MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT

On the State of the Union and Transmitting the Budget

To the Congress of the United States:

A quarter century ago the Congress decided that it could no longer consider the financial programs of the various departments on a piecemeal basis. Instead it has called on the President to present a comprehensive Executive Budget. The Congress has shown its satisfaction with that method by extending the budget system and tightening its controls. The bigger and more complex the Federal Program, the more necessary it is for the Chief Executive to submit a single budget for action by the Congress.

At the same time, it is clear that the budgetary program and the general program of the Government are actually inseparable. The President bears the responsibility for recommending to the Congress a comprehensive set of proposals on all Government activities and their financing. In formulating policies, as in preparing budgetary estimates, the Nation and the Congress have the right to expect the President to adjust and coordinate the views of the various departments and agencies to form a unified program. And that program requires consideration in connection with the Budget, which is the annual work program of the Government.

Since our programs for this period which combines war liquidation with reconversion to a peacetime economy are inevitably large and numerous it is imperative that they be planned and executed with the utmost efficiency and the utmost economy. We have cut the war program to the maximum extent consistent with national security. We have held our peacetime programs to the level necessary to our national well-being and the attainment of our postwar objectives. Where increased programs have been recommended, the increases have been held as low as is consistent with these goals. I can assure the Congress of the necessity of these programs. I can further assure the Congress that the program as a whole is well within our capacity to finance it. All the programs I have recommended for action are included in the Budget figures.

For these reasons I have chosen to combine the customary Message on the State of the Union with the annual Budget Message, and to include in the Budget not only estimates for functions authorized by the Congress, but also for those which I recommend for its action.

I am also transmitting herewith the Fifth Quarterly Report of the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion. It is a comprehensive discussion of the present state of the reconversion program and of the immediate and long-range needs and recommendations.

This constitutes, then, as complete a report as I find it possible to prepare now. It constitutes a program of government in relation to the Nation's needs.

With the growing responsibility of modern government to foster economic expansion and to promote conditions that assure full and steady employment opportunities, it has become necessary to formulate and determine the Government program in the light of national economic conditions as a whole. In both the executive and the legislative branches we must make arrangements which will permit us to formulate the Government program in that light. Such an approach has become imperative if the American political and economic system is to succeed under the conditions of economic instability and uncertainty which we have to face. The Government needs to assure business, labor, and agriculture that Government policies will take due account of the requirements of a full employment economy. The lack of that assurance would, I believe, aggravate the economic instability.

With the passage of a full employment bill which I confidently anticipate for the very near future, the executive and legislative branches of government will be empowered to devote their best talents and resources in subsequent years to preparing and acting on such a program.

I. FROM WAR TO PEACE—THE YEAR OF DECISION

In his last Message on the State of the Union, delivered one year ago, President Roosevelt said:

> This new year of 1945 can be the greatest year of achievement in human history.
>
> 1945 can see the final ending of the Nazi-Fascist reign of terror in Europe.
>
> 1945 can see the closing in of the forces of retribution about the center of the malignant power of imperialistic Japan.
> Most important of all—1945 can and must see the substantial beginning of the organization of world peace.

All those hopes, and more, were fulfilled in the year 1945. It was the greatest year of achievement in human history. It saw the end of the Nazi-Fascist terror in Europe, and also the end of the malignant power of Japan. And it saw the substantial beginning of world organization for peace. These momentous events became realities because of the steadfast purpose of the United Nations and of the forces that fought for freedom under their flags. The plain fact is that civilization was saved in 1945 by the United Nations.

Our own part in this accomplishment was not the product of any single service. Those who fought on land, those who fought on the sea, and those who fought in the air deserve equal credit. They were supported by other millions in the armed forces who through no fault of their own could not go overseas and who rendered indispensable service in this country. They were supported by millions in all levels of government, including many volunteers, whose devoted public service furnished basic organization and leadership. They were also supported by the millions of Americans in private life—men and women in industry, in commerce, on the farms, and in all manner of activity on the home front—who contributed their brains and their brawn in arming, equipping, and feeding them. The country was brought through four years of peril by an effort that was truly national in character.

Everlasting tribute and gratitude will be paid by all Americans to those brave men who did not come back, who will never come back—the 330,000 who died that the Nation might live and progress. All Americans will also remain deeply conscious of the obligation owed to that larger number of soldiers, sailors, and marines who suffered wounds and sickness in their service. They may be certain that their sacrifice will never be forgotten or their needs neglected.

The beginning of the year 1946 finds the United States strong and deservedly confident. We have a record of enormous achievements as a democratic society in solving problems and meeting opportunities as they developed. We find ourselves possessed of immeasurable advantages—vast and varied natural resources; great plants, institutions, and other facilities; unsurpassed technological and managerial skills; an alert, resourceful, and able citizenry. We have in the United States Government rich resources in information, perspective, and facilities for doing whatever may be found necessary to do in giving support and form to the widespread and diversified efforts of all our people.

And for the immediate future the business prospects are generally so favorable that there is danger of such feverish and opportunistic activity that our grave postwar problems may be neglected. We need to act now with full regard for pitfalls; we need to act with foresight and balance. We should not be lulled by the immediate alluring prospects into forgetting the fundamental complexity of modern affairs, the catastrophe that can come in this complexity, or the values that can be wrested from it.

But the long-range difficulties we face should no more lead to despair than our immediate business prospects should lead to the optimism which comes from the present short-range prospect. On the foundation of our victory we can build a lasting peace, with greater freedom and security for mankind in our country and throughout the world. We will more certainly do this if we are constantly aware of the fact that we face crucial issues and prepare now to meet them.

To achieve success will require both boldness in setting our sights and caution in steering our way on an uncharted course. But we have no luxury of choice. We must move ahead. No return to the past is possible.

Our Nation has always been a land of great opportunities for those people of the world who sought to become part of us. Now we have become a land of great responsibilities to all the people of all the world. We must squarely recognize and face the fact of those responsibilities. Advances in science, in communication, in transportation, have compressed the world into a community. The economic and political health of each member of the world community bears directly on the economic and political health of each other member.

The evolution of centuries has brought us to a new era in world history in which manifold relationships between nations must be formalized and developed in new and intricate ways.

The United Nations Organization now being established represents a minimum essential beginning. It must be developed rapidly and steadily. Its work must be amplified to fill in the whole pattern that has been outlined. Economic collaboration, for example, already charted, now must be carried on as carefully and as comprehensively as the political and security measures.

It is important that the nations come together as States in the Assembly and in the Security Council and in the other specialized assemblies and councils that have been and will be arranged. But this is not enough. Our ultimate security requires more than a process of consultation and compromise.

It requires that we begin now to develop the United Nations Organization as the representative of the world as one society. The United Nations Organization, if we have the will adequately to staff it and to make it work as it should, will provide a great voice to speak constantly and responsibly in terms of world collaboration and world well-being.

There are many new responsibilities for us as we enter into this new international era. The whole power and will and wisdom of our Government and of our people should be focused to contribute to and to influence international action. It is intricate, continuing business. Many concessions and adjustments will be required.

The spectacular progress of science in recent years makes these necessities more vivid and urgent. That progress has speeded internal development and has changed world relationships so fast that we must realize the fact of a new era. It is an era in which affairs have become complex and rich in promise. Delicate and intricate relationships, involving us all in countless ways, must be carefully considered.

On the domestic scene, as well as on the international scene, we must lay a new and better foundation for cooperation. We face a great peacetime venture; the challenging venture of a free enterprise economy making full and effective use of its rich resources and technical advances. This is a venture in which business, agriculture, and labor have vastly greater opportunities than heretofore. But they all also have vastly greater responsibilities. We will not measure up to those responsibilities by the simple return to "normalcy" that was tried after the last war.

The general objective, on the contrary, is to move forward to find the way in time of peace to the full utilization and development of our physical and human resources that were demonstrated so effectively in the war.

To accomplish this, it is not intended that the Federal Government should do things that can be done as well for the Nation by private enterprise, or by State and local governments. On the contrary, the war has demonstrated how effectively we can organize our productive system and develop the potential abilities of our people by aiding the efforts of private enterprise.

As we move toward one common objective there will be many and urgent problems to meet.

Industrial peace between management and labor will have to be achieved—through the process of collective bargaining—with Government assistance but not Government compulsion. This is a problem which is the concern not only of management, labor, and the Government, but also the concern of every one of us.

Private capital and private management are entitled to adequate reward for efficiency, but business must recognize that its reward results from the employment of the resources of the Nation. Business is a public trust and must adhere to national standards in the conduct of its affairs. These standards include as a minimum the establishment of fair wages and fair employment practices.

Labor also has its own new peacetime responsibilities. Under our collective bargaining system, which must become progressively more secure, labor attains increasing political as well as economic power, and this, as with all power, means increased responsibility.

The lives of millions of veterans and war workers will be greatly affected by the success or failure of our program of war liquidation and reconversion. Their transition to peacetime pursuits will be determined by our efforts to break the bottlenecks in key items of production, to make surplus property immediately available where it is needed, to maintain an effective national employment service, and many other reconversion policies. Our obligations to the people who won the war will not be paid if we fail to prevent inflation and to maintain employment opportunities.

While our peacetime prosperity will be based on the private enterprise system, Government can and must assist in many ways. It is the Government's responsibility to see that our economic system remains competitive, that new businesses have adequate opportunities, and that our national resources are restored and improved. Government must realize the effect of its operations on the whole economy. It is the responsibility of Government to gear its total program to the achievement of full production and full employment.

Our basic objective—toward which all others lead—is to improve the welfare of the American people. In addition to economic prosperity, this means that we need social security in the fullest sense of the term; the people must be protected from the fear of want during old age, sickness, and unemployment. Opportunities for a good education and adequate medical care must be generally available. Every family should have a decent home. The new economic bill of rights to which I have referred on previous occasions is a charter of economic freedom which seeks to assure that all who will may work toward their own security and the general advancement; that we become a well-housed people, a well-nourished people, an educated people, a people socially and economically secure, an alert and responsible people.

These and other problems which may face us can be met by the cooperation of all of us in furthering a positive and well-balanced Government program—a program which will further national and international well-being.

II. THE FEDERAL PROGRAM

International Affairs

1. FOREIGN POLICY

The year 1945 brought with it the final defeat of our enemies. There lies before us now the work of building a just and enduring peace.

Our most immediate task toward that end is to deprive our enemies completely and forever of their power to start another war. Of even greater importance to the preservation of international peace is the need to preserve the wartime agreement of the United Nations and to direct it into the ways of peace.

Long before our enemies surrendered, the foundations had been laid on which to continue this unity in the peace to come. The Atlantic meeting in 1941 and the conferences at Casablanca, Quebec, Moscow, Cairo, Tehran, and Dumbarton Oaks each added a stone to the structure.

Early in 1945, at Yalta, the three major powers broadened and solidified this base of understanding. There fundamental decisions were reached concerning the occupation and control of Germany. There also a formula was arrived at for the interim government of the areas in Europe which were rapidly being wrested from Nazi control. This formula was based on the policy of the United States that people be permitted to choose their own form of government by their own freely expressed choice without interference from any foreign source.

At Potsdam, in July 1945, Marshal Stalin, Prime Ministers Churchill and Attlee, and I met to exchange views primarily with respect to Germany. As a result, agreements were reached which outlined broadly the policy to be executed by the Allied Control Council. At Potsdam there was also established a Council of Foreign Ministers which convened for the first time in London in September. The Council is about to resume its primary assignment of drawing up treaties of peace with Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland.

In addition to these meetings, and in accordance with the agreement at Yalta, the Foreign Ministers of Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and the United States conferred together in San Francisco last spring, in Potsdam in July, in London in September, and in Moscow in December. These meetings have been useful in promoting understanding and agreement among the three governments.

Simply to name all the international meetings and conferences is to suggest the size and complexity of the undertaking to prevent international war in which the United States has now enlisted for the duration of history.

It is encouraging to know that the common effort of the United Nations to learn to live together did not cease with the surrender of our enemies:

When difficulties arise among us, the United States does not propose to remove them by sacrificing its ideals or its vital interests. Neither do we propose, however, to ignore the ideals and vital interests of our friends.

Last February and March an Inter-American Conference on Problems of War and Peace was held in Mexico City. Among the many significant accomplishments of that Conference was an understanding that an attack by any country against any one of the sovereign American republics would be considered an act of aggression against all of them; and that if such an attack were made or threatened, the American republics would decide jointly, through consultations in which each republic has equal representation, what measures they would take for their mutual protection. This agreement stipulates that its execution shall be in full accord with the Charter of the United Nations Organization.

The first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations now in progress in London marks the real beginning of our bold adventure toward the preservation of world peace, to which is bound the dearest hope of men.

We have solemnly dedicated ourselves and all our will to the success of the United Nations Organization. For this reason we have sought to insure that in the peacemaking the smaller nations shall have a voice as well as the larger states. The agreement reached at Moscow last month preserves this opportunity in the making of peace with Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Finland. The United States intends to preserve it when the treaties with Germany and Japan are drawn.

It will be the continuing policy of the United States to use all its influence to foster, support, and develop the United Nations Organization in its purpose of preventing international war. If peace is to endure it must rest upon justice no less than upon power. The question is how justice among nations is best achieved. We know from day-to-day experience that the chance for a just solution is immeasurably increased when everyone directly interested is given a voice. That does not mean that each must enjoy an equal voice, but it does mean that each must be heard.

Last November, Prime Minister Attlee, Prime Minister MacKenzie King, and I announced our proposal that a commission be established within the framework of the United Nations to explore the problems of effective international control of atomic energy.

The Soviet Union, France, and China have joined us in the purpose of introducing in the General Assembly a resolution for the establishment of such a commission. Our earnest wish is that the work of this commission go forward carefully and thoroughly, but with the greatest dispatch. I have great hope for the development of mutually effective safeguards which will permit the fullest international control of this new atomic force.

I believe it possible that effective means can be developed through the United Nations Organization to prohibit, outlaw, and prevent the use of atomic energy for destructive purposes.

The power which the United States demonstrated during the war is the fact that underlies every phase of our relations with other countries. We cannot escape the responsibility which it thrusts upon us. What we think, plan, say, and do is of profound significance to the future of every corner of the world.

The great and dominant objective of United States foreign policy is to build and preserve a just peace. The peace we seek is not peace for twenty years. It is permanent peace. At a time when massive changes are occurring with lightning speed throughout the world, it is often difficult to perceive how this central objective is best served in one isolated complex situation or another. Despite this very real difficulty, there are certain basic propositions to which the United States adheres and to which we shall continue to adhere.

One proposition is that lasting peace requires genuine understanding and active cooperation among the most powerful nations. Another is that even the support of the strongest nations cannot guarantee a peace unless it is infused with the quality of justice for all nations.

On October 27, 1945, I made, in New York City, the following public statement of my understanding of the fundamental foreign policy of the United States. I believe that policy to be in accord with the opinion of the Congress and of the people of the United States. I believe that that policy carries out our fundamental objectives.

1. We seek no territorial expansion or selfish advantage. We have no plans for aggression against any other state, large or small. We have no objective which need clash with the peaceful aims of any other nation.

2. We believe in the eventual return of sovereign rights and self-government to all peoples who have been deprived of them by force.

3. We shall approve no territorial changes in any friendly part of the world unless they accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned.

4. We believe that all peoples who are prepared for self-government should be permitted to choose their own form of government by their own freely expressed choice, without interference from any foreign source. That is true in Europe, in Asia, in Africa, as well as in the Western Hemisphere.

5. By the combined and cooperative action of our war allies, we shall help the defeated enemy states establish peaceful democratic governments of their own free choice. And we shall try to attain a world in which nazism, fascism, and military aggression cannot exist.

6. We shall refuse to recognize any government imposed upon any nation by the force of any foreign power. In some cases it may be impossible to prevent forceful imposition of such a government. But the United States will not recognize any such government.

7. We believe that all nations should have the freedom of the seas and equal rights to the navigation of boundary rivers and waterways and of rivers and waterways which pass through more than one country.

8. We believe that all states which are accepted in the society of nations should have access on equal terms to the trade and the raw materials of the world.

9. We believe that the sovereign states of the Western Hemisphere, without interference from outside the Western Hemisphere, must work together as good neighbors in the solution of their common problems.

10. We believe that full economic collaboration between all nations, great and small, is essential to the improvement of living conditions all over the world, and to the establishment of freedom from fear and freedom from want.

11. We shall continue to strive to promote freedom of expression and freedom of religion throughout the peace-loving areas of the world.

12. We are convinced that the preservation of peace between nations requires a United Nations Organization composed of all the peace-loving nations of the world who are willing jointly to use force, if necessary, to insure peace.

That is our foreign policy.

We may not always fully succeed in our objectives. There may be instances where the attainment of those objectives is delayed. But we will not give our full sanction and approval to actions which fly in the face of these ideals.

The world has a great stake in the political and economic future of Germany. The Allied Control Council has now been in operation there for a substantial period of time. It has not met with unqualified success. The accommodation of varying views of four governments in the day-to-day civil administration of occupied territory is a challenging task. In my judgment, however, the Council has made encouraging progress in the face of most serious difficulties. It is my purpose at the earliest practicable date to transfer from military to civilian personnel the execution of United States participation in the government of occupied territory in Europe. We are determined that effective control shall be maintained in Germany until we are satisfied that the German people have regained the right to a place of honor and respect.

On the other side of the world, a method of international cooperation has recently been agreed upon for the treatment of Japan. In this pattern of control, the United States, with the full approval of its partners, has retained primary authority and primary responsibility. It will continue to do so until the Japanese people, by their own freely expressed choice, choose their own form of government.

Our basic policy in the Far East is to encourage the development of a strong, independent, united, and democratic China. That has been the traditional policy of the United States.

At Moscow the United States, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and Great Britain agreed to further this development by supporting the efforts of the national government and nongovernmental Chinese political elements in bringing about cessation of civil strife and in broadening the basis of representation in the Government. That is the policy which General Marshall is so ably executing today.

It is the purpose of the Government of the United States to proceed as rapidly as is practicable toward the restoration of the sovereignty of Korea and the establishment of a democratic government by the free choice of the people of Korea.

At the threshold of every problem which confronts us today in international affairs is the appalling devastation, hunger, sickness, and pervasive human misery that mark so many areas of the world.

By joining and participating in the work of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration the United States has directly recognized and assumed an obligation to give such relief assistance as is practicable to millions of innocent and helpless victims of the war. The Congress has earned the gratitude of the world by generous financial contributions to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

We have taken the lead, modest though it is, in facilitating under our existing immigration quotas the admission to the United States of refugees and displaced persons from Europe.

We have joined with Great Britain in the organization of a commission to study the problem of Palestine. The Commission is already at work and its recommendations will be made at an early date.

The members of the United Nations have paid us the high compliment of choosing the United States as the site of the United Nations headquarters. We shall be host in spirit as well as in fact, for nowhere does there abide a fiercer determination that this peace shall live than in the hearts of the American people.

It is the hope of all Americans that in time future historians will speak not of World War I and World War II, but of the first and last world wars.

2. FOREIGN ECONOMIC POLICY

The foreign economic policy of the United States is designed to promote our own prosperity, and at the same time to aid in the restoration and expansion of world markets and to contribute thereby to world peace and world security. We shall continue our efforts to provide relief from the devastation of war, to alleviate the sufferings of displaced persons, to assist in reconstruction and development, and to promote the expansion of world trade.

We have already joined the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. We have expanded the Export-Import Bank and provided it with additional capital. The Congress has renewed the Trade Agreements Act which provides the necessary framework within which to negotiate a reduction of trade barriers on a reciprocal basis. It has given our support to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

terminated upon the surrender of Japan. The first of the lend-lease settlement agreements has been completed with the United Kingdom. Negotiations with other lend-lease countries are in progress. In negotiating these agreements, we intend to seek settlements which will not encumber world trade through war debts of a character that proved to be so detrimental to the stability of the world economy after the last war.

We have taken steps to dispose of the goods which on VJ-day were in the lend-lease pipe line to the various lend-lease countries and to allow them long-term credit for the purpose where necessary. We are also making arrangements under which those countries may use the lend-lease inventories in their possession and acquire surplus property abroad to assist in their economic rehabilitation and reconstruction. These goods will be accounted for at fair values.

The proposed loan to the United Kingdom, which I shall recommend to the Congress in a separate message, will contribute to easing the transition problem of one of our major partners in the war. It will enable the whole sterling area and other countries affiliated with it to resume trade on a multilateral basis. Extension of this credit will enable the United Kingdom to avoid discriminatory trade arrangements of the type which destroyed freedom of trade during the 1930's. I consider the progress toward multilateral trade which will be achieved by this agreement to be in itself sufficient warrant for the credit.

The view of this Government is that, in the longer run, our economic prosperity and the prosperity of the whole world are best served by the elimination of artificial barriers to international trade, whether in the form of unreasonable tariffs or tariff preferences or commercial quotas or embargoes or the restrictive practices of cartels.

The United States Government has issued proposals for the expansion of world trade and employment to which the Government of the United Kingdom has given its support on every important issue. These proposals are intended to form the basis for a trade and employment conference to be held in the middle of this year. If that conference is a success, I feel confident that the way will have been adequately prepared for an expanded and prosperous world trade.

We shall also continue negotiations looking to the full and equitable development of facilities for transportation and communications among nations.

The vast majority of the nations of the world have chosen to work together to achieve, on a cooperative basis, world security and world prosperity. The effort cannot succeed without full cooperation of the United States. To play our part, we must not only resolutely carry out the foreign policies we have adopted but also follow a domestic policy which will maintain full production and employment in the United States. A serious depression here can disrupt the whole fabric of the world economy.

3. OCCUPIED COUNTRIES

The major tasks of our Military Establishment in Europe following VE-day, and in the Pacific since the surrender of Japan, have been those of occupation and military government. In addition we have given much-needed aid to the peoples of the liberated countries.

The end of the war in Europe found Germany in a chaotic condition. Organized government had ceased to exist, transportation systems had been wrecked, cities and industrial facilities had been bombed into ruins. In addition to the tasks of occupation we had to assume all of the functions of government. Great progress has been made in the repatriation of displaced persons and of prisoners of war. Of the total of 3,500,000 displaced persons found in the United States zone only 460,000 now remain.

The extensive complications involved by the requirement of dealing with three other governments engaged in occupation and with the governments of liberated countries require intensive work and energetic cooperation. The influx of some 2 million German refugees into our zone of occupation is a pressing problem, making exacting demands upon an already overstrained internal economy.

Improvements in the European economy during 1945 have made it possible for our military authorities to relinquish to the governments of all liberated areas, or to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, the responsibility for the provision of food and other civilian relief supplies. The Army's responsibilities in Europe extend now only to our zones of occupation in Germany and Austria and to two small areas in northern Italy.

By contrast with Germany, in Japan we have occupied a country still possessing an organized and operating governmental system. Although severely damaged, the Japanese industrial and transportation systems have been able to insure at least a survival existence for the population. The repatriation of Japanese military and civilian personnel from overseas is proceeding as rapidly as shipping and other means permit.

In order to insure that neither Germany nor Japan will again be in a position to wage aggressive warfare, the armament-making potential of these countries is being dismantled and fundamental changes in their social and political structures are being effected. Democratic systems are being fostered to the end that the voice of the common man may be heard in the councils of his government.

For the first time in history the legal culpability of war makers is being determined. The trials now in progress in Nürnberg—and those soon to begin in Tokyo—bring before the bar of international justice those individuals who are charged with the responsibility for the sufferings of the past six years. We have high hope that this public portrayal of the guilt of these evildoers will bring wholesale and permanent revulsion on the part of the masses of our former enemies against war, militarism, aggression, and notions of race superiority.

4. DEMOBILIZATION OF OUR ARMED FORCES

The cessation of active campaigning does not mean that we can completely disband our fighting forces. For their sake and for the sake of their loved ones at home, I wish that we could. But we still have the task of clinching the victories we have won—of making certain that Germany and Japan can never again wage aggressive warfare, that they will not again have the means to bring on another world war. The performance of that task requires that, together with our allies, we occupy the hostile areas, complete the disarmament of our enemies, and take the necessary measures to see to it that they do not rearm.

As quickly as possible, we are bringing about the reduction of our armed services to the size required for these tasks of occupation and disarmament. The Army and the Navy are following both length-of-service and point systems as far as possible in releasing men and women from the service. The points are based chiefly on length and character of service, and on the existence of dependents.

Over 5 million from the Army have already passed through the separation centers.

The Navy, including the Marine Corps and the Coast Guard, has discharged over one and a half million.

Of the 12 million men and women serving in the Army and Navy at the time of the surrender of Germany, one-half have already been released. The greater part of these had to be brought back to this country from distant parts of the world.

Of course there are cases of individual hardship in retention of personnel in the service. There will be in the future. No system of such size can operate to perfection. But the systems are founded on fairness and justice, and they are working at full speed. We shall try to avoid mistakes, injustices, and hardship—as far as humanly possible.

We have already reached the point where shipping is no longer the bottleneck in the return of troops from the European theater. The governing factor now has become the requirement for troops in sufficient strength to carry out their missions.

In a few months the same situation will exist in the Pacific. By the end of June, 9 out of 10 who were serving in the armed forces on VE-day will have been released. Demobilization will continue thereafter, but at a slower rate, determined by our military responsibilities.

Our national safety and the security of the world will require substantial armed forces, particularly in overseas service. At the same time it is imperative that we relieve those who have already done their duty, and that we relieve them as fast as we can. To do that, the Army and the Navy are conducting recruiting drives with considerable success.

The Army has obtained nearly 400,000 volunteers in the past four months, and the Navy has obtained 80,000. Eighty percent of these volunteers for the regular service have come from those already with the colors. The Congress has made it possible to offer valuable inducements to those who are eligible for enlistment. Every effort will be made to enlist the required number of young men.

The War and Navy Departments now estimate that by a year from now we still will need a strength of about 2 million, including officers, for the armed forces—Army, Navy, and Air. I have reviewed their estimates and believe that the safety of the Nation will require the maintenance of an armed strength of this size for the calendar year that is before us.

In case the campaign for volunteers does not produce that number, it will be necessary by additional legislation to extend the Selective Service Act beyond May 16, the date of expiration under existing law. That is the only way we can get the men and bring back our veterans. There is no other way. Action along this line should not be postponed beyond March, in order to avoid uncertainty and disruption.

Domestic Affairs

1. THE ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

Prophets of doom predicted that the United States could not escape a runaway inflation during the war and an economic collapse after the war. These predictions have not been borne out. On the contrary, the record of economic stabilization during the war and during the period of reconversion has been an outstanding accomplishment.

We know, however, that nothing is as dangerous as overconfidence, in war or in peace. We have had to fight hard to hold the line. We have made strenuous efforts to speed reconversion. But neither the danger of a postwar inflation nor of a subsequent collapse in production and employment is yet overcome. We must base our policies not on unreasoning optimism or pessimism but upon a candid recognition of our objectives and upon a careful analysis of foreseeable trends.

Any precise appraisal of the economic outlook at this time is particularly difficult. The period of demobilization and reconversion is fraught with uncertainties. There are also serious gaps in our statistical information. Certain tendencies are, however, fairly clear and recognition of them should serve as background for the consideration of next year's Federal Program. In general, the outlook for business is good, and it is likely to continue to be good—provided we control inflation and achieve peace in management-labor relations.

Civilian production and employment can be expected to increase throughout the next year. This does not mean, however, that continuing full employment is assured. It is probable that demobilization of the armed forces will proceed faster than the increase in civilian employment opportunities. Even if substantial further withdrawals from the labor market occur, unemployment will increase temporarily. The extent to which this unemployment will persist depends largely on the speed of industrial expansion and the effectiveness of the policies of the Federal Government.

Along with extraordinary demand there are still at this time many critical shortages resulting from the war. These extraordinary demands and shortages may lead to a speculative boom, especially in the price of securities, real estate, and inventories.

Therefore, our chief worry still is inflation.

While we control this inflationary pressure we must look forward to the time when this extraordinary demand will subside. It will be years before we catch up with the demand for housing. The extraordinary demand for other durable goods, for the replenishment of inventories, and for exports may be satisfied earlier. No backlog of demand can exist very long in the face of our tremendous productive capacity. We must expect again to face the problem of shrinking demand and consequent slackening in sales, production, and employment. This possibility of a deflationary spiral in the future will exist unless we now plan and adopt an effective full employment program.

2. GENERAL POLICIES—IMMEDIATE AND LONG-RANGE

During the war, production for civilian use was limited by war needs and available manpower. Economic stabilization required measures to spread limited supplies equitably by rationing, price controls, increased taxes, savings bond campaigns, and credit controls. Now, with the surrender of our enemies, economic stabilization requires that policies be directed toward promoting an increase in supplies at low unit prices.

We must encourage the development of resources and enterprises in all parts of the country, particularly in underdeveloped areas. For example, the establishment of new peacetime industries in the Western States and in the South would, in my judgment, add to existing production and markets rather than merely bring about a shifting of production. I am asking the Secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce, and Labor to explore jointly methods for stimulating new industries, particularly in areas with surplus agricultural labor.

We must also aid small businessmen and particularly veterans who are competent to start their own businesses. The establishment and development of efficient small business ventures, I believe, will not take away from, but rather will add to, the total business of all enterprises.

Even with maximum encouragement of production, we cannot hope to remove scarcities within a short time. The most serious deficiencies will persist in the fields of residential housing, building materials, and consumers' durable goods. The critical situation makes continued rent control, price control, and priorities, allocations, and inventory controls absolutely essential. Continued control of consumer credit will help to reduce the pressure on prices of durable goods and will also prolong the period during which the backlog demand will be effective.

While we are meeting these immediate needs we must look forward to a long-range program of security and increased standard of living.

The best protection of purchasing power is a policy of full production and full employment opportunities. Obviously, an employed worker is a better customer than an unemployed worker. There always will be, however, some frictional unemployment. In the present period of transition we must deal with such temporary unemployment as results from the fact that demobilization will proceed faster than reconversion or industrial expansion. Such temporary unemployment is probably unavoidable in a period of rapid change. The unemployed worker is a victim of conditions beyond his control. He should be enabled to maintain a reasonable standard of living for himself and his family.

Digitized for FRASER

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

The most serious difficulty in the path of reconversion and expansion is the establishment of a fair wage structure.

The ability of labor and management to work together, and the wage and price policies which they develop, are social and economic issues of first importance.

Both labor and management have a special interest. Labor's interest is very direct and personal because working conditions, wages, and prices affect the very life and happiness of the worker and his family.

Management has a no less direct interest because on management rests the responsibility for conducting a growing and prosperous business.

But management and labor have identical interests in the long run. Good wages mean good markets. Good business means more jobs and better wages. In this age of cooperation and in our highly organized economy the problems of one very soon become the problems of all.

Better human relationships are an urgent need to which organized labor and management should address themselves. No government policy can make men understand each other, agree, and get along unless they conduct themselves in a way to foster mutual respect and good will.

The Government can, however, help to develop machinery which, with the backing of public opinion, will assist labor and management to resolve their disagreements in a peaceful manner and reduce the number and duration of strikes.

All of us realize that productivity—increased output per man—is in the long run the basis of our standard of living. Management especially must realize that if labor is to work wholeheartedly for an increase in production, workers must be given a just share of increased output in higher wages.

Most industries and most companies have adequate leeway within which to grant substantial wage increases. These increases will have a direct effect in increasing consumer demand to the high levels needed. Substantial wage increases are good business for business because they assure a large market for their products; substantial wage increases are good business for labor because they increase labor's standard of living; substantial wage increases are good business for the country as a whole because capacity production means an active, healthy, friendly citizenry enjoying the benefits of democracy under our free enterprise system.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Labor and management in many industries have been operating successfully under the Government's wage-price policy. Upward revisions of wage scales have been made in thousands of establishments throughout the Nation since VJ-day. It is estimated that about 6 million workers, or more than 20 percent of all employees in nonagricultural and nongovernmental establishments, have received wage increases since August 18, 1945. The amounts of increases given by individual employers concentrate between 10 and 15 percent, but range from less than 5 percent to over 30 percent.

The United States Conciliation Service since VJ-day has settled over 3,000 disputes affecting over 1,300,000 workers without a strike threat and has assisted in settling about 1,300 disputes where strikes were threatened which involved about 500,000 workers. Only workers directly involved, and not those in related industries who might have been indirectly affected, are included in these estimates.

Many of these adjustments have occurred in key industries and would have seemed to us major crises if they had not been settled peaceably.

Within the framework of the wage-price policy there has been definite success, and it is to be expected that this success will continue in a vast majority of the cases arising in the months ahead.

However, everyone who realizes the extreme need for a swift and orderly reconversion must feel a deep concern about the number of major strikes now in progress. If long continued, these strikes could put a heavy brake on our program.

I have already made recommendations to the Congress as to the procedure best adapted to meeting the threat of work stoppages in Nation-wide industries without sacrificing the fundamental rights of labor to bargain collectively and ultimately to strike in support of their position.

If we manage our economy properly, the future will see us on a level of production half again as high as anything we have ever accomplished in peacetime. Business can in the future pay higher wages and sell for lower prices than ever before. This is not true now for all companies, nor will it ever be true for all, but for business generally it is true.

We are relying on all concerned to develop, through collective bargaining, wage structures that are fair to labor, allow for necessary business incentives, and conform with a policy designed to "hold the line" on prices.

Production and more production was the byword during the war and still is during the transition from war to peace. However, when deferred demand slackens, we shall once again face the deflationary dangers which beset this and other countries during the 1930's. Prosperity can be assured only by a high level of demand supported by high current income; it cannot be sustained by deferred needs and use of accumulated savings.

If we take the right steps in time we can certainly avoid the disastrous excesses of runaway booms and headlong depressions. We must not let a year or two of prosperity lull us into a false feeling of security and a repetition of the mistakes of the 1920's that culminated in the crash of 1929.

During the year ahead the Government will be called upon to act in many important fields of economic policy from taxation and foreign trade to social security and housing. In every case there will be alternatives. We must choose the alternatives which will best measure up to our need for maintaining production and employment in the future. We must never lose sight of our long-term objectives: the broadening of markets—the maintenance of steadily rising demand. This demand can come from only three sources: consumers, businesses, or government.

In this country the job of production and distribution is in the hands of businessmen, farmers, workers, and professional people—in the hands of our citizens. We want to keep it that way. However, it is the Government's responsibility to help business, labor, and farmers do their jobs.

There is no question in my mind that the Government, acting on behalf of all the people, must assume the ultimate responsibility for the economic health of the Nation. There is no other agency that can. No other organization has the scope or the authority, nor is any other agency accountable, to all the people. This does not mean that the Government has the sole responsibility, nor that it can do the job alone, nor that it can do the job directly.

All the policies of the Federal Government must be geared to the objective of sustained full production and full employment—to raise consumer purchasing power and to encourage business investment. The programs we adopt this year and from now on will determine our ability to achieve our objectives. We must continue to pay particular attention to our fiscal, monetary, and tax policy, programs to aid business—especially small business—and transportation, labor-management relations and wage-price policy, social security and health, education, the farm program, public works, housing and resource development, and economic foreign policy.

For example, the kinds of tax measures we have at different times—whether we raise our revenue in a way to encourage consumer spending and business investment or to discourage it—have a vital bearing on this question. It is affected also by regulations on consumer credit and by the money market, which is strongly influenced by the rate of interest on Government securities. It is affected by almost every step we take.

In short, the way we handle the proper functions of government, the way we time the exercise of our traditional and legitimate governmental functions, has a vital bearing on the economic health of the Nation.

These policies are discussed in greater detail in the accompanying Fifth Quarterly Report of the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

3. LEGISLATION HERETOFORE RECOMMENDED AND STILL PENDING

To attain some of these objectives and to meet the other needs of the United States in the reconversion and postwar period, I have from time to time made various recommendations to the Congress.

In making these recommendations I have indicated the reasons why I deemed them essential for progress at home and abroad. A few—a very few—of these recommendations have been enacted into law by the Congress. Most of them have not. I here reiterate some of them, and discuss others later in this Message. I urge upon the Congress early consideration of them. Some are more urgent than others, but all are necessary.

(1) Legislation to authorize the President to create fact-finding boards for the prevention of stoppages of work in Nation-wide industries after collective bargaining and conciliation and voluntary arbitration have failed—as recommended by me on December 3, 1945.

(2) Enactment of a satisfactory full employment bill such as the Senate bill now in conference between the Senate and the House—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(3) Legislation to supplement the unemployment insurance benefits for unemployed workers now provided by the different States—as recommended by me on May 28, 1945.

(4) Adoption of a permanent Fair Employment Practice Act—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(5) Legislation substantially raising the amount of minimum wages now provided by law—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(6) Legislation providing for a comprehensive program for scientific research—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(7) Legislation enacting a health and medical care program—as recommended by me on November 19, 1945.

(8) Legislation adopting the program of universal training—as recommended by me on October 23, 1945.

(9) Legislation providing an adequate salary scale for all Government employees in all branches of the Government—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(10) Legislation making provision for succession to the Presidency in the event of the death or incapacity or disqualification of the President and Vice President—as recommended by me on June 19, 1945.

(11) Legislation for the unification of the armed services—as recommended by me on December 19, 1945.

(12) Legislation for the domestic use and control of atomic energy—as recommended by me on October 3, 1945.

(13) Retention of the United States Employment Service in the Federal Government for a period at least up to June 30, 1947—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(14) Legislation to increase unemployment allowances for veterans in line with increases for civilians—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(15) Social security coverage for veterans for their period of military service—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(16) Extension of crop insurance—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(17) Legislation permitting the sale of ships by the Maritime Commission at home and abroad—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945. I further recommend that this legislation include adequate authority for chartering vessels both here and abroad.

(18) Legislation to take care of the stock piling of materials in which the United States is naturally deficient—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(19) Enactment of Federal airport legislation—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(20) Legislation repealing the Johnson Act on foreign loans—as recommended by me on September 6, 1945.

(21) Legislation for the development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence River Basin—as recommended by me on October 3, 1945.

4. POLICIES IN SPECIFIC FIELDS

(a) Extension of Price Control Act

Today inflation is our greatest immediate domestic problem. So far the fight against inflation has been waged successfully. Since May 1943, following President Roosevelt's "hold the line" order and in the face of the greatest pressures which this country has ever seen, the cost of living index has risen only three percent. Wholesale prices in this same period have been held to an increase of two and one-half percent.

This record has been made possible by the vigorous efforts of the agencies responsible for this program. But their efforts would have been fruitless if they had not had the solid support of the great masses of our people. The Congress is to be congratulated for its role in providing the legislation under which this work has been carried out.

On VJ-day it was clear to all thinking people that the danger of inflation was by no means over. Many of us can remember vividly our disastrous experience following World War I. Then the very restricted wartime controls were lifted too quickly, and as a result prices and rents moved more rapidly upward. In the year and a half following the armistice, rents, food, and clothing shot to higher and still higher levels.

When the inevitable crash occurred less than two years after the end of the war, business bankruptcies were widespread. Profits were wiped out. Inventory losses amounted to billions of dollars. Farm income dropped by one-half. Factory pay rolls dropped 40 percent, and nearly one-fifth of all our industrial workers were walking the streets in search of jobs. This was a grim greeting, indeed, to offer our veterans who had just returned from overseas.

When I addressed the Congress in September, I emphasized that we must continue to hold the price line until the production of goods

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

caught up with the tremendous demands. Since then we have seen demonstrated the strength of the inflationary pressures which we have to face.

Retail sales in the closing months of 1945 ran 12 percent above the previous peak for that season, which came in 1944. Prices throughout the entire economy have been pressing hard against the price ceilings. The prices of real estate, which cannot now be controlled under the law, are rising rapidly. Commercial rents are not included in the present price control law and, where they are not controlled by State law, have been increasing, causing difficulties to many businessmen.

It will be impossible to maintain a high purchasing power or an expanding production unless we can keep prices at levels which can be met by the vast majority of our people. Full production is the greatest weapon against inflation, but until we can produce enough goods to meet the threat of inflation the Government will have to exercise its wartime control over prices.

I am sure that the people of the United States are disturbed by the demands made by several business groups with regard to price and rent control.

I am particularly disturbed at the effect such thinking may have on production and employment. If manufacturers continue to hold back goods and decline to submit bids when invited—as I am informed some are doing—in anticipation of higher prices which would follow the end of price controls, we shall inevitably slow down production and create needless unemployment. On the other hand, there are the vast majority of American businessmen who are not holding back goods, but who need certainty about the Government pricing policy in order to fix their own long-range pricing policies.

Businessmen are entitled therefore to a clear statement of the policy of the Government on the subject. Tenants and housewives, farmers and workers—consumers in general—have an equal right.

We are all anxious to eliminate unnecessary controls just as rapidly as we can do so. The steps that we have already taken in many directions toward that end are a clear indication of our policy.

The present Price Control Act expires on June 30, 1946. If we expect to maintain a steady economy we shall have to maintain price and rent control for many months to come. The inflationary pressures on prices and rents, with relatively few exceptions, are now at an all-time peak. Unless the Price Control Act is renewed there will be no limit to which our price levels would soar. Our country would face a national disaster.

660000—46——B

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

We cannot wait to renew the act until immediately before it expires. Inflation results from psychological as well as economic conditions. The country has a clear right to know where the Congress stands on this all-important problem. Any uncertainty now as to whether the act will be extended gives rise to price speculation, to withholding of goods from the market in anticipation of rising prices, and to delays in achieving maximum production.

I do not doubt that the Congress will be beset by many groups who will urge that the legislation that I have proposed should either be eliminated or modified to the point where it is nearly useless. The Congress has a clear responsibility to meet this challenge with courage and determination. I have every confidence that it will do so.

I strongly urge that the Congress now resolve all doubts and as soon as possible adopt legislation continuing rent and price control in effect for a full year from June 30, 1946.

(b) Food subsidies

If the price line is to be held, if our people are to be protected against the inflationary dangers which confront us, we must do more than extend the Price Control Act. In September we were hopeful that the inflationary pressures would by this time have begun to diminish. We were particularly hopeful on food. Indeed, it was estimated that food prices at retail would drop from 3 to 5 percent in the first six months following the end of the war.

In anticipation of this decline in food prices, it was our belief that food subsidies could be removed gradually during the winter and spring months, and eliminated almost completely by June 30 of this year. It was our feeling that the food subsidies could be dropped without an increase to the consumer in the present level of food prices or in the over-all cost of living.

As matters stand today, however, food prices are pressing hard against the ceilings. The expected decline in food prices has not occurred, nor is it likely to occur for many months to come. This brings me to the reluctant conclusion that food subsidies must be continued beyond June 30, 1946.

If we fail to take this necessary step, meat prices on July 1 will be from 3 to 5 cents higher than their average present levels; butter will be at least 12 cents a pound higher, in addition to the 5 cents a pound increase of last fall; milk will increase from 1 to 2 cents a quart; bread will increase about 1 cent a loaf; sugar will increase over 1 cent a pound; cheese, in addition to the increase of 4 cents now

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

planned for the latter part of this month, will go up an additional 8 cents. In terms of percentages we may find the cost-of-living index for food increased by more than 8 percent, which in turn would result in more than a 3-percent increase in the cost of living.

If prices of food were allowed to increase by these amounts, I must make it clear to the Congress that, in my opinion, it would become extremely difficult for us to control the forces of inflation.

None of us likes subsidies. Our farmers, in particular, have always been opposed to them.

But I believe our farmers are as deeply conscious as any group in the land of the havoc which inflation can create. Certainly in the past eighteen months there has been no group which has fought any harder in support of the Government's price control program. I am confident that, if the facts are placed before them and if they see clearly the evils between which we are forced to choose, they will understand the reasons why subsidies must be continued.

The legislation continuing the use of food subsidies into the new fiscal year should be tied down specifically to certain standards. A very proper requirement, in my opinion, would be that subsidies be removed as soon as it is indicated that the cost of living will decline below the present levels.

(c) Extension of War Powers Act

The Second War Powers Act has recently been extended by the Congress for six months instead of for a year. It will now expire, unless further extended, on June 30, 1946. This act is the basis for priority and inventory controls governing the use of scarce materials, as well as for other powers essential to orderly reconversion.

I think that this Administration has given adequate proof of the fact that it desires to eliminate wartime controls as quickly and as expeditiously as possible. However, we know that there will continue to be shortages of certain materials caused by the war even after June 30, 1946. It is important that businessmen know now that materials in short supply are going to be controlled and distributed fairly as long as these war-born shortages continue.

I, therefore, urge the Congress soon to extend the Second War Powers Act. We cannot afford to wait until just before the act expires next June. To wait would cause the controls to break down in a short time, and would hamper our production and employment program.

(d) Small business and competition

A rising birth rate for small business, and a favorable environment for its growth, are not only economic necessities but also important practical demonstrations of opportunity in a democratic free society. A great many veterans and workers with new skills and experience will want to start in for themselves. The opportunity must be afforded them to do so. They are the small businessmen of the future.

Actually when we talk about small business we are talking about almost all of the Nation's individual businesses. Nine out of every ten concerns fall into this category, and 45 percent of all workers are employed by them. Between 30 and 40 percent of the total value of all business transactions are handled by small business.

It is obvious national policy to foster the sound development of small business. It helps to maintain high levels of employment and national income and consumption of the goods and services that the Nation can produce. It encourages the competition that keeps our free enterprise economy vigorous and expanding. Small business, because of its flexibility, assists in the rapid exploitation of scientific and technological discoveries. Investment in small business can absorb a large volume of savings that might otherwise not be tapped.

The Government should encourage and is encouraging small-business initiative and originality to stimulate progress through competition.

During the war, the Smaller War Plants Corporation assisted small concerns to make a maximum contribution to victory. The work of the Smaller War Plants Corporation is being carried on in peacetime by the Federal Loan Agency and the Department of Commerce. The fundamental approach to the job of encouraging small concerns must be based on:

1. Arrangements for making private and public financial resources available on reasonable terms.

2. Provision of technical advice and assistance to business as a whole on production, research, and management problems. This will help equalize competitive relationships between large and small companies, for many of the small companies cannot afford expensive technical research, accounting, and tax advice.

3. Elimination of trade practices and agreements which reduce competition and discriminate against new or small enterprises.

We speak a great deal about the free enterprise economy of our country. It is competition that keeps it free. It is competition that keeps it growing and developing. The truth is that we need far more competition in the future than we have had in the immediate past.

By strangling competition, monopolistic activity prevents or deters investment in new or expanded production facilities. This lessens the opportunity for employment and chokes off new outlets for idle savings. Monopoly maintains prices at artificially high levels and reduces consumption which, with lower prices, would rise and support larger production and higher employment. Monopoly, not being subject to competitive pressure, is slow to take advantage of technical advances which would lower prices or improve quality. All three of these monopolistic activities very directly lower the standard of living—through higher prices and lower quality of product—which free competition would improve.

The Federal Government must protect legitimate business and consumers from predatory and monopolistic practices by the vigilant enforcement of regulatory legislation. The program will be designed to have a maximum impact upon monopolistic bottlenecks and unfair competitive practices hindering expansion in employment.

During the war, enforcement of antimonopoly laws was suspended in a number of fields. The Government must now take major steps not only to maintain enforcement of antitrust laws but to encourage new and competing enterprises in every way. The deferred demand of the war years and the large accumulations of liquid assets provide ample incentive for expansion. Equalizing of business opportunity, under full and free competition, must be a prime responsibility in the reconversion period and in the years that follow. Many leading businessmen have recognized the importance of such action both to themselves and to the economy as a whole.

But we must do more than break up trusts and monopolies after they have begun to strangle competition. We must take positive action to foster new, expanding enterprises. By legislation and by administration we must take specific steps to discourage the formation or the strengthening of competition-restricting business. We must have an over-all antimonopoly policy which can be applied by all agencies of the Government in exercising the functions assigned to them—a policy designed to encourage the formation and growth of new and freely competitive enterprises.

Among the many departments and agencies which have parts in the program affecting business and competition, the Department of Commerce has a particularly important role. That is why I have

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

recommended a substantial increase in appropriations for the next fiscal year for this Department.

In its assistance to industry, the Department of Commerce will concentrate its efforts on these primary objectives: Promotion of a large and well-balanced foreign trade; provision of improved technical assistance and management aids, especially for small enterprises; and strengthening of basic statistics on business operations, both by industries and by regions. To make new inventions and discoveries available more promptly to all businesses, small and large, the Department proposes to expand its own research activities, promote research by universities, improve Patent Office procedures, and develop a greatly expanded system of field offices readily accessible to the businesses they serve.

Many gaps exist in the private financial mechanism, especially in the provision of long-term funds for small- and medium-sized enterprises. In the peacetime economy the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will take the leadership in assuring adequate financing for small enterprises which cannot secure funds from other sources. Most of the funds should and will be provided by private lenders; but the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will share any unusual risks through guarantees of private loans, with direct loans only when private capital is unwilling to participate on a reasonable basis.

(e) Minimum wage

Full employment and full production may be achieved only by maintaining a level of consumer income far higher than that of the prewar period. A high level of consumer income will maintain the market for the output of our mills, farms, and factories, which we have demonstrated during the war years that we can produce. One of the basic steps which the Congress can take to establish a high level of consumer income is to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act to raise substandard wages to a decent minimum and to extend similar protection to additional workers who are not covered by the present act.

Substandard wages are bad for business and for the farmer. Substandard wages provide only a substandard market for the goods and services produced by American industry and agriculture.

At the present time the Fair Labor Standards Act prescribes a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour for those workers who are covered by the act. The present minimum wage represents an annual income of about $800 to those continuously employed for 50 weeks—clearly a wholly inadequate budget for an American family. I am in full accord with the proposal now pending in the Congress that the statutory minimum be raised immediately to 65 cents an hour, with further increases to 70 cents after one year and to 75 cents after two years. I also favor the proposal that the industry committee procedure be used to set rates higher than 65 cents per hour during the two-year interval before the 75-cent basic wage would otherwise become applicable.

Digitized for FRASER

The proposed minimum wage of 65 cents an hour would assure the worker an annual income of about $1,300 a year in steady employment. This amount is clearly a modest goal. After considering cost-of-living increases in recent years, it is little more than a 10-cent increase over the present legal minimum. In fact, if any large number of workers earn less than this amount, we will find it impossible to maintain the levels of purchasing power needed to sustain the stable prosperity which we desire. Raising the minimum to 75 cents an hour will provide the wage earner with an annual income of $1,500 if he is fully employed.

The proposed higher minimum wage levels are feasible without involving serious price adjustments or serious geographic dislocations.

Today about 20 percent of our manufacturing wage earners—or about 2 million—earn less than 65 cents an hour. Because wages in most industries have risen during the war, this is about the same as the proportion—17 percent— who were earning less than 40 cents an hour in 1941.

I also recommend that minimum wage protection be extended to several groups of workers not now covered. The need for a decent standard of living is by no means limited to those workers who happen to be covered by the act as it now stands. It is particularly vital at this period of readjustment in the national economy and readjustment in employment of labor to extend minimum wage protection as far as possible.

Lifting the basic minimum wage is necessary, it is justified as a matter of simple equity to workers, and it will prove not only feasible but also directly beneficial to the Nation's employers.

(f) Agricultural programs

The farmers of America generally are entering the crop year of 1946 in better financial condition than ever before. Farm mortgage debt is the lowest in 30 years. Farmers' savings are the largest in history. Our agricultural plant is in much better condition than after World War I. Farm machinery and supplies are expected to be available in larger volume, and farm labor problems will be less acute.

Digitized for FRASER

The demand for farm products will continue strong during the next year or two because domestic purchases will be supplemented by a high level of exports and foreign relief shipments. It is currently estimated that from 7 to 10 percent of the total United States food supply may be exported in the calendar year 1946.

Farm prices are expected to remain at least at their present levels in the immediate future, and for at least the next 12 months they are expected to yield a net farm income double the 1935–39 average and higher than in any year prior to 1943.

We can look to the future of agriculture with greater confidence than in many a year in the past. Agriculture itself is moving confidently ahead, planning for another year of big production, taking definite and positive steps to lead the way toward an economy of abundance.

Agricultural production goals for 1946 call for somewhat greater acreage than actually was planted in 1945. Agriculture is prepared to demonstrate that it can make a peacetime contribution as great as its contribution toward the winning of the war.

In spite of supplying our armed forces and our allies during the war with a fifth to a fourth of our total food output, farmers were still able to provide our civilians with 8 percent more food per capita than the average for the five years preceding the war. Since the surrender of Japan, civilian food consumption has risen still further. By the end of 1945 the amount of the increase in food consumption was estimated to be as high as 15 percent over the prewar average. The record shows that the people of this country want and need more food and that they will buy more food if only they have the jobs and the purchasing power. The first essential therefore in providing fully for the welfare of agriculture is to maintain full employment and a high level of purchasing power throughout the Nation.

For the period immediately ahead we shall still have the problem of supplying enough food. If we are to do our part in aiding the war-stricken and starving countries some of the food desires of our own people will not be completely satisfied, at least until these nations have had an opportunity to harvest another crop. During the next few months the need for food in the world will be more serious than at any time during the war. And, despite the large shipments we have already made, and despite what we shall send, there remain great needs abroad.

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Beyond the relief feeding period, there will still be substantial foreign outlets for our farm commodities. The chief dependence of the farmer, however, as always, must be upon the buying power of our own people.

The first obligation of the Government to agriculture for the reconversion period is to make good on its price-support commitments. This we intend to do, with realistic consideration for the sound patterns of production that will contribute most to the long-time welfare of agriculture and the whole Nation. The period during which prices are supported will provide an opportunity for farmers individually to strengthen their position in changing over from a wartime to a peacetime basis of production. It will provide an opportunity for the Congress to review the needs of agriculture and make changes in national legislation where experience has shown changes to be needed. In this connection, the Congress will wish to consider legislation to take the place of the 1937 Sugar Act which expires at the end of this year. During this period we must do a thorough job of basic planning to the end that agriculture shall be able to contribute its full share toward a healthy national economy.

Our long-range agricultural policies should have two main objectives: First, to assure the people on the farms a fair share of the national income; and, second, to encourage an agricultural production pattern that is best fitted to the Nation's needs. To accomplish this second objective we shall have to take into consideration changes that have taken place and will continue to take place in the production of farm commodities—changes that affect costs and efficiency and volume.

What we seek ultimately is a high level of food production and consumption that will provide good nutrition for everyone. This cannot be accomplished by agriculture alone. We can be certain of our capacity to produce food, but we have often failed to distribute it as well as we should and to see that our people can afford to buy it. The way to get good nutrition for the whole Nation is to provide employment opportunities and purchasing power for all groups that will enable them to buy full diets at market prices.

Wherever purchasing power fails to reach this level we should see that they have some means of getting adequate food at prices in line with their ability to buy. Therefore, we should have available supplementary programs that will enable all our people to have enough of the right kind of food.

For example, one of the best possible contributions toward building a stronger, healthier Nation would be a permanent school-lunch program on a scale adequate to assure every school child a good lunch at noon. The Congress, of course, has recognized this need for a continuing school-lunch program and legislation to that effect has been introduced and hearings held. The plan contemplates the attainment of this objective with a minimum of Federal expenditures. I hope that the legislation will be enacted in time for a permanent program to start with the beginning of the school year next fall.

We have the technical knowledge and the productive capacity to provide plenty of good food for every man, woman, and child in the United States. It is time we made that possibility a reality.

(g) Resource development

The strength of our Nation and the welfare of the people rest upon the natural resources of the country. We have learned that proper conservation of our lands, including our forests and minerals, and wise management of our waters will add immensely to our national wealth.

The first step in the Government's conservation program must be to find out just what are our basic resources, and how they should be used. We need to take, as soon as possible, an inventory of the lands, the minerals, and the forests of the Nation.

During the war it was necessary to curtail some of our long-range plans for development of our natural resources, and to emphasize programs vital to the prosecution of the war. Work was suspended on a number of flood control and reclamation projects and on the development of our national forests and parks. This work must now be resumed, and new projects must be undertaken to provide essential services and to assist in the process of economic development.

The rivers of America offer a great opportunity to our generation in the management of the national wealth. By a wise use of Federal funds, most of which will be repaid into the Treasury, the scourge of floods and drought can be curbed, water can be brought to arid lands, navigation can be extended, and cheap power can be brought alike to the farms and to the industries of our land.

Through the use of the waters of the Columbia River, for example, we are creating a rich agricultural area as large as the State of Delaware. At the same time, we are producing power at Grand Coulee and at Bonneville which played a mighty part in winning the war and which will found a great peacetime industry in the Northwest. The Tennessee Valley Authority will resume its peacetime program of promoting full use of the resources of the Valley. We shall continue our plans for the development of the Missouri Valley, the Arkansas Valley, and the Central Valley of California.

The Congress has shown itself alive to the practical requirements for a beneficial use of our water resources by providing that preference in the sale of power be given to farmers' cooperatives and public agencies. The public power program thus authorized must continue to be made effective by building the necessary generating and transmission facilities to furnish the maximum of firm power needed at the wholesale markets, which are often distant from the dam sites.

These great developmental projects will open the frontiers of agriculture, industry, and commerce. The employment opportunities thus offered will also go far to ease the transition from war to peace.

(h) Public works

During the war even urgently needed Federal, State, and local construction projects were deferred in order to release resources for war production. In resuming public works construction, it is desirable to proceed only at a moderate rate, since demand for private construction will be abnormally high for some time. Our public works program should be timed to reach its peak after demand for private construction has begun to taper off. Meanwhile, however, plans should be prepared if we are to act promptly when the present extraordinary private demand begins to run out.

The Congress made money available to Federal agencies for their public works planning in the fiscal year 1946. I strongly recommend that this policy be continued and extended in the fiscal year 1947.

State and local governments also have an essential role to play in a national public works program. In my message of September 6, 1945, I recommended that the Congress vote such grants to State and local governments as will insure that each level of government makes its proper contribution to a balanced public construction program. Specifically, the Federal Government should aid State and local governments in planning their own public works programs, in undertaking projects related to Federal programs of regional development, and in constructing such public works as are necessary to carry out the various policies of the Federal Government.

Early in 1945 the Congress made available advances to State and local governments for planning public works projects, and recently made additional provision to continue these advances through the fiscal year 1946. I believe that further appropriations will be needed for the same purpose for the fiscal year 1947.

The Congress has already made provision for highway programs. It is now considering legislation which would expand Federal grants and loans in several other fields, including construction of airports, hospital and health centers, housing, water pollution control facilities, and educational plant facilities. I hope that early action will be taken to authorize these Federal programs.

With respect to public works of strictly local importance, State and local governments should proceed without Federal assistance except in planning. This rule should be subject to review when and if the prospect of highly adverse general economic developments warrants it.

All loans and grants for public works should be planned and administered in such a way that they are brought into accord with the other elements of the Federal Program.

Our long-run objective is to achieve a program of direct Federal and Federally assisted public works which is planned in advance and synchronized with business conditions. In this way it can make its greatest contribution to general economic stability.

(i) National housing program

Last September I stated in my message to the Congress that housing was high on the list of matters calling for decisive action.

Since then the housing shortage in countless communities, affecting millions of families, has magnified this call to action.

Today we face both an immediate emergency and a major postwar problem.

Since VJ-day the wartime housing shortage has been growing steadily worse and pressure on real estate values has increased. Returning veterans often cannot find a satisfactory place for their families to live, and many who buy have to pay exorbitant prices. Rapid demobilization inevitably means further overcrowding.

A realistic and practical attack on the emergency will require aggressive action by local governments, with Federal aid, to exploit all opportunities and to give the veterans as far as possible first chance at vacancies. It will require continuation of rent control in shortage areas as well as legislation to permit control of sales prices. It

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

will require maximum conversion of temporary war units for veterans' housing and their transportation to communities with the most pressing needs; the Congress has already appropriated funds for this purpose.

The inflation in the price of housing is growing daily.

As a result of the housing shortage, it is inevitable that the present dangers of inflation in home values will continue unless the Congress takes action in the immediate future.

Legislation is now pending in the Congress which would provide for ceiling prices for old and new houses. The authority to fix such ceilings is essential. With such authority, our veterans and other prospective home owners would be protected against a skyrocketing of home prices. The country would be protected from the extension of the present inflation in home values which, if allowed to continue, will threaten not only the stabilization program but our opportunities for attaining a sustained high level of home construction.

Such measures are necessary stopgaps—but only stopgaps. This emergency action, taken alone, is good—but not enough. The housing shortage did not start with the war or with demobilization; it began years before that and has steadily accumulated. The speed with which the Congress establishes the foundation for a permanent, long-range housing program will determine how effectively we grasp the immense opportunity to achieve our goal of decent housing and to make housing a major instrument of continuing prosperity and full employment in the years ahead. It will determine whether we move forward to a stable and healthy housing enterprise and toward providing a decent home for every American family.

Production is the only fully effective answer. To get the wheels turning, I have appointed an emergency housing expediter. I have approved establishment of priorities designed to assure an ample share of scarce materials to builders of houses for which veterans will have preference. Additional price and wage adjustments will be made where necessary, and other steps will be taken to stimulate greater production of bottleneck items. I recommend consideration of every sound method for expansion in facilities for insurance of privately financed housing by the Federal Housing Administration and resumption of previously authorized low-rent public housing projects suspended during the war.

In order to meet as many demands of the emergency situation as possible, a program of emergency measures is now being formulated for action. These will include steps in addition to those already taken.

As quickly as this program can be formulated, announcement will be made.

Last September I also outlined to the Congress the basic principles for the kind of decisive, permanent legislation necessary for a long-range housing program.

These principles place paramount the fact that housing construction and financing for the overwhelming majority of our citizens should be done by private enterprise. They contemplate also that we afford governmental encouragement to privately financed house construction for families of moderate income, through extension of the successful system of insurance of housing investment; that research be undertaken to develop better and cheaper methods of building homes; that communities be assisted in appraising their housing needs; that we commence a program of Federal aid, with fair local participation, to stimulate and promote the rebuilding and redevelopment of slums and blighted areas—with maximum use of private capital. It is equally essential that we use public funds to assist families of low income who could not otherwise enjoy adequate housing, and that we quicken our rate of progress in rural housing.

Legislation now under consideration by the Congress provides for a comprehensive attack jointly by private enterprise, State and local authorities, and the Federal Government. This legislation would make permanent the National Housing Agency and give it authority and funds for much needed technical and economic research. It would provide additional stimulus for privately financed housing construction. This stimulus consists of establishing a new system of yield insurance to encourage large-scale investment in rental housing and broadening the insuring powers of the Federal Housing Administration and the lending powers of the Federal savings and loan associations.

Where private industry cannot build, the Government must step in to do the job. The bill would encourage expansion in housing available for the lowest income groups by continuing to provide direct subsidies for low-rent housing and rural housing. It would facilitate land assembly for urban redevelopment by loans and contributions to local public agencies where the localities do their share.

Prompt enactment of permanent housing legislation along these lines will not interfere with the emergency action already under way. On the contrary, it would lift us out of a potentially perpetual state of housing emergency. It would offer the best hope and prospect to millions of veterans and other American families that the American system can offer more to them than temporary makeshifts.

I have said before that the people of the United States can be the best housed people in the world. I repeat that assertion, and I welcome the cooperation of the Congress in achieving that goal.

(j) Social security and health

Our Social Security System has just celebrated its tenth anniversary. During the past decade this program has supported the welfare and morale of a large part of our people by removing some of the hazards and hardships of the aged, the unemployed, and widows and dependent children.

But, looking back over 10 years' experience and ahead to the future, we cannot fail to see defects and serious inadequacies in our system as it now exists. Benefits are in many cases inadequate; a great many persons are excluded from coverage; and provision has not been made for social insurance to cover the cost of medical care and the earnings lost by the sick and the disabled.

In the field of old-age security, there seems to be no adequate reason for excluding such groups as the self-employed, agricultural and domestic workers, and employees of nonprofit organizations. Since many of these groups earn wages too low to permit significant savings for old age, they are in special need of the assured income that can be provided by old-age insurance.

We must take urgent measures for the readjustment period ahead. The Congress for some time has been considering legislation designed to supplement at Federal expense, during the immediate reconversion period, compensation payments to the unemployed. Again I urge the Congress to enact legislation liberalizing unemployment compensation benefits and extending the coverage. Providing for the sustained consumption by the unemployed persons and their families is more than a welfare policy; it is sound economic policy. A sustained high level of consumer purchases is a basic ingredient of a prosperous economy.

During the war, nearly 5 million men were rejected for military service because of physical or mental defects which in many cases might have been prevented or corrected. This is shocking evidence that large sections of the population are at substandard levels of health. The need for a program that will give everyone opportunity for medical care is obvious. Nor can there be any serious doubt of the Government's responsibility for helping in this human and social problem.

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

The comprehensive health program which I recommended on November 19, 1945, will require substantial additions to the Social Security System and, in conjunction with other changes that need to be made, will require further consideration of the financial basis for social security. The system of prepaid medical care which I have recommended is expected eventually to require amounts equivalent to 4 percent of earnings up to $3,600 a year, which is about the average of present expenditures by individuals for medical care. The pooling of medical costs, under a plan which permits each individual to make a free choice of doctor and hospital, would assure that individuals receive adequate treatment and hospitalization when they are faced with emergencies for which they cannot budget individually. In addition, I recommended insurance benefits to replace part of the earnings lost through temporary sickness and permanent disability.

Even without these proposed major additions, it would now be time to undertake a thorough reconsideration of our social security laws. The structure should be expanded and liberalized. Provision should be made for extending coverage credit to veterans for the period of their service in the armed forces. In the financial provisions we must reconcile the actuarial needs of social security, including health insurance, with the requirements of a revenue system that is designed to promote a high level of consumption and full employment.

(k) Education

Although the major responsibility for financing education rests with the States, some assistance has long been given by the Federal Government. Further assistance is desirable and essential. There are many areas and some whole States where good schools cannot be provided without imposing an undue local tax burden on the citizens. It is essential to provide adequate elementary and secondary schools everywhere, and additional educational opportunities for large numbers of people beyond the secondary level. Accordingly, I repeat the proposal of last year's Budget Message that the Federal Government provide financial aid to assist the States in assuring more nearly equal opportunities for a good education. The proposed Federal grants for current educational expenditures should be made for the purpose of improving the educational system where improvement is most needed. They should not be used to replace existing non-Federal expenditures, or even to restore merely the situation which existed before the war.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

In the future we expect incomes considerably higher than before the war. Higher incomes should make it possible for State and local governments and for individuals to support higher and more nearly adequate expenditures for education. But inequality among the States will still remain, and Federal help will still be needed.

As a part of our total public works program, consideration should be given to the need for providing adequate buildings for schools and other educational institutions. In view of current arrears in the construction of educational facilities, I believe that legislation to authorize grants for educational facilities, to be matched by similar expenditures by State and local authorities, should receive the favorable consideration of the Congress.

The Federal Government has not sought, and will not seek, to dominate education in the States. It should continue its historic role of leadership and advice and, for the purpose of equalizing educational opportunity, it should extend further financial support to the cause of education in areas where this is desirable.

(l) Federal Government personnel

The rapid reconversion of the Federal Government from war to peace is reflected in the demobilization of its civilian personnel. The number of these employees in continental United States has been reduced by more than 500,000 from the total of approximately 2,900,000 employed in the final months of the war. I expect that by next June we shall have made a further reduction of equal magnitude and that there will be continuing reductions during the next fiscal year. Of the special wartime agencies now remaining, only a few are expected to continue actively into the next fiscal year.

At the same time that we have curtailed the number of employees, we have shortened the workweek by one-sixth or more throughout the Government and have restored holidays. The process of readjustment has been complicated and costs have been increased by a heavy turn-over in the remaining personnel—particularly by the loss of some of our best administrators. Thousands of war veterans have been reinstated or newly employed in the civil service. Many civilians have been transferred from war agencies to their former peacetime agencies. Recruitment standards, which had to be relaxed during the war, are now being tightened.

The elimination last autumn of overtime work for nearly all Federal employees meant a sharp cut in their incomes. For salaried workers, the blow was softened but by no means offset by the increased rates of pay which had become effective July 1. Further adjustments to compensate for increased living costs are required. Moreover, we have long needed a general upward revision of Federal Government salary scales at all levels in all branches—legislative, judicial, and executive. Too many in Government have had to sacrifice too much in economic advantage to serve the Nation.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Adequate salaries will result in economies and improved efficiency in the conduct of Government business—gains that will far outweigh the immediate costs. I hope the Congress will expedite action on salary legislation for all Federal employees in all branches of the Government. The only exception I would make is in the case of workers whose pay rates are established by wage boards; a blanket adjustment would destroy the system by which their wages are kept alined with prevailing rates in particular localities. The wage boards should be sensitive now, as they were during the war, to changes in local prevailing wage rates and should make adjustments accordingly.

I hope also that the Congress may see fit to enact legislation for the adequate protection of the health and safety of Federal employees, for their coverage under a system of unemployment compensation, and for their return at Government expense to their homes after separation from wartime service.

(m) Territories, insular possessions, and the District of Columbia

The major governments of the world face few problems as important and as perplexing as those relating to dependent peoples. This Government is committed to the democratic principle that it is for the dependent peoples themselves to decide what their status shall be. To this end I asked the Congress last October to provide a means by which the people of Puerto Rico might choose their form of government and ultimate status with respect to the United States. I urge, too, that the Congress promptly accede to the wishes of the people of Hawaii that the Territory be admitted to statehood in our Union, and that similar action be taken with respect to Alaska as soon as it is certain that this is the desire of the people of that great Territory. The people of the Virgin Islands should be given an increasing measure of self-government.

We have already determined that the Philippine Islands are to be independent on July 4, 1946. The ravages of war and enemy occupation, however, have placed a heavy responsibility upon the United States. I urge that the Congress complete, as promptly and as generously as may be possible, legislation which will aid economic rehabilitation for the Philippines. This will be not only a just acknowledgment of the loyalty of the people of the Philippines, but it will help to avoid the economic chaos which otherwise will be their heritage from our common war. Perhaps no event in the long centuries of colonialism gives more hope for the pattern of the future than the independence of the Philippines.

The District of Columbia, because of its special relation to the Federal Government, has been treated since 1800 as a dependent area. We should move toward a greater measure of local self-government consistent with the constitutional status of the District. We should take adequate steps to assure that citizens of the United States are not denied their franchise merely because they reside at the Nation's Capital.

III. THE BUDGET FOR THE FEDERAL PROGRAM FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1947

Summary of the Budget

For the first time since the fiscal year 1930 the Budget for the next fiscal year will require no increase in the national debt.

Expenditures of all kinds, authorized and recommended, in the next year are estimated at just above 35.8 billion dollars. Net receipts are estimated at 31.5 billion dollars. The estimated difference of 4.3 billion dollars will be met by a reduction in the very substantial balance which will be in the Treasury during the next fiscal year.

A large part of the activities outside defense and war liquidation, aftermath of war, and international finance, classified as "other activities" in a following table, is still due to repercussions of the war. These "other activities" include more than 2 billion dollars for aids to agriculture and net outlays for the Commodity Credit Corporation—almost double the expenditures for the same purposes in prewar years. This increase is due mainly to expenditures for purposes of price stabilization and price support resulting from the war food production program. Other increases in this category are due to the fact that certain wartime agencies now in the process of liquidation are included in this group of activities. If all expenditures for those activities which are directly or indirectly related to the war are excluded, the residual expenditures are below those for corresponding activities in prewar years. In making this comparison account should be taken of the fact that, while prewar expenditures were affected by direct relief and work relief for the unemployed, the postwar budgets are affected by the considerable increase in pay rates and other increases in costs and prices.

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

To elaborate, the Budget, as I have remarked above, reflects on both sides of the ledger the Government's program as recommended by the Executive. It includes estimates not only of expenditures and receipts for which legislative authority already exists, but also of expenditures and receipts for which authorization is recommended.

The Budget total for the next fiscal year, the year that ends on June 30, 1947, is estimated at just above 35.8 billion dollars—about a third of the budgets for global war, although nearly four times the prewar budgets. This estimate is based on the assumption that a rapid liquidation of the war program will be associated with rapid reconversion and expansion of peacetime production. The total includes net outlays of Government corporations.

The estimated expenditures in the next and current fiscal year compare as follows with those of a year of global war and a prewar year:

Fiscal year:	Total Budget expenditures (in millions)
1947	$35,860
1946	67,229
1945	100,031
1940	9,252

Although allowances for occupation, demobilization, and defense are drastically reduced in the fiscal year 1947, they will still amount to 42 percent of the total Budget. The so-called "aftermath of war" expenditures account for a further 30 percent of the total. The total of all other programs, which was drastically cut during the war, is increasing again as liquidation of the war program proceeds and renewed emphasis is placed on the peacetime objectives of the Government.

On the other side of the ledger, net receipts are estimated at 31.5 billion dollars. This estimate assumes that all existing taxes will continue all through the fiscal year 1947. Included are the extraordinary receipts from the disposal of surplus property.

As a result, estimated expenditures will exceed estimated receipts by 4.3 billion dollars. This amount can be provided by a reduction in the cash balance in the Treasury. Thus, after a long period of increasing public debt resulting from depression budgets and war budgets, it is anticipated that no increase in the Federal debt will be required next year.

Receipts (net)	38,609	31,513
Excess of expenditures	28,620	4,347

The current fiscal year, 1946, is a year of transition. When the year opened, in July 1945, we were still fighting a major war, and Federal expenditures were running at an annual rate of about 100 billion dollars. By June 1946 that rate will be more than cut in half. The Budget total for the current fiscal year is now estimated at 67.2 billion dollars, of which more than two-thirds provides for war and war liquidation. Since net receipts are estimated at 38.6 billion dollars, there will be an excess of expenditures of 28.6 billion dollars for the current fiscal year.

For all programs discussed in this Message I estimate the total of Budget appropriations and authorizations (including reappropriations and permanent appropriations) at 30,982 million dollars for the fiscal year 1947. Of this amount, present permanent appropriations are expected to provide 5,755 million dollars, principally for interest. This leaves 24,224 million dollars to be made available through new appropriations, exclusive of appropriations to liquidate contract authorizations; 900 million dollars in new contract authorizations; and 103 million dollars through the reappropriation of unliquidated balances of previous appropriations. The appropriations needed to liquidate contract authorizations are estimated at 1,113 million dollars.

In the Budget for the year ahead only over-all estimates are included at this time for the major war agencies and for net outlays of Government corporations. Detailed recommendations will be transmitted in the spring for the war agencies; and the business-type budgets of Government corporations will likewise be transmitted in accordance with the recently adopted Government Corporation Control Act.

Similarly, only over-all estimates are provided for new programs recommended in this Message; detailed recommendations will be transmitted after authorizing legislation has been enacted. It should be recognized that many of the estimates for new programs recommended in this Message are initial year figures. These figures will be affected by the date the legislation is enacted and by the time needed for getting a program under way. New programs, such as that for a national research agency, will require larger amounts in later years. The estimates exclude major elements of the proposed national health program since the greater part of these will be covered by expenditures from trust funds.

The Budget total includes expenditures for capital outlay as well as for current operations. An estimated 1,740 million dollars will be expended in the fiscal year 1947 for direct Federal public works and for loans and grants for public works.

The Economic Impact of the Liquidation of the War Program

Government programs are of such importance in the development of production and employment opportunities—domestic and international—that it has become essential to formulate and consider the Federal Budget in the light of the Nation's budget as a whole. The relationship between the receipts, expenditures, and savings of consumers, business, and government is shown in the accompanying table.

Considering the whole Nation, total expenditures must equal the total receipts, because what any individual or group spends becomes receipts of other individuals or groups. Such equality can be achieved on either a high level of incomes or on a low or depression level of incomes.

Tremendous orders for munitions during the war shifted production and employment into high gear. Total goods produced and services rendered for private as well as for Government purposes—the Nation's budget—reached about 200 billion dollars in the calendar year 1944. Federal, State, and local government expenditures represented half of this total.

Corresponding estimates for the past 3 months depict the national economy in the process of demobilization and reconversion.

The wartime annual rate of Federal expenditures has been reduced by 32 billion dollars, while the Nation's budget total has dropped only half as much. The drop in total value of production and services has been less drastic because increasing private activities have absorbed in large measure the manpower and materials released from war production and war services.

The largest increase in private activities has occurred in business investments, which include residential and other construction, producers' durable equipment, accumulation of inventories, and net exports. Under conditions of global war, expenditures for private construction and equipment were held to a minimum and inventories were depleted. With the beginning of reconversion these developments have been reversed. Residential construction and outlays for plant and equipment are on the increase; inventories, too, are being replenished. International transactions (excluding lend-lease and international relief which are included under war expenditures) showed an import surplus under conditions of global war. In the past 3 months private exports have been slightly in excess of imports, for the first time since 1941.

Consumers' budgets show a significant change. On the income side, their total has declined but little because the reduction in "take-home" pay of war workers is, to a large extent, offset for the time being by the mustering-out payments received by war veterans and by unemployment compensation received by the unemployed. On the expenditure side, however, consumers' budgets, restricted during the war, have increased substantially as a result of the fact that scarce goods are beginning to appear on the market and wartime restraints are disappearing. Thus, consumers' current savings are declining substantially from the extraordinarily high wartime rate and some wartime savings are beginning to be used for long-delayed purchases.

Unemployment has increased less than was expected during this first period of demobilization and reconversion. It is true that 6 million men and women have been discharged from the armed forces since May 1945 and more than 5 million have been laid off from war work. On the other hand, more than a million civilians have been enlisted in the armed forces, a considerable number of war veterans have not immediately sought jobs, and many war workers, especially women, have withdrawn from the labor force. In addition, many industries, and especially service trades which were undermanned during the war, are beginning now, for the first time in years, to recruit

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

an adequate labor force. The reduced workweek has also contributed to the absorption of those released from war service and war work.

In general, the drastic cut in war programs has thrown the economy into lower gear; it has not thrown it out of gear. Our economic machine demonstrates remarkable resiliency, although there are many difficulties that must still be overcome. The rapid termination of war contracts, prompt clearance of unneeded Government-owned equipment from private plants, and other reconversion policies have greatly speeded up the beginning of peacetime work in reconverted plants.

Although the first great shock of demobilization and war-work termination has thus been met better than many observers expected, specific industries and specific regions show much unevenness in the progress of reconversion.

The Quarterly Report of the Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion analyzes the difficulties in recruiting personnel and obtaining materials that hamper reconversion in certain industries and proposes policies to deal with these situations. The lack of adequate housing is one of the main factors checking the flow of workers into areas where job opportunities exist.

Federal Revenue, Borrowing, and the Public Debt

1. financial requirements and tax policy

Recommendations for tax legislation should be considered not only in the light of the financial requirements of the ensuing year, but also in the light of future years' financial requirements and a full consideration of economic conditions.

Expenditures are estimated at nearly 36 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1947; they can hardly be expected to be reduced to less than 25 billion dollars in subsequent years. Net receipts in the fiscal year 1947 are estimated at 31.5 billion dollars.

Included in this estimate are 2 billion dollars of receipts from disposal and rental of surplus property and 190 million dollars of receipts from renegotiation of wartime contracts. These sources of receipts will disappear in future years. Tax collections for the fiscal year 1947 also will not yet fully reflect the reduction in corporate tax liabilities provided in the Revenue Act of 1945. If the extraordinary receipts from the disposal of surplus property and renegotiation of contracts be disregarded, and if the tax reductions adopted in the Revenue Act of 1945 were fully effective, present tax rates would yield about 27 billion dollars.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

These estimates for the fiscal year 1947 are based on the assumption of generally favorable business conditions but not on an income reflecting full employment and the high productivity that we hope to achieve. In future years the present tax system, in conjunction with a full employment level of national income, could be expected to yield more than 30 billion dollars, which is substantially above the anticipated peacetime level of expenditures.

In view of the still extraordinarily large expenditures in the coming year and continuing inflationary pressures, I am making no recommendation for tax reduction at this time.

We have already had a substantial reduction in taxes from wartime peaks. The Revenue Act of 1945 was a major tax-reduction measure. It decreased the total tax load by more than one-sixth, an amount substantially in excess of the reductions proposed by the Secretary of the Treasury to congressional tax committees in October 1945. These proposed reductions were designed to encourage reconversion and peacetime business expansion.

The possibility of further tax reductions must depend on the budgetary situation and the economic situation. The level of anticipated expenditures for the fiscal year 1947 and the volume of outstanding public debt require the maintenance of large revenues. Moreover, inflationary pressures still appear dangerously powerful, and ill-advised tax reduction would operate to strengthen them still further.

My decision not to recommend additional tax reductions at this time is made in the light of existing economic conditions and prospects.

2. BORROWING AND THE PUBLIC DEBT

The successful conclusion of the Victory loan marked the end of war borrowing and the beginning of the transition to postwar debt management.

Because of the success of the Victory loan, I am happy to report that the Treasury will not need to borrow any new money from the public during the remainder of the present fiscal year except through regular sales of savings bonds and savings notes. Furthermore, a part of the large cash balance now in the Treasury will be used for debt redemption so that the public debt which now amounts to about 278 billion dollars will decrease by several billion dollars during the next 18 months. The present statutory debt limit of 300 billion dollars will provide an ample margin for all of the public-debt transactions through the fiscal year 1947. The net effect of the excess of expenditures and debt redemption on the Treasury cash balance, as compared with selected previous years, is shown in the following table:

EXCESS OF BUDGET EXPENDITURES, THE PUBLIC DEBT, AND THE TREASURY CASH BALANCE IN SELECTED YEARS

[In billions]

Fiscal year	Excess of Budget expenditures over receipts	Public debt	Cash balance
		At end of period
1940	$3.9	$43.0	$1.9
1945	53.6	258.7	24.7
1946:
July–Dec. 1945	18.1	278.1	26.0
Jan.–June 1946	10.5	275.0	11.9
1947	4.3	271.0	3.2

Although the public debt is expected to decline, a substantial volume of refinancing will be required, because of the large volume of maturing obligations. Redemptions of savings bonds also have been running high in recent months and are expected to remain large for some time. The issuance of savings bonds will be continued. These bonds represent a convenient method of investment for small savers, and also an anti-inflationary method of refinancing. Government agencies and trust funds are expected to buy about 2.5 billion dollars of Government securities during the next 6 months, and 2.8 billion dollars more during the fiscal year 1947. Through these and other debt operations, the distribution of the Federal debt among the various types of public and private owners will change, even though the total is expected to decline.

The interest policies followed in the refinancing operations will have a major impact not only on the provision for interest payments in future budgets, but also on the level of interest rates prevailing in private financing. The average rate of interest on the debt is now a little under 2 percent. Low interest rates will be an important force in promoting the full production and full employment in the postwar period for which we are all striving. Close wartime cooperation between the Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve System has made it possible to finance the most expensive war in history at low and stable rates of interest. This cooperation will continue.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

No less important than the level of interest rates paid on the debt is the distribution of its ownership. Of the total debt, more than half represents direct savings of individuals or investments of funds received from individual savings by life insurance companies, mutual savings banks, savings and loan associations, private or Government trust funds, and other agencies.

Most of the remaining debt—more than 100 billion dollars—is held by the commercial banks and the Federal Reserve banks. Heavy purchases by the banks were necessary to provide adequate funds to finance war expenditures. A considerable portion of these obligations are short-term in character and hence will require refinancing in the coming months and years. Since they have been purchased out of newly created bank funds, continuance of the present low rates of interest is entirely appropriate. To do otherwise would merely increase bank profits at the expense of the taxpayer.

The 275-billion-dollar debt poses a problem that requires careful consideration in the determination of financial and economic policies. We have learned that the problem, serious as it is, can be managed. Its management will require determined action to keep our Federal Budget in order and to relate our fiscal policies to the requirements of an expanding economy. The more successful we are in achieving full production and full employment the easier it will be to manage the debt and pay for the debt service. Large though the debt is, it is within our economic capacity. The interest charges on it amount to but a small proportion of our national income. The Government is determined, by a resolute policy of economic stabilization, to protect the interests of the millions of American citizens who have invested in its securities.

During the past 6 months the net revenue receipts of the Federal Government have been about 20 billion dollars, almost as much as during the closing 6 months of 1944 when the country was still engaged in all-out warfare. The high level of these receipts reflects the smoothness of the reconversion and particularly the strength of consumer demand. But the receipts so far collected, it must be remembered, do not reflect any of the tax reductions made by the Revenue Act of 1945. These reductions will not have their full effect on the revenue collected until the fiscal year 1948.

It is good to move toward a balanced budget and a start on the retirement of the debt at a time when demand for goods is strong and the business outlook is good. These conditions prevail today. Business is good and there are still powerful forces working in the direction of inflation. This is not the time for tax reduction.

Recommendations for Specific Federal Activities

1. War liquidation and national defense

(a) War expenditures

The fiscal year 1947 will see a continuance of war liquidation and occupation. During this period we shall also lay the foundation for our peacetime system of national defense.

In the fiscal year that ended on June 30, 1945, almost wholly a period of global warfare, war expenditures amounted to 90.5 billion dollars. For the fiscal year 1946 war expenditures were originally estimated at 70 billion dollars. That estimate was made a year ago while we were still engaged in global warfare. After victory over Japan this estimate was revised to 50.5 billion dollars. Further cut-backs and accelerated demobilization have made possible an additional reduction in the rate of war spending. During the first 6 months 32.9 billion dollars were spent. It is now estimated that 16.1 billion dollars will be spent during the second 6 months, or a total of 49 billion dollars during the whole fiscal year.

For the fiscal year 1947 it is estimated, tentatively, that expenditures for war liquidation, for occupation, and for national defense will be reduced to 15 billion dollars. The War and Navy Departments are expected to spend 13 billion dollars; expenditures of other agencies, such as the United States Maritime Commission, the War Shipping Administration, and the Office of Price Administration, and payments to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration are estimated at 3 billion dollars. Allowing for estimated net receipts of 1 billion dollars arising from war activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the estimated total of war expenditures is 15 billion dollars. At this time only a tentative break-down of the total estimate for war and defense activities can be indicated.

An expenditure of 15 billion dollars for war liquidation, occupation, and national defense is a large sum for a year which begins 10 months after fighting has ended. It is 10 times our expenditures for defense before the war; it amounts to about 10 percent of our expected national income. This estimate reflects the immense job that is involved in winding up a global war effort and stresses the great responsibility that victory has placed upon this country. The large expenditures needed for our national defense emphasize the great scope for effective organization in furthering economy and efficiency. To this end I have recently recommended to the Congress adoption of legislation

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

combining the War and Navy Departments into a single Department of National Defense.

A large part of these expenditures is still to be attributed to the costs of the war. Assuming, somewhat arbitrarily, that about one-half of the 15-billion-dollar outlay for the fiscal year 1947 is for war liquidation, aggregate expenditures by this Government for the second World War are now estimated at 347 billion dollars through June 30, 1947. (See table A, part III, page 751.) Of this, about 9 billion dollars will have been recovered through renegotiation and sale of surplus property by June 30, 1947; this has been reflected in the estimates of receipts.

Demobilization and strength of armed forces.—Demobilization of our armed forces is proceeding rapidly. At the time of victory in Europe, about 12.3 million men and women were in the armed forces; 7.6 million were overseas. By the end of December 1945 our armed forces had been reduced to below 7 million. By June 30, 1946, they will number about 2.9 million, of whom 1.8 million will be individuals enlisted and inducted after VE-day. Mustering-out pay is a large item of our war liquidation expense; it will total 2.5 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1946, and about 500 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947.

In the fiscal year 1947 the strength of our armed forces will still be above the ultimate peacetime level. As I have said, War and Navy Department requirements indicate a strength of about 2 million in the armed forces a year from now. This is necessary to enable us to do our share in the occupation of enemy territories and in the preservation of peace in a troubled world. Expenditures for pay, subsistence, travel, and miscellaneous expenses of the armed forces, excluding mustering-out pay, are estimated at 5 billion dollars.

Contract settlement and surplus property disposal.—The winding up of war procurement is the second most important liquidation job. By the end of November a total of 301,000 prime contracts involving commitments of 64 billion dollars had been terminated. Of this total, 67,000 contracts with commitments of 35 billion dollars remained to be settled. Termination payments on these contracts are estimated at about 3.5 billion dollars. It is expected that more than half of these terminated contracts will be settled during the current fiscal year, leaving payments of about 1.5 billion dollars for the fiscal year 1947.

Another important aspect of war supply liquidation is the disposal of surplus property. Munitions, ships, plants, installations, and supplies, originally costing 50 billion dollars or more, will ultimately be declared surplus. The sale value of this property will be far less than original cost and disposal expenses are estimated at 10 to 15 cents on each dollar realized. Disposal units within existing agencies have been organized to liquidate surplus property under the direction of the Surplus Property Administration. Overseas disposal activities have been centralized in the State Department to permit this program to be carried on in line with over-all foreign policy. Thus far only about 13 billion dollars of the ultimate surplus, including 5 billion dollars of unsalable aircraft, has been declared. Of this amount, 2.3 billion dollars have been disposed of, in sales yielding 600 million dollars. The tremendous job of handling surplus stocks will continue to affect Federal expenditures and receipts for several years. The speed and effectiveness of surplus disposal operations will be of great importance for the domestic economy as well as for foreign economic policies.

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

War supplies, maintenance, and relief.—Adequate provision for the national defense requires that we keep abreast of scientific and technical advances. The tentative estimates for the fiscal year 1947 make allowance for military research, limited procurement of weapons in the developmental state, and some regular procurement of munitions which were developed but not mass-produced when the war ended. Expenditures for procurement and construction will constitute one-third or less of total defense outlays, compared to a ratio of two-thirds during the war years.

The estimates also provide for the maintenance of our war-expanded naval and merchant fleets, military installations, and stocks of military equipment and supplies. Our naval combatant fleet is three times its pre-Pearl Harbor tonnage. Our Merchant Marine is five times its prewar size. The War Department has billions of dollars worth of equipment and supplies. Considerable maintenance and repair expense is necessary for the equipment which we desire to retain in active status or in war reserve. Expenses will be incurred for winnowing the stocks of surpluses, for preparing lay-up facilities for the reserve fleets, and for storage of reserve equipment and supplies.

Military expenditures in the current fiscal year include 650 million dollars for civilian supplies for the prevention of starvation and disease in occupied areas. Expenditures on this account will continue in the fiscal year 1947. The war expenditures also cover the expenses of civilian administration in occupied areas.

During the war, 15 cents of each dollar of our war expenditures was for lend-lease aid. With lend-lease terminated, I expect the direct operations under this program to be substantially completed in the current fiscal year. The expenditures estimated for the fiscal year 1947 under this program are mainly interagency reimbursements for past transactions.

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Relief and rehabilitation expenditures are increasing. It is imperative that we give all necessary aid within our means to the people who have borne the ravages of war. I estimate that in the fiscal year 1946 expenditures for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration will total 1.3 billion dollars and in the following year 1.2 billion dollars. Insofar as possible, procurement for this purpose will be from war surpluses.

(b) Authorizations for war and national defense

During the war, authorizations and appropriations had to be enacted well in advance of obligation and spending to afford ample time for planning of production by the procurement services and by industry. Thus our cumulative war program authorized in the period between July 1, 1940, and July 1, 1945, was 431 billion dollars, including net war commitments of Government corporations. Expenditures against those authorizations totaled 290 billion dollars. This left 141 billion dollars in unobligated authorizations and unliquidated obligations. (See table A, part III, page 751.)

With the end of fighting, it became necessary to adjust war authorizations to the requirements of war liquidation and continuing national defense. Intensive review of the war authorizations by both the executive and the legislative branches has been continued since VJ-day. As a result, the authorized war program is being brought more nearly into line with expenditures.

Rescissions and authorizations through the fiscal year 1946.—Readjusting the war program, as the Congress well knows, is not an easy task. Authorizations must not be too tight, lest we hamper necessary operations; they must not be too ample, lest we lose control of spending. Last September, I transmitted to the Congress recommendations on the basis of which the Congress voted H. R. 4407 to repeal 50.3 billion dollars of appropriations and authorizations. I found it necessary to veto this bill because it was used as a vehicle for legislation that would impair the reemployment program. However, in order to preserve the fine work of the Congress on the rescissions, I asked the Director of the Bureau of the Budget to place the exact amounts indicated for repeal in a nonexpendable reserve, and to advise the departments and agencies accordingly. This has been done.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

In accord with Public Law 132 of the Seventy-ninth Congress, I have transmitted recommendations for additional rescissions for the current fiscal year of appropriations amounting to 5.8 billion dollars and of contract authorizations totaling 420 million dollars. The net reduction in authority to obligate will be 5.0 billion dollars, because, of the appropriations, 1.2 billion dollars will have to be restored in subsequent years to liquidate contract authorizations still on the books.

The appropriations recommended for repeal include 2,827 million dollars for the Navy Department, 1,421 million dollars for the War Department, 850 million dollars for lend-lease, 384 million dollars for the War Shipping Administration, and 260 million dollars for the United States Maritime Commission. The contract authorizations proposed for repeal are for the Maritime Commission.

In addition, there are unused tonnage authorizations for construction of naval vessels now valued at 5.4 billion dollars. In September 1945, I suggested that this authority be reviewed by the appropriate committees of the Congress, and the Congress has moved to bar construction under these authorizations during the remainder of the fiscal year 1946. I propose to continue this prohibition in the Navy budget estimates for the fiscal year 1947 and now renew my recommendation that legislation be enacted at the earliest time to clear the statute books of these authorizations.

The amounts indicated for repeal in H. R. 4407 and the further rescissions which I have recommended, excluding duplications and deferred cash payments on existing authorizations, represent a cut in the authorized war program of 60.8 billion dollars. The war authorizations will also be reduced 3.7 billion dollars by carrying receipts of revolving accounts to surplus, by lapses, and by cancelation and repayment of commitments of the Government war corporations.

On the other hand, supplemental appropriations of 600 million dollars will be required for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

In the net, it is estimated that the cumulative authorized war and national defense program will amount to 368 billion dollars on June 30, 1946. Expenditures of 49 billion dollars during the fiscal year 1946 will have pushed cumulative expenditures to 339 billion dollars. The unexpended balances will be down to 28 billion dollars on June 30, 1946.

New authorizations for national defense and war liquidation in the fiscal year 1947.—The expenditures of 15 billion dollars for national defense and war liquidation in the fiscal year 1947 will be partly for payment

660000—46——II

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

of contractual obligations incurred in the past, and partly for the payment of new obligations. The unexpended balances on June 30, 1946, will be scattered among hundreds of separate appropriations. Thus, while some appropriation accounts will have unused balances, others will require additional appropriations.

It is estimated that authorizations to incur new obligations of 11,772 million dollars will be needed during the fiscal year 1947, mainly for the War and Navy Departments. Of the required authorizations, 11,365 million dollars will be in new appropriations, 400 million dollars in new contract authority, and 7 million dollars in reappropriations of unobligated balances. In addition, appropriations of 825 million dollars will be needed to liquidate obligations under existing contract authorizations.

Taking into account the tentative authorizations and expenditures estimated for the fiscal year 1947, and offsets of 3 billion dollars in war commitments of Government corporations, the cumulative authorized war and national defense program on June 30, 1947, will be 376 billion dollars; total expenditures, 354 billion dollars; and unexpended balances, 22 billion dollars.

The 22 billion dollars of unexpended balances tentatively indicated as of June 30, 1947, comprise both unobligated authorizations and unliquidated obligations. Most of the unliquidated obligations result from transactions booked during the war years. A large part of the 22 billion dollars would never be spent even if not repealed, for the appropriations will lapse in due course. For example, several billion dollars of these unliquidated obligations represent unsettled inter- and intra-departmental agency accounts for war procurement. Legislation is being requested to facilitate the adjustment of some of these inter-agency accounts. Another 6 billion dollars is set aside for contract termination payments. If contract settlement costs continue in line with recent experience, it is likely that part of the 6 billion dollars will remain unspent.

On the other hand, some of the 22 billion dollars would be available for obligation and expenditure unless impounded. In certain appropriations, such as those for long-cycle procurement, considerable carry-over of unliquidated obligations into future years is to be expected and is necessary. However, substantial further rescissions can and should be made when the war liquidation program tapers off and budgetary requirements for national defense are clarified. As I have said, I shall continue to review the war authorizations and from time to time recommend excess balances for repeal.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

As in recent years, detailed recommendations concerning most appropriations for the national defense program are postponed until the spring. In connection with the war activities of the United States Maritime Commission and certain other agencies, however, I now make specific recommendations for the fiscal year 1947. No additional authorizations or appropriations will be necessary for the Maritime Commission since sufficient balances will be left after the above-mentioned rescissions to carry out the program now contemplated for the fiscal year 1947.

2. AFTERMATH OF WAR

Nearly one-third—11 billion dollars—of estimated Federal expenditures in the fiscal year 1947 will be for purposes that are largely inherited from the war—payments to veterans, interest on the Federal debt, and refunds of taxes.

(a) For veterans

"Veterans' pensions and benefits" has become one of the largest single categories in the Federal Budget. I am recommending for this purpose total appropriations of 4,787 million dollars for the fiscal year 1947. Expenditures in the fiscal year are estimated, under present legislation, at 4,208 million dollars. These expenditures will help our veterans through their readjustment period and provide lasting care for those who were disabled.

The Congress has provided unemployment allowances for veterans during their readjustment period. Expenditure of 850 million dollars for this purpose is anticipated for the fiscal year 1947. In addition, readjustment allowances for self-employed veterans are expected to cost 340 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947.

On May 28, 1945, in asking the Congress to raise the ceiling on benefits for civilian unemployed to not less than 25 dollars a week during the immediate reconversion period, I suggested that the Congress also consider liberalizing veterans' allowances. Elsewhere in this Message I reiterate my recommendation with respect to emergency unemployment compensation. I also recommend increasing veterans' unemployment allowances from 20 dollars to 25 dollars a week. This would involve additional expenditures estimated at approximately 220 million dollars for the fiscal year.

Included in the 1947 Budget is an expenditure of 535 million dollars for veterans' education under provisions of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act. This amount includes both tuition expenses and maintenance allowances. It is expected that half a million veterans will be enrolled in our schools and colleges during the year.

The ultimate benefit which veterans receive from the loan guarantee provisions of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act depends largely on the success of our stabilization program in restraining building costs and real estate values. Under the revised procedure contained in recent amendments, the administrative workload will be minimized by the almost complete transfer of authority for approving the guarantees to private lending agencies and private appraisers designated by the Veterans Administration. This authority carries with it the responsibility for restricting the guarantees to loans on reasonably valued properties. Costs of the program, other than for administration, are estimated at 21 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947.

Pensions for veterans will require expenditures estimated at 1,748 million dollars for the fiscal year 1947. Two-thirds of this amount will be received by veterans of the war which we have just won. This figure includes 55 million dollars of increased pensions for student-veterans in our vocational rehabilitation program. In addition, 170 million dollars will be expended in transfers to the National Service Life Insurance Fund from general and special accounts.

Expenditures under the appropriation for salaries and expenses of the Veterans Administration are estimated at 528 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947. This includes 260 million dollars for medical care and the operation of some 103,000 hospital and domiciliary beds.

A separate appropriation for hospital and domiciliary facilities, additional to the total for veterans' pensions and benefits, covers construction that will provide some 13,000 hospital beds as part of the 500-million-dollar hospital construction program already authorized by the Congress. The estimated expenditures of 130 million dollars for this purpose are classified in the Budget as part of the general public works program for the next fiscal year.

(b) For interest

Interest payments on the public debt are estimated at 5 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1947, an increase of 250 million dollars from the revised estimate for the current fiscal year. This increase reflects chiefly payment of interest on additions to the debt this year. Assuming continuance of present interest rates, the Government's interest bill is now reaching the probable postwar level.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

(c) For refunds

An estimated total of 1,585 million dollars of refunds will be paid to individuals and corporations during the fiscal year 1947. Slightly over half of this amount, or 800 million dollars, will be accessory to the simplified pay-as-you-go method of tax collection, and will be the result of overwithholding and overdeclaration of expected income. Most of the remainder will arise from loss and excess-profits credit carry-backs, recomputed amortization on war plants, and special relief from the excess-profits tax.

This category of expenditures is thus losing gradually its "aftermath-of-war" character, and by the succeeding year will reflect almost entirely the normal operation of loss carry-backs and current tax collection.

3. AGRICULTURAL PROGRAMS

The agricultural programs contemplated for the fiscal year 1947 are those which are essential for the provision of an adequate supply of food and other agricultural commodities with a fair return to American farmers. To support these objectives, expenditures by the Department of Agriculture estimated at 784 million dollars from general and special accounts will be required in the fiscal year 1947. This compares with estimated expenditures of 676 million dollars in 1946. These figures exclude expenditures by the Department of Agriculture on account of lend-lease, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, and other war expenditures. The expenditure for the fiscal year 1947 is composed of 553 million dollars for "aids to agriculture," 35 million dollars for general public works, and 196 million dollars for other services of the Department.

Net outlays for the price stabilization, price support, and other programs of the Commodity Credit Corporation are expected to increase from about 750 million dollars in the fiscal year 1946 to about 1,500 million dollars in 1947. Cash advances made on loans by the Farm Security Administration and the Rural Electrification Administration are expected to amount to 266 million dollars in the fiscal year 1946 and 351 million dollars in 1947; and after receipts from principal and interest are taken into account, net loan expenditures of these two agencies will amount to 120 and 209 million dollars in the two fiscal years.

To provide for the expenditures from general and special accounts, I recommend for the fiscal year 1947 appropriations of 721 million dollars (including the existing permanent appropriation of an amount equal to 30 percent of estimated annual customs receipts) and a reappropriation of 88 million dollars of prior-year balances from customs receipts. In addition there is a recommended authorization of 367.5 million dollars for borrowing from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the loan programs of the Farm Security Administration and the Rural Electrification Administration. It is expected that the operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation will be financed during the coming year through the 500 million dollars of lend-lease funds which the Congress has earmarked for price support purposes, a supplemental appropriation to restore impaired capital of the Corporation, and the borrowing authority of the Corporation.

Some detailed recommendations follow for major agricultural programs.

Conservation and use of land.—I am recommending that 270 million dollars be appropriated for "conservation and use of agricultural land resources"—the so-called AAA program—for the fiscal year 1947, compared with 356 million dollars in the current year. This reduction of 86 million dollars is in large part accounted for by elimination of the wartime flax production incentive project and other nonrecurring items; the proposed reduction in normal activities is less than 33 million dollars.

For the past several years, this program has consisted largely of payments to farmers for application of fertilizer and other approved soil management practices. I am convinced that farmers generally are now fully alert to the benefits, both immediate and long-term, which they derive from the practices encouraged by this program. I believe, therefore, that this subsidization should continue to be reduced.

Rural electrification.—It is proposed that the loan authorization for the Rural Electrification Administration for the fiscal year 1947 be increased from 200 million dollars to 250 million dollars. During the war period, REA was limited by the scarcity of materials and manpower. But that situation is rapidly changing, and the REA program, which was materially stepped up for the fiscal year 1946, can be increased still more. It is my belief that a feasible and practical rural electrification program should be carried forward as rapidly as possible. This will involve total loans of approximately 1,800 million dollars over the next 10 years, much of which will be repaid during that period.

Other programs.—It is recommended that the continuing forest land-acquisition program be resumed at the rate of 3 million dollars annually, which is about the minimum rate at which this program can be economically carried on. The lands involved in this program can contribute fully to the national welfare only when brought into the national forest system for protection and development.

Such programs as those of the Farm Security Administration and the Farm Credit Administration are estimated to be continued during the fiscal year 1947 at about the same level as in the fiscal year 1946. Recent action by the Congress has permitted some expansion of the school-lunch program. I hope it will be continued and expanded. The budgets of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation will be transmitted in the spring under the terms of the Government Corporation Control Act.

4. TRANSPORTATION

Transportation is one of the major fields for both public and private investment. Our facilities for transportation and communication must be constantly improved to serve better the convenience of the public and to facilitate the sound growth and development of the whole economy.

Federal capital outlays for transportation facilities are expected to approximate 519 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947. State and local governments may spend 400 million dollars. Private investment, over half of it by railways, may approach 1,150 million dollars.

The Congress has already taken steps for the resumption of work on improvement of rivers and harbors and on the construction of new Federal-aid highways. Much needed work on airports can begin when the Congress enacts legislation now in conference between the two Houses.

The Federal expenditure estimates for the fiscal year 1947 include 53 million dollars for new construction in rivers, harbors, and the Panama Canal and 291 million dollars for highways and grade-crossing elimination, assuming that the States expend some 275 million dollars on the Federal-aid system. Additional expenditures for highways totaling 36 million dollars are anticipated by the Forest Service, National Park Service, and the Territory of Alaska. Civil airways and airports will involve expenditures of 35 million dollars under existing authority. Additional Federal expenditures exceeding 20 million dollars (to be matched by States and municipalities) may be made during the fiscal year 1947 under the airport legislation now in conference between the two Houses of the Congress.

The United States now controls almost two-thirds of the world's merchant shipping, most of it Government-owned, compared with little more than one-seventh of the world's tonnage in 1939. This places a heavy responsibility upon the Nation to provide for speedy and efficient world commerce as a contribution to general economic recovery.

The estimates for the United States Maritime Commission and War Shipping Administration provide for the transition of shipping operation from a war to a peace basis; the sale, chartering, or lay-up of much of the war-built fleet; and for a program of ship construction of some 84 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947 to round out the merchant fleet for peacetime use.

Federal aids, subsidies, and regulatory controls for transportation should follow the general principle of benefiting the national economy as a whole. They should seek to improve the transportation system and increase its efficiency with resulting lower rates and superior service. Differential treatment which benefits one type of transportation to the detriment of another should be avoided save when it is demonstrated clearly to be in the public interest.

5. RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT

Total capital outlays for resource development are estimated at 653 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947 as compared with 452 million dollars in 1946. These include capital expenditures by the Rural Electrification Administration and expenditures for resource development by other organizational units in the Department of Agriculture which are also mentioned above under "agricultural programs."

The reclamation and flood control projects which I am recommending for the fiscal year 1947 will involve capital outlays of approximately 319 million dollars as compared with 245 million dollars in the fiscal year 1946. These expenditures cover programs of the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Department of Agriculture, and the International Boundary and Water Commission, United States and Mexico. A number of these projects are multiple-purpose projects, providing not only for reclamation and irrigation of barren land and flood control, but also for the production of power needed for industrial development of the areas.

Expenditures for power transmission and distribution facilities by the Bonneville Power Administration are expected to increase from 12 million dollars in the fiscal year 1946 to 15 million dollars in the next fiscal year. In addition, the Southwestern Power Administration will undertake a new program involving expenditures of about 16 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947. The Rural Electrification Administration will require expenditures during the current fiscal year estimated at 156 million dollars; in the fiscal year 1947, at 241 million dollars.

The TVA program includes completion of major multiple-purpose projects—navigation, flood control, and power facilities—and additions to chemical plants and related facilities. Expenditures for these capital improvement programs are estimated at 30 million dollars in the fiscal year 1946 and 39 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947.

Expenditures for construction of roads and other developmental works in the national forests, parks, and other public lands, and for capital outlays for fish and wildlife development will increase from below 9 million dollars in the fiscal year 1946 to 24 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947.

6. SOCIAL SECURITY AND HEALTH

Benefit payments out of the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund during 1947 are estimated at 407 million dollars, while withdrawals by the States from the Unemployment Trust Fund for compensation payments are expected to total 1 billion dollars. These disbursements are financed out of social security contributions.

The appropriations from general and special accounts for the social security program, which cover Federal administrative expenses and grants to States for assistance programs, are estimated at 593 million dollars for the fiscal year 1947, an increase of 57 million dollars over the current year. The increase anticipates greater administrative workload and higher grants to match increasing State payments. The social security program does not include all the Federal health services under existing legislation. For the other health services classified under general government and national defense, appropriations are estimated at 102 million dollars for the fiscal year 1947.

Some expansion in peacetime medical research and other programs of the Public Health Service is provided for in the appropriation estimates for these purposes totaling approximately 87 million dollars for the fiscal year 1947 which are submitted under provisions of existing law. Part of this will be provided through the social security appropriations, the remainder through other appropriations. About 28 million dollars is recommended for maternity care and health services for children under existing law, mainly under the emergency provision for the wives and infants of servicemen. While we should avoid duplication of maternity and child health services which will be provided through the proposed general system of prepaid medical care, legislation is needed to supplement such services. For medical education, I have recommended legislation authorizing grants-in-aid to public and nonprofit institutions. The existing sources of support for medical schools require supplementation to sustain the expansion that is needed.

Hospitals, sanitation works, and additional facilities at medical schools will be required for an adequate national health program. Legislation is now pending in the Congress to authorize grants for the construction of hospitals and health centers and grants and loans for water-pollution control. I hope the Congress will act favorably on generous authorizing legislation.

7. RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

The Budget provides for continuation and desirable expansion of the research activities that are carried on throughout the Federal establishment and through previously authorized grants to the States. Additional appropriations will be required for the proposed central Federal research agency which I recommended last September 6. That agency will coordinate existing research activities and administer funds for new research activities wherever they are needed; it will not itself conduct research. The plan contemplates expenditures through the new research agency of approximately 40 million dollars for the first year.

These amounts are small in relation to the important contribution they can make to the national income, the welfare of our people, and the common defense. Expenditures must be limited for the time being by the capacity of research agencies to make wise use of funds. The maintenance of our position as a nation, however, will require more emphasis on research expenditures in the future than in the past.

Educational expenditures will require a significant share of the national income in the fiscal year 1947. State, local, and private expenditures for the current support of elementary, secondary, and higher education are expected to be substantially above 3 billion dollars in that year. These non-Federal expenditures will be supplemented by Federal expenditures estimated at 625 million dollars in the present Budget. Of this amount, the estimate for veterans' education, as previously mentioned, is 535 million dollars. Other amounts include 21 million dollars for the support of vocational education in public schools, 5 million dollars for the land-grant colleges, 50 million dollars for the present school-lunch and milk program, 1 million dollars for the Office of Education, and approximately 13 million dollars for various other items. In view of the major policy issues which are still under study by the Congress and the Administration, no specific amount has been determined for the Federal grants, previously recommended in this Message, which would assist the States generally in assuring more nearly equal opportunities for a good education.

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Notwithstanding the urgent need for additional school and college buildings, careful planning will be required for the expenditures to be made under the proposed legislation to aid the States in providing educational facilities. A major share of the grants for the first year would be for surveys and plans.

8. INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL PROGRAMS

I have already outlined the broad objectives of our foreign economic policy. In the present section I shall indicate the Federal outlays which the execution of these programs may require in the fiscal years 1946 and 1947.

(a) On the termination of lend-lease, the lend-lease countries were required to pay for goods in the lend-lease pipe line either in cash or by borrowing from the United States or by supplying goods and services to the United States. Credits for this purpose have already been extended to the Soviet Union, France, the Netherlands, and Belgium amounting to 675 million dollars. The settlement credit of 650 million dollars to the United Kingdom includes an amount preliminarily fixed at 118 million dollars which represents the excess of purchases by the United Kingdom from the pipe line over goods and services supplied by the United Kingdom to the United States since VJ-day and the balance of various claims by one government against the other.

Credits are also being negotiated with lend-lease countries to finance the disposition of lend-lease inventories and installations and property declared to be surplus. For instance, 532 million dollars of the settlement credit to the United Kingdom is for this purpose. These credits will involve no new expenditures by this Government, since they merely provide for deferred repayment by other governments for goods and services which have been financed from war appropriations.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

(b) Expenditures from the appropriations to United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, which were discussed under war expenditures above, are estimated to be 1.3 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1946 and 1.2 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1947.

(c) To assist other countries in the restoration of their economies the Export-Import Bank has already negotiated loans in the fiscal year 1946 amounting in total to about 1,010 million dollars and an additional 195 million dollars will probably be committed shortly. The Bank is also granting loans to carry out its original purpose of directly expanding the foreign trade of the United States. In this connection the Bank has established a fund of 100 million dollars to finance the export of cotton from the United States. The Export-Import Bank has thus loaned or committed approximately 1,300 million dollars during the current fiscal year and it is expected that demands on its resources will increase in the last 6 months of the fiscal year 1946. Requests for loans are constantly being received by the Bank from countries desiring to secure goods and services in this country for the reconstruction or development of their economies. On July 31, 1945, the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank was increased to a total of 3,500 million dollars. I anticipate that during the period covered by this Budget the Bank will reach this limit. The bulk of the expenditures from the loans already granted will fall in the fiscal year 1946 while the bulk of the expenditures from loans yet to be negotiated will fall in the fiscal year 1947. In view of the urgent need for the Bank's credit, I may find it necessary to request a further increase in its lending authority at a later date.

(d) The proposed line of credit of 3,750 million dollars to the United Kingdom will be available up to the end of 1951 and will be used to assist the United Kingdom in financing the deficit in its balance of payments during the transition period. The rate at which the United Kingdom will draw on the credit will depend on the rapidity with which it can reconvert its economy and adapt its trade to the postwar world. The anticipated rate of expenditure is likely to be heaviest during the next 2 years.

(e) Since the Bretton Woods Agreements have now been approved by the required number of countries, both the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development will commence operations during 1946. The organization of these institutions will undoubtedly take some time, and it is unlikely that their operations will reach any appreciable scale before the beginning of the fiscal year 1947.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Of the 2,750 million dollars required for the Fund, 1,800 million dollars will be provided in cash or notes from the exchange stabilization fund established under the Gold Reserve Act of 1934. The remaining 950 million dollars will be paid initially in the form of non-interest-bearing notes issued by the Secretary of the Treasury. It is not anticipated that the Fund will require in cash any of the 950 million dollars during the fiscal years 1946 and 1947. Consequently, no cash withdrawals from the Treasury will be required in connection with the Fund in these years.

The subscription to the Bank amounts to 3,175 million dollars. Of this total, 2 percent must be paid immediately and the Bank is required to call a further 8 percent of the subscription during its first year of operations. The balance of the subscription is payable when required by the Bank either for direct lending or to make good its guarantees. It is likely that the United States will be required to pay little if any more than the initial 10 percent before the end of the fiscal year 1947.

I anticipate that net expenditures of the Export-Import Bank and expenditures arising from the British credit and the Bretton Woods Agreements will amount to 2,614 million dollars, including the non-cash item of 950 million dollars for the Fund, in the fiscal year 1946, and 2,754 million dollars in the fiscal year 1947.

9. GENERAL GOVERNMENT

The responsibilities of the Government, in both domestic and international affairs, have increased greatly in the past decade. Consequently, the Government is larger than it was before the war, and its general operating costs are higher. We cannot shrink the Government to prewar dimensions unless we slough off these new responsibilities—and we cannot do that without paying an excessive price in terms of our national welfare. We can, however, enhance its operating efficiency through improved organization. I expect to make such improvements under the authority of the Reorganization Act of 1945.

The appropriations which I am recommending for general government for the fiscal year 1947 are 1,604 million dollars under existing legislation. This is an increase of 458 million dollars over the total of enacted appropriations for the current fiscal year, but a substantial part of this increase is due to the fact that the appropriations for the fiscal year 1946 were made prior to the general increase of employees' salaries last July 1, for which allowance is made in the anticipated supplemental appropriations for 1946. The recommended total for 1947 for general government, like the estimates for national defense and other specific programs, does not allow for the further salary increases for Government employees which, I hope, will be authorized by pending legislation, but the tentative lump-sum estimates under proposed legislation contemplate that such salary increases will be effective almost at once.

Expenditures for general government in the fiscal year 1947 are expected to continue the slowly rising trend which began in 1943. This category includes a great variety of items—not merely the overhead costs of the Government. It includes all the expenditures of the Cabinet departments, other than for national defense, aids to agriculture, general public works, and the social security program. It includes also expenditures of the legislative branch, The Judiciary, and many of the independent agencies of the executive branch. Consequently, the estimated increase in 1947 in the total of general government expenditures reflects a variety of influences.

Now included in general government are certain activities formerly classified under national defense. Some of these, such as certain functions of the former Foreign Economic Administration and the War Manpower Commission, are still needed during the period of reconversion; others are in the process of liquidation. A few wartime activities, for example, the international information and foreign intelligence services and some of the wartime programs for controlling disease and crime, have become part of our regular government establishment. Expenditures for these former wartime functions explain about 40 percent of the increase in expenditures for general government.

Other increases are for civil aeronautics promotion, the business and manufacturing censuses, and other expanded business services of the Department of Commerce which have been referred to above; the Forest and Soil Conservation Services and other activities of the Department of Agriculture; certain conservation activities of the Department of the Interior; and the collection of internal revenue in the Treasury Department.

The necessity for reestablishing postal services curtailed during the war and advances in the rates of pay for postal employees have increased substantially the estimated expenditures for postal service for both the current and the next fiscal year. It is not expected that this increase will cause expenditures to exceed postal revenues in either year, although an excess of expenditures may occur in the fiscal year 1947 if salaries are increased further.

Expenditures for our share of the administrative budgets of the United Nations and other permanent international bodies will increase sharply in the fiscal year 1947, yet will remain a small part of our total Budget. The budget for the United Nations has not yet been determined; an estimate for our contribution will be submitted later. Our contributions to the Food and Agriculture Organization, the International Labor Office, the Pan American Union, and other similar international agencies will aggregate about 3 million dollars for the fiscal year 1947. The administrative expenses of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank will be met from their general funds.

We have won a great war—we, the nations of plain people who hate war. In the test of that war we found a strength of unity that brought us through—a strength that crushed the power of those who sought by force to deny our faith in the dignity of man.

During this trial the voices of disunity among us were silent or were subdued to an occasional whine that warned us that they were still among us. Those voices are beginning to cry aloud again. We must learn constantly to turn deaf ears to them. They are voices which foster fear and suspicion and intolerance and hate. They seek to destroy our harmony, our understanding of each other, our American tradition of "live and let live." They have become busy again, trying to set race against race, creed against creed, farmer against city dweller, worker against employer, people against their own governments. They seek only to do us mischief. They must not prevail.

It should be impossible for any man to contemplate without a sense of personal humility the tremendous events of the 12 months since the last annual Message, the great tasks that confront us, the new and huge problems of the coming months and years. Yet these very things justify the deepest confidence in the future of this Nation of free men and women.

The plain people of this country found the courage and the strength, the self-discipline, and the mutual respect to fight and to win, with the help of our allies, under God. I doubt if the tasks of the future are more difficult. But if they are, then I say that our strength and our knowledge and our understanding will be equal to those tasks.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

[1] The Government Corporation Control Act, Public Law 248, approved Dec. 6, 1945, requires each wholly owned Government corporation to submit annually to the President for transmittal to the Congress a budget program or plan of operations. Because of the lateness of the passage of the act, the 1947 budget programs of the corporations will be submitted to the Congress in the spring as a supplement to the regular Budget. The amounts shown for 1947 are tentative.

[2] The Government Corporation Control Act, Public Law 248, approved Dec. 6, 1945, requires each wholly owned Government corporation to submit annually to the President for transmittal to the Congress a budget program or plan of operations. Because of the lateness of the passage of the act, the 1947 budget programs of the corporations will be submitted to the Congress in the spring of 1946 as a supplement to the regular Budget. The amounts shown for 1947 are tentative.

[1] This table is explained in appendix 1.

[2] Appropriation titles in italics are classified as "national defense."

[3] The Government Corporation Control Act, Public Law 248, approved Dec. 6, 1945, requires each wholly owned Government corporation to submit annually to the President for transmittal to the Congress a budget program or plan of operations. Because of the lateness of the passage of the act, the 1947 budget programs of the corporations will be submitted to the Congress in the spring as a supplement to the regular Budget. Consequently, this amount is a tentative figure.

LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

Summary of estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1947, compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1946

[The 1947 Budget estimates make specific provision for additional costs made necessary by pay legislation enacted near the close of the fiscal year 1945. The 1946 appropriations did not make specific provision for any such costs and thus the appropriations shown below are not comparable with the 1947 estimates to whatever extent deficiency appropriations may be necessary to meet these added costs]

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The estimates for the legislative branch provide for the salaries and expenses of the Members and staffs of the Senate and the House of Representatives, and for the operation and maintenance of the Capitol, the Senate and the House Office Buildings, the Botanic Garden, the Library of Congress, and the Government Printing Office. The 1947 estimates for the legislative branch reflect a net increase of approximately 3 percent over appropriations for 1946.

The estimates for the United States Senate provide salaries for 96 Members and approximately 1,200 regular employees and for travel and contingent expenses of the Senators. The 1947 estimates show a decrease below the 1946 appropriations due to a reduction in staff in the Office of Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper.

For the House of Representatives, with its 435 Members and some 2,000 regular employees, the 1947 estimates show a decrease under the 1946 appropriations due to a decrease in expenses of Members and Delegates and to a reduction of staff in the Office of the Doorkeeper.

The Architect of the Capitol is responsible for the operation and maintenance of the Capitol and the Senate and House Office Buildings. There is a net increase of approximately 68 percent in these estimates, composed largely of the following items: Capitol Building and repairs, maintenance of Senate Office Building, maintenance of House Office Building, and Library buildings and grounds.

The Botanic Garden, which is also under the jurisdiction of the Architect of the Capitol, shows a 36 percent increase in its estimates due to proposed additions to the staff.

The Library of Congress provides library and reference service not only for the Members of Congress but for the entire Federal Government and for many thousands of private citizens. The 1947 estimates for the Library of Congress are approximately 15 percent larger than the 1946 appropriations. These increases are due largely to proposed increases in staff and expansion of the legislative reference service.

The Government Printing Office is the printer for the entire Federal Government. Only the cost of printing for the legislative branch, however, is included in this estimate. The amount included in the 1947 estimates shows a 1 percent increase over the 1946 appropriations.

Printing and binding for Congress chargeable to the foregoing appropriation, when recommended to be done by the Committee on Printing of either House, shall be so recommended in a report containing an approximate estimate of the cost thereof, together with a statement from the Public Printer of estimated approximate cost of work previously ordered by Congress within the fiscal year for which this appropriation is made.

During the fiscal year [1946] 1947 any executive department or independent establishment of the Government ordering printing and binding or blank paper and supplies from the Government Printing Office shall pay promptly by check to the Public Printer upon his written request, either in advance or upon completion of the work, all or part of the estimated or actual cost thereof, as the case may be, and bills rendered by the Public Printer in accordance herewith shall not be subject to audit or certification in advance of payment: Provided, That proper adjustments on the basis of the actual cost of delivered work paid for in advance shall be made monthly or quarterly and as may be agreed upon by the Public Printer and the department or establishment concerned. All sums paid to the Public Printer for work that he is authorized by law to do; all sums received from sales of wastepaper, other waste material, and condemned property; and for losses or damage to Government property; shall be deposited to the credit, on the books of the Treasury Department, of the appropriation made for the working capital of the Government Printing Office [for the year in which the work is done,] and be subject to requisition by the Public Printer.

No part of any money appropriated in this Act shall be paid to any person employed in the Government Printing Office while detailed for or performing service in the executive branch of the public service of the United States unless such detail be authorized by law. (Act of June 13, 1945, Public Law 85.)

THE JUDICIARY

Summary of estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1947, compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1946

[The 1947 Budget estimates make specific provision for additional costs made necessary by pay legislation enacted near the close of the fiscal year 1945. The 1946 appropriations did not make specific provision for any such costs and thus the appropriations shown below are not comparable with the 1947 estimates to whatever extent deficiency appropriations may be necessary to meet these added costs]

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

Appropriations for The Judiciary provide funds for operation of all Federal courts, including the payment of salaries of justices, judges, officers, and employees, and miscellaneous expenses. In addition, provision is made for the activities of such judicial officers and employees as United States commissioners, conciliation commissioners, and probation officers, and for the Administrative Office of the United States Courts.

The volume of litigation in the Federal courts is expected to continue to increase slightly. The downward trend in war-related litigation is expected to be more than offset by increases in other types of civil and criminal cases during the fiscal year 1947.

In accordance with law, estimates for The Judiciary are included in the Budget without revision, in the amounts approved by the Conference of Senior Circuit Judges, or for certain courts, as approved by the respective courts.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT

The increase reflected in the estimates for the Supreme Court results from the enactment of pay legislation. The gross increase for this purpose is offset in part by a decrease in the estimate for miscellaneous expenses of the Court.

OTHER FEDERAL COURTS

Of the increase estimated under this heading, all but approximately $330,000 results from increased costs resulting from pay legislation. Major items composing this amount include additional personnel and expenses for the Court of Claims under the authority contained in the Contract Settlement Act of 1944; additional district court reporters and criers as authorized by acts approved January 20, 1944, and December 7, 1944, respectively; and maintenance and repairs for three court buildings in the District of Columbia.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS

This Office, established by Act of Congress approved August 7, 1939, is responsible to the Conference of Senior Circuit Judges for the performance of such administrative services to the Judiciary as relate to personnel, supplies, equipment, disbursement of funds, audit, and similar matters. Increases are estimated for additional costs to be incurred as a result of recent pay legislation, and a minor amount for rental of equipment.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

THE WHITE HOUSE

These appropriations provide for the compensation of the President, the salaries and expenses of the White House Office, and the cost of maintaining the Executive Mansion and grounds. The President's immediate office provides for the handling of documents and correspondence, in addition to maintaining communication with Congress, the heads of the executive departments and agencies, the press, the radio, and the general public. The White House estimates for 1947 include the cost of the Federal Pay Act and also the employees heretofore detailed from executive agencies. As a result, for the first time the estimates reflect the full cost of the White House Office activities.

BUREAU OF THE BUDGET

The Bureau of the Budget assists the President in the preparation and administration of the Federal Budget covering the entire fiscal program of the Government. In addition, as a staff agency of the Federal Government, the Bureau makes studies to improve the organization and procedures of Federal agencies; clears departmental recommendations regarding pending legislation, Executive orders, and proclamations; and coordinates Federal statistical services. The increase in the 1947 estimates is required to permit the Bureau to increase its field service, to provide for the transfer to the Bureau of the Federal Board of Hospitalization, for the approval for publication of Government reports, and for the operation of the Government information service.

INDEPENDENT OFFICES

AMERICAN BATTLE MONUMENTS COMMISSION

The American Battle Monuments Commission maintains and operates 8 national cemeteries and 11 memorials in France and Belgium, commemorating the services of the American Expeditionary Forces during the First World War. During the period of the German occupation, American personnel were evacuated and the Commission made arrangements with the Governments of France and Belgium for minimum upkeep of properties in these respective countries on a contractual basis. The Paris office was reestablished early in 1945 and the Commission has inventoried damaged and deteriorated properties and resumed administration with the assistance of former native employees. The United States Army continues to have administrative control of the cemetery in England, with all expenses connected therewith borne by the Army. The increase of $231,800 in the estimate for 1947 is to provide rehabilitation of damaged and deteriorated installations, and transfer of employees from the United States to complete the restaffing of the Paris office and the cemeteries.

AMERICAN COMMISSION FOR THE PROTECTION AND SALVAGE OF ARTISTIC AND HISTORIC MONUMENTS IN WAR AREAS

The Congress, in providing funds for operation during the fiscal year 1946, stipulated that the provision of funds was for completing the work of the Commission. Accordingly, no funds for the Commission are recommended for 1947.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

The Civil Service Commission recruits, selects, and certifies persons for employment in all branches of the Government. Personnel for such civilian establishments as Navy yards, arsenals, air depots, etc., operated by the War and Navy Departments, are selected by "labor boards" appointed by and composed of employees of such establishments and operated under the supervision of the Civil Service Commission in accordance with procedures and rules established by it. The selection of personnel requires, particularly with regard to applicants for the more responsible Government positions, investigations of character, suitability, and past experience.

Through the promulgation of rules and regulations and the issuance of standard procedures, the Commission to a large extent provides direction to all Federal personnel activities. It is responsible for the administration of the Classification Act which required that the duties and responsibilities assigned governmental positions be the basis for equitable salary allocations. It adjudicates appeals from personnel actions taken by Federal agencies and administers a uniform performance rating system.

Responsibility for the administration of the retirement laws for governmental employees, including the employees of the Panama Canal and the Alaska Railroad, is vested in the Commission. In addition, the Commission represents the United States Government in fulfilling the Government's commitments as an employer under the provisions of the Veterans Preference Act.

In the fiscal year 1946, the Commission received its operating funds under two appropriations, one of which, "Salaries and expenses (national defense)," will not be continued in 1947. During the fiscal year 1947 the transition from war-service procedures should be completed. Federal employment and placements are expected to decrease during the fiscal year 1947 but the replacement of war-service appointees with permanent status personnel will continue during at least a part of the year. Activities imposed by the Veterans Preference Act are expected to continue at a high level.

The decrease of $4,010,882 in the Budget for general administrative expenses for 1947 results primarily from anticipated decreases in placements and investigations.

Appropriations are made annually toward the Government's share of providing benefits to the participants in the retirement and disability benefits provided by law for the Federal service. These appropriations and the contributions made by the participating employees provide the trust funds from which benefits are paid. A decrease of $25,039,000 in the total requirement for retirement funds is estimated for 1947. This decrease is the result of reductions of $24,900,000 in the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund and of $139,000 for the Panama Canal Construction Annuity Fund. The decrease results primarily from the anticipated sharp reduction in Federal employment.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

The Federal Communications Commission is the regulatory agency with jurisdiction over interstate and international communications by wire and radio. It administers the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, all international treaties, conventions, conferences, and agreements which relate to electric communication, and advises the State Department on the technical aspects of international communications. The Commission also handles technical matters for the Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee, which advises the President on the assignment of frequencies for use by Government agencies.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

The work of the Commission may be roughly grouped in two categories—radio and common carrier. The regulation of radio requires the allocation of the radio spectrum among the many services, the assignment of frequencies to specific users, the licensing of operators, the prescribing of engineering standards, and monitoring. The Commission is required to regulate common carriers in matters of interstate and international tariffs, physical connections, through routes and charges, constructions and abandonments, mergers, service, and depreciation. It also has jurisdiction over uniform accounting, valuation, and reporting of operations for common carriers.

During the war the speed of technological developments in radio, a speed that had been remarkable before the war, was greatly accelerated. As a result of these recent developments outstanding advancements are occurring in the communications industry. Within a few years there will be in existence several times as many broadcast stations—standard, F. M., television, and others—as now exist. The safety and special service transmitters—police, fire, aircraft, ship, citizens, railroads, and others—will increase from a few thousand to a few hundred thousand. There will be striking advancements from the commercial applications of radar and other electronic developments of the war. The changes among common carriers will be equally great. Western Union is planning to replace its entire outside plant of wire lines and poles with a radio relay system. The Bell Telephone System has announced plans for a $2 billion expansion, involving radio relay systems, coaxial cables, and multiplex transmission equipment. These developments will have far-reaching effects upon every phase of the common carrier activity.

The increases proposed for 1947 are to permit an expansion in the Commission comparable to the expansion in the industry. There is a decrease of slightly over $1 million because of the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service being included in the 1946 appropriation but not in the 1947 appropriation. This decrease, however, is more than offset by expansions throughout the entire Commission for regulatory activity and by increases resulting from base pay adjustments. The net result is an increase of $688,100 over the 1946 appropriation.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was organized under authority of the Banking Act of 1933 to insure the deposits of all banks that are entitled to the benefit of insurance under the law. The insurance provided by the Corporation protects the accounts of depositors up to a maximum of $5,000 each. On June 30, 1945, the number of insured banks was 13,474 and the contingent liability of the Corporation with respect to insured deposits aggregated $55 billion. There are now only about 1,300 uninsured banks in the United States and its possessions.

To protect the 70 million depositors in insured banks the Corporation exercises general supervision over the entire insured banking system. In connection with its program of strengthening the banking system it examines annually 6,633 insured banks not examined by any other Federal agency and reviews the reports of examination of 6,841 banks which are examined either by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency or the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. The Corporation in certain instances also conducts special examinations of the latter group of banks.

Two methods have been utilized by the Corporation to protect depositors of insured banks: (1) by making a loan on or through the purchase of substandard assets of a bank in an unsound condition in order to facilitate its merger with another insured bank; (2) by paying deposits of a closed bank up to $5,000 for each depositor. During the fiscal year 1945, only one insured bank closed or received aid from the Corporation.

By Executive Order of April 27, 1942, the Corporation was given responsibility for supervision of the activities of all Federal credit unions which prior to that time had been under the jurisdiction of the Farm Credit Administration. It does not, however, insure share balances in credit unions. On June 30, 1945, there were 3,815 Federal credit unions in operation.

The Corporation was organized with capital of $289 million. All insured banks pay assessments at an annual rate of one-twelfth of 1 percent of their deposit liabilities. During the past 11 years the return from its capital investment and assessments has been sufficient to cover all insurance losses and expenses and provide for the accumulation of reserve which, on June 30, 1945, amounted to $579 million. The administrative expenses of the Corporation are provided for through an authorization approving the use of a specified proportion of the Corporation's assets for this purpose and do not require the appropriation of funds from the United States Treasury.

The amount included for administrative expenses for the fiscal year 1947 is approximately 23 percent greater than the amount provided for 1946. The amount required for increases in base pay authorized by legislation, which is not reflected in the 1946 appropriation, accounts for approximately one-half of the additional funds required for 1947. The major functional increase over 1946 provides for strengthening the Corporation's examining force with respect to both bank and Federal credit union examinations so as to permit it to place its examination schedules on a current basis. The Corporation had been unable to maintain its examining schedules on a current basis during the war period due to the shortage of qualified personnel. The additional funds also provide for the initiation of a program for the audit of insurance assessments paid by banks.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act of 1935 and the Natural Gas Act of 1938 and has certain duties under the provisions of several other acts relating to Federal power developments such as Tennessee Valley Authority Act, Bonneville Act, Fort Peck Project Act, and the flood control acts. Its principal functions are as follows: (1) to license hydroelectric power projects on navigable waters of the United States and on United States Government lands; (2) to regulate the rates charged by public utilities and natural gas companies engaged in the transmission and sale of electricity and natural gas at wholesale in interstate commerce; (3) to approve rates for sale of electric energy at the Bonneville, Fort Peck, Denison, Grand River, and Norfork projects and future reservoir projects under the control of the War Department; (4) to regulate the disposition, merger, and consolidation of facilities of public utilities and their acquisition and issuance of securities;

(5) to regulate the interlocking directorates of public utilities; (6) to prescribe and enforce uniform systems of accounts for licensees, electric utilities, and natural gas companies and to encourage sound depreciation and accounting practices; (7) to assist State agencies on rate cases and other regulatory matters; (8) to study the present and potential markets for electric energy and the present and potential sources for its production; (9) to study the possibilities for future interconnection and coordination of electric power systems throughout the country and to recommend to the utility industry improvements in the interest of conservation of energy resources and lowering the cost of energy to the ultimate consumer; (10) to issue certificates of public convenience and necessity for the acquisition, construction, extension, and operation or abandonment of natural gas pipelines and facilities for the transportation or sale of natural gas in interstate commerce; (11) to determine service areas for natural gas companies; (12) to report to Congress on proposed and existing compacts between States relating to the conservation and use of natural gas; (13) to gather, analyze, and publish basic financial and engineering data concerning electric utilities and natural gas companies; (14) to make cooperative studies of river basins in the interest of conservation and utilization of water-power resources and to make the results of such studies available to the War Department, Department of Interior, and other Federal, State, and private agencies concerned; (15) to study flood-control projects proposed by the War Department and to recommend facilities for the development of hydroelectric power in connection therewith, and (16) after consulting with the Secretaries of War and State, to recommend to the President appropriate action on applications for permits to construct, operate, maintain, or connect facilities for the exportation of electric energy and the exportation or importation of natural gas.

The estimates for the fiscal year 1947, aggregating $3,707,000, constitute an increase of $1,062,500 over the 1946 appropriations. The increase reflects the cost of basic pay increases, the resumption of certain of the Commission's statutory duties suspended or curtailed during the war emergency, and the necessity for more regulatory work as a result of financial and construction activity by natural gas companies and electric utilities following the Japanese surrender.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

The Federal Trade Commission is charged with the responsibility of administering acts which are designed to accomplish the following purposes: (1) To promote free and fair competition in interstate trade in the interest of the public through prevention of price-fixing agreements, boycotts, combinations in restraint of trade, unlawful price discriminations, and other unfair methods of competition and unfair and deceptive acts and practices; (2) to safeguard life and health of the consuming public by preventing the dissemination of false and fraudulent advertisements of food, drugs, cosmetics, and devices which may be injurious to health; (3) to protect producers, manufacturers, distributors, and consumers from unrevealed presence of substitutes and mixtures in manufactured wool products; (4) to supervise the registration and operation of associations of American exporters engaged solely in export trade, and (5) to gather and make available to the President, the Congress, and the public, factual data concerning economic and business conditions as a basis for remedial legislation where needed, and for the guidance and protection of the public.

The amount included for administrative expenses for the fiscal year 1947 is approximately 26 percent greater than the amount provided for 1946. The amount required for increases in base pay authorized by legislation, which is not reflected in the 1946 appropriation, accounts for approximately one-third of the additional funds required for 1947. The remaining additional funds are to provide primarily for (1) a substantial increase in the number of complaints anticipated to be filed with the Commission during 1947 due to the expected increase in the production and marketing of consumer goods under peacetime conditions; (2) negotiation of trade practice agreements as a method of preventing unfair practices; and (3) compiling and publishing by industry groups certain corporate statistics. With regard to the latter function, which has been inactive during the war period, the statistics to be published by the Federal Trade Commission will be integrated with the Securities and Exchange Commission program of compiling statistics relating to industrial corporations registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

FILIPINO REHABILITATION COMMISSION

The Filipino Rehabilitation Commission was created by act of Congress approved June 29, 1944 (58 Stat. 626), amending the Philippine Independence Act of 1934. It is composed of nine representatives from the United States Government and nine from the Commonwealth Government of the Philippines. The purpose of the Commission is to investigate and formulate recommendations on all matters affecting postwar economy, trade, finance, economic stability, and rehabilitation of the Philippine Islands, including the matter of damages to public and private property and to persons occasioned by enemy attack and occupation.

FOREIGN SERVICE PAY ADJUSTMENT

This appropriation was available for reimbursement to employees of the Government serving in foreign countries where losses were sustained due to appreciation of the local currency in relation to the American dollar. The method of providing this reimbursement has been revised. Hereafter, exchange loss will be met as part of the various allowances granted to personnel serving abroad and will be paid from appropriations available for such purposes.

GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE

The General Accounting Office audits the Government's receipts and expenditures, prescribes accounting systems, maintains appropriation accounts, settles claims, and construes and interprets laws.

The 1947 estimates of appropriation for the General Accounting Office show an increase of approximately 10 percent over 1946, exclusive of basic salary increases for those activities carried on throughout the 1946 fiscal year. By far the greater portion of the appropriations is required for the performance of auditing functions, including the audit of contracts terminated or renegotiated and the newly created function of auditing the accounts of Government corporations. After making allowance for the unavoidable time lag in the audit of accounts, this phase of the work will be relatively current by the end of 1947, but large backlogs of work will still exist in some of the other activities, such as the settlement of transportation accounts and the audit of checks.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

The Interstate Commerce Commission regulates those railroads, motor carriers, water carriers, pipe lines, freight forwarders, and stockyards that operate in interstate commerce. In general, its jurisdiction is in matters of tariffs, finance, operating authority, service, safety, accounting, and valuation. Its regulation, in accordance with the national transportation policy, is performed in such a way as to recognize the inherent economic advantages of each class of carrier; to promote safe, adequate, economical, and efficient service; to encourage the establishment of reasonable charges; and to encourage fair wages and equitable working conditions.

The personnel and the work of the Interstate Commerce Commission were reduced considerably during the war. Economic conditions reduced the amount of normal regulatory activity in transportation. The Government took over most of the ships, paid most of the freight bills, and furnished all the traffic the carriers could handle. There were fewer tariff filings, shippers and carriers complained less about unfair competitive practices, and shippers complained less about carrier charges. There will now be not only a return to prewar levels of activities but to higher levels if experiences after World War I are repeated. Important changes in wages, material costs, service areas, materials transported, and competitive conditions will now result in adjustments in tariffs, operating authorities, and financial structures.

An increase in activity during 1947 will occur in almost every phase of the Commission's work. Not only will there be the natural postwar rise in tariff filings, but there will also be a further increase because of the Commission's decision in the cases involving interterritorial class rate differentials. Accompanying the increase in tariff work will be almost proportionate increases in hearing, finance, complaint, accounting, and valuation work. The only offsetting item will be a decrease in car service work as the result of the improvement in railroad traffic conditions.

Waybill studies, which are to be started in the last half of the 1946 fiscal year, are to be continued throughout 1947. Waybills are to be collected from railroads for 1 day from each quarter of the year. These waybills are to be analyzed and tabulated to show volume of traffic by commodities, rates at which the commodities move, routes, circuity, and other facts important to the Commission in its regulation of rates. These waybill studies will also have wide use among other Government agencies and institutions outside the Government.

As a result of consolidations of several appropriations, the number of appropriations is reduced from 10 in 1946 to 5 in 1947. For these five appropriations the budget is $9,790,000, an increase of $1,670,662 over the total appropriations for 1946. This amounts to an increase of 22 percent, of which approximately two-thirds is for costs of basic salary increases and the remainder for expansion.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION ON THE POTOMAC RIVER BASIN

The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, a non-Federal agency concerned with pollution problems in the Potomac River and its tributaries, was established in 1940 under a compact between Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia, approved by Congress July 11, 1940. The compact provides that the Federal Government shall contribute to the expenses of the Commission. During the war the Commission operated on a restricted basis and no Federal funds were requested. The Commission now plans to develop its program with increased contributions from the States signatory to the compact and with a contribution from the Federal Government as provided in the compact. The initial Federal contribution of $10,000 provided in the 1947 estimate is approximately one-third of the total budget of the Commission for 1947.

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR AERONAUTICS

The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics was established in 1915 to supervise and direct the scientific study of the problems of flight and to direct and conduct research and experiments in aeronautics. The membership of the Committee includes official representatives of the agencies of the Government directly concerned with military and civil aviation and private citizens especially qualified in the aeronautical sciences. The actual research work is carried on primarily at the three laboratories of the Committee: The Langley Memorial Aeronautical Laboratory at Langley Field, Virginia, the Ames Aeronautical Laboratory at Moffett Field, California, and the Aircraft Engine Research Laboratory at Cleveland, Ohio. A relatively small portion of research is performed each year by contracts with institutions having specialized facilities not available at the Committee's own laboratories.

During the war, the Committee devoted its facilities and staff almost entirely to urgent problems of applied research assigned to it by the Army and Navy, and made many vital contributions to winning and maintaining air supremacy. The agency is now reverting for the most part to its normal function of fundamental scientific research for the benefit of both civil and military aviation. The necessary neglect of this type of research during the war has resulted in a large backlog of projects which must be undertaken in order that great possibilities in aeronautics, now clearly foreseeable, can be realized. The principal emphasis in 1947 will be on problems, now chiefly of military significance, relating to flight at sonic and supersonic speeds and to new jet and rocket types of propulsion. In addition, some attention will be given to problems relating to the performance and safety of transport and private type airplanes.

The total estimates for 1947 represent a slight increase over the 1946 appropriations because a reduction in the appropriation for operating expenses is offset by nonrecurring construction estimates for modifying certain existing laboratory facilities to increase the speeds that can be simulated into the critical sonic range.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES

The National Archives is charged with the preservation and servicing of inactive Federal records of permanent value and historical interest for use of Government officials and scholars. In addition, it authorizes agencies to dispose of useless records when Congress has previously approved the disposal of records of similar form and character, recommends to Congress the approval of schedules listing records for future disposal at the source, and after appraising records declared worthless by heads of agencies, makes recommendations to Congress for their disposal. This agency likewise publishes the Federal Register, containing interdepartmental orders of general effect and applicability, and administers the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park, N. Y., which is the designated repository for the late President's official papers. The increase in the 1947 estimates is required to complete the records retirement program in the emergency and war agencies, to institute records retirement programs in the permanent nonwar agencies, to enlarge the reference staff to meet the increased demands of the Federal agencies, and to enable the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library staff to accession and exhibit material now stored at Hyde Park and elsewhere.

NATIONAL CAPITAL HOUSING AUTHORITY

The National Capital Housing Authority is the public housing agency for the National Capital and, under title I of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act, operates 112 dwelling units and 3 groups of garages built in reclaimed slum areas in the District. All receipts derived from sales, leases, or other sources in connection with the operation of these properties are covered into the Treasury monthly.

The amount in the 1947 Budget required to protect and conserve the Government's investment of some $555,000 includes additional costs made necessary by recent pay legislation.

Other activities of the National Capital Housing Authority, which are financed from other appropriations, include the operation and management of war and other housing projects.

NATIONAL CAPITAL PARK AND PLANNING COMMISSION

The functions of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission are of an advisory and also an operating character. Its advisory activities, which include preparation and maintenance of a comprehensive plan for the development of the National Capital and its environs, are charged against District revenues and therefore appear in the District of Columbia chapter of the Budget. The operating function of the Commission includes acquisition of land for the development of the National Capital's park, parkway, and playground system and the George Washington Memorial Parkway on both sides of the Potomac River, and for the extension of the District park system into nearby Maryland and Virginia. Appropriations for these purposes are charged against the United States Treasury but are subsequently repaid either in whole or in part by the jurisdiction benefited: 100 percent by the District of Columbia; 50 percent by Virginia and Maryland for development of the George Washington Memorial Parkway; and 50 percent by Virginia and 66⅔ percent by Maryland for extension of the park system in territory adjacent to the District. The 1947 estimate shows an increase of $473,756 due to additional land to be acquired for the District of Columbia.

NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS BOARD

The National Labor Relations Board administers the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act of July 5, 1935. This law was designed to eliminate certain causes of labor disputes arising from specified unfair labor practices or concerning the representation of employees for purposes of collective bargaining with employers. The act affirms the rights of employees to self-organization; to form, join, or assist labor organizations; and to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. Five unfair labor practices by employers interfering with such rights are defined by the law. The Board investigates charges alleging the commission of unfair labor practices; and if after appropriate notice and hearing it finds that such practices have been committed, it is empowered to issue a cease-and-desist order against the employer found to have committed such acts. The decisions of the Board are enforceable by United States circuit courts of appeal upon proper petition by the Board or an aggrieved employer.

The act provides that representatives designated or selected for the purposes of collective bargaining by the majority of employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes shall be the exclusive representative of all employees in such a unit for purposes of collective bargaining. The Board is responsible for investigating questions concerning representation of employees for collective bargaining and certifying the majority representative of employees in the appropriate bargaining unit. In the course of such investigation the Board may take a secret ballot, a check of union members' cards or authorization against the employer's pay roll, or utilize any other suitable method to ascertain such representatives. There has been a steady increase in the number of representation cases handled by the Board over the past 10 years as compared with the number of unfair labor practice cases. For the last 2 years the Board has received approximately three representation cases to every charge of unfair labor practice.

The volume of cases since the beginning of fiscal year 1946 has averaged 15 percent above the same period in 1945 and has resulted in a steady increase in the Board's backlog each month. Serious delays in the disposition of the Board's cases over long periods of time may actually increase labor disputes rather than prevent them, because labor organizations are induced to take direct action rather than to resort to the judicial procedures of the Board. A projected 18-month program beginning January 1, 1946, has been formulated by the Board to dispose of incoming cases and reduce its backlog to a current basis by June 30, 1947. This program was submitted to the Congress in a supplemental estimate for 1946, and the 1947 estimates provide for continuation of that program throughout the fiscal year.

No funds are included for the conduct of strike polls under section 8 of the War Labor Disputes Act in 1947.

NATIONAL MEDIATION BOARD

The National Mediation Board and the National Railroad Adjustment Board are the two administrative agencies created under the Railway Labor Act of 1926, as amended in 1934 and 1936. The National Mediation Board, on its own motion or at the request of either party, mediates disputes over changes in rates of pay, rules or conditions of employment between carriers and railroad labor organizations, resolves questions of the majority representative in the appropriate craft or class of employees, and interprets agreements arrived at by mediation.

If mediation fails to settle the dispute and the parties refuse to submit the issues to arbitration, under section 10 of the act the President, on the recommendation of the Board, may appoint an emergency board to investigate and to make findings of fact and formal recommendations for the disposition of the dispute. These Boards are required by law to make their report within 30 days of their appointment, and for 30 days after their report the law prohibits any change in the terms or conditions of employment out of which the dispute arose. This procedure has been in operation since 1926 and was successful in avoiding any major Nation-wide strike until December 1943, when the Director of Economic Stabilization set aside a recommendation of the emergency boards in two industry-wide wage cases of that year. A provision was inserted in the Stabilization Act of 1944 providing that all disputes involving rates of pay in the railroad and airline transport industries must be handled by the agencies provided under the Railway Labor Act; that, in their recommendations, such agencies (emergency boards) must make specific findings and certifications that the recommendations are consistent with national wage stabilization policy; and that such findings and certifications shall be conclusive.

The National Railroad Adjustment Board is composed of 36 members equally divided between representatives of management and employees, whose salaries are paid by carriers or organizations, respectively. This Board decides all grievances and disputes growing out of interpretation or application of existing agreements. Secretaries of the members, administrative personnel, and other incidental expenses are paid from regular appropriations. The personnel of this Board is divided into four divisions, each with jurisdiction over specified crafts of railway employees.

The 1947 estimates provide an over-all increase of $104,500. Exclusive of increases due to recent pay legislation, this amount is for salaries and expenses of additional mediators to handle increasing demands for the services of the National Mediation Board and additional equipment and supplies required by the Adjustment Board.

RAILROAD RETIREMENT BOARD

Aged workers, who for patriotic or economic reasons have continued their employment in the railroad industry, are beginning, following the surrender of Japan, to retire in increasing numbers. It is expected that throughout 1946 and 1947 retirements will be at a high level.

At the close of the last fiscal year, 171,452 former railroad employees, made up of aged or disabled workers, pensioners, and widows of deceased beneficiaries, were drawing benefits totaling more than $11,500,000 per month. Lump-sum death benefits which, for some little time, have been high and are currently running at a level higher than $700,000, are expected to decline by reason of lower aggregate employment following the surrender of Japan.

The estimates of salaries and miscellaneous expenses have been increased for 1947 to provide for the increased work arising from the expanding load of retirements expected in that year and by reason of the increase in base pay.

The railroad retirement appropriated account is made up of the estimated taxes to be collected from carriers and their employees to provide, after deduction for annual administrative costs, for retirement, disability, and joint survivor benefits for railroad workers, and lump-sum death payments and Federal contributions for military service which represent, as provided by law, the total tax which would have been received had the worker entering military service continued in railroad employment and earned at the rate of $160 per month. The reduced estimate of taxes for 1947 reflects the change in aggregate employment expected in that year. The reduction is partially offset by an increase in the military service credit for 1945 which is provided for in the 1947 Budget.

By reason of the continued receipt of taxes in excess of benefit payments, the railroad retirement trust fund at the close of 1945 had improved its position over the previous year.

The railroad unemployment insurance fund annually receives by law 10 percent of the taxes collected for railroad unemployment insurance and is used for the administrative cost of operating the railroad unemployment insurance system. The unexpended balance of this fund in excess of $6,000,000 at the close of the previous fiscal year, together with 90 percent of the taxes collected, goes into the railroad unemployment insurance fund and is used to pay unemployment insurance benefits. In 1947 a substantial increase in the unemployment benefits to be paid is anticipated, as reduced activity in the railroad and general industry occasions reconversion unemployment among both present railroad workers and former railroad workers having rights to railroad unemployment insurance. The railroad unemployment insurance trust fund is in a very strong position to meet any demands in 1947 that may be made upon it.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

The functions of the Securities and Exchange Commission include the supervision of registration of security issues and suppression of fraudulent practices in the sale of securities; regulation of transactions in securities, both on the stock exchanges and in the over-the-counter markets; regulation of public utility holding companies; registration and regulation of investment companies and investment advisers; and the preparation of advisory reports on plans and participation as a party in corporate reorganization.

The volume of corporate financing registered with the Commission during the year 1945 exceeded that for each of the 3 preceding war years by nearly 100 percent, reflecting the favorable market conditions which have encouraged new financing and continued refunding operations. Postwar borrowing by foreign nations as well as the need of domestic corporations for additional capital for reconversion purposes, combined with anticipated continued favorable market conditions, will, it is expected, add to the factors which have produced the upward trend in financing. As indicated by the number of shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange, the volume of trading in securities, both on national stock exchanges and in the over-the-counter markets, increased by more than 40 percent during the year 1945 over 1944, while average prices reached an 8-year high in November of 1945. Indications are that the market volume will continue at a high level. This has resulted in a corresponding increase in the Commission's work in connection with surveillance of markets and broker-dealer inspections, pointing to the need for strengthening the staff. Progress continued with the integration and corporate simplification of public utility systems under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. The inability of both the Commission and the companies involved to secure adequate technical personnel during the war years, which seriously retarded this work, is no longer a problem. While integration and simplification work under the Public Utility Holding Company Act will be accelerated during 1946 and 1947, it will continue a major responsibility of the Commission for at least 2 more years. During 1947 the Commission will also resume the compilation and publication of statistical reports on individual companies, a program which was inactive during the war period.

The amount included for administrative expenses for the year 1947 represents an increase of approximately 22 percent in excess of the amount provided for 1946. The amount required for increases in base pay authorized by legislation, which is not reflected in the 1946 appropriation, accounts for approximately 41 percent of the additional funds required for 1947. The remaining additional funds are to provide primarily for (1) increased activity in the surveillance of security markets and in the inspection of broker-dealers, (2) strengthening the staff engaged in processing registration statements covering refundings and new financing, (3) accelerating the integration and corporate simplification of public utility holding company systems, and (4) the compilation and publication of financial statistics of individual companies. The latter program is integrated with the Federal Trade Commission program of compiling and publishing corporate statistics by industry groups.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION

The Smithsonian Institution, founded in 1846 for "the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men," carries on fundamental research in the natural sciences, and administers the United States National Museum, the Astrophysical Observatory, the National Collection of Fine Arts, the American Bureau of Ethnology, and the International Exchange Service. The Institution establishes the standards which control a large proportion of the scientific inquiries of mankind. Much of its basic research is being found to be of great benefit to the oil, mining, manufacturing, and fishing industries, to engineering enterprise, and to medical research. The increase in the 1947 estimates is required to enlarge the custodial staff to enable it to work the 40-hour week, to restore the positions of employees who entered war service—which positions were temporarily abolished—to reemploy veterans upon return, and to overcome serious backlogs throughout the Institution's scientific divisions.

The National Gallery of Art is a quasi-independent branch of the Smithsonian Institution. Here are displayed free to the public world-famous paintings and other art objects. The attendance at the Gallery continues to be greater than that at any other art gallery in the world. An increase in the 1947 estimates is required to enlarge the custodial force to enable it to work the 40-hour week and to expand the educational program.

TARIFF COMMISSION

The Tariff Commission is primarily an independent fact-finding, fact-reporting agency, which determines no trade policies and has no regulatory functions. Since its establishment in 1916, it has become a reservoir of trade, production, commodity, and import information. With the revival of foreign trade following the end of the war and the extension of the Trade Agreements Act, Congress and the President will be confronted with basic policy determinations, particularly in regard to the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements. The studies and reports of the Commission, being made largely at the request of the committees of Congress and of the Trade Agreements Committee, will be designed to present factual information as a basis for these policy decisions.

During fiscal year 1946 it is estimated that total funds available to the Commission will be $1,066,472, and of this amount $833,410 will be appropriated funds and $233,062 transferred from other agencies for services performed. The recommended increase in the salaries and expenses appropriation means that appropriated funds will be used to a greater extent for financing the Commission's work in 1947 than in 1946. During the war, with the resulting curtailment of United States commercial exports, the facilities of the Commission were made available to the war agencies on a reimbursable basis. The change in financing reflects an important shift in the nature of the work of the Commission from cost accounting surveys for several war agencies to increased economic and commodity research required in connection with the trade agreements.

THE TAX COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

The function of The Tax Court of the United States is to decide, in cases where deficiencies have been determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, whether there is a deficiency or an overpayment in income, profits, estate, gift, and unjust enrichment taxes, and personal holding company surtaxes; to adjudicate controversies relating to excess profits on Navy contracts and Army aircraft contracts; and to review the action of the Commissioner in deficiency and refund cases founded on claims of abnormalities under excess-profits statutes. The court also has jurisdiction in cases involving refunds of processing taxes.

The estimates of The Tax Court of the United States, exclusive of basic salary increases, contemplate that its activities will continue at about the 1946 level.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION COMMISSION

The United States Employees' Compensation Commission administers (1) the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, approved September 7, 1916, which provides for payment by the Commission of compensation to Federal employees for injury or death sustained in the course of employment; (2) the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, approved March 4, 1927, which provides for supervision by the Commission of compensation payments by insurance carriers to covered workers for injury or death occurring upon the navigable waters of the United States (including any drydock) if not covered by a State law; and (3) the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as extended by Congress on May 17, 1928, to cover all private employment in the District of Columbia.

The Commission also administers two programs instituted since the start of the war and arising out of war activity: (1) The Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as extended by Congress on August 16, 1941, to cover employees of Government contractors engaged in employment at military bases outside the United States; and (2) the act of December 2, 1942, providing (a) compensation benefits to employees of Government contractors and persons engaged by the United States under personal service contract outside continental United States whose injury or death results from a war-risk hazard, and (b) accrual of wages for any such employee held by the enemy, missing because of enemy action, or not returned to his home or place where he was employed because of failure of the United States or its contractors to furnish transportation.

Because of the great increase in covered employment, the work load of the Commission increased greatly during the war. The 1947 Budget is based on the expectation that (1) the total new case load will decrease substantially; (2) there will be a significant decrease in loads under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, reflecting the expected reduction in Federal employment; (3) work loads under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act will show some decrease but will remain heavy; (4) loads and costs arising out of the war-risk hazard program will decrease greatly; and (5) the accrued wage payment program will be completed during fiscal year 1946. The amounts included in the Budget reflect these over-all decreases in work loads. Of the net decrease of $9,447,000, excluding additional costs made necessary by recent pay legislation, the completion of the accrued wage payment program accounts for $7,800,000.

Digitized for FRASER

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

UNITED STATES MARITIME COMMISSION

The 1947 Budget includes no estimate of appropriation for the United States Maritime Commission. Contract authority and cash already provided is sufficient to finance necessary activities throughout fiscal year 1947.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936 declared a merchant marine to be "necessary for the national defense and development of * * * foreign and domestic commerce." The act represented a compromise after 150 years of controversy, departing from previous legislation by accepting the principle of open subsidization of both construction and operation, regulated to prevent abuses. To administer the act, Congress created the United States Maritime Commission and entrusted it with broad discretionary authority to define and establish "essential" trade routes; to administer construction- and operating-differential subsidies; to purchase, construct, and operate vessels either directly or by contract if necessary; to train officers and seamen, and to establish working conditions, wages, and manning scales for inclusion in subsidy contracts; to provide ship-mortgage insurance; to regulate trade practices and prevent discrimination among shippers; and to promote both foreign trade and the employment of American vessels.

The Maritime Commission's principal wartime responsibility has been the building of ships. Its prewar functions of purchase, charter, operations, and seaman training were transferred to War Shipping Administration. No provision has been made in the 1947 Budget for return of these transferred responsibilities. Cash and contract authority are available, however, for construction of specialized vessels to round out the peacetime American merchant marine, for reconversion of vessels for return to owners, for the establishment of a reserve fleet, for the lay-up and maintenance of shipyard facilities, and for resumption of the operating-differential subsidy program under the Merchant Marine Act.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

The Veterans Administration furnishes to the veterans of all wars and of the peacetime Military Establishment services consisting mainly of medical and hospital care, the payment of pensions and compensation, the administration of Government life insurance, and a number of broad new programs for veterans of the present war, namely, vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans; protection from loss of commercial insurance policies in accordance with the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act; the guaranty of loans to eligible veterans for the purchase of homes, farms, or business properties; the provision of subsistence allowances, tuition, books, fees, and educational supplies to eligible veterans who wish to resume education interrupted by their entry into the armed services; and the payment of weekly readjustment allowances to veterans while seeking employment for a period after their discharge.

The surrender of Japan and mass demobilization of the armed forces has resulted in a tremendous increase in Veterans Administration requirements. There had been discharged from the armed forces by June 30, 1945, approximately 2,100,000 veterans of World War II. By June 30, 1947, it is estimated that this figure will exceed 14,000,000.

The 1947 estimate of appropriation totals $4,934,623,500. However, the large number of discharges anticipated prior to June 30, 1946, will undoubtedly necessitate the obligation of a substantial portion of this amount in the fiscal year 1946, under the "immediately available" provision in the language of certain benefit appropriations.

In the field, hospital and medical activities will be expanded to meet the increased number of veterans returning as a result of the demobilization of the armed forces. It is anticipated that the average number of beds available in veterans hospitals and homes will be increased approximately 4,981 in 1947, bringing the average to 103,025 standard beds, excluding 11,255 emergency beds which the agency plans to discontinue to eliminate dangerous conditions due to overcrowding. Utilization of these facilities is expected to average 91.6 percent. As a result of a shortage of bed capacity, it will be necessary to hospitalize approximately 25,477 in other hospitals. Construction will also be undertaken in 1947 to provide another 13,422 beds. In addition, the out-patient activities of the hospitals and the medical activities at other field stations will be expanded to take care of an estimated 16,551,810 examinations and treatments. A new Division of Special Services will provide expanded recreational activities, a full-time chaplain service, improved library service, and an improved canteen service in all of the hospitals and homes of the Veterans Administration.

For fiscal year 1946, the total number of veterans (all wars) and dependents receiving compensation and pensions, including those receiving vocational rehabilitation, is estimated to be in excess of 2,400,000. By June 30, 1947, this figure is expected to grow to 2,990,000. World War II veterans constitute almost 2,000,000 of the 1947 figure. The estimated 1947 requirements of $1,905,000,000 includes $55,002,042 in increased pensions for the vocational rehabilitation program.

Approximately 17,500,000 applications for National Service Life Insurance had been approved by June 30, 1945, for an estimated $135,000,000,000 of insurance. The average value per policy was $7,718, and the average amount of insurance per life was $9,227. The estimate for the National Service Life Insurance appropriation for 1947 reflects a sharp reduction in the rate of service-connected deaths and disabilities together with reduction in the amount of insurance in force as a result of insurance lapsed or reduced after discharge.

The "Readjustment benefits" appropriation provides funds for the loan guarantee, readjustment allowance, and education programs authorized by the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944. The 1947 requirements are based on the estimate that approximately 500,000 loans to veterans will be guaranteed by the Veterans Administration during the 1947 fiscal year; an average of 1,100,000 will receive readjustment allowances (unemployment and self-employed); and an average of about 500,000 will receive benefits under the education program.

In order to take care of the tremendous increase in load, the Veterans Administration is in process of a major reorganization, with heavy emphasis on decentralization of activities. Thirteen branch offices, to be strategically located throughout the United States and to operate under the direction of deputy administrators, are in process of establishment. These offices will supervise all suboffices and hospitals located in their respective geographic jurisdictions. It is planned to decentralize all National Service Life Insurance operations, including claims, and the adjudication of death pension claims to these 13 offices, making them operating offices to this extent.

It is expected that contact offices (there are now about 400) will be increased to about 2,000 by June 30, 1947. These offices furnish information to veterans, take applications for benefits, and act as referral points from which veterans are referred to other local, State, and Federal agencies.

The central office, upon completion of the reorganization, will have the functions of formulating policies and procedures, advising and servicing subordinate units, and measuring and supervising performance throughout the organization.

TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY

NOTE.—The Government Corporation Control Act, Public Law 248, approved December 6, 1945, requires each wholly owned Government corporation to submit annually to the President for transmittal to the Congress a budget program or plan of operations. Because of the lateness of the passage of the act, the 1947 budget programs of the corporations will be submitted to the Congress in the spring as a supplement to the regular Budget.

repairs and improvements of existing facilities under their jurisdiction necessary to such care and treatment; for expenses incidental to the maintenance and operation of farms; for recreational articles and facilities at institutions maintained by the Veterans Administration; for administrative expenses incidental to securing employment for war veterans; for funeral, burial, and other expenses incidental thereto for beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration accruing during the year for which this appropriation is made or prior fiscal years: Provided further, That the appropriations herein made for the care and maintenance of veterans in hospitals or homes under the jurisdiction of the Veterans Administration shall be available for the purchase of tobacco to be furnished, subject to such regulations as the Administrator of Veterans Affairs shall prescribe, to veterans receiving hospital treatment or domiciliary care in Veterans Administration hospitals or homes: Provided further, That this appropriation shall be available for continuing aid to State or Territorial homes for the support of disabled volunteer soldiers and sailors, in conformity with the Act approved August 27, 1888 (24 U. S. C. 134), as amended, for those veterans eligible for admission to Veterans Administration facilities for hospital or domiciliary care: Provided further, That the Administrator is hereby authorized to employ medical consultants for duty on such terms as he may deem advisable and without regard to the civil-service and classification laws: Provided further, That this appropriation shall be available for the purchase directly from sources authorized by the common carriers of printed reduced fare requests for use by veterans when traveling at their own expense from or to Veterans Administration facilities: Provided further, That notwithstanding any limitation in this Act, this appropriation shall be available for the purchase of legal newspapers in an amount not exceeding $200 and for the purchase of other newspapers and periodicals in an amount not exceeding $2,500: Provided further, That not to exceed [$50,000] $120,200 of this appropriation shall be available for the preparation, shipment, installation, and display of exhibits, photographic displays, moving pictures, and other visual educational information and descriptive material, including the purchase or rental of equipment: Provided further, That this appropriation shall be available for the payment of rewards, subject to such regulations as the Administrator of Veterans Affairs shall prescribe, to officers and employees of the Veterans Administration in addition to their usual compensation, for suggestions resulting in efficiency or economy in the operation or administration of the Veterans Administration.

No part of this appropriation shall be expended for the purchase of any site for or toward the construction of any new hospital or home, or for the purchase of any hospital or home; and not more than [$3,650,000] $4,816,500 of this appropriation may be used to repair, alter, improve, or provide facilities in the several hospitals and homes under the jurisdiction of the Veterans Administration either by contract or by the hire of temporary employees and the purchase of materials.

[Administrative, medical, hospital, and domiciliary services: The limitation under "Administration, medical, hospital, and domiciliary services", Veterans' Administration, in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946, on the amount which may be expended to repair, alter, improve, or provide facilities in the several hospitals and homes, is hereby increased from $3,650,000 to $5,000,000; the limitation under the above appropriation upon the number of passenger-carrying vehicles which may be purchased during the fiscal year 1946 is hereby increased from "fifty-five" to "two hundred and eighty-four"; the limitation under the above appropriation upon the amount which may be available for the preparation, shipment, installation, and display of exhibits, photographic displays, moving pictures, and other visual educational information and descriptive material is hereby increased from "$50,000" to "$99,500"; and notwithstanding the provisions of section 106 of the above Act, the appropriation shall be available for the purchase of newspapers (other than legal) and periodicals in an amount not exceeding $975. Subparagraph (c) of section 201 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946, is hereby amended by striking therefrom the words following the words "Veterans' Administration" and substituting in lieu thereof the following words and figures, "the amount available for such purpose shall be $10,000"; and the immediately succeeding additional appropriation for the construction of hospitals and domiciliary facilities, shall be merged with the existing appropriation for the construction of such facilities and remain available until expended.] *(5 U. (b) Appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments for the fiscal year [1946] 1947 available for the transportation of things shall be available, in accordance with the Act of October 10, 1940 (5 U. S. C. 73c–1), for expenses incurred in the transfer of household goods and effects of civilian officers and employees of such departments and establishments when transferred from one official station to another for permanent duty.

(c) Appropriations contained in this Act, available for expenses of travel shall be available, when specifically authorized by the head of the activity or establishment concerned, for expenses of attendance at meetings of organizations concerned with the function or activity for which the appropriation concerned is made[: Provided, That there shall be available for such purpose during the fiscal year 1946 to each such agency or establishment not to exceed 50 per centum of the amount authorized for the same purpose for each such agency or establishment for the fiscal year 1945, except that in the case of the Veterans Administration the amount available for such purpose shall not exceed 75 per centum of the amount authorized for the fiscal year 1945].

(d) Appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments for the fiscal year [1946] 1947 available for expenses of travel shall be available for the payment of travel expenses while away from their homes or regular place of business, including per diem in lieu of subsistence at place of employment, in accordance with the Standardized Government Travel Regulations, the Subsistence Expense Act of 1926, as amended (5 U. S. C., ch. 16), and the Act of February 14, 1931, as amended (5 U. S. C. 73a), of (1) persons employed intermittently as consultants or experts and receiving compensation on a per diem when-actually-employed basis, and (2) persons serving in an advisory capacity or employed without compensation or at $1 per annum; except that in case of (2) above there may be allowed not to exceed $10 per diem in lieu of subsistence en route and at place of service or employment, unless a higher rate is specifically provided by law.

SEC. 202. Unless otherwise specifically provided, no appropriation available for the executive departments and independent establishments for the fiscal year [1946] 1947 in this Act or any other Act, shall be expended—

(a) To purchase any motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicle (exclusive of busses, ambulances, and station wagons), at a cost, completely equipped for operation, and including the value of any vehicle exchanged, in excess of [such amount as the Secretary of War, in the case of the War Department, the Secretary of the Navy, in the case of the Navy Department, the Commissioners, in the case of the government of the District of Columbia, and the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, in the case of other essential governmental needs, may determine necessary to obtain satisfactory motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles, but in no event shall the price so paid for any such vehicle exceed] the maximum price therefor established by the Office of Price Administration and in no event more than [$1,500] $1,050, which amount shall be in addition to the amount required for transportation.

(b) For the maintenance, operation, and repair of any Government-owned motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicle not used exclusively for official purposes; and "official purposes" shall not include the transportation of officers and employees between their domiciles and places of employment, except in case of medical officers on out-patient medical services and except in cases of officers and employees engaged in field work the character of whose duties makes such transportation necessary and then only as to such latter cases when the same is approved by the head of the department or establishment concerned. Any officer or employee of the Government who uses or authorizes the use of any Government-owned motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicle, or of any motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicle leased by the Government, for other than official purposes or otherwise violates the provisions of this subsection shall be summarily removed from office by the head of the department or establishment concerned. The limitations of this subsection (b) shall not apply to any motor vehicles for official use of the President, the heads of the executive departments, Ambassadors, Ministers, chargés d'affaires, and other principal diplomatic and consular officials.

SEC. 203. Excepting appropriations for the Military and Naval Establishments, no appropriation for the fiscal year [1946] 1947 in this or any other Act shall be available for the purchase, maintenance, or operation of any aircraft unless specific authority for the purchase, maintenance, or operation thereof has been or is provided in such appropriation, and the acquisition of aircraft by any agency by transfer from another agency of the Government shall be considered as a purchase within the meaning hereof.

SEC. 204. In purchasing motor-propelled or animal-drawn vehicles or tractors, or road, agricultural, manufacturing, or laboratory equipment, or boats, or parts, accessories, tires, or equipment thereof, the head of any executive department or independent establishment or his duly authorized representative may exchange or sell similar items and apply the exchange allowances or proceeds of sales in such cases in whole or in part payment therefor: Provided, That any transaction carried out under the authority of this section shall be evidenced in writing.

SEC. 205. Section 3709, Revised Statutes (41 U. S. C. 5), shall not apply to any purchase by or service rendered to any executive department or independent establishment during the fiscal year [1946] 1947 when the aggregate amount involved does not exceed $100, but this section shall not be construed as affecting any provision of law authorizing purchases or services without regard to said section 3709 in amounts greater than $100.

SEC. 206. Unless otherwise specified and until July 1, [1946] 1947, no part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act shall be used to pay the compensation of any officer or employee of the Government of the United States (including any agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the Government of the United States) whose post of duty is in continental United States unless such person (1) is a citizen of the United States, (2) is a person in the service of the United States on the date of enactment of this Act who, being eligible for citizenship, had filed a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States prior to such date, or (3) is a person who owes allegiance to the United States: Provided, That for the purpose of this section, an affidavit signed by any such person shall be considered prima facie evidence that the requirements of this section with respect to his status have been complied with: Provided further, That any person making a false affidavit shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law: Provided further, That any payment made to any officer or employee contrary to the provisions of this section shall be recoverable in action by the Federal Government. This section shall not apply to citizens of the Commonwealth of the Philippines or to nationals of those countries allied with the United States in the prosecution of the war.

SEC. 207. Appropriations for the executive departments and independent establishments for the fiscal year [1946] 1947 available for travel expenses shall be available for the payment of per diem allowances in lieu of subsistence expenses without regard to the Subsistence Expense Act of 1926, as amended (5 U. S. C. 821–833), to civilian officers and employees of such departments and establishments while traveling on official business outside the continental limits of the United States and away from their designated posts of duty: Provided, That the amount of such allowances shall be determined by the head of the department or independent establishment concerned or by such official as he may designate for the purpose, but shall in no case, notwithstanding any other provision of law, exceed the maximum established by regulations prescribed by the President for the locality in which the travel is performed: Provided further, That the availability of appropriations of the War and Navy Departments with respect to the foregoing shall not be restricted thereby.

SEC. 208. The provision of law prescribing the use of vessels of United States registry by employees of the Government traveling overseas (46 U. S. C. 1241) shall not apply to such travel during the fiscal year [1946] 1947.

[SEC. 209. Appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments for the fiscal year 1946 shall be available for reimbursement at not to exceed 5 cents per mile to personnel serving without compensation from the United States for expenses of travel performed by them in privately owned automobiles away from their designated posts of duty.]

SEC. [210] 209. Appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments for the fiscal year [1946] 1947, available for expenses of travel are hereby made available (1) for allowances for living and quarters in accordance with Standardized Regulations prescribed by the President for civilian officers and employees of the Government temporarily stationed in foreign countries, (2) for living quarters allowances in accordance with the Act of June 26, 1930 (5 U. S. C. 118a), and regulations prescribed thereunder, and (3) cost of living allowances in accordance with the Act of February 23, 1931, as amended (22 U. S. C. 12), and regulations prescribed thereunder, for all civilian officers and employees of the Government permanently stationed in foreign countries: Provided, That the availability of appropriations of the Departments of War and Navy and of the Department of State under the caption "Foreign Service" shall not be affected hereby.

SEC. [211] 210. No part of any appropriation for the fiscal year [1946] 1947 contained in this or any other Act shall be paid to any person for the filling of any position for which he or she has been nominated after the Senate has voted not to approve of the nomination of said person.

SEC. [212] 211. The funds appropriated in the appropriation Acts for the fiscal year [1946] 1947 of the services mentioned in the title of the Act of June 16, 1942 ([Public Law 607, Seventy-seventh Congress] 56 Stat. 359), shall be available for, and the heads of the executive departments concerned are authorized to prescribe, per diem rates of allowance, at rates not to exceed $7 per day, in lieu of subsistence to officers traveling on official business and away from their designated posts of duty, including such per diem allowances for travel without regard to repeated travel between two or more places in the same vicinity, and to members of the services concerned (including officers, warrant officers, contract surgeons, enlisted personnel, aviation cadets, and members of the Nurse Corps) when traveling by air under competent orders and on duty without troops; and for the payment in advance, or otherwise, of money allowances in lieu of transportation, at the rate of 3 cents per mile to enlisted men, regardless of the mode of travel.

SEC. [213] 212. No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act shall be used to pay in excess of $2 per volume for the current and future volumes of the United States Code Annotated or in excess of $3.25 per volume for the current or future volumes of the Lifetime Federal Digest.

[SEC. 214. Hereafter appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments of the Government shall be available for the expenses of committees, boards, or other interagency groups engaged in authorized activities of common interest to such departments and establishments and composed in whole or in part of representatives thereof who receive no additional compensation by virtue of such membership: Provided, That employees of such departments and establishments rendering service for such committees, boards, or other groups, other than as representatives, shall receive no additional compensation by virtue of such service.]

SEC. [215] 213. In order to enable persons who have served ninety days or more in the land or naval forces during the present war, and who have satisfactorily completed their period of active military or naval service, to obtain materials required for the construction, alteration, or repair of dwelling houses to be occupied by them, any department or agency of the Government, in allocating or granting priorities with respect to any materials, shall give to such persons a preference over all other users of such materials (except to the extent such materials are needed by such other users to meet actual military needs), without requiring any showing of hardship or other necessity for the construction, alteration, or repair of such dwelling houses.

ESTIMATES OF APPROPRIATION

NOTE.—The Government Corporation Control Act, Public Law 248, approved December 6, 1945, requires each wholly owned Government corporation to submit annually to the President for transmittal to the Congress a budget program or plan of operations. Because of the lateness of the passage of the act, the 1947 budget programs of the corporations will be submitted to the Congress in the spring as a supplement to the regular Budget.

Summary of estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1947, compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1946

[The 1947 Budget estimates make specific provision for additional costs made necessary by pay legislation enacted near the close of the fiscal year 1945. The 1946 appropriations did not make specific provision for any such costs and thus the appropriations shown below are not comparable with the 1947 estimates to whatever extent deficiency appropriations may be necessary to meet these added costs]

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

American Printing House for the Blind

The amount recommended for this institution located at Louisville, Kentucky, has been appropriated annually since 1937. This entire amount is used for the manufacture of braille books, phonograph records, and braille typewriters for free distribution to schools for the blind throughout the country. Financing of additional material produced for the blind is provided for by sales.

Columbia Institution for the Deaf

This institution provides instruction for deaf persons below the college level at Kendall School and in college subjects at Gallaudet College. The District of Columbia contributes to Kendall School for the education of students who are legal residents. Congress provides free scholarships to Gallaudet College for qualified students from the States and Territories. The 1947 estimate includes a small additional amount for increased personnel, repairs, alterations, heating equipment, and plans and specifications for building construction.

Food and Drug Administration

Needed increase in this regulatory activity was deferred during the war. The increase for enforcement activities in 1947 is needed not only to pick up this deferred expansion but to cope with many aggravated problems that have developed in the interim, such as deterioration in standards under wartime conditions and revival of imports. The appropriation for certification service is a new appropriation covering certification of penicillin in connection with recently enacted legislation. The certification of insulin and of coal tar colors, previously carried on under the enforcement operations appropriation, will now be financed under the certification appropriation. The entire appropriation for certification services will be covered by fees.

Freedmen's Hospital

This hospital renders medical and hospital care to Negroes, drawing its patients principally from the District of Columbia and adjacent counties in Virginia and Maryland. It consists of a general medical and surgical unit of 402 beds (including 54 bassinets), a tuberculosis unit of 150 beds, and an out-patient department. The hospital is approved by the American College of Surgeons as meeting unconditionally its minimum standards, has a fully accredited school of nursing, and is approved by the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association for the training of interns and for residencies or fellowships. Freedmen's Hospital also is affiliated with the Howard University School of Medicine and serves as a teaching center for the medical students, in exchange for which the university provides medical and teaching staff for the hospital. The hospital derives funds from Federal appropriation and from direct payment by patients. The Federal Government is reimbursed by the District of Columbia for the care of indigent legal residents of the District. In 1947, the Government's net share in the cost of operation will be approximately 35 percent. The decrease of approximately 10 percent in the Government's share of the cost is due principally to completion of all items currently contemplated in connection with the program to rehabilitate the physical plant. A revised schedule of charges against pay patients, based on the cost of service rendered, is expected to increase revenues from this source. The increase in the amount of the Federal appropriation estimate for 1947 is to meet increased costs resulting from basic pay increases for employees. The estimates for the hospital are based on 85 percent utilization of the general hospital and 90 percent utilization of the tuberculosis annex.

Howard University

Howard University is an institution of higher education which receives funds from the Federal Government for partial support of the maintenance and operation of undergraduate, graduate, and specialized training. Due to the rapid increase in the enrollment of the university, additional amounts are recommended for 1947 for personnel, repairs, alterations, and library books. An amount of $154,800 is recommended for planning for several building projects and $3,017,000 for the construction of four new buildings.

Office of Education

The Office of Education was created in 1867 to (1) collect and publish statistics and facts to show the condition and progress of education in the States and Territories, (2) circulate information regarding the organization and management of schools and the methods of teaching to aid in the maintenance of efficient State school systems, and (3) promote education. In addition, this Office administers grants for vocational education.

The first Federal statutes relating to land-grant colleges were enacted in 1862, and since 1890 the Federal Government has made appropriations for the support of these institutions in order to encourage work in the fields of agriculture, engineering and technology, and home economics. In addition to these grants to colleges, the Office administers Federal grants to the States for the promotion and support of vocational schools and classes for instruction in agriculture, trades and industry, distributive occupations, and home economics.

In the Budget for 1946 an amount of $26,365,000 is allowed for grants for the development of vocational education and the endowment of colleges for agriculture and the mechanic arts. $9,550,000 of the amount provided for these purposes is for permanent appropriations. A substantial increase is recommended in the salaries and expenses appropriation for expanding and strengthening the regular Office of Education for the purpose of giving proper emphasis to all the various aspects of education.

Public Health Service

The programs of the Public Health Service may be grouped under major categories, as follows: General Public Health Activities (largely in cooperation with the States), Hospitals and Medical Care, Foreign Quarantine Activities, Research, Regulatory Work, Education and Training, and International Health Relations.

GENERAL PUBLIC HEALTH ACTIVITIES

These activities include a general program of assistance to States in expanding and improving throughout the Nation the various health services provided for through State and local health offices. They also include programs directed against specific diseases, which now include venereal diseases, tuberculosis, malaria, typhus, plague, dengue fever, and poliomyelitis.

In line with the enactment of the Public Health Service Act (42 U. S. C., ch. 6A) increasing the authorization of appropriations for general assistance to States, the estimate for this purpose for 1947 is $19,420,000. This includes grants of $18,000,000 and additional amounts for consultative services, demonstrations, industrial hygiene services, training, and administration. The wartime appropriation for assistance to States in health and sanitation activities in war areas is discontinued in 1947.

Of the programs directed against specific diseases, the appropriations for control of venereal disease, tuberculosis, and communicable disease are mainly comprehensive control programs. The estimate for control of venereal diseases, amounting to $16,628,000, includes a substantial amount for grants to States and also includes continued operation of 54 rapid treatment centers. This part of the control program was inaugurated as a wartime measure and is continued as a part of the permanent control program. The program for control of tuberculosis is expanded to a total of $7,994,000, including $6,880,000 for grants to States and the remainder for administration, consultative services to the States, field studies, and radiology. The program for control of malaria and diseases of tropical origin, provided for in 1947 under the appropriation "Control of Communicable Diseases," is a directly operated control program in endemic areas. The special wartime appropriation for this activity in war areas has been discontinued. Activities under this same appropriation directed toward typhus, plague, poliomyelitis, diarrheal diseases, and dengue fever are less comprehensive in character and consist largely of demonstrations, field studies, consultative services to States, education, and training. Interstate quarantine activities included under this appropriation have been increased to $80,000 in 1947.

The estimate for "Development of Health Facilities" approximately doubles the amount available in 1946 for cooperation with the States in the planning of a comprehensive program of construction of hospitals and health centers and of sanitation facilities, and for consultative services to the States on development and management of health facilities.

Health and sanitation activities of the Public Health Service also include inspectional, promotional, and survey work by the Sanitary Engineering Division under the appropriation for "Salaries and miscellaneous expenses."

HOSPITALS AND MEDICAL CARE

Marine hospitals, relief stations, and services to Coast Guard. Marine hospitals and relief stations, operated by the Hospital Division, render medical, dental, and hospital care to beneficiaries of the Public Health Service as prescribed by law. Principal beneficiaries are merchant seamen and members of the United States Coast Guard. In 1947 it is anticipated that the hospital patient load and out-patient services will decrease approximately 8 percent, due principally to reduction in the size of the Coast Guard. A sanatorium is also operated for the care of leprous persons. Hospital Division personnel furnish miscellaneous services to other Federal agencies, such as physical examinations of Civil Service recruits and services in connection with the establishment and operation of Federal employee health programs.

Narcotic Hospitals. The Division of Mental Hygiene operates two hospitals providing care for drug addicts and other mental patients. This division also conducts research into the nature and treatment of drug addiction and other psychotic conditions and provides clinical psychiatric services to the Juvenile Court, District of Columbia. Wartime conditions brought a sharp decline in drug addict patients and these hospitals were authorized to provide care for the overflow of mental patients from Saint Elizabeths Hospital. Navy mental patients are beneficiaries of Saint Elizabeths Hospital and have been cared for in these hospitals on a reimbursable basis. The 1947 Budget envisions a change in the composition, as well as a reduction, in the patient load. It is anticipated that there will be an upward trend in drug addiction and addict patients. A decline in other mental patients will result from reductions in the size of the Navy and administrative plans calling for the transfer of patients having veterans status to Veterans Administration hospitals.

Beginning July 1, 1945, activities of the Hospital and Mental Hygiene Divisions have been financed under the appropriation, "Hospitals and medical care, Public Health Service." The 1947 Budget provides increases to compensate for reductions in reimbursements; employee base pay increases; and the strengthening of management and budgetary procedures in the Hospital Division. These increases are partially offset by reductions in patient load.

FOREIGN QUARANTINE ACTIVITIES

The Foreign Quarantine Service is responsible for preventing the introduction of dangerous quarantinable diseases, such as anthrax, cholera, leprosy, plague, psittacosis, smallpox, typhus, and yellow fever, into the United States. The workload of the Foreign Quarantine Service is expected to increase and the estimate for 1947 reflects this need as well as the need for replacement of services rendered during the war by Coast Guard personnel and restoration of services in foreign ports which were discontinued during the war.

RESEARCH

Research activities are carried on mainly at the National Institute of Health and the National Cancer Institute at Bethesda, Md., at the Rocky Mountain laboratory at Hamilton, Mont., and at smaller laboratories in various locations. Provision for research is made mainly in the appropriations for the National Institute of Health and the National Cancer Institute, with some additional sums being provided under Control of Venereal Disease, Tuberculosis, and other appropriations. Estimates for research are materially increased in 1947. In the estimate for the National Institute of Health, an item of $1,734,000 is provided in 1947 for grants-in-aid for research. This is an extension of the research in the medical field inaugurated during the war through the Office of Scientific Research and Development. Also, in the appropriation for the National Cancer Institute, a substantial increase to $500,000 has been provided for grants-in-aid for extended research in this field. In connection with research activities, the Public Health Service engages in the manufacture of vaccine for certain diseases, particularly yellow fever, typhus, and Rocky Mountain spotted fever. The volume of this production will decline in 1947 and facilities so released will be reconverted to other fields of research.

REGULATORY WORK

The enforcement of the former Biologics Control Act, now incorporated as part F, title III, of the Public Health Service Act (42 U. S. C. 262, 263) involves control of the manufacture and sale of viruses, serums, toxins, and similar products, and is part of the activities of the National Institute of Health. No change is contemplated in 1947.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

Health education is principally provided for in the appropriation for "Salaries and miscellaneous expenses" under the Division of Public Health Methods but is also reflected in various operating programs of the Public Health Service as well as in expenditures by the States under grants-in-aid. Training of personnel for State and local health work is provided under the appropriation for "Assistance to States, general." Training of specialists is included in various appropriations, including those for venereal disease control, tuberculosis control, control of communicable diseases, and the National Cancer Institute. Provision is made in the 1947 estimates for the National Institute of Health and the National Cancer Institute for increased utilization of fellowships as a training device. In addition to the expenditure for training directly by the Public Health Service, it is expected that well over $500,000 of grant-in-aid money will be spent by the States for training of personnel.

Under authority of Public Law 74, as amended, an appropriation is made for the training of nurses to ensure an adequate supply for the armed forces, governmental and civilian hospitals, health agencies, and war industries. The program authorized makes provision for tuition, books, uniforms, maintenance allowances for new enrollees for the first nine months, and stipends to students enrolled in approved schools of nursing and who have joined the United States Cadet Nurse Corps.

Upon determination that an adequate supply of nurses was ensured by the number of graduates and present enrollees under the program, $15,557,000 was rescinded from the appropriation for fiscal year 1946 and recruitment of new students terminated on October 15, 1945.

The 1947 Budget provides for the continuance in training of an estimated 103,000 student nurses remaining in the program on July 1, 1946. About 36,000 of these students will graduate in fiscal year 1947. The balance remaining in the program will graduate in fiscal year 1948 and in the first half of fiscal year 1949.

INTERNATIONAL HEALTH RELATIONS

The estimate for an Office of International Health Relations provides for continuation of the cooperative health program in Liberia inaugurated during the war under the appropriation for "Health and sanitation activities, war and defense areas (national defense)" and for a small unit to carry on the responsibilities of the Public Health Service in international health relations.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital

This Government-operated institution renders medical and hospital care to mental patients. The hospital is reimbursed for patients received from the District of Columbia, the Veterans Administration, the Indian Service, and the United States Soldiers' Home. Direct beneficiaries, for whom no reimbursement is received, are principally patients from the armed forces, Federal criminals, American citizens adjudged insane in Canada, residents of the Virgin Islands, and foreign service officers and employees. The total patient load at Saint Elizabeths Hospital itself, estimated at 5,935 average patients per day for the fiscal year 1947, represents a decrease of approximately 16 percent when compared with the estimated load for fiscal year 1946. This reduction results from the adoption of a policy that active duty Navy patients will no longer be hospitalized in Saint Elizabeths Hospital. The Veterans Administration plans to transfer to veterans hospitals by June 30, 1946, patients at the hospital who are former members of the armed services and eligible for care at veterans hospitals.

On the average, an excess of approximately 773 patients per day will be cared for at the narcotic hospitals of the Public Health Service under authority of Executive Order 9012. This estimated load of 773 patients per day also anticipates a marked decline in these patients at these institutions as a result of rapid demobilization of the Navy.

The estimate for 1947 provides for the cost of hospitalization of all patients, whether at Saint Elizabeths Hospital or the narcotic hospitals of the Public Health Service under authority of Executive Order 9012.

Social Security Board

In accordance with the provisions of the Social Security Act, the Board is responsible for administering the several programs which provide protection to the individual against economic insecurity. These programs are carried out through the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance for the federally operated old-age and survivors insurance system and through the Bureaus of Employment Security and Public Assistance for the federally assisted State operation of unemployment compensation and public assistance. In addition to these major bureaus, the Board's consolidated operations include the immediate Offices of the Board, Central Administrative Services under the Office of the Executive Director, the Office of the Actuary, the Office of the Appeals Council, the Bureau of Accounts and Audits, the Bureau of Research and Statistics, the Informational Service, and 11 regional and 2 territorial offices. Representatives of the several bureaus are located in these offices so that effective service may be given to the State agencies in each region and for the supervision of over 400 old-age and survivors insurance field offices.

Sharp increases in the load of old-age and survivors claims, unemployment compensation claims, and in numbers of recipients of public assistance are being felt during the fiscal year 1946 following the surrender of Japan. These increases are expected to continue in fiscal year 1947.

CONSOLIDATED OPERATIONS AND MISCELLANEOUS EXPENSES

In addition to an increase in the single appropriation for miscellaneous expenses covering the entire Board commensurate with increase in program requirements, increases in salaries for the consolidated operations of the Board provide principally for additional staff in regional offices, central administrative services, research and statistics, and accounts and audits.

BUREAU OF OLD-AGE AND SURVIVORS INSURANCE

This Bureau carries out a program of social insurance designed to provide some replacement for lost earning power to aged workers who retire and to survivors of workers who die.

Its principal activities are (1) the recording of earnings of workers covered under the system, which earnings are subsequently used in determining the benefits to be paid; (2) development, adjudication, and payment of claims for benefits; and (3) the recertification of monthly payments to beneficiaries and the continuous maintenance of beneficiary rolls.

The number of persons receiving benefits under the insurance system grows larger each year and will continue to grow annually until the program reaches full maturity.

The number of workers qualifying for retirement increased rapidly during the war because of tremendous increases in employment opportunities for all classes and ages of workers. Many aged workers or survivors of deceased workers who otherwise might have filed for benefits have continued, for patriotic or economic reasons, in employment. More than three-quarters of a million aged workers otherwise entitled to benefits have not yet filed for such benefits. During 1947 it is anticipated that workers who have deferred their retirement will retire in increasing numbers because of superannuation or lack of available or suitable employment opportunities. Already a number of these workers are filing claims for benefits; during 1946 and 1947 claim workloads will increase to abnormally high levels. Benefit rolls likewise will increase more rapidly than in recent years.

Because the increased workload of the Bureau due to the heavy volume of retirements has necessitated a supplemental appropriation of $1,766,625 for fiscal year 1946, the full effect of increased retirements is not reflected in a comparison between the 1947 Budget estimate and the 1946 appropriation.

BUREAU OF EMPLOYMENT SECURITY

The Bureau of Employment Security is that part of the Social Security Board responsible for administering title III of the Social Security Act, which provides for "Grants to States for unemployment compensation administration," and for discharging the Board's responsibility under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act of the Internal Revenue Code. Unemployment compensation is a system of payments for specified periods of time to unemployed workers who are eligible to receive benefits. The unemployment compensation program operates under State laws and through State administrative systems which vary in detail but meet minimum standards established by the Social Security Act. Benefits are paid from the proceeds of pay roll taxes collected by the States, deposited to their separate accounts in the special unemployment trust fund maintained in the United States Treasury, and withdrawn as needed. Administrative costs of the State systems are financed by Federal grants.

Prior to September 17, 1942, the functions of the United States Employment Service, now in the Department of Labor, were performed by the Bureau of Employment Security. The State employment services and the State employment security agencies continue to perform services for each other, which are compensated for by the transfer of funds. A net transfer to the unemployment compensation program of approximately $3,200,000 is estimated for the fiscal year 1947.

Claims for unemployment compensation increased sharply after the surrender of Japan, and the estimate for administrative grants for fiscal year 1947 reflects the increased administrative costs resulting from the dislocation of workers during the readjustment to the peacetime economic structure. Appropriations for grants to States of $57,042,000 have been approved for 1946. It is estimated that $48,045,000 will be required to finance the administrative costs of the unemployment compensation programs in 1947.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

Under titles I, IV, and X of the Social Security Act, Federal grants are made to States for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, and aid to the blind. Within limitations established under the Social Security Act and on the basis of plans approved by the Social Security Board, the Federal Government matches payments made by the States to needy individuals falling within these categories and pays part of the cost of administration of these programs. During the war period the trend in the number of recipients was generally downward. Beginning in the fiscal year 1946, however, the trend has been reversed and a continued rise is anticipated through the fiscal year 1947. The average amount of payment to individual recipients continues to rise. Owing to higher requirements to meet minimum need and to increased availability of States' funds, payments in some States have advanced to the point where, under the limitation of amount that may be matched, the Federal Government is contributing less than 50 percent. This is particularly characteristic of the program for aid to dependent children. The increase in the appropriation for grants in 1947 follows the indicated trend of required payments. The increase provided for salaries of the Bureau of Public Assistance will furnish additional staff to improve the quality as well as to increase the quantity of review of State operations, consultative services to States, and research.

OFFICE OF VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION

The Office of Vocational Rehabilitation was established in the Office of the Administrator on September 8, 1943, to carry out an expanded program of vocational rehabilitation authorized by the Vocational Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1943. This legislation provides for the promotion of vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry or otherwise and their return to civil employment. Payments are made to State agencies in accordance with plans approved by the Administrator to provide any service necessary to render a disabled individual fit to engage in remunerative employment.

OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR

The regular salary appropriations for this Office provide for the immediate Office of the Administrator, the Office of the General Counsel, and the Personnel Management and Service Operations Divisions. A small miscellaneous expense appropriation covers the requirements of the above offices and divisions.

Central appropriations for travel, printing and binding, and penalty mail to provide for the constituent units of the Agency are made to the Office. These estimates for 1947 are commensurate with program changes.

Apart from funds necessary to meet increased base pay costs, an increase in the estimate for the Office of the Administrator is provided to permit the establishment of a staff of technical experts in the fields of public finance, social science research, child welfare and family economics. For servicing the constituent units of the Agency, increases in estimates are likewise provided in the Office of the General Counsel, the Personnel Management Division, and Service Operations Division to meet the increased program and workload requirements of the constituent units, particularly the Public Health Service, the Food and Drug Administration, and the Social Security Board.

No estimate for the Office of Community War Services or for Temporary Aid for Enemy Aliens is provided for 1947 since these were war-related activities.

On September 19, 1945, the Procurement and Assignment Service was transferred by Executive Order 9717 from the War Manpower Commission to the Office of the Administrator, Federal Security Agency. Because of the limited time available after the transfer for the presentation of estimates of appropriation for this Agency, none is included in this document, but will be submitted as an amendment to the Budget at a later date.

Coal-Tar Colors Certification Fees, Food and Drug Administration—

Under authority of section 706 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of June 25, 1938 (21 U. S. C. 376), the Federal Security Administrator provides for the listing and certification of coal-tar colors upon the application and payment of fees by manufacturers. Such fees are to be in an amount necessary to provide, maintain, and equip an adequate service for such purpose. This service is supported by the appropriation for Salaries and expenses, Food and Drug Administration, Federal Security Agency. Fees are paid in advance and are either immediately deposited into the Treasury or to a special trust account for future transfer, if earned, to general funds of the Treasury, or, if unearned, are appropriated and made available for refund. Revenues on deposit in the special trust account are for refund or transfer to general funds of the Treasury. (Decision of Comptroller General, No. A44002.)

Sea Food Inspections, Food and Drug Administration—

Under authority of "An Act to amend section 10A of the Federal Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, as amended", approved August 27, 1935 (21 U. S. C. 372a), the Federal Security Administrator provides inspection of sea food products upon the application of packers. This service is supported in part by the appropriation "Salaries, Sea Food Inspectors", Food and Drug Administration, and partly by fees charged the packers which are used to employ additional inspectors and for administrative equipment and maintenance costs necessary to provide an adequate and efficient inspection service. These unearned fees are covered into the Treasury as a special trust fund and are appropriated and made available for refunds.

Special account:

Operation of Commissaries, Division of Mental Hygiene, Public Health Service—

Operation of commissaries: The First Supplemental National Defense Appropriation Act, 1944 (Public Law 216), authorized the establishment of commissaries in the Public Health Service hospitals at Lexington, Ky., and Fort Worth, Tex., for the sale of miscellaneous articles and supplies to patients, the proceeds of such sales to be deposited in the Treasury in a special account which shall be available for expenditure for the replenishment of stock and the continued operation of the commissaries. Under this authorization receipts from sales are appropriated monthly to this account; thus the estimated or actual appropriations shown below represent the estimated or actual sales to patients.

If during the fiscal year [1945] 1946 or [1946] 1947 functions are transferred by the Federal Security Administrator from or between any of the said offices or bureaus, the Administrator may transfer from or between the appropriations herein made for salaries for the Social Security Board the amounts necessary for personal services in connection with the functions so transferred.

Not to exceed 5 per centum of any of the foregoing appropriations for salaries for the Social Security Board may, subject to the approval of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, be transferred by the Administrator to any other of such appropriations, but no appropriation may be increased more than 5 per centum thereby.

None of the moneys appropriated by this Act to the Social Security Board or to the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor for grants-in-aid of State agencies to cover, in whole or in part, the cost of operation of said agencies, including the salaries and expenses of officers and employees of said agencies, shall be withheld from the said agencies of any States which have established by legislative enactment and have in operation a merit system and classification and compensation plan covering the selection, tenure in office, and compensation of their employees, because of any disapproval of their personnel or the manner of their selection by the agencies of the said States, or the rates of pay of said officers or employees. Summary of estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1947, compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1946

[The 1947 Budget estimates make specific provision for additional costs made necessary by pay legislation enacted near the close of the fiscal year 1945. The 1946 appropriations did not make specific provision for any such costs and thus the appropriations shown below are not comparable with the 1947 estimates to whatever extent deficiency appropriations may be necessary to meet these added costs]

GENERAL STATEMENT

The Federal Works Agency deals with public works, not incidental to the normal work of other executive establishments, and administers Federal grants or loans to State and local governments or other agencies for the construction and planning of public works.

Under the general supervision and coordination of the Federal Works Administrator the Federal Works Agency handles public works through three constituent units, viz., Public Buildings Administration, Public Roads Administration, and Bureau of Community Facilities.

During the war, most of the normal peacetime programs and functions of the Agency have been held in abeyance. The estimates for the fiscal year 1947 reflect to a great extent the restoration of peacetime programs and activities.

OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR

The Office of the Administrator is responsible for the general supervision and coordination of the administration of all of the activities of the Agency. In addition to this general function, the final settlements of the affairs of the Public Works Administration and Work Projects Administration are handled in this Office.

In order to discharge these responsibilities, provision is made for technical representation at the staff level for each of the important administrative and program functions necessary to assist the Administrator in supervising and coordinating the work of the constituents and for the purpose of developing and establishing uniformity of policies and procedures throughout the Agency. The estimate for 1947 provides for the strengthening of the staff of this Office.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS ADMINISTRATION

This constituent unit performs functions related to Federal public buildings and sites in respect to construction; lease, purchase, and custody; planning and control of space; repair, preservation, maintenance, and management; communication services (for various Government agencies); and the administration of surplus real property.

During the period of national defense and continuing through the war emergency, construction and repair programs were limited to projects related to the war effort. Due to the surrender of Japan, this agency is terminating its war-related activities and is planning for the resumption of normal peacetime functions. Hearings were completed recently by the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds on H. R. 4276 which would authorize postwar building construction programs in and outside the District of Columbia. Provision for these programs is not included in this estimate.

The appropriation for general administrative expenses provides for administration of the functions summarized in the first paragraph. The increase in the estimate for 1947 provides principally for the salaries and expenses of additional personnel which will be required for supervising the expanded repair and preservation program described in the next paragraph.

The appropriation for repair, preservation, and equipment of public buildings outside the District of Columbia, involving some 5,000 buildings, provides for normal major items of alteration and repair necessary to keep buildings in usable and efficient operating condition and for accomplishing a portion of the extensive backlog of building maintenance which was deferred because of the war.

The appropriation for salaries and expenses for public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia provides for the administration, management, protection, maintenance, and improvement of public buildings and grounds in the District and the area adjacent thereto. The operation includes both Government-owned and leased buildings and provides for the administration and operation of communications facilities for the use of other Government activities. The estimate contemplates the management of 280 buildings involving approximately 46,500,000 square feet of space, a reduction of 2,000,000 square feet in leased space operated in 1946. This estimate includes provision for progressive renovation and modernization of public buildings in the District of Columbia.

The appropriation for salaries and expenses for public buildings and grounds outside the District of Columbia provides for the administration, management, operation, maintenance, and protection of public buildings and grounds outside the District. The operation includes both Government-owned and leased buildings and provides for the administration and operation of communications facilities and space and related services serving other governmental activities. The estimate contemplates the management of approximately 220 buildings outside the metropolitan area of Washington, involving 19,100,000 square feet of space.

PUBLIC ROADS ADMINISTRATION

This constituent unit performs functions related to cooperative work with State highway departments and other agencies in the development and supervision of construction of an improved system of highways. All of the estimates of appropriations for the highway programs supervised by the Public Roads Administration represent cash required to liquidate obligations incurred under the authority of previously approved contract authorizations.

The estimates of appropriation provide for the resumption of peacetime highway construction. During the war period only those projects which contributed to the support of the war effort were approved for construction. War restrictions and limitations further curtailed normal reconstruction and maintenance work usually carried on by the State highway departments so that an expanded highway program is necessary to restore the highway systems that have deteriorated during the war and to resume new construction.

There is included in the regular estimates of appropriation for the first time an estimate for Federal-aid postwar highways authorized in the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1944. The apportionment of the first postwar fiscal year authorization of $500,000,000 was made January 6, 1945. House Concurrent Resolution 81, approved by the Congress October 2, 1945, released the full amount of this authorization for construction and provided that for the purpose of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1944 the first postwar fiscal year shall be the fiscal year ending June 30, 1946. Programs under this authorization have been submitted providing for the improvement of 7,575 miles of highway. The estimate of $175,000,000 provides for the anticipated cash requirements for the fiscal year 1947.

The unobligated balances of regular Federal-aid highway and grade-crossing funds authorized before the war amount to $95,000,000. In addition to this amount available to the States for new projects, a total of approximately $30,000,000 has already been allotted to projects which were deferred during the war. The deferred projects provide for the improvement of 1,600 miles of highway, the construction of 45 highway-railway grade crossing separations, and the installation of protective devices at 50 crossings. The active regular Federal-aid program, which at this time represents only urgent improvements in the strategic network of highways, provides for the improvement of 1,400 miles of highway, the construction of 51 highway-railway grade separations, and the protection of 91 highway-railway crossings. An estimate of $108,000,000 is included in the budget to provide for the anticipated cash requirements for the fiscal year 1947.

The estimates of appropriations for Strategic Highway Network and Access Roads are for the purpose of paying the Federal share of the cost incurred by the States in the completion of the defense highway program authorized by the Defense Highway Act of 1941.

The Public Roads Administration is cooperating in the improvement of the Inter-American Highway from the southern border of Mexico to Panama City, a distance of 1,586 miles. About 450 miles of this section have been paved. Of the unpaved portion, about 800 miles are open to traffic the year round, about 160 miles are impassable in wet weather, and about 176 miles are impassable to traffic. During the past year steady progress has been made in grading sections that were either impassable or open only in dry weather, in widening narrow sections of otherwise suitable highway, in building bridges, and in making surveys for future work.

BUREAU OF COMMUNITY FACILITIES

This constituent unit, established by the Federal Works Administrator on January 1, 1945, administers programs assigned to the Agency in the field of public works which are not under the jurisdiction of the other two constituent units.

Since the establishment of this constituent unit, there have been assigned to it for administration and supervision the completion of the community facilities program, the execution of the public works advance planning program, and the program of public works in the Virgin Islands.

The estimate for Virgin Islands Public Works included in this budget provides for approximately a fifth of the $10,028,420 program previously authorized for this purpose.

Under the appropriations for salaries and expenses, public buildings and grounds in and outside the District of Columbia, per diem employees may be paid at rates approved by the Commissioner of Public Buildings, not exceeding current rates for similar services in the place where such services are employed, and such employees in emergencies may be entered on duty subject to confirmation by the Federal Works Administrator.

The appropriations for salaries and expenses, public buildings and grounds in and outside the District of Columbia, shall be available for communication services serving one or more governmental activities, and for services to motor vehicles, and where such services, together with quarters, maintenance or other services are furnished on a reimbursable basis to any governmental activity, such activity shall make payment therefor promptly by check upon the request of the Public Buildings Administration, either in advance or after the service has been furnished, for deposit to the credit of the applicable appropriation, of all or part of the estimated or actual cost thereof, as the case may be, proper adjustment upon the basis of actual cost to be made for services paid for in advance.

Construction Services, Public Buildings Administration, Federal Works Agency—

In the prosecution of construction projects or planning programs assigned to the Public Buildings Administration for which funds are provided by direct appropriation or transferred under authority contained in section 35 of the Act of June 15, 1938 (40 U. S. C. 265), an amount administratively determined as necessary for the payment of salaries and expenses of personnel engaged upon the preparation of plans and specifications, field supervision, and general office expense, may be transferred and consolidated on the books of the Treasury Department into a special account for direct expenditure in the prosecution of said work, such expenditures to be subsequently allocated and reported upon by projects in accordance with procedures prescribed by the General Accounting Office. (Act of May 3, 1945, Public Law 49.)

FEDERAL-AID HIGHWAY SYSTEM

Federal-Aid Highway System, Public Roads Administration—

For carrying out the provisions of "An Act to provide that the United States shall aid the States in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes", as amended (23 U. S. C. 1–117), to be expended in accordance with the provisions of said Act, as amended, including not to exceed [$1,133,300] $1,812,500 for departmental personal services in the District of Columbia, [$25,000,000] $55,000,000, to be immediately available and to remain available until expended, which sum is [a part] the remainder of the amount authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year 1943 by section 1 of the Act approved September 5, 1940 (Public Law 780): Provided, That none of the money herein appropriated shall be paid to any State on account of any project on which convict labor shall be employed, except this provision shall not apply to convict labor performed by convicts on parole or probation: Provided further, That, during the fiscal year [1946] 1947, whenever performing authorized engineering or other services in connection with the survey, construction, and maintenance, or improvement of roads for other Government and State cooperating agencies the charge for such services may include depreciation on engineering and road-building equipment used, and the amounts received on account of such charges shall be credited to the appropriation concerned: Provided further, That during the fiscal year [1946] 1947 the appropriations for the work of the Public Roads Administration shall be available for meeting the expenses of warehouse maintenance and the procurement, care, and handling of supplies, materials, and equipment stored therein for distribution to projects under the supervision of the Public Roads Administration, and for sale and distribution to other Government activities and State cooperating agencies, the cost of such supplies and materials or the value of such equipment (including the cost of transportation and handling) to be reimbursed to appropriations current at the time additional supplies, materials, or equipment are procured, from the appropriation chargeable with the cost or value of such supplies, materials, or equipment: Provided further, That the appropriations available to the Public Roads Administration may be used in emergency for medical supplies and services and other assistance necessary for the immediate relief of employees engaged on hazardous work under that Administration, and (not exceeding $15,000) for the temporary employment, by contract or otherwise, of technical consultants and experts without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, and civil-service and classification laws. (Act of May 3, 1945, Public Law 49.)

For all necessary expenses to enable the President to utilize the services of the Public Roads Administration in fulfilling the obligations of the United States under the Convention on the Pan-American Highway Between the United States and Other American Republics, signed at Buenos Aires, December 23, 1936, and proclaimed September 16, 1937 (51 Stat. 152), for the continuation of cooperation with several governments, members of the Pan American Union, in connection with the survey and construction of the Inter-American Highway as provided in public resolution, approved March 4, 1929 (Public Resolution 104), as amended or supplemented, and for performing engineering service in pan-American countries for and upon the request of any agency or governmental corporation of the United States, $100,000 to be derived from the administrative funds provided under the Act of July 11, 1916, as amended or supplemented (23 U. S. C. 21), or as otherwise provided. (Act of May 3, 1945, Public Law 49.)

ESTIMATES OF APPROPRIATION

NOTE.—The Government Corporation Control Act, Public Law 248, approved December 6, 1945, requires each wholly owned Government corporation to submit annually to the President for transmittal to the Congress a budget program or plan of operations. Because of the lateness of the passage of the act, the 1947 budget programs of the corporations will be submitted to the Congress in the spring as a supplement to the regular Budget.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Summary of estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1947, compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1946

[The 1947 Budget estimates make specific provision for additional costs made necessary by pay legislation enacted near the close of the fiscal year 1945. The 1946 appropriations did not make specific provision for any such costs and thus the appropriations shown below are not comparable with the 1947 estimates to whatever extent deficiency appropriations may be necessary to meet these added costs]

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

The Department of Agriculture is charged with the responsibility for carrying on activities and programs concerned with agricultural research, credit, production, processing, and distribution in the United States and its possessions, and for the relationship of such activities and programs to those of other countries.

The demand for farm products will continue to be strong during the coming fiscal year. Not only will domestic consumption be at a high level, particularly if we are successful in maintaining a high national income, but foreign needs will be large. It is currently estimated that from 8 to 10 percent of the total United States food production may be exported in the calendar year 1946.

The special services of the former War Food Administration have been either discontinued or reincorporated in the Department of Agriculture. The continuing activities have been realined chiefly along commodity lines in the new Production and Marketing Administration. The administrative services and programs now contemplated for 1947 are those which are essential for the maintenance of peacetime agricultural functions and the provision of an adequate supply of food and other agricultural commodities with a fair return to American farmers.

To carry out these objectives, appropriations aggregating $713.6 million from general and special accounts are recommended for fiscal year 1947, as compared to $717 million for 1946, exclusive of the calendar year appropriations for the farm labor supply program. An increase of $50 million in authority to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is recommended for self-liquidating loans.

ADMINISTRATION AND SERVICE

This classification includes the Office of the Secretary and the staff offices. These offices, which provide essential services for the entire Department, include the Office of the Solicitor, Information, Personnel, Budget and Finance, Plant and Operations, and the Library. Included also are the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the central economic research and statistical agency of the Department, and the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations.

Postwar readjustment problems, the restoration of certain peacetime activities, and increases in certain agricultural programs have imposed added burdens at this level, and in the field of foreign agricultural relations it is necessary to develop information to serve as a basis for working out our international policies and cooperation. Substantive increases for these purposes of $1 million have been recommended.

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH, DISEASE, AND INSECT CONTROL

Included under this classification are the constituent agencies of the Agricultural Research Administration, the research activities of the Forest Service and the Soil Conservation Service, and the white pine blister rust control program.

Recognition has been given to the general curtailment of peacetime research activities during the war period, and increases are recommended for 1947 to restore in whole or in part those peacetime research projects which are considered most vital to our future economy. Among the increases proposed are funds for investigations in antibiotics, intensification of work on corn borer, studies of virus diseases affecting stone and citrus fruits, restoration of research in floriculture and ornamental plants to a prewar level, research on ways and means of increasing the production of legume seeds, and the raising of grants to States to the authorized maximum for State experiment stations. Allowance for an agricultural research program for Alaska also is recommended.

Increases are recommended for certain disease- and insect-control programs, including the eradication of tuberculosis and Bang's disease in animals; eradication of white pine blister rust; and control of the pink bollworm and gypsy moth.

EXTENSION ACTIVITIES

Grouped under this head are the appropriations for (1) the activities of the Extension Service, including grants to States; (2) technical assistance to soil conservation districts; (3) farm forestry; and (4) the programs of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Budget estimates for the fiscal year 1947 reflect a net reduction of approximately $60 million, comprised principally of the elimination of the wartime flax production incentive project and other nonrecurring items and a decrease in the appropriation for the AAA conservation program, offset in part by an increase for Soil Conservation Service operations and an increase in grants to States for cooperative agricultural extension work. The decrease in Federal funds for the AAA conservation program is premised on progress being made in obtaining greater acceptance of soil conservation practices by farmers and an increased sharing by them in the costs of these practices, so that the over-all program may continue at or above the current level.

PRODUCTION AND MARKETING

An increase of $13.1 million is recommended for production and marketing activities, comprised of increases of $6.5 million for administration of the Sugar Act, $2.9 million for marketing services and regulatory work, and $3.7 million for exportation and domestic consumption of agricultural commodities. Funds are provided to continue meat inspection at about the present level.

Estimates for the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation will be presented to the Congress as amendments to the Budget for 1947 in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 248, Seventy-ninth Congress, approved December 6, 1945.

PUBLIC LAND AND FOREST MANAGEMENT

Under this head are grouped the activities and functions of the Forest Service (excluding research and farm forestry), Forest Roads and Trails, Land Utilization and Retirement of Submarginal Land, Water Conservation and Utilization projects, and Payments to States and school funds of certain percentages of receipts from national forest and land-utilization projects.

Budget estimates for 1947 provide for increased expenditures under this head for forest highway construction and road development which heretofore have been authorized. Provision has been made for renewal of the acquisition of lands for national forests, a program suspended during the war period. Increases also have been recommended for the protection and management of the national forests, the further development of land utilization projects, and for forest fire cooperation.

CREDIT ACTIVITIES

Under this category are included appropriation items and loan authorizations for the Farm Security Administration, Farm Credit Administration, Rural Electrification Administration, and water facilities and farmers' crop production loans.

Authorizations to borrow loan funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation have been increased from $317.5 million to $367.5 million, reflecting an increase of $50 million in loan funds for the Rural Electrification Administration and maintenance of the existing level for rehabilitation and farm tenancy loans administered by the Farm Security Administration. The appropriations recommended provide for continuance of water facilities and farmers' crop production loans at the same level as in 1946.

The estimate for administrative expenses of the Rural Electrification Administration has been increased to reflect the increased loan authorization and growing balance of loans outstanding. Provision has been made to carry on the programs of the Farm Security Administration and the Farm Credit Administration in 1947 at about the 1946 level.

An estimate for the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation will be presented to the Congress as an amendment to the Budget for 1947 in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 248, Seventy-ninth Congress, approved December 6, 1945.
