript to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence for their expeditious report, such report to remain executive session material for examination by the Members and ultimate disposition by the House.

On Feb. 25, 1980,⁽⁸⁾ the following proceedings occurred in the House:

MR. [EDWARD J.] DERWINSKI [of Illinois]: Mr. Speaker, I move that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽⁹⁾ The Clerk will report the motion.

8. 126 CONG. REC. 3618-22, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.
9. James C. Wright, Jr. (Tex.).

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Derwinski moves that, pursuant to rule XXIX, the House resolve itself into secret session, that the galleries of the House Chambers be cleared of all persons and that the House Chamber be cleared of all persons except the members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the House and who subscribe to the notarized oath of confidentiality. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The question is on the motion that the House resolve itself into secret session offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Derwinski). . . .

So the motion was agreed to. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: . . . According to the rule of the House, the Chair is going to order that the galleries and the House Chamber shall be cleared of all persons except the Members of the House and those officers and employees specified by the Speaker whose attendance on the floor is essential to the functioning of the secret session of the House. . . .

All proceedings in the House during such consideration shall be kept secret until otherwise ordered by the House. . . .

MR. [RICHARD H.] ICHORD [of Missouri]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. ICHORD: Would the Chair advise the membership as to how his ruling will affect the television cameras? Will the television cameras remain on in secret session or not?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: As was the case on the last occasion when this procedure was followed, the television cameras will be turned off.

MR. [ROBERT E.] BAUMAN [of Maryland]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

MR. BAUMAN: Mr. Speaker, at the last occasion when a secret session was voted by the House, the chair issued a similar admonition to the Members regarding the secrecy of the proceedings. In this case, there are very specific documents to be read, names mentioned in those documents.

The gentleman from Maryland recalls that certain Members of the House went outside of the last secret session and very specifically referred to information that was covered in the session and characterized that information in a number of different ways.

Mr. Speaker, what censure or other action would be available against a Member who revealed the contents of the session without permission of the House?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would just have to respond that any Member violating the rule would be subject to the discipline of the House. The Chair cannot anticipate what might occur. . . .

MR. [DANTE B.] FASCELL [of Florida]: Mr. Speaker, would it be correct to say that if the information which is published or made available in the secret session has heretofore been made public and is in the public domain, that that would have some bearing on what the restrictions of the House might be against the Member who speaks on that information?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair would just have to respond that that question would be up to the House to determine at the appropriate time. . . .

The Chair will declare a recess.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 10 minutes p.m.) the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The secret session began at 2 o'clock and 36 minutes p.m.

The secret session was dissolved at 4 o'clock and 12 minutes p.m.

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Brademas) at 4 o'clock and 12 minutes p.m.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹⁰⁾ The Chair will make the following statement:

The Chair would remind the Members that the House has not at this point voted to remove the injunction of secrecy and that Members are bound not to release or to make public any of the transcript of the closed session until further order of the House.

To enable the House to evaluate the transcript of the secret session, the House has referred the transcript to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and to the Committee on Foreign Affairs for their report thereon as soon as possible. The committees' report will remain executive session record of those committees for examination by the Members and ultimate disposition by the House.

Members' Responsibility for Maintaining Injunction of Secrecy

§ 85.24 The Speaker Pro Tempore stated in response to a parliamentary inquiry, following a secret session of the House, that the question whether the characterization of the type of testimony and information presented in the secret session, as opposed to the substance of such material, could be divulged or released without violating the injunction of secrecy, was a judgment which each Member of the House, and not the Chair, must make.

The proceedings of Feb. 25, 1980,⁽¹¹⁾ relating to the adoption by the House of a motion to receive confidential communications in secret session, are discussed in detail in §§ 85.19–85.23, supra. After the secret session, a parliamentary inquiry was raised concerning the application of the injunction of secrecy:

The secret session began at 2 o'clock and 36 minutes p.m.

The secret session was dissolved at 4 o'clock and 12 minutes p.m. . . .

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE:⁽¹²⁾ The Chair will make the following statement:

11. 126 CONG. REC. 3621, 3622, 96th Cong. 2d Sess.

12. John Brademas (Ind.).

The Chair would remind the Members that the House has not at this point voted to remove the injunction of secrecy and that Members are bound not to release or to make public any of the transcript of the closed session until further order of the House. . . .

MR. [THEODORE S.] WEISS [of New York]: Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The gentleman will state it.

MR. WEISS: Earlier today there was some indication or an objection to a characterization of the kind of testimony and presentation that was made today. Does the injunction apply to characterizations as distinguished from a report of what the substance was of the matter presented here today?

THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE: The Chair will advise the gentleman from New York (Mr. Weiss) that the question as put to the Chair is a judgment which each Member of the House must make.

Miscellaneous

§ 85.25 A Member who had previously announced to the House his intention to offer a motion for a secret session of the House pursuant to Rule XXIX in order to discuss confidential information concerning an amendment to be offered to the Defense authorization bill (relating to binary nerve gas weapons), subsequently stated in debate on the bill that he could adequately discuss information available to him in debate on the bill without moving for a secret session.

The following proceedings occurred in the Committee of the Whole during consideration of H.R. 2969 (Department of Defense authorization for fiscal year 1984) on June 15, 1983:⁽¹³⁾

MR. [ED] BETHUNE [of Arkansas]: Mr. Speaker, soon this House will begin the debate on the Armed Services bill and an amendment which will be offered by myself and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Zablocki) concerning the question of whether this country should commence the production of a new age of chemical weapons, known as the binary nerve gas weapon.

In spite of the fact that there is more evidence this year that this House was right when it voted overwhelmingly to stop the production of these weapons last year, the Department of Defense is pushing to commence production of the nerve gas weapons. They are pushing and they are telling Members that it is essential that we begin, because we do not have the artillery shells and they are telling Members that the Big Eye bomb is working.

Mr. Speaker, I say first of all, the artillery shells that we have are adequate. They are efficient and we have a sufficient quantity of those shells.

Second, the Big Eye bomb is not working. The Big Eye bomb is blowing up on us, not them.

Members cannot intelligently resolve this important issue based on the kinds of information that could be discussed in public. Therefore, at the appropriate time today or tomorrow, whenever this issue is before the House, I will move the House, pursuant to rule XXIX, to go into secret session, at which time I intend to bring out the kind of factual information which Members must have in order to make an intelligent judgment toward the resolution of this issue. . . .

MR. [CLEMENT J.] ZABLOCKI [of Wisconsin]: . . . The gentleman from New York (Mr. Stratton), has stated that the classified information could not be shared on the floor. The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Montgomery) has apparently said otherwise.

Now, what will be the policy of the Committee on Armed Services? Will it share its classified information and its confidential information with other Members? . . .

MR. [MELVIN] PRICE [of Illinois]: Mr. Chairman, the policy of the Committee on Armed Services is that any information that our committee has is available to any Member of Congress. All Members have to do is to come to the committee and ask for the information, and it will be shown to them.

MR. ZABLOCKI: But do I understand that it cannot be discussed?

MR. PRICE: It cannot be discussed. Otherwise it would not be considered classified.

MR. BETHUNE: Mr. Chairman, I think the numbers are important. That was not the main point that I wanted to develop in the closed session. The main point I wanted to develop in the closed session that I think is critical to the debate here is the details concerning the Big Eye bomb—what happened to it, why it is not working, and what the ideas are for getting it to the point where we can be satisfied that it might work someday.

13. 129 CONG. REC. 15781, 15802, 15803, 98th Cong. 1st Sess.

I am satisfied, based on the colloquy that we have had here, that I am not going to be locked up by the FBI or somebody else if I now engage in a full discourse here on the floor about what I know about the Big Eye bomb, and that is exactly what I intend to do because I think it is relevant.

With respect to the numbers, it would seem to me that it would help Members who are going to be wandering in and out if there were readily available a set of numbers on the stockpile, because that will be mentioned, too, and we could place one at the desk.

If the Committee on Armed Services is so intractably disposed to make it difficult for Members that they have to send staff over to the committee room or wherever else to get these numbers, then I will just announce to the Members that I have the numbers. They are right here, and I will share them with the Members. . . . I am now satisfied, based on the letter from the Secretary dated today in response to my announcement that I intended to call a secret session, that I can discuss the details concerning the Big Eye bomb. I intend to do that whether the gentleman wishes to have me do that or not.

Senate Use of Closed Session in Impeachment

§ 85.26 A closed session of the Senate was ordered to deliberate as a court of impeachment in the trial of Judge Walter L. Nixon, Jr.

On Nov. 2, 1989,⁽¹⁴⁾ President Pro Tempore Robert C. Byrd, of West Virginia, made the following statement:

THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE: Under the order, the Senate will now go into closed session, and the Chair, pursuant to rule XXI, now directs the Sergeant at Arms to clear all galleries, close all doors to the Senate Chamber, and exclude from the Chamber and its immediate corridors all employees and officials of the Senate who, under the rule, are not eligible to attend a closed session and who are not sworn to secrecy.

(At 2:03 p.m., the doors of the Chamber were closed. The proceedings of the Senate were held in closed session until 8 p.m., at which time, the following occurred.)

MR. [GEORGE J.] MITCHELL [of Maine]: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate return to open session.

THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE: Without objection, it is so ordered.
