Permanent specific appropriation:

Cooperative Agricultural Extension Work—

For the purpose of paying the expenses of cooperative agricultural extension work and the necessary printing and distributing of information in connection with same, the Act of May 8, 1914 (7 U. S. C. 341–348), permanently appropriated $480,000 for each year, $10,000 of which is paid annually to each State which has by action of its legislature assented to the provisions of the Act. It also appropriated an additional sum of $600,000 for the fiscal year following that in which the foregoing appropriation first became available, and for each year thereafter for seven a sum exceeding by $500,000 the sum appropriated for each preceding year, and for each year thereafter there is permanently appropriated the sum of $4,100,000 in addition to the sum of $480,000. The additional sums are alloted annually to each State by the Secretary and paid in the proportion which the rural population of each State bears to the rural population of all the States as determined by the next preceding Federal census, but no payment out of the additional appropriations can be made in any year to any State until an equal sum has been appropriated for that year by the legislature of such State, or provided by State, county, college, local authority, or individual contributions from within the State, for the maintenance of cooperative agricultural extension work. On May 16, 1928 (7 U. S. C. 386–386b), this appropriation was amended to include a permanent allotment to the Territory of Hawaii of $10,000 plus an additional sum of $12,935.43, subject to the same terms and conditions as the original Act. The permanent annual appropriation was thereby increased to $4,602,935.43. Under the 1930 census the amount of money available to Hawaii increased by $3,160, thereby automatically raising the total amount available under the original Smith-Lever Act by this amount. Under the 1940 census the amount of money available to Hawaii decreased by $4,701, thereby automatically decreasing the total amount available under the original Smith-Lever Act by this amount. The Act of March 4, 1931 (7 U. S. C. 386d–386f), provides that the Smith-Lever Act and Acts supplementary thereto be increased without diminishing the amount now received by any State or other Territory, to carry out the provisions of this Act in the Territory of Puerto Rico, and specifies that the appropriation for 1933 and subsequent years shall be $50,000, this amount to be increased by $10,000 annually, or such part thereof as may be necessary, until the total to which Puerto Rico is entitled under the provisions of this Act is reached. The maximum for Puerto Rico under the 1930 census ($95,069) was reached during the fiscal year 1938. Under the 1940 census the amount of money available to Puerto Rico increased by $8,246, thereby automatically increasing the total amount available under the original Smith-Lever Act by this amount. The changes occasioned by the 1940 census result in bringing the total permanent annual appropriation to $4,704,710. (7 U. S. C. 341–348.)

Estimate 1947, $4,704,710 Appropriated 1946, $4,704,710

When any project is located in more than one county, the distributive share to each from the proceeds of the land is proportional to its area therein.

[Not] To enable the Secretary to further carry out the provisions of section 32, as amended, of the Act entitled "An Act to amend the Agricultural Adjustment Act, and for other purposes", approved August 24, 1935 (7 U. S. C. 612 (c)), and subject to all provisions of law relating to the expenditure of funds appropriated by such section 32, there is hereby reappropriated for the fiscal year 1947 the unobligated balances of the funds made available for the purposes of such section 32 for the fiscal years 1944, 1945, and 1946. Such sums shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, other appropriations made by or for the purposes of such section 32: Provided, That not exceeding $50,000,000 of the funds appropriated by and pursuant to such section 32[, as amended, of the Act of August 24, 1935 (7 U. S. C. 612 (c)),] may also be used during the current fiscal year to provide food for consumption by children in nonprofit schools of high-school grade or under and for child-care centers through (a) the purchase, processing, and exchange, and the distribution of agricultural commodities and products thereof; or (b) the making of payments to such schools and centers or agencies having control thereof in connection with the purchase and distribution of agricultural commodities in fresh or processed form and, when desirable, for the processing and exchange of such commodities and their products; or (c) by such other means as the Secretary may determine: Provided further, That funds made available hereunder for a school lunch program shall be apportioned for expenditure in the States, Territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia in accordance with school enrollment and need, as determined by the Secretary, except that if program participation in any State, Territory, possession, or the District of Columbia does not require all funds so apportioned, the Secretary may reapportion such excess funds to such other States, Territories, possessions, or the District of Columbia in consideration of need, as he may determine: Provided further, That benefits under (b) of this paragraph to schools or child-care centers or other sponsoring agencies shall in no case exceed the cost of the agricultural commodities or products thereof purchased by the school or child-care center or other sponsoring agencies as established by certificates executed by the authorized representative of the sponsoring agency: Provided further, That such sponsoring agency shall maintain accounts and records clearly establishing costs of agricultural commodities or products furnished in the program and that such accounts and records shall be available for audit by representatives of the Department [of Agriculture]: Provided further, That these funds may be used for, or to make payments in connection with, the purchase of such agricultural commodities and for exchanging, distributing, disposing, transporting, storing, processing, inspection, commission, and other incidental costs and expenses without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes and without regard to the 25 per centum limitation contained in said section 32: Provided further, That not more than 2 per centum of the funds made available hereunder for a school lunch program shall be used to provide food for children in child-care centers. The amount of funds available hereunder for a school lunch program used in any State, Territory, possession, or the District of Columbia during any fiscal year shall not exceed the total amount otherwise furnished for the same purpose by or on behalf of the school authorities and other sponsoring agencies in such State, Territory, possession, or District of Columbia including the value of donated services and supplies, as certified by the respective schools, care centers, or agencies having control thereof.

[The limitation of $50,000,000 for the objects and for the purposes of the item "School lunch program" contained in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1946, is increased by $7,500,000.] (Act of May 5, 1945, Public Law 52; Act of Dec. 28, 1945, Public Law 269.)

FEDERAL FARM MORTGAGE CORPORATION

NOTE.—The Government Corporation Control Act, Public Law 248, approved Dec. 6, 1945, requires each wholly owned Government corporation to submit annually to the President for transmittal to the Congress a budget program or plan of operations. Because of the lateness of the passage of the act, the 1947 budget programs of the corporations will be submitted to the Congress in the spring as a supplement to the regular Budget.

Summary of estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1947, compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1946

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

The 1947 Budget provides for general expansion of the activities of the Department of Commerce, particularly those functions directly related to the promotion of commerce and industry. Within the framework of a broad program of Federal cooperation with business, to achieve sustained high levels of production and employment, the various bureaus and offices of the Department must logically assume a key role. Funds have already been made available by the Congress for beginning in the current fiscal year the expansions needed in the Office of the Secretary and the Bureau of the Census. In the field of international trade operations additional facilities have been made available by transferring to the Department certain residual functions formerly carried on by the Foreign Economic Administration. The 1947 Budget contemplates the establishment of facilities for technological and management aids to business as well as general expansion of the Department's regulatory, fact-finding, and scientific services.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, funds for which were formerly estimated under this head, was transferred on February 24, 1945, to the Federal Loan Agency under the provisions of Public Law 4, Seventy-ninth Congress. Estimates for the Corporation will be presented to the Congress as amendments to this Budget later in the year, along with estimates for other corporations which are subject to the Government Corporation Control Act (Public Law 248, 79th Cong., approved Dec. 6, 1945).

The Department comprises the following bureaus and offices, discussed separately hereafter in the same order: Office of the Secretary, Bureau of the Census, Office of Administrator of Civil Aeronautics, Civil Aeronautics Board, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Patent Office, National Bureau of Standards, and Weather Bureau.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

Appropriations for the Office of the Secretary cover the costs of over-all administration of the Department, program coordination, and essential services for the various bureaus and offices, including personnel supervision, budgetary control and business management, procurement of standard supplies and equipment, and duplicating services. The diverse character of functions now being performed by the constituent units of the Department and the proposed new and expanded activities for the fiscal year 1947 call for further strengthening of the management and coordinating facilities in the Office of the Secretary.

The major portion of the recommended increase for the Office of the Secretary is to cover the cost for the fiscal year 1947 of a proposed Office of Technical and Scientific Services whose function would be to provide direct technological assistance to all segments of business, with emphasis upon the requirements of small business concerns. Services to be offered would include the dissemination of technical data covering new products and processes, particularly those developed during the war; industrial research and development within the Department and by contract with institutions of learning; and stimulation of inventions and technological improvement by private citizens.

BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

A vigorous program of Government cooperation with private business organizations to promote a healthy and stable national economy must be built upon a sound foundation of factual data regarding economic and social conditions. The responsibility for assembling the needed information in these areas falls logically upon the Bureau of the Census. Funds have been appropriated in the current fiscal year to begin a generally expanded program of monthly, quarterly, and annual reports showing business and industrial trends and to do the necessary preliminary work for a sample census of population. The 1947 Budget provides for carrying these projects forward on a full annual basis.

About half of the recommended increase for the Bureau of the Census is for a full Census of Business, last taken in 1939 and urgently needed by business and Government. The increase also contemplates a Census of Manufactures required by law to be taken every 2 years but suspended during the war. In addition to furnishing vital data for policy formulations by business and Government in the critical period immediately ahead, the full censuses of business and manufactures will provide the Bureau of the Census with essential bench-mark statistics for use in reporting current business and industrial trends.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATOR OF CIVIL AERONAUTICS

The Civil Aeronautics Administration is charged with promoting the development of civil aviation, including the establishment and maintenance of air navigation facilities, and enforcing the safety regulations promulgated by the Civil Aeronautics Board. Both of these responsibilities are now major activities of Government, and they will become of even greater significance to the national economy as the aviation industry adapts wartime developments to peacetime services.

At the present time there are approximately 39,000 miles of certificated airways in the United States. By the end of 1947 it is anticipated that more than 43,000 miles will be required. In order to insure safe operation over these airways and to promote even greater safety over existing airways the agency will need to establish and maintain emergency landing fields, communications facilities for the transmission of weather and traffic information, radio range stations, traffic control towers, and instrument-landing systems. Due to the rapidly advancing technology in this field, substantial gains are constantly being made in aviation safety, although this increased safety in the face of a rapidly expanding volume of service can be achieved only through an augmentation of total investment.

The postwar surge of aviation development will require the agency to expand its safety-regulation work. The issuance of certificates to airmen of all types and to aircraft and aircraft instruments, and the approval of specifications for contemplated new models, are the principal types of activity that will be needed in this field. In 1947 the agency contemplates an increased number of foreign offices to insure, from the standpoint of safety, the international air operations of American carriers. A larger number of domestic offices are also contemplated as domestic aviation expands both in its commercial and private aspects.

In addition to these major functions —navigation facilities and safety—the agency engages in a variety of development and service activities designed to stimulate civil aviation. An airport service is maintained to advise various groups in connection with the construction and operation of airports. Developmental work of various kinds is undertaken to promote technological advancement, and in miscellaneous ways interest in aviation is stimulated. The agency also operates and maintains the Washington National Airport.

The 1947 estimates reflect an increase of about 45 percent over 1946 appropriations of which about one-third is necessary for increased costs resulting from recent pay legislation. The other increases are principally for the ultra-high frequency radio range program that has been underway for several years; the maintenance and operation of 110 traffic control towers, many of which will be taken over from the military services; and the planned program of expansion for safety work. Smaller increases are provided for the normal increase in maintenance work, research, and Washington National Airport.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

The Civil Aeronautics Board functions as an independent agency, although within the administrative framework of the Department. The Board has broad authority in the economic regulation of civil air carriers, and in the safety field it is responsible for promulgating all safety regulations and for investigating aircraft accidents.

In 1947 it is anticipated that commercial aviation will expand greatly as it begins to reflect the lifting of wartime restrictions and the utilization of the technological developments of the past few years. This expansion is already making itself felt in all phases of the Board's work load and will reach a very high level in 1947. The 1947 estimates make provision for a widespread extension of the Board's activity into the field of international air transportation and a general acceleration of its work in the domestic field, both as to economic regulation and safety matters.

The 1947 estimates reflect an increase of 40 percent over the 1946 annual appropriation, of which almost one-fourth is necessary for increased costs resulting from recent pay legislation. The remaining $500,000 is for expansion to meet mounting work loads.

COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY

During the war the surveying and charting activities of the Coast and Geodetic Survey were in the main controlled by the operational needs of the Army and Navy. Moreover, normal survey operations along the coasts were hampered by the necessity for transferring several large vessels to the Navy. These circumstances, though unavoidable, have seriously interrupted the normal surveying and charting operations with the result that many nautical charts are in need of revision and the issuance of new charts, needed for coastwise navigation, has been retarded.

It is proposed that in the fiscal year 1947 the Coast and Geodetic Survey will resume its coastal survey work with restored complements of vessels and commissioned officers. Due to wartime advances in the wages of seamen and other costs of vessel operation, however, the funds required will be nearly double the prewar amount.

The recommended increase includes provision for expanded aeronautical chart work commensurate with the expected opening of new civil air routes, both national and international. Provision is also made for increased geodetic surveys to meet the needs of other Federal agencies.

BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE

The 1947 estimates contemplate a vigorous and comprehensive program of aids to business including the establishment of economic indicators for policy guidance and management determinations, the furnishing of market data and analyses of supply-demand and cost-price relationships, the provision of counseling services for veterans and others desiring to enter the field of small business, and the stimulation of domestic and foreign trade by direct promotional activities. Effectuation of this program will require considerable expansion of the Department's facilities at the seat of Government and a substantial increase in the number of field offices in the United States.

Executive Order 9630, effective October 20, 1945, transferred from the Foreign Economic Administration to the Department of Commerce functions relating to export control, technical industrial intelligence, the facilitation of trade, and the reporting of foreign transactions. Estimates of any funds required for continuation of the functions so transferred, will be presented later as an amendment to the 1947 Budget.

PATENT OFFICE

The Patent Office is now receiving new applications for patents at a rate in excess of 100,000 per year. This volume of applications represents an increase of nearly 25 percent over the prewar rate. The handling of the increased volume of new and amended applications is complicated by the fact that during the war a backlog of unprocessed applications accumulated as a result of depletion of the Patent Office professional staff and limited availability of qualified replacements. This situation was recognized in the 1946 appropriation which provided for a substantial increase in the professional staff. The 1947 Budget provides for continuation of the staff at the level provided for in the current year's appropriation.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

The normal functions of the National Bureau of Standards consists of testing materials for the public and for Government procurement agencies, establishing commercial standards and codes for safety and simplified practices, and conducting research in new products and industrial processes. During the war these activities were directed primarily toward military requirements and during the fiscal year 1947 certain military projects will be continued. It is expected, however, that more attention will be given to industrial applications of recent technological developments for civilian production. Increases recommended are principally for radio investigations, financed heretofore by the War and Navy Departments and other war agencies. The 1947 Budget contemplates that this work will be centralized at the National Bureau of Standards.

WEATHER BUREAU

The Weather Bureau operates the basic national system of meteorological observation stations for the United States and its territories, collects and analyzes observations, prepares weather and flood forecasts and warnings, bulletins, and climatological summaries for other Government agencies and private interests, particularly aviation, water-borne shipping, and agriculture. Expansion of the weather service has been due in large measure to the increased requirements for civil aviation. About two-thirds of the increase recommended for the fiscal year 1947 is to establish facilities on proposed new air routes and to expand the service on existing routes. The remainder of the increase contemplates extension of the river and flood forecasting service, restoration of ship weather service, suspended during the war, and specialized weather service for agriculture and industry.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS—Continued

During the fiscal year [1946] 1947 the head of any department or independent establishment of the Government having funds available for scientific investigations and requiring cooperative work by the National Bureau of Standards on scientific investigations within the scope of the functions of that Bureau, and which the National Bureau of Standards is unable to perform within the limits of its appropriations, may, with the approval of the Secretary, transfer to the National Bureau of Standards such sums as may be necessary to carry on such investigations. The Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer on the books of the Treasury Department any sums which may be authorized hereunder, and such amounts shall be placed to the credit of the National Bureau of Standards for performance of work for the department or establishment from which the transfer is made, including, where necessary, travel expenses and compensation for personal services in the District of Columbia and in the field.

Not to exceed $100,000 of funds available to the Bureau by appropriation and transfer shall be available for payment of part-time or intermittent employment in the District of Columbia, or elsewhere, of such scientists and technicians as may be contracted for by the Secretary, in his discretion, at a rate of pay not exceeding $25 per diem for any person so employed.

Of the foregoing amounts for the National Bureau of Standards not to exceed [$2,750,000] $4,170,000 may be expended for personal services in the District of Columbia. (59 Stat. 193; Act of May 21, 1945, Public Law 61.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

Summary of estimates of appropriation for the fiscal year 1947, compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1946

[The 1947 Budget estimates make specific provision for additional costs made necessary by pay legislation enacted near the close of the fiscal year 1945. The 1946 appropriations did not make specific provision for any such costs and thus the appropriations shown below are not comparable with the 1947 estimates to whatever extent deficiency appropriations may be necessary to meet these added costs]

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

The appropriations in this category finance the Office of the Secretary and his general staff, the Office of the Solicitor, the Divisions of Territories and Island Possessions, Petroleum Conservation, and Geography, and certain administrative divisions that serve all bureaus of the Department. Also included in this group are funds for soil and moisture conservation operations on public and Indian lands, for the contingent expenses of the Department, and for meeting the costs of penalty mail.

The annual appropriations recommended for these activities total $4,373,200 and provide increases in every case except for penalty mail costs which are estimated to require $96,000 less in 1947 than in 1946. The largest item of increase is for soil and moisture conservation operations which have been held to a minimum during the war period. Other increases anticipate an expansion of the program activities of the various bureaus and offices in the Department.

COMMISSION OF FINE ARTS

The Commission of Fine Arts renders advice to Congress and the executive agencies of the Government on fine arts matters in the fields of architecture, sculpture, painting, and landscape architecture. The annual appropriation of $11,900 recommended for 1947 includes increases to cover travel expenses of the unpaid members of the Commission, to provide for refilling a position in the office of the secretary to the Commission, and for miscellaneous expenses.

BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION

This Administration was created by the Bonneville Project Act of 1937 for the purpose of transmitting and marketing surplus power generated at the Bonneville Dam, Oreg., which was completed in December 1943. By Executive Order 8526, dated August 26, 1940, the Administration was given the responsibility for marketing the power generated at Grand Coulee Dam. By departmental order issued pursuant to the Hungry Horse Dam Act (Pub. Law 329, 78th Cong.), the Administration was designated to market power to be generated at the proposed Hungry Horse Dam project in Montana, and it is expected that it will be designated the marketing agent for power to be produced at the Willamette Valley project, Oreg., which has been authorized by Congress. In addition, the Rivers and Harbors Act (Public Law 14, 79th Cong.) provides that power generated at the McNary Dam project and at the Snake River navigation and power project shall be marketed by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with existing laws covering the disposition of power generated at the Bonneville Dam.

The Administration constructs, maintains, and operates electric transmission lines, substations and other facilities and structures for transmitting electric energy for sale to existing and potential markets, for the exchange of electric energy, and for the interconnection of the Federal projects with other systems now or hereafter constructed.

Revenues of the Administration from the sale of electric energy during the fiscal year 1945 were $22,903,282. During the fiscal year 1946, on the basis of present conditions, it is estimated that revenues will be approximately $18,197,000. The revenues for fiscal year 1947 are estimated at $16,148,000, reflecting the adjustment of loads from a war to peacetime basis.

The present transmission system consists of 2,766 circuit miles of transmission lines, ranging upward to 230,000 volts, and 56 substations. Extensions and additions to be completed during the fiscal year 1946 will increase the number of circuit miles to 3,000 and the number of substations to 68. Upon completion of the 1947 program, it is estimated that 3,600 circuit miles of transmission lines will have been energized and 82 substations will be in operation. The construction program for the fiscal year 1947 is expected to require $16,973,069. For operation and maintenance of the electric system and appurtenant facilities and for the marketing of power, it is estimated that $4,200,000 will be required.

HIGH COMMISSIONER TO THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

Anticipating that on or before July 4, 1946, the Philippine Islands will be recognized as a separate and self-governing nation pursuant to existing law, no appropriation is recommended for the Office of the United States High Commissioner to the Philippine Islands for the fiscal year 1947.

OFFICE OF FISHERY COORDINATION

The Office of Fishery Coordination was created in 1942 to aid the fishing industry in solving its manpower and supply problems during the war period, in order to maintain the supply of sea food at the highest possible level. The agency was terminated on October 29, 1945, by an Executive order of that date; hence no appropriation is recommended for 1947.

SOUTHWESTERN POWER ADMINISTRATION

The Southwestern Power Administration was established in 1943 by departmental order issued pursuant to Executive Orders 8944, 9353, 9366, and 9373 to perform duties assigned to the Secretary of the Interior with respect to the Grand River Dam project in Oklahoma, the Norfork Dam project in Arkansas, and the Denison Dam project in Oklahoma and Texas. By these orders, the Administration is charged with completing the construction of and operating the Grand River Dam project and marketing electric energy generated at that project and the surplus electric energy generated at the Norfork and Denison Dam projects, constructed and operated by the Corps of Engineers.

Pursuant to the Flood Control Act of December 22, 1944 (58 Stat. 887), the Administration has been designated by the Secretary of the Interior as the marketing agent for surplus electric power and energy generated at projects under the control of the War Department in Louisiana, Arkansas, southern Missouri, southeastern Kansas, most of Oklahoma, and eastern Texas.

It is expected that the Grand River Dam project will be returned to the State of Oklahoma during the fiscal year 1946. This project was constructed with PWA funds made available on a loan and grant basis to the Grand River Dam Authority, an agency of the State of Oklahoma. The project was taken over by the Federal Government in November 1941 and has been operated under a trust fund consisting of receipts derived from the sale of electric power and energy generated at the project.

The estimates for the 1947 appropriations will permit interconnecting Norfork and Denison Dams with Pensacola Dam and with the authorized Bull Shoals and Table

Rock projects of the War Department and providing electric service to south Missouri, northwest Arkansas, and to municipalities and REA projects in southeastern Oklahoma and in northeastern Texas.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service is responsible for the protection, management, and rehabilitation of approximately 142 million acres of Federal range lands embraced in 60 grazing districts established under the provisions of the Taylor Grazing Act of June 28, 1934, as amended, in 10 Western States. The program includes the regulation of range use, fire protection and prevention on range lands, and construction and maintenance of range improvements such as fences, trails, stock-watering devices, and fire-control structures.

Recommended annual appropriations for 1947 total $1,784,500. That sum includes increases to provide more adequate administration of grazing districts, to improve the fire protection service, to conduct range-capacity surveys, and to make plans and surveys for and to construct range improvements.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The General Land Office surveys the public domain in 11 Western States and Alaska, and handles all negotiations in the leasing or allotment of these lands under laws designed to insure proper development of their coal, oil, gas, and other mineral resources. Among its other functions are fire suppression, timber management, and regulation of grazing on the public domain outside of grazing districts.

Annual appropriations aggregating $3,634,700 are recommended for the General Land Office for 1947. The principal items of increase included in that sum are for expanding the staff in the central office to handle a large backlog of work and an increase in the current work load, for accelerating original surveys and resurveys of the public domain, for improving the management and protection of the timber resources on the public lands, and for making surveys and investigations to effect a greater conservation and use of public domain resources in the United States and Alaska.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

The main objectives of the Bureau of Indian Affairs are the economic rehabilitation of the Indian wards of the United States and the assurance to them of opportunities enjoyed by other racial groups in the fields of education, health, cultural freedom, and self-government. More than 350,000 Indians in the continental United States and 32,000 Eskimos, Aleuts, and Indians in Alaska come within the jurisdiction of the Bureau.

Among the functions performed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs are the operation of approximately 400 day and boarding schools and the supervision of the education of Indian children attending public and private schools; the operation of hospitals, sanatoria, and infirmaries, and medical, dental, and public health nursing service to Indians in their homes and at clinics; the administration of about 46,000,000 acres of forest and grazing land; the maintenance of an extension service, the principal objectives of which are to encourage the use of Indian lands by Indians and to effect the use of improved farming and livestock practices by Indian farmers and livestockmen; the administration of a credit system; the construction, operation, and maintenance of irrigation systems; the maintenance of law and order on Indian reservations and the performance of social service work; the administration of large sums held in trust for individual Indians and Indian tribes; and the construction and maintenance of buildings, utilities, and roads.

Annual appropriations aggregating $41,393,515 are recommended for the Bureau of Indian Affairs for 1947. The major increases included in that total are for the construction of roads, buildings, and utilities; the extension of irrigation systems; the classification of positions held by Indians, in order to bring them under the Classification Act; additional personnel required by continuous service operations affected by the 40-hour week; an expansion of the agricultural extension service and of the health program; improving the management and protection of timber and range resources; an addition to the revolving loan fund; the acquisition of land for Indian use; and an expansion of services rendered to Indians and other natives of Alaska. These increases are necessitated in large measure by an anticipated return to the reservations of Indians who departed therefrom during the war period for service in the armed forces or employment in war industries.

To simplify the appropriation structure of this Bureau numerous consolidations are proposed which reduce the number of appropriations and tribal fund authorizations from more than 100 to less than 50.

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The objectives of the Bureau of Reclamation concern the conservation of land and water resources; the transformation, through irrigation, of desert lands into productive farms; the protection, through adequate water supplies, of established agricultural economy from the adverse effects of recurring droughts in the semiarid regions; and the stabilization of the livestock industry at a high level through providing the means of growing feed and forage crops. In company with these major purposes is the function of creating facilities for generation of hydroelectric power, land drainage, control of floods, improvement of navigation, silt control, regulation of stream flow, provision of municipal water supplies, and the incidental development of recreational areas and wildlife refuges. The responsibilities of the Bureau include the planning, construction, and operation of these multipurpose facilities which must be completely coordinated with facilities already built or planned to be constructed in the future, either by the Bureau of Reclamation or other agencies, so that the water resources may be used most beneficially. The activities of the Bureau are carried on in the 17 Western States.

The 1947 Budget provides funds for surveys and investigations, preparation of reports, plans, and specifications, economic studies, and land use analysis, and includes the amount of $11,000,000 for general investigations, $2,150,000 specifically for the Missouri River Basin, and $500,000 specifically for the Colorado River development. The increase of $5,580,000 in 1947 will provide for work necessary to conduct investigations on a basin-wide scale with the view to developing a shelf of worthwhile projects, construction of which could be undertaken at an accelerated rate, when and if needed, to aid in stabilizing the construction industry.

The scope of activities of the Bureau has been extended from year to year so that to the present time 57 irrigation projects or divisions of projects have been completed, of which 33 have been turned over to the water users for operation and maintenance. No Federal funds will be required for these latter projects. In the fiscal year 1947, the Bureau will operate and maintain the remaining 24 projects. During 1946, 2,719,000 acres were irrigated from Bureau facilities and 632,800 acres were irrigated by Bureau forces, and in 1947 it is estimated that this acreage will increase to 2,886,000 and 664,200, respectively. Operation and maintenance costs of power systems are financed from power revenues within limitations established in the appropriations for the particular project. Energy generated at Bureau plants in fiscal year 1946 will approximate 13.2 billion kilowatt-hours and is estimated at 12.3 billion kilowatt-hours in 1947. Operation and maintenance estimates and limitations from all sources total $5,946,700 for fiscal year 1947, compared to $4,508,197 made available in 1946. The increase is due largely to maintenance work deferred during the war.

Digitized for FRASER

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Funds available for construction totaled $147,427,213 for the 1946 fiscal year. The estimates for 1947 for construction are intended to provide funds to permit the Bureau to continue its normal program, resumption of which was financed by the First Deficiency Appropriation Act of 1946. The aggregate amount of $139,000,000 for 1947 contemplates construction work on 27 projects suspended or curtailed during the emergency and on three projects to be initiated during 1946. The major construction items in the 1947 program consist of $30,000,000 for Columbia River Basin, $25,000,000 for Central Valley of California, $15,000,000 for Colorado-Big Thompson project, $15,000,000 for Davis Dam, and $18,693,600 for Missouri River Basin.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

The Geological Survey is primarily concerned with the natural resources of the United States. It investigates the geology of the United States, and conducts research in geologic and related chemical and physical problems; makes topographic, base, and other maps of the United States, separate States, and special regions; investigates the quantity, distribution, mineral quality, availability, and utilization of the surface and underground water supplies of the United States; classifies the public lands as to their mineral and water resources, and furnishes technical data for the administration of public-land laws; supervises the technical phases of operations on public lands under leases, licenses, and permits; and investigates the mineral resources and production of Alaska, and surveys and maps the Territory's geology and topography. The investigative and engineering activities of the Geological Survey are distributed among five major units—the Geologic, Topographic, Water Resources, Conservation, and Alaskan Branches.

The recommended annual appropriations for the Geological Survey total $13,131,000. That sum includes substantial increases for topographic mapping, geologic surveys, and water investigations. Topographic quadrangle maps supply much of the basic data needed for such projects or activities as flood control, drainage, irrigation, soil conservation, river navigation, highways, railroads, transmission lines, pipe lines, tunnels, airports, television and radar towers, and large industrial developments. In view of the number of large public works projects that have been authorized or are under consideration by Congress, it is essential that the topographic mapping program be accelerated in order that data required in the planning and construction of such projects may be available to the agencies responsible for their prosecution.

The depletion of our known deposits of critical and essential minerals during the war period demands that prompt steps be taken to inventory the Nation's mineral resources, including an appraisal of the remaining undiscovered mineral reserves. Less than 10 percent of the country has been mapped geologically on scales adequate to meet present needs, and many of the maps covering the Eastern States are obsolete. The increase recommended for geologic surveys will enable the Geological Survey to accelerate the mapping program and facilitate the search for new sources of mineral raw materials needed for peacetime industrial operations and for the establishment of reserves to meet national defense requirements.

Water for municipal supplies, irrigation, power, process uses in industry, inland navigation, and other purposes has reached the limits of the supply available in many sections of the country. Large increases in the use of water for intense and localized war activities have hastened the exhaustion of many water supplies. As the limits of supply are approached, reliable water information becomes increasingly essential for planning new and operating old developments, and for adjudicating rights. The increase recommended for water investigations will enable the Geological Survey to expand its cooperative program with States and municipalities, to supply basic water data to Federal agencies concerned with reclamation, flood control, and water utilization problems, and to make water-resource studies of national interest.

BUREAU OF MINES

The Bureau of Mines is engaged in scientific and technological research concerning mining. It has two basic objectives—conservation of minerals through increased efficiency in their mining, preparation, and use, and conservation of human life through safe methods of operating mines and plants.

Annual appropriations aggregating $20,231,400 are recommended for this Bureau for 1947. The major increases included in that total are for the construction and equipment of an anthracite research laboratory authorized by a special act of Congress; the investigation and development of domestic minerals other than fuels; oil, gas, and coal investigations; expenses of mining experiment stations; metallurgical research in pilot plants; and the compilation and economic analysis of data required by the mining industry.

The serious depletion of the Nation's deposits of high-grade minerals, including coal and petroleum reserves, during the war period compels a dependence on lower grade ores until new sources of raw materials are discovered. With funds provided for national defense purposes, the Bureau of Mines has been engaged in developing new methods and processes for the economic mining and utilization of these lower grade deposits. Much progress has been made in that direction but a considerable amount of work remains to be done. The total appropriations recommended for 1947 include funds for continuing these essential programs at a level somewhat below that maintained during the war.

Other increases recommended for 1947 provide for some expansion in the safety work of the Bureau of Mines and in the fuel economy service rendered to other Federal agencies, for extraordinary repairs and improvements to its central experiment station at Pittsburgh, Pa., and for financing on a full-year basis a program initiated during the current year concerned with helium utilization and research.

There is also included in the recommended appropriations the sum of $7,000,000 for the continuation of the research and development work directed toward the production of synthetic liquid fuels from coal, oil shale, agricultural and forestry products, and other substances. This program, which is to extend over a period of 5 years, was authorized by Public Law 290, approved April 5, 1944.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

The National Park Service is responsible for the administration, protection, maintenance, and operation of some 170 areas of the national park system and 20 other areas and projects. These areas contain more than 22 million acres of federally owned lands with 4,500 miles of roads, 6,600 miles of trails, and about 3,700 buildings and other improvements.

War conditions caused a decline in visitation to National Park Service areas from a high of around 21 million in 1941 to a low of 6.9 million in the travel year ended September 30, 1943. As visitation decreased, appropriations were reduced, and the Service was placed essentially on a custodial basis. Services normally provided for the benefit of tourists were eliminated. Following the surrender of Japan, visitation to all areas increased, even though the travel season was drawing to a close. Unrestricted availability of gasoline and tires can be expected to increase visitation next summer by several hundred percent over 1945.

The amount recommended for the National Park Service for 1947 is $32,643,215. Included in that sum is an increase of $22,400,000 for the construction and maintenance of roads, trails, and parkways, all such work, except maintenance, having been suspended for the duration of the war. Another $2,500,000 is provided for the construction of facilities required for administration of the areas or the accommodation of visitors. The remaining increases are to permit the Service to return to normal operations, including service to visitors, winter sports in some areas, planning for future development, and the acquisition of lands and water rights.

FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

This Service is responsible for the conservation and development of our fish, bird, game, and other wildlife resources. To this end it operates fish cultural stations, fish screens, and wildlife refuges; it enforces conservation laws regarding fisheries and wildlife; it protects the salmon and other fisheries in Alaska and the seals on the Pribilof Islands; and it conducts technological and economic research designed to aid the fishing industry and the fur trade.

The total annual appropriation recommended for 1947 is $12,508,275. The increase included in that sum is spread generally throughout the Service. It includes, among other things, the recommissioning of certain of its vessels returned from military service, expansion of enforcement activities in the Alaskan fisheries, extension, on a cooperative basis, of the control of predatory animals and injurious rodents, the maintenance of new areas established as wildlife refuges, and the conduct of river basin studies in cooperation with other agencies planning for the construction of dams, reservoirs, and related works. The principal items of increase, however, are for Federal aid in wildlife restoration, $2,000,000, and for the acquisition in California of land to be set aside as a wildlife management area, $750,000. This latter amount will match a like amount appropriated by the State legislature for a cooperative undertaking to reduce crop damage by birds, particularly in the rice fields of California.

GOVERNMENT IN THE TERRITORIES

This group of appropriations provides for activities of our territorial governments—Alaska, Hawaii, and the Virgin Islands—financed out of the Federal Treasury. It does not cover the operations in Alaska of the several constituent units of the Department.

A total of $5,829,500 is recommended for this group of annual appropriations for 1947. Funds are recommended for legislative expenses in both Alaska and Hawaii. The major item of increase is for the construction and maintenance of roads, bridges, and trails in Alaska. An initial appropriation of $2,300,000 is recommended for the construction of highway projects estimated to cost approximately $10,000,000. The projects are deemed essential to the further development of the Territory. Funds are recommended for surveys and plans for future highway construction. Included in the estimate also is $1,000,000 for continuation of the reconstruction and improvement of the Richardson Highway.

PERMANENT APPROPRIATIONS AND TRUST ACCOUNTS

In addition to the annual appropriations described above, permanent appropriations aggregating $11,332,300 and trust accounts aggregating $10,056,993 are recommended for the Department of the Interior for 1947. Of the total for trust accounts, $8,244,200 represents trust funds received in the Federal Treasury and credited to Indian tribes or bands under numerous acts of Congress; many of these acts also specify the disposition of these moneys, including such purposes as per capita distribution to the Indians, operation of Indian lumber mills, payment of attorneys' fees, and insurance on tribal property. The other large group of trust fund appropriations is that dealing with the Bureau of Reclamation, for which $1,358,300 is recommended for 1947.

Permanent appropriation, special account:

Payments From Proceeds of Sale of Water—

This fund is derived from the proceeds of the sale or other disposition of water from water wells developed by the Secretary of the Interior when permittees and lessees, prospecting under the provisions of sections 221 to 229 of title 30 of the United States Code, strike water instead of oil and gas while drilling. The authority to use such funds to meet the expenses in continuing the program of developing water wells is contained in the Act approved June 16, 1934 (48 Stat. 977). (30 U. S. C. 229a.)
