INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to the provisions of 31 U. S. C. 11 and other applicable laws, the budget for the fiscal year 1957 contains the President's recommendations for the work program and financial program of the Government for the 12 months beginning July 1, 1956, and ending June 30, 1957. It also presents comparable information for the fiscal years 1955 (actual) and 1956 (partly actual and partly estimated).

The material in the budget covers both groups of funds administered by agencies of the Government—Federal funds (owned by the Government), and trust and deposit funds (held in trust or in suspense by the Government), although only the Federal funds are included in the computation of the budget surplus or deficit.

ARRANGEMENT OF THE BUDGET

The budget document consists of the President's budget message and four parts which contain summary tables, detailed data, and special analyses.

In the budget message (pp. M4 through M79), appear the general statement of the President's financial program and an outline of his major recommendations. The budget message includes three major summary tables.

Part I of the document (pp. A1 through A13) contains seven summary tables on Federal funds and on the public debt. Each of these tables is designed to bring together in 1 or 2 pages some overall aspect of the Federal budget.

Part II (pp. 1 through 1011) contains the detail of the budget for Federal funds, including various types of tables and schedules, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item of authorization. This part also includes material on funds of the municipal government of the District of Columbia, and a few other trust funds which require congressional action. It is arranged in chapters reflecting the organization of the Government.

Part III (pp. 1013 through 1079) contains summary tables on trust funds, and detailed schedules and explanatory statements on the various trust funds.

Part IV (pp. 1081 through 1166) contains special analyses of budget data and Federal programs. These analyses supplement material appearing in other parts of the budget. Some of these give details for certain summary figures appearing in part I—for example, a classification of budget receipts by source, and a classification of budget expenditures according to functions and subfunctions. Several of the other special analyses in part IV contain materials which present different groupings or classifications of data.

An appendix, printed separately, contains more detailed information on personal services by grade and title.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS

Introductory statements at the beginning of each part give further explanations as follows:

Pages A2–A3—Types of funds and budget authorizations; basis of stating receipts and expenditures; concept of budget surplus or deficit.

Pages 3–5—Format of material printed for each agency and each account in part II.

BUDGET MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Congress of the United States:

I send you today the Budget of the United States Government for the fiscal year 1957 which begins July 1, 1956. This budget also includes the fiscal results of all Government operations for the year ended June 30, 1955, and revised estimates for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1956.

BUDGET TOTALS

[Fiscal years. In billions]

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimated | 1957 estimated |
|---|---|---|---|
| Budget receipts | $60.4 | $64.5 | $66.3 |
| Budget expenditures | 64.6 | 64.3 | 65.9 |
| Budget surplus (+) or deficit (−) | −4.2 | +.2 | +.4 |

The budget I am proposing for 1957 is a balanced budget. It is my expectation that the budget will also be in balance for the fiscal year 1956.

Although balanced, the margin of estimated surplus in each of these budgets is slim. This calls for the utmost cooperation between the executive and legislative branches to prevent increases in expenditures or reductions in receipts that would create a deficit.

The present encouraging budgetary outlook arises from a favorable combination of factors involving both receipts and expenditures. Substantial reductions in Government expenditures have been achieved in the past 3 years. A significant increase in revenues is currently anticipated as the result of our present unprecedented prosperity. In the achievement of this prosperity, the historic 7.4-billion-dollar tax reduction and reform program of 1954—so advisable during the transition to a peacetime economy then taking place—and the confidence born of prudent fiscal and credit management have been strong energizing factors.

Budget expenditures in the fiscal year 1956 are now estimated at 64.3 billion dollars. This is a reduction in Government spending for the third successive year. It is a decrease of 10 billion dollars from the amount actually spent by the Federal Government in the fiscal year which began July 1, 1952. It is a cut of 13.6 billion dollars from the amount proposed in the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1953, submitted to the Congress in January of 1953 before this administration took office.

For the fiscal year 1957, total expenditures are estimated to rise approximately 1.6 billion dollars over the anticipated level for 1956.

Digitized for FRASER

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

This increase will be more than offset by the rise in receipts estimated to result from continued growth in the national economy. Efforts to obtain additional economies in Government operations must continue, for the balance achieved in the budget for 1957 is a balance at a high level of receipts and expenditures. The search for additional savings that can be effected while strengthening our security posture and providing essential Government services must be relentless.

We will take full advantage of the proposals of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, which has completed with high distinction the task of analyzing the activities of the Government. We will continue to give the taxpayer greater and greater value for each dollar spent. We will continue to foster orderly growth of our economy through sound fiscal policies. The confidence in the future among consumers and businessmen generated by those policies must be maintained.

BUDGET POLICIES

We seek, above all, the attainment of a just and durable peace. Thus, the resources of the world can be directed to building a better life for all people. The people of the Soviet Union and of the countries under its domination are undoubtedly as anxious as the people of other nations to achieve this objective. I regret that the Soviet leaders have not as yet given any tangible evidence of an intention to agree on a plan of disarmament that can be verified by adequate inspection. In the absence of such tangible evidence, we must follow the course reflected in this budget of steadily strengthening the defense of the United States and its allies, so that the free world will remain strong enough to deter possible aggressors or to retaliate immediately and effectively if attacked.

At the same time, the Government of the United States will steadfastly seek all possible ways of further progress toward our goal of peace. We will speed the development of the civilian uses of atomic energy and make the resulting benefits available, under appropriate controls, to other nations for the well-being of mankind. We will propose logical methods for advancing disarmament. We will promote international trade and investment. We will not falter in our cooperative efforts to build the economic, as well as defensive, strength of the free world through the Mutual Security Program.

At home, programs instituted by the Executive and the Congress have helped to nurture an unprecedented prosperity without inflation. Our objective is to foster and encourage conditions in which this prosperity can be sustained and can be more fully shared by agriculture and certain sectors of our industrial economy. The growth and movement of our population and the complexity of our dynamic society are continually creating needs which must be met if we are to build wisely for the future. For years, many activities which are desirable for fostering sound economic growth have been postponed because of the overriding needs of war and defense.

Defense needs are still overriding and must continue to be met in full measure. However, budget revenues now permit us to undertake some new and expanded programs for enhancing opportunities for human well-being and economic growth. This budget reflects that purpose.

These two national objectives of securing a lasting peace and of sustaining widespread prosperity and well-being are closely linked to our third goal of financial strength and stability.

In the words of Washington's farewell address, we must meet our defense needs by maintaining a respectable posture of defense. There is no magic number of dollars or of military units and weapons that would solve all our defense problems and guarantee our national security. Neither can total mobilization in peacetime be the answer to our defense needs. It is essential to have a stable, long-range defense program suited to our needs which avoids fluctuations in response to transitory pressures.

We are equally well aware that overenthusiastic and ill-considered Government efforts to promote economic development could lead to inflation, and could also choke off private initiative, which is the wellspring of economic development and of a better life. Inflation would bring suffering to the very groups whose well-being the Government would be trying to serve.

With a sense of proportion and with a sound progressive policy, we can continue our sure advance toward our objectives. The results to date of sound financial management so demonstrate. While continuing substantial expenditures for military defense and mutual security, with some increases where needed, we can now propose the expansion of certain domestic programs, and, at the same time, strengthen our financial position by a balanced budget. But we must make sure that we do not undermine our financial strength by laying the groundwork for future budget deficits.

BUDGET DOCUMENT

A budget is not just a book of figures describing fiscal operations—it is a comprehensive plan of action for meeting our national objectives. As such, it affects every phase of the life and activity of the Nation. It is necessarily complex. Like the plans for a building, the budget must be sketched from various points of view to give a clear idea of its content and composition. Accordingly, despite some repetition, the various items in the budget are classified and grouped in different ways to help in the analysis of their overall significance.

In this section of the budget message, I shall summarize budget expenditures in terms of a few broad purposes and also in terms of their controllability through the budget process. Following this discussion, there are two summary tables setting forth budget expenditures and new obligational authority by major programs and by Government agencies. These tables are followed in the message by a discussion of my recommendations for each of the major programs of the Government.

The detailed part of the budget document which follows the message contains four parts: (1) Additional summary tables; (2) detailed appropriation accounts for each agency; (3) information on trust funds and working funds; and (4) a number of special analyses which throw light on the budget from still different viewpoints. These analyses show, for example, the expenditures for Federal credit programs, public works, aid to State and local governments, research, and economic statistics, all of which are common to many programs and agencies.

The detailed schedules and statements of the budget have been simplified this year to make them more useful to the Congress in general and to the appropriations committees in particular. This simplification has also resulted in reducing the size of the budget document 50 pages and the appendix a further 175 pages.

BUDGET EXPENDITURES

Expenditures by purpose.—When we look at the budget in terms of a few broad purposes, we find that the greatest portion, 64 percent, of the expenditures in the fiscal year 1957 will be for deterring possible aggression and for strengthening the international alliances to which we belong. The next largest part, 21 percent, will be devoted to civil benefits of various kinds. Interest, largely on the public debt, will amount to nearly 11 percent. Expenditures for civil operations and administration are estimated at 4 percent of the total. Further details of expenditures by broad purposes can be found in special analysis E on pages 1119 to 1121 of the budget document.

| Civil operations and administration | 1.7 | 2.1 | 2.2 |
| Reserve for contingencies | ---------- | .1 | .2 |
| Total | 64.6 | 64.3 | 65.9 |

Protection, including collective security.—In this summary classification of broad purposes, expenditures for protection include more than the four major national security programs. They embrace the military functions of the Department of Defense, including construction and procurement; the Mutual Security Program; the Atomic Energy Commission; and other programs such as stockpiling, expansion of defense production, civil defense, and our foreign information activities.

by a campaign of smiles without deeds. We continue to maintain and to strengthen our national security forces.

This budget provides for increased expenditures for the military functions of the Department of Defense, emphasizing air-atomic power, guided missiles, research and development, continental defense, and the re-equipping of our forces with new types of weapons. Outlays for conventional weapons and for stockpiling will be decreased. Under the Mutual Security Program, budget expenditures in 1957 for military assistance and for economic and technical assistance are estimated at about the same level as in the fiscal years 1955 and 1956. Expenditures for atomic energy, including peaceful applications, will rise in 1957 to a somewhat higher total than for any previous year. I am also recommending an expansion of our foreign information activities so that we can more successfully advance understanding abroad of our policies and their peaceful intent.

Civil benefits.—A great variety of Government programs provide civil benefits and services for the Nation as a whole and for specific groups. They encourage the private development and growth of our economy and provide certain economic safeguards for individuals and groups in order that our dynamic system of free choice may operate effectively in the modern world.

Some of these benefits and services are in the form of public works or loans which add to Federal assets. Expenditures for long-range development, such as those for health research and for grants to States for construction, also lay the foundation for future economic progress and development. However, the bulk of the benefits and services are for current expenses, including veterans' benefits; aids to agriculture; aids and subsidies to shipping, airlines, and the postal service; and grants to States for public assistance and administration of employment offices and unemployment insurance.

| Current expense items | 8.2 | 9.5 | 9.1 |
| Total | 13.7 | 13.8 | 13.9 |

My recommendations for the fiscal year 1957 under this heading of civil benefits are designed to build for the future by assisting further in the strengthening of agriculture; in the promoting of labor standards; in the building of schools; in the expansion of research and training in science, health, and agriculture; in the modernization of our highways; in the improvement of housing and urban facilities; in the enlargement of our airway traffic capacity; in the replacement of our merchant fleet; and in the conservation of our natural resources.

The estimated expenditure for each of the civil benefits and services (shown in detail on p. 1120) represents the best judgment of this administration of what is required and can be used effectively during the coming year to meet our growing needs.

In discharging the responsibility for fostering a growing prosperity that is widely shared, I have been mindful of two principles.

First, we will progress fastest by relying on private initiative as the mainspring for economic growth and a better life for all. In encouraging economic growth, the Government should act on the basis of enabling private activity to expand and not on a basis of replacing private with public activity. My recommendations, therefore, are designed to encourage private initiative and to contribute toward, or, in some cases, to undertake tasks which private enterprise cannot perform alone.

Second, the interests of our citizens are best advanced by encouraging State and local governments to strengthen themselves and thus keep as much Government responsibility as possible in the States and communities, close to the people themselves. The Federal actions which I am proposing are designed to meet real and pressing needs which most smaller governmental units cannot cope with by themselves. Our endeavor is to help fill the gap between the need for essential services, on the one hand, and the present ability of State and local governments to meet those needs, on the other. Wherever possible and logical, I propose that responsibility and costs be shared by these other governmental units.

A corollary of these two principles is that where Federal action is necessary, it should be taken, if possible, in a way that need not entail large or continuing Federal outlays. For some activities, Federal guaranties will encourage the availability of private credit. For other activities, partnership with private or State and local government interests will multiply the effectiveness of Federal expenditures.

Many services performed and privileges granted by the Government in the public interest also convey a special, added benefit to individuals or groups who can afford to pay for them. In some cases, the services are now provided without charge. In other cases, the fees are substantially below the costs of providing the services. Thus, the general taxpayer is required to subsidize operations which should be self-supporting. The scope and cost of these hidden subsidies have grown considerably during the past decades. I firmly believe in the principle that Government services which give a special benefit to users should be financed by adequate charges paid by the users.

Digitized for FRASER
http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

In furtherance of this principle, I strongly recommend that the Congress enact legislation to increase postal rates so that users are no longer subsidized from general funds.

Civil operations and administration.—Budget items for civil operations and administration are predominantly the traditional expenses of the Government. They are the largest in number but not the largest in amount. They cover the bulk of the expenditures for the legislative branch, the judiciary, and various regulatory activities, as well as the administrative expenses of many cabinet departments and independent agencies. They also include expenses for tax collection and various central management services.

These programs have a greater significance than their small proportion of the total budget would indicate. I am recommending selective increases in appropriations and expenditures for a number of them.

For example, we should increase our representation abroad—particularly in a number of countries with which our relations are becoming increasingly vital. A strengthening of our foreign relations will pay dividends in terms of better mutual understanding and friendship. Likewise, my proposals for reducing the backlogs of cases pending in our Federal courts and before our regulatory commissions will bring benefits greater than their costs. Increased funds for central property and records management will enable us to achieve greater economies in carrying out the other activities of our Government.

Expenditures by controllability.—Another way of looking at and grouping budget expenditures is from the point of view of their controllability through the budget process. Each year when a budget is being determined, a large amount cannot be substantially modified by actions of the executive branch or of the Congress through the appropriations process but only by longer term review and action. In the fiscal year 1957, about one-quarter of the estimated budget expenditures are dictated by factors not readily subject to administrative discretion through the budget process.

Interest is the largest example of such an expenditure. Most of the other relatively uncontrollable programs, such as agricultural price supports, veterans' compensation and pensions, and various grants to States, are in the field of civil benefits as classified in the previous section.

[1] For purposes of comparability, includes expenditures from appropriations to reimburse the Corporation.

NEW AUTHORITY TO INCUR OBLIGATIONS

Before any budget expenditures can be made, the Congress must first authorize Federal agencies to incur obligations. This authority, ordinarily provided in the form of appropriations, may or may not lead to the immediate expenditure of funds. In the case of salaries and the purchase of supplies, the expenditure will ordinarily follow closely the incurring of the obligation. For other items such as ships,

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/

aircraft, and complex military equipment, the expenditure may follow the incurring of the obligation by several years.

Unexpended balances of appropriations carried over from prior years ran to nearly 80 billion dollars when this administration took office and represented an enormous backlog of commitments for which expenditures had to be made in the fiscal year 1954 and subsequent years. These balances represented, in effect, c. o. d. orders which had to be paid for in cash when the goods were delivered and constituted a heavy overhanging load for the budget on top of the appropriations being enacted currently.

By the end of fiscal year 1956 we expect to have reduced these balances by well over a third, to below 50 billion dollars, a level believed more reasonable in its relation to actual needs for current operations.

For the fiscal year 1957, requested new authority to incur obligations is about the same as estimated budget receipts and slightly greater than estimated expenditures. However, the backlog of unexpended balances of appropriations will be further reduced as some appropriations enacted in prior years will be allowed to lapse. This continues the policy of the two previous budgets I sent to the Congress, in which I emphasized the importance of actions to eliminate excessive accumulations of unexpended balances, which so frequently invite commitments leading to unnecessary future expenditures.

Of the total new authority I am recommending for the fiscal year 1957, action by this session of the Congress will be required for 58.3 billion dollars. The remainder consists of previously enacted permanent authorizations under which new authority becomes available each year without new action by the Congress. An example is interest on the public debt.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

I have outlined in my message on the State of the Union the legislative proposals which I consider vital to our continued progress. Detailed recommendations will be presented to the Congress on certain of these proposals. The budgetary estimates for the fiscal year 1957 for my legislative proposals are summarized in the table below.

These estimates cover only the proposals for which financial authorizations cannot be enacted prior to enactment of enabling legislation. Often they supplement programs for which expenditures are included elsewhere in the budget. For example, the amounts shown in the following table for my proposals for strengthening agriculture are only part of the total in the budget for agricultural programs.

Pending final determination of the amounts required for the recommended program for highways, the dollar estimates included in this budget under proposed legislation cover only the continuance of the present annual authorization. The new highway program should be soundly financed so as not to create budget deficits.

BUDGET RECEIPTS AND TAX POLICY

I have already indicated in my State of the Union message the broad outlines of our tax policies. I shall summarize them here.

We have noted that in 1954 reductions in spending made possible—and appropriate in the existing circumstances of transition to a peacetime economy—the largest dollar tax cut in any year in our history. Almost 7½ billion dollars were cut from the sums required of the taxpayers and every taxpayer in the country benefited. Almost two-thirds of the savings went directly to individuals. This tax cut also helped to build up the economy, to make jobs in industry, and to increase the production of the many things desired to improve the scale of living for the great majority of Americans.

The strong expansion of the economy, coupled with a constant care for efficiency in Government operations and an alert guard against controllable waste and duplication; has brought us to a prospective balance between income and expenditure. This is being achieved while we continue to strengthen the military security forces and enlarge services to the public.

To reach a balanced budget in the fiscal year 1956 and in the fiscal year 1957, it will be necessary in addition to continuing everyday efforts to keep spending under control, to continue all the present excise taxes without any reduction and the corporation income taxes at their present rates for another year beyond April 1, 1956.

Based on the extension of these tax rates, budget receipts in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated at 66.3 billion dollars, 1.8 billion dollars higher than in the current year.

BUDGET RECEIPTS

[Fiscal years. In billions]

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimated | 1957 estimated |
|---|---|---|---|
| Individual income taxes | $31.7 | $33.6 | $35.1 |
| Corporation income taxes | 18.3 | 20.3 | 20.3 |
| Excise taxes | 9.2 | 9.9 | 9.9 |
| Other taxes (net of transfers to trust funds) | 2.1 | 2.0 | 2.1 |
| Miscellaneous receipts | 2.6 | 2.5 | 2.8 |
| Refunds of receipts (−) | −3.4 | −3.8 | −3.9 |
| Total | 60.4 | 64.5 | 66.3 |

It is unquestionably true that our present tax level is very burdensome and, in the interest of long term and continuous economic growth, should be reduced when we prudently can. It is essential, in the sound management of the Government's finances, that we be mindful of our enormous national debt and of the obligation we have toward future Americans to reduce that debt whenever we can appropriately do so. Under conditions of high peacetime prosperity, such as now exist, we can never justify going further into debt to give ourselves a tax cut at the expense of our children. So, in the present state of our financial affairs, I earnestly believe that a tax cut can be deemed justifiable only when it will not unbalance the budget, a budget which makes provision for some reduction, even though modest, in our national debt. In this way we can best maintain fiscal integrity.

PUBLIC DEBT

On the basis of present estimates, we should be able to end the current fiscal year with a small reduction in the public debt, and a small further reduction is anticipated for the fiscal year 1957.

PUBLIC DEBT

[Fiscal years. In billions]

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimated | 1957 estimated |
|---|---|---|---|
| Public debt at start of year | $271.3 | $274.4 | $274.3 |
| Change due to budget deficit (+) or surplus (−) | +4.2 | −.2 | −.4 |
| Other changes in public debt | −1.1 | +.1 | −.1 |
| Public debt at end of year | 274.4 | 274.3 | 273.8 |
| Public debt subject to legal limit at end of year | 273.9 | 273.8 | 273.3 |

The immediate economic effects of the public debt depend partly on its management. During each year various issues of Government securities become due and refinancing must be arranged. In the past several years, the Treasury has cooperated closely with the Federal Reserve System to assure that the management of the debt is consistent with our general monetary and credit policies. These actions have helped sustain a sound and growing business activity without inflation or deflation.

The Treasury has also taken steps toward lengthening the average maturity of the debt so as to avoid its becoming concentrated too heavily in short-term issues. Further, the number of financing operations each year has been reduced. These actions lessen the impact of Treasury financing on the market, and give the Federal Reserve System greater freedom in its operations.

CHANGE IN PUBLIC DEBT

Last year the Congress extended through June 1956 a temporary increase during the fiscal year in the statutory debt limit from 275 billion dollars to 281 billion dollars, so that the Treasury could meet its heavy temporary borrowing needs during the first half of the fiscal year 1956, when tax receipts are seasonally low. The Treasury is currently operating within 1 billion dollars of the temporary debt ceiling, and on cash balances that at some periods offer little flexibility in the management of Government finances. Even with a balanced budget in 1956 and 1957, seasonal borrowing in the first half of fiscal year 1957 will temporarily bring the debt above the 275 billion dollar limit. Therefore, a continuation of the legislation allowing a temporary increase during the year in the statutory debt limit is required.

RECEIPTS FROM AND PAYMENTS TO THE PUBLIC

The budget receipts and expenditures discussed so far reflect transactions in funds belonging to the Federal Government. The Government also collects and pays out sizable sums for the various funds which it holds in trust for others, such as old-age and survivors insurance, railroad retirement, unemployment compensation, veterans' life insurance, and Federal employees' retirement.

SUMMARY OF MAJOR TRUST FUNDS

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimated | 1957 estimated |
|---|---|---|---|
| Balance in funds at start of year | $44.9 | $45.9 | $48.4 |
| Receipts | 9.1 | 11.2 | 11.5 |
| Expenditures | 8.1 | 8.7 | 9.7 |
| Balance in funds at close of year | 45.9 | 48.4 | 50.2 |

These trust funds are currently accumulating surpluses because payments into them are being made by a great many more people than are now drawing benefits. The rate of accumulation is gradually declining as more people become eligible for benefits, but will still amount to an estimated 1.8 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1957.

The flow of money between the public and the Government as a whole is shown in the table below by consolidating budget transactions with trust fund transactions and by eliminating intragovernmental payments and receipts. The relationship of receipts from and payments to the public is sometimes used to measure the inflationary or deflationary impact, if any, of Government financial operations on the economy. More detail on this consolidation can be found in special analysis A, pages 1083 to 1085 of this budget.

RECEIPTS FROM AND PAYMENTS TO THE PUBLIC, EXCLUDING BORROWING

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimated | 1957 estimated |
|---|---|---|---|
| Receipts from the public | $67.8 | $73.5 | $75.4 |
| Payments to the public | 70.5 | 71.0 | 72.9 |
| Excess of receipts from the public | | 2.4 | 2.4 |
| Excess of payments to the public | 2.7 | | |

An excess of Federal cash receipts from the public is estimated for both the fiscal years 1956 and 1957.

SUMMARY TABLES

The following two pages present tables showing key budget figures on both new authority to incur obligations and expenditures for each major program and for each major agency. ## MAJOR NATIONAL SECURITY

Budget expenditures for major national security programs in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated at 40.4 billion dollars, 903 million dollars more than estimated for the fiscal year 1956.

To build our military strength effectively and efficiently, peaks and valleys in security spending and in defense production must be avoided. I want to emphasize again the importance of a sound, long-range program which does not arbitrarily assume a fixed date of maximum danger. Military planning must combine present defense with the probable needs of a long period of uncertain peace.

Department of Defense.—During the past 3 years our defense program has been successfully reoriented to reflect the changing nature of the threat to our security, the revised requirements brought about by the end of the Korean conflict, and the increasing availability of new weapons of unprecedented strategic and tactical importance.

This reorientation has been accomplished by developing our defense program on the basis of the following policies and concepts:

1. Gearing our defense preparations to a long period of uncertainty instead of to a succession of arbitrarily assumed dates of maximum danger.

2. Maintaining the capability to deter a potential aggressor from attack and to blunt that attack if it comes—by a combination of immediate retaliatory power and a continental defense system of steadily increasing effectiveness.

3. Developing military forces which minimize numbers of men by making maximum use of science and technology.

4. Relating the number and degree of readiness of major units in the active forces to the practical limitations on the rapid deployment of major military forces from the United States immediately upon the outbreak of aggression, and relying, for the remainder, on ready reserve forces.

5. Utilizing military personnel on active duty with maximum effectiveness so as to hold to a minimum the number of men withdrawn from work in the civilian economy.

6. Concentrating our efforts on those forces which best complement the forces our allies are most capable of raising and supporting.

7. Maintaining a strong and expanding peacetime industrial structure, readily convertible to the tasks of defense and war.

The readjustment of our military forces in line with these principles is providing this Nation with the greatest military power in its peacetime history. My recommendations for the fiscal year 1957 continue the same basic policies and concepts.

This budget provides funds for an average of 2,815,700 military personnel on active duty during the fiscal year 1957. Total military personnel on active duty will increase to 2,838,400 at the end of fiscal year 1957 from the number of 2,814,100 estimated to be on active duty at the end of the current fiscal year. In order to permit flexibility in planning and operations, a military personnel ceiling has been authorized for the fiscal year 1957, totaling 2,906,000, excluding Army cadets, Navy aviation cadets, and midshipmen. However, no increase will be made above the military personnel levels provided for in this budget except upon detailed justification to, and approval by the Secretary of Defense.

During the fiscal year 1957 there will be significant increases in certain combat elements, particularly units employing new weapons and units assigned to continental defense. These increases, together with the continued modernization of the weapons and equipment, will further enhance the combat power and effectiveness of our forces.

My recommendations for the military functions of the Department of Defense for the fiscal year 1957 will require congressional authorizations amounting in total to 35.7 billion dollars. Of this amount, it is proposed that 785 million dollars be provided by transfer of existing authority from revolving funds. Thus, the new authority proposed for 1957 is 34.9 billion dollars, which is 1.8 billion dollars more than the amount voted by the Congress for the current fiscal year. Expenditures are expected to total 35.5 billion dollars, compared with a present estimate of 34.6 billion dollars for the current fiscal year.

The increases in new authority to incur obligations and in expenditures in the fiscal year 1957 reflect, in large part, the cost of keeping our forces modern.

Continued improvements in technology and weapons can be expected and they will tend to increase costs unless offsetting savings can be found. Replacement, maintenance, and operations will require a high level of expenditures in the fiscal year 1957 and for years to come. Therefore, the management of our military programs must have continuing study and scrutiny. Constant efforts must be made to plan carefully in advance, to increase efficiency, and to reduce costs and expenditures.

Military personnel costs for the active forces, which include pay, allowances, subsistence, clothing, and related items, will be the same in the fiscal year 1957 as in 1956.

Retention of trained and experienced personnel is one of the most difficult problems confronting the armed services today. Every reasonable measure must be taken to increase the attractiveness of a service career. Therefore, I am again recommending legislation to provide added incentives for the members of our Armed Forces. My principal proposals are for the uniform provision of medical care for dependents, adequate and equitable benefits for survivors, improved career inducements for medical personnel, and reasonable rentals for those occupying substandard Government quarters. This budget also provides for a proposed increase in the proportion of career officers to total officer personnel.

The cost of operation and maintenance will rise in the fiscal year 1957, notwithstanding a decrease in the number of civilian personnel. Major reasons for the higher costs are (1) the greater number of air bases, radar sites, and other installations which must be supported in the coming fiscal year, (2) the sizable increase in the numbers of weapons and amount of equipment which must be operated and maintained, and (3) the growing complexity of new weapons and equipment.

Major procurement and production expenditures in the fiscal year 1957 will be about the same as in the current fiscal year. However, there will be a shift in emphasis within this total in line with the policy of modernizing our forces.

Approximately 6.8 billion dollars is estimated for procurement of aircraft, chiefly for the Air Force and the Navy. The accelerated production programs for the B–52 long-range jet bomber and the F–101 and F–104 supersonic interceptors will be continued in the fiscal year 1957. In addition, there will be substantial procurement of the Navy's new supersonic F–8U fighter.

Expenditures for the procurement of guided missiles will be the highest in our history, increasing by more than one-third over 1956 and about double the amount spent for this purpose during 1955.

Expenditures for electronic and communications equipment will remain high during the fiscal year 1957, to meet the needs for continental defense and our combat forces. Expenditures for ammunition, combat vehicles, trucks, and other major equipment items, will continue to decline because our requirements have now been met in large part.

This budget provides for continuation of the Navy shipbuilding program at a slightly higher level than in the fiscal year 1956 in order to carry forward the modernization of the fleet, most of which was built during World War II. In addition to those already authorized by the Congress, there is included in the proposed shipbuilding program for 1957 the construction of a sixth carrier of the Forrestal class, additional nuclear-powered submarines, guided-missile destroyers and frigates, and an experimental nuclear-powered cruiser. Provision is also made for developing a practical nuclear powerplant for future installation in ships of the large carrier class. Conversion of ships now in the fleet will be undertaken to provide them with additional nuclear weapons and with guided missile capabilities, and to permit them to operate modern high-speed aircraft.

Military public works will continue slightly below the level of the current year. This budget provides for the construction in the fiscal year 1957 of facilities associated with the continental air defense system, including Nike sites; further additions to the aircraft warning systems, including the Distant Early Warning Line; guided missile facilities; and air bases for the Navy and Air Force.

Expenditures for our Reserve components in the fiscal year 1957 will be considerably greater than in 1956, reflecting an increase during the year of about 130,000 reservists in drill pay status and further expansion of facilities for the Reserve forces. The number of Reserve personnel engaged in regularly paid drills is expected to increase to 1.1 million by the end of 1957. In addition, this budget provides for 6 months' active duty training under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 for about 80,000 Reserve forces personnel.

Research and development expenditures will be somewhat higher in the fiscal year 1957 than in the current year. Major emphasis will be placed on projects related to guided missiles, continental air defense, and to the application of nuclear energy for the propulsion of aircraft and ships. It is my belief that increased returns in military research and development can be obtained through a relatively stable program at approximately the present level which can utilize effectively our scientific and technological resources. Military research and development now engages a substantial proportion of the scientists and engineers employed in research and development in the Nation. Care must be exercised in selecting the projects to be supported, and efforts must be concentrated on those of high priority.

Continued progress has been made during the past year in improving the management of the Department of Defense. The Secretary of Defense is giving careful study to the recommendations of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government and its task forces on defense activities. Some of these recommendations have already been put into effect; in certain other cases, they have been adopted in modified form, consistent with the objectives of the Commission report. Responsibility for supplying all food, which costs 1.2 billion dollars annually, has been placed under the Secretary of the Army. A single food-supply system for bulk procurement and storage will eliminate duplicate storage facilities and costly cross-hauling. The three military departments have also been directed to undertake joint planning and utilization of all the health and medical resources of the Department of Defense.

Financial management has been made more effective by increasing the scope of stock funds. These funds currently cover inventories of over 8.2 billion dollars, and their coverage will be expanded. Stock funds are used to buy supplies and equipment, and to control inventories centrally. Each of the services then meets its needs by purchasing from this central stock. This method makes possible a better distribution of supplies and equipment with a minimum inventory. It encourages cost consciousness throughout each of the services. As a result, in the last 3 fiscal years 2.5 billion dollars have been recovered from the stock funds as inventories were reduced. Further reductions in inventories this year will make available additional surplus capital of 785 million dollars in the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps stock funds. This surplus is applied in this budget to reduce the amount of new authority to incur obligations which would otherwise be required for the fiscal year 1957.

Industrial funds are being used to serve the same kind of businesslike purpose in commercial- and industrial-type installations. During the fiscal year 1957 industrial fund financing will be extended to additional activities in each of the services. This will greatly increase the volume of business, currently amounting to about 1.8 billion dollars, conducted under such funds.

Civil defense.—The key to our civil defense is the expanded continental defense program, including the distant early warning system. Additional progress has been made in the civil defense program under the Federal Civil Defense Administration, whose expenditures are classified with those for civil disasters in the commerce and housing section of the budget. Comprehensive studies are being conducted jointly by the Federal Civil Defense Administration, the States, and critical target cities to determine the best procedures that can be adopted in case of an atomic attack. Such planning has vital national importance and parallels the necessity for maintaining a strong military establishment.

This budget provides for a strengthened effort on the part of the Federal Government to assist the States and cities in devising the most effective common defense. It includes funds to extend civil defense preparations in more metropolitan target zones in accordance with recent recommendations of a special committee on civil defense.

Funds also are included to accelerate procurement of field-type emergency hospitals and increase stockpiles of medical and radiological supplies.

Development and control of atomic energy.—We have long sought and we continue to seek, jointly with other nations, means to banish the threat of nuclear warfare which still confronts the world. Pending a trustworthy agreement, however, we must continue to increase our nuclear weapons stockpile which, together with the means of delivery, is the principal deterrent to armed aggression in the world. At the same time, we shall speed the development of the peaceful uses of atomic energy and make the resulting benefits, under appropriate controls, available to other nations for the well-being of all mankind. To this end we continue to hope that an international atomic energy agency will be established at an early date.

The United Nations Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy at Geneva last summer, which grew out of a proposal by the United States, not only facilitated the exchange of technical information but served to emphasize the great promise of atomic energy for peace.

So that we may further demonstrate this great promise, I recommend again that the Congress take early action to authorize the construction of a nuclear-powered ship, using an atomic propulsion plant already developed, which will carry the message of "Atoms for Peace" to the ports of the world. The Atomic Energy Commission has sufficient funds available for construction and installation of the propulsion plant and machinery, and I shall request additional funds for the fiscal year 1956 for the Department of Commerce for construction of a suitable hull.

Total expenditures for atomic energy in 1957 are estimated at 1.9 billion dollars, 230 million dollars more than in 1956.

Operating expenditures will increase from 1.4 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1956 to 1.6 billion dollars in 1957. Greater quantities of uranium ores and concentrates will be purchased. Production from the Commission's plants will increase but at reduced unit costs as the expanded facilities, soon to be completed, come into full operation. Research and development work in numerous areas, both civilian and military, will be expanded.

Capital expenditures in the fiscal year 1957 are expected to decline somewhat from 1956 levels. I shall propose to the Congress legislation to authorize new construction in 1957, principally for improvements to increase the efficiency, capacity, and safety of production plants and for research and development facilities.

The civilian applications of nuclear energy will receive even greater attention, not only in terms of Government expenditures, but also through the Commission's efforts to stimulate more participation and investment by private and public groups, particularly in the development of atomic power. As such participation increases, the share of power development costs financed by the Government should decrease. As part of its encouragement of the development of atomic power, the Commission plans in 1957 to continue specialized training of nuclear engineers and to expand its support of the training of nuclear engineers through fellowships and through provision of specialized training equipment to a number of universities. The Commission will also construct a special reactor for use by the Department of Defense in developing methods for preserving food through irradiation.

Great emphasis is being placed on the development of a larger variety of nuclear propulsion plants. To this end, funds are included under proposed legislation for additional developmental facilities at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho.

The Atomic Energy Commission will also step up research on controlled thermonuclear reactions as new discoveries may justify. This program, while long range, gives promise of yet greater dimensions to the potential peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

Continuing progress in basic research is fundamental to further advances in nuclear energy. The Commission will increase in the fiscal year 1957 its support of basic research in the physical and life sciences, including development and design studies of high-energy particle accelerators. The 1957 construction program will include new buildings at three of the Commission's laboratories.

Stockpiling and defense production expansion.—As a result of the financial assistance provided under the Defense Production Act, substantially increased supplies of aluminum, copper, nickel, and other strategic materials are now available both for industry and for the national stockpile. To assure continued flexible authority for mobilization preparedness to meet future emergencies, I recommend extension of the Defense Production Act for 2 years.

An increasing number of stockpile objectives are being filled. Moreover, the high level of industrial activity has reduced the availability of some materials for stockpiling and required diversion of part of the new supply of a few materials to meet shortages in key industries. As a result, net expenditures for the stockpile and for defense production expansion are expected to decline from 713 million dollars in the fiscal year 1956 to 378 million dollars in 1957. No new authority to incur obligations is recommended for the fiscal year 1957, since sufficient authority is already available for continued rapid progress toward completion of established minimum objectives and for limited procurement to maintain essential elements of the mobilization base.

Under the administration's policy of finding constructive uses for our surplus agricultural commodities, strategic materials are being acquired by barter transactions with foreign suppliers. The Department of Agriculture plans to acquire additional strategic materials by barter during 1957. In the fiscal years 1956 and 1957, expenditures amounting to about 65 million dollars will be made under the appropriations for stockpiling to reimburse the Department of Agriculture for materials added to the national stockpile.

Mutual Security Program.—Through the Mutual Security Program we shall continue to work jointly with our friends and allies in building and maintaining the defensive and economic strength of the free world. This long-range program, which includes military, economic, and technical assistance, is essential to our national security. Our assistance supplements the major efforts of other free nations, who themselves are bearing a large proportion of the total cost of our joint efforts. I shall subsequently transmit to the Congress my specific requests for authorization of appropriations for the fiscal year 1957 Mutual Security Program. These requests will cover my recommendations for military assistance and direct forces support, discussed in this section of the message, as well as for economic, technical, and other programs which are discussed in the international affairs and finance section.

Expenditures for the total Mutual Security Program in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated at 4.3 billion dollars, about 100 million dollars more than in 1956. Recommended new authority to incur obligations is 4.9 billion dollars, an increase of 2.2 billion dollars over the 2.7 billion dollars enacted for 1956. Requested new obligational authority for 1957 exceeds estimated expenditures for 1957 by approximately 600 million dollars reflecting the amount for additional funding of long lead-time items for delivery in future years.

Wherever possible, foreign currency proceeds from the sale of surplus agricultural products abroad under the Agriculture Trade and Development Act will be used to meet mutual security objectives.

Mutual Security Program, military.—The program of military assistance for the fiscal year 1957 is planned primarily to continue equipping and training forces which we have helped develop and strengthen over the past years. Total expenditures for military assistance and direct forces support in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated at approximately the current rate of 2.5 billion dollars annually. To carry forward these programs, I am recommending new obligational authority of 3 billion dollars. Within this amount, 445 million dollars is requested for direct forces support in the fiscal year 1957 to supply items such as petroleum, rations, uniforms, and military construction services directly to the military forces of our allies.

In the fiscal years 1955 and 1956, the backlog of unexpended balances made it possible to maintain an adequate level of expenditures and deliveries while the amount of new authority to incur obligations was reduced. The backlog of unexpended balances for military assistance (including reservations for common-item orders) is being reduced from a total of 7.7 billion dollars at the beginning of the fiscal year 1955 to an estimated 4.5 billion dollars at the end of the current fiscal year. If deliveries of military equipment are to be maintained at the current rate, as I believe they must be, this level of unexpended balances should not now be further reduced.

Our planning for the future includes helping to provide modern weapons that the forces which we help support can effectively use. In view of the long lead-time required, funds must be made available in advance so that the necessary negotiations and planning may be undertaken and procurement initiated for complex items such as jet aircraft, missiles, and electronics systems. Hence, for the fiscal year

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

1957, I am requesting new authority to incur obligations somewhat above the projected level of expenditures. Deliveries of equipment and the expenditure of funds will necessarily be spread over a number of years as defense plans involving modern weapons are completed and as our allies demonstrate their readiness to support a modern defense system adequately.

My recommendations will enable us to provide our NATO partners with the modern defense weapons and equipment which we are furnishing in increasing numbers to our own NATO forces in Europe. Although many European countries are now in a position to finance a greater share of the cost of maintaining their existing forces, they will require continuing help if our common defense effort is to be strengthened by modern weapons and techniques.

About one-half of the fiscal year 1957 program will be concentrated in Korea, Pakistan, Taiwan, and Turkey. The program will provide for necessary replacements and effective maintenance of materiel furnished in past years, and will also permit the further training of existing forces. In addition, we will continue to supply basic military equipment where necessary to strengthen further defensive capabilities in the Far and Middle East. Likewise, we will continue to provide moderate amounts of equipment to help maintain certain military units of our friends in Latin America who are cooperating in the development of hemispheric defenses.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS AND FINANCE

The international programs which I am recommending for the fiscal year 1957 will vigorously carry forward our fundamental national policy to maintain peace and help build a strong, prosperous, and unified community of free nations.

During this past year, the United States has made positive new proposals aimed at relaxing international tensions. But it remains clear that the search for lasting peace will require patience, strength, and continued vigilance.

We will persist in exploring every possible means of solving the difficult problems which continue to divide the world. Meanwhile, we must further strengthen and improve the system of collective security. Moreover, it is of the utmost importance that, in cooperation with other free nations, we proceed steadily with long-range, positive programs to sustain and improve the conditions of human well-being which are necessary if peace with freedom is to endure.

To accomplish these objectives, I am proposing expenditures of 2.1 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1957 for our international programs.

Mutual Security Program, economic.—My recommendations for continuing military assistance under the Mutual Security Program were discussed previously, and the amounts involved were included as part of our major national security activities. Some of the countries to which we provide military assistance, however, do not have the economic capacity to support effective defensive forces which are necessary to our mutual security. We must continue to provide assistance to such countries to enable them to support the greater defensive strength that is our common goal. It is particularly important that we continue to help those nations which require assistance in order to participate effectively in regional collective security arrangements, notably those in Asia. This budget, therefore, includes funds for carrying on the defense support program in critical areas in southern Europe, the Middle East, South Asia, Southeast Asia, and the Far East.

The development of military strength as a deterrent to aggression, however, meets only a part of the challenge which faces the free world. Because the conditions of poverty and unrest in less developed areas make their people a special target of international communism, there is a need to help them achieve the economic growth and stability necessary to preserve their independence against Communist threats and enticements.

For our assistance to be as effective as possible, it must be based upon a realistic appraisal of potentialities for economic development and a careful determination of priorities among the many pressing needs in the less developed areas. My recommendations for the Mutual Security Program include funds for continuing selective loans and grants to certain less developed countries following experience gained in past years.

I am also recommending continuation of the worldwide technical cooperation program at a slightly increased level. Technical cooperation is an indispensable element in the successful attack which is being made on the basic problems of hunger, disease, and illiteracy. Through the efforts of American experts working in cooperating countries and by the training of foreign technicians in the United States, the knowledge and experience of our people are being shared in a cooperative effort to solve fundamental problems in health, education, public administration, agriculture, and industry which confront less developed countries. By these means we are helping to provide the skills which are required for economic development. In addition to continuing our own technical cooperation program, my recommendations provide for our annual contribution to the expanded technical assistance program of the United Nations and to the similar work of the Organization of American States.

We shall also continue and expand in the fiscal year 1957 our international program to provide training in the peaceful uses of atomic energy. Funds for this purpose are included in this budget as part of the Mutual Security Program.

Provision should be made for further contributions for the relief and rehabilitation of refugees from Palestine. In view of the current unrest in the Near East, our continued support is essential both for humanitarian reasons and to assist in achieving peace and stability in the area.

The budget also includes amounts for the escapee program and for contributions to the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration and the United Nations Refugee Fund, which aid in the relief and resettlement of refugees from behind the Iron Curtain and in emigration from Europe.

I shall recommend effective flexibility in the use of funds under the Mutual Security Program to enable us to respond to new situations which may arise. I also consider it essential that the Mutual Security Act be amended to assure greater continuity in providing economic assistance for development projects and programs which we approve and which require a period of years for planning and completion. Accordingly, I shall ask for limited authority to make longer term commitments for assistance for such projects, to be fulfilled from appropriations made in future years.

In furtherance of our basic foreign economic policy objective of stimulating international trade and investment, I am requesting a review of existing legislation to determine whether changes will be necessary to permit an expansion of the investment guaranty program. Under this program, private United States investors may be guaranteed against loss of their foreign investments or earnings through expropriation or inconvertibility of foreign currencies. The number of private investors and foreign governments participating in this program has steadily increased. We also need to encourage investment overseas by avoiding unfair tax duplications, and to foster foreign trade by further simplification and improvement of our customs legislation.

Export-Import Bank.—The Export-Import Bank is assisting in the expansion of international trade and investment through direct loans and guaranties of private loans. Its loan and guaranty commitments are estimated at 960 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957, an increase of 255 million dollars over the previous year. Because of greater participation in loans by commercial banks and other sources of private capital, direct Federal disbursements in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated at less than one-third of the total new commitments. Repayments on loans made in prior years are expected to exceed disbursements from Export-Import Bank funds, thus providing estimated net receipts of 100 million dollars. Sales of portions of the existing loan portfolio to private financial institutions may increase this return.

Foreign information and exchange activities.—The present international situation has made the work of the United States Information Agency increasingly vital to our national interest. I consider it of paramount importance that we expand our effort to bring the truth before the people of the world, explain our peaceful objectives, and show in its true light the Communist attempt to divide and destroy free world unity.

To this end, I strongly recommend that appropriations for our information program be increased by 48 million dollars from the level in the current fiscal year. This increase will provide for expanded use of overseas exhibits and other techniques to emphasize such subjects as our Atoms for Peace program, our proposals for mutual aerial inspection as a first step toward disarmament, and the many scientific and cultural achievements by which progressive capitalism under free, representative government is contributing to a peaceful, prosperous world. Overseas libraries will be expanded, and increased emphasis will be given to supplying books to foreign readers at low prices. Where appropriate, the program will capitalize on the effectiveness of television.

I am recommending a modest increase in appropriations for the educational exchange programs of the Department of State which constitute a basic element of our long-term effort to attain a better mutual understanding with other peoples of the world. These programs bring to this country leaders of public opinion and facilitate the mutual exchange of students, teachers, and research scholars. In addition to appropriated funds, part of the foreign currencies received from the sale of surplus agricultural commodities abroad will be used to meet certain overseas costs of educational exchange.

With the financial support of the President's Emergency Fund for International Affairs, we have sponsored, in cooperation with private industry, agricultural and industrial exhibits at international trade fairs which have effectively demonstrated the achievements of private enterprise in a free economy. Similarly, our cultural achievements have been presented throughout the world by American actors, dancers, and musicians during the past year. These trade fair and cultural presentations have been enthusiastically received abroad and have contributed significantly to a better understanding of our values and objectives as a nation. In view of the effectiveness of these activities, legislation will be recommended to authorize them on a continuing basis.

Conduct of foreign affairs.—The Department of State is not now adequately equipped with either the staff or facilities which are required if it is to provide the timely, informed, and coordinated policy guidance which is vital to the success of our total international effort. I strongly recommend, therefore, that the Congress enact the requested increase of 89 million dollars in the appropriations for the Department of State for the fiscal year 1957.

A substantial part of this increase is for construction of an extension to the present Department of State building. This extension will permit all the Washington staff of the Department, including the International Cooperation Administration, to be accommodated in a single building rather than scattered, as at present, among 30 separate buildings. In addition, my recommendations include funds to cover costs in the first year of a long-range program to provide adequate physical facilities, including housing, for our diplomatic and consular establishments abroad.

Steps are already underway to strengthen the staff of the Department. This budget provides for further improvements, as well as for carrying forward the recruitment, training, employee benefit, and other programs initiated during the past 2 years. Increases are also proposed to permit the prompt and efficient discharge of our expanding consular responsibilities and to provide for the collection of more comprehensive commercial and economic data needed by American businessmen and Government agencies.

To provide for closer international economic cooperation and continued expansion of United States trade abroad, it is particularly important that our membership in the Organization for Trade Cooperation be approved. While this will not alter congressional control of our tariff, import, and customs policies, it will help us to remove discriminations against American exports and further strengthen our ties with other nations of the free world.

VETERANS' SERVICES AND BENEFITS

The greatest portion of budget expenditures for veterans is for direct benefits, such as compensation and pensions, indemnity payments, readjustment benefits, and hospital and medical care. These direct benefit costs have been increasing. At the same time overhead costs are being reduced through improved administration.

Budget expenditures for veterans' programs are estimated to total 4.9 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1957, 86 million dollars more than in 1956 and 422 million dollars more than in 1955.

We now have more than 22 million veterans. When benefits for dependents and survivors are considered, nearly one-half of our population is potentially entitled to veterans' benefits.

Therefore, continuing and careful attention must be given to veterans' services and benefits. These services and benefits will be increasingly significant as the veteran population ages, because benefit entitlement resulting from non-service-connected infirmities associated with advancing age will replace eligibility for service-connected benefits as the major factor in the cost of veterans' programs.

The Congress and the public will want to join with this administration in giving careful consideration to the findings of the Commission on Veterans' Pensions which I appointed to study this problem. This Commission, which will report later this year, is reviewing thoroughly the relation of the existing nonmedical programs for veterans to each other and to the numerous civil benefits which the Nation now provides for the aged, the needy, the infirm, and the disabled—both veterans and others.

Steps to relate military service survivor benefits to old-age and survivors insurance benefits are already underway in a bill pending before the Congress. The additional cost of this legislation for those receiving veterans' benefits is provided in this section of the budget. The estimates of military expenditures, under proposed legislation, include an amount to cover the Government's share, as employer, of the old-age and survivors insurance contribution.

Readjustment benefits.—A year ago, I issued a proclamation terminating accrual of eligibility for various wartime benefits. While it is still necessary to draft individuals for service in our Armed Forces, this service at present imposes neither the hazards of conflict nor as serious a disruption of education and other preparation for civilian life as was imposed upon our combat servicemen. The forthcoming report of the Commission on Veterans' Pensions will provide a useful framework for further consideration of the needs of our servicemen for readjustment benefits under present conditions.

The program of readjustment benefits for World War II veterans is drawing to a close. World War II veterans will account for less than 7 percent of the 1957 readjustment expenditures of the Veterans Administration. For most of these veterans, unemployment compensation rights ended July 25, 1952, and educational programs will cease July 25, 1956. The ending of the loan guaranty program on July 25, 1957, will bring to a close a third major program. In each case, the law has set a termination date which establishes a proper balance between the nature of the benefit and a reasonable time for using it.

The timeliness and aptness of our veterans' readjustment programs are attested in many ways. Under the "GI bill," 7.8 million World War II veterans have received education and 4.5 million have acquired homes. Practically all World War II veterans have assumed their civilian status in our economy and share equitably in the general prosperity. As a group, they have made the transition from military to civilian life and do not require extension of these readjustment benefits. For those few individuals who have not completed the change to civilian life in 10 years, approaches other than veterans' readjustment benefits seem to be indicated.

The education and training of Korean veterans will account for the bulk of the readjustment benefit expenditures during 1957. The average of 540,000 veterans in training under this program during the year will be the highest for any year.

Loan guaranty expenditures are estimated to increase slightly, requiring 38 million dollars for acquisition of properties and for losses on defaulted loans. It is expected that 640,000 new loans, totaling 7.3 billion dollars, will be guaranteed or insured during the fiscal year. As in the past, nearly all will be for housing. This program will continue until 1965 for veterans of the Korean conflict.

Veterans who served in the Armed Forces during the period June 27, 1950, to January 31, 1955, are eligible for unemployment compensation under Federal law. These benefits are estimated at 118 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957.

Compensation and pensions.—The most important elements in the continuing upward trend in expenditures for veterans' programs are compensation and pensions. Under existing legislation, significant increases in the cost of these direct payments may be anticipated annually until the end of this century, when payments may be twice their present yearly total of nearly 3 billion dollars. This long-term outlook arises chiefly from the very large number of veterans who may become entitled to pension benefits not connected with disabilities arising from their service.

In the fiscal year 1957, expenditures are estimated to increase 119 million dollars as a result of three factors. The largest is the increased number of pensions paid to veterans of World War I and their dependents. These pensions are non-service-connected benefits granted widows in financial need or needy veterans with disabilities which prevent them from following a substantially gainful occupation. Expenditures for these programs have doubled since 1950 and may double again in the next 5 years if the current trend continues.

Recently discharged veterans of the Korean conflict and of peacetime service who have service-connected disabilities are a second source of growth in compensation and pension expenditures. It is estimated that about 35,000 new cases will be added to the disability compensation rolls during the next fiscal year.

Third, under the pending legislation to provide old-age and survivors insurance benefits to survivors of military personnel, many widows and children now receiving veterans' benefits would be eligible for increased compensation payments. These increased benefits would be partially offset by decreased payments from the veterans' indemnity and insurance appropriations. In the fiscal year 1957, the net additional expenditures are estimated at 30 million dollars, but in subsequent years this amount is expected to be somewhat lower.

During the fiscal year 1957 almost 3 billion dollars of compensation and pensions will be paid to approximately 2.8 million veterans, plus the survivors of over 850,000 deceased veterans. More than 10 percent of the veterans of World War II will be receiving compensation payments totaling 1 billion dollars for service-connected disabilities. About 20 percent of the veterans of World War I will draw non-service-connected pensions in the fiscal year 1957. The possible trend is indicated by the fact that 85 percent of the living veterans of earlier wars will draw such pensions.

Hospitals and medical care.—Veterans' hospital and medical expenses will continue to rise through the fiscal year 1957 as the number of patients in Veterans Administration hospitals is expected to increase 1.4 percent over 1956 to a daily average of 111,500. Almost two-thirds of these hospital patients and most of the 17,000 veterans in Veterans Administration homes are receiving treatment for conditions which are not related to their military service.

Outpatient care, which is only for service-connected conditions, is expected to be somewhat below the levels of 1955 and 1956. The number of medical and dental examinations and treatments is estimated to be 2,398,000 in 1957, a decline of 20,000 from 1956.

I recommend the enactment of 53 million dollars of new authority to incur obligations for construction and improvements at Veterans Administration facilities. About one-half of this amount is for urgently needed replacement of a major part of one mental hospital and for preparation of architectural plans for replacement of four 500-bed general medical hospitals. The other half provides for additional modernization and improvement work at existing facilities.

Insurance and servicemen's indemnities.—Budget expenditures under this heading are primarily for indemnities to survivors of servicemen who die during active duty and for reimbursements to the life insurance trust funds for claims traced to military hazards. These expenditures are estimated at 80 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957. This amount is substantially lower than in 1956, when a large number of insurance settlements were made for servicemen previously reported missing during hostilities in Korea.

Trust funds.—Insurance protection of over 38 billion dollars is provided through nearly 6 million national service and United States Government life insurance policies. The number of these policies in force has steadily declined, as issuance of additional insurance was ended in 1951. During the past calendar year, 25,000 policies matured and 319,000 were terminated.

Transactions of these trust funds are excluded from budget receipts and expenditures. For the fiscal year 1957, cash receipts will exceed disbursements on policies held by World War II veterans, while benefit payments will exceed premiums on insurance held by the older age groups. The net accumulation is reserved for future claims.

LABOR AND WELFARE

The labor and welfare programs of the Government contribute notably to the achievement of our objectives of greater human well-being and a growing economy. These programs are designed to promote individual opportunity and foster self-reliance by assisting in the improvement and protection of people's health, the promotion of education and research, the training and placement of workers, the rehabilitation of the disabled, and the provision of security against economic want.

Most of the labor, health, education, and welfare services are administered by the States and their subdivisions. In fact, four-fifths of the 3 billion dollars of budget expenditures estimated for labor and welfare in the fiscal year 1957 is for grants to State and local governments. Outside the regular Federal budget, substantial benefits are provided through the social insurance and retirement trust funds.

Budget expenditures for labor and welfare in the fiscal year 1957 are an estimated 228 million dollars greater than in the current fiscal year, and 442 million dollars higher than actual expenditures in 1955. The increase in 1957 stems largely from my proposals to strengthen and expand education, health, and research services substantially. These budget recommendations will contribute greatly to the well-being of all our people, both through those activities which relate directly to individuals and families and those which operate indirectly through improved community services and private enterprise.

In some instances, legislation will be required. My legislative recommendations therefore include measures to authorize assistance to States for building schools, for promoting occupational safety, and for reducing juvenile delinquency; a broad program for improvement of the Nation's health; completion of the program of poliomyelitis immunization grants to States; continuance of the present Federal formula for grants for State public assistance payments, with adjustments for old-age insurance benefits in certain cases; and further expansion of coverage of the old-age and survivors insurance system.

Under existing laws, I am recommending increased appropriations directed mainly to the expansion of medical research, greater support for basic scientific research and training, enlargement of protective and preventive services in the fields of health and welfare, improvement of our labor and manpower services, and construction of hospitals and other necessary health and research facilities.

Labor and manpower.—Recently enacted legislation has resulted in substantial improvements in the economic safeguards for workers. Minimum wages set by Federal law have been raised from 75 cents to 1 dollar an hour, and coverage of the Federal-State unemployment compensation system has been extended to employees of small firms and of the Federal Government. This budget provides for the enforcement and administration of these improvements.

To improve economic safeguards further, I recommend that the Congress extend the protection of the minimum wage law to additional workers. The facilities of the executive branch will be available to assist the Congress in finding ways of achieving this goal. Legislation is also needed to raise benefits and provide more funds for rehabilitation under the federally administered Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. In addition, a system of benefits for workers who are temporarily disabled from nonoccupational causes should be established in the District of Columbia. This budget also provides for studies by the Department of Labor to assist the States in improving their workmen's compensation laws.

In addition to improved workmen's compensation, we need effective measures to advance occupational safety. Therefore, I recommend that the Congress enact a new program to provide technical aid and limited financial assistance to the States for promoting occupational safety.

The current high level of general prosperity spotlights the adverse economic plight of low-income rural areas and of urban areas with persistent unemployment. As part of governmentwide efforts to alleviate these problems, additional work will be done in the labor and manpower field. This will include the designation of areas eligible for special assistance, the provision of labor market information, and vocational advice for individuals.

The 1957 budget recommendations for grants for administration of the employment services and unemployment insurance provide for stepping up job counseling and testing in the public employment offices. For example, job counseling interviews will be increased from 1.6 million in the fiscal year 1956 to 2 million in 1957. These increased activities are aimed at better utilization of our labor force—with particular emphasis on placing the older and the handicapped workers in jobs most suitable for them. Procedures for taking and reviewing unemployment compensation claims will also be improved. In addition, the budget estimate covers increases by the State governments in salary rates for the State employees who administer this program.

The Federal payment to the unemployment trust fund is estimated at 81 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957. This is the part of the Federal unemployment tax collections during the fiscal year 1956 which it is estimated will not be used for the unemployment insurance and employment service program. Almost 50 million dollars of this payment will be used to complete a reserve of 200 million dollars available for loans to States which deplete their own reserves for benefit payments. About 32 million dollars will be credited to the unemployment trust accounts of the States.

During the current year significant improvements were authorized in our labor and manpower statistics programs. This budget provides, at minor additional cost, for further improvements, particularly in the consumer price index and in reports on labor turnover and current employment.

Public assistance and old-age and survivors insurance.—Grants to the States for old-age assistance and aid to dependent children, the blind, and the totally disabled are estimated at 1.5 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1957, the largest expenditure item in the welfare category of the Federal budget.

Our welfare policies have a twofold emphasis: To provide basic economic protection for older people and for widowed mothers and children through self-sustaining social insurance; and, where possible, to prevent need as well as to relieve it. My budget recommendations for both existing and proposed programs reflect this emphasis.

Old-age and survivors insurance—financed through a trust fund outside the regular budget—is now providing benefits at a rate of more than 5 billion dollars a year to more than 6 million persons over age 65 and to 1½ million mothers and children. The number of beneficiaries is growing. More than nine-tenths of all employed persons in the country are now insured. Legislation should be enacted to bring in the groups still excluded—for example, employees of the Federal Government.

For a large group of needy people not receiving OASI benefits, public assistance remains the only public resource. One out of every three people over 80 years of age is on the public assistance rolls, as compared with only about 1 in every 10 in the age group 65 to 69 which, for the most part, has the insurance protection. To avoid hardship to present public assistance recipients, I propose that the present formula for determining the Federal share of assistance payments be temporarily extended. This will allow time to reappraise the need for the present high level of the Federal contribution to public assistance as the effects of the recent strengthening of old-age and survivors insurance protection become more fully apparent. Meanwhile, to reflect the fact that more and more people are becoming eligible for old-age and survivors insurance benefits, I recommend legislation to fix at 50 percent the Federal share of supplementary old-age assistance payments by the States to beneficiaries of this insurance who are added to the assistance rolls after the fiscal year 1957.

The Federal Government should also do more to assist the States to adopt preventive measures which will reduce need and increase self-help among those who depend upon public welfare. Likewise, special provision should be made for improving medical care of public assistance recipients through legislation to permit separate Federal matching of State and local expenditures for this purpose.

Promotion of public health.—One of the most important goals of this administration is to assure continued progress in research, training, and provision of health facilities so that the medical professions can help the American people to enjoy better health. To this end I am proposing a substantial, yet orderly, expansion of our existing health services and new measures necessary to fill significant gaps in the Nation's programs for promoting good health.

I again urge the Congress to act favorably and promptly on recommendations made last year to provide mortgage insurance for the construction of health facilities, to train health personnel, to expand mental health programs, to abate water pollution, and to strengthen State and local public health services.

In addition, provision should be made to assist the extension and improvement of health insurance protection for our people. The Congress has taken no action on my legislative proposals to meet these objectives. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is working on plans whereby private insurance organizations generally may pool risks to cover abnormal losses possible under broader health plans, and, if necessary, appropriate permissive legislation will be recommended. Should this approach not be successful, a Federal reinsurance service should receive renewed consideration.

I recommend also that the Congress enact legislation to authorize Federal assistance for the construction of medical and dental research and teaching facilities. Expansion of these facilities is necessary to provide for a continuing increase in the medical research program of the Nation, and will help our hard-pressed medical and dental schools to provide better training for more students.

The law providing for a poliomyelitis immunization program, which was enacted last year, should be extended beyond its present expiration date of February 15, 1956. This budget includes, under proposed legislation for the fiscal year 1956, the necessary funds to complete the program of grants to assist States in the immunization of children and expectant mothers.

Special services are needed to promote the health of our Indian population and to assist the Territory of Alaska in dealing with the problem of mental health. I recommend legislation to authorize construction of sanitation facilities on certain Indian reservations and tribal lands. Legislation should be enacted also to transfer to the Territorial Government of Alaska responsibility for care of the mentally ill, with temporary Federal aid for building and operating treatment centers.

I recommend the transfer of Freedmen's Hospital to Howard University, with provision for construction of a new teaching hospital.

For health legislation proposals, the total of additional expenditures in the fiscal year 1957 is estimated at 44 million dollars.

Under presently existing legislation, budget expenditures for public health programs other than the poliomyelitis vaccination grants are estimated at 395 million dollars for the fiscal year 1957. A major increase of 24 million dollars is proposed for the research and training activities of the National Institutes of Health. Grants to States for construction of hospitals and other health facilities will increase by 18 million dollars, and the recommended appropriation will result in further increases in later years. As part of our policy of strengthening enforcement of the food and drug laws I am recommending a substantial increase for the Food and Drug Administration. In addition, I am recommending increased appropriations to attack the problem of air pollution; to expand grants to States for child welfare services; and to expand health services to Indians, including construction of three hospitals. These increases are partly offset by reduced construction expenditures, primarily for the District of Columbia hospital center.

Promotion of education.—The educational problems of the Nation are acute. School enrollments are growing. Classrooms are overcrowded. We do not have enough teachers.

Americans are demonstrating their increased concern with these problems by working together now, more than ever, in parent-teacher organizations and other citizen groups. Members of these groups—many of which participated in the recent White House Conference on Education—have stressed the need for measures by all levels of Government to improve our schools.

As a principle of our governmental system, we believe in State and local responsibility for public education. This means not only local direction of public schools but also local financial support augmented by the States. States and communities have made definite progress toward meeting our educational problems. They are reducing the classroom shortage by building an increasing number of schools each year. But we still lack more than 200,000 classrooms. In order to increase further the number of new buildings completed over the next 5 years, I propose that the Federal Government supplement the current efforts of the States and their subdivisions in financing public school construction.

In continued recognition of the special school enrollment problems created in many communities by military and civilian activities of the Federal Government, I am recommending extension for 2 years of the authority for providing assistance in paying for new school buildings in federally affected areas. Under present law no applications can be received after June 30, 1956. An additional appropriation of 88 million dollars for the fiscal year 1957 is recommended for the proposed extension. With the enactment of legislation to authorize general Federal assistance for school construction, the necessity for the further extension of special Federal aids for construction and for maintenance and operation in these school districts will require reconsideration.

The United States Office of Education, through its advisory services and its research and statistics, affords another channel whereby the Federal Government can aid in the improvement of our schools. I am recommending a substantial increase for the fiscal year 1957 in the budget of the Office, mostly for the new cooperative research program authorized by the Congress, which will assist the States in their efforts to deal effectively with educational problems.

An increase of 4 million dollars in estimated expenditures for the education and welfare of our Indian population will make it possible to complete the necessary staffing of schools and to increase the number of Indians relocated in urban areas.

General-purpose research, libraries, and museums.—Because of the direct importance of basic research to our defense program and our national welfare and economic progress, this budget proposes a substantial increase in Federal support of general-purpose research and education in the sciences. This increase is considered by our national security and scientific research agencies to be vitally necessary. Even with this added support, basic research will constitute less than 10 percent of the Government's annual investment in research and development.

For these reasons, I recommend that the appropriation for the regular activities of the National Science Foundation be substantially increased from 16 million dollars in the current fiscal year to 41 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957. This will enable the Foundation to extend an additional 13 million dollars of support to meritorious basic research projects in colleges and universities; will provide 7 million dollars for the construction of special-purpose facilities needed for basic scientific research, including the Nation's first major radio astronomy center; and will make available an additional 5 million dollars for expanding the Foundation's experimental program designed to improve science teaching in our schools and colleges and to encourage a greater number of able students to enter careers in science.

A supplemental appropriation for the Foundation of 28 million dollars will be required in the current year to complete financing of the United States program for the International Geophysical Year. The additional amount is mainly for the earth-circling satellite project, in which the Department of Defense is also participating.

Also fundamental to science is the work of the National Bureau of Standards. Increased expenditures of 4 million dollars are recommended in the fiscal year 1957 to strengthen research in the physical sciences and to plan new buildings to replace present inadequate research facilities.

For the Bureau of the Census, I am recommending appropriations for collecting needed data on two important aspects of our national life. The census of governments will provide, for the first time since 1942, comprehensive financial information about the more than 100,000 State and local government units. The national housing inventory will measure the significant changes in the Nation's housing supply which have taken place since 1950. Expenditures for the Census Bureau as a whole will decline, however, as work on the current censuses of agriculture, business, manufactures, and mineral industries draws to a conclusion.

In addition to necessary operating funds for the Smithsonian Institution, I am recommending an appropriation of 34 million dollars for the construction of a Museum of History and Technology authorized at the last session of the Congress. This museum, the first new Smithsonian building to be federally financed in more than 40 years, will permit for the first time an adequate permanent display of collections which now far exceed the capacity of existing buildings.

Correctional and penal institutions.—Construction of two new prison institutions is required to help ease overcrowded conditions in existing penitentiaries and to provide for youthful offenders and more adequate custody of the most dangerous and troublesome prisoners. These new facilities account for almost all of an 18-million-dollar increase over 1956 in appropriations requested for the Federal prison system.

Other welfare services.—The school lunch program is supported with surplus commodities as well as by regular appropriations. Increased efforts in the removal of agricultural surpluses are expected to result in a greater distribution of such foods to schools, reaching an estimated value of up to 130 million dollars in the current fiscal year. These increased efforts will continue in the fiscal year 1957. Additionally, the recommended direct appropriation of 83 million dollars for the school lunch program for the fiscal year 1957 will provide the same level of such expenditures as in 1955 and 1956.

This Nation still has hundreds of thousands of disabled citizens who should be restored to productive employment and thereby helped to achieve economic independence. This budget continues full support of the expanded State-Federal vocational rehabilitation program at a rate which will permit the States to continue enlarging their rehabilitation services as rapidly as their own funds permit.

Another growing social problem of concern to the entire Nation is juvenile delinquency. During the last 8 years there has been a 60-percent increase in the number of children appearing before our courts. The States and communities need technical assistance and financial aid to help them halt this trend. I therefore renew my request that Congress enact legislation promptly to authorize Federal aid to the States for strengthening their services for prevention and treatment of juvenile delinquency.

Social insurance and retirement trust funds.—Unemployment insurance, old-age and survivors insurance, railroad retirement, and Federal civilian employees' retirement are financed from trust funds, the transactions of which are not included in budgetary receipts and expenditures. The balances in the funds, now about 40 billion dollars, are invested in Government bonds.

Increased coverage in the old-age insurance program, increases in the interest paid to this trust fund, and improved coordination of income and old-age insurance tax collection procedures are recommended elsewhere in this message. The estimates of trust fund receipts and disbursements for the fiscal year 1957 do not reflect proposed legislation.

AGRICULTURE AND AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES

This budget carries forward the broad agricultural objectives that we have been striving to achieve through new legislation, redirection of emphasis, and improved administration during the past 3 years. It provides for the strengthened agricultural program which I proposed in my recent special message to the Congress.

Thus, this budget permits an intensification of our efforts to aid farmers in making the difficult readjustment from the abnormal situation of the war and postwar period to a realistic peacetime outlook for markets, so that they may share more equitably in the prosperity which other sectors of the economy are now enjoying. It also provides for continued emphasis on research and educational activities and on soil and water conservation, and for an enlarged program to help low-income farmers improve their situation.

Gross budget expenditures for agricultural programs are estimated at 9.1 billion dollars in 1957. These expenditures include loans made and commodities purchased by the public enterprise agencies in the Department of Agriculture and the Farm Credit Administration. Receipts from agricultural programs, which reflect loan repayments and commodity sales of these public enterprise agencies, are estimated at 5.7 billion dollars in 1957. The resulting estimate of net budget expenditures is 3.4 billion dollars, about the same as estimated for 1956.

New authority to incur obligations of 2.9 billion dollars is recommended for the fiscal year 1957, as compared with 3.3 billion dollars in 1956. Excluding the Commodity Credit Corporation, new authority to incur obligations for agricultural programs will be 621 million dollars higher in 1957 than in 1956.

[1] Net expenditures for the Farmers' Home Administration and for rural electrification and telephone loans do not reflect loan collections, since these collections go directly into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. In 1957 these collections are estimated at 167 million dollars and 124 million dollars, respectively.

[2] Compares with new obligational authority of 2,672 million dollars in 1955 and 3,324 million dollars in 1956.

Most of the increases are for the new measures which were set forth in detail in my recent special message on agriculture. New authority to incur obligations of 450 million dollars is included under proposed legislation primarily for that part of the program dealing with the soil bank. This includes an acreage reserve to reduce current and accumulated surpluses of crops in most serious difficulty, and a conservation reserve to achieve other needed adjustments in the use of agricultural resources. In addition to reducing production of surplus crops and shifting land to more desirable uses, it will aid farmers in financing the transition to a farming pattern appropriate for today's markets.

The budget also provides funds for other measures recommended in the special message. These measures are mainly for strengthening and redirecting existing programs. They include stepped-up purchasing and distribution of perishable commodities which are temporarily in excess supply; a strengthened program for disposal of surplus stocks of staple commodities; a strengthened rural development and credit program for low-income farm families; additional research emphasizing both lower costs of production and new products and markets; and the program for farm improvement and better land use in the Great Plains States.

I am also recommending new legislation to permit refunds to farmers of Federal taxes on gasoline used in their farm operations. It is estimated that tax refunds to farmers under this legislation will amount to 60 million dollars in 1957.

Taken together my new proposals will entail new outlays of 500 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957.

Stabilization of farm prices and farm income.—Programs to stabilize farm prices and farm income account for over 60 percent of the estimated gross budget expenditures for agriculture and agricultural resources in the fiscal year 1957. The principal part of these expenditures is for the price support operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Gross expenditures for these operations, reflecting new price support loans and purchases of commodities during the year, are estimated at 5.1 billion dollars. Applicable receipts from repaid loans and sales of commodities will amount to 3.5 billion dollars, leaving net expenditures of 1.6 billion dollars. In recent years receipts have been substantially less than new outlays, and inventories of the Commodity Credit Corporation have been rising steeply. On October 31, 1955, CCC loans and commodity inventories amounted to 7.7 billion dollars as compared with 6.6 billion dollars a year earlier.

Government support of farm prices above world prices under programs which were attuned to war and were too long continued has been a major cause of the present accumulation of farm surpluses. These now overhang the market and create uncertainty and great concern on the part of the producers. World War II, with its terrible losses and destruction, enabled the liquidation of our prewar surpluses, and the Korean conflict helped to liquidate those that accumulated after the end of World War II. But the sharp rise of world prices during these war periods, together with our high rigid price supports, encouraged expansion of production throughout the world.

The chief domestic beneficiaries of our price support policies in the past have been the 2 million large highly mechanized farming units representing about 35 percent of our farms but producing about 85 percent of our agricultural products. Under the price support program that has been functioning the greater proportion of the dollars go to

http://fraser.stlouisfed.org/
Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

the largest producers; in the case of wheat, for example, approximately three-fourths of the loan dollars go to one-third of the borrowers. Individual cotton loans in excess of 1 million dollars have been made.

We should today resist new efforts to have the Government restore high rigid price supports which would aggravate the problem. The Agricultural Act of 1954 and the new programs recommended in my special agricultural message are designed to make a broad frontal attack on the surplus problem without repeating our previous mistakes of stimulating production beyond available markets and thus piling up price-depressing surpluses.

In contrast to expenditures, the price support operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation should be reviewed from the standpoint of losses actually sustained in the disposition of commodities. In the main, these losses represent the difference between commodity acquisition and storage costs on the one hand, and receipts from sale of the same commodities on the other. Since the commodities usually are not sold in the same fiscal year in which they are acquired, realized losses for a year are not the same as the net expenditures for that year. In the fiscal year 1955, realized losses amounted to approximately 800 million dollars, of which more than one-half were losses on dairy products. Estimated future losses on the loans and commodity inventories the Corporation held at the end of that year are 2.4 billion dollars, of which about two-thirds represent anticipated losses on corn and wheat.

As a nation, we have in the past and, if necessary, will in the future provide substantial sums of money as a part of our efforts to have farmers share more fully in the prosperity of the country. But farmers know that Government money alone will not do the job. Furthermore, farmers do not want to be dependent on Government assistance. They want the opportunity to obtain a better living standard for their families through their own efforts. The Government's responsibility is to help create the conditions in which farmers can have this opportunity.

We intend to continue our vigorous efforts to find markets at home and abroad for our present surpluses of farm commodities.

The Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 was amended in the past session of the Congress to permit an increase from 700 million dollars to 1.5 billion dollars in the amount of loss that the Corporation might incur in sales of commodities for foreign currencies. Agreements negotiated up to December 31, 1955, under this law provide for disposition of commodities worth 504 million dollars at market value, which in many cases is substantially below amounts paid the farmers. The actual loss cannot be calculated until the foreign currencies are used. Additional agreements which may amount to as much as 385 million dollars are under negotiation.

The International Wheat Agreement, a multilateral agreement between wheat importing and wheat exporting countries of which the United States is a member, expires on July 31, 1956. The desirability of extending this agreement is under study and a determination will be made at a later date. This budget assumes that wheat exports during the 1956–57 marketing year will total about 275 million bushels and that most of this wheat will move at world prices under federally assisted programs.

Expenditures under the permanent appropriation for the disposal of surplus agricultural commodities are expected to be substantially higher in the fiscal years 1956 and 1957 than in 1955, consistent with our determination to stand ready with purchase programs to remove temporary market gluts whenever serious ones occur, and to utilize effectively the surplus commodities acquired. Our present pork buying program, which was started in November of last year, is an example.

While our special efforts to expand exports and our increased purchases of perishable commodities have an important place in our overall agricultural program, they should not be expected to take the place of vigorous competition for markets, based on price and production adjustments. My recommendations for new legislation, increased research and education, and the further operation of the Agricultural Act of 1954 will all contribute to this first line of attack on the agricultural surplus problem.

Rural electrification, rural telephones, and farm credit.—The budget recommendations for the Rural Electrification Administration represent a continuation of our policy of making loans available to meet the farmers' needs for electrification and telephones. The budget provides for approval of loans for electrification in the amount of 185 million dollars in 1957, which is the same as that for 1956 and 20 million dollars higher than in 1955. It also provides for approval of loans for rural telephones in the amount of 80 million dollars, the same as for 1956, and 27 million dollars higher than for 1955. Disbursements on loans and expenditures for administration for both programs are estimated at 239 million dollars, 16 million more than in 1956.

The total of Farmers' Home Administration direct and insured loans is expected to approach 260 million dollars in 1957 as compared with 193 million dollars in 1955. A substantial part of this expansion is in insured private loans, which are not reflected in budget expenditures. Legislation will be proposed to broaden the authority under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act to permit the Farmers' Home Administration to make certain loans for farm housing previously possible only under title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. With this change, further extension of the authority for farm housing loans under title V beyond its present termination date of June 30, 1956, will not be necessary.

Several agencies will increase their participation in the Rural Development Program that I recommended in my special message during the past session of the Congress. This program will be conducted broadly as well as in selected counties, and will involve special educational work by the cooperative Federal-State Extension Service, research on farming and marketing problems of low-income farmers by Federal and State agencies, and assistance in providing employment information by the Department of Labor. To assure adequate funds and to permit broader coverage in the financing of small farms, I am recommending an additional 15 million dollars of lending authority for the Farmers' Home Administration under proposed legislation.

Consistent with our policy of withdrawing the Federal Government from activities that can more properly be carried on privately, legislation was recommended and enacted last year providing for systematic retirement of the Federal investment in the banks for cooperatives which are supervised by the Farm Credit Administration. Although the effect of this legislation on the budget will be small, it is expected that farmers through their cooperatives will be able to acquire, over a period of years, the present equity of the Federal Government in these credit institutions.

Agricultural land and water resources.—My recommendations for agricultural land and water resources for the fiscal year 1957 are an integral part of a broad program designed to give additional emphasis to conservation of our natural resources. They provide for an increase in the regular services of the Soil Conservation Service and for the expected growth in the relatively new watershed protection and flood prevention program. The soil bank program proposed in my special agricultural message will contribute also to our conservation objectives.

Expenditures under the existing agricultural conservation program assist farmers in applying soil conservation practices and in making proper use of land diverted from the production of surplus crops. Payments to farmers in the fiscal year 1957 will be principally to cover the cost of the program carried out for the crop year 1956, as authorized in the 1956 appropriation act. I recommend a forward authorization of 250 million dollars for the 1957 crop year agricultural conservation program—the same level as for 1956.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Research and other agricultural services.—My budget recommendations provide for further expansion of research, mainly in cooperation with State agencies. Additional funds requested for educational activities will permit greater concentration of effort on direct counseling of individual farmers in the development of programs for their entire farms; also, on the educational phases of our Rural Development Program for low-income families.

The budget includes funds for the recommendations on research and education in my special message on agriculture. The seriousness of the production adjustment and income problems of American agriculture arising from increased production at home and abroad and from declining prices of major agricultural commodities requires that we materially strengthen selected areas of research in agriculture.

NATURAL RESOURCES

Resource development is the responsibility of everyone. In many cases State, local, and private groups can best carry out needed programs themselves. In other cases, Federal participation is the necessary element in accomplishing broad national aims, where projects are beyond the means or needs of local groups. Under the partnership policy of this administration, emphasis is placed on sharing the cost of projects with the groups which receive direct benefits from them. This approach serves to multiply the effect of Federal expenditures in the stimulation of conservation and development. The recommendations in this budget will result in further advances toward our broad goal of a steadily growing program for resource development through the cooperative efforts of States, local communities, private citizens, and the Federal Government.

The importance of the partnership policy in the development of water resources is being emphasized in a report of the Advisory Committee on Water Resources Policy. This report will also stress the need for strengthening our procedure for the formulation and review of proposed water resources projects. Some of the Advisory Committee's recommendations will require changes in existing law, and specific legislative proposals will be transmitted to the Congress.

Budget expenditures for natural resources programs in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated at 1 billion dollars, about the same level as in 1956. Programs for flood control, reclamation, and multiple-purpose water resources development will expand over the 1956 levels and will require about 60 percent of the net expenditures in 1957. The management and development of the national forests, parks, public domain lands, and Indian lands will require about 25 percent of the total. The remainder will be for minerals programs, fish and wildlife resources, and other developmental activities.

In addition to their economic returns, many resource development programs yield financial receipts. These receipts come mostly from sale of power generated at Government facilities, sale of timber from national forests and public lands, and mineral leases on public lands including the Outer Continental Shelf. Some of the receipts are used to finance current operations and are applied against the gross expenditures of the agency; these are estimated at 266 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957. Other receipts, estimated at 544 million dollars in 1957, are deposited directly in the Treasury, and are then shared with States and counties as authorized by the Congress, appropriated for specific Federal programs, or added to the general revenues of the Government.

Land and water resources.—The policies underlying recommendations for water and related land resources in this and other sections of the budget are intended to help provide an adequate water supply for our people in the years to come and to aid in checking destructive forces of water, as well as to achieve the benefits for navigation, fish and wildlife conservation, and recreation resulting from the proper development of these resources.

A large share of the net expenditures of 690 million dollars for land and water resources in 1957 will be for continuation or completion of construction on water resources projects of the Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation, and for maintenance and operation of existing facilities.

These agencies will continue construction in 1957 on 187 projects and units for flood control, beach erosion control, irrigation, and multiple-purpose developments which will provide such additional benefits as hydroelectric power, municipal water supply, or navigation. Funds recommended for these projects will maintain present construction schedules on power projects and will continue nonpower projects at economic rates of construction. Under the recommendations in this budget, 10 of these projects and units can be completed.

In accordance with the policy of encouraging non-Federal responsibility for water resources projects, with Federal cooperation where national interests are involved, I have supported legislation which would change certain presently authorized Federal projects to partnership projects. Funds for the Federal share of the Markham Ferry project in Oklahoma were appropriated for the fiscal year 1956, and construction by non-Federal interests of this project and the Priest Rapids project in Washington is expected to be underway in the fiscal year 1957. Work on the Cougar multiple-purpose project in Oregon, begun as a Federal project in the fiscal year 1956, will continue in 1957 on a basis which, under pending partnership legislation, will permit local interests to install power facilities and assure adaptation of the power features to requirements of the city of Eugene.

This budget provides for starting construction on a number of new projects which are already authorized and on which advance planning has reached the stage where the design and scope of the major structures have been clearly determined, a firm estimate of cost has been prepared, and a current analysis of economic justification shows a favorable relationship between benefits and costs.

A supplemental appropriation is recommended for 1956 to enable the Corps of Engineers to accelerate its flood-control work in the Northeastern States and to reimburse the Corps for expenditures made for relief work following the floods in August and October 1955. The supplemental appropriation will allow 5 flood-control reservoirs to be started in the fiscal year 1956. Additional flood-control projects for this area are included in the budget for 1957.

The Corps of Engineers is also actively engaged in emergency repair work, in cooperation with the Federal Civil Defense Administration, in the far western flood areas, and will be appraising without delay the need for additional flood-protection measures.

For the fiscal year 1957, I recommend that the Corps of Engineers start work on 18 local flood-protection projects, 11 flood-control reservoirs, 2 beach erosion projects, and a new power plant at the Fort Peck Dam in Montana, all of which are authorized. I also recommend that the Bureau of Reclamation start work on 4 authorized projects or major features to provide irrigation benefits and to utilize available power at existing dams. The total cost of these authorized projects recommended for starting in the fiscal year 1957 is estimated at 189 million dollars, with first year expenditures of 10 million dollars.

Some steps have been taken by the Congress to enact legislation authorizing the Bureau of Reclamation to construct the Upper Colorado River Basin and the Fryingpan-Arkansas developments. These comprehensive developments are needed for irrigation, power, flood control, and industrial and municipal water supply and are beyond the capacity of local initiative, public or private. I again urge their authorization and have made provision in this budget under proposed legislation for their initiation. I also recommend authorization and funds for the Bureau of Reclamation to initiate 3 other projects for further development of water resources in the West. The estimated total cost of the 5 proposed projects is 1.1 billion dollars, with 1957 expenditures estimated at 9 million dollars.

This budget includes 20 million dollars under proposed legislation to enable the Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation to participate, in 1957, in new partnership water developments, such as the Green Peter-White Bridge Reservoir in Oregon, the Bruces Eddy Reservoir in Idaho, and the John Day Reservoir in Washington and Oregon. The proposed legislation would also authorize the Bureau of Reclamation to assist local organizations by means of loans and grants for small reclamation projects.

Budget recommendations provide for progress in the collection of basic data on hydrology, topography, and other physical factors needed in the planning and design of water development projects. Investigations of proposed projects and advance planning of authorized projects will go forward at rates which will provide for the orderly development of needed water resources.

I also hope that the Congress will complete action to authorize a new survey to determine whether hydroelectric power can be economically developed from the tides at Passamaquoddy Bay in Maine, and have included 1 million dollars under proposed legislation to begin this survey in the fiscal year 1957.

The Bonneville Power Administration will continue construction of transmission lines based on power generation schedules for Federal dams under construction in the Pacific Northwest. Expenditures of the Southeastern and Southwestern Power Administrations will be for operation and maintenance of transmission systems and for marketing power.

The Tennessee Valley Authority will continue work in the fiscal year 1957 on steam-electric generation units started in 1955 and prior years, under previous appropriations.

Since nearly all major hydroelectric sites in the Tennessee Valley have now been developed, an additional steam-electric unit at the John Sevier plant and two additional units at the Johnsonville plant will be needed to meet currently anticipated power loads through the calendar year 1958. There is pending before the Congress legislation which the administration has proposed for financing steam-power facilities of the TVA through the sale of revenue bonds. So that the work may begin promptly, a starting supplemental appropriation for 1956 is recommended for the Sevier unit. Items are included in the budget to finance the continuation of this work and initiate construction of the Johnsonville units in 1957 with the proceeds of the revenue bonds.

When these new units are completed, the Tennessee Valley Authority will have a capacity of 6.7 million kilowatts in its steam-electric plants and 2.7 million kilowatts in its hydroelectric plants.

Construction will also begin in the fiscal year 1957 on a new navigation lock at Wilson Dam. The present locks are structurally weak and inadequate to handle growing traffic demands. The construction will be financed from appropriated funds. The TVA will also continue work in the development of the resources of the region in cooperation with State and local agencies.

Under these recommendations, gross expenditures of the Tennessee Valley Authority in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated to decline by 57 million dollars from the 1956 level, as construction nears completion on power facilities underway. Receipts from operation are expected to increase by 9 million dollars. As a result of these trends, it is estimated that the Authority will have net receipts of 27 million dollars in 1957 as compared with net expenditures of 39 million dollars in 1956. It is expected that in 1957 the TVA will return to the Treasury 75 million dollars from power revenues as repayment of principal only on Treasury advances made in earlier years for construction of power facilities.

National forests and other public lands.—Funds are provided in this budget to expand forestry research and soil conservation work on the lands in the national forests, public domain, national parks and wildlife refuges, and on Indian lands which are held in trust by the Government. Increases are also provided for timber sales and mineral leasing activities on Federal and Indian lands. These recommendations will result in increased receipts from management of public lands.

The recommendations for the National Park Service will provide additional facilities and services to meet more adequately the requirements of the constantly increasing number of visitors, which will approximate 54 million in 1957. These recommendations move toward realization of a comprehensive development plan to make possible the accommodation of the estimated 80 million persons who will use areas of the national park system by 1966.

Increases are recommended for more adequate operation and maintenance of fish hatcheries and wildlife refuges, and for maintenance and repair of physical facilities of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Mineral resources.—This budget gives recognition to the recommendations of the Cabinet Committee on Minerals Policy. The Bureau of Mines and the Geological Survey will expand investigations and research directed toward discovery of additional sources of essential minerals, improvement of mining techniques, and better utilization of mineral supplies. Funds are provided for the Office of Minerals Mobilization to continue to develop and evaluate supply data for metals and minerals so that adequate supplies and production facilities will be assured for our national security and economic growth.

COMMERCE AND HOUSING

The major role of commerce and housing programs is to encourage economic growth and the development of private enterprise and local communities.

Toward this goal, I am proposing both legislative action and increased appropriations to improve and expand our basic transportation facilities, especially the Interstate Highway System, the Federal airway system, the federally operated waterways and navigation aids, and the merchant fleet.

Similarly, to assure continued high levels of residential construction we shall encourage private financing primarily through the use of Government guaranties, insurance and other aids. As in the past, direct Government expenditures will be confined to meeting those housing and community needs which cannot be financed by private enterprise alone. Accordingly, to stimulate balanced development of local communities, this budget makes further proposals for removal and prevention of slums, for housing for minority groups and for older people, and for other special community needs. It also provides for new measures to aid local communities with persistent unemployment in discovering a sound basis for redevelopment, and to help victims of future flood disasters rehabilitate themselves.

Gross expenditures for commerce and housing, including proposed legislation, are estimated at 6.3 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1957. Applicable receipts, chiefly for the Post Office and for various housing programs, are estimated at 4.2 billion dollars. Net budget expenditures of 2.1 billion dollars will be less than in 1956 because of the increases in postal rates which I am again proposing.

Highways.—Obviously, a greatly improved highway system is vital for both economic development and national defense, as well as to reduce traffic deaths and injuries. The Federal Government has a special interest in completing as early as possible the 40,000 miles of the Interstate Highway System, which connects major centers of population and industry. Last February in a special message to the Congress I endorsed the recommendation of an advisory committee that the Federal Government assume the principal responsibility for financing completion of this key highway network. This program is even more urgently needed today.

I consider it essential that construction of the interstate system be fully authorized now as a single integrated program in order that it may be accomplished over a period of approximately 10 years with the greatest economy. I am confident that the expanded program can be soundly financed so as not to create budget deficits.

Pending final determination of the amounts involved for the Interstate Highway System, therefore, the dollar estimates included in this budget under proposed legislation cover only the continuance of the present annual level of 875 million dollars in authorizations for Federal-aid highways including 175 million dollars exclusively for the interstate system. The budget also includes 22.5 million dollars for forest highways, continuing the present level.

Expenditures for highways by the Department of Commerce and the Department of the Interior under previous authorizations will continue to rise to an estimated 844 million dollars in 1957. These include additional grants under a supplemental authorization of 10 million dollars which I am proposing for the fiscal year 1956 in order to rebuild Federal-aid highways damaged in last year's widespread floods.

Promotion of aviation.—During the past 5 years, the rapidly expanding use of the Federal airway system and the increasing speeds of both conventionally powered planes and military jet aircraft have produced serious traffic congestion. To maintain our high standards of safety, aircraft have had to be delayed or flights canceled, with a resulting heavy cost in time and money to both the operators and users of the planes.

As a step in meeting the immediate problem, I am recommending new authority to incur obligations of 40 million dollars in 1957. This will enable the Department of Commerce to expand further the capacity of the present airway system by installing greatly improved air navigation and traffic control facilities.

To keep pace with further advances in aviation, I shall shortly initiate a comprehensive study of the Nation's long-range needs for aviation facilities. This study will take into account both civil and military needs in order to avoid costly duplication of equipment and systems. I shall expect it to point the way to the development, installation and operation of the most efficient and economical air navigation system within the capabilities of our technology.

In addition to the expenditures to expand the capacity of the airway system, expenditures for operating the present airway system must rise substantially to handle the expanding traffic, to operate new facilities provided under earlier appropriations, and to take over from the Department of Defense the costs of operating certain radar installations serving common military-civilian needs. Federal grants to help local communities build airports are also increasing as a result of the legislation enacted last year. In total, expenditures of the Civil Aeronautics Administration will rise by an estimated 50 million dollars to 200 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957.

Subsidy payments by the Civil Aeronautics Board to commercial airlines will again be reduced in the fiscal year 1957 as a result of rising profits of the carriers and continued vigilance of the Board in keeping subsidy rates at the lowest possible level. These subsidies amounted to 58 million dollars in the fiscal year 1955 and are estimated at 34 million dollars in 1957.

The research achievements of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics are making possible significant advances in the capabilities of our military aircraft and guided missiles. However, increased effort is needed for timely solution of the problems of flight at faster speeds, higher altitudes, and longer ranges. Accordingly, I am again recommending an increase in the appropriations for this important work.

Promotion of water transportation.—The Department of Commerce and the shipping industry have begun systematic replacement of the merchant fleet built during World War II. Negotiations are now underway with the operators to advance their ship construction plans and to determine replacement schedules for the next 15 to 20 years. Three long-term contracts have already been signed. The program is designed to (1) assure a modern merchant fleet adequate for commercial and defense needs, (2) maintain the shipyard employment and facilities which are essential to our mobilization base, and (3) minimize construction costs by avoiding peak demands. As next year's installment, I am recommending the funds necessary for construction subsidies and defense allowances for 22 new ships, as well as trade-in allowances for the ships replaced. In addition, this budget proposes appropriations for the design and construction of two new types of cargo ships—types which could be produced cheaply and in quantity in event of mobilization.

I am renewing for the fiscal year 1956 my earlier recommendation for a supplemental appropriation of 13 million dollars for the Commerce Department's share of a nuclear-powered peace ship, to be built jointly with the Atomic Energy Commission. Work on this ship should go forward as rapidly as possible. Moreover, funds are included in the budget for a nuclear-powered merchant ship, to be built over a longer period, incorporating experience gained from the peace ship and from later research and development.

To finance construction of both conventional and nuclear-powered ships, I am recommending new authority to incur obligations for the Department of Commerce of 165 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957. Because of the long lead-time required for ship construction, only a small part of this new authority will be spent in 1957; the anticipated expenditures of 75 million dollars are mainly from appropriations made for ship construction in earlier years. Operating subsidy payments of 124 million dollars in 1957 are estimated to cover the differences in selected costs between operating American-flag and foreign ships.

Expenditures for navigation aids and facilities are rising as projects recently initiated reach active construction phases. In addition to providing for continuation of work by the Corps of Engineers on 61 projects started in prior years, this budget includes funds for starting 41 new authorized navigation projects including 28 small projects costing less than 150,000 dollars each.

Funds were added by the Congress to the 1956 budget to begin construction of Eufaula Reservoir and Dardanelle lock and dam. This would, in effect, commit the Federal Government to a cost of over 1 billion dollars for the development of the Arkansas River for navigation, since the major benefits from these two structures would not be realized until the entire navigation development is completed. I regard the development of the Arkansas River for navigation as not being of sufficiently high priority at this time to justify this large financial commitment. Therefore, I am not requesting funds for continuation of work on these two structures.

Postal service.—The Post Office Department is progressing steadily toward its goal of a better postal service at lower costs. Decentralization of management into 15 regions, first recommended in 1908, has finally been accomplished, permitting decisions by experienced field personnel able to understand the needs of their customers. Changes in laws and personnel policies have encouraged better use of staff and brought new incentives for employee efficiency. Overhaul of the Department's fiscal operations has eliminated nearly 5,000 needless positions, speeded up information required for good management, and reduced backlogs of all types, including a 2-year backlog in overdue railroad and airline claims. We have begun to acquire, through long-term leases and the recently enacted lease-purchase authority, modern postal buildings and other facilities long needed to speed up and reduce the cost of handling the ever-increasing volume of mail.

Despite these achievements, the Post Office Department cannot be self-sustaining if it pays salaries, transportation rates, and other costs based upon 1956 conditions, but must continue to charge rates which were largely determined before Pearl Harbor. The postal deficit of 467 million dollars estimated for the fiscal year 1957 represents a subsidy averaging more than 15 cents per dollar of postal service. Legislation is again being proposed that would initially increase postal revenues by 350 million dollars a year. Legislation is also being proposed to pay the Department for services to certain groups which it is now required to perform either free or at greatly reduced rates.

I urge prompt congressional action on this legislation, which will drastically reduce the 1957 postal deficit and will make it possible for the postal service to become self-supporting in subsequent years.

Community development and facilities.—The great population growth in the past 15 years and the accompanying shifts—from farms to cities, from rural communities to metropolitan areas, and from central cities to suburbs—have accelerated the decay of large sections of our major cities, and caused many metropolitan areas and small towns to outgrow their basic facilities.

With the help of Federal grants and loans for slum clearance and urban renewal, major progress in removing urban blight is in sight for the first time. By the end of the fiscal year 1957, an estimated 233 communities will have workable plans providing for a wide range of local actions needed to prevent or eliminate slums. Such plans are now required as a condition of Federal assistance for urban renewal. In these and other cities 49 specific projects will have been completed by the end of 1957; 237 other redevelopment projects will be actively underway; and 112 projects will be in the planning stage. Net expenditures, chiefly for grants and loans, will increase to 74 million dollars; these include the additional grants for community planning by metropolitan areas and smaller cities under legislation that will be proposed to increase the present limited program.

Substantial increases are also expected in the fiscal year 1957 in loans to small communities for building public facilities and in advances to local governments for planning public works. Additional appropriations for planning advances are recommended for 1957.

As part of the new program to assist in the industrial redevelopment of chronic labor surplus areas, I am proposing revisions in the present urban renewal and other community facilities legislation. The main emphasis in these programs, however, should continue to be improvement of the homes and living environment of our families.

Public housing.—Continued Federal assistance for low-rent public housing will be necessary in 1957 to meet the most critical needs of low-income families. An increasing number of such families will be displaced by the clearance of slums and by the enforcement of housing codes under the growing urban renewal program. I am, consequently, recommending that the Public Housing Administration be authorized to enter into annual contributions contracts with local housing authorities for an additional 35,000 dwelling units a year for 2 years. In addition, I urge that the Congress restore the provisions of the Housing Act of 1954, repealed in 1955, which limited new public housing to communities with workable programs for the prevention and elimination of slums, or with slum clearance projects underway.

As the number of older people in our population has increased, action to meet their special housing needs has become highly important. Several administrative steps have already been taken in the public housing program. In addition, legal restrictions on admission to public housing projects should be amended to provide a limited preference to elderly low-income families, as well as to permit admission of elderly single persons.

Gross expenditures for public housing programs, chiefly for construction loans and payment of annual contributions to local housing authorities, are estimated at 598 million dollars in 1957. Receipts, mostly from private refinancing of Federal loans, are estimated at 515 million dollars, leaving net expenditures of 83 million dollars.

Other aids to housing.—Applications for insurance of mortgages and home improvement loans by the Federal Housing Administration under its regular programs are expected to continue in the fiscal years 1956 and 1957 close to the 1955 levels. In addition, applications for the special urban renewal mortgage insurance authorized by the Housing Act of 1954 are expected to rise from less than 2,000 units in 1955 to 75,000 units in 1957.

To make this full program possible, legislation will be required to increase the present mortgage insurance authority. The authority to insure home improvement loans, now scheduled to expire on September 30, 1956, should be made permanent and broadened to assure effective Federal assistance in the national campaign to rehabilitate and modernize existing housing. Amendments are also needed to encourage construction of private units for rental or sale to elderly persons.

The Department of Defense expects to arrange for financing and construction of 100,000 military housing units during 1956 and 1957 under new mortgage insurance authorized by the Housing Amendments of 1955. This insurance authority should be extended beyond the present expiration date of September 30, 1956.

The Federal National Mortgage Association will make commitments for immediate or deferred purchases of 423 million dollars in mortgages insured under the urban renewal, armed services, cooperative, and other especially urgent housing programs which I have specifically designated. Sales of mortgages together with repayments and other receipts, however, are expected to be 255 million dollars greater than expenditures.

In addition, purchases of mortgages by the Association under its secondary market program are expected to increase in 1957 to 290 million dollars. Except for temporary Treasury loans, the funds required will be obtained from sale of debentures and stock to private investors, and the purchases are shown as trust expenditures, rather than budget expenditures. By the end of the fiscal year 1957, private purchases of stock will have made an excellent start toward the goal of replacing a Government activity with a private company.

One of the most successful measures authorized by the Housing Act of 1954 is the Voluntary Home Mortgage Credit Program. Under this program, applications to the Veterans Administration for direct loans and to the Federal National Mortgage Association for mortgage purchases are referred to private lenders. This program has already made conspicuous achievements in encouraging private financing of housing for members of minority groups and other borrowers in credit-short areas. Moreover, the rapidly increasing volume of veterans housing mortgages placed privately has made it unnecessary to use a large part of the additional authority provided for direct housing loans. Net expenditures for the veterans loan program, consequently, are expected to show only a minor increase to 71 million dollars in the fiscal year 1957.

College housing.—The Housing Amendments of 1955, which broadened and increased the authority for college housing loans, also reduced the maximum interest rate to 2¾ percent and required use of private financing only if it were available at the same low interest rate. As a result, the Government is required to make long-term loans at a lower interest rate than the rate at which it can borrow for comparable maturities.

These amendments have eliminated all possibility of private financing, which cannot compete with these interest rates, save for the earliest maturities of tax-exempt issues. Many larger institutions, which previously obtained private funds at reasonable rates, have now filed applications for Government loans. Net reservations of funds are estimated to increase from 21 million dollars in 1955 to 211 million dollars in 1956 and 120 million dollars in 1957, exhausting the available lending authority. Most of the impact on expenditures will not be felt until 1958.

The Federal Government should help colleges and universities meet the urgent housing problems which rapid growth in enrollment will produce over the next decade. The program, as revised in 1955, however, does not serve the best interests of either the colleges or the taxpayers. For the sake of a modest saving in interest costs, it would destroy the promising private market for these obligations. This private market will be sorely needed, for the Government cannot be expected to supply the full or even the greater part of the estimated 2 to 4 billion dollars needed for dormitories over the next decade. The administration is accordingly recommending legislation which will increase the total authorization by 100 million dollars for 1957, but allow interest rates adequate to cover costs to the Government. I hope that this will encourage private lenders to reenter this expanding market.

Other aids to business—present programs.—In addition to other appropriations required to finance the broad range of existing aids to business, I am recommending increased appropriations for the Patent Office in the Department of Commerce to begin a systematic 8-year program that would reduce the backlog of patent applications to a more reasonable level. I believe that the Congress should also enact legislation increasing patent fees so that the Patent Office can be more nearly self-supporting.

Through the Small Business Administration, we shall continue to help small business concerns obtain access to adequate financing, to a fair share of Government procurement, and to competent counsel on management, production, and marketing problems.

I also recommend improvements in construction statistics so that more accurate data can be supplied to business, labor, and government on major changes in this vital industry.

Area redevelopment.—All of us are greatly concerned because certain chronic labor surplus areas are not sharing in our general prosperity. The primary responsibility for promoting the economic redevelopment of these areas rests with the local community and the States. However, I believe that the Federal Government should give much broader assistance than is possible under present law. Accordingly, the administration is recommending new legislation authorizing Federal loans and grants, in cooperation with the States, to assist communities suffering from substantial and persistent unemployment. Under this program the Secretary of Commerce would take the lead for the Federal Government, utilizing also the facilities of the Department of Labor, the Housing and Home Finance Agency, and other interested agencies.

Regulation of commerce and finance.—As our economy grows and becomes more complex, the responsibilities of Federal agencies regulating business also increase. While the amount of money required to finance these agencies is relatively small, their influence on economic growth is very significant. In this budget I am recommending increased appropriations to strengthen every major regulatory program, including specific increases to (1) triple the staff of the Federal Trade Commission charged with enforcing controls over corporate mergers; (2) assure effective review by the Department of Justice of possible antitrust aspects of the newly authorized interstate compacts for the conservation of oil and gas; (3) provide for more adequate review by the Securities and Exchange Commission of the vast new capital offerings and the increased trading in securities; and (4) improve enforcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission of motor carrier regulations and assure better compliance with safety regulations.

To continue the export controls necessary for our national security, the existing legislation should be extended.

Disaster insurance, loans, and relief.—The flood disasters during the past year in the Northeastern States, the Far West, and other areas have shown the urgent need for increased assistance to the victims of floods. Since private insurance is not generally available, legislation should be enacted authorizing, on an experimental basis, an indemnity and reinsurance program, under which the financial burden resulting from flood damage would be carried jointly by the individuals protected, the States, and the Federal Government. The budget includes an estimate of 100 million dollars of new authority to incur obligations to initiate such a program.

I am requesting a supplemental appropriation of 25 million dollars in the current fiscal year to replenish the disaster relief fund which was depleted as a result of the recent flood disasters. It will also be necessary to amend the Small Business Act to increase the authority for disaster loans.

Civil defense.—Expenditures for civil defense are grouped with those for peacetime disasters for budget classification purposes, but the program is discussed in connection with continental defense in the major national security section of this message.

GENERAL GOVERNMENT

General government programs include many of the traditional domestic, civil activities of government, as well as certain government-wide activities, such as personnel and property management, which cannot readily be allocated to any single category. Our primary objective is to perform these central activities efficiently and thus reduce the cost of all the services provided to our citizens for their tax dollars.

Net expenditures for general government programs are expected to increase by 146 million dollars to 1.8 billion dollars, largely because of (1) increased outlays to replace or improve inadequate Government buildings and (2) a larger payment to the retirement fund for civilian employees.

Legislative functions.—During the fiscal year 1957 construction of the new Senate Office Building will be almost completed and a substantial start will be made on both the new House Office Building and the extension of the Capitol authorized by the Congress at its last session. These new facilities account for the increase in estimated expenditures for legislative activities from 87 million dollars in 1956 to 111 million dollars in 1957.

Federal financial management.—The reorganization of the Internal Revenue Service and the adoption of improved methods and procedures have led to a more equitable and effective enforcement of the revenue laws. The audit of tax returns has been improved and more delinquent taxes have been collected. It is expected that in the fiscal year 1957 the efficiency of tax collection will be improved even further, without a significant increase in expenditures for this purpose.

I urge that the Congress enact pending legislation to reduce the frequency of information returns submitted by employers withholding income and social security taxes. This legislation will simplify tax procedures for both the Government and the employers, and will also provide a basis for stronger enforcement of the tax laws.

General property and records management.—In the fiscal year 1957, major increases are planned in expenditures for construction and improvement of Government buildings to increase the efficiency of Government operations. To this end I am recommending appropriations to enlarge and remodel certain buildings and to begin the long-needed air conditioning of buildings in areas where temperature and humidity conditions are most adverse to economic operation. Additional appropriations are also recommended for the new building previously authorized for the Central Intelligence Agency, and, as noted in other sections of this message, for extension of the Department of State building and for new buildings for the National Bureau of Standards.

While these recommendations involve substantial appropriations of Federal funds, most of the Federal building improvement program will be financed with private funds under the lease-purchase authority of the General Services Administration and the Post Office Department. Already 53 projects involving private financing of construction costing 105 million dollars have been approved, and additional projects involving about 250 million dollars are under consideration. Additional appropriations of 5 million dollars are requested to purchase sites and prepare plans for future projects.

This program as a whole will make a substantial start toward nationwide improvement in working conditions of Federal employees. In the Washington area alone, buildings already approved or under consideration for approval will permit relocation of about one-third of the 60,000 employees now working in temporary and other substandard buildings.

Central personnel management and employment costs.—The Government's payments to the retirement funds for civilian employees are estimated at 297 million dollars in 1957, of which 295 million dollars will be for the civil service retirement trust fund and 2 million dollars for special annuitants. The proposed contribution to the retirement fund will be equivalent to the Government's share of benefit payments to be made from the fund during the fiscal year 1957. This contribution constitutes 35 percent of the sum estimated to be required to fund (1) the Government's part of the normal cost for current service of Federal employees, and (2) annual interest on the existing accrued liability of the Government to the fund.

Unemployment compensation payments to individuals who become eligible through Federal employment are estimated at 33 million dollars, about the same amount as in the fiscal year 1956. As the current 1956 appropriation provides only 20 million dollars, a supplemental appropriation will be requested.

Accident compensation payments to Federal employees and the related administrative expenses of the Department of Labor are estimated to continue at 50 million dollars in both 1956 and 1957. To encourage precautionary safety measures, the administration will propose legislation which will provide, in conformity with the best business practices, that employing agencies shall bear the cost of benefits paid for their employees.

Civilian weather services.—I am recommending for the fiscal year 1957 additional appropriations for the Weather Bureau to strengthen further its hurricane and tornado research program and to provide more storm detection radar. The budget also provides for additional equipment to measure visibility on airport runways and for needed improvements in housing at remote weather stations.

Protective services and alien control.—Increased appropriations are recommended to strengthen the border patrol operations of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, primarily on our southern border. The Federal Bureau of Investigation will continue at its present employment level.

I shall recommend a supplemental appropriation for the Commission on Government Security which has recently been established to study the entire Government security program.

Territories and possessions and District of Columbia.—I am recommending legislation to authorize an increase of 2 million dollars in the Federal payment to the District of Columbia. This represents a reasonable Federal share of the increased cost of operating the government of our Capital City.

Legislation will also be proposed to carry out a treaty and agreement recently negotiated with the Republic of Panama. Following its enactment, the Canal Zone Government will make expenditures to replace schools and other civic improvements being transferred to Panama under the legislation.

Other general government.—Again I recommend legislation by which wider appreciation of the arts and encouragement of creative artistic endeavors may be promoted and national recognition for distinguished civilian contributions to the advancement of the arts and the welfare of mankind may be given.

INTEREST

Interest payments now account for about 11 percent of net budget expenditures. They are determined by the size of the public debt and by interest rates on that debt. They are included in budget expenditures as they accrue. Interest is paid from permanent appropriations.

INTEREST

[Fiscal years. In millions]

| Item | Net budget expenditures and new obligational authority | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimated | 1957 estimated |
| Interest on public debt | $6,370 | $6,800 | $7,000 |
| Interest on refunds of receipts | 62 | 69 | 60 |
| Interest on uninvested funds | 5 | 6 | 6 |
| Total | 6,438 | 6,875 | 7,066 |

Interest on the public debt.—Interest payments on the public debt in the fiscal year 1957 are estimated at 7 billion dollars. This is an increase of 200 million dollars over estimated expenditures for the current fiscal year and 630 million dollars above actual expenditures in 1955.

The high level of prosperity has created a heavy demand for credit by private enterprises. As a result the average rate payable on the interest-bearing public debt has risen during the last 12 months from 2.29 percent to 2.49 percent at present, and maturing obligations are being refinanced at the higher rates prevailing in the money market.

The administration is recommending legislation so that the interest paid to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund will reflect more closely the long-term character of investments by that fund.

CONCLUSION

This is the third budget I have transmitted to the Congress.

As a result of the substantial reductions in Government expenditures made by the administration subsequent to assuming office, I noted in the first of these three budgets—for the fiscal year 1955—that a budget surplus was actually in sight. However, so that part of our savings through economies during that transitional period could be passed along to the taxpayers of the Nation as a whole, with beneficial effects for the growth of our economy, I stated that I believed it best "to adopt a course leading toward the twin goals of a balanced budget and tax reductions."

Tax reduction was thus achieved with the administration's first budget, which made possible a 7.4-billion-dollar tax reduction program, enabling us to make progress of historic dimensions in reducing tax burdens and improving the tax structure.

A balanced budget is now being achieved in the administration's second and third budgets, both of which we now estimate will be brought into balance.

This course of Government policy has helped to lay a sound basis for the greatest volume of business, the highest employment, and the highest national income in the history of this country. As an essential element in this prosperity, private spending has more than replaced reductions in Federal spending. Federal expenditures have declined from 20.6 percent of total national production in the fiscal year 1953 to 17.3 percent in 1955. This budget is designed to continue that trend.

We have freed the economy from needless controls and from inflationary deficits, and have reduced the tax burdens which threatened to destroy the incentives to work and save and invest. State and local governments are now in an excellent position to obtain revenues and meet their responsibilities.

This budget carries forward the policies this administration has been following in the interest of all our 167 million Americans. The success of our country depends not upon centralized Government control, but upon the efforts of all our people to do more for themselves, to better themselves, their families, and communities. The role of Government is to encourage these efforts.

Some parts of our society, however, have not shared fully in the present prosperity of America. This budget provides for new steps to help create the conditions under which all Americans may share in the abundance we as a nation are enjoying.

There has also been developed an armed strength more efficient and better organized than ever before, and we shall continue building our defenses. We have started a worldwide, cooperative effort for peaceful uses of atomic energy which is already beginning to show results. We have worked with other free countries on a mutual basis to increase their economic and military strength and will continue to work with them. Our future prosperity, perhaps our very survival, will be linked with the strength of our allies and in the development of good will rather than fear and distrust among the nations.

This Nation has reached a new high of material prosperity. The rest of the free world has come to expect our leadership in cooperative efforts for peace and in defense of our common liberties. We should be very thankful for the resources of this country, for the efforts and accomplishments of our forebears. We should also be very humble. America must continue to be the land of faith, of promise, and of unbounded opportunity. There is much yet to do. With God's help, we will all go forward.

INTRODUCTION TO PART I

Part I of the budget (pp. A1 to A13) contains seven summary tables on Federal funds and on the public debt. Each of these tables is designed to bring together in 1 or 2 pages some overall aspect of the Federal budget.

TYPES OF FEDERAL FUNDS

The Federal (Government-owned) funds are of four types as follows:

The general fund is credited with receipts which are not earmarked by law for a specific purpose, and is charged with expenditures that are payable from appropriations (except appropriations of earmarked receipts) and those payable from borrowing. Both in number of items and in amounts, most of the Government's business is transacted through the general fund.

Special funds are those which are established to account for receipts that are earmarked by law for a specific purpose. They exclude the funds which carry on a cycle of operations for which there is continuing authority to use the receipts (as described in the next paragraph). Some special funds are subject to annual appropriation by Congress. Others are automatically available under the laws which created the funds.

Revolving funds are those which finance a cycle of operations, in which the expenditures generate receipts which are available for continuing use. They are divided into two subcategories—those with receipts primarily from outside the Government are called public enterprise funds, and those with receipts primarily from inside the Government are called intragovernmental funds. The former include nearly all of the Government corporations, the postal fund, and various unincorporated enterprises. The latter include various funds for stocking of supplies, for printing operations, and for the performance of services to meet the Government's own needs.

Management funds (including consolidated working funds) are those which are created to permit the pooling of advance payments from two or more appropriations to carry out certain activities.

BUDGET SURPLUS, DEFICIT, AND PUBLIC DEBT

Budget surplus and deficit.—The budget surplus or deficit, shown in table 1, represents the difference between the net budget receipts and net budget expenditures of a given year. Cash balances, appropriation balances, and surpluses and deficits of previous years are not a part of the calculation.

The public debt.—Table 4 gives details regarding the effect of each year's operations upon the public debt. The budget surplus or deficit is not the only factor which causes a change in the public debt. The amount necessary to borrow or possibly to repay is also influenced by: Changes in cash balances, the result of trust fund transactions, the use of Government corporation borrowing directly from the public as a means of financing budget expenditures of the corporations (and the repayments of such borrowing as an application of public enterprise fund receipts), and the change in the amount of checks outstanding and other items in process of clearance through the accounts.

BUDGET RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

Basis of stating budget receipts.—Table 1 includes a summary of budget receipts. Such receipts include all money paid into the Treasury to the credit of the general fund and of special funds. Budget receipts never include money obtained from borrowing. Nor do budget receipts include receipts of revolving and management funds, since these receipts are deducted from their expenditures. Gross budget receipts represent the total received for the general and special funds. In those cases where the law provides an indefinite appropriation to a trust fund in an amount equal to certain tax receipts (the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and the railroad retirement account), the amount thereof is shown as a deduction from gross receipts. Refunds of receipts are also deducted in arriving at net budget receipts.

Internal revenue and customs receipts are stated on the basis of collections reported by collecting officers. Other receipts are reported on the basis of confirmed deposits.

Basis of stating budget expenditures.—Tables 1, 2, 5, and 7 include information on budget expenditures. Such expenditures cover the general fund, the special funds, and the revolving and management funds. In some tables expenditures are stated on a gross as well as a net basis. The difference between these two bases is in the group of public enterprise funds. For such funds, the gross basis covers the total sums expended, while the net basis consists of the expenditures less the receipts of such funds. (Like budget receipts, public enterprise fund receipts never include money obtained from borrowing.) The gross figures used here for the public enterprise funds are derived from the business-type budget statements of part II, which show expenditures and receipts on an accrual basis with a single adjustment (on either the expenditure or receipt side but not both) for the conversion from an accrual to a checks-issued basis. Therefore, the gross figures used for such funds are not strictly on a checks-issued basis, although the net result is on such a basis.

The checks-issued basis of stating expenditures, which is used regularly for net expenditures of the public enterprise funds and for the expenditures of all other fund groups, means that expenditures are reported for the fiscal year in which the checks are issued, regardless of when the obligation was incurred or the goods and services received. Modifications in this basis are made as follows: (a) Where payment is made in cash instead of by check, the cash payments are an expenditure; (b) where payment is made by the issuance of bonds or by an increase in their redemption value, instead of by the issuance of checks, the bond issuance is an expenditure; and (c) interest on the public debt, other than increases in the redemption values of savings bonds, is reported on an accrual basis. Interagency payments and reimbursements, including those going into intragovernmental revolving and management funds are netted; that is, to avoid double counting they are treated only as expenditures of the agency whose appropriation or fund is ultimately bearing the charge. Some incidental reimbursements from outside the Government are similarly netted out of all expenditure figures.

Retirement of Government debt, both direct debt and Government corporation debt, is always excluded from budget expenditure figures. Similarly, the investments in United States Government securities (which occur sometimes in the case of Government corporations) are excluded from the expenditure figures.

Eliminations from both receipts and expenditures.—Certain payments from one fund to another are eliminated from budget receipts and expenditures. This is done to avoid inflating both sides of the budget. Payments to the general fund of earnings and dividends on capital of revolving funds, and the return of such capital to the general fund are the items so excluded.

BUDGET AUTHORIZATIONS

Table 3 summarizes the budget authorizations available and their disposition. Table 5 gives a breakdown by agency of the new authorizations becoming available each year, and table 7 gives supplementary information on the balances at start and end of the year.

The obligation basis.—Expenditures can be made only pursuant to appropriations or other authorizations granted by Congress. Government agencies are generally permitted by law to incur obligations requiring the future payment of money only when they have an appropriation or other authorization available for the purpose. Therefore, authorizations are enacted to cover obligations expected to be incurred within the fiscal year rather than to cover only the expenditures which are expected to be made during that year in payment of obligations.

Distinction between permanent and current authorizations.—Tables 3 and 5 distinguish permanent authorizations and current authorizations. The permanent items are those under which additional sums become available from time to time under action previously taken by the Congress; no further action is required each year. Most permanent authorizations are in force until repealed; a few are in effect for only a few years as specified in the law. The current authorizations are those enacted by Congress in or immediately preceding each fiscal year.

Balances.—Many budget authorizations are available for obligation for only 1 year, but some are available for longer periods of time. Even those which expire for obligation at the end of 1 year remain available for making expenditures in payment of such obligations for an additional 2 years, and further expenditures can be made later in payment of such obligations from the certified claims account of the Treasury. In the case of salaries and wages, travel, and like items, the lag between obligations and expenditures is usually no more than a few weeks or a few months. In the case of construction, major procurement, certain research contracts and similar items, the lag between obligations and expenditures may be as much as 1 or 2 years, and sometimes is even longer. For some revolving funds and certain other purposes, Congress has granted obligational authority well in advance of specific requirements, as a means of providing for contingencies which may arise. As a result of the foregoing factors, substantial balances of budget authorizations are carried forward from one year to the next. Such balances are not in the form of cash, but are bookkeeping authority for the incurring of obligations or the making of expenditures, for which cash must be provided through channels of financial management at the time the expenditures occur.

Relating expenditures to authorizations.—Tables 3 and 6 summarize the relationship between budget authorizations and budget expenditures. Because old and new authorizations are by law commingled in some of the accounts, no attempt is made in the summary figures to separate actual spending in 1955 between the use of new authorizations and the use of balances. However, the budget presents such a breakdown on an estimated basis for 1956 and 1957. In the case of revolving and management funds, it assumes that the portion of their expenditures chargeable to budget authorizations is equal to the portion of the authorizations credited to the revolving fund during the year. The remainder of the revolving and management fund expenditures (or negative expenditures) are here classified as being charges or credits to balances of such funds.

TYPES OF NEW OBLIGATIONAL AUTHORITY

Appropriations are authorizations to make expenditures from the general fund of the Treasury or from the various special funds. In some cases the authority to incur obligations has previously been granted in the form of contract authorizations; in such cases, the appropriation to permit the payment of such obligations is said to be to liquidate contract authorizations. In all other cases appropriations confer authority both to incur new obligations and to pay for them.

Contract authorizations are authorizations to incur obligations prior to the enactment of an appropriation. A contract authorization does not in itself permit the spending of money; hence it must be followed by an appropriation to permit payment of the contracts and other obligations thus incurred.

Authorizations to expend from debt receipts are authorizations to make expenditures from borrowed money. Such authorizations may take these forms: (a) Authorizations for the Treasury to make public debt receipts available to a given agency or enterprise, often in exchange for notes of the enterprise; (b) authorizations for a Government-owned corporation to borrow directly from the public; and (c) cancellation of notes which have been issued by a Government enterprise and are held by the Treasury, where the cancellation has the effect of permitting further expenditures to be made (through restoring previously used authority to borrow from the Treasury).

Reappropriations and reauthorizations are actions to continue available part or all of the unused balances of prior appropriations or authorizations which would otherwise expire. When the authorizations thus continued had been previously granted for current operations of the year, the continuation of their availability into a new year constitutes new obligational authority.

Total new obligational authority shown in table 3 is the sum of the various types of authorizations named above, less the portion of appropriations which is for liquidation of prior contract authorizations. This total represents the new authority becoming available in any given year for the purposes of making commitments.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION AND OTHER ITEMS FOR LATER TRANSMISSION

Tables 1, 2, 3, and 4 identify by separate columns the estimates of receipts, authorizations, and expenditures under legislative proposals recommended by the President, and other supplemental authorizations, and expenditures therefrom, which it is expected will be transmitted later. Table 6 identifies such items in a separate stub section. Such estimates include, in addition to the various supplemental estimates which are identified in part II, an allowance for items which cannot be foreseen now but which will be transmitted later when definite amounts can be determined and the needs can be more specifically identified. Congressional action upon this allowance will be requested later, not at a single time nor as a single lump-sum item, but in the form of a number of specific appropriations for individual items.

INTRODUCTION TO PART II

Part II contains the details of the budget for Federal funds, including various types of tables and schedules, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item of authorization. Included herein is also material on funds of the municipal government of the District of Columbia, and a few other trust funds which require congressional action. The contents of part II are arranged in chapters reflecting the organization of the Government.

SUMMARIES OF BUDGET AUTHORIZATIONS, EXPENDITURES AND BALANCES

At the beginning of each chapter a table in large type summarizes budget authorizations available, and a second table summarizes expenditures and other dispositions of the amounts available. Both tables segregate the items proposed for formal transmission to Congress later as supplemental estimates from those items already enacted or formally recommended in this document. Supplementals required for 1956 due to pay act legislation enacted last summer are identified separately here and in the detail.

Summary of budget authorizations available.—This summary indicates the totals of each type of new obligational authority for the year, the totals of the various types of balances brought forward into the year, and any interchapter transfers or net upward adjustments of budget authorizations. The various types of authorizations are explained in the introduction to part I (pp. A2 and A3).

Summary of expenditures and balances.—This summary indicates the total expenditures for the chapter, the portion of the unspent available amounts which ceases to be available during or at the close of the year, and the balances carried forward into the next year.

For the years 1956 and 1957, there are estimated the portion of the expenditures which will come out of appropriations or other authorizations granted by Congress for that year, and the portion which will come from permanent authorizations and from balances of prior authorizations brought into the year. Additional entries are used where required for expenditures which will come from appropriations made to liquidate prior contract authorizations, and for expenditures from balances and receipts of revolving and management funds. Because old and new authorizations are commingled in some accounts, no attempt is made in the summary figures to separate actual spending in 1955 between old and new authorizations.

In preparing the estimates for 1956 and 1957, it is generally assumed that prior year balances available in commingled accounts will be obligated before the new authorizations are obligated, and that expenditures will reflect the liquidation of those obligations on the basis of previous experience. Where the obligation and expenditure are simultaneous, the first-in, first-out method is used to assign expenditures between old and new authorizations. In the case of revolving funds where budgetary authorizations are commingled with receipts, it is assumed that authorizations are expended in an amount equal to the sums placed in the revolving fund during the year, and that the remaining expenditures or net collections are a charge or credit to balances of the fund.

Summaries of balances.—At the bottom of the foregoing summaries, there is given (a) a further analysis of the authorization balances which are carried forward each year, indicating the respective amounts which are obligated and unobligated; and (b) a further analysis of the amounts written off or otherwise ceasing to be available each year, indicating the manner of writeoff.

STATEMENT OF AUTHORIZATIONS AND EXPENDITURES BY ORGANIZATION UNIT AND ACCOUNT TITLE

A summary listing of the organization units in each chapter shows the new obligational authority and expenditures for each. The detailed listing which follows is divided in several sections: Current authorizations (other than those for revolving and management funds), permanent authorizations, revolving and management funds, and supplemental items proposed for later transmission.

Types of authorizations other than appropriations are set forth under the applicable appropriation titles, identified by separate stub entries. Functional code numbers appear in a separate column, indicating the category in the functional tables (special analyses C and L of part IV) where each item has been included.

Two deductions appear at the end of the table. One deduction, in the authorization column, covers the appropriations which are to liquidate contract authorizations and hence to be excluded in arriving at new obligational authority. The other deduction, in the expenditure column, is for receipts of public enterprise funds, to be subtracted in arriving at net budget expenditures.

A separate double-page table is used for revolving and management funds. Appropriations and other budgetary authorizations to use general fund money for revolving funds are shown in this section. It also shows the total amounts provided by operations, the total amounts applied to operations, and the net expenditures (which is the difference between the two other figures).

INTERAGENCY FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS

For funds appropriated to the President and other appropriations which are allocated by one agency to another for construction, for major procurement, for services to be carried on beyond the year, or for services which by mutual agreement are to be so handled, the amount so allocated is accounted for separately by the receiving agency. The use of the money is shown in a section of the budget under the parent account, rather than in the portion of the budget for the receiving agency.

Most other payments between agencies are accounted for in consolidated working funds or as reimbursements to appropriations. Each such payment is included in an appropriate object class of the parent account and the use of such advances and reimbursements is regularly shown in a separate schedule of the receiving agency. Such schedules of advances and reimbursements are budgeted like management funds. In a few cases where interagency payments are significant in determining the appropriation needs of the receiving agency, the reimbursements are shown in the appropriation schedule of the receiving agency instead of in separate schedules.

DETAILED MATERIAL

The display for general and special fund appropriations explained on page 4 and the financial statements used for revolving funds are explained on page 5. The management funds (including schedules of advances and reimbursements) follow the same style as general and special funds with an extra summation of amounts provided and applied, printed at the end of the schedule of budget authorizations, expenditures, and balances.

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed by the President for inclusion in the 1957 appropriation acts is printed at the head of each item requiring action. The language in the 1956 appropriation acts is used as a base. Immediately following the language are citations to relevant laws and the appropriations from which the text is taken.

Salaries and Expenses, General Legal Activities, Justice

For expenses necessary for the legal activities of the Department of Justice not otherwise provided for, including miscellaneous and emergency expenses authorized or approved by the Attorney General or his Administrative Assistant; and advances of public moneys pursuant to law (31 U. S. C. 529); [$9,300,000] $10,420,000. (5 U. S. C. 22, 291, 293, 295, 310, 315, 341; Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1956.)

Appropriated 1956, $9,300,000 Estimate 1957, $10,420,000

Italic type indicates proposed new language and figures.

Brackets enclose material which it is proposed to omit in 1957.

PROGRAM AND FINANCING

In the program by activities section obligations are broken down by purpose, program, project or activity. This breakdown, especially tailored for each agency and account, reflects the particular duties and responsibilities for which it receives money.

The financing section explains the method of financing the program and the disposition of amounts not used during the year.

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |
|---|---|---|---|
| Program by activities: | | | |

| 2. General tax matters | 1,534,754 | 1,682,590 | 1,707,430 |
| 3. Criminal matters | 1,377,593 | 1,522,400 | 1,542,286 |
| 4. Claims, customs, and general civil matters | 2,372,997 | 2,619,890 | 2,647,490 |

| Proposed supplemental due to pay increases | | 614,000 | |

Comparative transfers represent obligations which were financed from this account during 1955 but are financed from another account in 1956 and 1957. Such obligations are omitted from the program by activities in this schedule and are added to the other schedule involved to make all 3 years comparable for both accounts.

Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, and services received during the year, regardless of the time of payment. Appropriations or other obligational authority must be provided by the Congress before obligations can be incurred.

Balance which expired for obligation purposes at the end of the year, and which is no longer available for expenditure.

NARRATIVE STATEMENTS

The work planned and services proposed to be carried out are described briefly under each appropriation or fund. Where practicable the narrative statements indicate the expected accomplishment in relation to the financial estimates and give some measures of program and performance. In the case of permanent appropriations, the narrative statements also explain the source of the money and the statutory basis for the appropriation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

These activities are those which are carried on by the Department's law offices, except the Antitrust Division, for which a separate appropriation is made.

1. Conduct of Supreme Court proceedings and coordination of appellate matters.—This consists of supervising and controlling all appellate matters and representing the Government before the Supreme Court.

2. General tax matters.—Cases arising under the internal revenue laws and other tax statutes are prosecuted or defended.

3. Criminal matters.—These cover all actions in criminal law except tax, internal security, and antitrust matters.

4. Claims, customs, and general civil matters.—These cover the prosecution or defense of civil suits and claims of the Government except tax, land, and alien property matters.

5. Land matters.—These consist of all civil suits and matters relating to title, possession, and use of Federal lands and natural resources, and representation of the United States in all civil litigation pertaining to Indians and Indian affairs.

6. Legal opinions.—Opinions are prepared for the President and executive agencies, and proposed Executive orders and proclamations of the President are reviewed with respect to form and legality.

7. Internal security matters.—Litigation and related matters pertaining to the internal security of the United States are handled.

A supplemental appropriation of $50,000 is to be submitted for the defense of Indian claims, pursuant to 60 Stat. 1049.

Headings in the narrative statements usually agree with the schedules of obligations by activities.

OBLIGATIONS BY OBJECTS

There is shown for each account a summary of personal services and a classification of the obligations according to a uniform list of objects. These object classes, numbered from 01 to 16, reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose or the nature of the program for which they are used.

Permanent positions are those of a full-time nature which are of indefinite duration. Some are filled by persons with temporary appointments.

This entry represents the number of (a) full-time and regularly scheduled part-time employees in pay status on the last workday in June and (b) intermittent employees who work at any time during June. This is the basis for reports to the Civil Service Commission.

Average salaries and grades are computed arithmetically. The average salary may fall either within or outside the salary range of the average grade.

BUDGET AUTHORIZATIONS, EXPENDITURES AND BALANCES

This schedule shows total budget authorizations available during the year and their disposition as between expenditures, balances carried forward, and balances ceasing to be available.

Expenditures during the year are distributed between those which come from authorizations of the same year, here called current authorizations (whether of a permanent or nonpermanent nature) and those which come from authorizations of a prior year. In this budget, proposed supplemental appropriations for 1956 to meet pay increase costs are included in the regular schedules, and expenditures from the anticipated supplementals are also separately identified. Proposed supplemental appropriations for other purposes are shown in separate schedules at the end of the chapter.

In the case of management funds, an additional section is included to show the total funds provided by operations (receipts) and applied to operations (checks issued) and the net effect on budget expenditures.

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |
|---|---|---|---|
| BUDGET AUTHORIZATIONS AVAILABLE | | | |
| Appropriation | $9,750,000 | $9,300,000 | $10,420,000 |
| Transferred to "Salaries and expenses, United States attorneys and marshals, Justice" (Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1950) | 719,130 | | |
| Transferred from "Fees and expenses of witnesses, Justice" (69 Stat. 240) | 133,071 | | |
| Adjusted appropriation | 9,163,941 | 9,300,000 | 10,420,000 |
| Proposed supplemental due to pay increases | | 614,000 | |
| Obligated balance brought forward | 1,374,126 | 1,365,423 | 1,430,143 |
| Total budget authorizations available | 10,538,067 | 11,279,423 | 11,850,143 |
| EXPENDITURES AND BALANCES | | | |
| Expenditures— | | | |
| Out of current authorizations | 7,810,908 | 8,209,600 | 9,086,240 |
| Out of anticipated supplemental appropriation | | 590,000 | 24,000 |
| Out of prior authorizations | 1,041,088 | 1,149,680 | 1,180,094 |
| Total expenditures | 8,851,996 | 9,849,280 | 10,290,334 |
| Balance no longer available: | | | |
| Unobligated (expiring for obligation) | 17,795 | | |
| Other | 302,853 | | |
| Obligated balance carried forward | 1,365,423 | 1,430,143 | 1,559,809 |
| Total expenditures and balances | 10,538,067 | 11,279,423 | 11,850,143 |

The obligated balance brought forward (plus the unobligated balance if it is still available for obligation) is a part of the balance available at the start of the year shown in the chapter summary data.

This is an example where successive annual appropriations are made. If appropriations of two or more years were merged under the law, a single figure would appear in this column for expenditures out of both current and prior authorizations.

This entry includes amounts which cease to be available for expenditure for various reasons—savings because actual payments on obligations of prior years are less than amounts previously reported as obligations, balances transferred to the certified claims account because the appropriation lapsed for expenditure purposes, etc.

EXPLANATORY ILLUSTRATION OF BUDGETS FOR REVOLVING FUNDS

The financial statements shown below are regularly used for revolving funds. Such funds also have narrative statements on program and performance. Budgetary authorizations for such funds and limitations on expenses of Government corporations follow the general format illustrated on the opposite page. In selected cases, statements B and C are condensed considerably and a new form of program and financing schedule is added (see, for example, p. 193).

STATEMENT OF SOURCES AND APPLICATION OF FUNDS

This is a balanced presentation of the amounts becoming available during the year, either in the form of cash or other working capital, and the way in which those amounts have been used.

The statement excludes depreciation, losses on loans, and other transactions which affect neither cash nor other current assets and liabilities. It does reflect transactions which affect cash, accounts receivable, accounts payable, other accrued liabilities, inventories of supplies for administrative purposes, deferred charges and credits.

Both the funds applied and the funds provided parts of the statement are divided between "operations" and Treasury "financing."

For intragovernmental funds, net expenditures (the sum of amounts applied to operations, less amounts provided by operations) are included in budget expenditures.

For public enterprise funds, the total amount applied to operations is included in gross budget expenditures. The sum of amounts provided by operations for such funds make up the deduction (for applicable receipts) used in arriving at net budget expenditures.

STATEMENT OF INCOME AND EXPENSE

This is a statement of the income and expenses and the resulting profit or loss for the year. This statement is normally on a full accrual basis, including in the expenses sums for depreciation and provision for losses on receivables. It also indicates losses and chargeoffs when they occur. In addition, gains or losses from the sale of equipment or other assets appear here.

At the bottom of this statement there is an analysis of the retained earnings or cumulative deficit, showing any additions to it during the year, any charges made against it, and the balance at the end of the year.

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL CONDITION

This is a balance sheet of assets, liabilities, and investment of the Government at the close of the fiscal year. Like the other statements, it is normally on an accrual basis.

When interest is paid on part or all of the investment of the U. S. Government, this section is broken down to indicate the amount which has been invested by the Government on which the fund pays interest, the amount invested on which the fund does not pay interest, and the retained earnings or deficit.

If the enterprise acquires materials for manufacture or sale, purchases for manufacture or sale are included in expenses in this statement, whether or not the materials are used within the year.

Selected working capital items comprise the current assets (other than cash with Treasury, inventories for sale or manufacture, and without deducting any valuation allowances) less the current liabilities (other than reserves).

Net effect on budget expenditures includes the spending of appropriations for the revolving fund as well as the spending of the fund's own receipts. A negative figure here indicates collections in excess of expenditures.

| Nonoperating income or loss (−): | | | |
| Proceeds from sale of fixed assets | 3,937 | 1,000 | 1,000 |
| Net book value of assets sold | 4,832 | 1,500 | 1,500 |
| Net nonoperating loss (−) | −895 | −500 | −500 |

Income (as well as expenses) is usually based on the accrual method of accounting.

If the enterprise conducts a sales operation, the cost of goods sold, rather than purchases, is considered an expense in this statement.

Depreciation and other expenses not shown on statement A are indicated separately.

This entry agrees with the balance sheet. It represents cumulative profits kept in the business, whether in the form of cash, inventories, receivables, or fixed assets.

NOTE.—Obligated balances are as follows: June 30, 1954, −$42,087; 1955, −$20,183; 1956, $634; 1957, −$8,366 (negative figures represent receivables, etc., in excess of obligations).
Unobligated balances are as follows: June 30, 1954, $240,531; 1955, $265,936; 1956, $262,366; 1957, $268,366.
Cash balance with Treasury on June 30, 1954, was $196,444.

This entry represents cash on deposit with the Treasury. If the fund has any cash in commercial banks, it is also included here. It excludes any balances of appropriations (or other authorizations) which have not yet been paid into the fund.

"Liabilities" normally means what is owed for goods and services which have been received.

The investment of the U. S. Government indicates the Government's interest as owner, plus the Government's interest as creditor in the form of notes payable to the Treasury where a Government corporation has authorization to borrow on such notes.

Obligated balances consist of current liabilities shown on the statement plus such other obligations or commitments as may not have matured into liabilities, minus the current assets that are included in selected working capital. The total cash minus obligated balances makes up the unobligated balance used in compiling chapter summary data.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Library of Congress, established by an act of Congress approved April 24, 1800, is not only the library of the Congress itself, but is also the principal general library of the Government of the United States. Its collections are comprehensive and varied, and include outstanding collections of books, periodicals, newspapers, documents of the national governments of the world, literature in the Oriental languages, etc., and manuscripts, maps, music, motion picture films, sound recordings, prints, and photographs. In addition to maintenance of the collections and the rendering of general and basic services connected therewith, certain specialized functions are performed: the Legislative Reference Service, registration of copyrights, catalog card distribution, and the service of books in raised characters and talking books to the blind. In terms of these broad fields of activity comparative obligations (including only those chargeable to annual appropriations) for 1955 and estimated for 1956 and 1957 are:

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |

| Total obligations | 9,515,834 | 10,364,027 | 10,677,253 |

The Library's first obligation is to the Congress; the second, to other agencies of the Government; and the third, to other libraries, scholars, investigators, and the general public.

In addition to funds appropriated annually by Congress, there are also available a number of gift and trust funds, and working funds.

Certain responsibilities for the physical equipment, maintenance and operation of the Library buildings rest by law with the Architect of the Capitol, and estimates for these purposes are carried under the request of that office.

The Library's major objectives for 1957 are to meet the needs of Congress, to satisfy the official inquiries from other Government agencies, and to insure adequacy of public services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Personal services and incidental expenses required for the basic operations of the Library are financed from this appropriation.

1. Acquisition of library materials.—The development of the Library's collections is planned; materials are procured by purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, transfer, and official deposit; and materials are selected for addition to the permanent collections. The objectives for 1957 are improved procedure for determining the more urgent acquisition needs of the Library, particularly for noncurrent strategic materials, and improvement in exchange relations with institutions in the more important areas of the world. The collections totaled 34,359,194 items as of June 30, 1955, and consisted of 10,513,048 books and pamphlets; 14,578,313 manuscript pieces and 9,267,833 maps, pieces of music, reels of microfilm, photographs and other miscellaneous items. Of the items received, about 1¼ million are added to the permanent collections annually. Those received from various sources in 1955 and estimated for 1956 and 1957 are as follows:

| Total | 5,340,592 | 5,199,000 | 5,204,000 |

2. Organization of the collections.—Library materials are cataloged, classified, marked, and arranged; Library of Congress catalogs and the National Union Catalogs are maintained; and binding operations are controlled. The objectives for this activity in 1957 are increased processing control over materials and improved cataloging methods and procedures to assure the usefulness of the collections.

Selected performance data for 1955 and estimated for 1956 and 1957 (not including processing activities performed by the reference department and law library) are as follows:

The objectives of this activity for 1957 are adequate service to readers during the 52 hours of full service and the 26 hours of limited service weekly; adequate custody and maintenance of the collections; and the interpretation of the collections through the preparation of bibliographies and checklists. The slight upward trend in workload in some of the activities is expected to continue in 1956 and 1957.

A staff of 191, including 82 part-time charwomen, preserves, cleans, and maintains the Library buildings, collections, and grounds; operates telephone switchboards, elevators, check stands, and motor vehicles; procures and maintains furniture, office supplies, housekeeping materials, and miscellaneous equipment; assigns space; and operates the receiving and stock rooms. The guard force staff of 76 is necessary to prevent fire and theft, to maintain order, and to provide regular inspections of all areas in both buildings in which is assembled one of the greatest accumulations of national treasures in the world.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording and cataloging all copyright applications, assignments and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, and for collecting and accounting for copyright fees. The Register of Copyrights prints complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The office is conducted as a business operation. The amount requested for personal services is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered as indicated in the table which follows. In addition, the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress is also to be credited to the copyright operation. The income and costs for 1955 and estimates for 1956 and 1957 are as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In performing the functions authorized by the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, the Legislative Reference Service prepares research reports, digests, etc., in answer to inquiries from Members and committees of Congress.

1. Research and analysis.—The Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 lists 19 specific fields of congressional concern in which top-level research is authorized. These correspond in general to the spheres of committee activity. The following 13 fields are now covered: International trade, international affairs, taxation and fiscal policy, American government and public administration, conservation, American public law, labor engineering and public works, agriculture, price economics, national defense, social welfare, and transportation and communications. Three of these (national defense, transportation and communications, and social welfare) were made possible by the appropriations for fiscal 1956. The service also involves the conduct of general research, the preparation of research reports, graphs, charts, illustrations, translations, and response to spot reference inquiries. In fiscal 1955, 56,666 congressional inquiries were answered. Since fiscal 1950, the annual increase in the number of inquiries has run between 5 and 10 percent. The total of inquiries for 1956 is estimated at 60,000; and for 1957, 62,000.

2. Preparation of indexes and digests.—The Digest of Public General Bills covered 6,661 bills during the first session of the Eighty-fourth Congress coming within the fiscal year 1955. It is expected that there will be as many bills to be covered during the comparable period in the Eighty-fifth Congress, first session, and in addition, close to 1,200 concurrent and joint resolutions not previously covered. The preparation of name indexes to an increasing number of committee hearings is to be continued.

3. Reference files, bibliographic and reader service.—Reference files, containing clippings, pamphlets and documents are maintained; researchers are supplied with bibliographic and reference tools; selective and comprehensive bibliographies are prepared for Members and committees of Congress; and reader services are provided by the congressional reading room. During 1955, 73,456 reference file items were processed, 12,633 bibliographic entries prepared, 55,440 published items acquired and processed, and 3,611 readers served. With the growth in number and scope of inquiries, there has been a steady increase in this activity which is expected to continue in 1956 and 1957.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The card division sells copies of the Library's printed catalog cards and publications in an amount approximating $1,200,000 a year. It maintains a stock of over 140,000,000 catalog cards representing some 3,100,000 titles, and fills orders from more than 10,000 regular subscribers—mostly libraries—in the United States and abroad. More than 86 percent of this appropriation is recovered in the form of receipts from card and publication sales. Receipts of $1,168,361 were deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury in 1955. The objectives for 1957 are continued improvements and economies in all operations, increasing the scope and utility of the Library of Congress catalogs in book form, and expanding the Author Catalog to include 1956 and later imprints held by other American libraries.

1. Supplying printed cards for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards supplied to the Library of Congress in fiscal 1955 was 3,658,206; estimated for 1956, 3,700,000; and for 1957, 4,000,000.

2. Supplying printed cards for other libraries.—The number of cards sold in fiscal 1955 was 23,450,243; estimated for 1956, 23,500,000; and for 1957, 24,000,000.

3. Preparation, printing, and distribution of publications related to cataloging.—These publications are an integral part of the cataloging activities of the Library of Congress and include the Classification Schedules, lists of Subject Headings, Rules for Descriptive Cataloging, Cataloging Service Bulletins, and similar publications. It is anticipated that 1957 expenditures will be approximately the same as for 1956, which are lower than 1955.

4. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the Author Catalog.—The Author Catalog is issued monthly and cumulated quarterly and annually. Subscribers to the Author Catalog also receive issues of Motion Pictures and Filmstrips (quarterlies with annual cumulation), Maps and Atlases and Music and Phonorecords (both issued on a 6-month basis and annual cumulation). There were 874 paid subscriptions for all issues in calendar year 1955, and it is estimated that there will be 890 subscriptions for 1956 and 900 for 1957. Included under this activity is the Armed Forces Medical Library Catalog, which, because of a quinquennial cumulation, was not published by the Library in calendar year 1954. The annual issue will be resumed for calendar year 1955 and published in fiscal 1956. It is anticipated that 400 copies will be sold in 1956 and the same number in 1957.

5. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the Subject Catalog.—The Subject Catalog is issued in three quarterly volumes with an annual cumulation. There were 354 paid subscriptions for calendar year 1955. It is estimated that there will be 360 paid subscriptions in 1956 and about 375 in 1957.

First: It provides books in embossed characters, and Talking Books with their associated reproducers. The books are distributed through 28 regional libraries which assume responsibility for their custody and circulation. The reproducers are distributed through 55 State agencies.

Second: The division maintains one of the 28 regional libraries providing service to approximately 5,000 readers in the District of Columbia and the States of Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina. In addition, this regional library offers a national service of a unique collection of Braille books not generally available in the other regional libraries.

The objectives for 1957 are to provide a maximum of satisfaction to the increased reader demand for Talking Books, and to supply reproductions of books in Braille and Moon commensurate with declining reader demand; to continue research in sound reproduction for the blind; to explore improved and more economical techniques of printing in Braille; to seek solutions to some of the more pressing problems confronting regional libraries in the rendering of service, especially the difficulties resulting from accumulations of surplus and little used reading materials; and to provide greater variety and improve the usefulness of reading matter available for the blind.

1. Procurement and distribution.—Books are selected, purchased, and distributed, and Talking Book machines are purchased, repaired, and replaced.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work programs of the Office of Superintendent of Documents are of a service nature and there is no control over the volume of work which the Superintendent of Documents is required by law to perform.

1. Sales distribution.—Government publications are purchased from the Public Printer to be placed on sale. Acquisition costs are paid from sales receipts; hence no appropriation is required for printing sales copies. By provision of law, the sale price is set at the cost of manufacture plus 50 percent. At the end of each fiscal year, excess receipts not required for purchasing additional publications are turned in to the Treasury Department as miscellaneous receipts. For the fiscal year 1955 earned revenue from this source was $2,374,535. It is estimated that miscellaneous receipts earned will be $2,425,000 for 1956 and $2.5 million for 1957. The number of sales orders has been steadily increasing, and in the last 10 years the volume of orders and the dollar value of publications sold has more than doubled. The current public interest in the Government's publishing program points to a continuing increase in the volume of orders.

2. Distribution for other agencies and Members of Congress.—The Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists, including the list for the Congressional Record, and performs mailing operations upon the request of any Government agency without reimbursement. Another service is the mailing of Farmers' Bulletins, Soil Surveys, and other publications which are allocated to Members of Congress on a quota basis.

3. Depository library distribution.—One copy of every Government publication, upon request, is supplied to more than 568 libraries which are designated depositories for Government publications.

4. Cataloging and indexing.—This activity covers the preparation and distribution of catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government, the principal series being the Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications and the Numerical List and Schedule of Volumes.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE

REVOLVING FUND

Government Printing Office Revolving Fund

The paragraph in the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1954 (67 Stat. 330), establishing the Government Printing Office Revolving Fund is hereby amended by striking out the words ["expenses of attendance at meetings, when authorized by the Joint Committee on Printing" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "expenses of attendance at meetings not to exceed $3,000 in any fiscal year"] "purchase of uniforms for guards;" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "allowances, hereafter, for uniforms for guards and nurses, not to exceed $100 to each eligible employee". (Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956.)

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing, binding, and blankbook work, placed by Congress and the various departments and independent establishments of the Federal Government, and furnishes on order, blank paper, inks, and similar supplies. Operations are subject to the authority of the Joint Committee on Printing (44 U. S. C.).

This fund finances its operations out of receipts from the sale of publications and services. Receipts from sales of publications by the Superintendent of Documents are deposited to the revolving fund. All profits accruing from these transactions (sale of publications) are deposited in the Treasury of the United States and credited to miscellaneous receipts (44 U. S. C. 63).

Total investment of the Government in the Government Printing Office is expected to remain unchanged at approximately $46.2 million.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program provides for a coordinated effort by the Federal Government to assist States and their political subdivisions affected by major disasters when they are unable to cope with the situation physically or financially.

Responsibility for the administration of this program is delegated to the Federal Civil Defense Administration. Disaster relief operations of the entire Federal Government are coordinated and funds made available to affected areas. State and local civil defense organizations are active in disaster operations and receive valuable operational training as a result.

A supplemental appropriation of $25 million in fiscal year 1956 will be requested to replenish the fund. The two recent disasters in the northeastern States have reduced the present availability to an unacceptably low balance.

MUTUAL SECURITY

The mutual security program promotes the foreign policy, security and general welfare of the United States by assisting other free world nations to maintain and increase their military and economic strength. It is now conducted under the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended. The execution of the program has been delegated by the President to the Secretaries of State and Defense. The Director of the International Cooperation Administration in the Department of State has been delegated responsibility for the general coordination of the mutual security program.

Grants and loans made by the United States to other countries in furtherance of the program take three principal forms. Military assistance includes military end items produced in the United States and abroad and the training of foreign military personnel to assure effective use of the end items furnished. Direct forces support is composed of civilian-type goods and construction materials and services that go directly to military forces and projects in certain countries receiving military assistance. Other mutual security programs include commodities and services to enable certain countries to maintain defense forces, economic and technical assistance to promote the economic development of the less-developed areas of the world, and contributions to the United Nations and other international agencies for several voluntary multilateral programs. From the new funds appropriated in 1955 and 1956 about $765 million of assistance is being provided in the form of surplus agricultural commodities to those countries receiving mutual security assistance. Local currency proceeds from the sale of these commodities by the recipient countries will be used in turn for the various requirements of the mutual security program.

Appropriations required in 1957 to finance the mutual security program under legislation to be proposed to the Congress appear at the end of this chapter.

All 1955 obligations have been certified under section 1311, Public Law 663, 83d Congress, 2d session, except some of those in Department of Defense allocation accounts.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The major activities of the military assistance program are (1) the provision of materiel for the military forces of allied nations; (2) the training of their military personnel to utilize such materiel; (3) contributions to joint financing of certain international military facilities and activities, especially in the NATO area; and (4) the operation and administrative costs of the program.

Thirty-seven foreign countries are now receiving grant aid under the military assistance program. The program is supporting in varying degrees in these countries more than 200 divisions, 700 combatant naval vessels, and 300 air squadrons. Congress has appropriated to date more than $20.4 billion for the military assistance program as the United States contribution in this mutual effort in which each ally must play a part commensurate with its capabilities. To date, approximately 69 percent of the equipment and supplies currently programed through 1956 has been shipped. To assure effective use and maintenance of the materiel, members of the forces of our allies have completed over 80,000 military training courses paid for by funds made available for the military assistance program.

In the planning of military assistance to be furnished our allies in the NATO area, from both prior-year and future-year appropriations, added emphasis will be given to new and modern weapons. Increased emphasis will be given to the establishment of a more effective air defense system.

Delivery of end items from the United States and other elements of the program are proceeding satisfactorily and are generally continued under the program for 1956 and 1957. Under prior year programs the United States has assisted in building up a defense production base abroad by placing orders of approximately $2.8 billion. This offshore procurement program in 1956 will be used to maintain, at the minimum economic rate of production, certain plants that are vital to the maintenance of this base. The mutual weapons development program continues at the 1955 level the effort to accelerate the research and development of advanced types of non-nuclear weapons by our allies, and to combine United States know-how with the production capability of our allies to produce certain advanced weapons. Through the sale of surplus agricultural commodities in 1955, foreign currencies were generated to modernize certain essential military forces. Loans for military materiel continue at a minimum level in 1956 because of the nature of such materiel. Contributions for construction of facilities in other countries represent the United States share for 1956 of the NATO infrastructure program under which fixed military facilities such as airfields are being built for common NATO use and are being jointly financed by all NATO countries.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program provides additional support directly to the military establishments of certain countries receiving end items under the military assistance program. This direct support may include imported civilian-type common-use items such as clothing, rations, petroleum products, and medical supplies, and the development of facilities for the use of the military. Necessary local costs of the military are provided through the defense support activity under "Other mutual security programs" below. In all cases, the purpose of direct forces support is the sustenance of military forces important to the mutual defense of the free world.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Defense support.—These programs provide the supplemental resources required in certain countries to carry on a defense effort of the size regarded as essential to mutual defense. The primary purpose of defense support is the attainment of military objectives rather than the economic benefits which may incidentally accrue to the recipient nation. In some cases, defense support contributes to this objective by generating local currency for the military budget, by increasing productive facilities which will directly affect military strength, and by assisting in public works which strengthen the defense potential of the country. In other cases, defense support provides the economic resources needed to sustain an essential rate of economic growth while building and maintaining military forces vital to the free world.

(a) Europe.—The decrease in size of this program is in recognition of the economic recovery of Europe. The 1956 program includes assistance only for Spain and Yugoslavia and for a technical exchange program with the countries of Western Europe.

(b) Near East and Africa.—Continued assistance is required because several countries, in the interest of the mutual defense of the free world, have sizable military forces beyond their economic capacity to support.

(c) Asia.—The need to develop military strength and political stability in this area continues to be great. Some decrease has been possible, however, since the cessation of hostilities in Indochina and the emergency period that followed.

2. Development assistance.—This assistance is given to promote the economic development and to create and maintain economic and political stability. Development assistance provides supplies, commodities, or funds often as a supplement to technical cooperation projects. Development assistance projects or activities are those in which the United States and the recipient country share a mutual interest which cannot be financed with private or other funds, and which would not be carried out at the rate desirable for United States foreign policy reasons.

(a) Near East and Africa.—Development assistance in this area is primarily directed toward strengthening of individual country economies and governments and toward the improvement of intergovernmental relationships in this troubled area. The decrease from 1955 to 1956 is primarily due to a shift of the Iran program to defense support in 1956.

(b) Asia.—The 1956 program continues the program in India at a reduced rate. It also includes a small program in Nepal.

(c) Western Hemisphere.—The 1956 program is concentrated in Bolivia, Guatemala, and Haiti, which are undergoing critical economic crises, requiring increased United States assistance.

3. Technical cooperation.—This program provides for the interchange of technical knowledge, experience, techniques, and skills with the people of the less-developed areas of the world to help them further their economic development and increase their standards of living. Teaching, training, and the exchange of technical information are emphasized and the only supplies and equipment provided are those required for effective teaching and demonstration. Besides bilateral programs between the United States and other nations, the United States contributes to the multilaterally financed technical assistance program of the Organization of American States and the United Nations expanded technical assistance program. The bilateral programs are coordinated with these multilateral programs to prevent duplication of effort.

(a) General.—In fiscal year 1956, the United States bilateral program will continue at approximately the 1955 level for the group of countries where programs of this type have been in existence for some time. The increase in obligations will be used in those countries where the program has just been initiated.

(b) United Nations.—For calendar year 1955 United Nations programs, the United States contributed $15 million, representing 53.6 percent of total contributions. The fiscal year 1956 appropriation funded $8.5 million of this and provided up to $15.5 million for our pledge to the calendar year 1956 program. The United States contribution in 1956 will not exceed 50 percent of total contributions.

(c) Organization of American States.—For fiscal years 1955 and 1956 the United States appropriated and pledged up to $1.5 million a year with the proviso that the United States contribution would not exceed 70 percent of the total government contributions. In 1955 the United States contribution was $1,135,768 and in 1956 it is expected to reach $1.5 million.

4. Other programs—(a) Special presidential fund.—An amount of $100 million was appropriated for use by the President to meet unanticipated requirements. This special fund is available for all mutual security program purposes.

(b) Joint control areas in Europe.—This fund covers investment and reconstruction projects in Berlin and technical exchange projects in Berlin, the Federal Republic of Germany, and Austria.

(c) Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration.—Contributions to this international agency are used to facilitate the movement of surplus populations from countries in Western Europe to countries affording resettlement opportunities elsewhere. The committee expects to move approximately 119,000 European migrants in calendar year 1955 and expects the number to be 125,900 in 1956. The United States contribution will increase from $9.5 million in 1955 to $10.2 million in 1956. The appropriation of $12.5 million in fiscal year 1956 covers the United States contribution to the calendar year 1956 program.

(d) United Nations refugee fund.—This United Nations program seeks a solution to the problem of the unassimilated residual refugee population primarily in Western Europe. There was no fiscal year 1955 appropriation for contribution to this program. The fiscal year 1956 appropriation provides for a United States contribution to the calendar year 1955 program of $1.2 million, provided it does not exceed one-third of total government contributions.

(e) Escapee program.—Supplementary care and maintenance is provided for certain refugees from behind the Iron Curtain and assistance is rendered for their permanent resettlement. In calendar year 1956 the program will continue as in past years, with emphasis on local integration in Europe for those who cannot be resettled elsewhere.

(f) United Nations Children's Fund.—The United States contributes to this fund which assists underdeveloped countries in developing long-range children's health and welfare programs. The United States contribution of $9 million in calendar year 1955 represented approximately 60 percent of total government contributions, while the 1956 proposed contribution of $9.7 million would represent 57.5 percent of the total. The fiscal year 1956 appropriation covers a part of the calendar year 1955 contribution and all of the calendar year 1956 contribution.

(g) United Nations Relief and Works Agency.—Contributions to Palestine refugee agency help conduct relief and resettlement operations for refugees from Palestine. During fiscal year 1955 subsistence rations for nearly 900,000 refugees were provided. Engineering studies for large development projects leading toward refugee employment were nearly completed and a primary school program for more than 150,000 refugee children was supported. Because of political and technical problems it is unlikely that work on the development projects will be initiated during fiscal year 1956. Contributions totaling $16.7 million are planned for fiscal year 1956 to continue the relief portion of the program at approximately the 1955 level.

(h) Ocean freight charges, United States voluntary relief agencies.—About 50 voluntary, nonprofit relief agencies are reimbursed for ocean freight charges on supplies donated by private individuals and shipped to countries which have concluded relief agreements. About $28 million of donated foodstuffs, clothing, handtools, and medical and school supplies will be shipped in fiscal year 1956.

(i) Ocean freight, surplus agricultural commodities.—The International Cooperation Administration covers the cost of shipping surplus commodities to friendly peoples to meet disaster relief requirements as provided in the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 and to pay the ocean freight costs of donations made to eligible United States voluntary agencies for distribution overseas to needy people. During fiscal year 1955, authorizations of $109 million worth of surplus agricultural commodities were issued to meet disaster relief needs. In addition, $167 million of such commodities, donated to voluntary agencies, were authorized.

(j) Control Act expenses.—The International Cooperation Administration coordinates a program to deter exports of strategic materials from friendly countries to potential or actual aggressor nations.

(k) Administrative expenses (other than military assistance).—Administrative expenses are provided for all mutual security programs other than those administered by the Department of Defense.

(l) President's fund for Asian economic development.—This fund was made available through fiscal year 1958 to provide financial support for regional development projects in this critical area of the world. Development assistance is extended to projects which benefit several countries, or the region as a whole, but which would probably not be undertaken by any one country by itself. In addition to supporting projects which will be of importance in increasing the economic growth of the area, the fund will have the effect of demonstrating the desirability and utility of regional cooperation.

(m) Special programs.—Special grant projects and items of an emergency relief nature are required from time to time for humanitarian and other purposes.

MUTUAL SECURITY—Continued

Program and Performance

Mutual security appropriations were made available by Congress in 1954 to purchase surplus agricultural commodities in this country for sale abroad to friendly countries for their currencies. The foreign currencies received from the sale of these agricultural surplus commodities are used for military materiel procured abroad (see sec. 550 schedule under "Military assistance"), defense support, development assistance, technical cooperation, and other programs in accordance with agreements reached with each government. These activities are described in the military assistance and other mutual security program schedules above.

Program and Performance

Mutual security appropriations were made available by Congress in 1955 and 1956 to purchase surplus agricultural commodities in this country, in addition to those provided by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, for sale abroad to friendly countries for their currencies. The surplus commodities are generally bought at prevailing United States export prices, and private trade channels are used to the maximum extent practicable. The foreign currencies received from the sale of these commodities to friendly countries can be used only for the purposes for which the dollar funds were originally appropriated, for example, military assistance, direct forces support (see sec. 402 schedules under "Military assistance" and "Direct forces support"), defense support, and development assistance programs in accordance with agreements reached with each government.

[SEC. 108. Funds heretofore or hereafter allocated to the Department of Defense from any appropriation for military assistance (including funds consolidated with any such appropriation but excepting funds obligated directly against any such appropriation for offshore procurement or other purposes) shall be accounted for by geographic area and by country solely on the basis of the value of materials delivered and services performed (such value to be determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of law governing the administration of military assistance). Within the limits of amounts available from funds so allocated, the Department of Defense is authorized to incur, in applicable appropriations, obligations in anticipation of reimbursement from such allocations, and no funds so allocated and available shall be withdrawn by administrative action until the Secretary of Defense shall certify that they are not required for liquidation of obligations so incurred. Unobligated amounts of such allocations equal to the value of orders placed with the military departments against such allocations shall be reserved and shall remain available until June 30, 1958, for making such reimbursements (except in case of funds obligated directly against such allocations) only upon the basis of materials delivered and services rendered: Provided, That reports of items to be delivered against funds reserved as provided herein shall be furnished quarterly by the Secretary of Defense to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives and, not less often than once each quarter, said Secretary shall make a detailed report to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, on a delivery or service-rendered basis, on all military assistance funds allocated and available to the Department of Defense as of the end of the preceding quarter: Provided further, That no reimbursements for materials or services shall be made after June 30, 1955, until the value of materials delivered and services performed shall equal the amount of expenditures made from all appropriations herein and heretofore made for military assistance as of said date: Provided, however, That not to exceed $302,000,000 of any reimbursement heretofore made by the Air Force to military assistance appropriations as of June 30, 1955, pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be considered null and void and materials and services of an equivalent amount shall be delivered or performed by the Air Force for military assistance purposes without reimbursement: Provided further, That in the event the President shall determine that supplies and equipment ordered against funds so allocated are required for the defense of the United States, the amount allocated for supplies and materials required for such purpose shall be returned to the appropriation from which allocated: Provided further, That funds appropriated in this Act for military assistance (including specified amounts of unobligated balances and funds consolidated with any such appropriation), amounts certified pursuant to section 1311 of the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1955, and, where authorized by the President, funds made available to the Department of Defense under section 401 of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, as amended, shall be maintained in one account which shall be used for all transactions involving military assistance during the current fiscal year and no expenditure shall be made from such account except as may be within the limits of the sum of the amounts mentioned in this proviso: Provided further, That nothing in this Act shall be construed as making any appropriation or fund available for obligation after the end of the current fiscal year except as may be necessary for reimbursements authorized herein.]

[Section 110 of the Act of September 3, 1954 (Public Law 778), is hereby repealed.]

[SEC. 109. Program and Performance

Title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 authorizes the sale of up to $1.5 billion of surplus agricultural commodities to friendly nations for their currencies, with reasonable precautions neither to displace United States sales for dollars nor disrupt world commodity prices. The foreign currencies generated by these sales may be used (a) to help develop new markets for United States agricultural commodities, (b) to purchase strategic and critical materials, (c) to procure military materiels and services for the common defense, (d) to purchase goods and services for other friendly nations, (e) to promote balanced economic development and trade among nations, (f) to pay United States obligations abroad, (g) to make loans to promote multilateral trade and economic development abroad, and (h) to finance international education exchange activities.

As of September 30, 1955, sales agreements had been signed with 18 countries calling for deposits of sales proceeds totaling $365 million. Subsidiary schedules on currency uses are presented in the chapters of the Departments of State, Defense, and Agriculture, and under Military Assistance, and Other Mutual Security Programs in the Funds Appropriated to the President chapter.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under provision of the Refugee Relief Act of 1953, a maximum of 209,000 persons in specified areas of Europe, the Near East and the Far East may be granted special nonquota immigrant visas through December 31, 1956, for resettlement in the United States. It is the aim to achieve this immigration in a manner consistent with resettlement opportunities existing in the United States, particularly with regard to employment and housing.

Through July 1, 1955, a total of 37,642 visas had been issued, or approximately 72 percent of those planned at that time. Program regulations have been amended to facilitate operations and operating units are now staffed and organized so that no appreciable backlogs are present.

Present plans call for the issuance of approximately 98,000 visas in the current fiscal year and 32,000 in 1957 prior to the expiration of the act. It is anticipated that the quota for Italy will be filled principally by preference relative applicants and that sufficient assurances will be received in time to cover all other quotas except approximately 41,000 applicants in Germany, Austria, and the Netherlands. To issue the maximum number of visas possible before the termination date and to liquidate the program after its close, a total of $8.5 million will be required for 1957.

Six major departments of Government perform program functions related to their regular activities. The operations of each are geared to the estimated number of visas to be issued.

1. Investigation and visa issuance.—The Department of State conducts investigations of each applicant's character and eligiblity. These investigations are conducted by the State Department. Determination of eligibility under the immigration laws and issuance of visas is also performed by the State Department.

2. Administration of loans.—The Treasury Department makes loans to public or private agencies to finance the transportation of immigrants under the program from ports of entry to places of resettlement in the United States.

3. Investigations in Germany.—Investigations in Germany are conducted by the counterintelligence corps, Department of the Army.

4. Medical examinations.—The Public Health Service gives health screening examinations overseas to all applicants considered for visas.

5. Immigration inspection.—The Immigration and Naturalization Service participates abroad in the determination of eligibility and admissibility of applicants to receive visas.

6. Occupational selection.—The Department of Labor assists in the verification of the occupation skills of applicants and their suitability for the assured employment. It also verifies job assurances filed with the administrator of the act.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under section 304 (b) of the Defense Production Act of 1950, designated agencies are authorized with Presidential approval to incur obligations of $2.1 billion for the purpose of making loans and procuring critical materials in furtherance of the defense effort. The obligations are financed by borrowings from the Treasury. The 1951 amendments to the act permit commitments in excess of $2.1 billion so long as estimated costs do not exceed this amount. Programs undertaken must be certified as essential to the national defense by the Office of Defense Mobilization. As of June 30, 1955, that Office had authorized programs having a gross value of $8,321 million which required the following certification of borrowing authority to cover working capital requirements and the estimated net cost to the Government. Of the $8.3 billion, programs involving gross transactions of $4.3 billion remained to be contracted for or completed.

Programs now under study may require new certifications in 1956 having a gross value of over $92 million and a probable ultimate net cost to the Government of more than $3.5 million. These will be primarily for research and for increasing the capacity to produce such materials as selenium, mica, and synthetic manganese dioxide.

Since the act expires on June 30, 1956, the financial statements reflect only transactions resulting from programs expected to be certified by that date. Assuming that the act will be extended, estimated expenditures for new programs to be certified during 1957 are shown in a separate schedule at the end of this chapter.

General Services Administration.—Borrowing authority of $1,216,067,000 has been certified as of June 30, 1955, to finance the expansion of productive capacity for strategic metals and minerals and machine tools. This amount includes $354,522,000 for working capital and $861,545,000 for probable ultimate net cost of specific programs of which $53,430,000 is for the machine-tool pool order and equipment installation programs and $808,115,000 for mineral and metal programs.

A summary of transactions in acquisition and disposal of strategic minerals and metals under this fund follows. Additional data on obligations for strategic materials are shown in the General Services Administration chapter of this budget.

carried on by Foreign Operations Administration, and its successor, the International Cooperation Administration, in certain countries of Europe, the Near East, and Africa.

One of the major programs financed from this fund involves expansion of nickel production in Cuba. The Cuban Nickel Co. was incorporated in Cuba in 1942 to hold title to and act as custodian of the Government's investment in nickel processing in Cuba. The original investment of the United States Government was made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during World War II, after which the Government's investment was transferred to the General Services Administration. As of June 30, 1955, the net investment in the plant, including reactivation and plant expansion costs, was $32,212,917.

Shortly after the start of the Korean emergency, the plant was reactivated at a cost of $11,594,025, of which $10,901,529 was financed from funds appropriated for the strategic and critical materials program and $692,496 from the borrowing authority provided in the Defense Production Act. After the plant resumed operations, the Office of Defense Mobilization authorized additional changes in the plant which required an investment of $3,204,699. More recently, after clearance with the Joint Committee on Defense Production, the Office of Defense Mobilization authorized an expansion in plant capacity of about 75 percent at an estimated cost of $43 million. At June 30, 1955, $4,093,722 of this expansion was completed; it is estimated that $24,093,722 will be completed by June 30, 1956, and that the entire expansion will be accomplished in 1957. These later authorizations by the Office of Defense Mobilization are being financed from the borrowing authority provided in the Defense Production Act and the resultant expenditures are reflected in the financial statements which follow under the caption "Minerals and metals program," as Government-owned industrial plant.

The activities of the Cuban Nickel Co. are at present confined to performance of such acts as are required of it by Cuban law as proprietor of physical assets in Cuba, and limited maintenance of the plant.

Department of Agriculture.—The purchase and resale of agricultural commodities, except forest products, are carried out by the Commodity Credit Corporation, which is reimbursed from this fund for the net costs involved. The Secretary of Agriculture has been allocated borrowing authority for this purpose.

During 1955, the program to increase supplies of castor beans was continued. The Corporation continued the management of inventories of castor beans and oil, American-Egyptian cotton and cottonseed, kenaf seed and fiber, and linseed oil acquired under programs initiated in prior years. All inventories, except American-Egyptian cotton and castor beans and oil, had been disposed of by June 30, 1955. It is anticipated that the inventory of American-Egyptian cotton will be sold by the end of 1957. However, it is estimated that castor beans and castor oil will remain in the inventory of the Commodity Credit Corporation beyond June 30, 1957.

Net realized losses on purchase and resale operations amounted to $30,460,531 during 1955 and are estimated at $3,149,329 and $5,893,368 during 1956 and 1957, respectively. During 1956 it is estimated that the Secretary of Agriculture will reimburse the Commodity Credit Corporation in the amount of $45,383,427 for the net costs of the completed linseed oil, kenaf, and American-Egyptian cottonseed programs. Such payments constitute the net budgetary expenditures under this fund. These funds are obtained by borrowing from the Treasury. Interest accrued on borrowings by the Secretary of Agriculture from the Treasury amounted to $42,486 during 1955. Such interest is anticipated to amount to $1,209,514 and $1,233,000 for 1956 and 1957, respectively.

In addition to purchase and resale operations, the Secretary of Agriculture may recommend to the Office of Defense Mobilization the certification of certain loans for increasing plant capacity to process or store agricultural commodities. As of June 30, 1955, $2,674,000 in loans had been committed by the Treasury Department. No loans are expected to be certified during 1956 or 1957.

Department of the Interior.—Operations within the Department of the Interior with regard to the expansion of defense production have been limited to the encouragement of exploration for strategic and critical minerals and metals. From the beginning of the program through June 30, 1955, the Defense Minerals Exploration Administration had entered into 767 contracts, in which the Government's share of estimated costs amounted to $22,454,915, as against a total estimated cost of $36,894,860.

The Department had certified, as of the end of June 1955, 201 discoveries on projects involving contract amounts of $9,138,706, of which the Government's share is $5,703,081. Reports received through June 30, 1955, indicate that a total of $4,394,059 of Government funds had been spent on these certified projects. If production takes place on these projects within a 10-year period, some part, at least, of the Government funds advanced will be repaid according to a royalty arrangement.

Treasury Department.—The function of making and administering loans to private business enterprises in the United States under the authority of section 302 of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, was assigned to the Secretary of the Treasury by Executive Order 10489, dated September 26, 1953. Applications for loans are considered only upon certification of essentiality by the Office of Defense Mobilization or the General Services Administration. Net loan certifications were $233,260,000 on June 30, 1955, against which actual borrowings from the Treasury amounted to $166,440,000.

During 1955, one loan for $2,200,000 was authorized under this authority. The loan was made by a private banking institution with the Government taking a deferred participation of 90 percent. On June 30, 1955, there were 81 loans amounting to $170,869,984 outstanding under this authority. In addition, there was $57,867,280 in undisbursed commitments, of which $15,073,438 represented commitments to participate in loans made by banks wherein disbursement of Treasury funds is deferred.

Loans and commitments outstanding are disposed of to private financial institutions and investors whenever possible. Including sales of loans, scheduled repayments, and cancellation of commitments, the total amount of loans and commitments outstanding was reduced by $21,068,543 during 1955.

Following the hurricane and flood disasters which occurred in the late summer and fall of 1955, the President, in Executive Order 10634, dated August 25, 1955, authorized the use of the Defense Production Act lending authority to aid in the reconstruction and replacement of facilities required for national defense which were destroyed or damaged in major disasters. Certifications of essentiality by the Director of the Office of Defense Mobilization are required before the Secretary of the Treasury may authorize loans for this purpose.

It is anticipated that the total amount of loans authorized in connection with the flood and hurricane damage which occurred in August and October 1955 will reach $20 million. About half of the amount authorized will be made by banks on a deferred participation basis, with disbursement of Treasury funds being conditional only.

Disbursement on loans amounted to $44,489,818 in 1955. In 1956, it is anticipated that about $6 million will be disbursed on loans authorized in connection with disasters, and $42.7 million will be disbursed on a large loan for copper development in the southwest. Recovery of the latter amount is expected during 1957, however, since it is anticipated that the loan will be refinanced privately.

Largely due to the sale or refinancing of outstanding loans, receipts of principal amounts are expected to reach $44.2 million in 1956 and $157.5 million in 1957.

Export-Import Bank of Washington.—Pursuant to section 311 of Executive Order 10480 of August 15, 1953, which superseded Executive Order 10161, the Export-Import Bank, with funds provided under section 304 of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, is responsible for making and administering all loans under section 302 of the act, upon receipt of certificates of essentiality issued by the Director of Defense Mobilization or the General Services Administrator, where the expansion, development or production so financed is carried on in foreign countries.

No certificates were received and no new loans were authorized by the Bank during 1955. During the year the Bank continued to administer the six active credits previously authorized under this authority as shown in the financial statements. One of these credits is in default in the amount of $31,922, plus interest at 5 percent from September 11, 1953. On December 8, 1953, the case was referred to the Department of Justice for action. No loans are expected to be certified during 1956 or 1957.

Operating results and financial condition.—The operating loss for conducting the programs of all agencies during 1957 is currently estimated at $63.4 million as compared with $85.1 million and $51.8 million in 1955 and 1956, respectively. These losses primarily result from the resale of high-cost material at market prices and from financing experimental research projects in such materials as titanium, manganese, nickel, etc.

The deficit at the end of 1957 is estimated at $321.9 million as compared with $206.7 million at the end of 1955. Because of the large unexpended balance remaining in the borrowing authority, it is not necessary to seek new authorizations from the Congress to replace the deficit at this time.

Inventories of minerals and metals (stated at cost) are expected to increase from $441.7 million in 1955 to $663.7 million at the end of 1957. The inventories at the end of 1957 represent the accumulation by the Government of such materials as titanium ($157.1 million), tungsten ($320.1 million), manganese ($63.8 million), chromite ($15 million), and columbium ($49.7 million). This material is held by the Government in this account because it cannot be absorbed within existing minimum stockpile objectives and there is no current industrial need for the material in the economy.

No new additional advances to contractors are expected to be made during 1956 or 1957. Repayments on advances made to date will reduce the balance due from contractors from $87.9 million in 1955 to $62.1 million in 1957. Repayments by borrowers on existing loans are expected to reduce the outstanding balance of loans receivable from $163.5 million at the end of 1955 to $57.4 million on June 30, 1957.

The investment in land and structures will increase to approximately $108.3 million, largely as a result of expenditures of about $43 million for expansion of the Government-owned Nicaro nickel plant in Cuba.

The net effect of operations during 1956 and 1957 will result in increasing the interest-bearing investment of the Government in this program from $1,002 million at the end of 1955 to $1,205 million on June 30, 1957.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In order to encourage private American industrial investment abroad, and to facilitate the distribution of informational media, Public Law 665 (approved Aug. 26, 1954), authorizes guaranties against two noncommercial risks. These risks are (1) inconvertibility of local currency receipts from an investment and (2) loss of investment resulting from expropriation or confiscation. The insurance, which may have a maximum term of 20 years, is available for United States investments in any country with which the United States has agreed to institute the guaranty program. Premiums up to 1 percent for the first type of risk and up to 4 percent for the second type are authorized. It is now estimated that total available authority will be completely utilized early in 1957.

When payment is made pursuant to a guaranty, the currency, property, or claims on account of which such payment is made becomes the property of the United States.

STATUS OF GUARANTIES OUTSTANDING BY TYPES

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |
|---|---|---|---|
| Industrial | $71,245,799 | $125,000,000 | $165,551,988 |
| Informational media | 6,355,499 | 7,500,000 | 9,500,000 |
| Total outstanding | 77,601,298 | 132,500,000 | 175,051,988 |

Industrial guaranties.—As of June 30, 1955, a total of $88,822,728 investment guaranties had been issued since the inception of the program in 1948, of which $71,245,799 were outstanding. Of this total amount issued, $73,262,625 were against risks of inconvertibility and $15,560,103 were against the risk of loss by expropriation. In 1955, the number of countries participating in this program increased from 19 to 26; additional increases are anticipated in 1956 and 1957.

From the inception of the program until June 30, 1955, no disbursements had been made under any of these investment guaranties and a total of $1,280,649 in fees had been collected.

Informational media guaranties.—Public Law 665 (approved Aug. 26, 1954) authorized the Director of the United States Information Agency to make guaranties of investments abroad in enterprises producing or distributing informational media consistent with the national interests of the United States. This law provides that the amount of such guaranties written in any fiscal year may not exceed $10 million. As of June 30, 1955, a total of $30,989,179 informational media guaranties had been issued since the start of this program, of which $6,355,499 were outstanding; fees totaling $413,831 had been collected and disbursements of $17,159,083 had been made.

PROPOSED FOR LATER TRANSMISSION

Disaster relief, Executive Office of the President (under existing legislation, 1956).—This supplemental request for $25 million is to restore the level of the appropriation to an amount high enough to take immediate action should major natural disasters occur. Present estimates indicate that all presently available funds will be used during fiscal 1956. The supplemental appropriation is requested so that immediate assistance can be given to disaster-stricken areas when necessary.

Expansion of defense production (under proposed legislation, 1957).—The budget assumes extension of title III of the Defense Production Act beyond the present expiration date of June 30, 1956. Section 304 (b) of the act includes authorization to expend from public debt receipts in the amount of $2.1 billion of which $559,517,000 is expected to be available for new contracting during 1957. Present forecasts indicate a need for continued expansion of the production of and research on various critical materials. These programs are expected to result in new contracts having a probable ultimate net cost to the Government of about $3.5 million.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission is responsible for the maintenance and operation of all permanent United States military cemeteries and memorials located in foreign countries.

These include 8 World War I cemeteries, a memorial chapel in each cemetery, 11 World War I memorials outside the cemeteries, 14 World War II cemeteries, and the United States National Cemetery, Mexico City, Mexico. The higher estimate in 1957 reflects increasing requirements due to completion of various features of the construction program in World War II cemeteries and requirements for major repairs to be undertaken in the World War I cemeteries.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission procures source materials; manufactures special nuclear materials and atomic weapons; conducts research and development aimed at improved weapons, generation of power from atomic energy, and protection of health against possible hazards arising from atomic energy operations; conducts investigations in the physical and life sciences related to atomic energy; establishes and enforces regulations on civilian uses of atomic energy; promotes industrial participation in atomic energy development for peaceful purposes; encourages scientific and industrial progress through the dissemination of information under the terms of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954; and conducts programs of international cooperation in peaceful application of atomic energy.

The program is administered in the field through 10 major offices. Most of the Commission's activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions, operating under contracts. Coordination with the armed services is achieved through the Military Liaison Committee of the Department of Defense.

Net operating costs in 1957 are estimated at $1,662.7 million, or 16.6 percent greater than the estimated 1956 net costs of $1,426.1 million, and 53.7 percent greater than actual costs of $1,082.1 million for 1955. The upward trend reflects larger-scale procurement of raw materials; the continued expansion in the production of feed and fissionable materials and weapons as new facilities come into operation; the efforts to develop varied types of atomic weapons; and increases in other research, including research in the physical and life sciences, controlled thermonuclear reactions, and particularly the development of reactors for military uses.

The net operating costs plus or minus the change in selected resources result in the total obligational requirements. The obligations for operating expenses in 1957 total $1,692 million compared to $1,505 million in 1956 and $850.2 million in 1955.

The 1957 estimate includes equipment not related to construction projects with comparable costs reflected in 1956 and 1955. Prior to 1957 these funds were budgeted under the appropriation for plant and equipment.

1. Source and special nuclear materials.—Uranium ores and concentrates procured from foreign and domestic sources are processed into feed materials from which (a) plutonium is produced in the reactors at Hanford, Wash., and Savannah River, S. C., or (b) the isotope uranium 235 is extracted in plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio. Foreign sources of uranium will contribute substantial additional tonnages, and production from domestic sources will continue to expand. New facilities for producing feed and special nuclear materials will provide increased output at lower unit processing costs. Work will continue on development of new equipment and processes to increase yields and improve the quality of products.

2. Weapons.—This program encompasses the production of weapons; the design, development, and testing of new weapon types; and the storage, maintenance, and custody of stockpiled weapons. Expanded production facilities will be in operation and production of weapons will increase. The number of scientific and technical personnel employed at the principal weapon development laboratories will continue to increase.

3. Reactor development.—The major activities included in this program are the development of civilian power reactors, the development of reactors to meet a variety of military requirements, studies to increase the store of knowledge in reactor technology and evaluate advanced reactor concepts, the operation of the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho and certain technical facilities located there, and education and training in nuclear engineering in universities and Commission laboratories. The costs by category are as follows:

|---|---|---|---|
| Category: | | | |
| Civilian power reactor program | $27,261,202 | $36,794,000 | $38,156,000 |
| Army package power reactor program | 600,785 | 1,700,000 | 3,300,000 |
| Naval propulsion reactor program | 27,061,956 | 34,818,000 | 61,200,000 |
| Aircraft propulsion reactor program | 22,557,022 | 47,570,000 | 74,600,000 |
| Training and education | 771,072 | 937,000 | 5,583,000 |
| Advanced development, operational services, and all other | 30,903,436 | 38,108,000 | 52,096,000 |
| Total reactor development program | 109,155,473 | 159,927,000 | 234,935,000 |

The Commission's program for development of civilian power has been centered around the development of five basic reactor concepts. Each of these concepts now has at least one full-scale counterpart power reactor being planned by industry or public power groups with relatively little or no Government financial assistance. In 1956, utilizing funds appropriated for acceleration of the power reactor program, the Commission has initiated development work on two additional basic reactor concepts. In 1957, work will be continued on these 7 concepts and work will be undertaken on 1 additional concept.

The Commission's program for military reactor development has established the great potentiality of nuclear power for military uses. The Commission is currently developing a variety of reactors for the propulsion of submarines, surface ships, and aircraft and for transportable plants to provide heat and power for remote military operations to meet requirements of the Department of Defense. During 1957, the level of effort will be substantially increased on existing development projects, and development of new reactor types and adaptation of existing types to meet new Department of Defense requirements will be initiated.

In support of the development of specific reactors, general work will be continued in design and evaluation of advanced reactor concepts, fuel element development, and related fields. Increasing emphasis will be placed on a broad study of reactor control and safety involving the testing of basically different classes of reactors under adverse operating conditions to establish safe upper operating limits and to study the mechanisms which cause reactors to be inherently safe.

The Commission's education and training program in the nuclear engineering sciences will be expanded in 1957. It will include training in universities and Commission laboratories, and assistance to universities by providing training equipment.

4. Physical research.—This activity comprises basic and long-range investigations in the fields of physics, chemistry, and metallurgy required by the Commission to meet its statutory objectives. These investigations are undertaken to provide an ever-expanding fund of theoretical and practical knowledge.

Approximately 90 particle accelerators ranging in energy from a few hundred thousand electron volts to the 6 billion electron volt Bevatron are utilized in the Commission's program. A 25 billion to 35 billion electron volt accelerator, larger than any now existing, is under construction at the Brookhaven National Laboratory. In 1957 increased effort will be devoted to studies looking to improved design of high-energy accelerators.

Approximately 70 percent of the cost of research is incurred for work done in Commission laboratories and 30 percent for research contracted to some 100 universities and other independent institutes.

5. Biology and medicine.—Standards are established to insure that the Commission's activities are conducted with safety to both employees and the public. Research is conducted on the effects of radiation and certain chemicals (of significance in the Commission's operations) on living things and on the biological phenomena of nuclear explosions. Research includes the development of methods for minimizing exposure to radioactive materials of all sorts; for minimizing the injurious effects of radioactive materials; and for utilizing such substances for human welfare, including fundamental investigations of the applications of radiobiology to agriculture, animal husbandry, and human medicine. The comprehensive study of permissible levels of exposure to radioactive contamination from all causes is given special emphasis.

The major portion of the research is carried on at 16 laboratories which are owned by or operated for the Commission and the remainder, approximately 425 projects, is supported in more than 200 universities, colleges, hospitals, and independent laboratories. The program includes the operation of 4 cancer research facilities in the United States, and 2 laboratories in Japan for the determination of the effects of atomic bombs on the population.

6. Community.—The Commission operates three towns—Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Richland, Wash.; and Los Alamos, N. Mex.—with an estimated total population in 1956 of 73,000, and provides limited community services at other locations. While legislation has been enacted to terminate Government ownership and operation of Oak Ridge and Richland over a period of the next few years, the estimates are based on the assumption that the Commission will continue to operate these communities through 1957. It is estimated that costs will decrease by $2.1 million in 1957 in anticipation that property maintenance costs will be reduced consistent with estimated sales of real estate authorized under the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955. Revenues will decline incident to the sale of revenue-producing property. Since real estate revenues normally exceed costs by a substantial amount, the loss in revenue from property sales will result in an estimated excess of costs over revenues of $1.5 million in 1957.

| | Revenues | Operating costs | Excess of revenues over costs | Excess of costs over revenues |
| 1955 | $21,596,504 | $18,977,296 | $2,619,208 | ---------- |
| 1956 | 20,998,500 | 20,065,000 | 933,500 | ---------- |
| 1957 | 16,497,000 | 17,950,000 | ---------- | $1,453,000 |

7. Program direction and administration.—The costs of general management, technical supervision of program operations, the negotiation and administration of contracts, and other related administrative activities performed by Commission personnel represent 2.3 percent of total operating costs in 1957 as compared with 2.6 percent in 1956. The estimate of $38.3 million for 1957 reflects an increase of $0.3 million over 1956 costs providing for a higher average level of employment in support of various activities related to the nuclear applications of atomic energy, in both its domestic and its international aspects, as well as a continued all-out effort in the development and production of atomic weapons for defense.

8. Security investigations.—The Atomic Energy Act of 1954 requires background investigations by the Civil Service Commission or the Federal Bureau of Investigation of those persons proposed for access to restricted data of the atomic energy program. The number of full background investigations to be completed by the 2 investigative agencies is estimated at 27,150 for 1957, compared with 28,000 for 1956 and 44,918 for 1955.

9. Other costs.—In furthering the objectives of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 concerning the utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, the Commission furnishes materials and services to industrial organizations and other private parties apart from that which it provides normally for its own basic programs. Charges made for such products and services are included under Revenues Applied as a reduction in determining the appropriations required. The items included are:

|---|---|---|---|
| Cost of products sold | ---------- | $3,104,000 | $3,200,000 |
| Cost of services performed | $1,021,000 | 3,596,000 | 3,175,000 |
| Adjustments of prior year costs | −11,381,343 | −1,430,000 | ---------- |
| Total other costs | −10,360,343 | 5,270,000 | 6,375,000 |

10. Revenues applied.—Revenues are obtained from the operation of AEC-owned communities and housing; from the sale of products and performance of work for others, principally in connection with extending cooperation and assistance to industry; and from other miscellaneous sources. The activities from which these revenues are derived and the estimates for each are:

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |
|---|---|---|---|
| Income from products sold | $3,644,727 | $10,310,000 | $12,903,000 |

| Income from community operations | 21,596,504 | 20,998,500 | 16,497,000 |
| Other income | 1,602,504 | 1,100,000 | 1,100,000 |
| Total revenues | 27,168,254 | 35,006,000 | 33,797,000 |
| Less funds returned to Treasury | 10,000,808 | 4,780,000 | ---------- |
| Net revenues applied | 17,167,446 | 30,226,000 | 33,797,000 |

In 1957, it is proposed that all collections made by the Commission be applied as a reduction in appropriations required to finance the program.

11. Relation of costs to obligations.—The year-end balances of selected resources together with the related changes for the years 1955, 1956, and 1957, are as follows:

SELECTED RESOURCES

| Year-end balances: | 1954 actual | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |
| Inventories (goods unconsumed by activities) | $88,514,195 | $103,562,912 | $120,081,849 | $138,734,597 |
| Collateral funds (insurance collateral, employee benefit, and annuity funds) | 23,890,000 | 22,890,000 | 21,290,000 | 21,290,000 |
| Undelivered orders (goods and services on order not yet received) | 738,090,377 | 492,083,710 | 556,024,545 | 566,699,797 |
| Total selected resources | 850,494,572 | 618,536,622 | 697,396,394 | 726,724,394 |
| Increase or decrease (−) in selected resources available for future application to activity costs | | −231,957,950 | 78,859,772 | 29,328,000 |

The estimate for 1957 includes $18.6 million to increase the level of inventories and $10.7 million to increase the level of undelivered orders. The inventories of various kinds are maintained primarily by contractors to support the operation of Commission-owned production plants and laboratories. The increase in inventories for 1957 is required to support expanding reactor operations. The increase in the level of undelivered orders is related primarily to the continued expansion of the reactor development effort.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Atomic Energy Act of 1954 requires statutory authorization of appropriations for plant acquisition and construction. Obligations are estimated in 1957 only for projects for which appropriations have already been authorized. No new obligational authority is requested at this time because the $79 million unobligated balance brought forward from prior years is more than sufficient to cover these projects. Of this balance, $24.5 million will be required for the completion of the construction of a prototype naval propulsion reactor and of facilities associated with the development of other military propulsion reactors; and $2.7 million will be required for the construction of facilities in Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash., authorized by the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955. The remaining $51.9 million is to be applied against the 1957 obligational requirements of projects included in the anticipated authorization of appropriations for which a supplemental will be transmitted later (see under the head "Proposed for later transmission," page 255).

Total obligations and expenditures anticipated for plant acquisition and construction in 1957 are expected to be lower than in either 1956 or 1955.

Estimated obligations for 1956 include $21 million for the Commission's portion of the construction of a nuclear-powered peace ship, to be built jointly with the Maritime Administration.

petitive service; investigates applicants to see that they meet character and suitability requirements for Government employment; sets standards and issues regulations to guide agencies in carrying out effective personnel programs; inspects agencies' personnel programs to see that they carry out delegated authorities and to help them improve their personnel programs; administers the Classification Act to assure that pay for positions under the act is based on the principle of equal pay for substantially equal work; develops governmentwide training and career development programs to increase the effectiveness of the Federal work force; adjudicates appeals; administers the political activity statutes; administers the civil service retirement system; and provides general leadership for the development of a sound Federal personnel system that will contribute to the economic and efficient administration of the Government's business.

1. Recruiting and examining.—Most appointments in the competitive civil service are made under the open competitive merit system through examinations held by the Commission and its boards of examiners. These boards are made up of agency personnel operating under the direction of the Commission. Appointments through such competitive examinations will accord career or career-conditional status. After completing 3 years of service, career-conditional employees will automatically become career. Physically handicapped persons are given special placement attention. Veterans are aided in securing the benefits to which they are entitled. An employees' incentive awards program is conducted to stimulate and pursue the development of new and improved methods and ideas. The increase is for other than personal services and involves no program expansion. The extent of this activity is:

Payment to Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund

Payment to civil-service retirement and disability fund: For financing the liability of the United States, created by the Act approved May 22, 1920, and Acts amendatory thereof (5 U. S. C., ch. 14), [$233,000,000] $295,000,000, which amount shall be placed to the credit of the "civil-service retirement and disability fund." (Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1956.)

The request of $295 million is approximately 35 percent of the $843 million accruals due from the Government to the fund for 1957. The latter figure consists of (a) the normal cost, actuarily computed at 4.92 percent on the payroll for services rendered during 1957 by Government employees, and (b) interest at 3 percent on the unfunded liability of $13.4 billion which the United States owes the fund. The $295 million requested is estimated to equal the Government's net share of cash disbursements to be made by the fund in 1957.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This limitation covers expenses incurred by the Civil Service Commission in the administration of the Federal Employees Group Insurance Act (5 U. S. C. 2091–2103). Except for the purchase of minor operating equipment the use of the limitation is reflected in the schedule for "Advances and reimbursements, Civil Service Commission." The increase in the limitation for 1957 is due to the extra workload anticipated when the fund starts to assume the obligations of the various Federal employees beneficial associations.

Financial statements relating to the Federal Employees Life Insurance Fund are printed in part III of the budget document.

FEDERAL CIVIL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

This Administration prepares national civil defense plans and programs as an integral part of the total program for defense of the United States against enemy attack. The Administration provides advice and guidance to States or their political subdivisions, maintains operational capability including attack warning and communications systems, makes financial contributions to States and political subdivisions for civil defense purposes, and stockpiles medical, engineering, and radiological defense equipment and supplies.

In fiscal year 1957, increased activity will take place in the public civil defense education and information program, research activities, operational capabilities, etc. Survival studies initiated in fiscal year 1956 will be continued and expanded. The contributions program will be accelerated, and broadened. Stockpiling of medical and other supplies will continue at an increased rate. Civil defense responsibilities delegated to other agencies will be expanded to further promote the integration of civil defense into the entire Federal structure.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Civil defense planning.—Intelligence on modern weapons of mass destruction is obtained, civil defense implications are evaluated, and national civil defense plans developed. Appropriate research programs are devised and administered and liaison with other Federal agencies is maintained to assure a coordinated Federal program.

2. Civil defense education services.—Information on weapons effects and preventive measures that may be taken for survival are provided to the general public. Civil defense training methods, materials, and devices are developed and made available to State and local organizations. The objectives are indicated by the program areas: Public awareness, family action, volunteer training and incentive, leadership training, and emergency information. All available media are employed. Instructional and informational material covers such subjects as evacuation, protection against fallout, reception of evacuees, Conelrad, rumor and panic, mutual aid shelter, emergency action first aid, and police, fire, and warden training, all designed to provide the necessary knowledge for survival in the event of nuclear attack. Over 11,000 people have attended one or more basic civil defense courses. The Administration is planning a graduate school with a 3 months' course in civil defense during 1957 to foster a trained corps of professional civil defense workers.

3. Operations control services.—A nationwide attack warning system extending from air defense control centers to State and local control points is provided, as is a communication network among Federal civil defense installations. Federal stockpiles of civil defense equipment and supplies are maintained at strategic sites. Through 1955 approximately $113 million of the material had been stockpiled in 22 warehouses. Practical and logistic civil defense techniques are developed and disseminated. In 1957, further improvements to operational capability will be made, and storage facilities will be expanded to accommodate increases to the civil defense stockpile.

4. Technical advisory services.—Solutions to technical problems of physical damage, radiological hazards, and casualty care are devised and made available to State and local civil defense organizations. Survival planning methods, techniques, and administration are provided by this service. In 1956 all activities have expanded and greater attention is being given to problems of radiological defense.

5. Field representation.—Civil defense plans and methods developed at the national headquarters are made available to the States and municipalities through the seven regional offices. Close working relationships are developed with State and local officials and civil defense organizations to promote civil defense activities. The regional offices also serve as clearing points for Federal assistance to areas affected by natural disasters. The new survival studies are coordinated by regional offices.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Civil defense funds of States and their political subdivisions are matched for selected types of civil defense. Federal contributions are made for attack warning, communications, public safety devices, medical supplies and equipment, education services, mass care equipment, engineering equipment and supplies, and construction and general equipment.

Federal obligations under this program amounted to approximately $48 million in 1952 through 1955. All States participated in the program except one. The range of obligations for the participating States was from approximately $10 million for New York to approximately $17,000 for Nevada.

Increased knowledge of the destructive effects of modern weapons, publication of information on radioactive fallout, and increased opportunity to match Federal funds will stimulate State and local government to more nearly meet civil defense needs. Administrative procedures have recently been revised to speed up processing of contributions projects.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Materials and equipment not normally available or not present in quantities needed to cope with conditions caused by enemy attack are stockpiled in strategic locations.

Steps are being taken to balance warehouse stocks. Hospital units are being pre-positioned in selected sites adjacent to critical target areas rather than stored in bulk lots in large warehouses. The programs will be greatly expanded in 1957.

1. Medical supplies and equipment.—The purpose of this program is to establish stockpiles of medical supplies and equipment in direct proportion to the estimated number of surviving casualties in specific target areas, and balance the various medical items at each stockpile to insure independent and complete medical backup to the target area it supports. Medical supplies and equipment purchased through 1956, with the exception of improvised hospitals, will provide basic medical care for 3.5 million casualties surviving during the first 3 post attack weeks. The 1957 estimates, except for the hospitals, provide medical supplies and equipment to care for an additional 1 million casualties. Basic equipment for 832 improvised hospitals has been ordered to date. The 1957 budget proposes the procurement of 1,000 additional improvised hospitals.

2. Radiological and chemical warfare defense equipment.—The objective of this program is to develop a state of preparedness to minimize effectiveness of radiological and chemical aspects of modern warfare. The present goal of this program is to procure 225,000 survey meters and 1 million self-reading dosimeters. Funds are provided for procurement of approximately 80,000 survey materials and 65,000 dosimeters in addition to small quantities of protective masks.

3. Relocation and maintenance of stockpile.—These funds are to be used to pay the costs of necessary maintenance and relocation of supplies and equipment. As warehouses and supplies are relocated, they are being assembled so that complete units of needed items are located together to make them readily available for immediate use in time of emergency.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Survey plans.—Funds are made available to States for surveys and studies leading to the development of survival plans in appropriate areas. Survival plans provide for evacuation and reception of populations, mass care and feeding, and shelter. Such studies will contemplate all effects of modern weapons and will relate such effects to particular geographical areas. It is estimated that at least 20 cities will start their studies in 1956. This program will be expanded to cover many more cities in 1957.

2. Research.—Research is conducted to solve various civil defense problems. Some of the more important areas to be covered in 1957 are: Warning and communications, automatic damage reporting systems, radiological defense, shelter, and medical.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

As part of the Federal Civil Defense Administration's program of bringing other Federal departments and agencies into active civil defense partnership, delegations of responsibility have been made to seven Federal establishments, the last being approved by the President on November 22, 1955. The four civil defense delegations presently in effect are designed to make full use of those departments and agencies of the executive branch which can be of value in furthering an integrated civil defense effort. The delegations, in keeping with statutory intent, have been designed to recognize the basic needs for survival and to provide the basic support for survival in a civil defense emergency without duplicating activities of other Federal agencies. Such fundamental relief requirements as food, fuel, clothing, medical assistance, and emergency housing are included in the delegated responsibilities. For the most part, the program for fiscal year 1957 will provide for an extension to new activities and expand the work undertaken in fiscal year 1956.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission regulates wire and radio communications in interstate and foreign commerce to attain and maintain maximum benefits for the people of the United States in the use of (1) the radio spectrum and (2) facilities of common carriers.

1. Applied technical research and frequency allocation.—This activity provides the Commission with the basic information for determining the best utilization of the radio spectrum.

2. Broadcast.—Standard broadcast (AM), frequency modulation (FM), television (TV), and other related services are licensed and regulated by the Commission. An increase in 1957 will be required primarily to (a) eliminate backlogs in AM radio application processing and hearing work, and (b) continue the network study on a full year basis. [1] As of June 30 of each year. Excluding amateur.

4. Field engineering and monitoring.—Field employees inspect radio stations, give operator examinations, collect engineering data, monitor the spectrum, and determine the location of lost ships, aircraft, and illegal sources of radio emission. A small increase is proposed for 1957, primarily to permit more stringent enforcement of Commission rules on small-boat operators now causing serious interference to marine safety and other radio services.

5. Common carrier.—The Commission regulates the rates and practices of communications common carriers; considers proposed mergers and acquisitions of properties, extensions and reductions in service, construction of facilities, and applications for use of radio in communication services. To deal with the increasingly difficult policy and technical problems arising in the communications industry, an increase is proposed for 1957.

6. Executive, staff, and service.—This activity includes adjudicatory functions of the Commission. The increase requested is geared to increases in the program functions.

C. 171–180, 182), including expenses of the Labor-Management Panel as provided in section 205 of said Act; temporary employment of arbitrators, conciliators, and mediators on labor relations at rates not in excess of $75 per diem; expenses of attendance at meetings concerned with labor and industrial relations; and services as authorized by section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Service provides assistance to representatives of labor and management in the mediation or prevention of disputes affecting industries engaged in interstate commerce other than the air and rail transportation industries.

During the past year over 33,000 disputes were reported to the Service. More than 23,000 were assigned for preliminary inquiry to determine Service jurisdiction and need for impartial mediation. In about 14,000 situations, the need for mediation assistance was indicated and mediators were assigned.

In addition to the mediation of existing disputes, mediators also promote harmonious relations between labor and management during the contract period through preventive mediation and related activities.

The proposed increase of $66,000 will enable the Service to provide adequate mediation assistance to parties involved in labor disputes.

A comparable number of disputes is anticipated for the budget year, but because of the gains achieved in the larger industries (automobile, steel, and coal) the amount of time devoted to settlement of similar issues in smaller establishments is expected to increase.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act and Natural Gas Act and has additional duties relating to Federal power development.

1. Licensing of non-Federal hydroelectric projects.—Licenses are issued to private, State, and municipal interests for proposed and existing hydroelectric projects affecting public lands and streams subject to Federal jurisdiction; construction and operation of projects are inspected; and cost of construction is determined for projects under license to private interests. Pertinent data are:

|---|---|---|---|
| Number of licensed projects | 650 | 664 | 678 |
| Number of applications pending (end of year) | 111 | 62 | 33 |
| Total claimed cost (in millions) of major projects | $2,440 | $2,525 | $2,600 |
| Annual income to Government from licenses | $1,329,241 | $1,349,164 | $1,402,403 |

The policy of this administration is to encourage partnership between Federal and non-Federal agencies in the development of water resources projects. In furtherance of this policy, provision is made in this budget for continued expeditious handling of license applications for new hydroelectric generating capacity.

2. Regulation and surveys, electric power industry.—Regulation covers the transmission and sale for resale of electric energy in interstate commerce and the rates, accounts, depreciation practices, certain security issues, disposition of properties, mergers, and the interconnection and coordination of facilities of public utilities subject to the Commission's jurisdiction. Statistics and other information about the electric utility industry are gathered and published. Pertinent data are:

3. Regulation and surveys, natural gas industry.—Regulation covers the transportation and sale for resale of natural gas in interstate commerce, and the rates, accounts and depreciation and depletion practices. Certificates of public convenience and necessity are issued to natural gas companies subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. Statistics and other information about the natural gas industry are gathered and published. There were 115 natural gas pipeline companies, with operating revenues of $2.27 billion, regulated in calendar year 1955 and approximately 5,000 independent producers. The same number is anticipated in 1956 and 1957.

During the fiscal year 1955 there were approximately 11,700 rate filings, of which approximately 11,000 were for independent producers. It is estimated that in fiscal year 1956 combined rate filings will approximate 5,150 and 5,600 in fiscal year 1957. The number of certificate applications totaled 462 in fiscal year 1955 and approximately the same number is expected for 1956 and 1957.

4. Federal project investigation and regulation.—Of a potential 107 million kilowatts of hydroelectric energy in the United States, 24.2 million kilowatts were developed as of December 31, 1954.

Studies are made of river basins and individual projects proposed by the Departments of the Army and Interior to determine possibilities for conservation, development, and utilization of potential power resources. Review and approval are required of certain proposed rates for sale of power from Federal projects. Information on the power features of river development projects is furnished to Congress and Federal and State agencies. In fiscal year 1955, 104 studies were carried on and it is estimated that there will be 105 in 1956 and 110 in 1957.

5. International Joint Commission.—This covers participation of the Federal Power Commission in the International Joint Commission, which adjudicates controversies between the Governments of the United States and Canada or nationals of the two countries, principally over boundary waters and waters that cross the boundary, and conducts investigations as directed by the two Governments.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Antimonopoly.—All types of monopolistic restrictions, including price-fixing conspiracies, boycotting, price discriminations, illegal corporate mergers, and acquisitions are corrected; economic data and criteria are brought to bear on monopoly, mergers, and related problems; and supervision is provided over the registration and operations of associations of American exporters engaged solely in export trade. Increased funds are requested for an expanded enforcement program of the Anti-Merger Act which prohibits corporate mergers that may substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly.

2. Deceptive practices.—False and misleading advertising and other unfair or deceptive practices are prevented by corrective action, including the affirmative aid of voluntary trade practice conferences; business and the public are protected from the evils of misbranding and nondisclosure of fiber content of manufactured wool products; consumers and merchants are protected from unfair practices with respect to furs and fur products; and the public is protected from dangers inherent in flammable fabrics.

3. Executive direction and management.—These also include the adjudicatory functions of the Commission.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Administration and settlement of—(a) International claims.—Public Law 285 (approved August 9, 1955) authorized the settlement of claims of United States nationals against the Soviet Union, Italy, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Rumania for property and other losses suffered as a result of war damages, nationalization, and defaults on governmental debts. Lump-sum settlement funds from these countries totaling about $41 million will become available as trust funds from which the Treasury will pay such claims. A 5-percent deduction will be made from these funds and deposited in the general fund of the Treasury to cover appropriations for the administrative expenses for the 4 years of this program.

ESTIMATED CLAIMS LOAD

|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Soviet | 492 | 1,208 | 1,200 | 600 | 3,500 |
| Italian | 200 | 500 | 1,200 | 600 | 2,500 |

| Total | 842 | 2,188 | 4,868 | 2,122 | 10,020 |

Included are expenses of the Yugoslav settlement program, completed on December 31, 1954.

(b) Korean conflict.—Public Law 615 (approved August 21, 1954) authorized appropriation of funds to settle new prisoner of war and civilian internee claims arising out of Korean hostilities. It is estimated that 9,953 claims will be completed by August 21, 1956, the statutory deadline. The 1957 estimate of $25,000 is expected to cover the administrative expenses of closing out the program. No estimate is included for payment of claims, which, it is expected, will be completed in fiscal 1956.

2. Administration and settlement of World War II claims.—Payment of World War II internee, prisoner of war, and sequestration claims authorized by Public Law 744 (approved August 31, 1954), will be made from balances available in the war claims fund. It is estimated that 629 claims will be completed during fiscal year 1957 by the statutory deadline of August 31, 1956. Payments in 1955 represent settlement of World War II claims completed in accordance with law on March 31, 1955. Administrative expenses are reimbursed from the war claims fund.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The General Accounting Office settles claims by or against the Government; audits the financial transactions of Government agencies including corporations; audits and settles fiscal officers' accounts; renders legal decisions relating to Government fiscal matters; conducts investigations relating to receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds; evaluates and prescribes accounting systems on a governmentwide basis. During fiscal year 1955, refunds and collections of $55,247,160 were made through these activities.

1. Office of the Comptroller General.—The Comptroller General serves Congress by presenting reports, recommendations, and advice on matters relating to public funds. The scope, number, and variety of legislative reports and services to congressional committees continues to broaden and expand.

2. European branch.—The European branch with headquarters in Paris, France, performs the General Accounting Office functions as they relate to United States Government operations in the European area, including North Africa and the Near East. Suboffices have been established in London, England; Frankfurt, Germany; Rome, Italy; and Madrid, Spain.

3. Office of investigations.—This activity comprises (a) inspections at irregular intervals of most of larger Federal installations and activities throughout the country; (b) investigations of fraudulent transactions, suspected fraud, or other serious irregularity; and (c) surveys of particular subjects of Federal expenditures on a broad and sometimes nationwide basis.

4. Accounting systems division.—Major efforts of this division will continue to be cooperative development and improvement in agency accounting systems. This work is carried out on a day-to-day consultative basis with accounting and management representatives of individual agencies as a part of the joint accounting improvement program of the Comptroller General, Secretary of the Treasury, and Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

6. Claims division.—All claims by or against the United States are settled in this division except those for transportation items and claims wherein exclusive jurisdiction is conferred by law upon another agency or the courts.

7. Transportation division.—This activity audits freight and passenger transportation payments for account of the United States and settles claims involving transportation charges. The transportation audit recovered over $38.5 million during 1955.

8. Division of audits.—This division performs all audit functions, except transportation, for which the General Accounting Office is responsible. The audit is performed to (1) furnish the basis for settling accounts of fiscal officers, and (2) evaluate the performance of each Government agency in discharging its financial obligations. Continued progress is being made in converting agencies to a comprehensive audit which is designed to carry out all the audit responsibilities in a single package approach.

10. Office of the general counsel.—In addition to preparing decisions and reports the general counsel and his staff participate in conferences with legislative and administrative officials of the Government on the legality or propriety of proposed obligations and expenditures, the sufficiency of proposed legislation, the desirability of new legislation for particular purposes, and like matters.

The Commission regulates common carriers engaged in interstate and foreign commerce, including railroads, motor carriers, water carriers, pipelines, and contract carriers by motor vehicle and water.

An increase of $1,104,000 is proposed primarily to strengthen the Commission's ability to obtain more adequate level of compliance with provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act relating to the regulation of motor carriers, including safety of operation and disposition of formal proceedings in rate and operating authority cases. The budget provides for all Commission activities in one appropriation instead of three existing appropriations, chiefly to permit better utilization of field staff.

1. Regulation of carriers' rates, practices, operating authorities, and finance.—This work consists of regulating rates, granting operating authorities, approving abandonments of and extensions of railroad lines, financial reorganizations, and rate agreements between carriers.

2. Compliance.—Renders assistance in the enforcement of statutes and regulations affecting transportation and carriers; examinations are made to ascertain that motor carriers and freight forwarders are adequately insured; and surveys are conducted of motor carrier operating practices to reduce accidents and to promote safety on the public highways.

3. Supervision and analysis of carrier accounting and statistics.—Uniform systems of accounts are formulated and policed for all types of carriers; studies are made of operating costs and analyses prepared in relation to rate structures; keeps inventory and cost records current and develops elements of value which are used in setting of depreciation reserves, determining costs of service, and approving financial reorganizations; compiles statistics from carriers' reports and makes studies of operating, financial, and other problems of transportation agencies.

4. Supervision and interpretation of tariffs.—Common and contract carriers' tariffs are examined for compliance with Commission's tariff circular rules. Under certain conditions authority to publish rates on less-than-statutory notice is granted, and informal complaints and carriers' requests to pay reparation are handled.

5. Railroad safety and car service.—Field staff of the Commission work with carriers and shippers in handling problems of safety and efficient use of equipment in the transportation of passengers and property by railroad. This work includes inspection of safety appliances and signal installations, inspection of locomotives, and enforcing compliance with car-service regulations designed to increase the utilization of the short supply of railroad rolling stock. Additional car-service agents are proposed for 1957 to more adequately investigate compliance with car-service regulations.

6. Defense mobilization.—Under authority delegated by the Director of Defense Mobilization, emergency mobilization plans and programs for domestic surface transportation, storage, and port facilities are formulated and carried out.

7. Executive and advisory functions.—These also include the quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative functions of the Commission.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Research conducted by the Committee (NACA) is directed at developing the scientific and engineering data necessary for continued improvement in design and performance of aircraft, missiles, and their powerplants. The Committee is currently primarily concerned with the problems of military aviation, including specific problems in the development of particular military projects, and its program is closely coordinated with the aeronautical programs of the Department of Defense. Many of its findings will be of value to civil aviation as well.

Digitized for FRASER

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

The Committee's activities are carried on mainly at its three laboratories and two flight stations and involve actual flight tests of piloted and pilotless aircraft, experimentation with the aid of wind tunnels and other specialized equipment, and theoretical studies. An increase in research activities is proposed for 1957.

1. Aerodynamic research.—Research in this field is directed at the problem of developing the design characteristics of aircraft and missiles. The problems studied cover flight under a wide variety of conditions ranging from zero or low forward speeds of takeoff, landing, or hovering to speeds many times the speed of sound.

2. Powerplants research.—Research on propulsion systems to increase the speed, altitude, and range of aircraft and missiles includes work on turbojet, ramjet, rocket, and other engines, new types of fuels for such engines, and unconventional approaches such as nuclear propulsion.

3. Aircraft structural research.—Emphasis will continue to be placed on structural problems resulting from aerodynamic heating, increased aerodynamic and ground handling loads, and the novel configurations of modern aircraft and missiles.

4. Operating problems research.—Of importance to civil as well as military aviation are continuing studies on aircraft icing, flight through turbulent weather, and the cause and prevention of fires in aircraft.

The National Capital Regional Planning Council coordinates planning in the counties and cities of the metropolitan area. A common staff serves both the Commission and the Council.

Major current activities of the Commission include (a) determination of the planning criteria on the general proposals for Federal public buildings requested by House Public Works Committee, involving important revisions in the Commission's central area plan and planning specifications for outlying locations; (b) policy recommendations on land use and height in connection with current revision of the District of Columbia zoning regulations and maps; (c) coordination of highway department proposals for inner ring location with land use plans for adjoining areas; (d) continued analysis and perfection of the Commission's preliminary thoroughfare plans for the District of Columbia for approval by the District Commissioners; (e) development of neighborhood plans for 140 areas throughout the city as a guide for recommendations on public works improvements and urban renewal plans; (f) advance review of District of Columbia $300 million public works program as to conformity with the comprehensive plan and coordination with Federal projects.

Regional council projects will include the following, on which a start was made during 1955: (a) Completion of basic land use studies, (b) application of findings of the 1956 economic base surveys for the region, (c) a regional highway and transportation plan, and (d) analysis of regional water supply sewage disposal survey conclusions as to effect on land use plan and future population distribution.

These projects are in addition to the routine planning duties which occupy a major part of the time of the two agencies and their joint staff.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The National Capital Planning Commission acquires land on behalf of the United States for the comprehensive development of the park, parkway, and playground system in the District of Columbia and its environs.

1. George Washington Memorial Parkway, Va.—Land is acquired along the shores of the Potomac River, above and below Washington from Great Falls to Mount Vernon, one-half the cost of which is borne by the local jurisdictions. Funds made available through 1956 were estimated to complete acquisition of land for the Virginia project from Mount Vernon to the United States Bureau of Public Roads research center, Fairfax County, Va., with the exception of three tracts in Arlington County. The adequacy of available funds cannot be determined until further surveys are completed, appraisals made, and taking lines finally determined. The 1957 program will make possible the extension of the parkway to the recently established bridge location approximately 1½ miles above the Public Roads property.

2. George Washington Memorial Parkway, Md.—No appropriations are being requested for 1957 because it is expected that the funds presently available will complete the project as now authorized.

3. Extension of stream valley parkways into nearby Maryland.—Land is acquired by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission with the aid of a one-third contribution by the National Capital Planning Commission for extension of the District of Columbia park system into the Maryland environs. The system now includes units of varying lengths in the stream valleys of Cabin John Branch, Little Falls Branch, Rock Creek, Sligo Creek, Northwest Branch, Paint Branch, Oxon Run, and Anacostia River. Fiscal year 1956 funds in the amount of $124,000 were appropriated for 1 unit each in Oxon Run and Indian Creek Parks. The 1957 program includes 3 units in Montgomery County; namely, Rock Creek Park, Sligo Creek Park, and Northwest Branch Park unit 3; also 3 units in Prince Georges County; namely, Paint Branch Park units 1 and 3, and Northwest Branch Park unit 2.

4. Park, parkway, and playground system in the District of Columbia.—Land is also acquired in the District of Columbia, with all expenditures being repaid to the United States by the District of Columbia. Acquisitions are part of the Commission's comprehensive plan for the park, parkway, and playground system of the National Capital. The 1957 program includes projects to acquire urgently needed playgrounds, recreation centers, and neighborhood parks.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents unfair labor practices by employers and unions. The number of cases filed with the Board has been increasing since January 1955. As a result a 1956 supplemental estimate of $425,000 is proposed for later transmission, and the estimate for 1957 will continue the Board's activity at this increased rate. The estimate does not include funds for representation elections in the building construction industry or for "last offer" elections in national emergency disputes because these elections have not been required to any extent in recent years.

1. Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated in the regional office in which they are filed. Failing settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal of these cases, they are prepared for public hearing. About 87 percent of the unfair labor practice cases and 73 percent of the election cases are closed without the need for public hearing or further formal action.

CASES PROCESSED IN FIELD [1]

|---|---|---|---|
| Charges of unfair labor practices | 5,970 | 5,240 | 6,500 |
| Petitions for representation elections | 7,193 | 6,525 | 8,450 |

2. Trial examiner hearings.—Trial examiners conduct public hearings of unfair labor practice cases which are the basis of the findings and recommendations set forth in intermediate reports. In fiscal year 1955, 301 reports were issued; for 1956, the estimate is 316; for 1957, 389.

3. Board adjudication.—In unfair labor practice cases, the trial examiner's intermediate report becomes the Board order if no exceptions are filed within 20 days. Exceptions are filed to approximately 75 percent of the intermediate reports and are referred to the Board for decision. In contested representation cases the Board may either order an election to determine the choice of bargaining representative or dismiss the case.

DECISIONS ISSUED BY THE BOARD

| Unfair labor practice | 314 | 264 | 326 |
| Representation | 1,653 | 1,440 | 1,852 |

4. Securing of compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order, the Board requests the courts to enforce its decision. Most of these contested decisions involve unfair labor practices. In 1955, 101 Board decisions of all kinds required court litigation; for 1956, the estimate is 93; for 1957, 107.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Foundation is responsible for developing and recommending to the President policies for strengthening the national scientific effort. It also supports basic research, and seeks to improve scientific manpower through award of fellowships and experimental programs in support of education in the sciences. The increased appropriation recommended allows for improvement of the Foundation's basic research program; for increased emphasis on programs for the training of scientific manpower; and for expansion of a program for the support of research facilities.

1. National science policy studies.—As a basis for developing national science policy, the Foundation is studying all phases of the Nation's scientific effort, including research programs of the Federal and State governments, universities, other nonprofit institutions, and industry. Factors relating to the supply, demand, and utilization of scientific manpower are also studied.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation supports the United States program for the International Geophysical Year, a worldwide scientific undertaking involving concurrent research by more than 50 nations, beginning in 1957. The results of this research ultimately will benefit international relations, national defense, agriculture, commerce, and industry. This undertaking involves securing and sharing on a multilateral basis scientific data which will assist technological advancement in such fields as weather forecasting and control, radio communication, navigation, and upper atmospheric flight. A supplemental is proposed for later transmission including funds for an earth-satellite program. It appears at the end of this chapter.

1. Geophysical research related to the earth's atmosphere.—Research into phenomena observable in the upper atmosphere, including studies of the aurora and airglow, cosmic rays, ionospheric physics, meteorology, and solar activity.

2. Geophysical research related to the planet earth.—Research into phenomena originating on or within the earth including studies of geomagnetism, glaciology, oceanography, seismology, and gravity.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission is concerned with the development of policies and standards governing the welfare, health, morals, and safety of reserve trainees on which recommendations will be made in 1956.

Costs for these activities will increase in 1957, due to the establishment of an inspection force necessitating additional personnel, supplies and equipment, and travel expenses.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Railroad Retirement Board administers the railroad retirement system, financed by employer and employee taxes. This appropriation is for that portion of the administrative expenses of the Board required in the operation of this program, and is derived from the railroad retirement account, a trust fund. The retirement system provides employees' annuities for age and disability, spouses' annuities, survivor benefits, and lump-sum death benefits.

Public Law 383, approved August 12, 1955, and other legislation recently enacted by Congress has had a pronounced effect on the workloads and budgetary requirements of the Board. Large recurring and nonrecurring workloads for which no provision was made in the regular 1956 appropriation will make it necessary to request a supplemental appropriation for 1956.

1. Maintenance of accounts of employee earnings.—Eligibility for benefits and the amount of benefits are based on individual accounts of compensation. This workload fluctuates with the level of employment in the railroad industry, rates of turnover, and similar factors. This activity is operated jointly with a similar requirement under the railroad unemployment insurance program and the costs are shared on a measured basis.

2. Processing and certification for payment of initial claims.—Claims for age and disability annuities, spouses' annuities, survivor benefits, and lump-sum payments are adjudicated and certified for initial payment. The claims load tends to increase each year as more railroad workers seek retirement because of age or disability and as the spouses of retired employees and the survivors of deceased employees become eligible for benefits. Regular claims dispositions were 144,250 in 1955 and are estimated at 145,390 and 151,450 in 1956 and 1957, respectively.

A supplemental appropriation must provide for nonrecurring work in 1956 caused by amendments to the Railroad Retirement Act. This work includes processing approximately 90,000 adjustments in monthly benefit rates resulting from an increase in the maximum annuity that can be paid the wife of a retired railroad employee from $40 to $54.30, and the removal of the restriction against a widow, widower, child, or parent receiving a full railroad survivor annuity when also qualified for a social security benefit at the same time. Provision also must be made for handling 53,200 wage certifications required under the disability provisions of the amended Social Security Act, and unanticipated increases in the regular claims load.

3. Monthly recertification and payment of awarded claims.—Benefit payments must be authorized each month for those persons on the rolls who continue to remain eligible. The number of monthly benefit payments were 6,735,004 in 1955 and are estimated at 7,450,000 and 7,880,000 in 1956 and 1957, respectively, and will continue to increase annually. The work of investigating the eligibility of beneficiaries to continue to receive monthly benefits is to be expanded in 1956 and 1957 in order to administer new work deductions provisions of the amended act.

4. Hearings and appeals.—Individuals whose claims for annuities or benefits are disallowed or who dispute the award have the right of appeal. The number of appeals were 179 in 1955 and are estimated at 225 in 1956 and 1957.

5. Actuarial services.—Actuarial studies and estimates are required by the Railroad Retirement Act to determine the adequacy of the tax rate to establish and maintain a sufficient reserve to meet all future payments. Also required are studies to determine the adjustments required between the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and the railroad retirement account to place the former in the same position in which it would have been if service as an employee under the Railroad Retirement Act after December 31, 1936, had been employment under the Social Security Act from that date (45 U. S. C. 228).

6. General administration.—Except for administrative activities supported by and concerned with the retirement program exclusively, the cost of general administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs on a measured basis.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Railroad Retirement Act provides that under certain conditions military service is creditable under the railroad retirement program. In the case of military service prior to 1937, there is authorized to be appropriated an amount equal to the difference between the actuarial value of each annuity, based in part on military service and the actuarial value of the annuity which would be payable without regard to military service, as determined at the time the claim is awarded.

The sum of $1,711,000 recommended covers the additional cost of military service credits for periods prior to 1937, awarded in claims during 1948 to 1954 inclusive, together with interest thereon at 3 percent.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Board conducts renegotiation with contractors to eliminate excessive profits in connection with procurement under the national defense program. All contractors and subcontractors who have any business subject to the act are required to file with the Board. The Board has determined or recovered $306,690,228.64 in excessive profits from the date of its establishment through June 30, 1955.

1. Executive direction.—The Board is responsible for executive direction, review, and final action in all cases. This includes screening all filings involving renegotiable business over $500,000 and requests for exemption under the standard commercial articles and services and new durable productive equipment clauses.

2. Staff operations.—The headquarters staff furnishes technical advice and assistance to the Board and regional organization.

3. Renegotiation operations.—The four regional boards conduct renegotiation proceedings and make initial determinations. The field boards make the excessive profit determination in all cases involving less than $800,000 of renegotiable profits; however, this determination may be appealed to the statutory board. All cases involving more than $800,000 are reviewed and approved by the statutory board.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission administers various acts regulating securities transactions and corporate reorganizations. Selected highlights are:

1. Full disclosure provisions.—Provision is made for securing compliance with the statutory standards of disclosure in offerings of securities registered with the Commission for public sale and in related periodic reports. Securities offered for sale to the public in fiscal year 1955 were 30 percent above fiscal year 1954. This higher level is expected to continue in fiscal years 1956 and 1957, and additional personnel are required to handle the higher volume of work.

2. Prevention and suppression of fraud.—Investor losses due to fraud are prevented or minimized by prompt investigation where frauds are suspected, through periodic inspection of the accounts of broker-dealer firms, and by surveillance of trading on stock exchanges and in the over-the-counter markets. Three hundred and ninety-two investigations were opened in fiscal year 1955 and it is expected that 431 will be opened in 1956 and 550 in 1957. Inspection and investigative facilities are being expanded to provide better protection.

4. Regulation of investment and public utility companies.—The financing of holding companies and their subsidiaries and other matters relating to servicing arrangements and accounting practices are regulated. Foreign and domestic investment companies are registered and their activities supervised. On June 30, 1955, 25 holding company systems and 387 investment companies were subject to regulation. No significant change in this workload is anticipated.

5. Corporate reorganizations.—Independent expert assistance is provided in court proceedings under chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act. On June 30, 1955, the Commission was participating in 46 such proceedings and comparable levels of activity are expected throughout fiscal years 1956 and 1957.

6. Operational and business statistics.—Statistical and other data are prepared to provide information needed to administer the securities laws and to produce financial data for overall Government statistical purposes. It is proposed to expand somewhat reports dealing with plant and equipment expenditures of United States businesses and the series of quarterly financial reports to cover trade and mining.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The primary purpose of the Selective Service System is effective manpower utilization through classification of those required to register under the Universal Military Training and Service Act.

1. National administration.—The overall administration of the act including planning, training, and records management is accomplished by the national headquarters and six regional field offices.

2. State administration.—Administration of the act within the several States is the responsibility of the 56 State headquarters, operating under policies determined by national headquarters.

3. Registration, classification, and induction.—These functions, affecting more than 17 million registrants are accomplished by over 42,000 uncompensated citizens assisted by about 6,000 clerks at over 4,000 boards. It is the responsibility of these citizens to determine who shall be deferred and for how long in the national interest in agriculture, industry or other pursuits. In 1957 they will also determine availability of members of the standby reserve for military service.

4. Special boards—(a) National Advisory Committee on the Selection of Physicians, Dentists, and Allied Specialists.—This committee acts in an advisory capacity to the Selective Service System in selecting physicians, dentists, and allied specialists for military service. It is separately administered, but funds are furnished by the Selective Service System from this appropriation.

(b) National Selective Service Appeal Board.—Pursuant to Executive Order 9988 this Board acts on the classifications of registrants which have been appealed to the President. It is under separate administration, but the Selective Service System provides funds for its operation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Small Business Administration was created to aid, counsel, assist and protect the interests of small business and to provide aid to business and homeowners who have suffered losses through natural disasters.

1. Procurement and technical assistance.—Small business is assisted in obtaining Government business by (a) joint determinations with the military and other procurement agencies of procurement to be set aside for small firms; (b) issuance of certificates of competency to small business concerns having capacity and credit adequate to perform a specific Government contract; (c) efforts to increase utilization of small plant facilities by subcontracts from large prime contractors; and (d) inventorying of small-business production facilities which can be used for mobilization planning, defense and civilian production. Managerial and technical advice is provided to individual small firms requesting assistance.

2. Financial assistance—(a) Direct lending.—Small business concerns and victims of natural disasters such as floods, hurricanes, etc., are aided through loans. The loans are administered in a manner to assure return of the Government's investment. Funds for administrative expenses of the lending activity are transferred from a revolving fund, a full discussion of which is set forth in the narrative statement under revolving fund, Small Business Administration.

(b) Other.—Small-business men are assisted in analyzing their financial problems and in finding solutions to these problems which do not involve direct Government loans.

3. Liquidation of Reconstruction Finance Corporation disaster loans.—Disaster loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were transferred to this agency for liquidation. As of October 31, 1955, there were 2,691 loans outstanding amounting to $10,873,440. This represents a reduction of 538 loans valued at $3,873,167 from those taken over on July 1, 1954. Administrative expenses for this activity are also transferred from the revolving fund.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Upon petitions being filed, the Board holds formal hearings and determines whether: (1) Organizations are "Communist-action organizations," "Communist-front organizations," or "Communist-infiltrated organizations;" (2) individuals are officers or members of a "Communist-action organization" or officers of a "Communist-front organization" and required to register as such; (3) the registration of particular "Communist-action organizations" or "Communist-front organizations" or of particular individuals should be canceled; and (4) a particular organization has ceased to be a "Communist-infiltrated organization." In each case the Board issues a report setting forth its rulings and findings as to the facts, and issues an appropriate order. The appeal by the Communist Party of the United States from the Board's order that the party register as a Communist-action organization is before the Supreme Court. Two Communist-front cases are before the United States Court of Appeals. It is expected that hearings in about 10 front and infiltrated cases will be completed by the end of fiscal year 1956, and an additional 12 or more will be completed by the end of fiscal year 1957.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Tax Court hears proceedings based upon determinations of tax deficiencies made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and decides whether there is a deficiency or overpayment in Federal income, estate, gift, and excess profits taxes, and reviews determinations denying claims for refund of excess profits taxes. The court also hears proceedings based upon determinations of excessive profits on contracts renegotiated by the Federal Government.

The program for the fiscal year 1957 would provide for an estimated 175 weeks of circuit trial proceedings to be undertaken by the court. This is essentially the field work program completed in the fiscal year 1955, and authorized for the fiscal year 1956. The 5,333 proceedings closed in 1955 represent a productive volume somewhat above normal, although the total number of cases closed in 1955 was 23 percent below 1954. The disposition of the lesser number of cases occurred largely because considerably fewer settlements by stipulation were received by the court during the last fiscal year. The caseload now on the court's docket supports the continuance of the trial program at the present level.

The additional funds requested are for salaries of retired judges, and for essential increases in operating costs.

A supplemental appropriation of $24,000 for the fiscal year 1956, is to be submitted to cover retired pay and terminal leave payment of a judge who voluntarily retired on September 30, 1955.

The actual and estimated work volume of the court is presented in the following tabulation:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The purpose of the United States Information Agency is to submit, by means of communication techniques, persuasive evidence to peoples of other nations which will demonstrate that their own aspirations for freedom, progress, and peace are supported and advanced by the objectives and policies of the United States. The intention is to encourage foreign peoples to take action consistent with United States national objectives.

The world situation stemming from recent development calls for sharply increased emphasis on this program. The increase of approximately $47.6 million in available operating funds will provide for: (1) Approximately $40 million directly related to intensified programs carried out by the Agency in foreign countries including media and other support services. Special activities employing all media will be expanded so as to explain overseas the United States positive programs for peace, including atoms for peace, mutual aerial inspection, and the achievements of our science and enlightened capitalism. (2) In addition about $6.6 million will be for expansion of television programs and direct radio broadcasting. (3) A net increase of $1 million in staff activities includes research and intelligence and encouragement of related information programs overseas by private American groups.

1. Overseas missions.—The program is conducted through 206 posts in 81 countries and is known abroad as the United States Information Service (USIS). The overseas missions carry out country programs designed to influence local attitudes and actions in support of United States foreign policy. These programs are being intensified and strengthened in critical areas, especially in the Far East, Near East, South Asia, and the American Republics. USIS missions prepare materials locally, to the extent possible, utilizing all local communication techniques available, and utilize materials provided from Washington by the media services.

2. Media services.—These services provide support for overseas country programs.

(a) The press service maintains communications facilities for the transmission of daily news, editorial and feature materials for adaptation by overseas missions for special local programs. Photographic and printing supply support is provided for the production of pamphlets and magazines. It maintains two regional printing centers to service posts in the Near and Far East at less than local costs.

(b) The motion picture service supplies the missions with films produced or acquired in the United States or overseas, translated into 40 foreign languages. It adapts films for specific country or area use, and provides guidance in the foreign production, use, and distribution of films. The service also supplies the missions with mobile units for showing motion pictures.

(c) The information center service supplies 164 information centers (United States operated) in 63 countries and 57 binational centers (operated jointly by the United States and the host country) in 25 countries with collections of American books and other publications, both in English and in translations, and with English-teaching materials. Exhibits and visual presentation materials are provided overseas centers, missions, and exhibitions abroad. It assists American publishers in distributing selected products overseas. The service also provides books and periodicals for presentation to selected individuals and groups. It will support the publication of low-priced books for sale abroad.

3. Radio broadcasting and television program.—This service will produce radio broadcasts in 39 foreign languages and English. Programs originate from the United States and from two points overseas. It operates a total of 76 transmitters at 7 locations in the United States and at 9 overseas locations with a combined radio frequency power output of over 8 million watts. The service will originate a total of 44¼ hours of programing daily in 1957, an increase of 3¼ hours over the current year schedule. The service supplies the USIS missions with recorded radio programs and scripts and with radio supplies and equipment needed for USIS mission radio program activities. This service acquires or produces newsreels and other types of television programs for use by USIS missions for placement on local outlets.

4. Program direction and appraisal.—This activity includes the collection of research and intelligence data, coordination and utilization of American private enterprise, and program and policy planning, in accordance with its assigned mission.

This appropriation provides for all administrative expenses except those applicable to the Department of Medicine and Surgery.

The appropriation of $164,436,000 proposed for 1957 is $3,357,000 less than the amount, including anticipated supplementals, appropriated for 1956. Workloads of the various programs as estimated for 1957 are not expected to change significantly from those estimated for 1956. In addition to the data below, certain factors in workload trends may be found under the appropriations for readjustment benefits, compensation and pensions, and the various insurance programs.

2. Insurance.—Approximately 6 million veterans are insured under the United States Government or national service life insurance programs. Obligational requirements for the administration of the programs have been reduced from approximately $41.5 million in fiscal year 1953 to an estimated $25.4 million in 1957. These reductions, accompanied by only slight decreases in the number of policies maintained, have been made possible through consolidation of activities and improved operating procedures.

3. Veterans' benefits.—Veterans' and dependents' claims for compensation, pensions, or other benefits are adjudicated; and guardianship and fiduciary service is furnished helpless or incompetent veterans and minor dependents.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation covers the cost of outpatient medical and dental care of veterans with service-connected disabilities and those receiving vocational rehabilitation benefits. Such care is rendered both in Veterans Administration clinics and by private physicians and dentists on a fee basis and includes examinations to ascertain the need for hospitalization, eligibility for compensation, pension, vocational rehabilitation, and insurance benefits.

The decrease of $2,833,200 in estimated requirements for fiscal year 1957 is due to a projected decrease in dental fee care slightly offset by minor increases in other items.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation finances the cost of operating a system of three supply depots through which a portion of the supplies and equipment used in Veterans Administration facilities are centrally procured and distributed. The depots are located in Hines, Ill., Somerville, N. J., and Wilmington, Calif. In 1957, it is estimated that the depots will supply about 18 percent of the total usage of supplies and equipment which will aggregate approximately $125 million compared with 17.7 percent and $121 million in 1955, and 18.7 percent and $120 million in 1956.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for veterans' compensation, pensions, subsistence, and burial allowances. On June 30, 1955, there were an estimated 21,878,000 living veterans of all wars and peacetime service of which 12.2 percent were receiving benefits provided by Congress under this appropriation. In addition, 1,154,173 dependents of 808,303 deceased veterans were receiving benefits. The increased cost to the total appropriation is attributable to the advancing age of veterans, the increasing number of living veterans, and rate-increasing legislation. The higher rates, effective October 1, 1954, increase the average annual payments to be made in fiscal years 1956 and 1957.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $2,907 million, which is an increase of $88 million over estimated requirements for the current fiscal year and $227 million over fiscal year 1955. It is anticipated that a supplemental appropriation (not shown in the obligation and expenditure schedules) of approximately $20 million will be required for fiscal year 1956. Passage of proposed legislation improving benefits to survivors of servicemen and veterans will require an additional supplemental appropriation estimated at $45 million in 1957.

1. Compensation.—Compensation is payable to living veterans and eligible dependents of deceased veterans for disability or death connected with military service.

Living veterans.—The basic rates of disability compensation in wartime cases range from $17 for 10 percent disability to $181 per month for total disability. Additional amounts are payable for specific conditions as prescribed by law to a maximum of $511 per case. All rates of peacetime disability compensation are 80 percent of wartime rates.

The caseload continues to increase, but at a decreasing rate. Declining World War I and II caseloads are offset by increased payments to Korean and peacetime veterans. The termination of the Korean emergency is reflected in the sharp increase to the peacetime roll in 1957. The lower rates payable for peacetime service will cause a small decrease in the average payment per compensation case.

Dependents of deceased veterans.—Death compensation is paid to widows, children, and dependent parents of veterans who died in service, or as a result of service-connected disease or injury. Payments vary with the relationship of the beneficiary, number of dependents, and whether service was rendered in time of war.

The caseload continues to increase steadily and the average payment per case is not anticipated to change substantially in fiscal year 1957.

2. Pensions.—Benefits are payable to wartime veterans and dependents of deceased veterans for non-service-connected disability and death. The rates and conditions of entitlement outlined below apply to World War I and subsequent periods of service; rates and conditions of entitlement applicable to prior periods vary somewhat and are on a more liberal basis.

Living veterans.—In general, pensions are payable to wartime veterans who are unable to secure substantially gainful employment as a result of a permanent and totally disabling non-service-connected disability. The basic monthly rate is $66.15, increased to $78.75 if the veteran is over 65 years old. Payment of pensions is limited to veterans whose annual income is less than $1,400, or $2,700 if married or with minor children.

The caseload continues to increase with significant gains projected through the budget year. This increase is almost entirely in the World War I category where the large number of veterans attaining age 65 will contribute to the increases in both fiscal year 1956 and 1957. The average annual payment per case decreases slightly in fiscal year 1957 due to the decreasing Spanish-American War rolls, where the average payment is considerably higher than in other categories.

of deceased wartime veterans whose death was not due to service-connected causes, but who at the time of death had a service-incurred disability. This requirement is not applicable to World War I cases. Rates vary considerably depending upon the relationship and the number of the dependents; the average monthly payment approximates $53. Eligibility for pension is subject to an annual income limitation of $1,400 to a widow or to a child alone, or $2,700 to a widow with a child or children.

The caseload continues to increase steadily and this experience is projected through the fiscal year 1957. The average annual payment per case, which decreases slightly in fiscal year 1957, is attributable to the distribution of dependents, particularly in World War I cases.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

These benefits apply to the cost of subsistence, tuition, supplies, and equipment for the training of World War II veterans and to education and training allowances for Korean veterans; tuition, supplies, and equipment for disabled veterans requiring rehabilitation, gratuities, claims, and property acquisition costs on veterans' loans; and housing grants for disabled veterans.

3. Loan guaranty.—Loan forecasts are based on current monthly trends and the assumption that construction of housing units will continue at a relatively high level. Interest gratuity benefits were discontinued on September 1, 1953. Payments in 1956 represent a residue of commitments incurred before the termination date. The increasing number of claims paid reflects a growing base of guaranteed loans, with no change in the incidence of default. Loan and property acquisitions will increase proportionately with the number of defaults and claims paid.

4. Housing grants for disabled veterans.—This assistance in acquiring suitable housing is provided to veterans with specified total and permanent service-connected disabilities. Of the estimated 6,900 eligible, 5,822 have established their basic eligibility as of June 30, 1955. Of these, 4,498 have made formal applications for a grant, and 4,121 applications have been approved.

5. Supplemental requirements.—Additional funds will be required during fiscal year 1956 as the number of veterans in training under Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act and the average cost per veteran in training has not decreased as much as expected. A supplemental of approximately $142.6 million is shown at the end of this chapter and its effect is reflected in the workload and cost data shown below.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Payments are made for claims on war-risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I. Although no policies of this insurance remain in force, payments for death and disability claims continue. In addition to the annual appropriation, there is authorized a permanent appropriation, representing repayment of liens established on war-risk insurance.

1. Monthly payments to beneficiaries—(a) Disability awards.—Payments of $5.75 per month per $1,000 of war-risk insurance held are made to veterans becoming permanently and totally disabled for as long as the disability shall continue.

(b) Death awards.—Upon the death of a veteran receiving payments for disability, the remaining value of the policy is paid to the beneficiary as a death award.

2. One-sum benefit payments are retroactive payments for either disability or death. There were only three in 1955.

3. Payment to United States Government life insurance fund, Veterans Administration.—Transfers are made to the United States Government life insurance fund to reimburse the fund for claims (a) traceable to the extra hazards of military service and (b) arising on certain policies held by personnel in active military service.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation was established to pay certain expenses of the national service life insurance fund, and to receive premiums and pay claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to certain disabled veterans of World War II. There is authorized a permanent indefinite appropriation of premium receipts (38 U. S. C. 802 (c) (2)). During fiscal year 1956 the fund will be reimbursed for claims arising from deaths of prisoners of war officially declared in 1954.

1. Payments to national service life insurance fund.—(a) For death claims traceable to the extra hazards of service an amount is transferred from this appropriation which, added to the reserve of the policy, is equal to the actuarial value of the claim. In the event of total disability traceable to the extra hazards of service, an amount is transferred from this appropriation sufficient to meet the current payments from the fund.

(b) Gratuitous insurance was issued to aviation cadets and to certain persons who were unable to make application for national service life insurance.

(c) The fund is reimbursed when recovery of erroneous payments or overpayments is waived.

(d) The fund is reimbursed for death claims on policies under waiver of premiums while the insured is on active military duty.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955 (42 U. S. C. 2301) provides for the disposal of AEC-owned community property at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash. The sale of housing, commercial properties, and private-use lands will begin in 1956, and it is presently contemplated that a sizable volume of the sales will be completed by the end of 1957. It is expected that the responsibility for the sale and financing of the properties will be delegated to other agencies in accordance with section 101 of the law prior to July 1, 1956.

The law provides for a basic system of priorities, to be implemented by the Commission, providing purchase priority to occupants and residents to insure the continuance of the AEC programs with a minimum of dislocation through retention of the personnel essential to those programs. Provisions are made to indemnify for a period of 15 years the purchasers of housing against losses which might result from a possible future decline in employment and population in the community.

Proceeds from sales will be deposited in a special fund. These proceeds may be used to meet costs and possible losses, including costs of sales, financing, and administration of mortgages; repurchase of properties; and payments under indemnity obligations. No indemnity payments or repurchase of properties are anticipated in 1956 or 1957. It is contemplated that the Commission will retain responsibility for determination of properties to be placed on sale, determination of eligible priority purchasers, and administration of the priority plans; and will continue to bear the cost of appraisal. Expenses for these functions are therefore included in the appropriation "Operating expenses, Atomic Energy Commission." Costs of functions to be delegated will be met from this community property disposal fund.

PUBLIC ENTERPRISE FUNDS

ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

Revolving Fund, Defense Production Guaranties, Atomic Energy Commission

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guaranties are given on loans made by private sources to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Loans may be purchased by the Government if necessary to keep financing in effect; however, the Atomic Energy Commission has not yet been required to do this. Administrative expenses are paid out of guaranty fees.

In 1955, guaranties of 80 percent to 95 percent were in force on four loans for which the total amount of credit available to the borrowers was $10,389,850. It is estimated that in 1956 and 1957 guaranties will be in force on five loans for which the total amount of credit available to the borrowers will be $14.6 million.

Net earnings, retained to meet possible future losses, are expected to be $388,878 at the end of 1957 (50 U. S. C. app. 2061–2166).

The Export-Import Bank facilitates the financing of exports and imports. To do this it participates in or guarantees credits extended by United States exporters, commercial banks and other financial institutions to foreign purchasers of exports from the United States. It makes direct loans to finance United States exports and imports. It also insures certain exports against risks of war and expropriation. The total amount of loans, guaranties, and insurance which the bank may have outstanding at one time is $5 billion (12 U. S. C. 635).

The bank is a Government-owned corporation in which the Treasury has invested $1 billion. It can borrow up to $4 billion from the Treasury (counting an increase of $0.5 billion granted for 1955). On June 30, 1955, the amount borrowed from the Treasury was $1,271 million. Notes outstanding on June 30, 1957, are expected to be reduced to $1,140 million.

BUDGET PROGRAMS AND POLICY

The bank's policy is to extend credit only when private capital is unavailable. It encourages private participation in the credits extended. Loans generally are made only for specific transactions or projects.

The bank's operations are expanding because the foreign market is changing from a seller's to a buyer's market resulting in more sales on credit, and because of the increase in investment for economic development in many countries.

EXPORT AND IMPORT LOANS

Credits requested by exporters are authorized on a case-by-case basis to assist United States manufacturers and exporters to sell abroad on deferred payments. Examples of such loans authorized in fiscal 1955 include credits to finance the sale of motor buses in Brazil, dump trucks in Costa Rica, tractors in Greece, and textile equipment in Egypt.

The bank also recently started establishing a new type of credit line on a revolving basis for individual exporters of capital equipment. The recipient of such a line will know, in advance of new foreign sales, about how much assistance he may be able to obtain provided that criteria on the type of export and the credit standing of the importer are met. Already over 100 such credit lines have been approved, mainly for smaller export concerns.

The increasing willingness of private financial institutions to extend export credit has increased the demand for loan guaranties. The bank is strongly encouraging the tendency for private financing, with or without guaranties, to replace the need for additional direct loans.

DEVELOPMENT PROJECT LOANS

A significant portion of the bank's assistance for the exportation of United States materials, equipment, and services continues to be in the form of longer-term credits for development projects abroad. These loans not only finance export sales, but lay the foundation for expanded future trade as foreign economies become stronger. Recent loans of this type have included developing a major Peruvian copper deposit, powerplants in Thailand, and highway construction equipment for Bolivia. Loans of this type are expected to continue at the current level

ESSENTIAL MATERIAL LOANS

A very closely related activity to development credits is the authorization by the bank of credits to finance the costs, principally American, of development and expansion of foreign sources of strategic and critical materials for the defense stockpile and of essential materials for use by the United States industry in general. Recent examples include financing for the production abroad of copper, iron ore, and uranium oxide. It is estimated that three loans for projects of this specialized nature will be authorized by the bank in fiscal year 1957.

EMERGENCY FOREIGN TRADE LOANS

From time to time the bank is called upon to provide financial assistance to meet emergency situations adversely affecting normal trade between the United States and another country. Such loans may take the form of lines of credit to a foreign central bank or other bank or financial institution to provide dollar exchange; a credit to fund commercial arrearages resulting from dollar exchange difficulties; or a credit to assist in financing purchases in the United States required for reconstruction abroad following a national disaster.

Substantial emergency credits to European countries were disbursed during the years immediately following World War II. Payments of principal and interest on these loans are being promptly received. Modest provision for emergencies is made in the estimate for 1957.

INSURANCE

The first policies covering the risks of war and expropriation of property of United States exporters situated abroad were issued with respect to cotton in March 1954. A total of 173 policies were issued by the bank up to June 30, 1955, covering 21,034 bales of cotton valued at $4,454,284. It is estimated that policies covering cotton to a value of $1.3 million will be issued in 1957.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

The limitation proposed by the bank for administrative expenses in fiscal year 1957 is $1,670,000.

OTHER OPERATIONS

The bank serves as administering agent for mutual security loans and guarantees against currency transfer risk and expropriation authorized by the International Cooperation Administration and for defense production loans made by the Office of Defense Mobilization. It also acts as disbursement agent for the United States Information Agency on informational media guaranties. These programs are described in the "Funds appropriated to the President" and "Independent offices" sections of the budget.

The bank serves as collecting agent for the Treasury on the debt settlement agreement with the Federal Republic of Germany. The annual interest receipts of $25 million are shown in miscellaneous receipts.

FINANCING THE BUDGET PROGRAM

No additional lending authority is required for 1957. On June 30, 1957, the total amount committed is estimated to be $4,325 million, leaving a margin of $675 million for additional commitments, plus the amount of subsequent net collections of principal and interest. Nor is additional obligational authority needed. The unobligated balance of the bank is estimated at $1,146 million at June 30, 1957.

OPERATING RESULTS AND FINANCIAL CONDITION

During the coming fiscal year, the net income of the bank is expected to amount to $64.3 million, of which $22.5 million may be paid to the Treasury as a dividend and the remainder added to the bank's retained earnings. Retained earnings, available for future contingencies, are estimated to be $448.1 million at June 30, 1957.

The net favorable effect on budget operations is expected to be $82.1 million in 1956 and $93.7 million in 1957, since loan collections and other receipts from operations are expected to exceed loan disbursements and other payments by those amounts.

Total investment of the Government in the corporation is expected to be $2,610.6 million at the end of 1957, consisting of $1 billion in capital stock, $1,140 million of borrowings from Treasury and $470.6 million of retained earnings.

ANALYSIS OF TRANSFERS TO REVOLVING FUND

Repayments, cancellations, and recovery of prior year obligations (transfers out of prior authorizations to expend from corporate debt receipts)—1955, −$50,100; 1956, −$50,000; 1957, −$50,000.

The Corporation is in liquidation. It financed land bank commissioner loans until July 1, 1947, and assisted Federal land banks in their financing. All except $10,000 of the $200 million investment of the United States Government has been repaid to Treasury, and this will be repaid in 1957. It is proposed to cancel the $2 billion bond authorization.

Budget program.—As of June 30, 1955, the Corporation liquidated its remaining loans through bulk sale to the Federal land banks in exchange for noninterest bearing notes to be collected over a 10-year period. Its only remaining activity is the disposal of reserved mineral interests.

The minor expenses required for preserving, leasing, and disposing of reserved mineral interests will be more than covered by income.

Operating results and financial condition.—Net budget receipts are estimated at $2.1 million in 1957.

The retained earnings of the Corporation at the end of 1957, after making a dividend payment to Treasury of $2 million, are expected to be $9.8 million. Payments will continue to be made to Treasury until final liquidation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This revolving fund is available for investment in capital stock and paid-in surplus of the Federal intermediate credit banks (12 U. S. C. 1131i (e)).

ANALYSIS OF TRANSFERS TO REVOLVING FUND

Repayments, cancellations, and recovery of prior year obligations (net return of capital from Federal intermediate credit banks) (total transfers to revolving fund out of prior authorizations)—1955, −$400,000; 1956, $300,000; 1957, $500,000.

The 12 Federal intermediate banks serve as banks of discount for agriculture. They make no loans directly to individuals and accept deposits only as collateral security. Each bank is supervised by the Farm Credit Administration (12 U. S. C. 1021–1129).

The banks finance their lending operations by borrowings from the public. No liability is assumed by the United States Government for these obligations. Each bank operates under a limit of not to exceed 10 times its surplus and paid-in capital as to the amount of debentures and other similar obligations which may be outstanding (12 U. S. C. 1041). Based on this formula the borrowing authority is estimated to increase $29.9 million in 1957.

Budget program.—Credit demands upon the banks during 1956 and 1957 are expected to rise above the 1955 level as the banks face increasingly difficult credit problems arising from the prospects for a continuation of the downward trend in agricultural income in relation to continuing high farm operating costs. This situation has affected adversely the financial condition and loan repayment ability of many borrowers leaving them with accumulated indebtedness that will require several years of favorable conditions to liquidate.

Crop, livestock, and commodity loans and discounts are expected to continue to rise with a total of $2,085 million forecast for 1957. This is an increase of 8.61 percent over 1955, when credit extended amounted to $1,920 million. Repayment of $2,053 million is estimated in 1957, compared with $1,857 million in 1955.

Administrative expenses are paid out of income. The increase to $1.9 million in 1957 is needed to meet increasing program requirements.

Financing operations.—To finance their 1957 lending operations, the banks expect to issue $1,228 million of consolidated collateral trust debentures and to borrow $102 million from commercial banks for short periods.

Net budget expenditures are estimated at $28.9 million in 1957.

Operating results and retained earnings.—Interest income from loans and discounts, United States securities, and other sources, is estimated at $23.5 million in 1957. The forecast increase is due to the expected rise in the average interest and discount rate on a greater loan volume. Interest costs are estimated at $18.4 million in 1957. The average cost of outstanding debentures is estimated at 2.25 percent for both 1956 and 1957, compared with 1.58 percent in 1955.

Net income is expected to be $2.8 million in 1957. Of this amount $1,450,000 is expected to be transferred to reserve for contingencies, $348,300 paid to Treasury as a 25-percent franchise tax, and the balance carried to retained earnings. Retained earnings at the end of 1957 are estimated to be $54.1 million.

Financial condition.—Crop, livestock, and commodity loans and discounts outstanding at the end of 1957 are estimated to be $934 million.

Investments in United States securities are projected at $60 million for 1957, the same level as 1955 and 1956. These securities aid the banks in obtaining funds in the investment markets at reasonable rates.

The Government's capital investment at June 30, 1957, estimated at $63.2 million, consisting of $5 million of paid-in capital for each of the 12 banks, and $3.2 million of paid-in surplus out of a revolving fund of $40 million in Treasury (12 U. S. C. 1131i (e)). A net increase in paid-in surplus of $0.3 million is estimated in 1956 and $0.5 million in 1957.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This revolving fund is available for capitalization of the production credit corporations (12 U. S. C. 1131b, 1131i).

ANALYSIS OF TRANSFERS TO REVOLVING FUND

Repayments, cancellations, and recovery of prior year obligations (return of capital from production credit corporations) (total transfers to revolving fund out of prior authorizations)—1955, −$260,000; 1956, −$2,240,000; 1957, −$500,000.

The 12 production credit corporations under the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration organize, supervise, and provide supplemental capital for the production credit associations in their respective districts (12 U. S. C. 1131).

The corporations' capital stock is financed from a Treasury revolving fund of $90 million. The investment of such paid-in capital in United States securities provides the primary source of operating income.

Budget program.—To carry out the objective to have all associations wholly member owned, the corporations have reduced their investment in stock of associations from $90 million in 1934 to $2,750,000 on June 30, 1955, when 419 associations were completely owned by farmers and stockmen. A further reduction of $550,000 is estimated in 1956.

Supervision of the 498 production credit associations includes the prescribing of loan policies, interest rates, and reserves; approval of certain classes of loans and dividend payments; and approval of association officers, directors, and their compensation. Also, the corporations make an annual credit examination of each association and periodic operating reviews and audits. Administrative expenses for this work are estimated at $1.6 million in 1957.

Financing operations.—The Government's capital stock investment in the corporations was reduced $260,000 during 1955 and further repayments to the revolving fund are estimated at $2.2 million in 1956 and $0.5 million in 1957, thereby reducing the capital stock to an estimated $28.7 million by the end of 1957.

FARM CREDIT ADMINISTRATION MIXED-OWNERSHIP CORPORATIONS

BANKS FOR COOPERATIVES

The banks for cooperatives make loans to finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. The banks' capital funds are from the Agricultural Marketing Act revolving fund and from borrowing farmers' cooperative associations (12 U. S. C. 1134). The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provides for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the United States Government investment.

FEDERAL CIVIL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

Civil Defense Procurement Fund

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances procurement of materials and organizational equipment toward which Federal contributions are made on a matching-fund basis. It is reimbursed for purchases from the Federal contributions appropriation and funds provided by the States (65 Stat. 61). The present principal of the fund consists of $5 million appropriated in 1951.

Analysis of the activity of this fund indicates that it is not being utilized enough to justify the retention of the $5 million principal. This is due to the fact that States and localities are encouraged to utilize local procurement; as less Federal procurement is done, the value of transactions through this fund declines. As this policy becomes more effective, very few transactions will require Federal procurement; therefore, the Federal Civil Defense Administration is initiating action to return $2.5 million of the fund principal to the Treasury. If future analysis so indicates, additional amounts of the principal will be returned.

The three-member Board supervises the Federal home loan bank system, the system of Federal savings and loan associations, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Net administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board are paid from assessments against the 11 Federal home loan banks, the division of examinations, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The Board's budget is based on six activities.

1. Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services that are common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

2. Examination and supervision of Federal home loan banks.—The Board supervises and examines the operations of the Federal home loan banks.

3. Supervision of Federal and State-chartered insured institutions.—The financial condition and operations of each insured institution is analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on, cooperatively, under arrangements made with the respective State authorities.

4. Chartering of Federal savings and loan associations and branches thereof.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. In addition, applications of State-chartered associations for conversion into Federal savings and loan associations are examined.

5. Fiscal and housekeeping services.—These consist of auditing; accounting; budgetary and financial reporting; internal budget control; fiscal organization and management; and general housekeeping and common operating services, including printing and reproduction work.

6. Examination of savings and loan associations.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and such uninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system as are not examined by State examiners. Audits are also made of over 80 percent of all insured associations. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter when required by the Board. The costs of examinations and audits are assessed against the institutions examined.

At the beginning of the fiscal year 1956 there were 3,472 insured institutions with total assets aggregating $31.5 billion.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

Administrative expenses are estimated at $1,095,000 for 1957 compared with $978,400 for 1956. These amounts exclude nonadministrative expenses of the division of examinations which are shown separately.

NONADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

The Division of Examinations conducts regular periodic and special supervisory examinations of all Federal savings and loan associations, of State-chartered savings and loan associations which are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and of noninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system that are not subject to State supervision. When required by the Board, the division also examines and analyzes the financial condition of institutions which apply for membership in the system, for insurance of accounts or for conversion from a State to a Federal charter. The institutions examined bear the costs of examination, and the fees charged therefor are calculated to defray all of the operating expenses of the division.

The following table reflects the work of the division:

The Federal home-loan banks, together with the building and loan associations and similar institutions which are members of the banks, constitute the Federal home-loan bank system, designed to stabilize and strengthen institutions promoting private thrift and individual home ownership.

The 11 Federal home-loan banks obtain their funds from capital stock, issuance of their own obligations, and deposits of member institutions. The capital stock of the banks consists entirely of subscriptions of member institutions. Authority to borrow from the Treasury in the amount of $1 billion is provided in 12 U. S. C. 1431 (64 Stat. 257). No borrowings have been made to date and none is anticipated in 1957.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation insures savings up to $10,000 in all savings and loan associations which apply and are approved for insurance. It prevents default of insured institutions through loans, purchases of assets, or cash grants, in order to eliminate conditions which might affect adversely the financial soundness of other insured institutions. When an insured institution declared in default is a Federal savings and loan association, the Corporation is appointed as receiver for the purpose of liquidation. The Corporation also may act as receiver for State-chartered institutions declared in default if appointment is tendered by State authority. On June 30, 1955, the 3,472 insured associations had resources of $31.6 billion. The Corporation's liability on the insured institutions aggregated $27.4 billion.

Income from insurance premiums and interest on investments has been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, dividends on capital stock, and to establish a reserve for insurance losses of $170.7 million as of June 30, 1955. The Corporation has authority to borrow up to $750 million from the Treasury, but no loans have ever been required. Since the time and size of expenditures for the prevention of default and payment of insurance are unpredictable, estimates of these expenditures are omitted from the financial statements.

The Corporation operates under the supervision and direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides certain administrative services and conducts the examination and supervision of insured institutions. The costs of examinations are paid by the institutions examined while the cost of all other services rendered by the Board are paid by the Corporation.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The budget program comprises four activities.

1. Underwriting.—This activity constitutes an analysis and evaluation of the insurance risk in connection with applications for insurance of accounts and other applications submitted pursuant to regulatory requirements. The assets of insured institutions have increased $9.9 billion or 46 percent in the last 2 years. The increasing interest in insurance of accounts on the part of uninsured institutions, plus the anticipated rate of growth, will increase the insured liability of the Corporation to an estimated $35.7 billion by June 30, 1957, as compared to $27.4 billion on June 30, 1955.

2. Prevention of default and payment of insurance.—The Corporation not only pays insurance in cases of defaulted institutions, but prevents default wherever possible. Through 1955, 37 institutions have needed financial assistance from the Corporation. Cash grants in the net amount of $4.9 million have been made to 28 institutions to prevent default; a grant to 1 institution has been authorized but not disbursed; the assets of 1 institution were purchased and liquidated without loss; and 7 institutions with aggregate assets of $9.2 million have been placed in liquidation and insurance paid. Total losses since organization amount to $5.2 million.

3. Analysis of operations.—The Corporation maintains a current analysis of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, and the character and volume of mortgage lending, including selective review of geographical or community areas and phases of operations and certain analyses of trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance.

4. Executive direction and fiscal and other administrative services.—This covers all fiscal and other administrative services as well as management and direction.

Administrative expenses.—The requested authorization to use $596,000 of corporate income in 1957 is based upon the assumption there will be no abnormal demands on the resources of the Corporation.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The 1957 program provides for net investments of $18.3 million in United States Treasury bonds and notes as compared with an estimated $16.5 million in 1956 and the actual increase of $12.8 million in 1955.

The Corporation is retiring its original capital stock held by the Secretary of the Treasury at par in amounts equivalent to 50 percent of annual net income. Of the $100 million of original capital stock, $45.2 million has been retired, and with an additional payment of approximately $14 million in 1957 the outstanding stock will be reduced to $40.8 million. Funds for the retirement of capital stock are obtained through the redemption of United States Treasury notes held by the Corporation.

Through June 30, 1955, the Corporation has paid $39 million in lieu of dividends on capital stock. It is estimated that additional payments will be made to the Secretary of the Treasury of $0.8 million in 1956 and $1.1 million in 1957.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Income of the Corporation consists primarily of insurance premiums, admission fees, and interest on investments in Government obligations. Total income, since 1934 of $225,283,363 has been applied as follows:

| | Percent | Amount |
|---|---|---|
| Expenses | 4.2 | $9,599,379 |
| Insurance losses | 2.3 | 5,160,774 |
| Return on capital stock | 17.7 | 39,797,110 |
| Legal reserve | 75.8 | 170,726,100 |

Net income before payment of a return on capital stock for fiscal 1957 is expected to be $32.2 million. This amount is $8.3 million or 35 percent above the net income for 1955. After providing for an interest payment in lieu of dividends on the capital stock of $0.8 million for 1957, at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, the balance of the net income, $31.4 million, will be credited to the insurance reserve of the Corporation.

It is estimated that the aggregate insurance liability will amount to $35.7 billion by June 30, 1957. Because of the statutory provision requiring the Corporation to accumulate a reserve of 5 percent of all insured accounts and Investments held as of June 30, 1957, at par value, will aggregate $276.5 million.

The Corporation is required by law to accumulate a reserve of 5 percent of all insured accounts and creditor obligations of insured institutions before collection of premiums may be discontinued. As of June 30, 1955, this statutory requirement amounted to approximately $1.4 billion. The insurance reserve as of that date amounted to $170.7 million or 0.62 percent of the insured liability of $27.4 billion.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Pursuant to recommendations of the Rubber Producing Facilities Disposal Commission, the National Science Foundation has assumed responsibility from the Federal Facilities Corporation for the conduct of the Government research program in synthetic rubber. As recommended by the Commission, the Foundation established a Special Commission for Rubber Research to evaluate the existing research program and to develop recommendations as to the future role of the Federal Government in supporting synthetic rubber research. The 1957 budget is based on the recommendations of the Special Commission. It assumes that the contract operation of the Government rubber research laboratories under the National Science Foundation will be discontinued and that the Foundation will support a limited program of basic high polymer research in universities.

RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation continued as an independent agency until the close of business June 30, 1954. Immediately thereafter, the Corporation's production programs and functions of liquidating certain assets were transferred to several other agencies. Responsibility for the liquidation of the remaining RFC assets was assigned to the Secretary of the Treasury. The transfers made in accordance with the provisions of the RFC Act as amended, the RFC Liquidation Act, and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1954 are shown as follows:

The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, a wholly Government-owned enterprise, was created for construction, operation and maintenance of that part of the Saint Lawrence Seaway which is within the territorial limits of the United States. The dredging and construction phase of the Corporation's operations is scheduled to be completed in sufficient time to permit opening the Seaway to traffic in 1959.

The Corporation is authorized to sell to the Secretary of the Treasury revenue bonds payable from corporate revenues, with a limit of $105 million outstanding at any one time. Pursuant to law these bonds shall mature in not more than 50 years and shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury.

BUDGET PROGRAM

Activities of the Corporation in fiscal year 1957 will continue to relate to dredging and construction of a canal, two locks, and navigation channels in the 46-mile International Rapids section lying between Ogdensburg and below Massena, N. Y., and certain channel and related navigation works in the 68-mile Thousand Islands section lying between Lake Ontario and Ogdensburg. This dredging and construction, in conjunction with related navigation improvements to be provided by Canada, and the power development works being provided by the Power Authority of the State of New York in cooperation with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, will afford a 27-foot channel from Lake Erie to Montreal, the present authorized limit of deep-draft ocean shipping on the Saint Lawrence River.

Land and land rights including relocation of properties.—During the fiscal year 1957 the $5,166,500 will be applied to relocation of properties, including a highway, a railroad, and related bridges.

Locks.—The major part of the construction cost in 1957 will be on two locks, the Grasse River lock and the Robinson Bay lock located in the Long Sault Canal in the vicinity of Massena, N. Y. Costs in 1957 are expected to reach $25,614,400 contrasted with $6,132,900 in 1956. At the end of fiscal year 1957 the locks are scheduled to be approximately 77 percent complete.

Channels and canals.—The second major portion of the construction program covers the dredging and construction of the channels and canals at an estimated cost of $6,087,600 in 1957 compared with $2,495,400 in 1956. These features are scheduled to be 67 percent complete at the end of fiscal year 1957.

Navigation aids and related facilities.—This will cover such aids that will enable a mariner to safely navigate the Seaway, and related facilities to operate and maintain the navigation aids. The initial work is scheduled to get started in 1957 at an estimated cost of $156,000, and is expected to cost $3 million when completed.

Buildings and permanent operating equipment.—These facilities will consist of operating buildings and equipment, marine base for floating plant, and administration and maintenance buildings. Costs applied toward their completion in 1957 are estimated at $1,209,100.

Engineering and design.—This covers advance engineering and design work, studies, preparing design memoranda, plans and specifications, and scheduling operations. Costs for 1957 are expected to amount to $350,000 in 1957 and the engineering and design work is expected to be 98 percent complete.

Supervision and administration.—The $3,479,900 represents a proportional increase in fiscal year 1957 due to the peaking of the construction program during this period and the shifting of emphasis from the engineering and design phase to the actual supervision and administration.

Administrative expenses.—The limitation proposed for administrative expenses in 1957 is $325,000. The slight increase over 1956 is needed primarily to recruit operational specialists to plan for the mobilization of personnel and equipment for the opening of the Seaway, as well as a modest increase to the supervisory and administrative staff. This amount also includes a provision for the movement of the Corporation's Washington, D. C., office to Massena, N. Y.

Relation of costs to obligations.—As of the end of fiscal year 1957 a cumulative total of $79,371,800 represents both work that has been performed and contracted for, and will be 91 percent of the estimated cost of the Seaway. The cumulative cost of work performed through the end of fiscal year 1957 is expected to be $59,371,800 which will represent 68 percent of the total work to be accomplished. The difference of $20 million represents outstanding orders and contracts for work to be performed after fiscal year 1957.

FINANCING THE BUDGET PROGRAM

The cost of the Seaway is estimated to be $87 million with $18 million of the $105 million authorized not anticipated to be needed as a result of the deferment of certain works in the United States portion of the Seaway. As of June 30, 1955, the Corporation had committed $13,862,231 and it is estimated that $22,750,617 will be committed during the current year, leaving a balance of $50,387,152 of the $87 million available to finance these activities during 1957 and subsequent years. The Corporation is also authorized to use receipts from operations to finance its operation and maintenance program and repay the Government's investment, including interest thereon; however, no receipts from operations are estimated until the Seaway is opened to traffic.

OPERATING RESULTS AND FINANCIAL CONDITION

The only expenses for 1957 are those incurred for administrative expenses authorized by the Congress and interest payable to the Treasury on the revenue bonds outstanding. Together these total $1,045,000. Since all expenses are capitalized and no income realized during the period of construction, the Corporation will show neither income nor loss for 1957.

Net effect on budget expenditures is expected to reach a peak at $35,839,000 in 1957 as compared with $11,601,662 in 1956.

The total investment of the Government in the Corporation is expected to reach $50.5 million by the end of 1957, represented by bonds held by the Treasury.

This fund finances the two types of lending activities of the Small Business Administration: (1) Business loans to small business concerns, and (2) disaster loans to business firms and homeowners who have suffered damage from floods or other catastrophes, including loans to business concerns in designated drought areas which have suffered substantial economic injury as a result of such drought.

Appropriations up to $175 million are authorized to provide funds for these lending activities, under which not to exceed $150 million may be outstanding at any one time for business loans and not to exceed $25 million may be outstanding for disaster loans. Appropriations of $105 million have been made by the Congress to date.

BUDGET PROGRAM

Business loans.—Pursuant to legislative authority, business loans may be made directly or in cooperation with banks or other lending institutions, and shall be of such sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance applied for is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. No direct loan may be made unless it is shown that a participation is not available and no immediate participation loan may be made unless it is shown that a deferred participation loan is not available. SBA's participation in a loan is limited to 90 percent of the amount thereof, and the agency's maximum commitment to any one borrower under either a participation or direct loan is limited to $250,000, except that in the case of a loan to a special corporation formed and capitalized by a group of small-business concerns, the maximum loan is $250,000 multiplied by the number of separate small businesses involved. Business loans are generally limited to a maturity of 10 years and bear interest at a maximum of 6 per centum per annum for SBA's share of the loan.

Within the legislative authorizations, it is the policy of SBA to assist reliable, capable businessmen operating small firms to secure necessary credit for constructive purposes on terms that will meet the borrower's individual requirements. The following tabulation reflects certain data on program activities from the standpoint of the applicants or borrowers and includes funds disbursed or collected by banks on participation loans. Accordingly, the SBA share of disbursements, repayments, and loans outstanding will not agree with related data in the financial statements, which reflect transactions on the basis of only SBA cash funds involved.

Disaster loans.—No legislative restriction exists on the amount which may be loaned to an individual or business suffering loss from a disaster. The maximum term except for housing loans is 10 years and the interest rate on all disaster loans is 3 per centum per annum. The following tabulation sets forth certain data on the disaster loan program. In view of the unpredictable nature of this program, it is impossible to estimate with accuracy the volume of new loans which may be committed during 1957. For budgetary purposes, it is assumed that 1957 volume will approximate that for 1955:

primarily for administering disaster and business loans made in prior years.

FINANCING THE BUDGET PROGRAM

In view of the number and severity of hurricanes, tornadoes, floods, and other natural disasters which occurred primarily in the summer and early fall of 1955, it is presently estimated that SBA will approve $35 million of disaster loans in 1956. Under existing legislation, a maximum of only $25 million is authorized to be outstanding at any one time for this purpose. The budget estimates contemplate that the Congress will be requested to increase this legislative limitation to permit the agency to discharge its responsibility for assisting disaster victims as intended by the Small Business Act. No increase in the legislative limitation of $150 million on the amount of business loans which may be outstanding at any one time is anticipated. To finance the 1957 estimate of both business and disaster loans, appropriations of $30 million to increase the principal of the revolving fund are estimated to be required for 1957.

Prior to the current fiscal year the agency committed its availability for 100 percent of SBA's share of approved deferred participation loans. Experience has demonstrated that only a small proportion of these loans are purchased by the Government and this policy was changed during 1956 to provide for a commitment of 15 percent on such loans. This action will extend the fund availability, thereby deferring the necessity for further appropriations until available funds are depleted by actual disbursements. An adjustment increasing the availability of the fund by $18.8 million is therefore shown in 1956.

OPERATING RESULTS AND FINANCIAL CONDITION

Income from low interest disaster loans and from a large number of relatively small business loans is not sufficient to cover expenses of the lending program. The loss from these activities is expected to amount to $2.4 million in the budget year which will increase the cumulative deficit from operations to $11.2 million by June 30, 1957.

Large disbursements for disaster loans in 1956 will increase the net effect on budgetary expenditures for the current year to $48.9 million. In the budget year the net expenditure is expected to drop to a level of $16.8 million. As the lending program matures disbursements and repayments for loans will become approximately equal and the net expenditure will reach a level approximating the annual operating deficit.

Excluded from the statement on financial condition is an undisbursed loan commitment liability of $33 million on June 30, 1955, $38.3 million on June 30, 1956, and $42.7 million on June 30, 1957.

The principal of the fund as of June 30, 1957, is expected to be $135 million, of which $81.7 million is interest bearing and $53.3 million is noninterest bearing.

Pursuant to section 3 of Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1954 outstanding disaster loans made by the former Reconstruction Finance Corporation were transferred on July 1, 1954, to the Small Business Administration for administration and liquidation. The related financial statements reflect the results of this liquidation activity during 1955 and as estimated for 1956 and 1957.

In connection with the transfer, the Small Business Administration executed a note payable to the United States Treasury in the amount of $13,550,160 covering the net amount of assets transferred. In addition, it assumed responsibility for meeting undisbursed loan commitments outstanding of $501,831 at the date of transfer.

During 1955, disbursements of $335,339 were made under loan commitments taken over. Administrative expenses, financed by a transfer to the appropriation for salaries and expenses, amounted to $626,085. For 1957 approval is being requested for a transfer of $500,000 for this purpose. Interest expense on the note payable to Treasury amounted to $249,224 in 1955.

Collections on loans of $3,418,681 and other income derived resulted in net budgetary receipts of $2,723,918 during 1955. Of this amount, $2,250,160 was used to repay Treasury and the balance retained as operating cash for the program activities. It is estimated that net budgetary receipts of $2,798,686 and $3,015,600 will be derived during 1956 and 1957, respectively, and that Treasury will be repaid $2,950,000 and $3,070,000 in the 2 years involved, leaving an estimated note payable balance of $5,280,000 as of June 30, 1957.

develop the Tennessee River system for navigation, flood control, and power; to provide munitions for national defense; to develop new and improved fertilizers; and to further the development of the Tennessee Valley's agricultural, forestry, industrial, and other resources.

TVA's programs are financed by appropriations and by proceeds from its operations, principally the sale of power and fertilizer materials. Appropriations cover expenses of navigation and flood control operations, research on fertilizer and munitions, part of resource development activities, and a portion of capital plant additions. Proceeds (referred to in the financial statements as corporate funds) are used in generating, transmitting, and distributing electric energy, including related reservoir operating expenses; and in manufacturing and distributing fertilizer and fertilizer ingredients. Section 26 of the TVA Act, as amended, provides for payments into the Treasury of the United States of such proceeds as in the opinion of the TVA Board are not required for these purposes.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

TVA activities are grouped into four major categories: (1) navigation, flood control, and power program; (2) fertilizer and munitions program; (3) resource development program; and (4) general service activities. Each is related to each of the others in both planning and execution, and is conducted to enable the people of the Tennessee Valley to make full and effective use of the area's resources by methods which encourage the enterprise of individual farmers and businessmen, and which strengthen State and local institutions and agencies.

NAVIGATION, FLOOD CONTROL, AND POWER PROGRAM

A major objective of the TVA Act is the unified development and use of the Tennessee River system for navigation, flood control, and power. As of June 30, 1955, the total investment in facilities serving these purposes was $1,518,542,182, and was allocated as follows: navigation, $139,457,998; flood control, $168,464,779; and power $1,210,619,405. Principal components of this system are 26 major dams, 25 major hydroelectric generating stations, 10 navigation locks, 11 major fuel-electric generating stations, and a power transmission network of more than 10,200 circuit-miles.

Acquisition of assets.—Obligations in 1957 for navigation, flood control, and power are estimated at $40,321,000. This total includes related administrative and general expenses and is distributed between appropriated and corporate funds as follows:

SUMMARY OF ESTIMATED OBLIGATIONS

|---|---|---|---|
| Projects contributing to power supply: Cleanup work on 5 steam plants in operation | $5,739,000 | $23,000 | $5,762,000 |

| Distribution of administrative and general expenses | 321,000 | 1,271,000 | 1,592,000 |
| Total | 14,604,000 | 25,717,000 | 40,321,000 |

The estimate of $5,762,000 for projects contributing to power supply provides only for cleanup work on five steam plants which will be in operation by June 30, 1956.

No funds were requested in the budget programs presented to the Congress for 1955 and 1956 to begin construction of additional generating capacity in those years which accounts for the decline in obligations from $120,276,844 in 1955 to $84,861,000 in 1956 to $40,321,000 shown in the budget program for 1957. TVA projects previously authorized, all of which will be in operation by the summer of 1956, will increase the system nameplate rating to 9,864,485 kilowatts. Completion of facilities being installed by the Department of the Army at the Cumberland River projects (Old Hickory hydro plant, 100,000 kilowatts; Cheatham hydro plant, 36,000 kilowatts) and by the Aluminum Company of America at the Chilhowee project on the Little Tennessee River (50,000 kilowatts) will increase this to 10,050,485 kilowatts at the end of calendar year 1958. After allowing for operating reserves, including such factors as machine outages and the effects of drawdown of storage reservoirs, this system could carry a load of about 9,543,000 kilowatts. The TVA system demands at that time are estimated to be in the order of 9,800,000 kilowatts to 10 million kilowatts, excluding power loads of the city of Memphis, which expects to complete its new steam plant by May 1958. To provide capacity for TVA service area loads the budget program provides for construction of 450,000 kilowatts of generating capacity at existing projects, consisting of 1 additional unit at John Sevier steam plant (180,000 kilowatts) to be in operation before the end of 1957, and 2 units at Johnsonville steam plant (270,000 kilowatts) to be placed in service in 1958. These facilities would increase the system nameplate rating to 10,500,485 kilowatts with assured load-carrying ability of 10,013,000 kilowatts at the end of 1958. A supplemental appropriation of $3,500,000 requested for fiscal year 1956 would provide funds for starting work on the fourth unit at the John Sevier steam plant. Funds required in later years for this unit and for the two additional units at the Johnsonville steam plant totaling $68,500,000 are expected to be provided through the enactment of legislative proposals now pending before the Congress which would provide additional sources of financing for TVA power projects by the sale of revenue bonds supported by revenue from power operations.

The estimate of $24,068,000 for transmission system facilities provides for necessary additions, improvements, and replacements in the TVA transmission system.

Most of the $7,630,000 estimate for navigation facilities is for beginning construction of a new navigation lock at Wilson Dam estimated to cost $35 million.

Other items in the 1957 program include investigations for future projects, acquisition of land and land rights in the Norris Reservoir for flood control purposes, and additions and improvements at completed projects.

Navigation operations.—Improvements on the Tennessee River system provide a modern 9-foot channel from the mouth of the river to Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of 650 miles. The Tennessee Valley is thereby linked with the 7,000-mile inland waterways system extending from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Traffic on the Tennessee River waterway system has increased from 32,600,000 ton-miles in 1933 to 1,236,548,000 ton-miles in 1954. Direct savings in transportation costs to shippers in 1954 are estimated at $14 million.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

TVA's job in navigation consists of (1) providing physical facilities adequate to the needs of modern commerce; (2) encouraging private interests in making an orderly development of terminal facilities and barge line services; and (3) working with shippers, carriers, and others to supply data on the availability and economy of Tennessee River transportation and to coordinate water transportation with other means of transport.

The 1957 budget program provides $253,000 for the direct expense of navigation operations. The net expense of navigation operations, including multipurpose reservoir operations expenses, depreciation, and administrative and general expenses, was $2,820,230 in 1955 and is estimated at $2,754,000 in 1956 and $2,870,000 in 1957.

Flood control operations.—The dams on the Tennessee River and its tributaries provide 11,803,000 acre-feet of storage for flood control at the beginning of the flood season. The system of dams has on 17 occasions reduced flood crests at the city of Chattanooga, which presents one of the Valley's major flood problems, saving about $53 million in flood damage at this city. Communities and agricultural land below the mouth of the Tennessee on the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers are also benefited, with averted damages of about $6,500,000. The TVA system, when high flows occur in the Tennessee River, is able to reduce flood heights at Cairo, Ill., from 2 to 4 feet.

The 1957 budget program provides $211,000 for the direct expense of flood control operations. The total expense of flood control operations, including multipurpose reservoir operations expenses, depreciation, and administrative and general expenses, was $2,585,885 in 1955 and is estimated at $2,545,000 in 1956 and $2,691,000 in 1957.

Power operations.—TVA power operations are confined to generation and transmission of power and sales at wholesale to local distribution systems and to certain industries and Government agencies requiring large amounts of power. Power is distributed by 148 local public agencies and two small privately owned utility companies to about 1,380,000 ultimate consumers. As of June 30, 1955, the installed capacity of the system was 7,809,985 kilowatts (nameplate rating), including plants of the Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army, and the Aluminum Company of America operated as a part of the TVA system. Total system input in fiscal year 1955 was over 46 billion kilowatt-hours and is estimated at about 58 billion kilowatt-hours for 1956 and about 62 billion kilowatt-hours for 1957.

Net income from power operations (before interest charges) was $47,911,715 in 1955 and is estimated at $58,972,000 for 1956 and $58,330,000 for 1957. The return on power investment in 1955 of 4¼ percent was slightly above the average experienced over the 22 years of TVA's power operations. Assuming average streamflow conditions, the return on the investment in 1957 is expected to be approximately 3¾ percent. Dry year conditions would reduce substantially the amount of net income which would be realized.

FERTILIZER AND MUNITIONS PROGRAM

TVA chemical facilities at Wilson Dam, Alabama, form a center of research for the development of new or improved fertilizers and processes for their manufacture. The facilities have equal importance for national defense purposes in the event of a defense emergency.

Acquisition of assets.—The estimate of $1,249,000 provides for prospecting and acquisition of phosphate lands; for construction work necessary to complete process developments underway and permit continued operation of present facilities; and for beginning of a unit for producing a high-analysis fertilizer from material now being wasted.

Fertilizer and munitions development.—Appropriated fund expense in 1957 is estimated at $2,446,000 and covers the cost of research on products and processes, basic agronomic research, and farm test-demonstrations. The 1956 estimate for this work is $2,201,000 and the 1955 expenditures were $2,269,484. Corporate fund expense is estimated at $15,217,000 in 1957 and $16,544,000 in 1956. Actual corporate fund expense for 1955 was $15,852,025. Income from the sale of fertilizer and munitions is estimated at $20,646,000 in 1957, compared with $21,991,000 in 1956 and $20,458,840 in 1955. After provision for depreciation and overhead, total expense in 1957 is estimated at $19,090,000. Net income is estimated at $1,556,000.

Research on products and processes consists of (1) exploratory tests, background research, and applied research at the laboratory level; and (2) process development. The latter includes technical and economic evaluation of research results; design, construction, and operation of pilot plants; improvement of design features and operating procedures of demonstration plants; and preparation of engineering and economic studies to facilitate application of the findings by other agencies and industries. Knowledge gained in fertilizer research is applied also to the related field of munitions. Expenditures for these activities in 1957 are estimated at $1,238,000.

The 1957 estimate of $351,000 for basic agronomic research covers laboratory and field plot tests to determine under controlled conditions the relative efficiency of TVA fertilizers. This work is carried out in cooperation with State experiment stations in the 7 Valley States and 4 other States.

Farm test-demonstrations will be conducted in 24 States in 1957, with an estimated 3,500 farms participating. Expense is estimated at $1,259,000 ($857,000 from appropriated funds and $402,000 from corporate funds) in 1957 compared to $893,000 in 1956 ($660,000 from appropriated and $233,000 from corporate funds). Income from farmer payments for fertilizer is estimated at $402,000. Major objectives of the program are introduction to farmers of TVA's experimental fertilizers and demonstration of their effective uses.

Estimated direct cost of fertilizer production and distribution is $14,815,000 for 1957, compared to the 1956 estimate of $16,311,000 and actual expenses of $15,678,984 in 1955. Income is estimated at $19,814,000 in 1957 and $21,323,000 in 1956 and was $20,005,710 in 1955. TVA builds and operates fertilizer and munitions facilities to serve one or more of the following purposes: (1) To demonstrate the technical and commercial feasibility of a new or improved fertilizer process and to encourage its adoption by industry; (2) to supply fertilizers for test-demonstration use on practical farms; (3) to produce new fertilizers in quantities sufficient for widespread demonstration to farmers; (4) to produce fertilizers needed for farmer education on improved systems of fertilization; and (5) to supply munitions materials for national defense. Fertilizers produced in excess of amounts required for farm test-demonstrations and other TVA programs are sold to farmers for educational purposes through cooperative and industry distributors. The cooperating distributors in turn furnish TVA data concerning distribution costs and farmer acceptance. Estimated fertilizer production in 1957 is as follows: Concentrated superphosphate, 20,000 tons; calcium metaphosphate, 80,000 tons; ammonium nitrate, 180,000 tons; and diammonium phosphate, 20,000 tons.

RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The 1957 estimate for resource development is $1,150,000 ($400,000 from appropriated funds and $750,000 from corporate funds). This estimate compares with the 1955 actual expenditure of $840,924 and the 1956 estimate of $1 million.

The 1957 estimate for agricultural resource development is $116,000, compared with $78,143 for 1955 and $83,000 for 1956. It provides for securing background information about the agriculture of the region so that the most important problems can be identified and appropriate solutions developed. Research and demonstrations are carried out cooperatively with the land-grant colleges on a few of the more urgent agricultural problems peculiar to the region in order to stimulate the efforts of other agencies on them. Increased emphasis will be placed upon demonstrations of agricultural development in problem areas through a coordinated approach by all interested groups and agencies.

The aim of the forest resource development program is to aid the States, counties, landowners, and the timber industry in developing full production and use of the Valley's forest resource consistent with the needs of watershed protection. The 1957 estimate of $520,000 provides for research and demonstrations in forest management, reforestation, forest protection, and wood utilization. The increase over the 1956 estimate of $475,000 and the 1955 actual of $434,271 will permit an intensification of research and demonstration activities in those fields where information and education are urgently needed and where work was deferred or curtailed sharply during 1955 and 1956.

The major purpose of TVA's participation in a program of tributary watershed development is to assist in finding and demonstrating ways in which State and local agencies and private groups can work together to solve the problems of resource development in small tributary watersheds. The 1957 estimate of $414,000 compares with the 1956 estimate of $341,000 and 1955 actual expenditures of $290,024 and provides for research on the effects of changes in land use on the quality and behavior of water in the streams; continuation of demonstrations in the Chestuee and Beech River watersheds in Tennessee; and exploratory work in other watersheds. The increase over 1956 provides funds for TVA participation with a second Valley State on a cooperative basis for initiation of a tributary watershed project.

Topographic mapping expenditures are estimated at $100,000 for 1957. The figure for 1955 is $38,486 and for 1956, $101,000. The 1957 estimate will continue the cooperative mapping program with the United States Geological Survey at about the same level as in 1956.

GENERAL SERVICE ACTIVITIES

Acquisition of assets.—An estimate of $54,000 for general facilities is primarily for replacement of trucks and other heavy mobile equipment.

Reimbursable services.—The 1957 estimate of $2,427,000 covers services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies. Major items included are continued construction of a bridge across Watts Bar Dam for the Public Roads Administration and the State of Tennessee, and mapping services for the Army and the United States Geological Survey.

ADMINISTRATIVE AND GENERAL EXPENSES

Administrative and general expenses consist primarily of costs of general administration and of personnel, fiscal, medical, and other management services which have been centralized in the interest of economy and convenience. These expenses are distributed to the various programs and projects as shown in schedule B–5. The 1957 estimate is $4,250,000, compared to the 1956 estimate of $4,113,000 and actual 1955 expenditures of $4,214,283.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Funds applied to financing.—Additional steam powerplant units after 1956 are expected to be financed from revenue bonds. Payment to the Treasury for reduction in power investment from power revenues has been estimated in the amount of $75 million which will leave the Corporation with an estimated cash balance of slightly more than $53 million at the end of 1957 assuming normal conditions. In addition, the Corporation has scheduled a payment to the Treasury of $6,587,000 from miscellaneous receipts originating in programs other than power.

Payments to Treasury from power income.—Schedule C–1 summarizes the status of payments to the Treasury from power income under the provisions of title II of the Government Corporations Appropriation Act, 1948. Payments from power proceeds through June 30, 1957, will total $285,131,519, of which $261,500,000 will have been made after passage of the 1948 law. Payments to the Treasury by that date will be about 73 percent greater than if equal installments were paid over a 40-year period.

Legislative proposals in reference to financing TVA power projects.—Proposals have been developed and submitted to the Congress which would provide additional sources of financing for TVA power projects by the sale of revenue bonds supported by revenues from power operations.

Funds provided by financing.—The 1957 program would be financed by $5,357,000 from a requested appropriation; $16,560,000 available from prior appropriations; and $257,258,000 provided by current income, principally from the sale of power and fertilizer products. Of the total of $279,175,000 thus available, $199,469,000 would be obligated as follows: $41,672,000 for acquisition of assets, $156,025,000 for operating expenses, and $1,772,000 for increases in inventories. The remaining $79,706,000 would be available for reserves for contingencies and/or payments to the Treasury. These estimates contemplate rescission of the $6,500,000 included in the 1956 appropriation for proposed connections with the Mississippi Valley Generating Co.

Cash is decreased by $31,751,000, reflecting the excess of 1957 payments (including $81,587,000 to the Treasury) over 1957 receipts.

OPERATING RESULTS AND FINANCIAL CONDITION

Income from power operations, the major source of revenue, is estimated at $231,550,000 in 1957 compared with the estimate of $219,931,000 for 1956 and the actual income of $185,880,345 in 1955. Expenses of power operations for 1957 are estimated at $173,220,000 as compared with the estimate of $161,002,000 for 1956 and the actual expenses of $138,367,067 incurred in 1955. Net income from power operations is estimated at $58,330,000 in 1957 as compared with the estimate of $58,929,000 in 1956 and the actual net income of $47,513,278 realized in 1955.

The net expense of other programs is estimated at $5,276,000 for 1957 as compared with the estimate of $4,559,000 for 1956, and actual net expenses of $6,348,012 in 1955. The excess of net income from power operations over net expenses of other programs results in estimated net earnings of $53,054,000 in 1957 and $54,370,000 in 1956, as compared with actual net earnings of $41,165,266 in 1955.

The 1956 and 1957 estimates for net earnings total $107,424,000, which when added to retained earnings of $142,136,871 at the beginning of 1956 results in estimated retained earnings totaling $249,560,871 at the end of 1957.

The total amount of non-interest-bearing investment expected at end of 1957 for all of the agency's activities will be $1,964,474,615 of which $1,714,913,744 is from appropriations and property transfered to the TVA from other Government agencies.

Travel by automobile is very frequently more economical than common carrier and sometimes the only available method of transportation. TVA's 845 units are pooled in one fleet and are issued to employees as requested. About 435 units will be used in power operations, maintenance, and transmission construction activities; 140 units in dam and steam plant construction at isolated sites not served by common carrier; 95 units in reservoir operations and 175 units in forestry, fertilizer, agricultural, administrative, and miscellaneous activities. Motor vehicles will be hired on special occasions to meet peak demands and at remote locations where TVA does not maintain a pool of motor vehicles and personal cars are not available. |

Loans are made to veterans for the purchase, construction, or improvement of homes, including farm residences, only where guaranteed private mortgages cannot be secured. The proceeds of loan repayments and loan sales are available for making additional loans. Appraisal and foreclosure expenses are met from interest income, and administrative expenses are borne by the appropriation for general operating expenses, Veterans Administration. The program extends to June 30, 1957, at which time outstanding loans are estimated to be $524.2 million, an increase of $154 million over 1955.

Borrowing authority in the amount of $491.1 million had been authorized through June 30, 1955. An additional $150 million has been authorized for each of the years 1956 and 1957, at a quarterly rate of $50 million less the proceeds of loan sales and repayments in the preceding quarter. The full borrowing authority was used in 1955. However, the successful development of the voluntary home mortgage credit program has reduced the anticipated need for direct Veterans Administration lending in 1956 and 1957. Borrowings for these 2 years are estimated at $88 million and $85 million, respectively, but additional amounts are available should unforeseen conditions require their use.

The net budget expenditure for operations was $64.6 million in 1955. It is expected to be $64.7 million in 1956 and $71.4 million in 1957. Interest earnings of $17.9 million are anticipated in 1957, up $4.4 million over 1955. Expenses are expected to increase only $2.3 million, resulting in an improved net income for the year of $8.1 million, and increasing retained earnings (reserve for losses) to $29.6 million at the end of the year. The net principal of the fund as of June 30, 1957, is estimated at $661.2 million, an increase of $173 million over June 30, 1955.

Estimate 1957, $1,000,000

AMOUNTS AVAILABLE FOR OBLIGATION

Appropriation (obligations incurred)—1957, $1,000,000.

ANALYSIS OF TRANSFERS TO REVOLVING FUND

Obligations incurred during year (total transfers to revolving fund out of current authorizations)—1957, $1,000,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund receives premiums and pays claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to veterans with a service-connected disability which makes them ineligible for commercial insurance. At the end of 1955 almost 12,000 policies were in force, representing over $100 million of insurance. Administrative expenses of the program, which was initiated in 1951, are paid from the appropriation for general operating expenses, Veterans Administration.

Death claims and refunds have exceeded premium receipts each year due to the insurance of medically substandard lives, and an appropriation of $1 million is required for 1957 to restore capital impairment. Thus the principal of the fund at the end of 1957 would consist of $2.3 million appropriated, impaired by a deficit of $1.9 million. This situation has precluded establishment of policy reserves.

Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief, Veterans Administration

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund is used to guarantee premiums due on commercial private life-insurance policies held by servicemen while they are in service and for 2 years after discharge. The Government guarantees the repayment of any indebtedness not liquidated by the insured himself, but any payments by the Government becomes a debt owed the Government by the insured (50 U. S. C. 510–590; App. 464). Claims receivable amounting to $267,000 were written off as uncollectible in 1955.

Administrative expenses of this activity are borne by the appropriation for general operating expenses, Veterans Administration. The capital of the fund was reduced by $500,000 during fiscal year 1955.

Veterans Special Term Insurance Fund

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Veterans who served subsequent to April 1951 may purchase special nonparticipating term insurance if application is made within 120 days after separation from service. As of June 30, 1955, almost 400,000 policies were in force providing over $3 billion protection, and it is estimated that approximately 250,000 new policies will be issued annually to more than double the outstanding insurance before the end of 1957.

Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund indicates that retention of earnings will reach $36.8 million at the close of 1957, which will be represented principally by 2¼ percent United States securities. Of the retained earnings it is anticipated that $12.2 million will be assigned to actuarial reserves and $24.6 million to surplus, allowing return in 1956 of the Government's initial investment of $250,000. Administrative expenses of this program are borne by the appropriation for general operating expenses, Veterans Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund is used to make loans up to $100 to disabled veterans eligible for vocational rehabilitation who are without sufficient funds to meet their expenses (57 Stat. 43; 38 U. S. C., ch. 12 note). Repayments are used for new loans. The capital of $1.1 million at June 30, 1955, represents the total appropriations made to date reduced by a rescission of $0.4 million during 1955. Capital will be reduced an additional $0.4 million during 1956 by repayment to the Treasury.

Expenses for operating the fund are borne by the appropriation for general operating expenses, Veterans Administration.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

Investigations, Civil Service Commission

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, full field security investigations performed at the request of other departments and agencies of the Government (66 Stat. 107). The capital of the fund consists of an appropriation of $4 million made available in 1952.

Because work on some investigations will be started in one fiscal year and completed in another, work in process is recognized as an asset of the fund. Agency estimates of investigations to be requested in fiscal years 1956 and 1957 as compared to fiscal year 1955 experience are presented below. In addition, the table relates estimated workload receipts to estimates of production, man-years, and unit costs.

CASELOAD, MAN-YEARS, AND UNIT COSTS

|---|---|---|---|
| On hand beginning of year | 6,114 | 4,367 | 4,067 |
| Received | 34,289 | 37,100 | 37,900 |
| Total workload | 40,403 | 41,467 | 41,967 |
| Processed | 36,036 | 37,400 | 37,750 |
| On hand end of year | 4,367 | 4,067 | 4,217 |
| Man-years | 1,218 | 1,425 | 1,428 |
| Unit cost | $229 | $250 | $250 |

The estimated increase in cost results principally from the pay raise and the changes in the per diem and travel allowances. Net earnings of each year are paid into Treasury the following year.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, procurement of supplies and equipment, operation of the service and reclamation shops, the book and periodical activity, and the motion-picture inspection and shipping activity.

For 1957 no net income is anticipated, as total income and total expenses are each estimated to be $131.5 million, approximately the same as the 1956 estimate, but higher than 1955 actual. During 1957 it is anticipated that $3 million additional will be returned to the Treasury, resulting in a decrease in capitalization to $42.6 million. This balance, consisting of donated assets, is impaired by a deficit of $0.3 million.

Plant acquisition and construction, Atomic Energy Commission (under proposed legislation, 1957).—New obligational authority will be requested in a supplemental transmission after congressional consideration of the Commission's request for authorization. Available unobligated balances have been applied in determining the appropriation to be requested. Of the $196.1 million of total obligations anticipated, $81.1 million is expected to be proposed for improvements and additions to existing production plants which will increase production and safety and decrease unit costs, and for additional weapons production and development facilities. Proposed also are $54.4 million for facilities needed for military propulsion reactor development, and $12.3 million for new research laboratory buildings and additions and improvements to existing research buildings and machines.

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Administration serves as a central agency for management of Government real and personal property, construction of public buildings, procurement of common-use supplies and services, stockpiling of critical materials, and provision of transportation, utility, archival and records services. Program operations are grouped under 5 services and are performed mainly through 10 regional offices under central office direction.

Policy direction and coordination of all programs are provided for in an "Office of the Administrator" appropriation. Basic operations are provided for in four "Operating expenses" appropriations. Separate appropriations provide for other programs such as construction and repair of buildings, lease-purchase of buildings, operation of a nationwide system of supply depots, stockpiling of critical materials, and other operations. In addition, substantial financing is provided for operations performed for other agencies by transfers, allocations, and reimbursements from funds of such agencies.

The Administration serves by delegation from Office of Defense Mobilization as executor of defense production expansion programs financed by allocations of borrowing authority made available to the President. Details of these programs are shown in the funds appropriated to the President chapter of the budget.

This appropriation provides for operations dealing with acquisition, operation, and utilization of general purpose space and the maintenance, custody, management, and disposal of real property.

The appropriation request for 1957 is a net increase of $12,449,800 above amount for 1956, and includes activities formerly provided for under "Emergency operating expenses." The net increase is composed of (1) $11,729,700 for buildings management activities, including $3,279,000 for services previously furnished on a reimbursable basis, (2) $300,000 for the national industrial reserve activity, and (3) $65,000 for surplus property disposal activities.

1. Buildings management.—This activity provides for (a) management, operation, maintenance, and protection of 105,054,000 square feet of Government-owned and leased space, compared with 103,355,000 square feet in 1956 and 105,956,000 in 1955, (b) repairs of 43,703,000 square feet of Government-owned space in the District of Columbia and adjacent area, substantially unchanged from 1956 and 1955, (c) operation of joint-use communication facilities, and (d) other related services.

|---|---|
| Operation, protection, and maintenance of Government-owned space | $917,200 |
| Rental, operation, protection, maintenance, and repair of leased space | 225,500 |
| Operation, protection, and maintenance of purchase-contract space | 135,000 |
| Space supplied to other agencies on a reimbursable basis in 1956 | 3,279,000 |
| Consolidation of leased locations | 1,200,000 |
| Air-conditioning Government-owned buildings in District of Columbia area | 5,000,000 |
| Renovations and improvements to buildings in District of Columbia area | 870,000 |
| Furniture and furnishings for Government-owned buildings | 400,000 |
| Miscellaneous reductions | −297,000 |
| Total | 11,729,700 |

2. Real estate utilization.—General-purpose space is assigned and controlled and, where necessary, space is acquired by lease. Space utilization analyses and surveys proposed in 1957 will cover 84.1 million square feet. Future Federal building projects are investigated. Sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings are utilized and leased pending construction, real property is appraised, and real property management practices of Federal agencies are examined and improvements prescribed.

3. National industrial reserve.—A reserve of Government-owned industrial plants, machine tools, and industrial equipment is maintained to supply essential needs of the Armed Forces in time of national emergency. Protection and maintenance will be required on 12 plants and 8,171 tons of machine tools in 1957, compared to an estimated 7 plants and 7,091 tons of machine tools in 1956 and 5 plants and 1,000 tons of machine tools in 1955. Increase of $300,000 for 1957 will provide for improving layaway conditions for plants and tools.

4. Surplus property disposal.—Real property, reported excess, is screened with all Federal agencies for possible utilization. Unneeded property is declared surplus and sold, leased, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of. Sales of surplus real property may be made directly by the General Services Administration or through private brokers and auctioneers.

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |
|---|---|---|---|
| Inventory, beginning of year | $235.3 | $181.8 | $312.8 |
| Additions (declarations, repossessions, etc.) | 42.9 | 401.0 | 488.0 |
| Inventory, end of year (−) | −181.8 | −312.8 | −280.8 |
| Dispositions (sales, withdrawals, etc.) | 96.4 | 270.0 | 520.0 |

It is estimated that $48.4 million will be paid into the Treasury from this activity in 1957, compared to $30.2 million in 1955.

5. Buildings design and supervision.—All programs involving design, construction, and remodeling of buildings are centrally directed by a staff of technical personnel.

6. Service administration.—General supervision over all programs assigned to Public Buildings Service is provided.

7. Administrative operations.—Financial, administrative, legal, compliance, and information services required to support this program are provided by the integrated staff organization of General Services Administration. Increase in 1957 reflects increased workload due to expansion of program operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Repairs, renovations, and improvements are provided for over 4,400 buildings outside the District of Columbia constructed or purchased at a cost exceeding $1 billion, containing more than 112 million gross square feet of floor space. Request for 1957 will allow (1) a level of repairs equal to new work generated and about 10 percent reduction in backlog of work built up during the past several years, and (2) items described in 3 (a) and (b) below.

1. Normal repairs.—Normal recurring repairs to buildings and equipment are made, including replacements or improvements costing less than $10,000. For 1957, $11.2 million is proposed to offset work newly generated during the year and $6.3 million to undertake projects from the extensive backlog which will contribute to safe operations and prevent excessive deterioration.

2. Major replacements.—Facilities and equipment which have become obsolete or worn beyond economical repair are replaced. The 1957 program provides for 91 projects selected from the backlog to bring about operating economies.

3. Major improvements—(a) Air conditioning.—Initiation of a general program of permanent air conditioning of buildings outside the District of Columbia, where warranted by climatic conditions, is proposed for 1957. The most urgent situations are estimated to cost some $93 million, of which $15 million is proposed for 1957.

(b) Extension and remodeling.—It is proposed to remodel and extend buildings which become excess to the Post Office Department as a result of its lease-purchase or long-lease programs. This will provide office space more economically than by leasing or under the General Services Administration purchase-contract program. Included in the 1957 estimate is $4 million for several high-priority projects of this type and for improvement of certain public health and general facilities.

(c) Post office workspace improvements.—Starting in 1955 new financing of this work is provided by the Post Office Department.

(d) Other.—Improvements to facilities and equipment to meet changing or expanding needs of occupying agencies are made. The 1957 program provides for selection of 113 projects which will contribute substantially to efficient and economical operations.

4. Administrative operations.—Financial, administrative, legal, and compliance services required to support this program are provided by the integrated staff organization of General Services Administration. Increase in program is $17.9 million, or 68.4 percent as compared to 38.6 percent in cost of administrative operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program provides for site acquisition, drawings and specifications, and construction supervision in connection with the acquisition of urgently needed buildings to be initially financed with private capital and acquired by the Government through lease-purchase arrangements.

The current program contemplates sites and designs for 88 projects ultimately costing some $376 million exclusive of interest and taxes. Twenty-six projects were approved during first session of 84th Congress, and 13 of these projects are scheduled for completion during 1957. Cost of sites, drawings, and incidental items for 88 projects is estimated at $36,871,000 of which $18,975,000 has been provided. An appropriation of $5 million is requested in 1957, leaving $12,896,000 to be requested subsequently.

Funds required for payments to contractors, after projects are completed, are provided under "Payments, Public Buildings Purchase Contracts."

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under the program to acquire buildings through lease-purchase arrangements, equal annual payments of principal, with interest thereon, are made to contractors to amortize costs over periods of 25 years of public buildings initially financed with private capital. Some $181 million of construction is expected to be under contract by end of 1957 on which annual payments for principal and interest during the contract period will total $12 million, an increase of $7 million over current contract authority. In addition, real property taxes are reimbursed to contractors during the contract period. Title vests in the United States at the end of the contract period.

Program for 1957 provides for payments totaling $237,000 on 13 projects scheduled for completion during that year.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Improvements of private hospital facilities in the District of Columbia are made under legislation authorizing appropriations of $35 million.

1. Construction.—Under appropriations of $16.4 million and unfinanced contract authorization of $5.3 million a site has been acquired and principal contracts awarded for construction of a hospital center, with completion scheduled for May 1957. Construction expenses through 1957 will require appropriation of the unfinanced contract authorization.

2. Grants.—Under appropriations of $13,010,000 previously authorized, grants are being made to private agencies in the District of Columbia for improving their hospital facilities. Seven private agencies are authorized to receive grants not exceeding 50 percent of the cost of building programs. Building costs are estimated at $27.8 million involving grants of about $13 million, all but three of which have been made. Approximately $6.5 million, representing 50 percent of the grants, will be reimbursed by the District of Columbia.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for establishment on a governmentwide basis of personal property management practices.

Increases proposed in 1957 are principally to improve supply management practices in civil agencies, expand coverage of national supply schedule contracts, and complete cataloging of items in GSA's supply system. A small increase is also proposed to foster better utilization of excess personal property.

1. Motor vehicle management.—Governmentwide policies and procedures are developed for improving management and utilization of motor equipment. Interagency motor equipment pools are established after surveys at location of high vehicle density demonstrate economies or improved efficiency will result. Progress of the program is shown in the following table:

| | Surveys started | Surveys completed | Motor pools established |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1955 | 11 | 4 | 1 |
| 1956 | 13 | 12 | 13 |
| 1957 | 15 | 15 | 15 |

2. Supply schedule contracting.—Term contracts for commodities and services of common use are established for large aggregate volume purchasing against which agencies can place individual orders at uniform price advantages whenever this method is advantageous to the Government.

3. Personal property utilization and disposal.—Excess personal property having high-use potential is reported to GSA for screening against needs of other Federal agencies to achieve maximum utilization within Government and obviate new purchases. The residue, together with surpluses not screened by GSA is either donated for educational and public health purposes or released for public sale. Utilization transfers of $71 million in 1955 are expected to increase to $97 million in 1956 and $121 million in 1957.

4. Supply standards.—Standards of quality and other characteristics of common-use commodities are established by developing specifications covering quality, types, sizes, and varieties of items, and by qualified products lists, for mandatory use by Federal agencies. Production of 558 specifications in 1955 will increase to 600 in 1956 and 680 in 1957 without increase in performance costs, by utilizing existing departmental, technical society, and industry standards and specifications. Increase in 1957 provides for completion of identification begun on a small scale in 1956 of some 130,000 items in GSA supply system with numbering used in the Federal catalog system.

5. Inspection.—Overall policies and procedures are developed for inspection of materials acquired under GSA's five major procurement programs. Inspections and tests of Federal schedule items are made on a limited basis, as required.

6. Supply management.—Policies and procedures are developed to improve management of supplies and equipment by civilian agencies. Supply surveys of agencies will be coordinated by resident specialists to help with supply problems as they arise.

7. Service administration.—General supervision over all programs assigned to Federal Supply Service is provided.

8. Administrative operations.—Financial, administrative, legal, compliance, and information services required to support this program are provided by the integrated staff organization of GSA. Increase in 1957 reflects increased workload due to expansion of program operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for expenses of operating the nationwide supply system whereby common-use commodities and services are sold to agencies (1) from supply depot stocks or (2) by direct delivery from suppliers, whichever is more economical. Cost of commodities and services, including interagency motor pool services, is initially financed from the general supply fund, subject to reimbursement by ordering agencies. Total sales for 1957 are programed at $203 million as compared to $169 million for 1956 and $149 million in 1955. Increases largely result from expanded military supply support programs, in which military bases are authorized to make greater use of GSA stores and direct delivery facilities for common-use items.

1. Stores operations.—Stocks of common-use commodities are received, warehoused, and sold at cost to Federal agencies through a nationwide system of supply depots. Continuous increase in sales of stores stock items is shown in the following figures: 1954, $49 million; 1955, $72 million; 1956, $77 million; 1957, $102 million.

2. Direct order purchasing.—Commodities are procured for inventories in supply depots and for direct delivery to agencies. Purchases of stores items in 1957 increase $39 million to provide inventory replenishment based on expanded sales program and increased emphasis on direct delivery of large orders. No change expected in volume of nonstores purchases.

3. Space and related costs.—Space is provided for supply depots. The estimate assumes savings to result from negotiations now being carried on which will transfer several depots from leased to Government-owned space.

4. Direct order inspection.—Delivery of commodities of specified standards is assured by inspections at contractors' plants or at supply depots, and by laboratory tests and analyses of samples prior to acceptance. Of $120 million worth of material inspected and tested in 1955, $3 million worth was rejected and replaced by standard merchandise.

5. Equipment maintenance.—Supervision is provided over GSA motor pools and maintenance facilities operated under the general supply fund. Direct operating expenses of such pools and facilities are financed from that fund and are recovered from agencies or activities utilizing the services. Reduction in costs in 1957 reflects transfer of supervisory and clerical salaries to the general supply fund as interagency motor pools are established.

6. Administrative operations.—Financial, administrative, legal, compliance, and information services required to support this program are provided by the integrated staff organization of GSA. Increase in total sales program is $34 million, or 20.1 percent as compared to 14.5 percent in cost of administrative operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for basic operations of the Administration which deal with management of the Government's archives and records, including custody and administration of permanent records in the National Archives and of other noncurrent records in Federal records centers, surveillance of records management programs of Government agencies, and filing and publication of Federal laws and regulations. The 1957 budget estimate is an increase of $478,700 above comparative availability for 1956. This increase provides for expediting records management improvements in Government, additional workload in regional records centers, beginning a project to preserve and rehabilitate valuable paper archives which are in imminent danger of loss through deterioration, and for monitoring records surveys by private concerns financed under another heading.

1. Records management.—Records management in Federal agencies is promoted and coordinated under provisions of the Federal Records Act of 1950. Assistance, advice, and training are provided in records management and other operating procedures involving extensive paperwork. Standards are established governing the retention and disposal of records. Records surveys by private concerns are monitored.

2. Records centers.—Records of Federal agencies which must be retained for a period of time, but are not needed for frequent reference, are brought into and administered in 10 regional records centers and 5 annexes until disposition can be effected. A national center at St. Louis administers records of former civilian employees of the Federal Government and locator file for currently employed personnel. The 1957 budget estimate provides for bringing into the regional centers an additional 550,000 cubic feet of records, the scheduled disposal of 325,000 cubic feet of records now in the centers, and for rendering about 1.1 million reference services.

3. Archives and related services.—The permanently valuable records of the Government are selected, arranged, cataloged, preserved, and serviced in the Archives of the United States. Related services consist of (a) publication of the Federal Register, Code of Federal Regulations, United States Government Organization Manual, the slip laws, and the United States Statutes at Large, (b) preservation and servicing of historical records at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library, and (c) National Historical Publications Commission.

4. Nitrate film conversion.—Historically valuable motion-picture film records are preserved by converting from unstable nitrate base film to a permanent safety acetate base. The project is financed from balances of prior appropriations and will be completed in 1957.

5. Service administration.—General supervision over all programs assigned to the National Archives and Records Service is provided.

6. Administrative operations.—Financial, administrative, legal, compliance, and information services to support this program are provided by the integrated staff organization of GSA. Increase in 1957 reflects increased workload due to expansion of program operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Surveys of records management practices in various agencies are performed under contracts with private concerns to disclose areas susceptible to improvements and economies. This program was initiated in 1955 under an appropriation of $300,000 which included expense of monitoring the contracts. The program proposed for 1957 requires $200,000, all of which is for contracts, as expense of monitoring contracts is included in the estimate for "Operating expenses, National Archives and Records Service."

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This new appropriation provides for transportation and public utilities services to civil agencies, to be provided by the Transportation and Public Utilities Service, established July 1, 1955.

Funds for 1956 are provided by transfers from other appropriations of the Administration corresponding to the transfer of functions to the new service at their existing level.

Increases for 1957 provide for expansion and improvement of traffic and utilities services as the first step toward progressively centralizing in the new service functions now performed by certain civil agencies.

1. Transportation services.—Data on rates, classifications, packaging, and consolidations are furnished to civil agencies; beneficial rates are negotiated; nonstores shipments originating within General Services Administration are managed; and research is conducted to minimize transportation costs.

2. Public utilities services.—As a centralized function for all executive agencies, public utility equipment utilization and rate studies are made, contracts negotiated, reviewed, and renewed, and the Government represented as a user of public utilities before Federal and State regulatory bodies to obtain utilities services at minimum cost. Increase for 1957 provides for extension of service to areas not yet covered by contracts.

3. Service administration.—General supervision over all programs assigned to Transportation and Public Utilities Service is provided.

4. Administrative operations.—Financial, administrative, legal, compliance, and information services required to support this program are provided by the integrated staff organization of General Services Administration. Increase in 1957 reflects increased workload due to expansion of program operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In carrying out the Stragetic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act of 1946 (50 U. S. C. 98 et seq.), the Emergency Procurement Service acquires and administers materials inventories in accordance with general guidelines established by the Office of Defense Mobilization.

During 1955, the high level of economic activity created a heavy industrial demand for several stockpile materials. This not only reduced the amount available for Government procurement below previous forecasts, but also necessitated substantial diversions of deliveries of such materials as copper, nickel, and aluminum to industrial supply channels. Since the outlook for fiscal years 1956 and 1957 is one of continued high economic activity and, because of the rapid progress made toward achieving other stockpile objectives prior to fiscal year 1956, the procurement plans developed by the Office of Defense Mobilization call for a more moderate acquisition rate than prevailed in the past few years.

The effect of these actions on budgetary requirements for this program has been twofold: (1) Prior year obligations amounting to approximately $270 million are being canceled, primarily accounting for an increase in the amount available for obligation in 1956 from $640 million to $976 million, and (2) the amount estimated to be obligated during 1956 has been reduced from the earlier forecast of $640 million to $428 million. These factors make it possible to finance the entire 1957 program without additional appropriation.

Based on existing objectives, the status of the stockpile at June 1955 prices is expected to be as follows:

[As of June 30. In millions]

| | 1955 actual | 1956 estimate | 1957 estimate |
|---|---|---|---|
| Value of stockpile objectives: | | | |
| Minimum objectives | $6,999.6 | $6,355.8 | $6,355.8 |
| Long-term objectives (increment) | 3,553.9 | 3,993.2 | 3,993.2 |
| Total objectives | 10,553.5 | 10,349.0 | 10,349.0 |
| Procurement for total objectives: | | | |
| Material in inventory | 5,664.0 | 6,115.9 | 6,438.6 |
| Material on order | 547.5 | 277.0 | 160.2 |
| Total procured | 6,211.5 | 6,392.9 | 6,598.8 |
| Balance to be procured: | | | |
| For minimum objectives | 1,873.4 | 1,125.8 | 992.4 |
| For long-term objectives (increment) | 2,468.6 | 2,830.3 | 2,757.8 |
| Total to be procured | 4,342.0 | 3,956.1 | 3,750.2 |

1. Acquisition of materials.—This covers the cost of materials acquired for the stockpile by direct procurement and by donation. Additional expenditures for strategic materials are shown in the funds appropriated to the President chapter of this budget under the head "Expansion of defense production."

(a) Cost of purchased materials.—Strategic materials authorized for procurement by the Office of Defense Mobilization are acquired as follows:

OBLIGATIONS IN MILLIONS

|---|---|---|---|
| a. Open market purchases | $121.7 | [1] $209.2 | $62.6 |
| b. Purchases of materials under Commodity Credit Corporation barter operations | 18.0 | 17.2 | 48.4 |
| c. Purchases of materials under Defense Production Act expansion programs | 439.1 | 72.9 | 99.0 |
| Total | 578.8 | 299.3 | 210.0 |

[1] Includes obligation of $102 million carried as "unobligated commitments" at start of 1956.

Based on existing stockpile objectives, the status of procurement on June 30, 1955, of the 75 materials on the stockpile list was as follows:

NUMBER OF MATERIALS

| Percent procurement completed: | Minimum objective | Long-term objective |
|---|---|---|
| 100 | 34 | 11 |
| 90 to 99 | 4 | 5 |
| 75 to 89 | 9 | 6 |
| 50 to 74 | 11 | 9 |
| 25 to 49 | 8 | 10 |
| Under 25 | 7 | 10 |
| Total | 73 | 51 |

(b) Expenses for donated materials.—In addition to direct procurement, materials are acquired by free transfer from programs of other agencies such as the basic materials program of the International Cooperation Administration. During 1956 and 1957 the value of these transfers will amount to approximately $34.9 million, and will require expenditures of about $1 million from this appropriation for transportation, handling, and other accessorial costs.

(c) Operating expenses.—The lower level of stockpiling activities in 1957 makes possible a reduction of $116,000 in operating expenses.

2. Custody of materials.—This covers the handling and storage of materials delivered to the stockpile and the cost of rotating those materials subject to deterioration. Value of deliveries during 1956 and 1957, including donated materials, is expected to total $451.9 million and $322.7 million, respectively. This will increase the value of materials in storage against stockpile goals from $5,664 million on June 30, 1955, to $6,438.6 million on June 30, 1957.

(a) Handling and storage.—As of June 30, 1954, stockpile materials were stored at 313 locations. During 1955, the number of locations was reduced to 273 primarily by eliminating commercial storage locations and warehouses and replacing them by increasing quantities stored on Government-owned sites, some obtained by utilization of surplus military facilities. The 273 locations consist of 65 military depots, 23 other Government-owned sites and warehouses, 143 commercial facilities, and 42 industrial plant sites and other sites leased at nominal cost. During 1956 and 1957, no significant changes are expected in the number of locations used, but efforts to utilize surplus military and other Government-owned facilities will continue. Obligations for the cost of storage and handling of materials are expected to be as follows:

|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | | Thousand units | Cost | Thousand units | Cost |
| 1. Handling of materials: | | | | | |
| a. For open storage | Short tons | 2,457 | $1,810,087 | 2,750 | $1,931,201 |
| b. For closed storage | Short tons | 562 | 1,255,037 | 416 | 929,688 |
| c. For tank storage | Short tons | 103 | 144,200 | 36 | 50,400 |
| Total | Short tons | 3,122 | 3,209,324 | 3,202 | 2,911,289 |
| 2. Storage of materials: | | | | | |
| a. Open storage | Square feet | 45,517 | 1,882,722 | 47,597 | 1,942,722 |
| b. Closed storage | Square feet | 23,421 | 7,549,697 | 23,617 | 7,726,826 |
| c. Tank storage | Short tons | 337 | 506,325 | 314 | 374,265 |
| d. Nonrecurring cost | | | 2,125,558 | | 2,327,898 |
| Total | | | 12,064,302 | | 12,371,711 |
| 3. Transportation and miscellaneous expense | | | 2,467,755 | | 1,865,000 |
| Total | | | 17,741,381 | | 17,148,000 |

(b) Cost of rotating materials.—Inventories of such materials as rubber, fibers, and oils are rotated periodically to keep the inventory in prime condition. There is expected to be a large increase over 1955 in the volume of materials rotated during fiscal years 1956 and 1957 as shown in the following table:

|---|---|---|---|
| 1. Gross replacement cost of materials rotated | $58,178,587 | $105,851,000 | $107,049,000 |
| 2. Receipts from sales of materials rotated | 49,031,603 | 95,260,000 | 96,397,000 |
| 3. Net cost of rotation | 9,146,984 | 10,591,000 | 10,652,000 |

The net cost of rotation covers such items as price differentials as materials are upgraded and transportation in and out.

(c) Physical inventory of materials.—The Hoover Commission recommended taking physical inventory of stockpile materials. General Services Administration has been working toward this objective. In cooperation with the Office of Defense Mobilization and the General Accounting Office, plans are being formulated to get a full scale program underway in 1956. Pending full development of plans, no accurate estimate of size or cost of the task can be made. Consequently, obligations shown for 1956 and 1957 are preliminary estimates.

(d) Operating expenses.—The $1,028,600 estimate for 1957 is slightly more than costs estimated for 1956. The increase is due to maintenance of larger inventories.

STOCKPILING ACTIVITIES

ABACA FIBER PROGRAM

Abaca Fiber Program, General Services Administration

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Purpose and financial organization.—Production and sale of abaca fiber is authorized by the Abaca Production Act of 1950 (50 U. S. C. 541), to provide a Western Hemisphere source for the material, which is essential for making rope, in case normal supplies are unavailable during an emergency. Pursuant to Executive Order 10539 the program was transferred July 1, 1954, to General Services Administration from Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Operating deficits of the program through 1957 will be financed from working capital and from proceeds from sales of fiber.

|---|---|---|---|
| (a) Acreage authorized | 20,100 | 10,000 | 10,000 |
| (b) Acres in standby | | 5,000 | 5,000 |
| (c) Production (pounds) | 20,653,283 | 12,000,000 | 16,000,000 |
| (d) Cost per pound (cents) | 24.9 | 20.1 | 17.7 |
| (e) Sales (pounds) | 21,103,800 | 20,000,000 | 20,000,000 |
| (f) Sales price per pound (cents) | 14.8 | 17.5 | 17.5 |
| (g) Inventory July 1 (pounds) | 14,650,000 | 6,650,000 | 2,650,000 |

Production operations are conducted by means of contracts with private firms operating in the Central American countries in which the plantations are located. In January 1955 the Office of Defense Mobilization reduced the acreage limitation from 20,100 to 15,000 of which 5,000 are to be maintained in standby condition.

A net loss of $1.7 million is anticipated for 1957, $1.5 million less than 1956. This will increase the cumulative losses since 1954 to $6.7 million, an impairment to the $17.4 million investment transferred from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Capital expenditures for normal betterments and replacements are estimated at $100,000 for 1957.

Defense Production Guaranties, General Services Administration

Guaranties are given on loans made by private sources or Federal Reserve banks to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Upon demand of lending institutions the Government is required to purchase the guaranteed percentage of the loan, or the Government may make a voluntary purchase of the guaranteed percentage. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use. Net earnings are retained to meet possible future losses (50 U. S. C., App. 2091).

Guaranties totaling $5.3 million on 4 loans are estimated to be in effect by the end of 1957, compared to $62.8 million and 7 loans on June 30, 1955. Retained earnings are anticipated to be $3.7 million by the end of 1957.
